

Plutarchus

11

PLUTARCH'S LIVES

WITH AN ENGLISH TRANSLATION BY BERNADOTTE PERRIN

Henry G. Richards

IN TEN VOLUMES

I

THESEUS AND ROMULUS
LYCURGUS AND NUMA
SOLON AND PUBLICOLA

LONDON : WILLIAM HEINEMANN
NEW YORK : THE MACMILLAN CO.

MCMXIV

12

888.8

101p.

V.1

C.17

PREFATORY NOTE

AGREEMENT between the Sintenis (Teubner, 1873-1875) and Bekker (Tauchnitz, 1855-1857) texts of the Parallel Lives has been taken as the basis for the text of the present edition. Any preference of one to the other where they differ, and any departure from both, have been indicated. All the Lives included in this volume are contained in the Codex Seitenstettensis (S), and occasional use has been made of the collations of that MS. by W. Meyer (Leipzig, 1890). Since no collations of Codex Parisinus 1676 (F^a), the excellent MS. so closely related to S, have been accessible to the Editor, its readings could only be inferred here and there from the text and notes of Stephanus. No attempt has been made, naturally, to furnish either a diplomatic text or a full critical apparatus. The reading which follows the colon in the critical notes is that of the Teubner Sintenis, and also, unless otherwise stated in the note, of the Tauchnitz Bekker.

PREFATORY NOTE

The translation must speak for itself. Its author, like Plutarch himself, prays that he may find kindly readers, and feels reasonably confident of doing so among those who are able to appreciate the peculiarities of Plutarch's Greek. All the standard translations of the Lives have, of course, been carefully compared and utilized.

B. PERRIN.

NEW HAVEN, CONNECTICUT, U.S.A.

February, 1914.

CONTENTS

	PAGE
PREFATORY NOTE	v
INTRODUCTION	ix
ORDER OF THE PARALLEL LIVES IN THIS EDITION IN THE CHRONOLOGICAL SEQUENCE OF THE GREEK LIVES . .	xviii
THE TRADITIONAL ORDER OF THE PARALLEL LIVES . .	xix
THESEUS	1
ROMULUS	89
COMPARISON OF THESEUS AND ROMULUS	188
LYCURGUS	203
NUMA	305
COMPARISON OF LYCURGUS AND NUMA	382
SOLON	403
PUBLICOLA	501
COMPARISON OF SOLON AND PUBLICOLA	564
DICTIONARY OF PROPER NAMES	577

INTRODUCTION

PLUTARCH'S LIFE AND WRITINGS

PLUTARCH was born at Chaeroneia, a small town on the northern confines of Boeotia, about the middle of the first century of our era, and toward the close of the reign of the emperor Claudius. He belonged to a family of ample means and generous culture, and was liberally educated. He studied at Athens, the most attractive university town in his day for both Greeks and Romans, and was a disciple of Ammonius of Lamptrae, a Peripatetic philosopher deeply versed in religious lore. Returning to his native town, he was soon called upon to represent it as deputy to the Roman governor of the province of Greece. That he travelled extensively over Greece, visited Asia Minor, Egypt, and Italy, and resided much at Rome, may be inferred from his writings, as most that is known about him must be inferred. At Rome, he was in charge of certain public business, so that he had not time to learn thoroughly the Latin language, as he himself confesses in the introduction to his Demosthenes. But Greek was the language of literary and polite society at Rome, and cultivated Greeks, especially philosophers, were welcome there. As a Greek philosopher, and a populariser of Platonism, Plutarch read and lectured at Rome, much as he did in the small but select circle of his intimates and friends at home. He made and retained a large acquaintance with the prominent Romans of his day, and was familiar with the questions which most occupied the minds of men at the political centre of the world. Then, after Athenian education, generous travels, diplomatic missions, modest literary celebrity, and considerable residence at Rome, he seems to have retired to his little country home, with his books, notes, lectures, essays, and gentle philosophy, and there, in a leisure not all too much encroached upon by local magistracies and certain religious offices at neighbouring Delphi, to have elaborated the sketches of his lectures and essays, which have come down to us under the collective name of Morals, and to have composed the work on which his fame chiefly rests,—the Parallel Lives of Greeks and Romans. He lived through the reigns Nero, Domitian, and Trajan, and, leaving the world as he did about 120 A.D., must have rejoiced at the accession of Hadrian to the imperial throne. His world had grown steadily better while he lived, and was now to enjoy its second golden age.

INTRODUCTION

The Morals were composed, for the greater part, before the Lives, and are an invaluable prelude to and commentary on them, especially if we would know just what manner of man the author of the Lives was. They tell us, as the Lives do not, "of the points of view, moral and religious, from which he contemplated not this man's life or the other's, but the whole life of men. Nor is it too much to affirm that of the two halves of Plutarch's writings, of his Lives and his Morals, each constitutes a complement of the other; the one setting forth to us, and, so far as this was possible, from ideal points of view, what the ancient world had accomplished in the world of action, and the other what, in like manner, it had aimed at and accomplished in the world of thought" (Trench, Plutarch, p. 90). But even in the Lives, Plutarch is far more moralist than historian.

INTRODUCTION

Greece, after passing under Roman sway, lost sight gradually of her great men of action, and contented herself with the glories of her men of thought. Here surely the dominant Romans could not vie with her. It was to prove that the more remote past of Greece could show its lawgivers, commanders, statesmen, patriots, and orators, as well as the nearer and therefore more impressive past of Rome, that the Parallel Lives were written. With Scipio Africanus the Elder, the greatest man of Rome, Plutarch matched Epaminondas, the greatest man of Greece. This pair, or "book," of Lives is unfortunately lost. With Camillus, who saved Rome from the Gauls, he matched Themistocles, who saved Athens from the Persians. Then followed, as nearly as the order can be determined—for the order of the Lives in our collection is not the original one, the Cimon and Lucullus, the Lycurgus and Numa, the Demosthenes and Cicero, the Pelopidas and Marcellus, the Lysander and Sulla, the Philopoemen and Flamininus, the Pericles and Fabius Maximus, the Aristides and Cato Major, and thirteen other pairs. Eighteen of the twenty-two pairs which have come down to us, close with a formal comparison of the two careers and characters. This is often fanciful and forced, abounds in contrasts rather than resemblances, and is seldom of any special historical value, although it often has great literary charm. There are also four single Lives in our collection, Artaxerxes, Aratus, Galba, and Otho, and we get traces of twelve more that are now lost. One of the pairs is a double one, where, to match the two Gracchi, Plutarch selects the two reforming Spartan kings, Agis and Cleomenes. We have in all, therefore, fifty Lives by Plutarch.

INTRODUCTION

MANUSCRIPTS, EDITIONS, TRANSLATIONS, ETC.

A full account of the MSS. of Plutarch must be sought in the critical editions of the Lives by Sintenis and Bekker. It will be sufficient to speak here of six.

The oldest and, with one exception, the most authoritative MS., is the Codex Sangermanensis (S*), in the library of the monastery of St. Germaindes-Prés, in the French Department of the Loire. It is a parchment MS. of the Xth century, but unfortunately contains only fifteen of the Lives: Antony (last part), Pyrrhus-Marius, Aratus, Artaxerxes, Agis and Cleomenes, Tiberius and Caius Gracchus, Lycurgus-Numa, Lysander-Sulla, and Agesilaüs-Pompey.

INTRODUCTION

The second oldest MS., and on the whole the most authoritative, is the Codex Seitenstettensis (S), belonging to the monastery of Seitenstetten, near Waidhofen, in Lower Austria. It is a parchment MS. of the XIth century, containing sixteen Lives: Lycurgus-Numa, Solon-Publicola, Aristides-Cato the elder, Themistocles-Camillus, Cimon-Lucullus, Pericles-Fabius Maximus, Nicias-Crassus, and Agesilaüs-Pompey. There are large deficiencies in the Lycurgus, Fabius, Nicias, and Crassus. It is only since 1870, and the edition of the Aristides and Cato by Hercher, that this MS. has been known to be not only the second oldest, but the best extant MS. of Plutarch. It has not been used in any special editions of Lives included in this first volume, but its readings are collected in the dissertation of W. Meyer, De codice Plutarcho Seitenstettensi eiusque asseclis, Leipsic, 1890.

Three parchment MSS. in the Bibliothèque Nationale of Paris, No. 1671 (A), of the XIIIth century, containing all the Morals and Lives, No. 1672 (C), also of the XIIIth century, containing all the Lives, and No. 1674 (D), of the XVIth century containing all the Lives, are of supreme importance, and on these the texts of Sintenis and Bekker mainly rest. Of these three MSS., A and D seem to be more closely related to S^s, while C partakes of the characters both of S^k and S, and is often corrective of A and D.

INTRODUCTION

Another MS. in the same library, No. 1676 (F^a), of the XVth century, has only more recently been recognized as the chief authority of Stephanus, and as partaking of the character of S. Its readings have not been fully published as yet, but have been used in editing the texts of special Lives, none of which, however, are included in this first volume.

Other MSS. will be mentioned as they come into importance for the text of special Lives.

The editio princeps of the Parallel Lives, 1517, "Florentiae, in aedibus Philippi Juntae," was based on Florentine MSS. of relatively inferior value.

The Aldine edition of the Parallel Lives, 1519, "Venetiis, in aedibus Aldi et Andreae soceri," was based on Venetian MSS., which were of greater excellence than the Florentine, some of them retaining their importance to the present day.

The first edition of the complete works of Plutarch, 1572, Paris, 13 voll. 8vo, was edited by Henri Etienne (Stephanus), who improved the text of his predecessors with readings of better MSS. unknown to them, making special use of Codex Parisinus, No. 1676 (F^a). The Paris edition of 1624, in two volumes folio, reproduced the text of Stephanus, and became the textus receptus. By its pages (given on the inner margin of the text of the present edition) Plutarch is cited in the Index vocum verborumque exquisitorum in Plutarcho, which closes Wytttenbach's great edition of the Morals (Oxford, 1830).

INTRODUCTION

Critical and annotated editions of all the works of Plutarch by Reiske (Leipzig, 1774-82, 12 voll. 8vo), and of the Parallel Lives by Coraës (Paris, 1809-14, 6 voll. 8vo), were followed by the great critical edition of the Parallel Lives by Sintenis (Leipzig, 1839-46, 4 voll. 8vo), which still remains the standard edition (Sintenis¹). A minor edition of this work appeared in the Bibliotheca Teubneriana (Leipzig, 1852-55, 5 voll. 12mo, re-issued without much change in 1873-75). It shows more boldness in the correction of obvious error, and greater freedom in the admission of conjecture, than the major edition, but is the most generally accepted text of the Lives (Sintenis²). The Tauchnitz text, edited by Immanuel Bekker (Leipzig, 1855-57, 5 voll. 8vo), does not differ very much from the first minor edition of Sintenis, but has a convenient division of the chapters into sections, which has been adopted in the present text.

In 1559 appeared the French version of the Parallel Lives by Jacques Amyot, the earliest French classic recognized by the French Academy. Amyot consulted many MSS. unknown to the authors of the Juntine and Aldine editions, and his work has an independent philological value, aside from its great literary merits.

INTRODUCTION

It was from Amyot's version, rather than from the original Greek, that Sir Thomas North made his version of the Lives (1579), a translation by the earliest master of great English prose from the earliest master of great French prose. Shakespeare used this version in his Coriolanus, Julius Caesar, and Antony and Cleopatra. It was the Elizabethan Plutarch.

In Queen Anne's time, Dryden was "prevailed upon by his necessities" to head a company of translators of the Lives, and the version was called by his name (1683), although he furnished merely the Preface and the Life of Plutarch. Notwithstanding all the failings of this motley version, it supplanted that of North.

The first scholar's translation of the Lives from the original Greek into English, by the brothers John and William Langhorne, was published in 1770, and was the version most current from that time down to 1850. Compared with North's spirited version, it is rather dull and pedantic, although much more accurate.

Arthur Hugh Clough's revision of the so-called Dryden translation, a work which occupied this gifted scholar and poet for some seven years, was published in five volumes by Little, Brown & Co., of Boston, in 1859, and reprinted in one large octavo volume in 1876 and 1880. It is probably the best extant English version of all the Lives.

The best monograph on Plutarch in English is that of Archbishop Trench, which was published by the Messrs. Macmillan & Co. in 1873, and in a second edition in 1874. Ralph Waldo Emerson had already furnished a characteristic essay on Plutarch as an Introduction to Goodwin's revision of the translation of the Morals "by several hands" (Boston, Little, Brown & Co., 1870, reprinted, 1889). To the edition of North's translation of the Lives in the "Tudor Translations" (London, David Nutt, 1895-96), the Rt. Hon. George Wyndham furnished an Introduction of superlative power and excellence. Professor Mahaffy's chapters on Plutarch in his Greek World under Roman Sway (Macmillan & Co., 1890, pp. 291-350 = The Silver Age of the Greek World, Chicago and London, 1906, pp. 339-402) abound in discriminating and suggestive appreciations. Finally, mention may be made of Plutarch's Themistocles and Aristides, newly translated, with Introduction and Notes, by Bernadotte Perrin, New York, Charles Scribner's Sons, 1901.

INTRODUCTION

ORDER OF THE PARALLEL LIVES IN THIS EDITION IN THE CHRONOLOGICAL SEQUENCE OF THE GREEK LIVES.

VOLUME I.

- (1) Theseus and Romulus.
Comparison.
- (2) Lycurgus and Numa.
Comparison.
- (3) Solon and Publicola.
Comparison.

VOLUME II.

- (4) Themistocles and
Camillus.
- (9) Aristides and Cato the
Elder.
Comparison.
- (13) Cimon and Lucullus.
Comparison.

VOLUME III.

- (5) Pericles and Fabius Max-
imus.
Comparison.
- (14) Nicias and Crassus.
Comparison.

VOLUME IV.

- (6) Alcibiades and Coriola-
nus.
Comparison.
- (12) Lysander and Sulla.
Comparison.

VOLUME V.

- (16) Agesilaus and Pompey.
Comparison.
- (8) Pelopidas and Marcellus.
Comparison.

VOLUME VI.

- (22) Dion and Brutus.
Comparison.
- (7) Timoleon and Aemilius
Paulus.
Comparison.
- (20) Demosthenes and Cicero.
Comparison.

VOLUME VII.

- (17) Alexander and Julius Caesar.
- (15) Sertorius and Eumenes.
Comparison.

VOLUME VIII.

- (18) Phocion and Cato the Younger.
- (21) Demetrius and Antony.
Comparison.

VOLUME IX.

- (11) Pyrrhus and Caius Marius.
- (19) Agis and Cleomenes, and
Tiberius and Caius
Gracchus.
Comparison.

VOLUME X.

- (10) Philopoemen and Flam-
ininus.
Comparison.
- (23) Aratus.
- (24) Artaxerxes.
- (25) Galba.
- (26) Otho.

THE TRADITIONAL ORDER OF THE PARALLEL LIVES.

- (1) Theseus and Romulus.
- (2) Lycurgus and Numa.
- (3) Solon and Publicola.
- (4) Themistocles and Camillus.
- (5) Pericles and Fabius Maximus.
- (6) Alcibiades and Coriolanus.
- (7) Timoleon and Aemilius Paulus.
- (8) Pelopidas and Marcellus.
- (9) Aristides and Cato the Elder.
- (10) Philopoemen and Flamininus.
- (11) Pyrrhus and Caius Marius.
- (12) Lysander and Sulla.
- (13) Cimon and Lucullus.
- (14) Nicias and Crassus.
- (15) Sertorius and Eumenes.
- (16) Agesilaus and Pompey.
- (17) Alexander and Julius Caesar.
- (18) Phocion and Cato the Younger.
- (19) Agis and Cleomenes, and Tiberius and Caius
Gracchus.
- (20) Demosthenes and Cicero.
- 21) Demetrius and Antony.
- (22) Dion and Brutus.
.....
- (23) Aratus.
- (24) Artaxerxes.
- (25) Galba.
- (26) Otho.

PLUTARCH'S PARALLEL
LIVES
THESEUS

VOL. I.

B

ΠΛΟΥΤΑΡΧΟΥ ΒΙΟΙ ΠΑΡΑΛΛΗΛΟΙ

ΘΗΣΕΥΣ

I. "Ὡσπερ ἐν ταῖς γεωγραφίαις, ὧ Σόσσιε Paris Editio:
a. 1624,
Σενεκίων, οἱ ἱστορικοὶ τὰ διαφεύγοντα τὴν 1
γνώσιν αὐτῶν τοῖς ἐσχάτοις μέρεσι τῶν πινάκων πιεζοῦντες, αἰτίας¹ παραγράφουσιν ὅτι "Τὰ
δ' ἐπέκεινα θίνες ἄνδρῳ καὶ θηριώδεις" ἢ "πηλὸς αἰδνῆς" ἢ "Σκυθικὸν κρύος" ἢ "πέλαγος πεπηγός," οὕτως ἐμοὶ περὶ τὴν τῶν βίων τῶν παραλ-λήλων γραφήν, τὸν ἐφικτὸν εἰκότι λόγῳ καὶ βάσι-μον ἱστορίᾳ πραγμάτων ἐχομένη χρόνον διελθόντι, περὶ τῶν ἀνωτέρω καλῶς εἶχεν εἰπεῖν. "Τὰ δ' ἐπέκεινα τερατώδη καὶ τραγικὰ ποιηταὶ καὶ μυθογράφοι νέμονται, καὶ οὐκέτ' ἔχει πίστιν
2 οὐδὲ σαφήνειαν." ἐπεὶ δὲ τὸν περὶ Λυκούργου
τοῦ νομοθέτου καὶ Νομᾶ τοῦ βασιλέως λόγον
ἐκδόντες, ἐδοκοῦμεν οὐκ ἂν ἀλόγως τῷ Ῥωμύλῳ προσαναβῆναι, πλησίον τῶν χρόνων αὐτοῦ τῇ
ἱστορίᾳ γεγονότες, σκοποῦντι δέ μοι

¹ αἰτίας Amyot, Stephanus, Coraës, Sintenis² with C ; Bekker and Sintenis¹ have ἐνίαις (explaining some by saying).

PLUTARCH'S PARALLEL LIVES

THESEUS

I. JUST as geographers, O Socius Senecio,¹ crowd on to the outer edges of their maps the parts of the earth which elude their knowledge, with explanatory notes that "What lies beyond is sandy desert without water and full of wild beasts," or "blind marsh," or "Scythian cold," or "frozen sea," so in the writing of my Parallel Lives, now that I have traversed those periods of time which are accessible to probable reasoning and which afford basis for a history dealing with facts, I might well say of the earlier periods: "What lies beyond is full of marvels and unreality, the land of poets and fabulists, of doubt and obscurity." But after publishing my account of Lycurgus the lawgiver and Numa the king, I thought I might not unreasonably go back still farther to Romulus, now that my history had brought me near his times. And as I asked myself,

¹ One of the many friends whom Plutarch made during his residence at Rome. He was four times consul between the years 98 and 107 B.C. Plutarch addresses him also at the opening of the Demosthenes and the Dion, thus dedicating to him these "books."

PLUTARCH'S LIVES

Τοιῷδε φωτί (κατ' Αἰσχύλον) τίς ξυμβήσεται;¹
 τίν' ἀντιτάξω τῷδε; τίς φερέγγυος;²

ἐφαίνετο τὸν τῶν καλῶν καὶ ἀοιδίμων οἰκιστὴν
 Ἀθηνῶν ἀντιστήσαι καὶ παραβαλεῖν τῷ πατρὶ
 3 τῆς ἀνικῆτου καὶ μεγαλοδόξου Ῥώμης, εἴη μὲν
 οὖν ἡμῖν ἐκκαθαιρόμενον λόγῳ τὸ μυθῶδες ὑπα-κοῦσαι καὶ λαβεῖν ἱστορίας ὄψιν, ὅπου δ' ἂν αὐθαδῶς τοῦ πιθανοῦ περιφρονῆ καὶ μὴ δέχεται
 τὴν πρὸς τὸ εἰκὸς μίξι, εὐγνωμόνων ἀκροατῶν δεησόμεθα καὶ πράως τὴν ἀρχαιολογίαν προσδε-χομένων.

II. Ἐδόκει δ' οὖν ὁ Θησεὺς τῷ Ῥωμύλῳ κατὰ
 πολλὰς ἐναρμόττειν ὁμοιότητας· ἄμφω μὲν γὰρ³
 ἀνεγγύω καὶ σκοτίῳ γενόμενοι δόξαν ἔσχον ἐκ
 θεῶν γεγονέναι,

Ἄμφω δ' αἰχμητά, τό γε δὴ καὶ ἴδμεν ἅπαντες,
 καὶ μετὰ τοῦ δυνατοῦ τὸ συνετὸν ἔχοντες. πόλεων
 δὲ τῶν ἐπιφανεστάτων ὁ μὲν ἔκτισε τὴν Ῥώμην,
 ὁ δὲ συνώκισε τὰς Ἀθήνας· ἀρπαγὴ δὲ γυναικῶν
 2 ἐκατέρῳ πρόσεστιν. οὐδέτερος δὲ δυστυχίαν περὶ τὰ οἰκεία καὶ νέμεσιν ἐγγενῆ διέφυγεν, ἀλλὰ καὶ τελευτῶντες ἀμφότεροι λέγονται τοῖς ἑαυτῶν προσκρούσαι πολίταις, εἴ τι τῶν ἥκιστα τραγι-

¹ Seven against Thebes, 435, τοιῷδε φωτί πέμπε— τίς
 ξυστήσεται;

² Ibid. 395 f.

τίν' ἀντιτάξεις τῷδε; τίς Προίτου πυλῶν
 κλήθρων λυθέντων προστατεῖν φερέγγυος;

³ *Coraë*s, Bekker, and Cobet, with C, after Reiske;
 ἄμφω μὲν.

THESEUS

“ With such a warrior ” (as Aeschylus says) “ who will dare to fight ? ”

“ Whom shall I set against him ? Who is competent ? ”

it seemed to me that I must make the founder of lovely and famous Athens the counterpart and parallel to the father of invincible and glorious Rome. May I therefore succeed in purifying Fable, making her submit to reason and take on the semblance of History. But where she obstinately disdains to make herself credible, and refuses to admit any element of probability, I shall pray for kindly readers, and such as receive with indulgence the tales of antiquity.

II. It seemed to me, then, that many resemblances made Theseus a fit parallel to Romulus. For both were of uncertain and obscure parentage, and got the reputation of descent from gods ; and with their strength, combined sagacity. Of the world's two most illustrious cities, moreover, Rome and Athens, Romulus founded the one, and Theseus made a metropolis of the other, and each resorted to the rape of women. Besides, neither escaped domestic misfortunes and the resentful anger of kindred, but even in their last days both are said to have come into collision with their own fellow-citizens,

“ Both were also warriors, as surely the whole world knoweth,”¹

¹ Iliad vii. 281, of Aias Telamon and Hector.

PLUTARCH'S LIVES

κὼς εἰρήσθαι δοκούντων ὄφελός ἐστι πρὸς ἀλήθειαν.

III. Θησέως τὸ μὲν πατρῶον γένος εἰς Ἐρεχθέα 2
καὶ τοὺς πρώτους αὐτόχθονας ἀνήκει, τῷ δὲ μητρῷῳ Πελοπίδης ἦν. Πέλοψ γὰρ οὐ χρημάτων πλήθει μᾶλλον ἢ παίδων μέγιστον ἴσχυσε
τῶν ἐν Πελοποννήσῳ βασιλέων, πολλὰς μὲν ἐκδόμενος θυγατέρας τοῖς ἀρίστοις, πολλοὺς δὲ
ταῖς πόλεσιν υἱοὺς ἐγκατασπείρας ἄρχοντας· ὧν εἰς γενόμενος Πιτθεύς, ὁ Θησέως πάππος, πόλιν
μὲν οὐ μεγάλην τὴν Τροιζηνίων ᾤκισε, δόξαν δὲ
μάλιστα πάντων ὡς ἀνὴρ λόγιος ἐν τοῖς τότε καὶ
2 σοφώτατος ἔσχευ. ἦν δὲ τῆς σοφίας ἐκείνης τοιαύτη τις, ὡς ἔοικεν, ἰδέα καὶ δύναμις, οἷα χρησάμενος Ἡσίοδος εὐδοκίμει μάλιστα περὶ τὰς
ἐν τοῖς Ἔργοις γνωμολογίας. καὶ μίαν γε τούτων
ἐκείνην λέγουσι Πιτθέως εἶναι,

Μισθὸς δ' ἀνδρὶ φίλῳ εἰρημένος ἄρκιος ἔστω.

τοῦτο μὲν οὖν καὶ Ἀριστοτέλης ὁ φιλόσοφος
εἶρηκεν, ὁ δ' Εὐριπίδης, τὸν Ἰππόλυτον ἀγνοῦ Πιτθέως παιδεύμα προσειπών, ἐμφαίνει τὴν περὶ
τὸν Πιτθέα δόξαν.

3 Αἰγεί δὲ παίδων δεομένῳ τὴν Πυθίαν ἀνελεῖν
λέγουσι τὸν θρυλούμενον χρησμόν, διακελευο-μένην μηδεμιᾶ γυναικὶ συγγενέσθαι πρὶν ἐλθεῖν
εἰς Ἀθήνας, οὐ πάνυ δὲ τοῦτο φράζειν εὐδῆλως

THESEUS

if there is any aid to the truth in what seems to have been told with the least poetic exaggeration.

III. The lineage of Theseus, on the father's side, goes back to Erechtheus and the first children of the soil; on the mother's side, to Pelops. For Pelops was the strongest of the kings in Peloponnesus quite as much on account of the number of his children as the amount of his wealth. He gave many daughters in marriage to men of highest rank, and scattered many sons among the cities as their rulers. One of these, named Pittheus, the grandfather of Theseus, founded the little city of Troezen, and had the highest repute as a man versed in the lore of his times and of the greatest wisdom. Now the wisdom of that day had some such form and force as that for which Hesiod was famous, especially in the sententious maxims of his "Works and Days." One of these maxims is ascribed to Pittheus, namely:—

"Payment pledged to a man who is dear must be ample and certain."¹

At any rate, this is what Aristotle the philosopher says,² and Euripides,³ when he has Hippolytus addressed as "nursling of the pure and holy Pittheus," shows what the world thought of Pittheus.

Now Aegeus, king of Athens, desiring to have children, is said to have received from the Pythian priestess the celebrated oracle in which she bade him to have intercourse with no woman until he came to Athens. But Aegeus thought the words of the command somewhat obscure, and therefore turned

¹ Verse 370. ² Fragment 556. ³ Hippolytus, 11.

PLUTARCH'S LIVES

δοκούσαν· ὄθεν εἰς Τροιζήνα παρελθὼν ἀνεκοι-νούτο Πιτθεὶ τὴν τοῦ θεοῦ φωνὴν οὕτως ἔχουσαν·

Ἄσκού τὸν προὔχοντα πόδα, μέγα φέρτατε
λαῶν,
μὴ λύσης πρὶν δῆμον Ἀθηνέων εἰσαφικέσθαι·

- 4 ἃ δῆλον ὅτι νοήσας ὁ Πιτθεύς, ἔπεισεν αὐτὸν ἢ
διηπάτησε τῇ Αἰθρᾷ συγγενέσθαι. συνελθὼν δὲ
καὶ γνοὺς ἐκεῖνος ὅτι τῇ Πιτθέως θυγατρὶ συγγέγονε, καὶ κύειν αὐτὴν ὑπονοήσας, ἀπέλιπε ξίφος
καὶ πέδιλα κρύψας ὑπὸ πέτραν μεγάλην, ἐντὸς
ἔχουσαν κοιλότητα συμμέτρως ἐμπεριλαμβάνου-5 σαν τὰ κείμενα. φράσας δὲ πρὸς μόνην ἐκείνην,
καὶ διακελευσάμενος, ἂν υἱὸς ἐξ αὐτοῦ γένηται,
καὶ λαβὼν ἀνδρὸς ἡλικίαν δυνατὸς ἢ τὴν πέτραν
ἀναστήσαι καὶ ὑφέλειν τὰ καταλειφθέντα, πέμπειν πρὸς αὐτὸν ἔχοντα ταῦτα μηδενὸς εἰδότης,
ἀλλ' ὡς ἔνεστι μάλιστα λανθάνοντα πάντα (ἰσχυρῶς γὰρ ἐδεδοίκει τοὺς Παλλαντίδας, ἐπι-βουλεύοντας αὐτῷ καὶ διὰ τὴν ἀπαιδίαν καταφρονούντας· ἦσαν δὲ πεντήκοντα παῖδες ἐκ Πάλλαντος γεγονότες), ἀπήει.

IV. Τεκούσης δὲ τῆς Αἰθρας υἱόν, οἱ μὲν εὐθὺς
ὀνομασθῆναι Θησέα λέγουσι διὰ τὴν τῶν γνωρισμάτων θέσιν, οἱ δὲ ὕστερον Ἀθήνησι παῖδα
θεμένου τοῦ Αἰγέως αὐτόν. τρεφόμενον δὲ ὑπὸ

THESEUS

aside to Troezen and communicated to Pittheus the words of the god, which ran as follows:—

“Loose not the wine-skin’s jutting neck, great chief of the people, Until thou shalt have come once more to the city of Athens.”¹

This dark saying Pittheus apparently understood, and persuaded him, or beguiled him, to have intercourse with his daughter Aethra. Aegeus did so, and then learning that it was the daughter of Pittheus with whom he had consorted, and suspecting that she was with child by him, he left a sword and a pair of sandals hidden under a great rock, which had a hollow in it just large enough to receive these objects. He told the princess alone about this, and bade her, if a son should be born to her from him, and if, when he came to man’s estate, he should be able to lift up the rock and take away what had been left under it, to send that son to him with the tokens, in all secrecy, and concealing his journey as much as possible from everybody; for he was mightily in fear of the sons of Pallas,² who were plotting against him, and who despised him on account of his childlessness; and they were fifty in number, these sons of Pallas. Then he went away.

IV. When Aethra gave birth to a son, he was at once named Theseus, as some say, because the tokens for his recognition had been *placed*³ in hiding; but others say that it was afterwards at Athens, when Aegeus *acknowledged*³ him as his son. He was reared

¹ Cf. Euripides, Medea, 674, 676 (Kirchhoff).

² His brother.

³ It is impossible to reproduce in English the play on the Greek words.

PLUTARCH'S LIVES

τοῦ Πιθθέως ἐπιστάτην ἔχειν καὶ παιδαγωγὸν ὄνομα Κουνίδαν, ᾧ μέχρι νῦν Ἀθηναῖοι μιᾷ πρότερον ἡμέρᾳ τῶν Θεσειῶν κριὸν ἐναγίζουσι, μεμνημένοι καὶ τιμῶντες πολὺ δικαιότερον ἢ Σιλανίωνα τιμῶσι καὶ Παρράσιον, εἰκόνων Θεσέως γραφεῖς καὶ πλάστας γενομένους.

V. Ἔθους δὲ ὄντος ἔτι τότε τοὺς μεταβαίνοντας ἐκ παίδων ἐλθόντας εἰς Δελφοὺς ἀπάρχεσθαι τῷ θεῷ τῆς κόμης, ἦλθε μὲν εἰς Δελφοὺς ὁ Θεσεύς, καὶ τόπον ἀπ' αὐτοῦ τὴν Θεσειάν ἔτι νῦν ὀνομάζεσθαι λέγουσιν, ἐκείρατο δὲ τῆς κεφαλῆς τὰ πρόσθεν μόνον, ὥσπερ Ὀμηρος ἔφη τοὺς Ἄβαντας· καὶ τοῦτο τῆς κουρᾶς τὸ γένος Θεσητῆς ὀνομάσθη δι' ἐκείνον.

- 2 Οἱ δὲ Ἄβαντες ἐκείραντο πρῶτοι τὸν τρόπον τοῦτον οὐχ ὑπ' Ἀράβων διδαχθέντες, ὡς ἔνιοι νομίζουσιν, οὐδὲ Μυσσοὺς ζηλώσαντες, ἀλλ' ὄντες πολεμικοὶ καὶ ἀγχέμαχοι, καὶ μάλιστα δὴ πάντων εἰς χεῖρας ὠθειῖσθαι τοῖς ἐναντίοις μεμαθηκότες, ὡς μαρτυρεῖ καὶ Ἀρχίλοχος ἐν τούτοις·
- 3 Οὐ τοι πόλλ' ἐπὶ τόξα τανύσσεται οὐδὲ 3
θαμειαὶ
σφενδόνας, εὐτ' ἂν δὴ μῶλον Ἄρης συνάγη
ἐν πεδίῳ, ξιφέων δὲ πολύστονον ἔσσειται ἔργον·
ταύτης γὰρ κείνοι δαίμονές εἰσι μάχης δεσπόται Εὐβοίας δουρικλυτοί.

THESEUS

by Pittheus, as they say, and had an overseer and tutor named Connidas. To this man, even down to the present time, the Athenians sacrifice a ram on the day before the festival of Theseus, remembering him and honouring him with far greater justice than they honour Silanio and Parrhasius, who merely painted and moulded likenesses of Theseus.

V. Since it was still a custom at that time for youth who were coming of age to go to Delphi and sacrifice some of their hair to the god, Theseus went to Delphi for this purpose, and they say there is a place there which still to this day is called the Theseia from him. But he sheared only the fore part of his head, just as Homer¹ said the Abantes did, and this kind of tonsure was called Theseis after him.

Now the Abantes were the first to cut their hair in this manner, not under instruction from the Arabians, as some suppose, nor yet in emulation of the Mysians, but because they were war-like men and close fighters, who had learned beyond all other men to force their way into close quarters with their enemies. Archilochus is witness to this in the following words:—

“Not many bows indeed will be stretched tight, nor frequent slings
Be whirled, when Ares joins men in the moil of war
Upon the plain, but swords will do their mournful
work ;
For this is the warfare wherein those men are expert
Who lord it over Euboea and are famous with the spear.”²

¹ Iliad, ii. 542.

² Bergk, *Poet. Lyr. Gr.*⁴, ii. p. 383.

PLUTARCH'S LIVES

4 ὅπως οὖν μὴ παρέχοιεν ἐκ τῶν τριχῶν ἀντίληψιν τοῖς πολεμίοις ἀπεκείραντο. τοῦτο δὲ ἀμέλει καὶ Ἀλέξανδρον τὸν Μακεδόνα ἐννοήσαντά φασι προστάξαι τοῖς στρατηγοῖς ξυρεῖν τὰ γένεια τῶν Μακεδόνων, ὡς λαβὴν ταύτην ἐν ταῖς μάχαις οὔσαν προχειροτάτην.

VI. Τὸν μὲν οὖν ἄλλον χρόνον ἔκρυπτεν Αἴθρα τὴν ἀληθινὴν τοῦ Θεσέως γένεσιν· ἦν δὲ λόγος ὑπὸ τοῦ Πιπθέως διαδοθεὶς ὡς ἐκ Ποσειδῶνος τεκνωθεῖη. Ποσειδῶνα γὰρ Τροϊζήνιοι σέβονται διαφερόντως, καὶ θεὸς οὗτός ἐστιν αὐτοῖς πολιούχος, ᾧ καὶ καρπῶν ἀπάρχονται καὶ τρίαιναν
2 ἐπίσημον ἔχουσι τοῦ νομίσματος. ἐπεὶ δὲ μειράκιον ὢν, ἅμα τῇ τοῦ σώματος ῥώμῃ διέφαινε ἀλκὴν καὶ φρόνημα μετὰ νοῦ καὶ συνέσεως βέβαιον, οὕτως αὐτὸν ἢ Αἴθρα πρὸς τὴν πέτραν προσαγαγοῦσα, καὶ φράσασα περὶ τῆς γενέσεως τάληθές, ἐκέλευσεν ὑφελεῖν τὰ πατρῶα σύμβολα
3 καὶ πλεῖν εἰς Ἀθήνας. ὁ δὲ τὴν μὲν πέτραν ὑπέδου καὶ ῥαδίως ἀνέωσε, πλεῖν δὲ ἀπέγνων, καίπερ οὔσης ἀσφαλείας καὶ δεομένων τοῦ τε πάππου καὶ τῆς μητρός. χαλεπὸν γὰρ ἦν πεζῇ πορεύεσθαι τὴν εἰς Ἀθήνας ὁδόν, οὐδὲν μέρος καθαρὸν οὐδὲ ἀκίνδυνον ὑπὸ ληστῶν καὶ κακούργων ἔχουσαν.

4 Ὁ γὰρ δὴ χρόνος ἐκεῖνος ἠνεγκεν ἀνθρώπους χειρῶν μὲν ἔργοις καὶ ποδῶν τάχεσι καὶ σωμάτων ῥώμαις, ὡς εἴοικεν, ὑπερφυεῖς καὶ ἀκαμάτους, πρὸς οὐδὲν δὲ τῇ φύσει χρωμένους ἐπιεικὲς οὐδὲ ὠφέλιμον, ἀλλ' ὕβρει τε χαίροντας ὑπερηφάνῳ, καὶ ἀπολαύοντας τῆς δυνάμεως ὠμότητι καὶ πικρία, καὶ τῷ κρατεῖν τε καὶ βιάζεσθαι καὶ

THESEUS

Therefore, in order that they might not give their enemies a hold by their hair, they cut it off. And Alexander of Mæcedon doubtless understood this when, as they say, he ordered his generals to have the beards of their Macedonians shaved, since these afforded the readiest hold in battle.

VI. During the rest of the time, then, Aethra kept his true birth concealed from Theseus, and a report was spread abroad by Pittheus that he was begotten by Poseidon. For Poseidon is highly honoured by the people of Troezen, and he is the patron god of their city; to him they offer first fruits in sacrifice, and they have his trident as an emblem on their coinage. But when, in his young manhood, Theseus displayed, along with his vigour of body, prowess also, and a firm spirit united with intelligence and sagacity, then Aethra brought him to the rock, told him the truth about his birth, and bade him take away his father's tokens and go by sea to Athens. Theseus put his shoulder to the rock and easily raised it up, but he refused to make his journey by sea, although safety lay in that course, and his grandfather and his mother begged him to take it. For it was difficult to make the journey to Athens by land, since no part of it was clear nor yet without peril from robbers and miscreants.

For verily that age produced men who, in work of hand and speed of foot and vigour of body, were extraordinary and indefatigable, but they applied their powers to nothing that was fitting or useful. Nay rather, they exulted in monstrous insolence, and reaped from their strength a harvest of cruelty and bitterness, mastering and forcing and destroying everything that came in their path. And as for

PLUTARCH'S LIVES

- διαφθείρειν τὸ παραπίπτον, αἰδῶ δὲ καὶ δικαιοσύνην καὶ τὸ ἴσον καὶ τὸ φιλόανθρωπον, ὡς ἀτολμία τοῦ ἀδικεῖν καὶ φόβος τοῦ ἀδικεῖσθαι τοὺς πολλοὺς ἐπαινούντας, οὐδὲν οἰομένους προσ-
- 5 ἤκειν τοῖς πλέον ἔχειν δυναμένοις. τούτων Ἑρακλῆς τοὺς μὲν ἐξέκοπτε καὶ ἀνήρει περιϊών, οἱ δὲ λαυθάνοντες ἐκείνου παριόντος ἔπτησσαν καὶ ἀνεδύοντο καὶ παρημελοῦντο ταπεινὰ πράττοντες. ἐπεὶ δὲ Ἑρακλῆς ἐχρήσατο συμφορᾷ, καὶ κτείνας Ἴφιτον εἰς Λυδίαν ἀπήρε καὶ συχνὸν ἐκεῖ χρόνον ἐδούλευε παρ' Ὀμφάλῃ, δίκην τοῦ φόνου ταύτην ἐπιθεῖς αὐτῷ, τότε τὰ μὲν Λυδῶν πράγματα πολλὴν ἔσχευ εἰρήνην καὶ ἄδειαν· ἐν δὲ τοῖς περὶ τὴν Ἑλλάδα τόποις αὐτῆς ἐξήνθησαν αἱ κακίαι καὶ ἀνερράγησαν, οὐδενὸς πιεζούντος οὐδὲ κατείργοντος.
- 6 Ἦν οὖν ὀλέθριος ἡ πορεία τοῖς Ἀθήναζε περὶ βαδίζουσιν ἐκ Πελοποννήσου· καὶ τῶν κακούργων ἕκαστον ἐξηγούμενος Πιπθεὺς ὁποῖος εἶη καὶ ὁποῖα δρῶντα περὶ τοὺς ξένους, ἔπειθε τὸν Θησέα κομίζεσθαι διὰ θαλάττης. τὸν δὲ πάλαι μὲν, ὡς ἔοικε, λεληθότως διέκαιεν ἡ δόξα τῆς Ἑρακλέους ἀρετῆς, καὶ πλεῖστον ἐκείνου λόγον εἶχε, καὶ προθυμότατος ἀκροατῆς ἐγένετο τῶν διηγουμένων ἐκείνου οἷος εἶη, μάλιστα δὲ τῶν αὐτὸν ἑωρακότων καὶ πράττοντι καὶ λέγοντι
- 7 προστετυχηκότων· τότε δὲ παντάπασιν ἦν φανερὸς πεπουθῶς ὅπερ ὕστερον χρόνοις πολλοῖς Θεμιστοκλῆς ἔπαθε, καὶ εἶπεν ὡς καθεύδειν αὐτὸν οὐκ ἐφῆ τὸ Μιλτιάδου τρόπαιον· οὕτως ἐκείνῳ τοῦ Ἑρακλέους θαυμάζοντι τὴν ἀρετὴν, καὶ

THESEUS

reverence and righteousness, justice and humanity, they thought that most men praised these qualities for lack of courage to do wrong and for fear of being wronged, and considered them no concern of men who were strong enough to get the upper hand. Some of these creatures Heracles cut off and destroyed as he went about, but some escaped his notice as he passed by, crouching down and shrinking back, and were overlooked in their abjectness. And when Heracles met with calamity and, after the slaying of Iphitus, removed into Lydia and for a long time did slave's service there in the house of Omphale, then Lydia indeed obtained great peace and security; but in the regions of Hellas the old villainies burst forth and broke out anew, there being none to rebuke and none to restrain them.

The journey was therefore a perilous one for travellers by land from Peloponnesus to Athens, and Pittheus, by describing each of the miscreants at length, what sort of a monster he was, and what deeds he wrought upon strangers, tried to persuade Theseus to make his journey by sea. But he, as it would seem, had long since been secretly fired by the glorious valour of Heracles, and made the greatest account of that hero, and was a most eager listener to those who told what manner of man he was, and above all to those who had seen him and been present at some deed or speech of his. And it is altogether plain that he then experienced what Themistocles many generations afterwards experienced, when he said that he could not sleep for the trophy of Miltiades.¹ In like manner Theseus admired the valour of Heracles, until by night his dreams were of the hero's

¹ Cf. Themistocles, iii. 3.

PLUTARCH'S LIVES

νύκτωρ ὄνειρος ἦσαν αἱ πράξεις, καὶ μεθ' ἡμέραν ἐξήγευ αὐτὸν ὁ ζῆλος καὶ ἀνηρέθιζε ταῦτ' ἀπράττειν διανοούμενον.

VII. Ἐτύγχανον δὲ καὶ γένους κοινωνοῦντες 4
 ἐξ ἀνεψιῶν ὄντες. Αἶθρα μὲν γὰρ ἦν Πιθέως θυγάτηρ, Ἀλκμήνη δὲ Λυσιδίκης, Λυσιδικὴ δὲ καὶ Πιθεὺς ἀδελφοὶ γεγονότες ἐξ Ἴπποδαμείας καὶ Πέλοπος. δεινὸν οὖν ἐποιεῖτο καὶ οὐκ ἀνεκτὸν ἐκείνων μὲν ἐπὶ τοὺς πανταχοῦ πονηροὺς βαδίζοντα καθαίρειν γῆν καὶ θάλατταν, αὐτὸν δὲ τοὺς 2 ἐμποδῶν ἄλλους ἀποδιδράσκειν, τὸν μὲν λόγῳ καὶ δόξῃ πατέρα καταισχύνων διὰ θαλάττης φυγῆ κομιζόμενος, τῷ δὲ ὄντι προσφέρων γνωρίσματα πέδιλα καὶ ξίφος ἀναίμακτον, οὐκ ἔργοις εὐθὺς ἀγαθοῖς καὶ πράξεσι παρέχων ἐμφανῆ χαρακτήρα τῆς εὐγενείας. τοιοῦτῳ φρονήματι καὶ τοιοῦτοις λογισμοῖς ἐξώρμησεν, ὡς ἀδικήσων μὲν οὐδένα, τοὺς δὲ ὑπάρχοντας βίας ἀμυνόμενος.

VIII. Καὶ πρῶτον μὲν ἐν τῇ Ἐπιδαυρίᾳ Περιφήτην, ὄπλῳ χρώμενον κορύνῃ καὶ διὰ τοῦτο Κορυνήτην ἐπικαλούμενον, ἀπτόμενον αὐτοῦ καὶ κωλύοντα προάγειν συμβαλὼν ἀπέκτεινεν· ἠσθεὶς δὲ τῇ κορύνῃ λαβὼν ὄπλον ἐποιήσατο καὶ διετέλει χρώμενος, ὥσπερ ὁ Ἡρακλῆς τῷ δέρματι τοῦ λέοντος. ἐκείνῳ μὲν οὖν ἐπίδειξις ἦν φορούμενον ἡλίκου τὸ μέγεθος θηρίου κρατήσειεν, οὗτος δὲ τὴν κορύνην ἐπεδείκνυεν ἠττημένην μὲν ὑπ' αὐτοῦ, μετ' αὐτοῦ δὲ ἀήττητον οὖσαν.
 2 Ἐν δ' Ἰσθμῷ Σίνιν τὸν πιτυοκάμπτην ἕ. τρόπῳ

THESEUS

achievements, and by day his ardour led him along and spurred him on in his purpose to achieve the like.

VII. And besides, they were kinsmen, being sons of cousins-german. For Aethra was daughter of Pittheus, as Alcmena was of Lysidice, and Lysidice and Pittheus were brother and sister, children of Hippodameia and Pelops. Accordingly, he thought it a dreadful and unendurable thing that his famous cousin should go out against the wicked everywhere and purge land and sea of them, while he himself ran away from the struggles which lay in his path, disgracing his reputed father¹ by journeying like a fugitive over the sea, and bringing to his real father as proofs of his birth only sandals and a sword unstained with blood, instead of at once offering noble deeds and achievements as the manifest mark of his noble birth. In such a spirit and with such thoughts he set out, determined to do no man any wrong, but to punish those who offered him violence.

VIII. And so in the first place, in Epidauria, when Periphetes, who used a club as his weapon and on this account was called Club-bearer, laid hold of him and tried to stop his progress, he grappled with him and slew him. And being pleased with the club, he took it and made it his weapon and continued to use it, just as Heracles did with the lion's skin. That hero wore the skin to prove how great a wild beast he had mastered, and so Theseus carried the club to show that although it had been vanquished by him, in his own hands it was invincible.

On the Isthmus, too, he slew Sinis the Pine-bender

¹ Cf. chapter vi. 1.

PLUTARCH'S LIVES

πολλοὺς ἀνήρει, τούτῳ διέφθειρεν αὐτός, οὐ μεμελητηκῶς οὐδ' εἰθισμένος, ἐπιδείξας δὲ τὴν ἀρετὴν ὅτι καὶ τέχνης περίεστι καὶ μελέτης ἀπάσης. ἦν δὲ τῷ Σίνιδι καλλίστη καὶ μεγίστη θυγάτηρ, ὄνομα Περιγούνη. ταύτην τοῦ πατρὸς ἀνηρημένου φυγοῦσαν ἐζήτει περιῶν ὁ Θεσεύς· ἡ δ' εἰς τόπον ἀπελθοῦσα λόχμην ἔχοντα πολλὴν στοιβὴν τε πλείστην καὶ ἀσφάραγον, ἀκάκως πάνυ καὶ παιδικῶς ὥσπερ αἰσθανομένων δεομένη προσεύχετο μεθ' ὄρκων, ἂν σώσωσιν αὐτὴν καὶ ἀποκρύψωσι, μηδέποτε λυμανεῖσθαι μηδὲ καύσειν.

3 ἀνακαλουμένου δὲ τοῦ Θεσεῶς καὶ πίστιν δίδοντας, ὡς ἐπιμελήσεται καλῶς αὐτῆς καὶ οὐδὲν ἀδικήσει, προῆλθε· καὶ τῷ μὲν Θεσεῖ συγγενομένη Μελανίππου ἔτεκε, Δηϊονεῖ δὲ τῷ Εὐρύτου τοῦ Οἰχαλιέως ὕστερον συνώκησε, Θεσεῶς δόντος. ἐκ δὲ Μελανίππου τοῦ Θεσεῶς γενόμενος Ἴωξος Ὀρνύτῳ τῆς εἰς Καρίαν ἀποικίας μετέσχεν· ὅθεν Ἴωξίδαις καὶ Ἴωξίσι πάτριον κατέστη μήτε ἄκανθαν ἀσφαράγου μήτε στοιβὴν καίειν, ἀλλὰ σέβεσθαι καὶ τιμᾶν.

IX. Ἡ δὲ Κρομμυωνία σῦς, ἦν Φαιᾶν προσωνόμαζον, οὐ φαῦλον ἦν θηρίον, ἀλλὰ μάχιμον καὶ χαλεπὸν κρατηθῆναι. ταύτην ὁδοῦ πάρεργον, ὡς μὴ δοκοίη πάντα πρὸς ἀνάγκην πονεῖν, ὑποστάς ἀνείλε, καὶ ἅμα τῶν μὲν ἀνθρώπων τοῖς πονηροῖς ἀμννόμενον οἰόμενος δεῖν τὸν ἀγαθὸν προσφέρεσθαι, τῶν δὲ θηρίων καὶ προεπιχειροῦντα τοῖς γενναίοις μάχεσθαι καὶ διακινδύ-

THESEUS

in the very manner in which many men had been destroyed by himself, and he did this without practice or even acquaintance with the monster's device, but showing that valour is superior to all device and practice. Now Sinis had a very beautiful and stately daughter, named Perigune. This daughter took to flight when her father was killed, and Theseus went about in search of her. But she had gone off into a place which abounded greatly in shrubs and rushes and wild asparagus, and with exceeding innocence and childish simplicity was supplicating these plants, as if they understood her, and vowing that if they would hide and save her, she would never trample them down nor burn them. When, however, Theseus called upon her and gave her a pledge that he would treat her honourably and do her no wrong, she came forth, and after consorting with Theseus, bore him Melanippus, and afterwards lived with Deïoneus, son of Eurytus the Oechalian, to whom Theseus gave her. From Melanippus the son of Theseus, Ioxus was born, who took part with Ornytus in leading a colony into Caria ; whence it is ancestral usage with the Ioxids, men and women, not to burn either the asparagus-thorn or the rush, but to revere and honour them.

IX. Now the Crommyonian sow, which they called Phaea, was no insignificant creature, but fierce and hard to master. This sow he went out of his way to encounter and slay, that he might not be thought to perform all his exploits under compulsion, and at the same time because he thought that while the brave man ought to attack villainous men only in self defence, he should seek occasion to risk his life in battle with the nobler beasts. However, some say

PLUTARCH'S LIVES

νεύειν. ἔνιοι δέ φασι τὴν Φαιᾶν ληστρίδα γενέσθαι γυναῖκα φονικὴν καὶ ἀκόλαστον, αὐτόθι κατοικοῦσαν ἐν Κρομμυῶνι, σὺν δὲ ἐπονομασθεῖσαν διὰ τὸ ἦθος καὶ τὸν βίον εἶτα ὑπὸ Θησέως ἀποθανεῖν.

Χ. Σκείρωνα δὲ πρὸ τῆς Μεγαρικῆς ἀνείλε ρίψας κατὰ τῶν πετρῶν, ὡς μὲν ὁ πολὺς λόγος ληστεύοντα τοὺς παριόντας, ὡς δ' ἔνιοι λέγουσιν ὕβρει καὶ τρυφῇ προτείνοντα τὸ πόδε τοῖς ξένοις καὶ κελεύοντα νίπτειν, εἶτα λακτίζοντα καὶ ἀπω-
 2 θούντα νίπτουτας εἰς τὴν θάλατταν. οἱ δὲ Μεγαρόθεν συγγραφεῖς, ὁμόσε τῇ φήμῃ βαδίζοντες καὶ τῷ πολλῷ χρόνῳ, κατὰ Σιμωνίδην, πολεμοῦντες, οὔτε ὑβριστὴν οὔτε ληστὴν γεγονέναι τὸν Σκείρωνα φασιν, ἀλλὰ ληστῶν μὲν κολαστὴν, ἀγαθῶν δὲ καὶ δικαίων οἰκείου ἀνδρῶν καὶ φίλου. Αἰακὸν τε γὰρ Ἑλλήνων ὀσιώτατον νομίζεσθαι, 5 καὶ Κυχρέα τιμὰς θεῶν ἔχειν Ἀθήνησι τὸν Σαλαμίνιον, τὴν δὲ Πηλέως καὶ Τελαμῶνος ἀρε-
 3 τὴν ὑπ' οὐδενὸς ἀγνοεῖσθαι. Σκείρωνα τοίνυν Κυχρέως μὲν γενέσθαι γαμβρόν, Αἰακοῦ δὲ πενθερόν, Πηλέως δὲ καὶ Τελαμῶνος πάππον, ἐξ Ἐυδηΐδος γεγονότων τῆς Σκείρωνος καὶ Χαρικλοῦς θυγατρὸς. οὐκ οὖν εἰκὸς εἶναι τῷ κακίστῳ τοὺς ἀρίστους εἰς κοινωσίαν γένους ἐλθεῖν, τὰ μέγιστα καὶ τιμιώτατα λαμβάνοντας καὶ δίδοντας. ἀλλὰ Θησέα φασιν οὐχ ὅτε τὸ πρῶτον ἐβάδιζεν εἰς Ἀθήνας, ἀλλ' ὕστερον Ἐλευσινὰ τε λαβεῖν Μεγαρέων ἐχόντων, παρακρουσάμενον Διοκλέα τὸν ἄρχοντα, καὶ Σκείρωνα ἀποκτείνει. ταῦτα μὲν οὖν ἔχει τοιαύτας ἀντιλογίας.

THESEUS

that Phaea was a female robber, a woman of murderous and unbridled spirit, who dwelt in Crommyon, was called Sow because of her life and manners, and was afterwards slain by Theseus.

X. He also slew Sciron on the borders of Megara, by hurling him down the cliffs. Sciron robbed the passers by, according to the prevalent tradition; but as some say, he would insolently and wantonly thrust out his feet to strangers and bid them wash them, and then, while they were washing them, kick them off into the sea. Megarian writers, however, taking issue with current report, and, as Simonides¹ expresses it, "waging war with antiquity," say that Sciron was neither a violent man nor a robber, but a chastiser of robbers, and a kinsman and friend of good and just men. For Aeacus, they say, is regarded as the most righteous of Hellenes, and Cychreus the Salaminian has divine honours at Athens, and the virtues of Peleus and Telamon are known to all men. Well, then, Sciron was a son-in-law of Cychreus, father-in-law of Aeacus, and grandfather of Peleus and Telamon, who were the sons of Endeïs, daughter of Sciron and Chariclo. It is not likely, then, they say, that the best of men made family alliances with the basest, receiving and giving the greatest and most valuable pledges. It was not, they say, when Theseus first journeyed to Athens, but afterwards, that he captured Eleusis from the Megarians, having circumvented Diocles its ruler, and slew Sciron. Such, then, are the contradictions in which these matters are involved.

¹ Fragment 193 (Bergk).

PLUTARCH'S LIVES

XI. Ἐν δὲ Ἐλευσίῃ Κερκύονα τὸν ἐξ Ἀρκαδίας καταπαλαίσας ἀνείλε· καὶ μικρὸν προελθὼν Δαμάστην ἐν Ἐρινεῶ¹ τὸν Προκρούστην, ἀναγκάσας αὐτὸν ἀπιστοῦν τοῖς κλινηῆσιν ὥσπερ τοὺς ξένους ἐκείνος. ἔπραττε δὲ ταῦτα μιμούμενος τὸν Ἡρακλέα. καὶ γὰρ ἐκείνος οἷς ἐπεβουλεύετο τρόποις ἀμυνόμενος τοὺς προεπιχειροῦντας, ἔθυσσε τὸν Βούσιριν καὶ κατεπάλαισε τὸν Ἀνταῖον καὶ τὸν Κύκνον κατεμονομάχησε καὶ τὸν Τέρμερον συρρήξας τὴν κεφαλὴν ἀπέ-
 2 κτεινεν. ἀφ' οὗ δὴ καὶ τὸ Τερμέρειον κακὸν ὀνομασθῆναι λέγουσι· παίων γάρ, ὡς ἔοικε, τῇ κεφαλῇ τοὺς ἐντυγχάνοντας ὁ Τέρμερος ἀπώλλυεν. οὕτω δὴ καὶ Θησεὺς κολάζων τοὺς πονηροὺς ἐπεξήληθεν, οἷς μὲν ἐβιάζοντο τοὺς ἄλλους, ὑπ' ἐκείνου καταβιαζομένους, ἐν δὲ τοῖς τρόποις τῆς ἑαυτῶν ἀδικίας τὰ δίκαια πάσχοντας.

XII. Προϊόντι δὲ αὐτῷ καὶ γενομένῳ κατὰ τὸν Κηφισόν, ἄνδρες ἐκ τοῦ Φυταλιδῶν γένους ἀπαντήσαντες ἠσπάσαντο πρῶτοι, καὶ δεομένου καθαρθῆναι, τοῖς νενομισμένοις ἀγνίσαντες καὶ μειλίχια θύσαντες εἰστίασαν οἴκοι, μηδενοὶς πρότερον αὐτῷ φιλανθρώπου καθ' ὁδὸν ἐντυχόντος.

Ἡμέρᾳ μὲν οὖν ὀγδόῃ λέγεται Κρονίου μηνός, ὃν νῦν Ἑκατομβαιῶνα καλοῦσι, κατελθεῖν. κατελθὼν δὲ εἰς τὴν πόλιν εὔρε τά τε κοινὰ ταραχῆς μεστὰ καὶ διχοφροσύνης, καὶ τὰ περὶ
 2 τὸν Αἰγέα καὶ τὸν οἶκον ἰδίᾳ νοσοῦντα. Μήδεια

¹ Ἐρινεῶ with Coraës, after Pausanias, i. 38, 5: Ἐρμει, a correction by Palmerius of the MSS. Ἐρμιόνη.

THESEUS

XI. In Eleusis, moreover, he out-wrestled Cercyon the Arcadian and killed him; and going on a little farther, at Erineüs, he killed Damastes, surnamed Procrustes, by compelling him to make his own body fit his bed, as he had been wont to do with those of strangers. And he did this in imitation of Heracles. For that hero punished those who offered him violence in the manner in which they had plotted to serve him, and therefore sacrificed Busiris, wrestled Antaeus to death, slew Cynus in single combat, and killed Termerus by dashing in his skull. It is from him, indeed, as they say, that the name "Termerian mischief" comes, for Termerus, as it would seem, used to kill those who encountered him by dashing his head against theirs. Thus Theseus also went on his way chastising the wicked, who were visited with the same violence from him which they were visiting upon others, and suffered justice after the manner of their own injustice.

XII. As he went forward on his journey and came to the river Cephisus, he was met by men of the race of the Phyalidae, who greeted him first, and when he asked to be purified from bloodshed, cleansed him with the customary rites, made propitiatory sacrifices, and feasted him at their house. This was the first kindness which he met with on his journey.

It was, then, on the eighth day of the month Cronius, now called Hecatombaeon, that he is said to have arrived at Athens. And when he entered the city, he found public affairs full of confusion and dissension, and the private affairs of Aegeus and his household in a distressing condition. For Medea, γὰρ ἐκ Κορίνθου φυγοῦσα, φαρμάκοις ὑποσχομένη

 τῆς ἀτεκνίας ἀπαλλάξειν Αἰγέα, συνῆν αὐτῷ.
 προαισθομένη δὲ περὶ τοῦ Θησεῦς αὕτη, τοῦ
 δὲ Αἰγέως ἀγνοοῦντος, ὄντος δὲ πρεσβυτέρου καὶ φοβουμένου πάντα διὰ τὴν στάσιν, ἔπεισεν αὐτὸν
 ὡς ξένον ἐστιῶντα φαρμάκοις ἀνελεῖν. ἐλθὼν
 οὖν ὁ Θησεὺς ἐπὶ τὸ ἄριστον οὐκ ἐδοκίμαζε
 φράζειν αὐτόν, ὅστις εἶη, πρότερος, ἐκείνῳ δὲ βουλόμενος ἀρχὴν ἀνευρέσεως παρασχεῖν, κρεῶν
 παρακειμένων σπασάμενος τὴν μάχαιραν, ὡς
 3 ταύτῃ τέμνων, ἐδείκνυεν ἐκείνῳ. ταχὺ δὲ κατα-μαθὼν ὁ Αἰγεὺς, τὴν μὲν κύλικα τοῦ φαρμάκου
 κατέβαλε, τὸν δὲ υἱὸν ἀνακρίνας ἠσπάζετο, καὶ συναγαγὼν τοὺς πολίτας ἐγνώριζεν, ἡδέως δεχο-μένους διὰ τὴν ἀνδραγαθίαν. λέγεται δὲ τῆς
 κύλικος πεσούσης ἐκχυθῆναι τὸ φάρμακον ὅπου
 νῦν ἐν Δελφίνῳ τὸ περίφρακτόν ἐστιν, ἐνταῦθα
 γὰρ ὁ Αἰγεὺς ᾤκει, καὶ τὸν Ἑρμῆν τὸν πρὸς ἔω
 τοῦ ἱεροῦ καλοῦσιν ἐπ' Αἰγέως πύλαις.

XIII. Οἱ δὲ Παλλαγτίδαι πρότερον μὲν ἠλπιζον
 αὐτοὶ τὴν βασιλείαν κατέξειν Αἰγέως ἀτέκνου τελευτήσαντος· ἐπεὶ δὲ Θησεὺς ἀπέδειχθη διάδοχος, χαλεπῶς φέροντες εἰ βασιλεύει μὲν Αἰγεὺς
 θετὸς γενόμενος Πανδίου καὶ μηδὲν Ἐρεχθεΐδαις
 προσήκων, βασιλεύσει δ' ὁ Θησεὺς πάλιν ἔπηλυς
 2 ὢν καὶ ξένος, εἰς πόλεμον καθίσταντο. καὶ

THESEUS

who had fled thither from Corinth, and promised by her sorceries to relieve Aegeus of his childlessness, was living with him. She learned about Theseus in advance, and since Aegeus was ignorant of him, and was well on in years and afraid of everything because of the faction in the city; she persuaded him to entertain Theseus as a stranger guest, and take him off by poison. Theseus, accordingly, on coming to the banquet, thought best not to tell in advance who he was, but wishing to give his father a clue to the discovery, when the meats were served, he drew his sword, as if minded to carve with this, and brought it to the notice of his father. Aegeus speedily perceived it, dashed down the proffered cup of poison, and after questioning his son, embraced him, and formally recognized him before an assembly of the citizens, who received him gladly because of his manly valour. And it is said that as the cup fell, the poison was spilled where now is the enclosure in the Delphinium,¹ for that is where the house of Aegeus stood, and the Hermes to the east of the sanctuary is called the Hermes at Aegeus's gate.

XIII. Now the sons of Pallas had before this themselves hoped to gain possession of the kingdom when Aegeus died childless. But when Theseus was declared successor to the throne, exasperated that Aegeus should be king although he was only an adopted son of Pandion and in no way related to the family of Erechtheus, and again that Theseus should be prospective king although he was an immigrant and a stranger, they went to war. And dividing

¹ The site of this sanctuary of the Delphinian Apollo is conjectured to have been somewhere to the east of the Olympieum.

διελόντες ἑαυτοὺς οἱ μὲν ἐμφανῶς Σφηττόθεν 6
 ἐχώρουν ἐπὶ τὸ ἄστυ μετὰ τοῦ πατρός, οἱ δὲ Γαργηττοῖ κρύψαντες ἑαυτοὺς ἐνὶ ἡδρεον, ὡς
 διχόθεν ἐπιθησόμενοι τοῖς ὑπεναντίοις. ἦν δὲ
 κῆρυξ μετ' αὐτῶν, ἀνὴρ Ἀγνούσιος, ὄνομα Λεῶς.
 οὗτος ἐξήγγειλε τῷ Θησεῖ τὰ βεβουλευμένα τοῖς
 3 Παλλαντίδαϊς. ὁ δὲ ἐξαίφνης ἐπιπεσὼν τοῖς
 ἐνεδρεύουσι πάντας διέφθειρεν. οἱ δὲ μετὰ τοῦ Πάλλαντος πυθόμενοι διεσπάρησαν. ἐκ τούτου
 φασὶ τῷ Παλληνέων δήμῳ πρὸς τὸν Ἀγνουσίῳ ἐπιγαμίαν μὴ εἶναι, μηδὲ κηρύττεσθαι τοῦπιχώριον παρ' αὐτοῖς “Ἀκούετε λεῶ” μισοῦσι
 γὰρ τοῦνομα διὰ τὴν προδοσίαν τοῦ ἀνδρός.

XIV. Ὁ δὲ Θησεὺς ἐνεργὸς εἶναι βουλόμενος,
 ἄμα δὲ καὶ δημαγωγῶν, ἐξῆλθεν ἐπὶ τὸν Μαρα-θώνιον ταῦρον, οὐκ ὀλίγα πράγματα τοῖς οἰκοῦσι
 τὴν Τετράπολιν παρέχοντα· καὶ χειρωσάμενος
 ἐπεδείξατο ζῶντα διὰ τοῦ ἄστεος ἐλάσας, εἶτα τῷ
 2 Ἀπόλλωνι τῷ Δελφινίῳ κατέθυσεν. ἡ δὲ Ἐκάλῃ καὶ τὸ περὶ αὐτὴν μυθολόγημα τοῦ
 ξενισμοῦ καὶ τῆς ὑποδοχῆς ἔοικε μὴ πάσης
 ἀμοιρεῖν ἀληθείας. ἔθνον γὰρ Ἐκαλήσια¹ οἱ
 πέριξ δήμοι συνιόντες Ἐκάλῳ Διὶ, καὶ τὴν Ἐκάλῃν ἐτίμων, Ἐκαλίνην ὑποκοριζόμενοι διὰ τὸ
 κάκείνην νέον ὄντα κομιδῇ τὸν Θησεῖα ξενίζουσιν
 ἀσπάσασθαι πρεσβυτικῶς καὶ φιλοφρονεῖσθαι

¹ Ἐκαλήσια the correction of Coraës: Ἐκαλήσιον.

THESEUS

themselves into two bands, one of these marched openly against the city from Sphettus with their father; the other hid themselves at Gargettus and lay in ambush there, intending to attack their enemies from two sides. But there was a herald with them, a man of Agnus, by name Leos. This man reported to Theseus the designs of the Pallantidae. Theseus then fell suddenly upon the party lying in ambush, and slew them all. Thereupon the party with Pallas dispersed. This is the reason, they say, why the township of Pallene has no inter-marriage with the township of Agnus, and why it will not even allow heralds to make their customary proclamation there of "Akouete lei" (Hear, ye people!). For they hate the word on account of the treachery of the man Leos.

XIV. But Theseus, desiring to be at work, and at the same time courting the favour of the people, went out against the Marathonian bull, which was doing no small mischief to the inhabitants of the Tetrapolis.¹ After he had mastered it, he made a display of driving it alive through the city, and then sacrificed it to the Delphinian Apollo. Now the story of Hecale and her receiving and entertaining Theseus on this expedition seems not to be devoid of all truth. For the people of the townships round about used to assemble and sacrifice the Hecalesia to Zeus Hecalus, and they paid honours to Hecale, calling her by the diminutive name of Hecaline, because she too, when entertaining Theseus, in spite of the fact that he was quite a youth, caressed him as elderly people do, and called

¹ An early name for a district of Attica comprising Marathon and three other adjacent townships.

PLUTARCH'S LIVES

3 τοιούτοις ὑποκορισμοῖς. ἐπεὶ δὲ εὗξατο μὲν ὑπὲρ αὐτοῦ τῷ Διὶ, βαδίζοντος ἐπὶ τὴν μάχην, εἰ σῶς παραγένοιτο, θύσειν, ἀπέθανε δὲ πρὶν ἐκεῖνον ἐπανελθεῖν, ἔσχε τὰς εἰρημένας ἀμοιβὰς τῆς φιλοξενίας τοῦ Θησέως κελεύσαντος, ὡς Φιλόχορος ἱστόρηκεν.

XV. Ὀλίγω δὲ ὕστερον ἦκον ἐκ Κρήτης τὸ τρίτον οἱ τὸν δασμὸν ἀπάξοντες. ὅτι μὲν οὖν Ἀνδρόγεω περὶ τὴν Ἀττικὴν ἀποθανεῖν δόλω δόξαντος, ὃ τε Μίνως πολλὰ κακὰ -πολεμῶν εἰργάζετο τοὺς ἀνθρώπους καὶ τὸ δαιμόνιον ἔφθειρε τὴν χώραν (ἀφορία τε γὰρ καὶ νόσος ἐνέσκηψε πολλὴ καὶ ἀνέδυσαν οἱ ποταμοί), καὶ τοῦ θεοῦ προστάξαντος ἰλασαμένοις τὸν Μίνω καὶ διαλλαγεῖσι λωφήσειν τὸ μήνιμα καὶ τῶν κακῶν ἔσεσθαι παῦλαν, ἐπικηρυκευσάμενοι καὶ δεηθέντες ἐποίησαντο συνθήκας ὥστε πέμπειν δι' ἐννέα ἐτῶν δασμὸν ἡϊθέους ἑπτὰ καὶ παρθένους τοσαύτας, ὁμολογοῦσιν οἱ πλείστοι τῶν συγγρα-
2 φέων. τοὺς δὲ παῖδας εἰς Κρήτην κομιζομένους ὁ μὲν τραγικώτατος μῦθος ἀποφαίνει τὸν Μινώταυρον ἐν τῷ Λαβυρίνθῳ διαφθεῖρειν, ἢ πλανωμένους αὐτοὺς καὶ τυχεῖν ἐξόδου μὴ δυναμένους ἐκεῖ καταθνήσκειν, τὸν δὲ Μινώταυρον, ὡσπερ Εὐριπίδης φησί,

Σύμμικτον εἶδος κάποφώλιον βρέφος
γεγονέναι, καὶ

Ταύρου μεμῖχθαι καὶ βροτοῦ διπλῆ φύσει.

THESEUS

him affectionately by such diminutive names. And since she vowed, when the hero was going to his battle with the bull, that she would sacrifice to Zeus if he came back safe, but died before his return, she obtained the above mentioned honours as a return for her hospitality at the command of Theseus, as Philochorus has written.

XV. Not long afterwards there came from Crete for the third time the collectors of the tribute. Now as to this tribute, most writers agree that because Androgeos was thought to have been treacherously killed within the confines of Attica, not only did Minos harass the inhabitants of that country greatly in war,¹ but Heaven also laid it waste, for barrenness and pestilence smote it sorely, and its rivers dried up; also that when their god assured them in his commands that if they appeased Minos and became reconciled to him, the wrath of Heaven would abate and there would be an end of their miseries, they sent heralds and made their supplication and entered into an agreement to send him every nine years a tribute of seven youths and as many maidens. And the most dramatic version of the story declares that these young men and women, on being brought to Crete, were destroyed by the Minotaur in the Labyrinth, or else wandered about at their own will and, being unable to find an exit, perished there; and that the Minotaur, as Euripides says, was

“A mingled form and hybrid birth of monstrous shape,”

and that

“Two different natures, man and bull, were joined in him.”²

¹ Cf. Plato, Laws, p. 706.

² Nauck, *Trag. Graec. Frag.*², p. 680.

PLUTARCH'S LIVES

XVI. Φιλόχορος δέ φησιν οὐ ταῦτα συγχωρεῖν Κρήτας, ἀλλὰ λέγειν ὅτι φρουρὰ μὲν ἦν ὁ Λαβυρινθος, οὐδὲν ἔχων κακὸν ἀλλ' ἢ τὸ μὴ διαφυγεῖν τοὺς φυλαττομένους, ἀγῶνα δὲ ὁ Μίνως ἐπ' Ἀνδρόγεω γυμνικὸν ἐποίει καὶ τοὺς παῖδας ἄθλα τοῖς νικῶσιν ἐδίδου τέως ἐν τῷ Λαβυρίνθῳ φυλαττομένους· ἐνῖκα δὲ τοὺς προτέρους ἀγῶνας ὁ μέγιστον παρ' αὐτῷ δυνάμενος τότε καὶ στρατηγῶν, ὄνομα Ταῦρος, ἀνὴρ οὐκ ἐπιεικῆς καὶ ἡμερος τὸν τρόπον, ἀλλὰ καὶ τοῖς παισὶ τῶν Ἀθηναίων ὑπερηφάνως καὶ χαλεπῶς προσ-
 2 φερόμενος. Ἀριστοτέλης δὲ καὶ αὐτὸς ἐν τῇ Βοττιαίων πολιτείᾳ δῆλός ἐστιν οὐ νομίζων ἀναιρεῖσθαι τοὺς παῖδας ὑπὸ τοῦ Μίνω, ἀλλὰ θητεύοντας ἐν τῇ Κρήτῃ καταγηράσκειν· καὶ ποτε Κρήτας εὐχὴν παλαιὰν ἀποδιδόντας ἀνθρώπων ἀπαρχὴν εἰς Δελφοὺς ἀποστέλλειν, τοῖς δὲ πεμπομένοις ἀναμιχθέντας ἐγγόνους ἐκείνων συνεξελθεῖν· ὡς δὲ οὐκ ἦσαν ἱκανοὶ τρέφειν ἑαυτοὺς αὐτόθι, πρῶτον μὲν εἰς Ἰταλίαν διαπερᾶσαι 7 κακεῖ κατοικεῖν περὶ τὴν Ἰαπυγίαν, ἐκεῖθεν δὲ αὐθις εἰς Θράκην κομισθῆναι καὶ κληθῆναι Βοττιαίους· διὸ τὰς κόρας τῶν Βοττιαίων θυσίαν τινὰ τελούσας ἐπάδειν· “Ἴωμεν εἰς Ἀθήνας.”

Ἔοικε γὰρ ὄντως χαλεπὸν εἶναι φωνὴν ἐχούσῃ
 3 πόλει καὶ μούσαν ἀπεχθάνεσθαι. καὶ γὰρ ὁ Μίνως αἰεὶ διετέλει κακῶς ἀκούων καὶ λοιδορούμενος ἐν τοῖς Ἀττικοῖς θεάτροις, καὶ οὔτε Ἡσίοδος

THESEUS

XVI. Philochorus, however, says that the Cretans do not admit this, but declare that the Labyrinth was a dungeon, with no other inconvenience than that its prisoners could not escape; and that Minos instituted funeral games in honour of Androgeos, and as prizes for the victors, gave these Athenian youth, who were in the meantime imprisoned in the Labyrinth; and that the victor in the first games was the man who had the greatest power at that time under Minos, and was his general, Taurus by name, who was not reasonable and gentle in his disposition, but treated the Athenian youth with arrogance and cruelty. And Aristotle himself also, in his "Constitution of Bottiaea,"¹ clearly does not think that these youths were put to death by Minos, but that they spent the rest of their lives as slaves in Crete. And he says that the Cretans once, in fulfilment of an ancient vow, sent an offering of their first-born to Delphi, and that some descendants of those Athenians were among the victims, and went forth with them; and that when they were unable to support themselves there, they first crossed over into Italy and dwelt in that country round about Iapygia, and from there journeyed again into Thrace and were called Bottiaeans; and that this was the reason why the maidens of Bottiaea, in performing a certain sacrifice, sing as an accompaniment: "To Athens let us go!"

And verily it seems to be a grievous thing for a man to be at enmity with a city which has a language and a literature. For Minos was always abused and reviled in the Attic theatres, and it did not avail him either that Hesiod² called him "most

¹ Not extant.

² In some passage not extant.

PLUTARCH'S LIVES

αὐτὸν ὤνησε “βασιλεύτατον” οὔτε Ὀμηρος “ἄριστήν Διὸς” προσαγορεύσας, ἀλλ’ ἐπικρατήσαντες οἱ τραγικοὶ πολλὴν ἀπὸ τοῦ λογείου καὶ τῆς σκηνῆς ἀδοξίαν αὐτοῦ κατεσκέδασαν ὡς χαλεποῦ καὶ βιαίου γενομένου. καίτοι φασὶ τὸν μὲν Μίνω βασιλέα καὶ νομοθέτην, δικαστὴν δὲ τὸν Ῥαδάμανθυν εἶναι καὶ φύλακα τῶν ὠρισμένων ὑπ’ ἐκείνου δικαίων.

- XVII. Ἐπεὶ δ’ οὖν καθῆκεν ὁ χρόνος τοῦ τρίτου δασμοῦ, καὶ παρέχειν ἔδει τοὺς πατέρας ἐπὶ τὸν κλῆρον οἷς ἦσαν ἡἴθεοι παῖδες, αὐτοὶ ἀνεφύοντο τῷ Αἰγεῖ διαβολαὶ πρὸς τοὺς πολίτας, ὀδυρομένους καὶ ἀγανακτοῦντας ὅτι πάντων αἴτιος ἦν ἐκείνος, οὐδὲν μέρος ἔχει τῆς κολάσεως μόνος, ἀλλ’ ἐπὶ νόθῳ καὶ ξένῳ παιδί τὴν ἀρχὴν πεποιημένος αὐτοὺς περιορᾷ γνησίων ἐρήμους καὶ
- 2 ἄπαιδας ἀπολειπομένους. ταῦτ’ ἤνῃα τὸν Θησέα, καὶ δικαίων μὴ ἀμελεῖν, ἀλλὰ κοινωνεῖν τῆς τύχης τοῖς πολίταις, ἐπέδωκεν ἑαυτὸν ἄνευ κλήρου προσελθών. καὶ τοῖς μὲν ἄλλοις τό τε φρόνημα θαυμαστὸν ἐφάνη καὶ τὸ δημοτικὸν ἠγάπησαν, ὁ δὲ Αἰγεύς, ἐπεὶ δεόμενος καὶ καθικετεύων ἀμετάπειστον ἑώρα καὶ ἀμετάτρεπτον, ἀπεκλήρωσε τοὺς ἄλλους παῖδας.
- 3 Ἑλλάνικος δὲ φησιν οὐ τοὺς λαχόντας ἀπὸ κλήρου καὶ τὰς λαχούσας ἐκπέμπειν τὴν πόλιν, αὐτὸν δὲ τὸν Μίνω παραγινόμενον ἐκλέγεσθαι καὶ τὸν Θησέα πάντων ἐλέσθαι πρῶτον ἐπὶ τοῖς ὀρισθείσιν ὠρισμένον δ’ εἶναι τὴν μὲν ναῦν Ἀθηναίους παρέχειν, ἐμβάντας δὲ πλεῖν σὺν αὐτῷ τοὺς ἡιθέους μηδὲν ὄπλον ἀρήϊον ἐπιφερο-royal," or that Homer¹ styled him "a confidant of Zeus," but the tragic poets prevailed, and from platform and stage showered obloquy down upon him, as a man of cruelty and violence. And yet they say that Minos was a king and lawgiver, and that Rhadamanthus was a judge under him, and a guardian of the principles of justice defined by him.

THESEUS

XVII. Accordingly, when the time came for the third tribute, and it was necessary for the fathers who had youthful sons to present them for the lot, fresh accusations against Aegeus arose among the people, who were full of sorrow and vexation that he who was the cause of all their trouble alone had no share in the punishment, but devolved the kingdom upon a bastard and foreign son, and suffered them to be left destitute and bereft of legitimate children. These things troubled Theseus, who, thinking it right not to disregard but to share in the fortune of his fellow-citizens, came forward and offered himself independently of the lot. The citizens admired his noble courage and were delighted with his public spirit, and Aegeus, when he saw that his son was not to be won over or turned from his purpose by prayers and entreaties, cast the lots for the rest of the youths.

Hellanicus, however, says that the city did not send its young men and maidens by lot, but that Minos himself used to come and pick them out, and that he now pitched upon Theseus first of all, following the terms agreed upon. And he says the agreement was that the Athenians should furnish the ship, and that the youths should embark and sail μένους, ἀπολομένου δὲ τοῦ Μινωταύρου πέρας ἔχειν τὴν ποιήν.

¹ Odyssey, xix. 179.

4 Πρότερον μὲν οὖν οὐδεμία σωτηρίας ἐλπίς ὑπέκειτο· διὸ καὶ μέλαν ἰστίον ἔχουσαν, ὡς ἐπὶ συμφορᾷ προδήλῳ, τὴν ναῦν ἔπεμπον· τότε δὲ τοῦ Θησέως τὸν πατέρα θαρρύνοντος καὶ μεγαληγοροῦντος ὡς χειρώσεται τὸν Μινώταυρον, ἔδωκεν ἕτερον ἰστίον λευκὸν τῷ κυβερνήτῃ, κελεύσας ὑποστρέφοντα σωζομένου τοῦ Θησέως ἐπάρασθαι τὸ λευκόν, εἰ δὲ μή, τῷ μέλανι πλείν καὶ ἀποσημαίνειν τὸ πάθος.

5 Ὁ δὲ Σιμωνίδης οὐ λευκὸν φησιν εἶναι τὸ δοθὲν ὑπὸ τοῦ Αἰγέως, ἀλλὰ “φοινίκεον ἰστίον ὑγρῷ πεφυρμένον πρίνου ἄνθει ἐριθάλλου” καὶ τοῦτο τῆς σωτηρίας αὐτῶν ποιήσασθαι σημεῖον. ἐκυβέρνα δὲ τὴν ναῦν Ἀμαρσυνάδας Φέρεκλος, ὡς φησι Σιμωνίδης. Φιλόχορος δὲ παρὰ Σκίρου φησὶν ἐκ Σαλαμίνοσ τὸν Θησέα λαβεῖν κυβερνήτην μὲν Ναυσίθοον, πρῶρα δὲ Φαίακα, μηδέπω τότε τῶν Ἀθηναίων προσεχόντων τῇ θαλάττῃ· καὶ γὰρ εἶναι τῶν ἠϊθέων ἕνα Μενέσθην Σκίρου θυγατριδοῦν. μαρτυρεῖ δὲ τούτοις ἡρῶα Ναυσιθόου καὶ Φαίακος εἰσαμένου Θησέως Φαληροῖ πρὸς τῷ τοῦ Σκίρου ἱερῷ,¹ καὶ τὴν ἑορτὴν τὰ Κυβερνήσιά φασιν ἐκείνοις τελεῖσθαι.

XVIII. Γενομένου δὲ τοῦ κλήρου παραλαβῶν τοὺς λαχόντας ὁ Θησεὺς ἐκ τοῦ πρυτανείου, καὶ παρελθὼν εἰς Δελφίνιον, ἔθηκεν ὑπὲρ αὐτῶν τῷ Ἀπόλλωνι τὴν ἰκετηρίαν. ἦν δὲ κλάδος ἀπὸ with him carrying no warlike weapon, and that if the Minotaur was killed the penalty should cease.

¹ ἱερῷ bracketed by Bekker (near that of Scirus).

THESEUS

On the two former occasions, then, no hope of safety was entertained, and therefore they sent the ship with a black sail, convinced that their youth were going to certain destruction; but now Theseus encouraged his father and loudly boasted that he would master the Minotaur, so that he gave the pilot another sail, a white one, ordering him, if he returned with Theseus safe, to hoist the white sail, but otherwise to sail with the black one, and so indicate the affliction.

Simonides, however, says¹ that the sail given by Aegeus was not white, but "a scarlet sail dyed with the tender flower of luxuriant holm-oak," and that he made this a token of their safety. Moreover, the pilot of the ship was Phereclus, son of Amarsyas, as Simonides says; but Philochorus says that Theseus got from Scirus of Salamis Nausithoüs for his pilot, and Phaeax for his look-out man, the Athenians at that time not yet being addicted to the sea, and that Scirus did him this favour because one of the chosen youths, Menesthes, was his daughter's son. And there is evidence for this in the memorial chapels for Nausithoüs and Phaeax which Theseus built at Phalerum near the temple of Scirus, and they say that the festival of the Cybrenesia, or Pilot's Festival, is celebrated in their honour.

XVIII. When the lot was cast, Theseus took those upon whom it fell from the prytaneium and went to the Delphinium, where he dedicated to Apollo in their behalf his suppliant's badge. This τῆς ἱερᾶς ἐλαίας, ἐρίῳ λευκῷ κατεστεμμένος. εὐξάμενος δὲ κατέβαινε ἐκτῆς μηνὸς ἐπὶ θάλασσαν ἰσταμένου Μουνυχιῶνος, ἧ καὶ νῦν ἔτι τὰς κόρας πέμπουσιν ἰλασομένας εἰς Δελφίνιον.

¹ Fragment 54 (Bergk, Poet. Lyr. Graeci, iii.⁴ p. 413).

2 λέγεται δὲ αὐτῷ τὸν μὲν ἐν Δελφοῖς ἀνελεῖν θεὸν Ἀφροδίτην καθηγεμόνα ποιεῖσθαι καὶ παρα- 8
καλεῖν συνέμπορον, θύοντι δὲ πρὸς θαλάσση τὴν αἶγα θήλειαν οὔσαν αὐτομάτως τράγον γενέσθαι διὸ καὶ καλεῖσθαι τὴν θεὸν Ἐπιτραγίαν.

XIX. Ἐπεὶ δὲ κατέπλευσεν εἰς Κρήτην, ὡς μὲν οἱ πολλοὶ γράφουσι καὶ ἄδουσι, παρὰ τῆς Ἀριάδνης ἐρασθείσης τὸ λίνον λαβών, καὶ διδάχθεις ὡς ἔστι τοῦ λαβυρίθου τοὺς ἐλιγμοὺς διεξελεῖν, ἀπέκτεινε τὸν Μινώταυρον καὶ ἀπέπλευσε τὴν Ἀριάδνην ἀναλαβὼν καὶ τοὺς ἡϊθέους. Φερεκύδης δὲ καὶ τὰ ἐδάφη τῶν Κρητικῶν νεῶν φησὶν ἐκκόψαι τὸν Θησέα, τὴν 2
δίωξιν ἀφαιρούμενον. Δήμων δὲ καὶ τὸν Ταῦρον ἀναιρεθῆναί φησι τὸν τοῦ Μίνω στρατηγόν, ἐν τῷ λιμένι διαναυμαχοῦντα τοῦ Θησέως ἐκπλέοντος. ὡς δὲ Φιλόχορος ἱστόρηκε, τὸν ἀγῶνα τοῦ Μίνω συντελοῦντος, ἐπίδοξος ὢν ἅπαντας πάλιν νικήσειν, ὁ Ταῦρος ἐφθονεῖτο. καὶ γὰρ ἡ δύναμις αὐτοῦ διὰ τὸν τρόπον ἦν ἐπαχθής, καὶ διαβολὴν εἶχεν ὡς τῇ Πασιφάῃ πλησιάζων. διὸ καὶ τοῦ Θησέως ἀξιούντος ἀγωνίσασθαι συνε- 3
χώρησεν ὁ Μίνως. ἔθους δὲ ὄντος ἐν Κρήτῃ θεᾶσθαι καὶ τὰς γυναῖκας, Ἀριάδνη παρούσα πρὸς

THESEUS

was a bough from the sacred olive-tree, wreathed with white wool. Having made his vows and prayers, he went down to the sea on the sixth day of the month Munychion, on which day even now the Athenians still send their maidens to the Delphinium to propitiate the god. And it is reported that the god at Delphi commanded him in an oracle to make Aphrodite his guide, and invite her to attend him on his journey, and that as he sacrificed the usual she-goat to her by the sea-shore, it became a he-goat ("tragos") all at once, for which reason the goddess has the surname Epitragia.

XIX. When he reached Crete on his voyage, most historians and poets tell us that he got from Ariadne, who had fallen in love with him, the famous thread, and that having been instructed by her how to make his way through the intricacies of the Labyrinth, he slew the Minotaur and sailed off with Ariadne and the youth. And Pherecydes says that Theseus also staved in the bottoms of the Cretan ships, thus depriving them of the power to pursue. And Demon says also that Taurus, the general of Minos, was killed in a naval battle in the harbour as Theseus was sailing out. But as Philochorus tells the story,¹ Minos was holding the funeral games, and Taurus was expected to conquer all his competitors in them, as he had done before, and was grudged his success. For his disposition made his power hateful, and he was accused of too great intimacy with Pasiphaë. Therefore when Theseus asked the privilege of entering the lists, it was granted him by Minos. And since it was the custom in Crete for women to view the games, Ariadne was present, and was τε τὴν ὄψιν ἐξεπλάγη τοῦ Θησέως καὶ τὴν ἄθλησιν ἐθαύμασε πάντων κρατήσαντος. ἦσθεις δὲ καὶ ὁ Μίνως μάλιστα τοῦ Ταύρου καταπαλαισθέντος καὶ προπηλακισθέντος, ἀπέδωκε τῷ Θησεῖ τοὺς παῖδας καὶ ἀνήκε τῇ πόλει τὸν δασμόν.

¹ Cf. chapter xvi. 1.

PLUTARCH'S LIVES

- 4 Ἰδίως δὲ πως καὶ περιττῶς ὁ Κλείδημος ἀπήγγειλε περὶ τούτων, ἄνωθὲν ποθεν ἀρξάμενος, ὅτι δόγμα κοινὸν ἦν Ἑλλήνων μηδεμίαν ἐκπλεῖν τριήρη μηδαμόθεν ἀνδρῶν πέντε πλείονας δεχομένην τὸν δὲ ἄρχοντα τῆς Ἀργοῦς Ἰάσονα μόνου περιπλεῖν¹ ἐξείργοντα τῆς θαλάττης τὰ ληστήρια. Δαίδαλου δὲ πλοῖον φυγόντος εἰς Ἀθήνας, Μίνως παρὰ τὰ δόγματα μακραῖς ναυσὶ διώκων ὑπὸ χειμῶνος εἰς Σικελίαν ἀπηνέχθη κακεῖ κατέ-
- 5 στρεψε τὸν βίον. ἐπεὶ δὲ Δευκαλίων ὁ υἱὸς αὐτοῦ πολεμικῶς ἔχων πρὸς τοὺς Ἀθηναίους ἔπεμφεν, ἐκδιδόναι Δαίδαλον αὐτῷ κελεύων ἢ τοὺς παῖδας ἀποκτενεῖν ἀπειλῶν οὐς ἔλαβεν ὁμήρους ὁ Μίνως, τούτῳ μὲν ἀπεκρίνατο πρῶως ὁ Θησεύς, παραιτούμενος ἀνεψιὸν ὄντα Δαίδαλον κακεῖνον κατὰ γένος προσήκοντα, μητρὸς ὄντα Μερόπης τῆς Ἐρεχθέως, αὐτὸς δὲ ναυπηγίαν ἐπεβάλετο, τὴν μὲν ἐν Θυμαिताδῶν αὐτόθι μακρὰν τῆς ξενικῆς ὁδοῦ, τὴν δὲ διὰ Πιτθέως ἐν
- 6 Τροιζήνι, βουλόμενος λαυθάνειν. γενομένων δὲ ἐτοίμων ἐξέπλευσε τὸν τε Δαίδαλον ἔχων καὶ φυγάδας ἐκ Κρήτης καθηγεμόνας· οὐδενὸς δὲ

¹ περιπλεῖν Sintenis and Bekker assume a lacuna after this word. A Bodleian MS. (B^a) has τριήρει πλήρει ἀνδρῶν ἰκανῶν (with a trireme fully manned).

THESEUS

smitten with the appearance of Theseus, as well as filled with admiration for his athletic prowess, when he conquered all his opponents. Minos also was delighted with him, especially because he conquered Taurus in wrestling and disgraced him, and therefore gave back the youths to Theseus, besides remitting its tribute to the city.

Cleidemus, however, gives a rather peculiar and ambitious account of these matters, beginning a great way back. There was, he says, a general Hellenic decree that no trireme should sail from any port with a larger crew than five men, and the only exception was Jason, the commander of the Argo, who sailed about scouring the sea of pirates. Now when Daedalus fled from Crete in a merchant-vessel to Athens, Minos, contrary to the decrees, pursued him with his ships of war, and was driven from his course by a tempest to Sicily, where he ended his life.¹ And when Deucalion, his son, who was on hostile terms with the Athenians, sent to them a demand that they deliver up Daedalus to him, and threatened, if they refused, to put to death the youth whom Minos had received from them as hostages, Theseus made him a gentle reply, declining to surrender Daedalus, who was his kinsman and cousin, being the son of Merope, the daughter of Erechtheus. But privately he set himself to building a fleet, part of it at home in the township of Thymoetadae, far from the public road, and part of it under the direction of Pittheus in Troezen, wishing his purpose to remain concealed. When his ships were ready, he set sail, taking Daedalus and exiles from Crete as his guides, and since none

¹ Cf. Herodotus, vii. 170 ; Diodorus, iv. 79.

PLUTARCH'S LIVES

προειδότης, ἀλλὰ ναῦς φιλίας οἰομένων τῶν Κρητῶν προσφέρεσθαι, τοῦ λιμένος κρατήσας καὶ ἀποβάς ἔφθασεν εἰς τὴν Κνωσσὸν παρελθόντων· καὶ μάχην ἐν πύλαις τοῦ Λαβυρίνθου συνάψας ἀπέκτεινε τὸν Δευκαλίωνα καὶ τοὺς 7 δορυφόρους. ἐν δὲ τοῖς πράγμασι τῆς Ἀριάδνης γενομένης, σπεισάμενος πρὸς αὐτὴν τοὺς τε ἡϊθέους ἀνέλαβε καὶ φιλίαν ἐποίησε τοῖς Ἀθηναίοις πρὸς τοὺς Κρήτας, ὁμόσαντας μηδέποτε πολέμου κατάρξειν.

XX. Πολλοὶ δὲ λόγοι καὶ περὶ τούτων ἔτι λέγονται καὶ περὶ τῆς Ἀριάδνης, οὐδὲν ὁμολογούμενον ἔχοντες. οἱ μὲν γὰρ ἀπάγξασθαί φασιν αὐτὴν ἀπολειφθεῖσαν ὑπὸ τοῦ Θησέως, οἱ δὲ εἰς Νάξου ὑπὸ ναυτῶν κομισθεῖσαν Οἰνάρῳ τῷ ἱερεῖ τοῦ Διονύσου συνοικεῖν, ἀπολειφθῆναι δὲ τοῦ Θησέως ἐρῶντος ἐτέρας·

Δεινὸς γὰρ μιν ἔτειρεν ἔρωσ Πανοπηίδος Αἴγλης.

2 τοῦτο γὰρ τὸ ἔπος ἐκ τῶν Ἡσιόδου Πεισίστρατον ἐξελεῖν φησιν Ἡρέας ὁ Μεγαρεύς, ὥσπερ αὐτὸ πάλιν ἐμβαλεῖν εἰς τὴν Ὀμήρου νέκυιαν τὸ

Θησέα Πειρίθοόν τε θεῶν ἀριδείκετα τέκνα, 9

χαριζόμενον Ἀθηναίοις· ἔνιοι δὲ καὶ τεκεῖν ἐκ Θησέως Ἀριάδνην Οἰνοπίωνα καὶ Στάφυλον· ὦν καὶ ὁ Χίος Ἴων ἐστὶ περὶ τῆς ἑαυτοῦ πατρίδος λέγων·

Τὴν ποτε Θησείδης ἔκτισεν Οἰνοπίων.

THESEUS

of the Cretans knew of his design, but thought the approaching ships to be friendly, Theseus made himself master of the harbour, disembarked his men, and got to Gnosus before his enemies were aware of his approach. Then joining battle with them at the gate of the Labyrinth, he slew Deucalion and his body-guard. And since Ariadne was now at the head of affairs, he made a truce with her, received back the youthful hostages, and established friendship between the Athenians and the Cretans, who took oath never to begin hostilities.

XX. There are many other stories about these matters, and also about Ariadne, but they do not agree at all. Some say that she hung herself because she was abandoned by Theseus; others that she was conveyed to Naxos by sailors and there lived with Oenarus the priest of Dionysus, and that she was abandoned by Theseus because he loved another woman :—

“Dreadful indeed was his passion for Aigle child of Panopeus.”¹

This verse Peisistratus expunged from the poems of Hesiod, according to Hereas the Megarian, just as, on the other hand, he inserted into the Inferno of Homer the verse :—

“Theseus, Peirithous, illustrious children of Heaven,”²

and all to gratify the Athenians. Moreover, some say that Ariadne actually had sons by Theseus, Oenopion and Staphylus, and among these is Ion of Chios, who says of his own native city :—

“This, once, Theseus’s son founded, Oenopion.”³

¹ Cf. Athenaeus, p. 557 a.

² Odyssey, xi. 631.

³ Bergk, Poet. Lyr. Gr. ii.⁴ p. 254.

PLUTARCH'S LIVES

- Ἄ δ' ἐστὶν εὐφημότατα τῶν μυθολογουμένων, πάντες ὡς ἔπος εἰπεῖν διὰ στόματος ἔχουσιν. ἴδιον δέ τινα περὶ τούτων λόγον ἐκδέδωκε Παίων
- 3 ὁ Ἀμαθούσιος. τὸν γὰρ Θησέα φησὶν ὑπὸ χειμῶνος εἰς Κύπρον ἐξενεχθέντα καὶ τὴν Ἀριάδνην ἔγκυον ἔχοντα, φαύλως δὲ διακειμένην ὑπὸ τοῦ σάλου καὶ δυσφοροῦσαν, ἐκβιβάσαι μόνην, αὐτὸν δὲ τῷ πλοίῳ βοηθοῦντα πάλιν εἰς τὸ πέλαγος ἀπὸ τῆς γῆς φέρεσθαι. τὰς οὖν ἐγχωρίους γυναῖκας τὴν Ἀριάδνην ἀναλαβεῖν καὶ περιέπειν ἀθυμοῦσαν ἐπὶ τῇ μονώσει, καὶ γράμματα πλαστὰ προσφέρειν, ὡς τοῦ Θησέως γράφοντος αὐτῇ, καὶ περὶ τὴν ὠδίνα συμπονεῖν καὶ βοηθεῖν· ἀπο-
- 4 θανοῦσαν δὲ θάψαι μὴ τεκοῦσαν. ἐπελθόντα δὲ τὸν Θησέα καὶ περίλυπον γενόμενον τοῖς μὲν ἐγχωρίοις ἀπολιπεῖν χρήματα, συντάξαντα θύειν τῇ Ἀριάδνῃ, δύο δὲ μικροὺς ἀνδριαντίσκους ἰδρῦσασθαι, τὸν μὲν ἀργυροῦν, τὸν δὲ χαλκοῦν. ἐν δὲ τῇ θυσίᾳ τοῦ Γορπιαίου μηνὸς ἰσταμένου δευτέρᾳ κατακλινόμενόν τινα τῶν νεανίσκων φθέγγεσθαι καὶ ποιεῖν ἅπερ ὠδίνουσαι γυναῖκες· καλεῖν δὲ τὸ ἄλλος Ἀμαθουσίους, ἐν ᾧ τὸν τάφον δεικνύουσιν, Ἀριάδνης Ἀφροδίτης.
- 5 Καὶ Ναξίων δέ τινες ἰδίως ἱστοροῦσι δύο Μίνωας γενέσθαι καὶ δύο Ἀριάδνας, ὧν τὴν μὲν Διονύσῳ γαμηθῆναί φασιν ἐν Νάξῳ καὶ τοὺς περὶ Στάφυλον τεκεῖν, τὴν δὲ νεωτέραν ἀρπασθεῖσαν ὑπὸ τοῦ Θησέως καὶ ἀπολειφθεῖσαν εἰς Νάξον ἐλθεῖν, καὶ τροφὸν μετ' αὐτῆς ὄνομα

THESEUS

Now the most auspicious of these legendary tales are in the mouths of all men, as I may say; but a very peculiar account of these matters is published by Paeon the Amathusian. He says that Theseus, driven out of his course by a storm to Cyprus, and having with him Ariadne, who was big with child and in sore sickness and distress from the tossing of the sea, set her on shore alone, but that he himself, while trying to succour the ship, was borne out to sea again. The women of the island, accordingly, took Ariadne into their care, and tried to comfort her in the discouragement caused by her loneliness, brought her forged letters purporting to have been written to her by Theseus, ministered to her aid during the pangs of travail, and gave her burial when she died before her child was born. Paeon says further that Theseus came back, and was greatly afflicted, and left a sum of money with the people of the island, enjoining them to sacrifice to Ariadne, and caused two little statuettes to be set up in her honour, one of silver, and one of bronze. He says also that at the sacrifice in her honour on the second day of the month Gorpiaeus, one of their young men lies down and imitates the cries and gestures of women in travail; and that they call the grove in which they show her tomb, the grove of Ariadne Aphrodite.

Some of the Naxians also have a story of their own, that there were two Minoses and two Ariadnes, one of whom, they say, was married to Dionysus in Naxos and bore him Staphylus and his brother, and the other, of a later time, having been carried off by Theseus and then abandoned by him, came to Naxos, accompanied by a nurse named Corcyne,

PLUTARCH'S LIVES

Κορκύνην, ἧς δείκνυσθαι τάφον. ἀποθανεῖν δὲ καὶ τὴν Ἀριάδην αὐτόθι καὶ τιμὰς ἔχειν οὐχ ὁμοίας τῇ προτέρᾳ. τῇ μὲν γὰρ ἡδομένους καὶ παίζοντας ἑορτάζειν, τὰς δὲ ταύτη δρωμένας θυσίας εἶναι πένθει τινὶ καὶ στυγνότητι μεμιγμένας.

XXI. Ἐκ δὲ τῆς Κρήτης ἀποπλέων εἰς Δῆλον κατέσχε· καὶ τῷ θεῷ θύσας καὶ ἀναθεὶς τὸ ἀφροδίσιον ὃ παρὰ τῆς Ἀριάδνης ἔλαβεν, ἐχόρευσε μετὰ τῶν ἡϊθέων χορείαν ἣν ἔτι νῦν ἐπιτελεῖν Δηλίους λέγουσι, μίμημα τῶν ἐν τῷ Λαβυρίνθῳ περιόδων καὶ διεξόδων, ἐν τινὶ ῥυθμῷ παραλλάξεις καὶ ἀνελίξεις ἔχοντι γιγνομένην.
 2 καλεῖται δὲ τὸ γένος τοῦτο τῆς χορείας ὑπὸ Δηλίων γέρανος, ὡς ἱστορεῖ Δικαίαρχος. ἐχόρευσε δὲ περὶ τὸν Κερατῶνα βωμόν, ἐκ κεράτων συνηρμοσμένον εὐωνύμων ἀπάντων. ποιῆσαι δὲ καὶ ἀγῶνά φασιν αὐτὸν ἐν Δήλῳ, καὶ τοῖς νικῶσι τότε πρῶτον ὑπ' ἐκείνου φοῖνικα δοθῆναι.

XXII. Τῇ δὲ Ἀττικῇ προσφερομένων ἐκλαθέσθαι μὲν αὐτόν, ἐκλαθέσθαι δὲ τὸν κυβερνήτην ὑπὸ χαρᾶς ἐπάρασθαι τὸ ἰστίον ᾧ τὴν σωτηρίαν αὐτῶν ἔδει γνώριμον τῷ Αἰγεί γενέσθαι· τὸν δὲ ἀπογονόντα ῥίψαι κατὰ τῆς πέτρας ἑαυτὸν καὶ διαφθαρήναι. καταπλεύσας δὲ ὁ Θησεὺς ἔθυε μὲν αὐτὸς ἄς ἐκπλέων θυσίας εὐξάτο τοῖς θεοῖς Φαληροῖ, κήρυκα δὲ ἀπέστειλε τῆς σωτηρίας ἄγγελον εἰς ἄστν. οὗτος ἐνέτυχεν ὄδυρομένοις τε πολλοῖς τὴν τοῦ βασιλέως τελευτήν καὶ χαίρουσιν, ὡς εἰκός, ἐτέροις καὶ φιλοφρονεῖσθαι whose tomb they show ; and that this Ariadne also died there, and has honours paid her unlike those of the former, for the festival of the first Ariadne is celebrated with mirth and revels, but the sacrifices performed in honour of the second are attended with sorrow and mourning.

THESEUS

XXI. On his voyage from Crete, Theseus put in at Delos, and having sacrificed to the god and dedicated in his temple the image of Aphrodite which he had received from Ariadne, he danced with his youths a dance which they say is still performed by the Delians, being an imitation of the circling passages in the Labyrinth, and consisting of certain rhythmic involutions and evolutions. This kind of dance, as Dicaearchus tells us, is called by the Delians The Crane, and Theseus danced it round the altar called Keraton, which is constructed of horns ("kerata") taken entirely from the left side of the head. They say that he also instituted athletic contests in Delos, and that the custom was then begun by him of giving a palm to the victors.

XXII. It is said, moreover, that as they drew nigh the coast of Attica, Theseus himself forgot, and his pilot forgot, such was their joy and exultation, to hoist the sail which was to have been the token of their safety to Aegeus, who therefore, in despair, threw himself down from the rock and was dashed in pieces. But Theseus, putting in to shore, sacrificed in person the sacrifices which he had vowed to the gods at Phalerum when he set sail, and then dispatched a herald to the city to announce his safe return. The messenger found many of the people bewailing the death of their king, and others full of joy at his tidings, as was natural, and eager to welcome him

PLUTARCH'S LIVES

- καὶ στεφανοῦν αὐτὸν ἐπὶ τῇ σωτηρίᾳ προθύμοις οὖσι. τοὺς μὲν οὖν στεφάνους δεχόμενος τὸ κηρύκειον ἀνέστεφεν, ἐπανελθὼν δὲ ἐπὶ θάλασσαν οὐπω πεπονημένου σπονδάς τοῦ Θεσέως ἔξω περιέμεινε, μὴ βουλόμενος τὴν θυσίαν ταραξαι.
- 3 ξαι. γενομένων δὲ τῶν σπονδῶν ἀπήγγειλε τὴν τοῦ Αἰγέως τελευτήν. οἱ δὲ σὺν κλαυθμῷ καὶ 10 θορύβῳ σπεύδοντες ἀνέβαινον εἰς τὴν πόλιν. ὅθεν καὶ νῦν ἐν τοῖς ὠσχοφορίοις στεφανοῦσθαι μὲν οὐ τὸν κήρυκα λέγουσιν, ἀλλὰ τὸ κηρύκειον, ἐπιφωνεῖν δὲ ἐν ταῖς σπονδαῖς, Ἐλελεῦ, Ἰού, Ἰού, τοὺς παρόντας· ὧν τὸ μὲν σπεύδοντες ἀναφωνεῖν καὶ παιωνίζοντες εἰώθασι, τὸ δὲ ἐκπλήξεως καὶ ταραχῆς ἐστί.
- 4 Θάψας δὲ τὸν πατέρα, τῷ Ἀπόλλωνι τὴν εὐχὴν ἀπεδίδου τῇ ἐβδόμῃ τοῦ Πυαναψιῶνος μηνὸς ἰσταμένου· ταύτη γὰρ ἀνέβησαν εἰς ἄστυσωθέντες. ἡ μὲν οὖν ἔψησις τῶν ὀσπρίων λέγεται γίνεσθαι διὰ τὸ σωθέντας αὐτοὺς εἰς ταῦτὸ συμμίξαι τὰ περιόντα τῶν σιτίων καὶ μίαν χύτραν κοινὴν ἐψήσαντας συνεστιαθῆναι καὶ 5 συγκαταφαγεῖν ἀλλήλοις. τὴν δὲ εἰρεσιώωνη ἐκφέρουσι κλάδον ἐλαίας ἐρίῳ μὲν ἀνεστεμμένον, ὥσπερ τότε τὴν ἰκετηρίαν, παντοδαπῶν δὲ ἀνάπλεων καταργμάτων διὰ τὸ λῆξαι τὴν ἀφορίαν, ἐπάδοντες·

THESEUS

and crown him with garlands for his good news. The garlands, then, he accepted, and twined them about his herald's staff, and on returning to the seashore, finding that Theseus had not yet made his libations to the gods, remained outside the sacred precincts, not wishing to disturb the sacrifice. But when the libations were made, he announced the death of Aegeus. Thereupon, with tumultuous lamentation, they went up in haste to the city. Whence it is, they say, that to this day, at the festival of the Oschophoria,¹ it is not the herald that is crowned, but his herald's staff, and those who are present at the libations cry out: "Eleleu! Iou! Iou!" the first of which cries is the exclamation of eager haste and triumph, the second of consternation and confusion.

After burying his father, Theseus paid his vows to Apollo on the seventh day of the month Pyanepsion; for on that day they had come back to the city in safety. Now the custom of boiling all sorts of pulse on that day is said to have arisen from the fact that the youths who were brought safely back by Theseus put what was left of their provisions into one mess, boiled it in one common pot, feasted upon it, and ate it all up together. At that feast they also carry the so-called "eiresione," which is a bough of olive wreathed with wool, such as Theseus used at the time of his supplication, and laden with all sorts of fruit-offerings, to signify that scarcity was at an end, and as they go they sing:—

¹ A vintage festival, during which branches of the vine with grapes upon them (ἄσχοι) were borne in procession from Athens to Phalerum. See chapter xxiii. 2.

PLUTARCH'S LIVES

Εἶρεσιώνη σῦκα φέρει καὶ πίονας ἄρτους
καὶ μέλι ἐν κοτύλῃ καὶ ἔλαιον ἀποψήσασθαι
καὶ κύλικ' εὐζωρον, ὡς ἂν μεθύουσα καθεύδῃ.

καίτοι ταῦτά τινες ἐπὶ τοῖς Ἡρακλείδαις γίνεσθαι
λέγουσιν, οὕτως διατρεφομένοις ὑπὸ τῶν Ἀθη-ναίων οἱ δὲ πλείονες ὡς προείρηται.

XXIII. Τὸ δὲ πλοῖον ἐν ᾧ μετὰ τῶν ἠϊθέων
ἔπλευσε καὶ πάλιν ἐσώθη, τὴν τριακόντορον, ἄκρι
τῶν Δημητρίου τοῦ Φαληρέως χρόνων διεφύλαττον οἱ Ἀθηναῖοι, τὰ μὲν παλαιὰ τῶν ξύλων
ὑφαιροῦντες, ἄλλα δὲ ἐμβάλλοντες ἰσχυρὰ καὶ συμπηγνύντες οὕτως ὥστε καὶ τοῖς φιλοσόφοις εἰς τὸν αὐξόμενον λόγον ἀμφιδοξούμενον παράδειγμα τὸ πλοῖον εἶναι, τῶν μὲν ὡς τὸ αὐτό, τῶν
δὲ ὡς οὐ τὸ αὐτὸ διαμένοι λεγόντων.

2 Ἄγουσι δὲ καὶ τὴν τῶν ὠσχοφορίων ἑορτὴν
Θησέως καταστήσαντος. οὐ γὰρ ἀπάσας αὐτὸν
ἐξαγαγεῖν τὰς λαχούσας τότε παρθένους, ἀλλὰ
τῶν συνήθων νεανίσκων δύο θηλυφανεῖς μὲν ὀφθῆναι καὶ νεαρούς, ἀνδρώδεις δὲ τὰς ψυχὰς καὶ προθύμους, λουτροῖς τε θερμοῖς καὶ σκιατραφίαις
καὶ ταῖς περὶ κόμην καὶ λειότητα καὶ χροιάν ἀλοιφαῖς καὶ κοσμήσεσιν ὡς ἔστιν ἐξαλλάξαντα
κομιδῇ, καὶ διδάξαντα φωνὴν καὶ σχῆμα καὶ

THESEUS

“Eiresione for us brings figs and bread of the richest, Brings us honey in pots and oil to rub off from the body,
Strong wine too in a beaker, that one may go to bed mellow.”

Some writers, however, say that these rites are in memory of the Heracleidae,¹ who were maintained in this manner by the Athenians; but most put the matter as I have done.

XXIII. The ship on which Theseus sailed with the youths and returned in safety, the thirty-oared galley, was preserved by the Athenians down to the time of Demetrius Phalereus.² They took away the old timbers from time to time, and put new and sound ones in their places, so that the vessel became a standing illustration for the philosophers in the mooted question of growth, some declaring that it remained the same, others that it was not the same vessel.

It was Theseus who instituted also the Athenian festival of the Oschophoria. For it is said that he did not take away with him all the maidens on whom the lot fell at that time, but picked out two young men of his acquaintance who had fresh and girlish faces, but eager and manly spirits, and changed their outward appearance almost entirely by giving them warm baths and keeping them out of the sun, by arranging their hair, and by smoothing their skin and beauti-

¹ On the death of Heracles, his children, to escape the wrath of the tyrant Eurystheus, came as suppliants to Athens, bearing branches in their hands. See the Heracleidae of Euripides.

² Regent of Athens for Cassander of Macedon, 317-307 B.C. Cf. Plato, Phaedo, p. 58.

PLUTARCH'S LIVES

βάδισιν ὡς ἓνι μάλιστα παρθένοις ὁμοιοῦσθαι καὶ
μηδὲν φαίνεσθαι διαφέροντας, ἐμβαλεῖν εἰς τὸν
τῶν παρθένων ἀριθμὸν καὶ διαλαθεῖν ἅπαντας·
3 ἐπεὶ δὲ ἐπανῆλθεν, αὐτὸν τε πομπεῦσαι καὶ τοὺς
νεανίσκους οὕτως ἀμπεχομένους ὡς νῦν ἀμπέ-χονται τοὺς ὄσχοὺς φέροντες. φέρουσι δὲ Διονύσφ καὶ Ἀριάδνη χαριζόμενοι διὰ τὸν μῦθον, ἢ μᾶλλον ὅτι συγκόμιζομένης ὀπώρας ἐπανῆλθον·
αἱ δὲ δειπνοφόροι παραλαμβάνονται καὶ κοινωνοῦσι τῆς θυσίας ἀπομιμούμεναι τὰς μητέρας
ἐκείνων τῶν λαχόντων· ἐπεφοίτων γὰρ αὐτοῖς
ὄψα καὶ σιτία κομίζουσαι· καὶ μῦθοι λέγονται
διὰ τὸ κἀκείνας εὐθυμίας ἕνεκα καὶ παρηγορίας
μύθους διεξιέναι τοῖς παισὶ. ταῦτα μὲν οὖν καὶ Δῆμων ἰστόρηκεν. ἐξηρέθη δὲ καὶ τέμενος αὐτῷ, καὶ τοὺς ἀπὸ τῶν παρασχόντων τὸν δασμὸν
οἴκων ἔταξεν εἰς θυσίαν αὐτῷ τελεῖν ἀποφοράς·
καὶ τῆς θυσίας ἐπεμελοῦντο Φυταλίδαι, Θησέως
ἀποδότος αὐτοῖς ἀμοιβὴν τῆς φιλοξενίας.

XXIV. Μετὰ δὲ τὴν Αἰγέως τελευτὴν μέγα καὶ
θαυμαστὸν ἔργον εἰς νοῦν βαλλόμενος συνῴκισε
τοὺς τὴν Ἀττικὴν κατοικοῦντας εἰς ἓν ἄστυ, καὶ
μίας πόλεως ἓνα δῆμον ἀπέφηνε, τέως σποράδας
ὄντας καὶ δυσανακλήτους πρὸς τὸ κοινὸν πάντων

THESEUS

ying their complexions with unguents; he also taught them to imitate maidens as closely as possible in their speech, their dress, and their gait, and to leave no difference that could be observed, and then enrolled them among the maidens who were going to Crete, and was undiscovered by any. And when he was come back, he himself and these two young men headed a procession, arrayed as those are now arrayed who carry the vine-branches. They carry these in honour of Dionysus and Ariadne, and because of their part in the story; or rather, because they came back home at the time of the vintage. And the women called Deipnophoroi, or supper-carriers, take part in the procession and share in the sacrifice, in imitation of the mothers of the young men and maidens on whom the lot fell, for these kept coming with bread and meat for their children. And tales are told at this festival, because these mothers, for the sake of comforting and encouraging their children, spun out tales for them. At any rate, these details are to be found in the history of Demos. Furthermore, a sacred precinct was also set apart for Theseus, and he ordered the members of the families which had furnished the tribute to the Minotaur to make contributions towards a sacrifice to himself. This sacrifice was superintended by the Phythalidae, and Theseus thus repaid them for their hospitality.¹

XXIV. After the death of Aegeus, Theseus conceived a wonderful design, and settled all the residents of Attica in one city, thus making one people of one city out of those who up to that time had been scattered about and were not easily called together for the common interests of all, nay, they

¹ Cf. chapter xii. 1.

PLUTARCH'S LIVES

- συμφέρον, ἔστι δ' ὅτε καὶ διαφορομένους ἀλλήλοις
 2 καὶ πολεμοῦντας. ἐπιὼν οὖν ἀνέπειθε κατὰ 11
 δήμους καὶ γένη, τῶν μὲν ἰδιωτῶν καὶ πενήτων
 ἐνδεχομένων ταχὺ τὴν παράκλησιν αὐτοῦ, τοῖς
 δὲ δυνατοῖς ἀβασίλευτον πολιτείαν προτείνων
 καὶ δημοκρατίαν αὐτῷ μόνον ἄρχοντι πόλεμον
 καὶ νόμων φύλακι χρησομένην, τῶν δὲ ἄλλων
 3 παρέξουσιν ἅπασιν ἰσομοίριαν. τοὺς μὲν ¹
 ταῦτα ἔπειθεν, οἱ δὲ τὴν δύναμιν αὐτοῦ δεδιότες
 μεγάλην οὖσαν ἤδη καὶ τὴν τόλμαν, ἐβούλοντο
 πειθόμενοι μᾶλλον ἢ βιαζόμενοι ταῦτα συγχωρεῖν.
 καταλύσας οὖν τὰ παρ' ἐκάστοις πρυτανεία καὶ
 βουλευτήρια καὶ ἀρχάς, ἐν δὲ ποιήσας ἅπασιν
 κοινὸν ἐνταῦθα πρυτανεῖον καὶ βουλευτήριον
 ὅπου νῦν ἴδρυται τὸ ἄστυ, τὴν τε πόλιν Ἀθήνας
 προσηγόρευσε καὶ Παναθήναια θυσίαν ἐποίησε
 4 κοινήν. ἔθυσσε δὲ καὶ Μετοίκια τῇ ἑκτῇ ἐπὶ
 δέκα τοῦ Ἑκατομβαιῶνος, ἣν ἔτι νῦν θύουσι.
 καὶ τὴν βασιλείαν ἀφείκας, ὥσπερ ὠμολόγησε,
 διεκόσμησε τὴν πολιτείαν ἀπὸ θεῶν ἀρχόμενος·
 ἦκε γὰρ αὐτῷ χρησμὸς ἐκ Δελφῶν μαντευομένῳ
 περὶ τῆς πόλεως·
- 5 Αἰγείδῃ Θησεῦ, Πιπθηΐδος ἔκγονε κούρης,
 πολλαῖς τοι πολίεσσι πατήρ ἐμὸς ἐγκατέθηκε
 τέρματα καὶ κλωστήρας ἐν ὑμετέρῳ πτολιέθρῳ.
 ἀλλὰ σὺ μή τι λίην πεπονημένος ἐνδοθι θυμὸν
 βουλεύειν· ἀσκὸς γὰρ ἐν οἴδματι ποντοπορεύσει.

¹ ἰσομοίριαν. τοὺς μὲν with Coraës and Bekker: ἰσομοίριαν, τοὺς μὲν.

THESEUS

sometimes actually quarrelled and fought with each other. He visited them, then, and tried to win them over to his project township by township and clan by clan. The common folk and the poor quickly answered to his summons; to the powerful he promised government without a king and a democracy, in which he should only be commander in war and guardian of the laws, while in all else everyone should be on an equal footing. Some he readily persuaded to this course, and others, fearing his power, which was already great, and his boldness, chose to be persuaded rather than forced to agree to it. Accordingly, after doing away with the town-halls and council-chambers and magistracies in the several communities, and after building a common town-hall and council-chamber for all on the ground where the upper town of the present day stands, he named the city Athens, and instituted a Panathenaic festival. He instituted also the Metoecia, or Festival of Settlement, on the sixteenth day of the month Hecatombaeon, and this is still celebrated. Then, laying aside the royal power, as he had agreed, he proceeded to arrange the government, and that too with the sanction of the gods. For an oracle came to him from Delphi, in answer to his enquiries about the city, as follows:—

“Theseus, offspring of Aegeus, son of the daughter of Pittheus,

Many indeed the cities to which my father has given Bounds and future fates within your citadel’s confines.

Therefore be not dismayed, but with firm and confident spirit

Counsel only; the bladder will traverse the sea and its surges.”

PLUTARCH'S LIVES

τούτο δὲ καὶ Σίβυλλαν ὕστερον ἀποστοματίσαι πρὸς τὴν πόλιν ἱστοροῦσιν, ἀναφθεγαμένην·

Ἄσκὸς βαπτίζῃ· δύναι δέ τοι οὐ θέμις ἐστίν.

- XXV. Ἐπι δὲ μᾶλλον αὐξῆσαι τὴν πόλιν βουλόμενος ἐκάλει πάντας ἐπὶ τοῖς ἴσοις, καὶ τὸ “Δεῦρ’ ἴτε πάντες λεφ’” κήρυγμα Θεσέως γενέσθαι φασὶ πανδημίαν τινὰ καθιστάντος. οὐ μὴν ἄτακτον οὐδὲ μεμιγμένην περιεΐδεν ὑπὸ πλήθους ἐπιχυθέντος ἀκρίτου γενομένην τὴν δημοκρατίαν, ἀλλὰ πρῶτος ἀποκρίνας χωρὶς εὐπατρίδας καὶ
- 2 γεωμόρους καὶ δημιουργούς, εὐπατρίδαις δὲ γινώσκειν τὰ θεῖα καὶ παρέχειν ἄρχοντας ἀποδοῦς καὶ νόμων διδασκάλους εἶναι καὶ ὀσίων καὶ ἱερῶν ἐξηγητάς, τοῖς ἄλλοις πολίταις ὥσπερ εἰς ἴσον κατέστησε, δόξῃ μὲν εὐπατριδῶν, χρεῖα δὲ γεωμόρων, πλήθει δὲ δημιουργῶν ὑπερέχειν δοκούντων. ὅτι δὲ πρῶτος ἀπέκλινε πρὸς τὸν ὄχλον, ὡς Ἀριστοτέλης φησί, καὶ ἀφήκε τὸ μοναρχεῖν, ἔοικε μαρτυρεῖν καὶ Ὅμηρος ἐν νεῶν καταλόγῳ μόνους Ἀθηναίους δῆμον προσαγορεύσας.
- 3 Ἐκοψε δὲ καὶ νόμισμα, βούν ἐγχαράξας, ἥ διὰ τὸν Μαραθῶνιον ταῦρον, ἥ διὰ τὸν Μίνω στρατηγόν, ἥ πρὸς γεωργίαν τοὺς πολίτας παρακαλῶν. ἀπ’ ἐκείνου δὲ φασὶ τὸ ἐκατόμβοιον καὶ τὸ δεκάβοιον ὀνομασθῆναι. προσκτησάμενος δὲ τῇ Ἀττικῇ τὴν Μεγαρικὴν βεβαίως, τὴν θρυλουμένην

THESEUS

And this oracle they say the Sibyl afterwards repeated to the city, when she cried :—

“Bladder may be submerged; but its sinking will not be permitted.”

XXV. Desiring still further to enlarge the city, he invited all men thither on equal terms, and the phrase “Come hither all ye people,” they say was a proclamation of Theseus when he established a people, as it were, of all sorts and conditions. However, he did not suffer his democracy to become disordered or confused from an indiscriminate multitude streaming into it, but was the first to separate the people into noblemen and husbandmen and handicraftsmen. To the noblemen he committed the care of religious rites, the supply of magistrates, the teaching of the laws, and the interpretation of the will of Heaven, and for the rest of the citizens he established a balance of privilege, the noblemen being thought to excel in dignity, the husbandmen in usefulness, and the handicraftsmen in numbers. And that he was the first to show a leaning towards the multitude, as Aristotle says, and gave up his absolute rule, seems to be the testimony of Homer also, in the Catalogue of Ships,¹ where he speaks of the Athenians alone as a “people.”

He also coined money, and stamped it with the effigy of an ox, either in remembrance of the Marathonian bull, or of Taurus, the general of Minos, or because he would invite the citizens to agriculture. From this coinage, they say, “ten oxen” and “a hundred oxen” came to be used as terms of valuation. Having attached the territory of Megara securely to

¹ Iliad, ii. 547.

PLUTARCH'S LIVES

ἐν Ἴσθμῷ στήλην ἕστησεν, ἐπιγράψας τὸ διορίζον ἐπίγραμμα τὴν χώραν δυσὶ τριμέτροις, ὧν ἔφραζε τὸ¹ μὲν πρὸς ἔω

Τάδ' οὐχὶ Πελοπόννησος, ἀλλ' Ἰωνία·

τὸ¹ δὲ πρὸς ἐσπέραν

Τάδ' ἐστὶ Πελοπόννησος, οὐκ Ἰωνία.

- 4 καὶ τὸν ἀγῶνα πρῶτος ἔθηκε κατὰ ζῆλον Ἡρακλέους, ὡς δι' ἐκείνον Ὀλύμπια τῷ Διί, καὶ δι' αὐτὸν Ἴσθμα τῷ Ποσειδῶνι φιλοτιμηθεὶς ἄγειν τοὺς Ἕλληνας. ὁ γὰρ ἐπὶ Μελικέρτῃ τεθεὶς αὐτόθι νυκτὸς ἐδράτο, τελετῆς ἔχων μᾶλλον ἢ θέας καὶ πανηγυρισμοῦ τάξιν. ἔνιοι δὲ φασιν ἐπὶ Σκείρωνι τὰ Ἴσθμα τεθῆναι, τοῦ Θησέως ἀφοσιουμένου τὸν φόνον διὰ τὴν συγγένειαν· Σκείρωνα γὰρ υἶόν εἶναι Κανήθου καὶ Ἠνιόχης τῆς Πιτθέως.
- 5 οἱ δὲ Σίνιν, οὐ Σκείρωνα, καὶ τὸν ἀγῶνα τεθῆναι διὰ τοῦτον ὑπὸ Θησέως, οὐ δι' ἐκείνον. ἔταξεν οὖν καὶ διωρίσατο πρὸς τοὺς Κορινθίους Ἀθηναίων 12 τοῖς ἀφικνουμένοις ἐπὶ τὰ Ἴσθμα παρέχειν προεδρίαν ὅσον ἂν τόπον ἐπίσχη καταπετασθὲν τὸ τῆς θεωρίδος νεὸς ἰστίον, ὡς Ἑλλάνικος καὶ Ἄνδρων ὁ Ἀλικαρνασεὺς ἱστορήκασιν.

¹ τὸ μὲν, τὸ δὲ with Coraës, after Reiske : τὰ μὲν, τὰ δέ.

THESEUS

Attica, he set up that famous pillar on the Isthmus, and carved upon it the inscription giving the territorial boundaries. It consisted of two trimeters, of which the one towards the east declared :—

“ Here is not Peloponnesus, but Ionia ; ”

and the one towards the west :—

“ Here is the Peloponnesus, not Ionia.”

He also instituted the games here, in emulation of Heracles, being ambitious that as the Hellenes, by that hero's appointment, celebrated Olympian games in honour of Zeus, so by his own appointment they should celebrate Isthmian games in honour of Poseidon. For the games already instituted there in honour of Melicertes were celebrated in the night, and had the form of a religious rite rather than of a spectacle and public assembly. But some say that the Isthmian games were instituted in memory of Sciron, and that Theseus thus made expiation for his murder, because of the relationship between them ; for Sciron was a son of Canethus and Henioche, who was the daughter of Pittheus. And others have it that Sinis, not Sciron, was their son, and that it was in his honour rather that the games were instituted by Theseus. However that may be, Theseus made a formal agreement with the Corinthians that they should furnish Athenian visitors to the Isthmian games with a place of honour as large as could be covered by the sail of the state galley which brought them thither, when it was stretched to its full extent. So Hellanicus and Andron of Halicarnassus tell us.

XXVI. Εἰς δὲ τὸν πόντον ἔπλευσε τὸν Εὐξεινον, ὡς μὲν Φιλόχορος καὶ τινες ἄλλοι λέγουσι, μεθ' Ἡρακλέους ἐπὶ τὰς Ἀμαζόνας συστρατεύσας, καὶ γέρας¹ Ἀντιόπην ἔλαβεν· οἱ δὲ πλείους, ὧν ἐστὶ καὶ Φερεκῦδης καὶ Ἑλλάνικος καὶ Ἡρόδωρος, ὕστερόν φασι τὸν Ἡρακλέους ἰδιόστολον πλεῦσαι τὸν Θησέα καὶ τὴν Ἀμαζόνα λαβεῖν αἰχμάλωτον, πιθανώτερα λέγοντες. οὐδεὶς γὰρ ἄλλος ἰστόρηται τῶν μετ' αὐτοῦ στρατευσάντων

2 Ἀμαζόνα λαβεῖν αἰχμάλωτον. Βίων δὲ καὶ ταύτην παρακρουσάμενον οἴχεσθαι λαβόντα· φύσει γὰρ οὔσας τὰς Ἀμαζόνας φιλάνδρους οὔτε φυγεῖν τὸν Θησέα προσβάλλοντα τῇ χώρᾳ, ἀλλὰ καὶ ξένια πέμπειν· τὸν δὲ τὴν κομίζουσαν ἐμβῆναι παρακαλεῖν εἰς τὸ πλοῖον· ἐμβάσης δὲ ἀνυχθῆναι.

Μενεκράτης δέ τις, ἱστορίαν περὶ Νικαίας τῆς ἐν Βιθυνία πόλεως ἐκδεδωκώς, Θησέα φησὶ τὴν Ἀντιόπην ἔχοντα διατρίψαι περὶ τούτους τοὺς τόπους· τυγχάνειν δὲ συστρατεύοντας αὐτῷ τρεῖς νεανίσκους ἐξ Ἀθηνῶν ἀδελφοὺς ἀλλήλων, Εὐνεων καὶ Θόαντα καὶ Σολόεντα. τοῦτον οὖν ἐρώντα τῆς Ἀντιόπης καὶ λανθάνοντα τοὺς ἄλλους ἐξειπεῖν πρὸς ἓνα τῶν συνήθων· ἐκείνου δὲ περὶ τούτων ἐντυχόντος τῇ Ἀντιόπῃ, τὴν μὲν πείραν ἰσχυρῶς ἀποτρίψασθαι, τὸ δὲ πρᾶγμα σωφρόνως ἅμα καὶ πράως ἐνεγκεῖν καὶ πρὸς τὸν Θησέα μὴ

4 κατηγορῆσαι. τοῦ δὲ Σολόεντος ὡς ἀπέγνω ρίψαντος ἑαυτὸν εἰς ποταμὸν τινα καὶ διαφθαρέντος, ἤσθημένον τότε τὴν αἰτίαν καὶ τὸ πάθος τοῦ

¹ γέρας with Cobet ; γέρας ἀριστεῖον MSS., Coraës, Bekker ; γέρας ἀριστείων.

THESEUS

XXVI. He also made a voyage into the Euxine Sea, as Philochorus and sundry others say, on a campaign with Heracles against the Amazons, and received Antiope as a reward of his valour; but the majority of writers, including Pherecydes, Hellanicus, and Herodorus, say that Theseus made this voyage on his own account, after the time of Heracles, and took the Amazon captive; and this is the more probable story. For it is not recorded that any one else among those who shared his expedition took an Amazon captive. And Bion says that even this Amazon he took and carried off by means of a stratagem. The Amazons, he says, were naturally friendly to men, and did not fly from Theseus when he touched upon their coasts, but actually sent him presents, and he invited the one who brought them to come on board his ship; she came on board, and he put out to sea.

And a certain Menecrates, who published a history of the Bithynian city of Nicaea, says that Theseus, with Antiope on board his ship, spent some time in those parts, and that there chanced to be with him on this expedition three young men of Athens who were brothers, Euneos, Thoas, and Soloïs. This last, he says, fell in love with Antiope unbeknown to the rest, and revealed his secret to one of his intimate friends. That friend made overtures to Antiope, who positively repulsed the attempt upon her, but treated the matter with discretion and gentleness, and made no denunciation to Theseus. Then Soloïs, in despair, threw himself into a river and drowned himself, and Theseus, when he learned the fate of νεανίσκου τὸν Θησέα βαρέως ἐνεγκεῖν, καὶ δυσφοροῦντα λόγιόν τι πυθόχρηστον ἀνενεγκεῖν πρὸς ἑαυτὸν· εἶναι γὰρ αὐτῷ προστεταγμένον ἐν Δελφοῖς ὑπὸ τῆς Πυθίας, ὅταν ἐπὶ ξένης ἀνιαθῆ μάλιστα καὶ περίλυπος γένηται, πόλιν ἐκεῖ κτίσαι καὶ τῶν ἀμφ' αὐτὸν τινὰς ἡγεμόνας καταλιπεῖν.

5 ἐκ δὲ τούτου τὴν μὲν πόλιν, ἣν ἔκτισεν, ἀπὸ τοῦ θεοῦ Πυθόπολιν προσαγορεύσαι, Σολόεντα δὲ τὸν πλησίον ποταμὸν ἐπὶ τιμῇ τοῦ νεανίσκου. καταλιπεῖν δὲ καὶ τοὺς ἀδελφοὺς αὐτοῦ, οἷον ἐπιστάτας καὶ νομοθέτας, καὶ σὺν αὐτοῖς Ἔρμον ἄνδρα τῶν Ἀθήνησιν εὐπατριδῶν· ἀφ' οὗ καὶ τόπον Ἐρμού καλεῖν οἰκίαν τοὺς Πυθοπολίτας, οὐκ ὀρθῶς τὴν δευτέραν συλλαβὴν περισπῶντας καὶ τὴν δόξαν ἐπὶ θεὸν ἀπὸ ἥρωος μετατιθέντας.

XXVII. Πρόφασιν μὲν οὖν ταύτην ὁ τῶν Ἀμαζόνων πόλεμος ἔσχε· φαίνεται δὲ μὴ φαῦλον αὐτοῦ μηδὲ γυναικεῖον γενέσθαι τὸ ἔργον. οὐ γὰρ ἂν ἐν ἄστει κατεστρατοπέδευσαν οὐδὲ τὴν μάχην συνῆψαν ἐν χρῶ περι τὴν Πνύκα καὶ τὸ Μουσεῖον, εἰ μὴ κρατοῦσαι τῆς χώρας ἀδεῶς τῇ πόλει

2 προσέμξαν. εἰ μὲν οὖν, ὡς Ἑλλάνικος ἰστόρηκε, τῷ Κιμμερικῷ Βοσπόρῳ παγέντι διαβᾶσαι περιῆλθον, ἔργον ἐστὶ πιστεῦσαι· τὸ δὲ ἐν τῇ πόλει σχεδὸν αὐτὰς ἐνστρατοπεδεῦσαι μαρτυρεῖται καὶ τοῖς ὀνόμασι τῶν τόπων καὶ ταῖς θήκαις τῶν πεσόντων.

Πολὺν δὲ χρόνον ὄκνος ἦν καὶ μέλλησις ἀμφοτέροις τῆς ἐπιχειρήσεως· τέλος δὲ Θησεὺς κατὰ

THESEUS

the young man, and what had caused it, was grievously disturbed, and in his distress called to mind a certain oracle which he had once received at Delphi. For it had there been enjoined upon him by the Pythian priestess that when, in a strange land, he should be sorest vexed and full of sorrow, he should find a city there, and leave some of his followers to govern it. For this cause he founded a city there, and called it, from the Pythian god, Pythopolis, and the adjacent river, Solois, in honour of the young man. And he left there the brothers of Solois, to be the city's presidents and law-givers, and with them Hermus, one of the noblemen of Athens. From him also the Pythopolitans call a place in the city the House of Hermes, incorrectly changing¹ the second syllable, and transferring the honour from a hero to a god.

XXVII. Well, then, such were the grounds for the war of the Amazons, which seems to have been no trivial nor womanish enterprise for Theseus. For they would not have pitched their camp within the city, nor fought hand to hand battles in the neighbourhood of the Pynx and the Museum, had they not mastered the surrounding country and approached the city with impunity. Whether, now, as Hellanicus writes, they came round by the Cimmerian Bosphorus, which they crossed on the ice, may be doubted; but the fact that they encamped almost in the heart of the city is attested both by the names of the localities there and by the graves of those who fell in battle.

Now for a long time there was hesitation and delay on both sides in making the attack, but finally

¹ Literally, giving it the circumflex accent.

PLUTARCH'S LIVES

τι λόγιον τῷ Φόβῳ σφαγιασάμενος συνήψεν
 3 αὐταῖς. ἡ μὲν οὖν μάχη Βοηδρομιῶνος ἐγένετο μηνὸς ἐφ' ἧ τὰ Βοηδρόμα μέχρι νῦν Ἀθηναῖοι
 θύουσιν. ἱστορεῖ δὲ Κλείδημος, ἕξακριβοῦν τὰ
 καθ' ἕκαστα βουλόμενος, τὸ μὲν εὐώνυμον τῶν Ἀμαζόνων κέρας ἐπιστρέφειν πρὸς τὸ νῦν καλούμενον Ἀμαζόνειον, τῷ δὲ δεξιῷ πρὸς τὴν Πνύκα
 κατὰ τὴν Χρύσαν ἤκειν. μάχεσθαι δὲ πρὸς τοῦτο
 τοὺς Ἀθηναίους ἀπὸ τοῦ Μουσείου ταῖς Ἀμαζόσι συμπεσόντας, καὶ τάφους τῶν πεσόντων περὶ τὴν πλατείαν εἶναι τὴν φέρουσαν ἐπὶ τὰς 13
 πύλας παρὰ τὸ Χαλκώδοντος ἠρῶον, ἃς νῦν
 4 Πειραιϊκὰς ὀνομάζουσι. καὶ ταύτῃ μὲν ἐκβιασθῆ-ναι μέχρι τῶν Εὐμενίδων καὶ ὑποχωρῆσαι ταῖς
 γυναιξίν, ἀπὸ δὲ Παλλαδίου καὶ Ἀρδηττοῦ καὶ Λυκείου προσβαλόντας ὄσασθαι τὸ δεξιὸν αὐτῶν
 ἄχρι τοῦ στρατοπέδου καὶ πολλὰς καταβαλεῖν.
 τετάρτῳ δὲ μηνὶ συνθήκας γενέσθαι διὰ τῆς Ἰππολύτης· Ἰππολύτην γὰρ οὗτος ὀνομάζει τὴν
 τῷ Θεσεί συνοικοῦσαν, οὐκ Ἀντιόπην.

Ἔνιοι δὲ φασὶ μετὰ τοῦ Θεσέως μαχομένην
 πεσεῖν τὴν ἄνθρωπον ὑπὸ Μολπαδίας ἀκοντι-σθεῖσαν, καὶ τὴν στήλην τὴν παρὰ τὸ τῆς Ὀλυμ-5 πίας ἱερὸν ἐπὶ ταύτῃ κείσθαι. καὶ θαυμαστὸν οὐκ ἔστιν ἐπὶ πράγμασιν οὕτω παλαιοῖς πλανᾶσθαι
 τὴν ἱστορίαν, ἐπεὶ καὶ τὰς τετρωμένας φασὶ τῶν Ἀμαζόνων ὑπ' Ἀντιόπης εἰς Χαλκίδα λάθρα διαπεμφθείσας τυγχάνειν ἐπιμελείας, καὶ ταφήναί τινας ἐκεῖ περὶ τὸ νῦν Ἀμαζόνειον καλούμενον.

THESEUS

Theseus, after sacrificing to Fear, in obedience to an oracle, joined battle with the women. This battle, then, was fought on the day of the month Boëdromion on which, down to the present time, the Athenians celebrate the Boëdromia. Cleidemus, who wishes to be minute, writes that the left wing of the Amazons extended to what is now called the Amazoneum, and that with their left they touched the Pnyx at Chrysa; that with this left wing the Athenians fought, engaging the Amazons from the Museum, and that the graves of those who fell are on either side of the street which leads to the gate by the chapel of Chalcodon, which is now called the Peiraïc gate. Here, he says, the Athenians were routed and driven back by the women as far as the shrine of the Eumenides, but those who attacked the invaders from the Palladium and Ardetus and the Lyceum, drove their right wing back as far as to their camp, and slew many of them. And after three months, he says, a treaty of peace was made through the agency of Hippolyta; for Hippolyta is the name which Cleidemus gives to the Amazon whom Theseus married, not Antiope.

But some say that the woman was slain with a javelin by Molpadia, while fighting at Theseus's side, and that the pillar which stands by the sanctuary of Olympian Earth was set up in her memory. And it is not astonishing that history, when dealing with events of such great antiquity, should wander in uncertainty, indeed, we are also told that the wounded Amazons were secretly sent away to Chalcis by Antiope, and were nursed there, and some were buried there, near what is now called the Amazoneum. But that the war ended in a

PLUTARCH'S LIVES

ἀλλὰ τοῦ γε τὸν πόλεμον εἰς σπονδὰς τελευτῆσαι
 μαρτύριόν ἐστιν ἢ τε τοῦ τόπου κλήσις τοῦ παρὰ
 τὸ Θησεῖον, ὄνπερ Ὀρκωμόσιον καλοῦσιν, ἢ τε
 γινομένη πάλαι θυσία ταῖς Ἀμαζόσι πρὸ τῶν
 6 Θησείων. δεικνύουσι δὲ καὶ Μεγαρεῖς Ἀμαζό-νων θήκην παρ' αὐτοῖς, ἐπὶ τὸν καλούμενον Ῥοῦν
 βαδίζουσιν ἐξ ἀγορᾶς, ὅπου τὸ Ῥομβοειδές.
 λέγεται δὲ καὶ περὶ Χαιρώνειαν ἐτέρας ἀποθανεῖν,
 καὶ ταφῆναι παρὰ τὸ ρευμάτιον ὃ πάλαι μὲν, ὡς
 ἔοικε, Θερμῶδων, Αἴμων δὲ νῦν καλεῖται· περὶ ὧν
 ἐν τῷ Δημοσθένους βίῳ γέγραπται. φαίνονται δὲ
 μηδὲ Θεσσαλίαν ἀπραγμόνως αἱ Ἀμαζόνες διελθούσαι· τάφοι γὰρ αὐτῶν ἔτι καὶ νῦν δείκνυνται
 περὶ τὴν Σκοτουσαίαν καὶ τὰς Κυνὸς κεφαλᾶς.

XXVIII. Ταῦτα μὲν οὖν ἄξια μνήμης περὶ
 τῶν Ἀμαζόνων. ἦν γὰρ ὁ τῆς Θησηίδος ποιητῆς Ἀμαζόνων ἐπανάστασιν γέγραφε, Θησεῖ γαμοῦντι Φαίδραν τῆς Ἀντιόπης ἐπιτιθεμένης καὶ τῶν
 μετ' αὐτῆς Ἀμαζόνων ἀμυνομένων καὶ κτείνοντος
 αὐτὰς Ἡρακλέους, περιφανῶς ἔοικε μύθῳ καὶ
 2 πλάσματι. τῆς δὲ Ἀντιόπης ἀποθανούσης ἔγρημε
 Φαίδραν, ἔχων υἱὸν Ἰππόλυτον ἐξ Ἀντιόπης, ὡς δὲ Πίνδαρός φησι, Δημοφῶντα. τὰς δὲ περὶ ταύτην
 καὶ τὸν υἱὸν αὐτοῦ δυστυχίας, ἐπεὶ μηδὲν ἀντι-

THESEUS

solemn treaty is attested not only by the naming of the place adjoining the Theseum, which is called Horcomosium,¹ but also by the sacrifice which, in ancient times, was offered to the Amazons before the festival of Theseus. And the Megarians, too, show a place in their country where Amazons were buried, on the way from the market-place to the place called Rhus,² where the Rhomboid² stands. And it is said, likewise, that others of them died near Chaeroneia, and were buried on the banks of the little stream which, in ancient times, as it seems, was called Thermodon, but nowadays, Haemon; concerning which names I have written in my Life of Demosthenes.³ It appears also that not even Thessaly was traversed by the Amazons without opposition, for Amazonian graves are to this day shown in the vicinity of Scotussa and Cynoscephalae.

XXVIII. So much, then, is worthy of mention regarding the Amazons. For the "Insurrection of the Amazons," written by the author of the Theseid, telling how, when Theseus married Phaedra, Antiope and the Amazons who fought to avenge her attacked him, and were slain by Heracles, has every appearance of fable and invention. Theseus did, indeed, marry Phaedra, but this was after the death of Antiope, and he had a son by Antiope, Hippolytus, or, as Pindar says,⁴ Demophoön. As for the calamities which befell Phaedra and the son of Theseus by Antiope, since there is no conflict here between

¹ From the oaths of ratification.

² "Stream," because water from the mountains above the city once flowed this way. Pausanias, i. xli. 2. The "Rhomboid" may have been an irregular mound.

³ Chapter xix.

⁴ In a passage not extant.

PLUTARCH'S LIVES

πίπτει παρὰ τῶν ἱστορικῶν τοῖς τραγικοῖς, οὕτως ἔχειν θετέον ὡς ἐκείνοι πεποιήκασιν ἅπαντες.

- XXIX. Εἰσὶ μέντοι λόγοι περὶ γάμων Θησέως καὶ ἕτεροι, τὴν σκηνὴν διαπεφευγότες, οὔτε ἀρχὰς εὐγνώμονας οὔτε εὐτυχεῖς τελευτὰς ἔχοντες. καὶ γὰρ Ἀναξώ τινα Τροϊζηνίαν ἀρπάσαι λέγεται, καὶ Σίνιν ἀποκτείνοντας καὶ Κερκύονα συγγενέσθαι βία ταῖς θυγατράσιν αὐτῶν· γῆμαι δὲ καὶ Περίβοιαν τὴν Αἴαντος μητέρα καὶ Φερέβοιαν αὐθις
- 2 καὶ Ἰόπην τὴν Ἰφικλέους· καὶ διὰ τὸν Αἴγλης ἔρωτα τῆς Πανοπέως, ὥσπερ εἴρηται, τὴν Ἀριάδνης ἀπόλειψιν αἰτιῶνται μὴ καλὴν γενέσθαι μηδὲ πρέπουσαν· ἐπὶ πᾶσι δὲ τὴν Ἑλένης ἀρπαγὴν πολέμου μὲν ἐμπλήσαι τὴν Ἀττικὴν, αὐτῷ δὲ εἰς φυγὴν καὶ ὄλεθρον τελευτήσαι· περὶ ὧν ὀλίγον ὕστερον εἰρήσεται.
- 3 Πολλῶν δὲ τότε τοῖς ἀρίστοις ἄθλων γενομένων Ἡρόδωρος μὲν οὐδενὸς οἶεται τὸν Θησέα μετασχεῖν, ἀλλὰ μόνοις Λαπίθαις τῆς κενταυρομαχίας· ἕτεροι δὲ καὶ μετὰ Ἰάσονος ἐν Κόλχοις γενέσθαι καὶ Μελεάγρῳ συνεξελεῖν τὸν κάπρον· καὶ διὰ τοῦτο παροιμίαν εἶναι τὴν “Οὐκ ἄνευ Θησέως” αὐτὸν μέντοι μηδενὸς συμμάχου δε-
- 1 θέντα πολλοὺς καὶ καλοὺς ἄθλους κατεργάσασθαι, καὶ τὸν “Ἄλλος οὗτος Ἡρακλῆς” λόγον ἐπ’
- 4 ἐκείνου κρατῆσαι. συνέπραξε δὲ καὶ Ἀδράστῳ τὴν ἀναίρεσιν τῶν ὑπὸ τῇ Καδμείᾳ πεσόντων, historians and tragic poets, we must suppose that they happened as represented by the poets uniformly.

THESEUS

XXIX. There are, however, other stories also about marriages of Theseus which were neither honourable in their beginnings nor fortunate in their endings, but these have not been dramatised. For instance, he is said to have carried off Anaxo, a maiden of Troezen, and after slaying Sinis and Cercyon to have ravished their daughters; also to have married Periboea, the mother of Aias, and Phereboea afterwards, and Iope, the daughter of Iphicles; and because of his passion for Aegle, the daughter of Panopeus, as I have already said,¹ he is accused of the desertion of Ariadne, which was not honourable nor even decent; and finally, his rape of Helen is said to have filled Attica with war, and to have brought about at last his banishment and death, of which things I shall speak a little later.

Of the many exploits performed in those days by the bravest men, Herodorus thinks that Theseus took part in none, except that he aided the Lapithae in their war with the Centaurs; but others say that he was not only with Jason at Colchis,² but helped Meleager to slay the Calydonian boar, and that hence arose the proverb "Not without Theseus"; that he himself, however, without asking for any ally, performed many glorious exploits, and that the phrase "Lo! another Heracles" became current with reference to him. He also aided Adrastus in recovering for burial the bodies of those who had fallen before the walls of the Cadmeia,³ not by mastering the

¹ Chapter xx. 1.

² In quest of the golden fleece.

³ The citadel of Thebes.

PLUTARCH'S LIVES

οὐχ ὡς Εὐριπίδης ἐποίησεν ἐν τραγωδίᾳ, μάχη τῶν Θηβαίων κρατήσας, ἀλλὰ πείσας καὶ σπεισάμενος· οὕτω γὰρ οἱ πλεῖστοι λέγουσι· Φιλόχορος δὲ καὶ σπονδὰς περὶ νεκρῶν ἀναιρέσεως
 5 γενέσθαι πρώτας ἐκείνας. ὅτι δὲ Ἡρακλῆς πρῶτος ἀπέδωκε νεκροὺς τοῖς πολεμίοις, ἐν τοῖς περὶ Ἡρακλέους γέγραπται. ταφαὶ δὲ τῶν μὲν πολλῶν ἐν Ἐλευθεραῖς δείκνυνται, τῶν δὲ ἡγεμόνων περὶ Ἐλευσίνα, καὶ τοῦτο Θησεῶς Ἀδράστῳ χαρισαμένου. καταμαρτυροῦσι δὲ τῶν Εὐριπίδου Ἴκετίδων οἱ Αἰσχύλου Ἐλευσίνιοι, ἐν οἷς καὶ ταῦτα λέγων ὁ Θησεὺς πεποιήται.

XXX. Τὴν δὲ πρὸς Πειρίθου φιλίαν τοῦτον τὸν τρόπον αὐτῷ γενέσθαι λέγουσι. δόξαν εἶχεν ἐπὶ ῥώμῃ καὶ ἀνδρείᾳ μεγίστην· βουλόμενος οὖν ὁ Πειρίθους ἐξελέγξει καὶ λαβεῖν διάπειραν, ἠλάσατο βοῦς ἐκ Μαραθῶνος αὐτοῦ, καὶ πυθόμενος διώκειν μετὰ τῶν ὄπλων ἐκείνον οὐκ ἔφυγεν,
 2 ἀλλ' ἀναστρέψας ἀπήντησεν. ὡς δὲ εἶδεν ἄτερος τὸν ἕτερον καὶ τὸ κάλλος ἐθαύμασε καὶ τὴν τόλμαν ἠγάσθη, μάχης μὲν ἔσχοντο, Πειρίθους δὲ πρότερος τὴν δεξιὰν προτείνας ἐκέλευσεν αὐτὸν γενέσθαι δικαστὴν τὸν Θησεῖα τῆς βοηλασίας· ἐκὼν γὰρ ὑφέξειν ἦν ἂν ὀρίση δίκην ἐκείνος· Θησεὺς δὲ καὶ τὴν δίκην ἀφήκεν αὐτῷ καὶ προῦκαλεῖτο φίλον εἶναι καὶ σύμμαχον· ἐποιήσαντο δὲ τὴν φιλίαν ἔνορκον.

3 Ἐκ δὲ τούτου γαμῶν ὁ Πειρίθους Δηιδάμειαν, ἐδεήθη τοῦ Θησεῶς ἐλθεῖν καὶ τὴν χώραν ἰστο-

THESEUS

Thebans in battle, as Euripides has it in his tragedy,¹ but by persuading them to a truce; for so most writers say, and Philochorus adds that this was the first truce ever made for recovering the bodies of those slain in battle, although in the accounts of Heracles it is written that Heracles was the first to give back their dead to his enemies. And the graves of the greater part of those who fell before Thebes are shown at Eleutherae, and those of the commanders near Eleusis, and this last burial was a favour which Theseus showed to Adrastus. The account of Euripides in his "Suppliants"² is disproved by that of Aeschylus in his "Eleusinians,"³ where Theseus is made to relate the matter as above.

XXX. The friendship of Peirithoüs and Theseus is said to have come about in the following manner. Theseus had a very great reputation for strength and bravery, and Peirithoüs was desirous of making test and proof of it. Accordingly, he drove Theseus's cattle away from Marathon, and when he learned that their owner was pursuing him in arms, he did not fly, but turned back and met him. When, however, each beheld the other with astonishment at his beauty and admiration of his daring, they refrained from battle, and Peirithoüs, stretching out his hand the first, bade Theseus himself be judge of his robbery, for he would willingly submit to any penalty which the other might assign. Then Theseus not only remitted his penalty, but invited him to be a friend and brother in arms; whereupon they ratified their friendship with oaths.

After this, when Peirithoüs was about to marry Deidameia, he asked Theseus to come to the wedding,

¹ Suppliants, 653 ff. ² Verses 1213 ff. ³ Not extant.

ρῆσαι καὶ συγγενέσθαι τοῖς Λαπίθαις. ἐτύγχανε δὲ καὶ τοὺς Κενταύρους κεκληκῶς ἐπὶ τὸ δεῖπνον. ὡς δὲ ἤσέλγαινον ὕβρει καὶ μεθύοντες οὐκ ἀπέιχοντο τῶν γυναικῶν, ἐτράποντο πρὸς ἄμυναν οἱ Λαπίθαι· καὶ τοὺς μὲν ἔκτειναν αὐτῶν, τοὺς δὲ πολέμῳ κρατήσαντες ὕστερον ἐξέβαλον ἐκ τῆς χώρας, τοῦ Θησέως αὐτοῖς συμμαχομένου, καὶ
 4 συμπολεμοῦντος. Ἡρόδωρος δὲ ταῦτα πραχθῆναι φησιν οὐχ οὕτως, ἀλλὰ τοῦ πολέμου συνεστῶτος ἤδη τὸν Θησέα βοηθοῦντα τοῖς Λαπίθαις παραγενέσθαι, καὶ τότε πρῶτον ὄψει γνωρίσαι τὸν Ἡρακλέα, ποιησάμενον ἔργον ἐντυχεῖν αὐτῷ περὶ Τραχίνα πεπαυμένῳ πλάνης ἤδη καὶ ἄθλων γενέσθαι δὲ μετὰ τιμῆς καὶ φιλοφροσύνης καὶ
 5 πολλῶν ἐπαίνων ἀμφοτέροις τὴν ἐντευξιν. οὐ μὴν ἀλλὰ μᾶλλον ἂν τις πρόσχοι τοῖς πολλάκις ἐντυχεῖν αὐτοὺς ἀλλήλοις ἰστοροῦσι· καὶ τὴν μῆσιν Ἡρακλεῖ γενέσθαι Θησέως σπουδάσαντος καὶ τὸν πρὸ τῆς μνήσεως καθαρμὸν ὡς δεομένῳ διὰ τινὰς πράξεις ἀβουλήτους.

XXXI. Ἦδη δὲ πεντήκοντα ἔτη γεγονώς, ὡς φησιν Ἑλλάνικος, ἔπραξε τὰ περὶ τὴν Ἑλένην, οὐ καθ' ὥραν. ὅθεν ὡς δὴ μέγιστον ἐπανορθούμενοι τοῦτο τῶν ἐγκλημάτων, ἔνιοι λέγουσιν οὐκ αὐτὸν ἀρπάσαι τὴν Ἑλένην, ἀλλὰ Ἴδα καὶ Λυγκέως ἀρπασάντων παρακαταθήκην λαβόντα τηρεῖν καὶ μὴ προῖεσθαι τοῖς Διοσκούροις ἀπαιτοῦσιν· ἢ νῆ Δία Τυνδάρεω παραδόντος and see the country, and become acquainted with the Lapithae. Now he had invited the Centaurs also to the wedding feast. And when these were flown with insolence and wine, and laid hands upon the women, the Lapithae took vengeance upon them. Some of them they slew upon the spot, the rest they afterwards overcame in war and expelled from the country, Theseus fighting with them at the banquet and in the war. Herodorus, however, says that this was not how it happened, but that the war was already in progress when Theseus came to the aid of the Lapithae; and that on his way thither he had his first sight of Heracles, having made it his business to seek him out at Trachis, where the hero was already resting from his wandering and labours; and he says the interview passed with mutual expressions of honour, friendliness, and generous praise. Notwithstanding, one might better side with those historians who say that the heroes had frequent interviews with one another, and that it was at the instigation of Theseus that Heracles was initiated into the mysteries at Eleusis, and purified before his initiation, when he requested it on account of sundry rash acts.

THESEUS

XXXI. Theseus was already fifty years old, according to Hellanicus, when he took part in the rape of Helen, who was not of marriageable age. Wherefore some writers, thinking to correct this heaviest accusation against him, say that he did not carry off Helen himself, but that when Idas and Lynceus had carried her off, he received her in charge and watched over her and would not surrender her to the Dioscuri¹ when they demanded her; or, if you will believe it, that her own father, Tyndareüs, αὐτοῦ, φοβηθέντος Ἐναρσφόρον τὸν Ἴπποκόωντος ἔτι νηπῖαν οὔσαν βιαζόμενον τὴν Ἑλένην λαβεῖν. τὰ δὲ εἰκότα καὶ πλείστους ἔχοντα μάρτυρας τοιαῦτά ἐστιν.

¹ Castor and Pollux, her brothers.

- 2 Ἦλθον μὲν εἰς Σπάρτην ἀμφοτέροι καὶ τὴν κόρην ἐν ἱερῷ Ἀρτέμιδος Ὀρθίας χορεύουσαν ἀρπάσαντες ἔφυγον· τῶν δὲ πεμφθέντων ἐπὶ τὴν δίωξιν οὐ πορρωτέρω Τεγέας ἐπακολουθησάντων, ἐν ἀδείᾳ γενόμενοι καὶ διελθόντες τὴν Πελοπόννησον ἐποίησαντο συσθήκας, τὸν μὲν λαχόντα κλήρω τὴν Ἑλένην ἔχειν γυναῖκα, συμπράττειν 15
3 δὲ θατέρῳ γάμον ἄλλον. ἐπὶ ταύταις δὲ κληρουμένων ταῖς ὁμολογίαις ἔλαχε Θησεύς· καὶ παραλαβὼν τὴν παρθένου οὐπω γάμων ὥραν ἔχουσαν εἰς Ἀφίδνας ἐκόμισε· καὶ τὴν μητέρα καταστήσας μετ' αὐτῆς Ἀφίδνῳ παρέδωκεν ὄντι φίλῳ, διακελευσάμενος φυλάττειν καὶ λανθάνειν τοὺς ἄλ-
4 λους. αὐτὸς δὲ Πειρίθῳ τὴν ὑπουργίαν ἀποδιδούς, εἰς Ἡπειρον συναπεδήμησεν ἐπὶ τὴν Αἰδωνέως θυγατέρα τοῦ Μολοσσῶν βασιλέως, ἧς τῇ γυναικὶ Φερσεφόνην ὄνομα θέμενος, Κόρην δὲ τῇ θυγατρὶ, τῷ δὲ κυνὶ Κέρβερον, ἐκέλευε τούτῳ διαμάχεσθαι τοὺς μνωμένους τὴν παῖδα καὶ λαβεῖν τὸν κρατήσαντα. τοὺς μέντοι περὶ τὸν Πειρίθου οὐ μνηστῆρας ἦκειν, ἀλλ' ἀρπασομένους πυνθανόμενος συνέλαβε· καὶ τὸν μὲν Πειρίθου ἐυθύς ἠφάνισε διὰ τοῦ κυνός, τὸν δὲ Θησεῖα καθείρξας ἐφύλαττεν.

XXXII. Ἐν δὲ τῷ χρόνῳ τούτῳ Μενεσθεὺς ὁ Πεπεὼ τοῦ Ὀρνέως τοῦ Ἐρεχθέως πρῶτος, ὧς φασιν, ἀνθρώπων ἐπιθέμενος τῷ δημαγωγεῖν καὶ entrusted her to Theseus, for fear of Enarsphorus, the son of Hippocoön, who sought to take Helen by force while she was yet a child. But the most probable account, and that which has the most witnesses in its favour, is as follows.

THESEUS

Theseus and Peirithoüs went to Sparta in company, seized the girl as she was dancing in the temple of Artemis Orthia, and fled away with her. Their pursuers followed them no farther than Tegea, and so the two friends, when they had passed through Peloponnesus and were out of danger, made a compact with one another that the one on whom the lot fell should have Helen to wife, but should assist the other in getting another wife. With this mutual understanding they cast lots, and Theseus won, and taking the maiden, who was not yet ripe for marriage, conveyed her to Aphidnae. Here he made his mother a companion of the girl, and committed both to Aphidnus, a friend of his, with strict orders to guard them in complete secrecy. Then he himself, to return the service of Peirithoüs, journeyed with him to Epirus, in quest of the daughter of Aidoneus the king of the Molossians. This man called his wife Phersephone, his daughter Cora, and his dog Cerberus, with which beast he ordered that all suitors of his daughter should fight, promising her to him that should overcome it. However, when he learned that Peirithoüs and his friend were come not to woo, but to steal away his daughter, he seized them both. Peirithoüs he put out of the way at once by means of the dog, but Theseus he kept in close confinement.

XXXII. Meanwhile Menestheus, the son of Peteos, grandson of Orneus, and great-grandson of Erechtheus, the first of men, as they say, to affect popularity

PLUTARCH'S LIVES

πρὸς χάριν ὄχλῳ διαλέγεσθαι, τοὺς τε δυνατοὺς
 συνίστη καὶ παρώξυνε, πάλαι βαρυνομένους τὸν Θησέα καὶ νομίζοντας ἀρχὴν καὶ βασιλείαν ἀφηρημένον ἐκάστου τῶν κατὰ δῆμον εὐπατριδῶν, εἰς ἐν ἄστῳ συνείρξαντα πάντας ὑπηκόοις χρῆσθαι καὶ δούλοις, τοὺς τε πολλοὺς διετάραττε καὶ διέβαλλεν, ὡς ὄναρ ἐλευθερίας ὀρώντας, ἔργῳ δὲ ἀπεστερημένους πατρίδων καὶ ἱερῶν, ὅπως ἀντὶ πολλῶν
 καὶ ἀγαθῶν καὶ γνησίων βασιλέων πρὸς ἓνα δε-2 σπότην ἔπηλυν καὶ ξένον ἀποβλέπωσι. ταῦτα
 δὲ αὐτοῦ πραγματευομένου μεγάλην ῥοπήν ὁ πόλεμος τῷ νεωτερισμῷ προσέθηκε, τῶν Τυνδαριδῶν ἐπελθόντων· οἱ δὲ καὶ ὅλως φασὶν ὑπὸ τούτου πεισθέντας ἐλθεῖν.

Τὸ μὲν οὖν πρῶτον οὐδὲν ἠδίκουν, ἀλλ' ἀπήτουν
 τὴν ἀδελφὴν. ἀποκριναμένων δὲ τῶν ἐν ἄστει
 μήτε ἔχειν μήτε γινώσκειν ὅπου καταλέλειπται,
 3 πρὸς πόλεμον ἐτράποντο. φράζει δὲ αὐτοῖς Ἀκά-δημος ἠσθημένος ᾧ δὴ τινι τρόπῳ τὴν ἐν Ἀφίδναις
 κρύψιν αὐτῆς. ὅθεν ἐκείνῳ τε τιμαὶ ζῶντι παρὰ
 τῶν Τυνδαριδῶν ἐγένοντο, καὶ πολλάκις ὕστερον
 εἰς τὴν Ἀττικὴν ἐμβαλόντες Λακεδαιμόνιοι καὶ
 πᾶσαν ὁμοῦ τὴν χώραν τέμνοντες, τῆς Ἀκαδημείας
 4 ἀπέιχοντο διὰ τὸν Ἀκάδημον. ὁ δὲ Δικαίαρχος
 Ἐχεδήμου¹ φησὶ καὶ Μαράθου συστρατευσάντων

¹ Ἐχεδήμου with Coraës, Sintenis¹, and Bekker, after Xylander : Ἐχέμου.

THESEUS

and ingratiate himself with the multitude, stirred up and embittered the chief men in Athens. These had long been hostile to Theseus, and thought that he had robbed each one of the country nobles of his royal office,¹ and then shut them all up in a single city, where he treated them as subjects and slaves. The common people also he threw into commotion by his reproaches. They thought they had a vision of liberty, he said, but in reality they had been robbed of their native homes and religions in order that, in the place of many good kings of their own blood, they might look obediently to one master who was an immigrant and an alien. While he was thus busying himself, the Tyndaridae² came up against the city, and the war greatly furthered his seditious schemes; indeed, some writers say outright that he persuaded the invaders to come.

At first, then, they did no harm, but simply demanded back their sister. When, however, the people of the city replied that they neither had the girl nor knew where she had been left, they resorted to war. But Academus, who had learned in some way or other of her concealment at Aphidnae, told them about it. For this reason he was honoured during his life by the Tyndaridae, and often afterwards when the Lacedaemonians invaded Attica and laid waste all the country round about, they spared the Academy,³ for the sake of Academus. But Dicaearchus says that Echedemus and Marathus of

¹ Cf. chapter xxiv. 1-3.

² Or Dioscuri, Castor and Pollux.

³ A shady precinct near the river Cephissus, about a mile N.W. of Athens. Here Plato and his disciples taught. See Plutarch's Cimon, xiii. 8.

PLUTARCH'S LIVES

τότε τοῖς Τυνδαρίδαις ἐξ Ἀρκαδίας, ἀφ' οὗ μὲν Ἐχεδημίαν προσαγορευθῆναι τὴν νῦν Ἀκαδήμειαν, ἀφ' οὗ δὲ Μαραθῶνα τὸν δῆμον, ἐπιδόντος ἑαυτὸν ἔκουσίως κατὰ τι λόγιον σφαγιάσασθαι πρὸ τῆς παρατάξεως.

Ἐλθόντες οὖν ἐπὶ τὰς Ἀφίδνας καὶ μάχῃ 5 κρατήσαντες ἐξείλον τὸ χωρίον. ἐνταυθῆ φασὶ καὶ Ἄλυκον πεσεῖν τὸν Σκείρωνος υἱόν, συστρατευόμενον τότε τοῖς Διοσκούροις, ἀφ' οὗ καὶ τόπον τῆς Μεγαρικῆς Ἄλυκον καλεῖσθαι τοῦ σώματος ἐνταφέντος. Ἡρέας δ' ὑπὸ Θεσέως αὐτοῦ περὶ Ἀφίδνας ἀποθανεῖν τὸν Ἄλυκον ἰστόρηκε, καὶ μαρτύρια ταυτὶ τὰ ἔπη παρέχεται περὶ τοῦ Ἀλύκου·

τὸν ἐν εὐρυχόρφῳ ποτ' Ἀφίδνῃ
μαρνάμενον Θεσεὺς Ἐλένης ἔνεκ' ἠυκόμοιο κτεῖνεν.

Οὐ μὴν εἰκὸς αὐτοῦ Θεσέως παρόντος ἀλῶναι τὴν τε μητέρα καὶ τὰς Ἀφίδνας.

XXXIII. Ἐχομένων δ' οὖν τῶν Ἀφιδνῶν καὶ τῶν ἐν ἄστει δεδιότων, ἔπεισε τὸν δῆμον ὁ Μενεσθεὺς δέχεσθαι τῇ πόλει καὶ φιλοφρονεῖσθαι τοὺς Τυνδαρίδας, ὡς μόνῳ Θεσεῖ βίας ὑπάρξαντι πολεμοῦντας, τῶν δὲ ἄλλων εὐεργέτας ὄντας ἀνθρώπων καὶ σωτήρας. ἐμαρτύρει δὲ αὐτῷ καὶ τὰ παρ' ἐκείνων οὐδὲν γὰρ ἠξίωσαν ἀπάντων 16 κρατοῦντες ἀλλ' ἢ μνηθῆναι, μηδὲν ἦττον Ἡρα-

2 κλέους τῇ πόλει προσήκοντες. καὶ τοῦτο οὖν.

THESEUS

Arcadia were in the army of the Tyndaridae at that time, from the first of whom the present Academy was named Echedemia, and from the other, the township of Marathon, since in accordance with some oracle he voluntarily gave himself to be sacrificed in front of the line of battle.

To Aphidnae, then, they came, won a pitched battle, and stormed the town. Here they say that among others Alycus, the son of Sciron, who was at that time in the army of the Dioscuri, was slain, and that from him a place in Megara where he was buried is called Alycus. But Hereas writes that Alycus was slain at Aphidnae by Theseus himself, and cites in proof these verses about Alycus :—

“whom once in the plain of Aphidnae,
Where he was fighting, Theseus, ravisher of fair-haired Helen, Slew.”

However, it is not likely that Theseus himself was present when both his mother and Aphidnae were captured.

XXXIII. At any rate, Aphidnae was taken and the city of Athens was full of fear, but Menestheus persuaded its people to receive the Tyndaridae into the city and show them all manner of kindness, since they were waging war upon Theseus alone, who had committed the first act of violence, but were benefactors and saviours of the rest of mankind. And their behaviour confirmed his assurances, for although they were masters of everything, they demanded only an initiation into the mysteries, since they were no less closely allied to the city than Heracles. This privilege was accordingly granted

PLUTARCH'S LIVES

ὑπήρξεν αὐτοῖς, Ἀφίδνου ποιησαμένου παῖδας, ὡς Πύλιος Ἑρακλέα· καὶ τιμὰς ἰσοθέους ἔσχον, Ἄνακες προσαγορευθέντες, ἧ διὰ τὰς γενομένας ἀνοχὰς ἢ διὰ τὴν ἐπιμέλειαν καὶ κηδεμονίαν τοῦ μηδένα κακῶς παθεῖν στρατιᾶς τοσαύτης ἔνδον οὔσης· ἀνακῶς γὰρ ἔχει τοὺς ἐπιμελομένους ἢ φυλάττοντας ὀτιοῦν· καὶ τοὺς βασιλεῖς ἴσως ἀνακτας διὰ τοῦτο καλοῦσιν. εἰσὶ δὲ οἱ λέγοντες διὰ τὴν τῶν ἀστέρων ἐπιφάνειαν Ἄνακας ὀνομάζεσθαι· τὸ γὰρ ἄνω τοὺς Ἀττικοὺς ἀνεκὰς ὀνομάζειν, καὶ ἀνέκαθεν τὸ ἄνωθεν.

XXXIV. Αἶθραν δὲ τὴν Θησέως μητέρα γενομένην αἰχμάλωτον ἀπαχθῆναι λέγουσιν εἰς Λακεδαιμόνα, κακεῖθεν εἰς Τροίαν μετὰ Ἑλένης· καὶ μαρτυρεῖν Ὅμηρον, ἔπεσθαι τῇ Ἑλένῃ φάμενον·

Αἶθρην Πιτθῆος θύγατρα Κλυμένην τε βοῶπιιν.

Οἱ δὲ καὶ τοῦτο τὸ ἔπος διαβάλλουσι καὶ τὴν περὶ Μουνύχου μυθολογίαν, ὃν ἐκ Δημοφῶντος Λαοδίκης κρύφα τεκούσης ἐν Ἰλίῳ συνεκθρέψαι² τὴν Αἶθραν λέγουσιν. ἴδιον δέ τινα καὶ παρηλαγμένον ὄλως λόγον ὁ Ἰστρος ἐν τῇ τρισκαιδεκάτῃ τῶν Ἀττικῶν ἀναφέρει περὶ Αἶθρας, ὡς ἐνίων λεγόντων Ἀλέξανδρον μὲν τὸν Πάριν ἐν Θεσσαλίᾳ¹ ὑπ' Ἀχιλλέως καὶ Πατρόκλου μάχῃ κρατηθῆναι παρὰ τὸν Σπερχεῖον, Ἐκτορα δὲ τὴν Τροιζηνίων πόλιν λαβόντα διαρπάσαι καὶ

¹ τὸν Πάριν ἐν Θεσσαλίᾳ, with Bekker: τὸν ἐν Θεσσαλίᾳ Πάριν.

THESEUS

them, after they had been adopted by Aphidnus, as Pylus had adopted Heracles. They also obtained honours like those paid to gods, and were addressed as "Anakes," either on account of their stopping hostilities, or because of their diligent care that no one should be injured, although there was such a large army within the city; for the phrase "anakos echein" is used of such care for, or guard anything, and perhaps it is for this reason that kings are called "Anaktes." There are also those who say that the Tyndaridae were called "Anakes" because of the appearance of their twin stars in the heavens, since the Athenians use "anekas" and "anekathen" for "ano" and "anothen," signifying above or on high.

XXXIV. They say that Aethra, the mother of Theseus, who was taken captive at Aphidnae, was carried away to Lacedaemon, and from thence to Troy with Helen, and that Homer¹ bears witness to this when he mentions as followers of Helen:—

"Aethra of Pittheus born, and Clymene large-eyed and lovely."

But some reject this verse of Homer's, as well as the legend of Munychus, who was born in secret to Laodice from Demophoön, and whom Aethra helped to rear in Ilium. But a very peculiar and wholly divergent story about Aethra is given by Ister in the thirteenth book of his "Attic History." Some write, he says, that Alexander (Paris) was overcome in battle by Achilles and Patroclus in Thessaly, along the banks of the Spercheus, but that Hector took and plundered the city of Troezen, and carried

¹ Iliad, iii. 144.

τὴν Αἶθραν ἀπάγειν ἐκεῖ καταλειφθεῖσαν. ἀλλὰ τοῦτο μὲν ἔχει πολλὴν ἀλογίαν.

XXXV. Ἀἰδωνέως δὲ τοῦ Μολοσσοῦ ξενίζοντος Ἡρακλέα καὶ τῶν περὶ τὸν Θησέα καὶ Πειρίθου κατὰ τύχην μνησθέντος, ἃ τε πράξοντες ἦλθον καὶ ἃ φωραθέντες ἔπαθον, βαρέως ἤνεγκεν ὁ Ἡρακλῆς, τοῦ μὲν ἀπολωλὸτος ἀδόξως, τοῦ δὲ ἀπολλυμένου. καὶ περὶ Πειρίθου μὲν οὐδὲν ᾤετο ποιήσειν πλέον ἐγκαλῶν, τὸν δὲ Θησέα παρητεῖτο καὶ χάριν ἡξίου ταύτην αὐτῷ
 2 δοθῆναι. συγχωρήσαντος δὲ τοῦ Ἀἰδωνέως, λυθεὶς ὁ Θησεὺς ἐπανήλθε μὲν εἰς τὰς Ἀθήνας, οὐδέπω παντάπασι τῶν φίλων αὐτοῦ κεκρατημένων, καὶ ὅσα ὑπῆρχε τεμένη πρότερον αὐτῷ τῆς πόλεως ἐξελοῦσης ἅπαντα καθιέρωσε τῷ Ἡρακλεῖ καὶ προσηγόρευσεν ἀντὶ Θησειῶν Ἡρακλεια, πλὴν τεσσάρων, ὡς Φιλόχορος ἰστόρηκεν. αὐθις¹ δὲ βουλόμενος ὡς πρότερον ἄρχειν καὶ καθηγεῖσθαι τοῦ πολιτεύματος εἰς στάσεις ἐνέπεσε καὶ ταραχάς, οὓς μὲν ἀπέλιπε μισούντας αὐτὸν εὐρίσκων τὸ μὴ φοβεῖσθαι τῷ μισεῖν προσειληφότας, ἐν δὲ τῷ δήμῳ πολὺ τὸ διεφθαρμένον ὀρῶν καὶ θεραπεύεσθαι βουλόμενον ἀντὶ
 3 τοῦ ποιεῖν σιωπῇ τὸ προσταττόμενον. ἐπιχειρῶν οὖν βιάζεσθαι κατεδημαγωγεῖτο καὶ κατεστασιάζετο. καὶ τέλος ἀπογνοὺς τὰ πράγματα τοὺς μὲν παῖδας εἰς Εὐβοίαν ὑπεξέπεμψε πρὸς Ἐλεφήνορα τὸν Χαλκώδοντος, αὐτὸς δὲ Γαργηττοῖ κατὰ τῶν Ἀθηναίων ἀρὰς θέμενος, οὐ νῦν ἔστι τὸ καλούμενον Ἀρατήριον, εἰς Σκύρον ἐξέπλευσεν, away Aethra, who had been left there. This, however, is very doubtful.

¹ αὐθις Coraës, after Reiske : εὐθύς (at once).

THESEUS

XXXV. Now while Heracles was the guest of Aïdoneus the Molossian, the king incidentally spoke of the adventure of Theseus and Peirithoüs, telling what they had come there to do, and what they had suffered when they were found out. Heracles was greatly distressed by the inglorious death of the one, and by the impending death of the other. As for Peirithoüs, he thought it useless to complain, but he begged for the release of Theseus, and demanded that this favour be granted him. Aïdoneus yielded to his prayers, Theseus was set free, and returned to Athens, where his friends were not yet altogether overwhelmed. All the sacred precincts which the city had previously set apart for himself, he now dedicated to Heracles, and called them Heracleia instead of Theseia, four only excepted, as Philochorus writes. But when he desired to rule again as before, and to direct the state, he became involved in factions and disturbances; he found that those who hated him when he went away, had now added to their hatred contempt, and he saw that a large part of the people were corrupted, and wished to be cajoled into service instead of doing silently what they were told to do. Attempting, then, to force his wishes upon them, he was overpowered by demagogues and factions, and finally, despairing of his cause, he sent his children away privately into Euboea, to Elephenor, the son of Chalcodon, while he himself, after invoking curses upon the Athenians at Gargettus, where there is to this day the place called Araterion,¹ sailed away to the island of Scyros,

¹ That is, the place of prayer, or cursing.

PLUTARCH'S LIVES

οὔσης αὐτῷ πρὸς τοὺς ἐκεῖ φίλιας, ὡς ᾤετο, καὶ
 χωρίων ἐν τῇ νήσῳ πατρῶων. ἐβασίλευε δὲ
 4 Λυκομήδης τότε τῶν Σκυρίων. πρὸς τοῦτον οὖν
 ἀφικόμενος ἐζήτηε τοὺς ἀγροὺς ἀπολαβεῖν, ὡς
 αὐτόθι κατοικήσων· ἔνιοι δὲ φασὶ παρακαλεῖν αὐτὸν βοηθεῖν ἐπὶ τοὺς Ἀθηναίους. ὁ δὲ Λυκο-μήδης, εἴτε δείσας τὴν δόξαν τοῦ ἀνδρός, εἴτε τῷ Μενεσθεῖ χαριζόμενος, ἐπὶ τὰ ἄκρα τῆς χώρας
 ἀναγαγὼν αὐτόν, ὡς ἐκεῖθεν ἐπιδείξων τοὺς ἀγροὺς, ὥσε κατὰ τῶν πετρῶν καὶ διέφθειρεν.
 ἔνιοι δ' ἀφ' ἑαυτοῦ πεσεῖν φασὶ σφαλέντα, μετὰ 17 5 δεῖπνον, ὥσπερ εἰώθει, περιπατοῦντα. καὶ παραυτίκα μὲν οὐδεὶς ἔσχεν αὐτοῦ λόγον οὐδένα τεθνηκότης, ἀλλὰ τῶν μὲν Ἀθηναίων ἐβασίλευσε Μενεσθεύς, οἱ δὲ παῖδες ἰδιωτεύοντες Ἐλεφήνορι συνηστράτευσαν εἰς Ἴλιον. ἐκεῖ δὲ Μενεσθέως ἀποθανόντος ἐπανελθόντες αὐτοὶ τὴν βασιλείαν ἀνεκομίσαντο. χρόνοις δ' ὕστερον Ἀθηναίους
 ἄλλα τε παρέστησεν ὡς ἥρωα τιμᾶν Θεσέα, καὶ
 τῶν ἐν Μαραθῶνι πρὸς Μήδους μαχομένων ἔδοξαν
 οὐκ ὀλίγοι φάσμα Θεσέως ἐν ὄπλοις καθορᾶν πρὸ
 αὐτῶν ἐπὶ τοὺς βαρβάρους φερόμενον.

XXXVI. Μετὰ δὲ τὰ Μηδικὰ Φαίδωνος ἄρχοντος μαντευομένοις τοῖς Ἀθηναίοις ἀνεῖλεν ἡ Πυθία τὰ Θεσέως ἀναλαβεῖν ὅσῳ καὶ θεμένους
 ἐντίμως παρ' αὐτοῖς φυλάττειν. ἦν δὲ καὶ λαβεῖν ἀπορία καὶ γινῶναι τὸν τάφον ἀμιξία καὶ χαλεπότητι τῶν ἐνοικούντων Δολόπων. οὐ μὴν

THESEUS

where the people were friendly to him, as he thought, and where he had ancestral estates. Now Lycomedes was at that time king of Scyros. To him therefore Theseus applied with the request that his lands should be restored to him, since he was going to dwell there, though some say that he asked his aid against the Athenians. But Lycomedes, either because he feared a man of such fame, or as a favour to Menestheus, led him up to the high places of the land, on pretence of showing him from thence his lands, threw him down the cliffs, and killed him. Some, however, say that he slipped and fell down of himself while walking there after supper, as was his custom. At the time no one made any account of his death, but Menestheus reigned as king at Athens, while the sons of Theseus, as men of private station, accompanied Elephenor on the expedition to Ilium; but after Menestheus died there, they came back by themselves and recovered their kingdom. In after times, however, the Athenians were moved to honour Theseus as a demigod, especially by the fact that many of those who fought at Marathon against the Medes thought they saw an apparition of Theseus in arms rushing on in front of them against the Barbarians.¹

XXXVI. And after the Median wars, in the archonship of Phaedo,² when the Athenians were consulting the oracle at Delphi, they were told by the Pythian priestess to take up the bones of Theseus, give them honourable burial at Athens, and guard them there. But it was difficult to find the grave and take up the bones, because of the inhospitable and savage nature of the Dolopians,

¹ Cf. Pausanias, i. 15, 4.

² 476-475 B.C.

PLUTARCH'S LIVES

ἀλλὰ Κίμων ἐλὼν τὴν νῆσον, ὡς ἐν τοῖς περὶ
 ἐκείνου γέγραπται, καὶ φιλοτιμούμενος ἐξανευ-ρεῖν, ἀετοῦ τινα τόπον βουνοειδῆ κόπτουτος, ὧς
 φασι, τῷ στόματι καὶ διαστέλλοντος τοῖς ὄνυξι
 2 θεία τινὲς τύχη συμφρονήσας ἀνέσκαψεν. εὐρέθη
 δὲ θήκη τε μεγάλου σώματος αἰχμῆ τε παρακει-μένη χαλκῆ καὶ ξίφος. κομισθέντων δὲ τούτων
 ὑπὸ Κίμωνος ἐπὶ τῆς τριήρους, ἡσθέντες οἱ Ἀθηναῖοι πομπαῖς τε λαμπραῖς ἐδέξαντο καὶ
 θυσίαις ὥσπερ αὐτὸν ἐπανερχόμενον εἰς τὸ ἄστυ.
 καὶ κεῖται μὲν ἐν μέσῃ τῇ πόλει παρὰ τὸ νῦν
 γυμνάσιον, ἔστι δὲ φύξιμον οἰκέταις καὶ πᾶσι
 τοῖς ταπεινοτέροις καὶ δεδιόσι κρείττονας, ὡς καὶ
 τοῦ Θησέως προστατικοῦ τινος καὶ βοηθητικοῦ
 γενομένου καὶ προσδεχομένου φιλανθρώπως τὰς
 3 τῶν ταπεινοτέρων δεήσεις. θυσίαν δὲ ποιοῦσιν
 αὐτῷ τὴν μεγίστην ὀγδόῃ Πυανεψιώνος, ἐν ᾗ
 μετὰ τῶν ἡϊθέων ἐκ Κρήτης ἐπανῆλθεν. οὐ μὴν
 ἀλλὰ καὶ ταῖς ἄλλαις ὀγδοαῖς τιμῶσιν αὐτόν, ἣ διὰ τὸ πρῶτον ἐκ Τροιζῆνος ἀφικέσθαι τῇ ὀγδόῃ
 τοῦ Ἑκατομβαιῶνος, ὡς ἰστόρηκε Διόδωρος ὁ περιηγητής, ἣ νομίζοντες ἐτέρου μᾶλλον ἐκείνῳ
 προσήκειν τὸν ἀριθμὸν τούτου ἐκ Ποσειδῶνος
 4 γεγονέναι λεγομένῳ. καὶ γὰρ Ποσειδῶνα ταῖς

THESEUS

who then inhabited the island. However, Cimon took the island, as I have related in his Life,¹ and being ambitious to discover the grave of Theseus, saw an eagle in a place where there was the semblance of a mound, pecking, as they say, and tearing up the ground with his talons. By some divine ordering he comprehended the meaning of this and dug there, and there was found a coffin of a man of extraordinary size, a bronze spear lying by its side, and a sword. When these relics were brought home on his trireme by Cimon, the Athenians were delighted, and received them with splendid processions and sacrifices, as though Theseus himself were returning to his city. And now he lies buried in the heart of the city, near the present gymnasium,² and his tomb is a sanctuary and place of refuge for runaway slaves and all men of low estate who are afraid of men in power, since Theseus was a champion and helper of such during his life, and graciously received the supplications of the poor and needy. The chief sacrifice which the Athenians make in his honour comes on the eighth day of the month Pyanepsion, the day on which he came back from Crete with the youths. But they honour him also on the eighth day of the other months, either because he came to Athens in the first place, from Troezen, on the eighth day of the month Hecatombaeon, as Diodorus the Topographer states, or because they consider this number more appropriate for him than any other since he was said to be a son of Poseidon.³ For they pay honours to Poseidon on the eighth day

¹ Chapter viii. 3-6.

² The gymnasium of Ptolemy. Pausanias, i. 17, 2.

³ Cf. chapter vi. 1.

PLUTARCH'S LIVES

ὀγδόαις τιμῶσιν. ἡ γὰρ ὀγδοὰς κύβος ἀπ' ἀρτίου
πρῶτος οὔσα καὶ τοῦ πρώτου τετραγώνου διπλασία, τὸ μόνιμον καὶ δυσκίνητον οἰκεῖον ἔχει τῆς τοῦ θεοῦ δυνάμεως, ὃν ἀσφάλειον καὶ γαιήοχον προσωνομάζομεν.

THESEUS

of every month. The number eight, as the first cube of an even number and the double of the first square, fitly represents the steadfast and immovable power of this god, to whom we give the epithets of Securer and Earth-stayer.

ROMULUS

ΡΩΜΥΛΟΣ

I. Τὸ μέγα τῆς Ῥώμης ὄνομα καὶ δόξη διὰ πάντων ἀνθρώπων κεχωρηκὸς ἀφ' ὅτου καὶ δι' ἦν αἰτίαν τῇ πόλει γέγονεν, οὐχ ὠμολόγηται παρὰ τοῖς συγγραφεύσιν, ἀλλ' οἱ μὲν Πελασγοὺς ἐπὶ πλεῖστα τῆς οἰκουμένης πλανηθέντας ἀνθρώπων τε πλείστων κρατήσαντας, αὐτόθι κατοικῆσαι, καὶ διὰ τὴν ἐν τοῖς ὄπλοις ῤώμην
2 οὕτως ὀνομάσαι τὴν πόλιν, οἱ δὲ Τροίας ἀλισκομένης διαφυγόντας ἐνίους καὶ πλοίων ἐπιτυχόντας ὑπὸ πνευμάτων τῇ Τυρρηνίᾳ προσπεσεῖν φερομένους, καὶ περὶ τὸν Θύμβριν ποταμὸν ὀρμίσασθαι· ταῖς δὲ γυναιξὶν αὐτῶν ἀπορουμέναις ἤδη καὶ δυσανασχετούσαις πρὸς τὴν θάλασσαν ὑποθέσθαι μίαν, ἣ καὶ γένει προὔχειν καὶ φρονεῖν ἐδόκει μάλιστα, Ῥώμην ὄνομα, καταπρῆσαι τὰ
3 πλοῖα· πραχθέντος δὲ τούτου πρῶτον μὲν ἀγανακτεῖν τοὺς ἄνδρας, ἔπειτα δι' ἀνάγκην ἰδρυθέντας περὶ τὸ Παλλάντιον, ὡς ὀλίγῳ χρόνῳ κρείττον ἐλπίδος ἔπραττον, ἀγαθῆς τε πειρώμενοι χώρας καὶ δεχομένων αὐτοὺς τῶν προσοίκων, ἄλλην τε τιμὴν ἀπονέμειν τῇ Ῥώμῃ καὶ τὴν
4 πόλιν ἀπ' αὐτῆς, ὡς αἰτίας, προσαγορεύειν. ἐξ ἐκείνου τε παραμένειν λέγουσι τὸ τοὺς συγγενεῖς

ROMULUS

1. FROM whom, and for what reason the great name of Rome, so famous among mankind, was given to that city, writers are not agreed. Some say that the Pelasgians, after wandering over most of the habitable earth and subduing most of mankind, settled down on that site, and that from their strength in war they called their city Rome. Others say that at the taking of Troy some of its people escaped, found sailing vessels, were driven by storms upon the coast of Tuscany, and came to anchor in the river Tiber; that here, while their women were perplexed and distressed at thought of the sea, one of them, who was held to be of superior birth and the greatest understanding, and whose name was Roma, proposed that they should burn the ships¹; that when this was done, the men were angry at first, but afterwards, when they had settled of necessity on the Palatine, seeing themselves in a little while more prosperous than they had hoped, since they found the country good and the neighbours made them welcome, they paid high honours to Roma, and actually named the city after her, since she had been the occasion of their founding it. And from that time on, they say, it has been

¹ Cf. Aeneid, v. 604-699.

τὰς γυναῖκας καὶ οἰκείους ἄνδρας ἀσπάζεσθαι τοῖς στόμασι· καὶ γὰρ ἐκεῖνας, ὅτε τὰ πλοῖα κατέπρησαν, οὕτως ἀσπάζεσθαι καὶ φιλοφρονεῖσθαι τοὺς ἄνδρας, δεομένας αὐτῶν καὶ παραιτουμένας τὴν ὀργήν.

II. Ἄλλοι δὲ Ῥώμην, Ἰταλοῦ θυγατέρα καὶ Λευκαρίας, οἱ δὲ Τηλέφου τοῦ Ἡρακλέους, Αἰνεΐα γαμηθεῖσαν, οἱ δ' Ἄσκανίου τοῦ Αἰνείου, λέγουσι τοῦνομα θέσθαι τῇ πόλει· οἱ δὲ Ῥωμανόν, Ὀδυσσεῶς παῖδα καὶ Κίρκης, οἰκίσαι τὴν πόλιν· οἱ δὲ Ῥώμον ἐκ Τροίας ὑπὸ Διομήδους ἀποσταλέντα τὸν Ἡμαθίωνος, οἱ δὲ Ῥώμην Λατίνων τύραννον, ἐκβαλόντα Τυρρηνοὺς τοὺς εἰς Λυδίαν μὲν ἐκ Θετταλίας, ἐκ δὲ Λυδίας εἰς Ἰταλίαν παραγενομένους. οὐ μὴν οὐδ' οἱ Ῥωμύλον τῷ δικαιοτάτῳ τῶν λόγων ἀποφαίνοντες ἐπώνυμον τῆς πόλεως ὁμολογοῦσι περὶ τοῦ

2 γένους αὐτοῦ. οἱ μὲν γὰρ Αἰνείου καὶ Δεξιθέας τῆς Φόρβαντος υἱὸν ὄντα νήπιον εἰς Ἰταλίαν κομισθῆναι, καὶ τὸν ἀδελφὸν αὐτοῦ Ῥώμον· ἐν δὲ τῷ ποταμῷ πλημμύραντι τῶν ἄλλων σκαφῶν διαφθαρέντων, ἐν ᾧ δὲ ἦσαν οἱ παῖδες εἰς μαλακὴν ἀποκλιθέντος ὄχθην ἀτρέμα, σωθέντας¹

3 ἀπροσδοκῆτως,² ὀνομασθῆναι Ῥώμην. οἱ δὲ Ῥώμην θυγατέρα τῆς Τρωάδος ἐκείνης Λατίνῳ τῷ Τηλεμάχου γαμηθεῖσαν τεκεῖν τὸν Ῥωμύλον· οἱ δὲ Αἰμυλίαν τὴν Αἰνείου καὶ Λαβινίας Ἄρει συγγενομένην· οἱ δὲ μυθώδη παντάπασιν περὶ τῆς

¹ σωθέντας MSS., Coraës, Sintenis¹, and Bekker: σωθέντος.

² ἀπροσδοκῆτως after this word, Bekker assumes a lacuna in the text.

ROMULUS

customary for the women to salute their kinsmen and husbands with a kiss; for those women, after they had burned the ships, made use of such tender salutations as they supplicated their husbands and sought to appease their wrath.

II. Others again say that the Roma who gave her name to the city was a daughter of Italus and Leucaria, or, in another account, of Telephus the son of Heracles; and that she was married to Aeneas, or, in another version, to Ascanius the son of Aeneas. Some tell us that it was Romanus, a son of Odysseus and Circe, who colonized the city; others that it was Romus, who was sent from Troy by Diomedes the son of Emathion; and others still that it was Romis, tyrant of the Latins, after he had driven out the Tuscans, who passed from Thessaly into Lydia, and from Lydia into Italy. Moreover, even those writers who declare, in accordance with the most authentic tradition, that it was Romulus who gave his name to the city, do not agree about his lineage. For some say that he was a son of Aeneas and Dexithea the daughter of Phorbas, and was brought to Italy in his infancy, along with his brother Romus; that the rest of the vessels were destroyed in the swollen river, but the one in which the boys were was gently directed to a grassy bank, where they were unexpectedly saved, and the place was called Roma from them. Others say it was Roma, a daughter of the Trojan woman I have mentioned, who was wedded to Latinus the son of Telemachus and bore him Romulus; others that Aemilia, the daughter of Aeneas and Lavinia, bore him to Mars; and others still rehearse what is altogether fabulous concerning his

γενέσεως διεξίασι. Ταρχετίω γὰρ Ἀλβανῶν βασιλεῖ παρανομωτάτῳ καὶ ὤμοτάτῳ φάσμα δαιμόνιον οἴκοι γενέσθαι· φαλλὸν γὰρ ἐκ τῆς ἐστίας ἀνασχεῖν καὶ διαμένειν ἐπὶ πολλὰς ἡμέρας·
 4 εἶναι δὲ Τηθύος ἐν Τυρρηνίᾳ χρηστήριον, ἀφ' οὗ κομισθῆναι τῷ Ταρχετίῳ χρησμὸν ὥστε συμμίξαι τῷ φάσματι παρθένον· ἔσεσθαι γὰρ ἐξ αὐτῆς παιδα κλεινότατον ἀρετῇ καὶ τύχῃ καὶ ῥώμῃ διαφέροντα. φράσαντος οὖν τὸ μάντευμα τοῦ Ταρχετίου μίᾳ τῶν θυγατέρων καὶ συγγενέσθαι τῷ φαλλῷ προστάξαντος, αὐτὴν μὲν
 5 ἀπαξιῶσαι, θεράπειαν δὲ εἰσπέμψαι. τὸν δὲ Ταρχέτιον, ὡς ἔγνω, χαλεπῶς φέροντα συλλαβεῖν μὲν ἀμφοτέρας ἐπὶ θανάτῳ, τὴν δ' Ἑστίαν ἰδόντα κατὰ τοὺς ὕπνους ἀπαγορεύουσιν αὐτῷ τὸν φόνον, ἰστόν τινα παρεγγυῆσαι ταῖς κόραις ὑφαίνειν δεδεμέναις, ὡς ὅταν ἐξυφῆνωσι, τότε δοθησομένας πρὸς γάμον. ἐκείνας μὲν οὖν δι' ἡμέρας ὑφαίνειν, ἑτέρας δὲ νύκτωρ τοῦ Ταρχετίου κελεύοντος ἀναλύειν τὸν ἰστόν. ἐκ δὲ τοῦ φαλλοῦ τῆς θεραπαινίδος τεκούσης δίδυμα, δοῦναί τινα Τερατίῳ τὸν Ταρχέτιον ἀνελεῖν κελεύσαντα.
 6 τὸν δὲ θεῖναι φέροντα τοῦ ποταμοῦ πλησίον· εἶτα λύκαιναν μὲν ἐπιφοιτᾶν μαστὸν ἐνδιδούσαν, ὄρνιθας δὲ παντοδαποὺς ψωμίσματα κομίζοντας ἐντιθέναι τοῖς βρέφεσιν, ἄχρι οὗ βουκόλον ἰδόντα καὶ θαυμάσαντα τολμῆσαι προσελθεῖν καὶ ἀνελέσθαι τὰ παιδιά. τοιαύτης δὲ τῆς σωτηρίας αὐτοῖς γενομένης, ἐκτραφέντας ἐπιθέσθαι τῷ Ταρχετίῳ καὶ κρατῆσαι. ταῦτα μὲν οὖν Προ- 19

ROMULUS

origin. For instance, they say that Tarchetius, king of the Albans, who was most lawless and cruel, was visited with a strange phantom in his house, namely, a phallus rising out of the hearth and remaining there many days. Now there was an oracle of Tethys in Tuscany, from which there was brought to Tarchetius a response that a virgin must have intercourse with this phantom, and she should bear a son most illustrious for his valour, and of surpassing good fortune and strength. Tarchetius, accordingly, told the prophecy to one of his daughters, and bade her consort with the phantom ; but she disdained to do so, and sent a handmaid in to it. When Tarchetius learned of this, he was wroth, and seized both the maidens, purposing to put them to death. But the goddess Hestia appeared to him in his sleep and forbade him the murder. He therefore imposed upon the maidens the weaving of a certain web in their imprisonment, assuring them that when they had finished the weaving of it, they should then be given in marriage. By day, then, these maidens wove, but by night other maidens, at the command of Tarchetius, unravelled their web. And when the handmaid became the mother of twin children by the phantom, Tarchetius gave them to a certain Teratius with orders to destroy them. This man, however, carried them to the river-side and laid them down there. Then a she-wolf visited the babes and gave them suck, while all sorts of birds brought morsels of food and put them into their mouths, until a cow-herd spied them, conquered his amazement, ventured to come to them, and took the children home with him. Thus they were saved, and when they were grown up, they set upon Tarchetius and overcame him.

μαθίων τις ἱστορίαν Ἰταλικὴν συντεταγμένους εἴρηκε.

III. Τοῦ δὲ πίστιν ἔχοντος λόγου μάλιστα καὶ πλείστους μάρτυρας τὰ μὲν κυριώτατα πρῶτος εἰς τοὺς Ἕλληνας ἐξέδωκε Διοκλῆς Πεπαρήθιος, ᾧ καὶ Φάβιος ὁ Πίκτωρ ἐν τοῖς πλείστοις ἐπηκολούθηκε. γέγονασι δὲ καὶ περὶ τούτων ἕτεραι
 2 διαφοραί· τύφω δὲ εἰπεῖν τοιοῦτός ἐστι. τῶν ἀπ' Αἰνείου γεγονότων ἐν Ἀλβη βασιλέων εἰς ἀδελφούς δύο, Νομήτορα καὶ Ἀμούλιον, ἡ διαδοχὴ καθῆκεν. Ἀμούλιου δὲ νείμαντος τὰ πάντα δίχα, τῇ δὲ βασιλείᾳ τὰ χρήματα καὶ τὸν ἐκ Τροίας κομισθέντα χρυσὸν ἀντιθέντος, εἴλετο τὴν βασιλείαν ὁ Νομήτωρ. ἔχων οὖν ὁ Ἀμούλιος τὰ χρήματα καὶ πλεον ἀπ' αὐτῶν δυνάμενος τοῦ Νομήτορος, τὴν τε βασιλείαν ἀφείλετο ῥαδίως, καὶ φοβούμενος ἐκ τῆς θυγατρὸς αὐτοῦ γενέσθαι
 3 παῖδας ἰέρειαν τῆς Ἑστίας ἀπέδειξεν, ἄγαμον καὶ παρθένον αἰεὶ βιωσομένην. ταύτην οἱ μὲν Ἰλίαν, οἱ δὲ Ῥέαν, οἱ δὲ Σιλουίαν ὀνομάζουσι. φωρᾶται δὲ μετ' οὐ πολὺν χρόνον κυοῦσα παρὰ τὸν καθεστῶτα ταῖς Ἑστιάσι νόμον. καὶ τὸ μὲν ἀνήκεστα μὴ παθεῖν αὐτὴν ἢ τοῦ βασιλέως θυγάτηρ Ἀνθὼ παρητήσατο, δεηθεῖσα τοῦ πατρός· εἶρχθη δὲ καὶ δίαιταν εἶχεν ἀνεπίμικτον, ὅπως μὴ λάθοι τεκοῦσα τὸν Ἀμούλιον. ἔτεκε δὲ δύο παῖδας ὑπερφυεῖς
 4 μεγέθει καὶ κάλλει. δι' ὃ καὶ μᾶλλον ὁ Ἀμούλιος φοβηθεὶς ἐκέλευσεν αὐτοὺς ὑπηρέτην λαβόντα ῥίψαι. τοῦτον ἐνιοὶ Φαυστύλον ὀνομάζεσθαι

ROMULUS

At any rate, this is what a certain Promathion says, who compiled a history of Italy.

III. But the story which has the widest credence and the greatest number of vouchers was first published among the Greeks, in its principal details, by Diocles of Peparethus, and Fabius Pictor follows him in most points. Here again there are variations in the story, but its general outline is as follows. The descendants of Aeneas reigned as kings in Alba, and the succession devolved at length upon two brothers, Numitor and Amulius.¹ Amulius divided the whole inheritance into two parts, setting the treasures and the gold which had been brought from Troy over against the kingdom, and Numitor chose the kingdom. Amulius, then, in possession of the treasure, and made more powerful by it than Numitor, easily took the kingdom away from his brother, and fearing lest that brother's daughter should have children, made her a priestess of Vesta, bound to live unwedded and a virgin all her days. Her name is variously given as Ilia, or Rhea, or Silvia. Not long after this, she was discovered to be with child, contrary to the established law for the Vestals.² She did not, however, suffer the capital punishment which was her due, because the king's daughter, Antho, interceded successfully in her behalf, but she was kept in solitary confinement, that she might not be delivered without the knowledge of Amulius. Delivered she was of two boys, and their size and beauty were more than human. Wherefore Amulius was all the more afraid, and ordered a servant to take the boys and cast them away. This servant's name was Faustulus, according to some, but others

¹ Cf. Livy, i. 3.

² Cf. Livy, i. 4, 1-5.

λέγουσιν, οἱ δ' οὐ τοῦτον, ἀλλὰ τὸν ἀνελόμενον. ἐνθέμενος οὖν εἰς σκάφην τὰ βρέφη, κατέβη μὲν ἐπὶ τὸν ποταμὸν ὡς ῥίψων, ἰδὼν δὲ κατιόντα πολλῶ ῥεύματι καὶ τραχυνόμενον ἔδεισε προσελθεῖν, ἐγ-
 5 γὺς δὲ τῆς ὄχθης καταθεὶς ἀπηλλάσσετο. τοῦ δὲ ποταμοῦ κατακλύζοντος ἡ πλήμμυρα τὴν σκάφην ὑπολαβοῦσα καὶ μετεωρίσασα πρῶως κατήνεγκεν εἰς χωρίον ἐπιεικῶς μαλθακόν, ὃ νῦν Κερμαλὸν καλοῦσι, πάλαι δὲ Γερμανόν, ὡς ἔοικεν, ὅτι καὶ τοὺς ἀδελφοὺς γερμανοὺς ὀνομάζουσιν.

IV. Ἦν δὲ πλησίον ἐρινεός, ὃν Ἑρωμινάλιον ἐκάλουν, ἡ δὲ διὰ τὸν Ἑρωμύλον, ὡς οἱ πολλοὶ νομίζουσιν, ἡ δὲ διὰ τὸ τὰ μηρυκώμενα τῶν θρεμμάτων ἐκεῖ διὰ τὴν σκιὰν ἐνδιάζειν, ἡ μάλιστα διὰ τὸν τῶν βρεφῶν θηλασμόν, ὅτι τὴν τε θηλὴν ῥοῦμαν ὠνόμαζον οἱ παλαιοί, καὶ θεὸν τινα τῆς ἐκτροφῆς τῶν νηπίων ἐπιμελεῖσθαι δοκοῦσαν ὀνομάζουσι Ἑρουμιλίαν, καὶ θύουσιν αὐτῇ νηφάλια, καὶ γάλα
 2 τοῖς ἱεροῖς ἐπισπένδουσιν. ἐνταῦθα δὲ τοῖς βρέφεσι κειμένοις τὴν τε λύκαιναν ἱστοροῦσι θηλαζομένην, καὶ δρυοκολάπτῃν τινὰ παρεῖναι συνεκτρέφοντα καὶ φυλάττοντα. νομίζεται δ' Ἄρεως ἱερὰ τὰ ζῶα· τὸν δὲ δρυοκολάπτῃν καὶ διαφερόντως Λατίνοι σέβονται καὶ τιμῶσιν· ὅθεν οὐχ ἥκιστα πίστιν ἔσχεν ἡ τεκοῦσα τὰ βρέφη τεκεῖν ἐξ Ἄρεως φάσκουσα. καίτοι τοῦτο παθεῖν αὐτὴν ἐξαπατηθεῖσαν λέγουσιν, ὑπὸ τοῦ Ἄμουλίου διαπαρθευθεῖσαν ἐν ὄπλοις ἐπιφανέντος αὐτῇ καὶ συναρπάσαντος.

ROMULUS.

give this name to the man who took the boys up. Obeying the king's orders, the servant put the babes into a trough and went down towards the river, purposing to cast them in; but when he saw that the stream was much swollen and violent, he was afraid to go close up to it, and setting his burden down near the bank, went his way. Then the overflow of the swollen river took and bore up the trough, floating it gently along, and carried it down to a fairly smooth spot which is now called Kermalus, but formerly Germanus, perhaps because brothers are called "germani."

IV. Now there was a wild fig-tree hard by, which they called Ruminalis, either from Romulus, as is generally thought, or because cud-chewing, or ruminating, animals spent the noon-tide there for the sake of the shade, or best of all, from the suckling of the babes there; for the ancient Romans called the teat "ruma," and a certain goddess, who is thought to preside over the rearing of young children, is still called Rumilia, in sacrificing to whom no wine is used, and libations of milk are poured over her victims. Here, then, the babes lay, and the she-wolf of story here gave them suck,¹ and a woodpecker came to help in feeding them and to watch over them. Now these creatures are considered sacred to Mars, and the woodpecker is held in especial veneration and honour by the Latins, and this was the chief reason why the mother was believed when she declared that Mars was the father of her babes. And yet it is said that she was deceived into doing this, and was really deflowered by Amulius himself, who came to her in armour and ravished her.

¹ Cf. Livy, i. 4, 6-7.

3 Οί δὲ τοῦνομα τῆς τροφοῦ δι' ἀμφιβολίαν ἐπὶ τὸ μυθῶδες ἐκτροπήν τῇ φήμῃ παρασχεῖν. Λούπας γὰρ ἐκάλουν οἱ Λατῖνοι τῶν τε θηρίων τὰς λυκαῖνας, καὶ τῶν γυναικῶν τὰς ἑταιρούσας· εἶναι δὲ τοιαύτην τὴν Φαυστύλου γυναῖκα τοῦ τὰ βρέφη θρέψαντος, Ἄκκαν Λαρεντίαν ὄνομα. ταύτη δὲ καὶ θύουσιν οἱ Ῥωμαῖοι, καὶ χοὰς ἐπιφέρει τοῦ Ἀπριλλίου μηνὸς αὐτῇ¹ ὁ τοῦ Ἄρεως ἱερεὺς, καὶ Λαρεντίαν καλοῦσι τὴν ἑορτήν.

V. Ἐτέραν δὲ τιμῶσι Λαρεντίαν ἐξ αἰτίας τοιαύτης. ὁ νεωκόρος τοῦ Ἡρακλέους ἀλύων, ὡς ἔοικεν, ὑπὸ σχολῆς, προὔθετο πρὸς τὸν θεὸν διακυβεύειν, ὑπειπὼν ὅτι νικήσας μὲν αὐτὸς ἔξει 20
τι παρὰ τοῦ θεοῦ χρηστόν, ἠττηθεὶς δὲ τῷ θεῷ
τράπεζαν ἄφθονον παρέξει καὶ γυναῖκα καλὴν
2 συναναπαυσομένην. ἐπὶ τούτοις τὰς μὲν ὑπὲρ τοῦ θεοῦ τιθεὶς, τὰς δ' ὑπὲρ αὐτοῦ ψήφους, ἀνεφάνη νικῶμενος. εὐσυνθετεῖν δὲ βουλόμενος καὶ δικαίων ἐμμένειν τοῖς ὀρισθεῖσι, δεῖπνόν τε τῷ θεῷ παρεσκεύασε, καὶ τὴν Λαρεντίαν οὔσαν ὠραίαν, οὐπω δὲ ἐπιφανῆ, μισθωσάμενος, εἰστίασεν ἐν τῷ ἱερῷ, κλίνην ὑποστορέσας, καὶ μετὰ τὸ δεῖπνον συνεῖργεν, ὡς δὴ τοῦ θεοῦ ἔξοντος αὐτήν.
3 καὶ μέντοι καὶ τὸν θεὸν ἐντυχεῖν λέγεται τῇ γυναικὶ καὶ κελεύσαι βαδίζειν ἔωθεν ἐπὶ τὴν ἀγορὰν καὶ τὸν ἀπαντήσαντα πρῶτον ἀσπασαμένην ποιεῖσθαι φίλον. ἀπήντησεν οὖν αὐτῇ τῶν πολιτῶν ἀνὴρ ἡλικίας τε πόρρω ἤκων καὶ

¹ αὐτῇ bracketed in Sintenis², to avoid the hiatus.

ROMULUS

But some say that the name of the children's nurse, by its ambiguity, deflected the story into the realm of the fabulous. For the Latins not only called she-wolves "lupae," but also women of loose character, and such a woman was the wife of Faustus, the foster-father of the infants, Acca Larentia by name. Yet the Romans sacrifice also to her, and in the month of April the priest of Mars pours libations in her honour, and the festival is called Larentalia.

V. They pay honours also to another Larentia, for the following reason. The keeper of the temple of Hercules, being at a loss for something to do, as it seems, proposed to the god a game of dice, with the understanding that if he won it himself, he should get some valuable present from the god; but if he lost, he would furnish the god with a bounteous repast and a lovely woman to keep him company for the night. On these terms the dice were thrown, first for the god, then for himself, when it appeared that he had lost. Wishing to keep faith, and thinking it right to abide by the contract, he prepared a banquet for the god, and engaging Larentia, who was then in the bloom of her beauty, but not yet famous,¹ he feasted her in the temple, where he had spread a couch, and after the supper locked her in, assured of course that the god would take possession of her. And verily it is said that the god did visit the woman, and bade her go early in the morning to the forum, salute the first man who met her, and make him her friend. She was met, accordingly, by one of the citizens who was well on in years and possessed of considerable property, but

¹ In Morals, p. 273 a, she is called a public courtesan.

4 συνειλοχῶς οὐσίαν ἰκανήν, ἅπαις δὲ καὶ βεβιω-κῶς ἄνευ γυναικός, ὄνομα Ταρρούτιος. οὗτος
 ἔγνω τὴν Λαρεντίαν καὶ ἠγάπησε, καὶ τελευτῶν
 ἀπέλιπε κληρονόμον ἐπὶ πολλοῖς καὶ καλοῖς
 κτήμασιν, ὧν ἐκείνη τὰ πλείστα τῷ δήμῳ κατὰ διαθήκας ἔδωκε. λέγεται δὲ αὐτὴν ἐνδοξον οὔσαν
 ἤδη καὶ θεοφιλῆ νομιζομένην, ἄφανῆ γενέσθαι
 5 περὶ τοῦτον τὸν τόπον ἐν ᾧ. καὶ τὴν προτέραν ἐκείνην Λαρεντίαν κείσθαι. καλεῖται δὲ νῦν ὁ τόπος Βήλαυρον, ὅτι τοῦ ποταμοῦ πολλάκις ὑπερχεομένου διεπεραιούντο πορθμείοις κατὰ τοῦτο τὸ χωρίον εἰς ἀγοράν· τὴν δὲ πορθμείαν
 βηλατούραν καλοῦσιν. ἔνιοι δὲ λέγουσι τὴν
 εἰς τὸν ἵππόδρομον φέρουσαν ἐξ ἀγορᾶς πάροδον
 ἰστίους καταπετανύναι τοὺς τὴν θέαν παρέχοντας, ἐντεῦθεν ἀρχομένους· ῥωμαῖστὶ δὲ τὸ
 ἰστίον βῆλον ὀνομάζουσι. διὰ ταῦτα μὲν ἔχει
 τιμὰς ἢ δευτέρα Λαρεντία παρὰ Ῥωμαίοις.

VI. Τὰ δὲ βρέφη Φαυστύλος Ἀμουλίου σύ-φορβὸς ἀνείλετο λαθῶν ἅπαντας, ὡς δ' ἔνιοι
 φασὶ τῶν εἰκότων ἐχόμενοι μᾶλλον, εἰδότος τοῦ Νομήτορος καὶ συγχορηγοῦντος τροφᾶς κρύφα
 τοῖς τρέφουσι. καὶ γράμματα λέγονται καὶ
 τᾶλλα μανθάνειν οἱ παῖδες εἰς Γαβίους κομι-2 σθέντες, ὅσα χρὴ τοὺς εὖ γεγονότας. κληθῆναι
 δὲ καὶ τούτους ἀπὸ τῆς θηλῆς ἱστοροῦσι Ῥωμύλον
 καὶ Ῥώμον, ὅτι θηλιάζοντες ὠφθησαν τὸ θηρίον.
 ἢ μὲν οὖν ἐν τοῖς σώμασιν εὐγένεια καὶ νηπίων
 ὄντων εὐθύς ἐξέφαινε μεγέθει καὶ ἰδέα τὴν φύσιν· αὐξόμενοι δὲ θυμοειδεῖς ἦσαν ἀμφοτέροι καὶ
 ἀνδρῶδεις καὶ φρονήματα πρὸς τὰ φαινόμενα

ROMULUS

childless, and unmarried all his life, by name Tarrutius. This man took Larentia to his bed and loved her well, and at his death left her heir to many and fair possessions, most of which she bequeathed to the people. And it is said that when she was now famous and regarded as the beloved of a god, she disappeared at the spot where the former Larentia also lies buried. This spot is now called Velabrum, because when the river overflowed, as it often did, they used to cross it at about this point in ferry-boats, to go to the forum, and their word for ferry is "velatura." But some say that it is so-called because from that point on, the street leading to the Hippodrome¹ from the forum is covered over with sails by the givers of a public spectacle, and the Roman word for sail is "velum." It is for these reasons that honours are paid to this second Larentia amongst the Romans.

VI. As for the babes, they were taken up and reared by Faustulus, a swineherd of Amulius, and no man knew of it; or, as some say with a closer approach to probability, Numitor did know of it, and secretly aided the foster-parents in their task. And it is said that the boys were taken to Gabii to learn letters and the other branches of knowledge which are meet for those of noble birth. Moreover, we are told that they were named, from "ruma," the Latin word for teat,² Romulus and Romus (or Remus), because they were seen sucking the wild beast. Well, the noble size and beauty of their bodies, even when they were infants, betokened their natural disposition; and when they grew up, they were both of them courageous and manly, with spirits which

¹ That is, the Circus Maximus.

² Cf. chapter iv. 1.

δεινὰ καὶ τόλμαν ὅλως ἀνέκπληκτον ἔχοντες· ὁ δὲ Ῥωμύλος γνώμη τε χρῆσθαι μᾶλλον ἐδόκει καὶ πολιτικὴν ἔχειν σύνεσιν, ἐν ταῖς περὶ νομᾶς καὶ κληρονομίας πρὸς τοὺς γειτυῶντας ἐπιμιξίαις πολλὴν ἑαυτοῦ παρέχων κατανοήσιν ἡγεμονικοῦ
 3 μᾶλλον ἢ πειθαρχικοῦ φύσει γεγονότος. διὸ τοῖς μὲν ὁμοφύλοις ἢ ταπεινοτέροις προσφιλεῖς ἦσαν, ἐπιστάτας δὲ καὶ διόπους βασιλικούς καὶ ἀγγελάρχας, ὡς μηδὲν αὐτῶν ἀρετῇ διαφέροντας, ὑπερφρονούντες οὐτ' ἀπειλῆς ἐφρόντιζον οὐτε ὀργῆς. ἐχρῶντο δὲ διαίταις καὶ διατριβαῖς ἐλευθερίοις, οὐ τὴν σχολὴν ἐλευθέριον ἡγούμενοι καὶ τὴν ἀπονίαν, ἀλλὰ γυμνάσια καὶ θήρας καὶ δρόμους καὶ τὸ ληστὰς ἀμύνασθαι καὶ κλώπας ἐλεῖν καὶ βίας ἐξελέσθαι τοὺς ἀδικουμένους. ἦσαν δὲ διὰ ταῦτα περιβόητοι.

VII. Γενομένης δὲ τινος πρὸς τοὺς Νομήτορος βουκόλους τοῖς Ἀμουλίου διαφορᾶς καὶ βοσκημάτων ἐλάσεως, οὐκ ἀνασχόμενοι συγκόπτουσι μὲν αὐτοὺς καὶ τρέπονται, ἀποτέμνονται δὲ τῆς λείας συχνήν. ἀγανακτοῦντος δὲ τοῦ Νομήτορος ὀλιγώρου· συνῆγον δὲ καὶ προσεδέχοντο πολλοὺς μὲν ἀπόρους, πολλοὺς δὲ δούλους, θράσους ἀπο-
 2 στατικοῦ καὶ φρονήματος ἀρχὰς ἐνδιδόντες. τοῦ δὲ Ῥωμύλου πρὸς τινα θυσίαν ἀποτραπομένου (καὶ γὰρ ἦν φιλοθύτης καὶ μαντικός), οἱ τοῦ Νομήτορος βοτῆρες τῷ Ῥώμφ μετ' ὀλίγων βαδίζοντι προστυχόντες ἐμάχοντο. καὶ γενομένων πληγῶν καὶ τραυμάτων ἐν ἀμφοτέροις ἐκράτησαν οἱ τοῦ Νομήτορος καὶ συνέλαβον ζῶντα τὸν

ROMULUS

courted apparent danger, and a daring which nothing could terrify. But Romulus seemed to exercise his judgement more, and to have political sagacity, while in his intercourse with their neighbours in matters pertaining to herding and hunting, he gave them the impression that he was born to command rather than to obey. With their equals or inferiors they were therefore on friendly terms, but they looked down upon the overseers, bailiffs, and chief herdsmen of the king, believing them to be no better men than themselves, and disregarded both their threats and their anger. They also applied themselves to generous occupations and pursuits, not esteeming sloth and idleness generous, but rather bodily exercise, hunting, running, driving off robbers, capturing thieves, and rescuing the oppressed from violence. For these things, indeed, they were famous far and near.

VII. When a quarrel arose between the herdsmen of Numitor and Amulius,¹ and some of the latter's cattle were driven off, the brothers would not suffer it, but fell upon the robbers, put them to flight, and intercepted most of the booty. To the displeasure of Numitor they gave little heed, but collected and took into their company many needy men and many slaves, exhibiting thus the beginnings of seditious boldness and temper. But once when Romulus was busily engaged in some sacrifice, being fond of sacrifices and of divination, the herdsmen of Numitor fell in with Remus as he was walking with few companions, and a battle ensued. After blows and wounds given and received on both sides, the herdsmen of Numitor prevailed and took Remus prisoner, who was

¹ Cf. Livy, i. 5, 3 ff.

Ῥώμον. ἀναχθέντος οὖν αὐτοῦ πρὸς τὸν Νομήτορα καὶ κατηγορηθέντος, αὐτὸς μὲν οὐκ ἐκόλασε, χαλεπὸν ὄντα δεδιὼς τὸν ἀδελφόν, ἐλθὼν δὲ
 πρὸς ἐκείνουν ἐδεῖτο τυχεῖν δίκης, ἀδελφὸς ὢν καὶ καθυβρισμένος ὑπὸ οἰκετῶν ἐκείνου βασιλέως
 3 ὄντος. συναγανακτούντων δὲ τῶν ἐν Ἄλβη καὶ
 δεινὰ πάσχειν οἰομένων τὸν ἄνδρα παρ' ἀξίαν, κινηθεὶς ὁ Ἀμούλιος αὐτῷ παραδίδωσι τῷ Νομήτορι τὸν Ῥώμον ὃ τι βούλοιο χρήσασθαι.

Παραλαβὼν δὲ ἐκείνος, ὡς ἦκεν οἴκαδε, θαυμά-ζων μὲν ἀπὸ τοῦ σώματος τὸν νεανίσκον ὑπερφέροντα μεγέθει καὶ ῥώμῃ πάντας, ἐνορῶν δὲ τῷ
 προσώπῳ τὸ θαρραλέον καὶ ἰταμὸν τῆς ψυχῆς
 4 ἀδούλωτον καὶ ἀπαθὲς ὑπὸ τῶν παρόντων, ἔργα
 δὲ αὐτοῦ καὶ πράξεις ὅμοια τοῖς βλεπομένοις ἀκούων, τὸ δὲ μέγιστον, ὡς ἔοικε, θεοῦ συμπαρόντος καὶ συνεπευθύνοντος ἀρχὰς μεγάλων πραγμάτων, ἀπτόμενος ἐπινοία καὶ τύχῃ τῆς ἀληθείας, ἀνέκρινεν ὅστις εἶη καὶ ὅπως γένοιτο,
 φωνῇ τε πρᾶξια καὶ φιλανθρώπῳ βλέμματι
 5 πίστιν αὐτῷ μετ' ἐλπίδος ἐνδιδούς. ὁ δὲ θαρρῶν ἔλεγεν· “Ἄλλ' οὐδὲν ἀποκρύψομαί σε· καὶ γὰρ
 εἶναι δοκεῖς Ἀμουλίου βασιλικώτερος. ἀκούεις
 γὰρ καὶ ἀνακρίνεις πρὶν ἢ κολάζειν· ὁ δ' ἀκρίτους
 ἐκδίδωσι. πρότερον μὲν ἑαυτοὺς οἰκετῶν βασιλέως Φαυστύλου καὶ Λαρεντίας ἠπιστάμεθα παῖδας (ἔσμεν δὲ δίδυμοι), γενόμενοι δὲ ἐν αἰτία
 πρὸς σέ καὶ διαβολαῖς καὶ τοῖς περὶ ψυχῆς
 ἀγῶσιν, ἀκούομεν μεγάλα περὶ ἑαυτῶν· εἰ δὲ
 6 πιστά, κρίνειν ἔοικε νῦν ὁ κίνδυνος. γοναὶ μὲν

ROMULUS

then carried before Numitor and denounced. Numitor himself did not punish his prisoner, because he was in fear of his brother Amulius, who was severe, but went to Amulius and asked for justice, since he was his brother, and had been insulted by the royal servants. The people of Alba, too, were incensed, and thought that Numitor had been undeservedly outraged. Amulius was therefore induced to hand Remus over to Numitor himself, to treat him as he saw fit.

When Numitor came home, after getting Remus into his hands, he was amazed at the young man's complete superiority in stature and strength of body, and perceiving by his countenance that the boldness and vigour of his soul were unsubdued and unharmed by his present circumstances, and hearing that his acts and deeds corresponded with his looks, but chiefly, as it would seem, because a divinity was aiding and assisting in the inauguration of great events, he grasped the truth by a happy conjecture, and asked him who he was and what were the circumstances of his birth, while his gentle voice and kindly look inspired the youth with confidence and hope. Then Remus boldly said: "Indeed, I will hide nothing from thee; for thou seemest to be more like a king than Amulius; thou hearest and weighest before punishing, but he surrenders men without a trial. Formerly we believed ourselves (my twin brother and I) children of Faustulus and Larentia, servants of the king; but since being accused and slandered before thee and brought in peril of our lives, we hear great things concerning ourselves; whether they are true or not, our present danger is likely to decide. Our birth is said to have been secret, and

γὰρ ἡμῶν ἀπόρρητοι λέγονται, τροφαὶ δὲ καὶ τιθηνήσεις ἀτοπώτεραι νεογνῶν, οἷς ἐρρίφημεν οἰωνοῖς καὶ θηρίοις, ὑπὸ τούτων τρεφόμενοι, μαστῶ λυκαίνης καὶ δρυοκολάπτου ψωμίσμασιν, ἐν σκάφῃ τινὶ κείμενοι παρὰ τὸν μέγαν ποταμόν. ἔστι δ' ἡ σκάφη καὶ σώζεται, χαλκοῖς ὑποζώσμασι γραμμάτων ἀμυδρῶν ἐγκεχαραγμένων, ἃ γένοιτ' ἂν ἴσως ὕστερον ἀνωφελῆ γνωρίσματα 7 τοῖς τοκεῦσιν ἡμῶν ἀπολομένων.”

Ὁ μὲν οὖν Νομήτωρ ἔκ τε τῶν λόγων τούτων καὶ πρὸς τὴν ὄψιν εἰκάζων τὸν χρόνον, οὐκ ἔφευγε τὴν ἐλπίδα σαίνουσαν, ἀλλ' ἐφρόντιζεν ὅπως τῇ θυγατρὶ περὶ τούτων κρύφα συγγενόμενος φράσειεν· ἐφρουρεῖτο γὰρ ἔτι καρτερῶς.

VIII. Ὁ δὲ Φαυστύλος ἀκούσας τὴν τε σύλληψιν τοῦ Ῥώμου καὶ τὴν παράδοσιν, τὸν μὲν Ῥωμύλον ἠξίου βοηθεῖν, τότε σαφῶς διδάξας περὶ τῆς γενέσεως· πρότερον δὲ ὑπηνίττετο καὶ παρεδήλου τοσοῦτον ὅσον προσέχοντας μὴ μικρὸν φρονεῖν· αὐτὸς δὲ τὴν σκάφην κομίζων ἐχώρει πρὸς τὸν Νομήτορα, σπουδῆς καὶ δέους μεστὸς
2 ὦν διὰ τὸν καιρὸν. ὑποψίαν οὖν τοῖς περὶ τὰς πύλας φρουροῖς τοῦ βασιλέως παρέχων, καὶ ὑφορώμενος¹ ὑπ' αὐτῶν καὶ ταραττομένος περὶ τὰς ἀποκρίσεις, οὐκ ἔλαθε τὴν σκάφην τῷ χλαμυδίῳ περικαλύπτων. ἦν δέ τις ἐν αὐτοῖς ἀπὸ τύχης τῶν τὰ παιδιά ρίψαι λαβόντων καὶ γεγνότων περὶ τὴν ἔκθεσιν. οὗτος ἰδὼν τὴν σκάφην τότε, καὶ γνωρίσας τῇ κατασκευῇ καὶ τοῖς γράμ-

¹ ὑφορώμενος corrected by Bekker to ἐρωτώμενος (questioned).

ROMULUS

our nursing and nurture as infants stranger still. We were cast out to birds of prey and wild beasts, only to be nourished by them,—by the dugs of a she-wolf and the morsels of a woodpecker, as we lay in a little trough by the side of the great river. The trough still exists and is kept safe, and its bronze girdles are engraved with letters now almost effaced, which may perhaps hereafter prove unavailing tokens of recognition for our parents, when we are dead and gone.”

Then Numitor, hearing these words, and conjecturing the time which had elapsed from the young man's looks, welcomed the hope that flattered him, and thought how he might talk with his daughter concerning these matters in a secret interview; for she was still kept in the closest custody.

VIII. But Faustulus, on hearing that Remus had been seized and delivered up to Numitor, called upon Romulus to go to his aid, and then told him clearly the particulars of their birth; before this also he had hinted at the matter darkly, and revealed enough to give them ambitious thoughts when they dwelt upon it. He himself took the trough and went to see Numitor, full of anxious fear lest he might not be in season. Naturally enough, the guards at the king's gate were suspicious of him, and when he was scrutinized by them and made confused replies to their questions, he was found to be concealing the trough in his cloak. Now by chance there was among the guards one of those who had taken the boys to cast them into the river, and were concerned in their exposure. This man, now seeing the trough, and recognizing it by its

PLUTARCH'S LIVES

- 3 μασιν, ἔτυχεν ὑπονοία τοῦ ὄντος καὶ οὐ παρημέλησεν, ἀλλὰ φράσας τὸ πρᾶγμα τῷ βασιλεῖ κατέστησεν εἰς ἔλεγχον. ἐν δὲ πολλαῖς καὶ μεγάλαις ἀνάγκαις ὁ Φαυστύλος οὐτ' ἀήττητον ἑαυτὸν διεφύλαξεν οὔτε παντάπασιν ἐκβιασθεῖς, σώζεσθαι μὲν ὠμολόγησε τοὺς παῖδας, εἶναι δ' ἄπωθεν τῆς Ἄλβης ἔφη νέμοντας· αὐτὸς δὲ τοῦτο πρὸς τὴν Ἰλίαν φέρων βαδίζειν, πολλάκις ἰδεῖν καὶ θιγεῖν ἐπ' ἐλπίδι βεβαιοτέρα τῶν τέκνων ποθήσασαν.
- 4 Ὅπερ οὖν οἱ ταραττόμενοι καὶ μετὰ δέους ἢ πρὸς ὀργὴν πράττοντες ὁτιοῦν ἐπιεικῶς πάσχουσι, συνέπεσε παθεῖν τὸν Ἀμούλιον. ἄνδρα γὰρ ἄλλη 22 τε χρηστὸν καὶ τοῦ Νομήτορος φίλον ὑπὸ σπουδῆς ἔπεμψε, διαπυθέσθαι τοῦ Νομήτορος κελύσας εἴ τις ἦκοι λόγος εἰς αὐτὸν ὑπὲρ τῶν
- 5 παίδων ὡς περιγενομένων. ἀφικόμενος οὖν ὁ ἄνθρωπος, καὶ θεασάμενος ὅσον οὐπω τὸν Ῥώμον ἐν περιβολαῖς καὶ φιλοφροσύναις τοῦ Νομήτορος, τὴν τε πίστιν ἰσχυρὰν ἐποίησε τῆς ἐλπίδος καὶ παρεκελεύσατο τῶν πραγμάτων ὀξέως ἀντιλαμβάνεσθαι, καὶ συνῆν αὐτὸς ἤδη καὶ συνέπραττεν. ὁ δὲ καιρὸς οὐδὲ βουλομένοις ὀκνεῖν παρείχεν. ὁ γὰρ Ῥωμύλος ἐγγὺς ἦν ἤδη, καὶ πρὸς αὐτὸν ἐξέθεον οὐκ ὀλίγοι τῶν πολιτῶν μίσει
- 6 καὶ φόβῳ τοῦ Ἀμουλίου. Πολλὴν δὲ καὶ σὺν αὐτῷ δύναμιν ἦγε συλλελοχισμένην εἰς ἑκατοστάς· ἐκάστης δὲ ἀνὴρ ἀφηγεῖτο χόρτου καὶ ὕλης ἀγκαλίδα κοντῷ περικειμένην ἀνέχων· μαυίπλα ταύτας Λατῖνοι καλοῦσιν· ἀπ' ἐκείνου δὲ καὶ νῦν ἐν τοῖς στρατεύμασι τούτους μανιπλάριους ὀνομάζουσιν. ἅμα δὲ τοῦ μὲν Ῥώμου

ROMULUS

make and inscription, conceived a suspicion of the truth, and without any delay told the matter to the king, and brought the man before him to be examined. In these dire and pressing straits, Faustulus did not entirely hold his own, nor yet was his secret wholly forced from him. He admitted that the boys were alive and well, but said they lived at a distance from Alba as herdsmen; he himself was carrying the trough to Ilia, who had often yearned to see and handle it, in confirmation of her hope for her children.

As, then, men naturally fare who are confounded, and act with fear or in a passion, so it fell out that Amulius fared. For he sent in all haste an excellent man and a friend of Numitor's, with orders to learn from Numitor whether any report had come to him of the children's being alive. When, accordingly, the man was come, and beheld Remus almost in the affectionate embraces of Numitor, he confirmed them in their confident hope, and entreated them to proceed at once to action, promptly joining their party himself and furthering their cause. And the opportunity admitted of no delay, even had they wished it; for Romulus was now close at hand, and many of the citizens who hated and feared Amulius were running forth to join him. He was also leading a large force with him, divided into companies of a hundred men, each company headed by a man who bore aloft a handful of hay and shrubs tied round a pole (the Latin word for handful is "manipulus," and hence in their armies they still call the men in such companies "manipulares."). And when Remus incited the τούς ἐντὸς ἀφιστάντος, τοῦ δὲ Ῥωμόλου προσάγοντος ἔξωθεν, οὔτε πράξας οὐδὲν ὁ τύραννος οὔτε βουλευσας σωτήριον ἑαυτῷ, διὰ τὸ ἀπορεῖν καὶ ταράττεσθαι, καταληφθεὶς ἀπέθανεν.

- 7 Ὡν τὰ πλείστα καὶ τοῦ Φαβίου λέγοντος καὶ τοῦ Πεπαρηθίου Διοκλέους, ὃς δοκεῖ πρῶτος ἐκδοῦναι Ῥώμῃς κτίσιν, ὑποπτον μὲν ἐνίοις ἐστὶ τὸ δραματικὸν καὶ πλασματώδες, οὐ δεῖ δὲ ἀπιστεῖν τὴν τύχην ὀρώντας οἷων ποιημάτων δημιουργός ἐστι, καὶ τὰ Ῥωμαίων πράγματα λογιζομένους ὡς οὐκ ἂν ἐνταῦθα προὔβη δυνάμεως, μὴ θείαν τινὰ ἀρχὴν λαβόντα καὶ μηδὲν μέγα μηδὲ παράδοξον ἔχουσαν.

- IX. Ἀμουλίου δὲ ἀποθανόντος καὶ τῶν πραγμάτων καταστάντων, Ἄλβην μὲν οὔτ' οἰκεῖν μὴ ἄρχοντες οὔτ' ἄρχειν ἐβούλοντο τοῦ μητροπάτορος ζῶντος, ἀποδόντες δὲ τὴν ἡγεμονίαν ἐκείνῳ καὶ τῇ μητρὶ τιμὰς πρεπούσας, ἔγνωσαν οἰκεῖν καθ' ἑαυτούς, πόλιν ἐν οἷς χωρίοις ἐξ ἀρχῆς ἐνετράφησαν κτίσαντες· αὕτη γὰρ εὐπρεπεστάτη τῶν
2 αἰτιῶν ἐστίν. ἦν δ' ἴσως ἀναγκαῖον, οἰκετῶν καὶ ἀποστατῶν πολλῶν ἠθροισμένων πρὸς αὐτούς, ἣ καταλυθῆναι παντάπασι τούτων διασπαρέντων ἢ συνοικεῖν ἰδίᾳ μετ' αὐτῶν. ὅτι γὰρ οὐκ ἤξιουν οἱ τὴν Ἄλβην οἰκούντες ἀναμιγνύναι τοὺς ἀποστάτας ἑαυτοῖς οὐδὲ προσδέχεσθαι πολίτας, ἐδήλωσε πρῶτον μὲν τὸ περὶ τὰς γυναῖκας ἔργον, οὐχ ὑβρεὶ τολμηθέν, ἀλλὰ δι' ἀνάγκην, ἐκουσίῳ

ROMULUS

citizens within the city to revolt, and at the same time Romulus attacked from without, the tyrant, without taking a single step or making any plan for his own safety, from sheer perplexity and confusion, was seized and put to death.

Although most of these particulars are related by Fabius and Diocles of Peparethus, who seems to have been the first to publish a "Founding of Rome," some are suspicious of their fictitious and fabulous quality; but we should not be incredulous when we see what a poet fortune sometimes is, and when we reflect that the Roman state would not have attained to its present power, had it not been of a divine origin, and one which was attended by great marvels.

IX. Amulius being now dead, and matters settled in the city, the brothers were neither willing to live in Alba, unless as its rulers, nor to be its rulers while their grandfather was alive. Having therefore restored the government to him and paid fitting honours to their mother, they resolved to dwell by themselves, and to found a city in the region where, at the first, they were nourished and sustained;¹ this surely seems a most fitting reason for their course. But perhaps it was necessary, now that many slaves and fugitives were gathered about them, either to disperse these and have no following at all, or else to dwell apart with them. For that the residents of Alba would not consent to give the fugitives the privilege of intermarriage with them, nor even receive them as fellow-citizens, is clear, in the first place, from the rape of the Sabine women,² which was not a deed of wanton daring, but one of necessity, owing to the lack of marriages by consent;

¹ Cf. Livy, i. 6, 3 f.

² See chapter xiv.

PLUTARCH'S LIVES

ἀπορία γάμων· ἐτίμησαν γὰρ αὐτὰς ἰρπίσαντες
 3 περιττῶς. ἔπειτα τῆς πόλεως τὴν πρώτην
 ἴδρυσιν λαμβανούσης, ἱερόν τι φύξιμον τοῖς ἀφι-σταμένοις κατασκευάσαντες, ὃ Θεοῦ Ἀσυλαίου
 προσηγόρευον, ἐδέχοντο πάντας, οὔτε δεσπότης δούλον οὔτε θῆτα χρήσταις οὔτ' ἄρχουσιν ἀνδροφόνον ἐκδιδόντες, ἀλλὰ μαντεύματι πυθοχρήστῳ
 πᾶσι βεβαιοῦν τὴν ἀσυλίαν φάσκοντες, ὥστε
 πληθῦσαι ταχὺ τὴν πόλιν· ἐπεὶ τὰς γε πρώτας
 ἐστίας λέγουσι τῶν χιλίων μὴ πλείονας γενέσθαι.
 ταῦτα μὲν οὖν ὕστερον.

4 Ὀρμήσασι δὲ πρὸς τὸν συνοικισμὸν αὐτοῖς
 εὐθύς ἦν διαφορὰ περὶ τοῦ τόπου. Ῥωμύλος μὲν
 οὖν τὴν καλουμένην Ῥώμην κουαδράτην, ὅπερ
 ἐστὶ τετράγωνον, ἔκτισε, καὶ ἐκείνον ἐβούλετο
 πολίξειν τὸν τόπον, Ῥώμος δὲ χωρίον τι τοῦ
 Ἀβεντίνου καρτερόν, ὃ δι' ἐκείνον μὲν ὠνομάσθη
 5 Ῥεμώνιον, νῦν δὲ Ῥιγνάριον καλεῖται. συνθε-μένων δὲ τὴν ἔριν ὄρνισιν αἰσίοις βραβεῦσαι καὶ
 καθεζομένων χωρίς, ἕξ φασὶ τῷ Ῥώμῳ, διπλα-σίους δὲ τῷ Ῥωμύλῳ προφανῆναι γῦπας. οἱ δὲ
 τὸν μὲν Ῥώμον ἀληθῶς ἰδεῖν, ψεύσασθαι δὲ τὸν Ῥωμύλον· ἐλθόντος δὲ τοῦ Ῥώμου, τότε τοὺς
 δώδεκα τῷ Ῥωμύλῳ φανῆναι, διὸ καὶ νῦν μάλιστα
 χρῆσθαι γυψὶ Ῥωμαίους οἰωνιζομένους.

Ἡρόδωρος δὲ ὁ Ποντικὸς ἱστορεῖ καὶ τὸν Ἡρα- 23
 6 κλέα χαίρειν γυπὸς ἐπὶ πράξει φανέντος. ἔστι
 μὲν γὰρ ἀβλαβέστατον ζώων ἀπάντων, μηδὲν ὦν

ROMULUS

for they certainly honoured the women, when they had carried them off, beyond measure. And in the second place, when their city was first founded, they made a sanctuary of refuge for all fugitives,¹ which they called the sanctuary of the God of Asylum. There they received all who came, delivering none up, neither slave to masters, nor debtor to creditors, nor murderer to magistrates, but declaring it to be in obedience to an oracle from Delphi that they made the asylum secure for all men. Therefore the city was soon full of people, for they say that the first houses numbered no more than a thousand. This, however, was later.

But when they set out to establish their city, a dispute at once arose concerning the site. Romulus, accordingly, built Roma Quadrata (which means square), and wished to have the city on that site; but Remus laid out a strong precinct on the Aventine hill, which was named from him Remonium, but now is called Rignarium. Agreeing to settle their quarrel by the flight of birds of omen,² and taking their seats on the ground apart from one another, six vultures, they say, were seen by Remus, and twice that number by Romulus. Some, however, say that whereas Remus truly saw his six, Romulus lied about his twelve, but that when Remus came to him, then he did see the twelve. Hence it is that at the present time also the Romans chiefly regard vultures when they take auguries from the flight of birds.

Herodorus Ponticus relates that Hercules also was glad to see a vulture present itself when he was upon an exploit. For it is the least harmful ¹ Cf. Livy, i. 8, 5 f. ² Cf. Livy, i. 7, 1.

PLUTARCH'S LIVES

σπείρουσιν ἢ φυτεύουσιν ἢ νέμουσιν ἄνθρωποι σινόμενον, τρέφεται δὲ ἀπὸ νεκρῶν σωμάτων, ἀποκτίννυσι δ' οὐδὲν οὐδὲ λυμαίνεται ψυχὴν ἔχον, πτηνοῖς δὲ διὰ συγγένειαν οὐδὲ νεκροῖς πρόσεισιν. ἄετοὶ δὲ καὶ γλαῦκες καὶ ἰέρακες ζῶντα κόπτουσι τὰ ὀμόφυλα καὶ φονεύουσι· καίτοι κατ' Αἰσχύλον·

ἽΟριθος ὄρνις πῶς ἂν ἀγνεύοι φαγῶν;

7 ἔτι τὰλλα μὲν ἐν ὀφθαλμοῖς, ὡς ἔπος εἰπεῖν, ἀναστρέφεται καὶ παρέχει διὰ παντὸς αἰσθησιν ἑαυτῶν· ὁ δὲ γυνψ σπάνιον ἐστὶ θέαμα καὶ νεοσοῖς γυπὸς οὐ ῥαδίως ἴσμεν ἐντετυχηκότες, ἀλλὰ καὶ παρέσχεν ἐνίοις ἄτοπον ὑπόνοιαν, ἔξωθεν αὐτοὺς ἀφ' ἐτέρας τινὸς γῆς καταίρειν ἐνταῦθα, τὸ σπάνιον καὶ μὴ συνεχές, οἶον οἱ μάντις ἀξιούσιν εἶναι τὸ μὴ κατὰ φύσιν μηδ' ἀφ' αὐτοῦ, πομπῇ δὲ θεία φαινόμενον.

X. Ἐπεὶ δ' ἔγνω τὴν ἀπάτην ὁ Ῥώμος, ἐχάλεπαινε, καὶ τοῦ Ῥωμύλου τάφρον ὀρύττοντος ἢ τὸ τεῖχος ἔμελλε κυκλοῦσθαι, τὰ μὲν ἐχλεύαζε τῶν ἔργων, τοῖς δ' ἐμποδῶν ἐγένετο. τέλος δὲ διαλλόμενον αὐτὸν οἱ μὲν αὐτοῦ Ῥωμύλου πατάξαντος, οἱ δὲ τῶν ἐταίρων τινὸς Κέλερος, ἐνταῦθα
2 πεσεῖν λέγουσιν. ἔπεσε δὲ καὶ Φαυστύλος ἐν τῇ μάχῃ καὶ Πλειστίνος, δυ ἀδελφὸν ὄντα Φαυστύλου συνεκθρέψαι τοὺς περὶ τὸν Ῥωμύλον ἱστοροῦσιν. ὁ μὲν οὖν Κέλερ εἰς Τυρρηνίαν μετέστη καὶ ἀπ' ἐκείνου τοὺς ταχεῖς οἱ Ῥωμαῖοι καὶ ὀξεῖς κέλερας ὀνομάζουσι· καὶ Κόϊντον Μέτελλον, ὅτι of all creatures, injures no grain, fruit-tree, or cattle, and lives on carrion. But it does not kill or maltreat anything that has life, and as for birds, it will not touch them even when they are dead, since they are of its own species. But eagles, owls, and hawks smite their own kind when alive, and kill them. And yet, in the words of Aeschylus :—¹

ROMULUS

“ How shall a bird that preys on fellow bird be clean ? ”

Besides, other birds are, so to speak, always in our eyes, and let themselves be seen continually ; but the vulture is a rare sight, and it is not easy to come upon a vulture's young, nay, some men have been led into a strange suspicion that the birds come from some other and foreign land to visit us here, so rare and intermittent is their appearance, which soothsayers think should be true of what does not present itself naturally, nor spontaneously, but by a divine sending.

X. When Remus knew of the deceit, he was enraged,² and as Romulus was digging a trench where his city's wall was to run, he ridiculed some parts of the work, and obstructed others. At last, when he leaped across it, he was smitten (by Romulus himself, as some say ; according to others, by Celer, one of his companions), and fell dead there. Faustulus also fell in the battle, as well as Pleistinus, who was a brother of Faustulus, and assisted him in rearing Romulus and Remus. Celer, at any rate, betook himself to Tuscany, and from him the Romans call such as are swift and speedy, “ celeres.” Quintus Metellus, for instance, when his father died,

¹ Suppliants, 226 (Dindorf). ² Cf. Livy, i. 7, 2.

PLUTARCH'S LIVES

τοῦ πατρὸς ἀποθανόντος ἀγῶνα μονομάχων ἡμέραις ὀλίγαις ἐποίησε, θαυμάσαντες τὸ τάχος τῆς παρασκευῆς Κέλερα προσηγόρευσαν.

XI. Ὁ δὲ Ῥωμύλος ἐν τῇ Ῥεμωνίᾳ¹ θάψας τὸν Ῥῶμον ὁμοῦ καὶ τοὺς τροφεῖς, ᾤκιζε τὴν πόλιν, ἐκ Τυρρηνίας μεταπεμφάμενος ἄνδρας ἱεροῖς τισι θεσμοῖς καὶ γράμμασιν ὑφηγουμένους ἕκαστα καὶ διδάσκοντας ὥσπερ ἐν τελετῇ. βόθρος γὰρ ὠρύγη περὶ τὸ νῦν Κομίτιον κυκλοτερῆς, ἀπαρχαί τε πάντων, ὅσοις νόμῳ μὲν ὡς καλοῖς ἐχρῶντο, φύσει δ' ὡς ἀναγκαίοις, ἀπετέθησαν ἐνταῦθα. καὶ τέλος, ἐξ ἧς ἀφίκτο γῆς ἕκαστος ὀλίγην κομίζων μοῖραν, ἔβαλλον εἰς ταῦτα καὶ² συνεμίγνυον. καλοῦσι δὲ τὸν βόθρον τοῦτον ᾧ καὶ τὸν ὄλυμπον ὀνόματι μούνδον. εἶτα ὥσπερ κύκλον κέντρῳ περιέγραψαν τὴν πόλιν. ὁ δ' οἰκιστῆς ἐμβαλὼν ἀρότρῳ χαλκῆν ὕνιν, ὑποζεύξας δὲ βούν ἄρρενα καὶ θήλειαν, αὐτὸς μὲν ἐπάγει περιελαύνων αὐλακα βαθεῖαν τοῖς τέρμασι, τῶν δ' ἐπομένων ἔργον ἐστίν, ἃς ἀνίστησι βώλους τὸ ἄροτρον καταστρέφειν εἴσω, καὶ μηδεμίαν ἔξω³ περιορᾶν ἐκτρεπομένην. τῇ μὲν οὖν γραμμῇ τὸ τεῖχος ἀφορίζουσι καὶ καλεῖται κατὰ συγκοπήν πωμήριον, οἶον ὄπισθεν τεῖχους ἢ μετὰ τεῖχος ὄπου δὲ πύλην ἐμβαλεῖν διανοοῦνται, τὴν ὕνιν ἐξελόντες καὶ τὸ ἄροτρον ὑπερθέντες διίλειμμα took only a few days to provide gladiatorial contests in his honour, and the people were so amazed at his speed in preparing them that they gave him the surname of Celer.

¹ Ῥεμωνίᾳ Coraës and Bekker, with C: Ῥεμορίζ.

ROMULUS

XI. Romulus buried Remus, together with his foster-fathers, in the Remonia,¹ and then set himself to building his city, after summoning from Tuscany men who prescribed all the details in accordance with certain sacred ordinances and writings, and taught them to him as in a religious rite. A circular trench was dug around what is now the Comitium,² and in this were deposited first-fruits of all things the use of which was sanctioned by custom as good and by nature as necessary; and finally, every man brought a small portion of the soil of his native land, and these were cast in among the first-fruits and mingled with them. They call this trench, as they do the heavens, by the name of "mundus." Then, taking this as a centre, they marked out the city in a circle round it. And the founder, having shod a plough with a brazen ploughshare, and having yoked to it a bull and a cow, himself drove a deep furrow round the boundary lines, while those who followed after him had to turn the clods, which the plough threw up, inwards towards the city, and suffer no clod to lie turned outwards. With this line they mark out the course of the wall, and it is called, by contraction, "pomerium," that is "post murum," behind or next the wall. And where they purposed to put in a gate, there they took the share out of the ground, lifted the plough over, and left a vacant

¹ See chapter ix. 4.

² A space adjoining the forum where the people met in assembly. The mundus, or augural centre of the city, was really on the Palatine.

ποιούσιν. ὄθεν ἅπαν τὸ τεῖχος ἱερὸν πλὴν τῶν πυλῶν νομίζουσι· τὰς δὲ πύλας ἱεράς νομίζοντας οὐκ ἦν ἄνευ δεισδαιμονίας τὰ μὲν δέχεσθαι, τὰ δ' ἀποπέμπειν τῶν ἀναγκαίων καὶ μὴ καθαρῶν.

XII. "Ὅτι μὲν οὖν ἡ κτίσις ἡμέρα γένοιτο τῇ πρὸ ἕνδεκα καλανῶν Μαῶν ὁμολογεῖται· καὶ τὴν ἡμέραν ταύτην ἑορτάζουσι Ῥωμαῖοι, γενέθλιον τῆς πατρίδος ὀνομάζοντες. ἐν ἀρχῇ δ', ὡς φασιν, οὐδὲν ἔμφυχον ἔθνον, ἀλλὰ καθαρὰν καὶ ἀναίμακτον ὦντο δεῖν τῇ πατρίδι τὴν ἐπώνυμον τῆς γενέσεως ἑορτὴν φυλάττειν. οὐ μὴν ἀλλὰ 24 καὶ πρὸ τῆς κτίσεως βοθηρικὴ τις ἦν αὐτοῖς ἑορτὴ κατὰ ταύτην τὴν ἡμέραν, καὶ Παρίλια προσηγόρευον αὐτήν.

- 2 Νῦν μὲν οὖν οὐδὲν αἱ Ῥωμαῖκαὶ κουμηναὶ πρὸς τὰς Ἑλληνικὰς ὁμολογούμενον ἔχουσιν· ἐκείνην δὲ τὴν ἡμέραν, ἢ τὴν πόλιν ὁ Ῥωμύλος ἔκτιζεν, ἀτρεκῆ τριακάδα τυχεῖν λέγουσι· καὶ σύνοδον ἐκλειπτικὴν ἐν αὐτῇ γενέσθαι σελήνης πρὸς ἥλιον, ἦν εἶδέναι καὶ Ἀντίμαχον οἶονται, τὸν Τῆϊον ἐποποιόν, ἔπει τρίτῳ τῆς ἕκτης ὀλυμ-
- 3 πιάδος συμπεσοῦσαν. ἐν δὲ τοῖς κατὰ Βάρρωνα τὸν φιλόσοφον χρόνοις, ἄνδρα Ῥωμαίων ἐν ἱστορίᾳ βιβλιακώτατον, ἦν Ταρούτιος ἐταῖρος αὐτοῦ, φιλόσοφος μὲν ἄλλως καὶ μαθηματικός, ἀπτό-
- 4 ἔνεκα καὶ δοκῶν ἐν αὐτῇ περιττὸς εἶναι. τούτῳ προὔβαλεν ὁ Βάρρων ἀναγαγεῖν τὴν Ῥωμύλου γένεσιν εἰς ἡμέραν καὶ ὥραν, ἐκ τῶν λεγομένων ἀποτελεσμάτων περὶ τὸν ἄνδρα ποιησάμενον τὸν συλλογισμόν, ὡσπερ αἱ τῶν γεωμετρικῶν ὑφη-

ROMULUS

space. And this is the reason why they regard all the wall as sacred except the gates; but if they held the gates sacred, it would not be possible, without religious scruples, to bring into and send out of the city things which are necessary, and yet unclean.

XII. Now it is agreed that the city was founded on the twenty-first of April, and this day the Romans celebrate with a festival, calling it the birthday of their country. And at first, as it is said, they sacrificed no living creature at that festival, but thought they ought to keep it pure and without stain of blood, since it commemorated the birth of their country. However, even before the founding of the city, they had a pastoral festival on that day, and called it Parilia.

At the present time, indeed, there is no agreement between the Roman and Greek months, but they say that the day on which Romulus founded his city was precisely the thirtieth of the month, and that on that day there was a conjunction of the sun and moon, with an eclipse, which they think was the one seen by Antimachus, the epic poet of Teos, in the third year of the sixth Olympiad.¹ And in the times of Varro the philosopher, a Roman who was most deeply versed in history, there lived Tarutius, a companion of his, who, besides being a philosopher and a mathematician, had applied himself to the art of casting nativities, in order to indulge a speculative turn of mind, and was thought to excel in it. To this man Varro gave the problem of fixing the day and hour of the birth of Romulus, making his deductions from the conjunctions of events reported in the man's life, just as the solutions of

¹ 754 B.C.

PLUTARCH'S LIVES

γοῦνται προβλημάτων ἀναλύσεις· τῆς γὰρ αὐτῆς
 θεωρίας εἶναι χρόνον τε λαβόντας ἀνθρώπου
 γενέσεως βίον προειπεῖν καὶ βίῳ δοθέντι θηρεῦ-
 5 σαι χρόνον. ἐποίησεν οὖν τὸ προσταχθέν ὁ Ταρούτιος, καὶ τὰ τε πάθη καὶ τὰ ἔργα τοῦ
 ἀνδρὸς ἐπιδὼν καὶ χρόνον ζωῆς καὶ τρόπον
 τελευτῆς καὶ πάντα τὰ τοιαῦτα συνθείς, εὖ
 μᾶλα τεθαρρηκότως καὶ ἀνδρείως ἀπεφῆνατο τὴν
 μὲν ἐν τῇ μητρὶ γεγονέναι τοῦ Ῥωμύλου σύλλη-ψιν ἔτει πρώτῳ τῆς δευτέρας Ὀλυμπιάδος, ἐν
 μηνὶ κατ' Αἰγυπτίους Χοιάκ, τρίτῃ καὶ εἰκάδι, τρίτης ὥρας, καθ' ἣν ὁ ἥλιος ἐξέλιπε παντελῶς·
 τὴν δ' ἐμφανῆ γένεσιν ἐν μηνὶ Θουῦθ, ἡμέρα 6 πρώτη μετ' εἰκάδα, περὶ ἡλίου ἀνατολάς. κτισθῆναι δὲ τὴν Ῥώμην ὑπ' αὐτοῦ τῇ ἐνάτῃ Φαρ-μουθὶ μηνὸς ἰσταμένου, μεταξὺ δευτέρας ὥρας
 καὶ τρίτης· ἐπεὶ καὶ πόλεως τύχην, ὥσπερ ἀνθρώπου, κύριον ἔχειν οἴονται χρόνον, ἐκ τῆς
 πρώτης γενέσεως πρὸς τὰς τῶν ἀστέρων ἐποχὰς
 θεωρούμενον. ἀλλὰ ταῦτα μὲν ἴσως καὶ τὰ
 τοιαῦτα τῷ ξένῳ καὶ περιττῷ προσάξεται μᾶλ-λον ἢ διὰ τὸ μυθῶδες ἐνοχλήσει τοὺς ἐντυγχάνοντας αὐτοῖς.

XIII. Κτισθείσης δὲ τῆς πόλεως πρῶτον μὲν
 ὅσον ἦν ἐν ἡλικίᾳ πλήθος εἰς συντάγματα στρατιωτικὰ διείλεν· ἕκαστον δὲ σύνταγμα πεζῶν
 τρισχιλίων ἦν καὶ τριακοσίων ἰππέων. ἐκλήθη
 δὲ λεγεὼν τῷ λογάδας εἶναι τοὺς μαχίμους ἐκ
 πάντων. ἔπειτα τοῖς μὲν ἄλλοις ἐχρήτο δῆμῳ
 καὶ ποπούλους ὠνομάσθη τὸ πλήθος· ἑκατὸν δὲ
 τοὺς ἀρίστους ἀπέδειξε βουλευτάς, καὶ αὐτοὺς

ROMULUS

geometrical problems are derived ; for the same science, he said, must be capable not only of fore-telling a man's life when the time of his birth is known, but also, from the given facts of his life, of hunting out the time of his birth. This task, then, Tarutius performed, and when he had taken a survey of the man's experiences and achievements, and had brought together the time of his life, the manner of his death, and all such details, he very courageously and bravely declared that Romulus was conceived in his mother's womb in the first year of the second Olympiad,¹ in the month Choeac of the Egyptian calendar, on the twenty-third day, and in the third hour, when the sun was totally eclipsed ; and that he was born in the month Thoth, on the twenty-first day, at sun-rise ; and that Rome was founded by him on the ninth day of the month Pharmuthi, between the second and third hour : for it is thought that a city's fortune, as well as that of a man, has a decisive time, which may be known by the position of the stars at its very origin. These and similar speculations will perhaps attract readers by their novelty and extravagance, rather than offend them by their fabulous character.

XIII. When the city was built, in the first place, Romulus divided all the multitude that were of age to bear arms into military companies, each company consisting of three thousand footmen and three hundred horsemen. Such a company was called a "legion," because the warlike were selected out of all. In the second place, he treated the remainder as a people, and this multitude was called "populus" ; a hundred of them, who were the most eminent, he

¹ 772 B.C.

PLUTARCH'S LIVES

2 μὲν πατρικίους, τὸ δὲ σύστημα σενα̑τος προσηγορευσεν. ὁ μὲν οὖν σενα̑τος ἀτρεκῶς γερουσίαν σημαίνει· πατρικίους δὲ τοὺς βουλευτὰς κλη-θῆναι λέγουσιν οἱ μὲν ὅτι παίδων γησιῶν πατέρες ἦσαν, οἱ δὲ μᾶλλον ὡς αὐτοὺς ἔχοντας
 ἑαυτῶν ἀποδείξαι πατέρας, ὅπερ οὐ πολλοῖς
 ὑπῆρξε τῶν πρώτων εἰς τὴν πόλιν συρρέοντων·
 οἱ δὲ ἀπὸ τῆς πατρωνείας. οὕτω γὰρ ἐκάλουν
 τὴν προστασίαν καὶ καλοῦσιν ἄχρι νῦν, οἰόμενοι Πάτρωνά τινα τῶν σὺν Εὐάνδρῳ παραγενομένων, κηδεμονικὸν τῶν ὑποδεεστέρων ὄντα καὶ βοηθη-τικόν, ἀφ' αὐτοῦ τῷ πράγματι ταύτην τὴν προση-3 γορίαν ἀπολιπεῖν. μάλιστα δ' ἂν τις τυγχάνοι
 τοῦ εἰκότος, εἰ νομίζοι τὸν Ῥωμύλον ἀξιούντα
 τοὺς πρώτους καὶ δυνατωτάτους πατρικῆ κηδεμονία καὶ φροντίδι προσήκειν ἐπιμελεῖσθαι τῶν
 ταπεινοτέρων, ἅμα δὲ τοὺς ἄλλους διδάσκοντα
 μὴ δεδιέναι μηδ' ἄχθεσθαι ταῖς τῶν κρειττόνων
 τιμαῖς, ἀλλὰ χρῆσθαι μετ' εὐνοίας καὶ νομίζοντας
 καὶ προσαγορεύοντας πατέρας, οὕτως ὀνομάσαι.
 4 καὶ γὰρ ἄχρι νῦν τοὺς ἐν συγκλήτῳ τελούντας
 οἱ μὲν ἔξωθεν ἄνδρας ἡγεμόνας καλοῦσιν, αὐτοὶ
 δὲ Ῥωμαῖοι πατέρας συγγεγραμμένους, τῷ μέ- 25
 γιστον μὲν ἀξίωμα καὶ τιμὴν, ἥκιστα δὲ φθόνον
 ἔχοντι χρώμενοι τῶν ὀνομάτων. ἐν ἀρχῇ μὲν
 οὖν πατέρας αὐτοὺς μόνον, ὕστερον δὲ πλειόνων
 προσαναλαμβανομένων, πατέρας συγγεγραμμέ-
 5 νους προσηγόρευσαν. καὶ τοῦτο μὲν ἦν ὄνομα σεμνότερον αὐτῷ τῆς πρὸς τὸ δημοτικὸν τοῦ βουλευτικοῦ διαφορᾶς· ἑτέροις δὲ τοὺς δυνατοὺς

ROMULUS

appointed to be councillors, calling the individuals themselves "patricians," and their body a "senate." Now the word "senate" means literally a Council of Elders, and the councillors were called "patricians," as some say, because they were fathers of lawful children¹; or rather, according to others, because they could tell who their own fathers were, which not many could do of those who first streamed into the city; according to others still, from "patronage," which was their word for the protection of inferiors, and is so to this day; and they suppose that a certain Patron, one of those who came to Italy with Evander, was a protector and defender of the poor and needy, and left his own name in the word which designates such activity. But the most reasonable opinion for any one to hold is that Romulus thought it the duty of the foremost and most influential citizens to watch over the more lowly with fatherly care and concern, while he taught the multitude not to fear their superiors nor be vexed at their honours, but to exercise goodwill towards them, considering them and addressing them as fathers, whence their name of Patricii. For down to the present time foreign peoples call the members of their senate "chief men," but the Romans themselves call them "conscript fathers," using that name which has the greatest dignity and honour, and awakens the least envy. At first, then, they called them simply "fathers," but later, when more had been added to their number, they addressed them as "conscript fathers." By this more imposing title Romulus distinguished the senate from the commonalty, and in other ways, too, he separated the nobles from the

¹ Cf. Livy, i. 8, 7.

ἀπὸ τῶν πολλῶν διήρει, πάτρωνας ὀνομάζων, ὅπερ ἐστὶ προστάτας, ἐκείνους δὲ κλίεντας, ὅπερ ἐστὶ πελάτας· ἅμα δὲ πρὸς ἀλλήλους θαυμαστὴν εὖνοιαν αὐτοῖς καὶ μεγάλων δικαίων ὑπάρξουσαν ἐνεποίησεν. οὗτοι μὲν γὰρ ἐξηγητάς τε τῶν νομίμων καὶ προστάτας δικαζομένοις συμβούλους τε
 6 πάντων καὶ κηδεμόνας ἑαυτοὺς παρείχον, ἐκείνοι δὲ τούτους ἐθεράπευον οὐ μόνον τιμῶντες, ἀλλὰ καὶ πενομένοις θυγατέρας συνεκιδιδόντες καὶ χρέα συνεκτίνοντες. καταμαρτυρεῖν τε πελάτου προστάτην, ἢ προστάτου πελάτην, οὔτε νόμος οὐδεὶς οὔτε ἄρχων ἠνάγκαζεν. ὕστερον δέ, τῶν ἄλλων δικαίων μενόντων, τὸ λαμβάνειν χρήματα τοὺς δυνατοὺς παρὰ τῶν ταπεινοτέρων αἰσχρὸν ἐνομίσθη καὶ ἀγεννές. ταῦτα μὲν οὖν περὶ τούτων.

XIV. Τετάρτῳ δὲ μηνὶ μετὰ τὴν κτίσιν, ὡς Φάβιος ἱστορεῖ, τὸ περὶ τὴν ἄρπαγὴν ἐτολμήθη τῶν γυναικῶν. καὶ λέγουσι μὲν ἔνοι τὸν Ῥωμύλον αὐτὸν τῇ φύσει φιλοπόλεμον ὄντα, καὶ πεπεισμένον ἔκ τινων ἄρα λογίων ὅτι τὴν Ῥώμην πέπρωται πολέμοις τρεφόμενην καὶ αὐξομένην γενέσθαι μεγίστην, βίας ὑπάρξαι πρὸς τοὺς Σαβίνους· οὐδὲ γὰρ πολλάς, ἀλλὰ τριάκοντα
 2 μᾶλλον ἢ γάμων δεόμενον. τοῦτο δὲ οὐκ εἰκός· ἀλλὰ τὴν μὲν πόλιν ὀρῶν ἐποίκων εὐθύς ἐμπιπλάμενην, ὧν ὀλίγοι γυναῖκας εἶχον, οἱ δὲ πολλοὶ multitude, calling the one "patrons," that is to say, protectors, and the other "clients," that is to say, dependants. At the same time he inspired both classes with an astonishing goodwill towards each other, and one which became the basis of important rights and privileges. For the patrons advised their clients in matters of custom, and represented them in courts of justice, in short, were their counsellors and friends in all things; while the clients were devoted to their patrons, not only holding them in honour, but actually, in cases of poverty, helping them to dower their daughters and pay their debts. And there was neither any law nor any magistrate that could compel a patron to bear witness against a client, or a client against a patron. But in later times, while all other rights and privileges remained in force, the taking of money by those of high degree from the more lowly was held to be disgraceful and ungenerous. So much, then, on these topics.

ROMULUS

XIV. It was in the fourth month after the founding of the city, as Fabius writes, that the rape of the Sabine women was perpetrated.¹ And some say that Romulus himself, being naturally fond of war, and being persuaded by sundry oracles, too, that it was the destiny of Rome to be nourished and increased by wars till she became the greatest of cities, thereby merely began unprovoked hostilities against the Sabines; for he did not take many maidens, but thirty only, since what he wanted was war rather than marriages. But this is not likely. On the contrary, seeing his city filling up at once with aliens, few of whom had wives, while the greater part of them, being a mixed rabble of needy

¹ Cf. Livy, i. 9.

PLUTARCH'S LIVES

μιγάδες ἐξ ἀπόρων καὶ ἀφανῶν ὄντες ὑπερεωρῶντο καὶ προσεδοκῶντο μὴ συμμενεῖν βεβαίως, ἐλπίζων δὲ πρὸς τοὺς Σαβίνους τρόπον τινὰ
 συγκράσεως καὶ κοινωνίας ἀρχὴν αὐτοῖς τὸ ἀδί-κημα ποιήσειν ἡμερωσαμένοις τὰς γυναῖκας, ἐπε-χείρησε τῷ ἔργῳ τόνδε τὸν τρόπον.

- 3 Διεδόθη λόγος ὑπ' αὐτοῦ πρῶτον ὡς θεοῦ
 τινος ἀνευρήκοι βωμὸν ὑπὸ γῆς κεκρυμμένον.
 ὠνόμαζον δὲ τὸν θεὸν Κῶνσον, εἴτε βουλαῖον
 ὄντα (κωνσίλιον γὰρ ἔτι νῦν τὸ συμβούλιον καλοῦσι, καὶ τοὺς ὑπάτους κωνσούλας, οἶον προ-βούλους), εἴτε ἵππιον Ποσειδῶ. καὶ γὰρ ὁ βωμὸς
 ἐν τῷ μείζονι τῶν ἵπποδρόμων ἔστιν, ἀφανῆς
 τὸν ἄλλον χρόνον, ἐν δὲ τοῖς ἵππικαῖς ἀγῶσιν
- 4 ἀνακαλυπτόμενος. οἱ δὲ καὶ ὅλως φασὶ τοῦ
 βουλευματος ἀπορρήτου καὶ ἀφανοῦς ὄντος ὑπόγειον οὐκ ἀλόγως τῷ θεῷ βωμὸν γενέσθαι κεκρυμμένον. ὡς δ' ἀνεφάνη, θυσίαν τε λαμπρὰν
 ἐπ' αὐτῷ καὶ ἀγῶνα καὶ θέαν ἐκ καταγγελίας
 ἐπετέλει πανηγυρικὴν. καὶ πολλοὶ μὲν ἄνθρωποι
 συνῆλθον, αὐτὸς δὲ προὔκαθητο μετὰ τῶν ἀρί-5 στων ἀλουργίδι κεκοσμημένος. ἦν δὲ τοῦ καιροῦ
 τῆς ἐπιχειρήσεως σύμβολον ἐξαναστάντα τὴν
 ἀλουργίδα πτύξαι καὶ περιβαλέσθαι πάλιν.
 ἔχοντες οὖν ξίφη πολλοὶ προσεῖχον αὐτῷ, καὶ
 τοῦ σημείου γενομένου σπασάμενοι τὰ ξίφη καὶ
 μετὰ βοῆς ὀρμήσαντες ἤρπαζον τὰς θυγατέρας
 τῶν Σαβίνων, αὐτοὺς δὲ φεύγοντας εἶων καὶ

ROMULUS

and obscure persons, were looked down upon and expected to have no strong cohesion; and hoping to make the outrage an occasion for some sort of blending and fellowship with the Sabines after their women had been kindly entreated, he set his hand to the task, and in the following manner.

First a report was spread abroad by him that he had discovered an altar of a certain god hidden underground. They called this god Consus, and he was either a god of counsel (for "consilium" is still their word for counsel, and they call their chief magistrates "consuls," that is to say, counsellors), or an equestrian Neptune. For the altar is in the Circus Maximus, and is invisible at all other times, but at the chariot-races it is uncovered. Some, however, simply say that since counsel is secret and unseen, it is not unreasonable that an altar to the god of counsel should be hidden underground.¹ Now when this altar was discovered, Romulus appointed by proclamation a splendid sacrifice upon it, with games, and a spectacle open to all people. And many were the people who came together, while he himself sat in front, among his chief men, clad in purple. The signal that the time had come for the onslaught was to be his rising and folding his cloak and then throwing it round him again. Armed with swords, then, many of his followers kept their eyes intently upon him, and when the signal was given, drew their swords, rushed in with shouts, and ravished away the daughters of the Sabines, but permitted and encouraged the men

¹ The altar was kept buried in the earth to signify the secret processes of nature in the production of crops and vegetation. For Consus was an ancient Italian god of agriculture.

6 παρίεσαν. ἄρπασθῆναι δέ φασιν οἱ μὲν τριάκοντα μόνας, ἀφ' ὧν καὶ τὰς φρατρίας ὀνομασθῆναι, Οὐαλλέριος δὲ Ἄντίας ἑπτὰ καὶ εἴκοσι καὶ πεντακοσίας, Ἰόβας δὲ τρεῖς καὶ ὀγδοήκοντα καὶ ἑξακοσίας παρθένους· ὁ μέγιστον ἦν ἀπολόγημα τῷ Ῥωμύλῳ· γυναῖκα γὰρ οὐ λαβεῖν ἀλλ' ἢ μίαν, Ἐρσιλίαν, διαλαθοῦσαν αὐτούς, ἅτε δὴ μὴ μεθ' ὕβρεως μηδ' ἀδικίας ἐλθόντας ἐπὶ τὴν 26 ἄρπαγὴν, ἀλλὰ συμμῖξαι καὶ συναγαγεῖν εἰς ταῦτὸ τὰ γένη ταῖς μεγίσταις ἀνάγκαις διανοη-

7 θέντας. τὴν δ' Ἐρσιλίαν οἱ μὲν Ὀστίλιον γῆμαι λέγουσιν, ἄνδρα Ῥωμαίων ἐπιφανέστατον, οἱ δὲ αὐτὸν Ῥωμόλον, καὶ γενέσθαι καὶ παῖδας αὐτῷ, μίαν μὲν θυγατέρα Πρίμαν, τῇ τάξει τῆς γενέσεως οὕτω προσαγορευθεῖσαν, ἓνα δ' υἱὸν μόνον, ὃν Ἀόλλιον μὲν ἐνεῖνος ἀπὸ τῆς γενομένης ἀθροίσεως ὑπ' αὐτοῦ τῶν πολιτῶν ὠνόμασεν, οἱ δ' ὕστερον Ἀβίλλιον. ἀλλὰ ταῦτα μὲν ἱστορῶν Ζηνόδοτος ὁ Τροιζήμιος πολλοὺς ἔχει τοὺς ἀντιλέγοντας.

XV. Ἐν δὲ τοῖς ἀρπάζουσι τὰς παρθένους τότε τυχεῖν λέγουσι τῶν οὐκ ἐπιφανῶν τινὰς ἄγοντας κόρην τῷ τε κάλλει πολὺ καὶ τῷ μεγέθει διαφέρουσαν. ἐπεὶ δ' ἀπαντῶντες ἐνιοὶ τῶν κρειττόνων ἐπεχείρουν ἀφαιρεῖσθαι, βοᾶν τοὺς ἄγοντας ὡς Ταλασίῳ κομίζοιεν αὐτήν, ἀνδρὶ νέῳ 2 μὲν, εὐδοκίμῳ δὲ καὶ χρηστῷ· τοῦτ' οὖν ἀκούσαντας εὐφημεῖν καὶ κροτεῖν ἐπαινοῦντας, ἐνίους δὲ καὶ παρακολουθεῖν ἀναστρέψαντας εὐνοία καὶ themselves to escape. Some say that only thirty maidens were seized, and that from these the Curiae¹ were named; but Valerius Antias puts the number at five hundred and twenty-seven, and Juba at six hundred and eighty-three, all maidens. And this was the strongest defence which Romulus could make, namely, that they took only one married woman, Hersilia, and her by mistake, since they did not commit the rape out of wantonness, nor even with a desire to do mischief, but with the fixed purpose of uniting and blending the two peoples in the strongest bonds. As for this Hersilia, some say that she was married to Hostilius, a most eminent Roman, and others, to Romulus himself, and that she also bore him children: one daughter, Prima, so called from the order of birth, and one son only, whom Romulus named Aollius, from the great *concourse*² of citizens under him, but later ages Avillius. However, Zenodotus of Troezen, who gives us this account, is contradicted by many.

ROMULUS

XV. Among those who ravished away the maidens at that time, it chanced, they say, that certain men of meaner sort were dragging along a damsel who far surpassed the rest in beauty and stature; and when some men of superior rank met them and tried to rob them of their prize, they cried out that they were conducting the girl to Talasius, a young man, but one of excellent repute. The other party, then, on hearing this, shouted and clapped their hands in approval, and some of them actually turned back

¹ The thirty divisions into which the three ancient Roman tribes were divided for political and ceremonial purposes. Cf. Livy, i. 13, 6 f.

² A Greek etymology, connecting the name with ἀλλήs, in throngs.

χάριτι τοῦ Ταλασίου, μετὰ βοῆς τοῦνομα φθεγομένους. ἀφ' οὗ δὴ τὸν Ταλάσιον ἄχρι νῦν, ὡς "Ἕλληνες τὸν Ἰμέβαιον, ἐπάδουσι Ῥωμαῖοι τοῖς γάμοις· καὶ γὰρ εὐτυχία φασὶ χρήσασθαι περὶ τὴν γυναῖκα τὸν Ταλάσιον.

Σέξτιος δὲ Σύλλας ὁ Καρχηδόσιος, οὔτε μουσῶν οὔτε χαρίτων ἐπιδειξὴς ἀνὴρ, ἔλεγεν ἡμῖν ὅτι τῆς ἀρπαγῆς σύνθημα τὴν φωνὴν ἔδωκε ταύτην ὁ
 3 Ῥωμύλος. ἅπαντες οὖν τὸν Ταλάσιον ἐβῶων οἱ τὰς παρθένους κομίζοντες· καὶ διὰ τοῦτο τοῖς γάμοις παραμένει τὸ ἔθος. οἱ δὲ πλεῖστοι νομίζουσιν, ὧν καὶ Ἰόβας ἐστὶ, παράκλησιν εἶναι καὶ παρακέλευσιν εἰς φιλεργίαν καὶ ταλασίαν, οὐπω τότε τοῖς Ἑλληνικοῖς ὀνόμασι τῶν Ἰταλικῶν ἐπικεχυμένων. εἰ δὲ τοῦτο μὴ λέγεται κακῶς, ἀλλ' ἐχρῶντο Ῥωμαῖοι τότε τῷ ὀνόματι τῆς ταλασίας, καθάπερ ἡμεῖς, ἑτέραν ἂν τις αἰτίαν
 4 εἰκάσειε πιθανωτέραν. ἐπεὶ γὰρ οἱ Σαβῖνοι πρὸς τοὺς Ῥωμαίους πολεμήσαντες διηλλάγησαν, ἐγένοντο συνθήκαι περὶ τῶν γυναικῶν, ὅπως μηδὲν ἄλλο ἔργον τοῖς ἀνδράσιν ἢ τὰ περὶ τὴν ταλασίαν ὑπουργῶσι. παρέμεινεν οὖν καὶ τοῖς αὐθις γαμοῦσι τοὺς διδόντας ἢ παραπέμποντας ἢ ὄλως παρόντας, ἀναφωνεῖν τὸν Ταλάσιον μετὰ παιδιᾶς, μαρτυρομένους ὡς ἐπ' οὐδὲν ἄλλο ὑπουργημα τῆς
 5 γυναικὸς ἢ ταλασίαν εἰσαγομένης. διαμένει δὲ μέχρι νῦν τὸ τὴν νύμφην αὐτὴν ἀφ' αὐτῆς μὴ ὑπερβαίνειν τὸν οὐδὸν εἰς τὸ δωμάτιον, ἀλλ' αἰρομένην εἰσφέρεισθαι, διὰ τὸ καὶ τότε κομισθῆ-

ROMULUS

and accompanied them, out of good will and favour to Talasius, shouting his name as they went along. Hence, indeed, down to the present time, Talasius is the nuptial cry of the Romans, as Hymenæus is of the Greeks; for they say that Talasius was fortunate in his wife.

But Sextius Sulla, the Carthaginian, a man who lacks neither learning nor charm, told me that Talasius was the word which Romulus gave as a watchword for the rape. All those, therefore, who took the maidens away, shouted "Talasius!" and on this account the custom now prevails at marriages. But most writers are of the opinion—and Juba is one of them—that the cry is an exhortation and incitement to industry and "talasia," as the Greeks call spinning, Italian words having not yet at that time entirely submerged the Greek. Now if this is right, and the Romans did at that time use the word "talasia" for spinning, as we do, then a more credible reason for the custom might be conjectured as follows. When the Sabines, after their war against the Romans, were reconciled with them, it was agreed that their women should perform no other tasks for their husbands than those which were connected with spinning. It was customary, therefore, at subsequent marriages, for those who gave the bride away, or escorted her to her new home, or simply looked on, to cry "Talasius!" merrily, in testimony that the woman was led home for no other task than that of spinning. And it continues to be a custom down to the present time that the bride shall not of herself cross the threshold into her new home, but be lifted up and carried in, because the Sabine women were carried in ναί¹ βιασθείσας, μὴ εἰσελθεῖν.¹ ἔτιοι δὲ λέγουσι καὶ τὸ τὴν κόμην τῆς γαμουμένης αἰχμῆ διακρίνεσθαι δορατίου σύμβολον εἶναι τοῦ μετὰ μάχης καὶ πολεμικῶς τὸν πρῶτον γάμον γενέσθαι· περὶ ὧν ἐπιπλέον ἐν τοῖς Αἰτίοις εἰρήκαμεν.

PLUTARCH'S LIVES

Ἐτολμήθη μὲν οὖν ἡ ἄρπαγὴ περὶ τὴν ὀκτωκαιδεκάτην ἡμέραν τοῦ τότε μὲν Σεξτιλίου μηνός, Αὐγούστου δὲ νῦν, ἐν ἣ τὴν τῶν Κωνσαλίων ἑορτὴν ἄγουσιν.

XVI. Οἱ δὲ Σαβίνοι πολλοὶ μὲν ἦσαν καὶ πολεμικοί, κώμας δὲ ᾤκουν ἀτειχίστους, ὡς προσῆκον αὐτοῖς μέγα φρονεῖν καὶ μὴ φοβεῖσθαι
 2 Λακεδαιμονίων ἀποίκους οὖσιν. οὐ μὴν ἄλλ' ὀρώντες αὐτοὺς ἐνδεδεμένους μεγάλοις ὀμηρεύμασι, καὶ δεδιότες περὶ τῶν θυγατέρων, πρέσβεις ἀπέστειλαν ἐπιεικῆ καὶ μέτρια προκαλούμενοι, τὸν Ῥωμύλον ἀποδόντα τὰς κόρας αὐτοῖς καὶ λύσαντα τὸ τῆς βίας ἔργον, εἶτα πειθοῖ καὶ νόμῳ πράττειν τοῖς γένεσι φιλίαν καὶ οἰκειότητα. τοῦ δὲ Ῥωμύλου τὰς μὲν κόρας μὴ προιεμένου, παρακαλοῦντος δὲ τὴν κοινωνίαν δέχεσθαι τοὺς
 3 Σαβίνους, οἱ μὲν ἄλλοι βουλευόμενοι καὶ παρασκευαζόμενοι διέτριβον, Ἄκρων δὲ βασιλεὺς Κεννητῶν, ἀνὴρ θυμοειδὴς καὶ δεινὸς ἐν τοῖς πολεμικοῖς, τά τε πρῶτα τολμήματα τοῦ Ῥωμύλου δι' ὑποψίας εἶχε, καὶ τῷπραχθέντι περὶ τὰς
 27 γυναικας ἤδη φοβερόν ἠγούμενος πᾶσιν εἶναι καὶ οὐκ ἀνεκτόν, εἰ μὴ κολασθεῖη, προεξανέστη τῷ πολέμῳ καὶ μετὰ πολλῆς ἐχώρει δυνάμεως ἐπ'

¹ μὴ εἰσελθεῖν bracketed by Bekker.

ROMULUS

by force, and did not go in of their own accord. And some say also that the custom of parting the bride's hair with the head of a spear is a reminder that the first marriage was attended with war and fighting ; on which topic I have spoken more fully in my " Roman Questions." ¹

Leaving such matters aside, the rape was committed on the eighteenth day of the month once called Sextilis, but now, August, on which day the festival of the Consualia ² is celebrated.

XVI. Now the Sabines were a numerous and war-like people, and dwelt in unwalled villages, thinking that it behoved them, since they were Lacedaemonian colonists, to be bold and fearless. Nevertheless, seeing themselves bound by precious hostages, and fearing for their daughters, they sent ambassadors with reasonable and moderate demands, namely, that Romulus should give back to them their maidens, disavow his deed of violence, and then, by persuasion and legal enactment, establish a friendly relationship between the two peoples. But Romulus would not surrender the maidens, and demanded that the Sabines should allow community of marriage with the Romans, whereupon they all held long deliberations and made extensive preparations for war. But there was one exception. Acron, king of the Caeninenses, a man of courageous spirit and skilled in war, had been suspicious of the daring deeds of Romulus from the beginning, and now that this violence had been done the women, thinking him a menace to all peoples, and intolerable unless chastised, at once rose up in arms, and with a great

¹ Morals, p. 285 c (Question 87).

² A harvest festival, named from Consus. See chapter xiv. 3.

PLUTARCH'S LIVES

- 4 αὐτόν· καὶ ὁ Ῥωμύλος ἐπ' ἐκείνον. γενόμενοι δ' ἐν ὄψει καὶ κατιδόντες ἀλλήλους προὔκαλοῦντο μάχεσθαι, τῶν στρατευμάτων ἐν τοῖς ὅπλοις ἀτρεμοῦντων. εὐξάμενος οὖν ὁ Ῥωμύλος, εἰ κρατήσῃε καὶ καταβάλοι, τῷ Διὶ φέρων ἀναθήσειν αὐτὸς τὰ ὅπλα τοῦ ἀνδρός, αὐτόν τε καταβάλλει κρατήσας καὶ τρέπεται τὸ στράτευμα μάχης γενομένης, αἰρεῖ δὲ καὶ τὴν πόλιν· οὐ μὴν ἠδίκησε τοὺς ἐγκαταληφθέντας, ἀλλ' ἢ τὰς οἰκίας ἐκέλευσε καθελόντας ἀκολουθεῖν εἰς Ῥώμην, ὡς πολίτας ἐπὶ τοῖς ἴσοις ἔσομένους.
- 5 Τούτου μὲν οὖν οὐκ ἔστιν ὃ τι μᾶλλον ἠύξησε τὴν Ῥώμην, αἰεὶ προσποιούσαν ἑαυτῇ καὶ συννέμουσαν ὧν κρατήσειεν· ὁ δὲ Ῥωμύλος, ὡς ἂν μάλιστα τὴν εὐχὴν τῷ τε Διὶ κεχαρισμένην καὶ τοῖς πολίταις ἰδεῖν ἐπιτερπὴ παράσχοι σκεψάμενος, ἐπὶ στρατοπέδου δρῦν ἔτεμεν ὑπερμεγέθη, καὶ διεμόρφωσεν ὥσπερ τρόπαιον, καὶ τῶν ὅπλων τοῦ Ἀκρωνος ἕκαστον ἐν τάξει περιήρμωσε καὶ κατήρτησεν· αὐτὸς δὲ τὴν μὲν ἐσθήτα περιεζώσατο, δάφνη δὲ ἐστέψατο τὴν κεφαλὴν κομῶσαν.
- 6 ὑπολαβὼν δὲ τῷ δεξιῷ τὸ τρόπαιον ὧμφ προσερείδόμενον ὀρθόν, ἐβύδιζεν ἐξάρχων ἐπι-νικίου παιᾶνος ἐν ὅπλοις ἐπομένη τῇ στρατιᾷ, δεχομένων τῶν πολιτῶν μετὰ χαρᾶς καὶ θαύματος. ἢ μὲν οὖν πομπῇ τῶν αὐθις θριάμβων ἀρχὴν καὶ ζῆλον παρέσχε· τὸ δὲ τρόπαιον ἀνά-

ROMULUS

force advanced against him.¹ Romulus also marched out to meet him. But when they were face to face and had surveyed each other, they challenged mutually to single combat before battle, while their armies remained quiet under arms. Romulus, then, after making a vow that if he should conquer and overthrow his adversary, he would carry home the man's armour and dedicate it in person to Jupiter, not only conquered and overthrew him, but also routed his army in the battle which followed, and took his city as well. To the captured citizens, however, he did no harm beyond ordering them to tear down their dwellings and accompany him to Rome, where, he promised them, they should be citizens on equal terms with the rest.

Now this, more than anything else, was what gave increase to Rome: she always united and incorporated with herself those whom she conquered. But Romulus, after considering how he might perform his vow in a manner most acceptable to Jupiter and accompany the performance with a spectacle most pleasing to the citizens, cut down a monstrous oak that grew in the camp, hewed it into the shape of a trophy, and fitted and fastened to it the armour of Acron, each piece in its due order. Then he himself, girding his raiment about him and wreathing his flowing locks with laurel, set the trophy on his right shoulder, where it was held erect, and began a triumphal march, leading off in a paean of victory which his army sang as it followed under arms, and being received by the citizens with joyful amazement. This procession was the origin and model of all subsequent triumphs, and the

¹ Cf. Livy, i. 10.

PLUTARCH'S LIVES

θημα Φερετρίου Διὸς ἐπωνομάσθη. τὸ γὰρ πλή-ξαι φερίρε Ῥωμαῖοι καλοῦσιν· εὔξατο δὲ πλήξαι 7 τὸν ἄνδρα καὶ καταβαλεῖν· ὀπίμια δὲ τὰ σκῦλα, φησὶ Βάρρων, καθότι καὶ τὴν περιουσίαν ὄπεμ
 λέγουσι. πιθανώτερον δ' ἂν τις εἴποι διὰ τὴν πράξιν· ὄπους γὰρ ὀνομάζεται τὸ ἔργον. αὐτουργῶ δὲ ἀριστείας στρατηγῶ στρατηγὸν ἀνελόντι δέδοται καθιέρωσις ὀπιμίων.

Καὶ τρισὶ μόνοις τούτου τυχεῖν ὑπῆρξε Ῥωμαίοις ἡγεμόσι, πρώτῳ Ῥωμύλῳ, κτείναντι τὸν Κενινήτην Ἀκρωνα, δευτέρῳ Κορηλίῳ Κόσσω,
 Τυρρητὸν ἀνελόντι Τολούμνιον, ἐπὶ πᾶσι δὲ
 8 Κλαυδίῳ Μαρκέλλῳ, Βριτομάρτου κρατήσαντι Γαλατῶν βασιλέως. Κόσσος μὲν οὖν καὶ Μάρ-κελλος ἤδη τεθρίπποις εἰσήλαυνον αὐτοὶ τὰ
 τρόπαια φέροντε· Ῥωμύλον δ' οὐκ ὀρθῶς φησιν
 ἄρματι χρῆσασθαι Διονύσιος. Ταρκύνιον γὰρ
 ἱστοροῦσι τὸν Δημαράτου τῶν βασιλέων πρώτον
 εἰς τοῦτο τὸ σχῆμα καὶ τὸν ὄγκον ἐξᾶραι τοὺς θριάμβους· ἕτεροι δὲ πρώτον ἐφ' ἄρματος θριαμβεῦσαι Ποπλικόλαν. τοῦ δὲ Ῥωμύλου τὰς εἰκό-νας ὁρᾶν ἔστιν ἐν Ῥώμῃ τὰς τροπαιοφόρους πεζὰς ἀπάσαθ.

XVII. Μετὰ δὲ τὴν Κενινήτῶν ἄλωσιν ἔτι τῶν
 ἄλλων Σαβίνων ἐν παρασκευαῖς ὄντων, συνέστησαν οἱ Φιδήνην καὶ Κρουστουμέριον καὶ Ἀντέ-μναν οἰκοῦντες ἐπὶ τοὺς Ῥωμαίους· καὶ μάχης

ROMULUS

trophy was styled a dedication to Jupiter Feretrius, so named from the Roman word "ferire," to smite; for Romulus vowed to smite his foe and overthrow him. And such spoils were called "opima," because as Varro says, "opes" is the Roman word for richness; but it would be more plausible to say that they were so called from the deed of valour involved, since "opus" is the Roman word for deed or exploit. And only to a general who with his own hand has performed the exploit of slaying an opposing general, has the privilege of dedicating the "spolia opima" been granted.

Furthermore, only three Roman leaders have attained this honour: Romulus first, for slaying Acron the Caeninensian; next, Cornelius Cossus, for killing Tolumnius the Tuscan;¹ and lastly, Claudius Marcellus, for overpowering Britomartus, king of the Gauls.² Cossus indeed, and Marcellus, already used a four-horse chariot for their entrance into the city, carrying the trophies themselves, but Dionysius³ is incorrect in saying that Romulus used a chariot. For it is matter of history that Tarquin, the son of Demaratus, was first of the kings to lift triumphs up to such pomp and ceremony, although others say that Publicola was first to celebrate a triumph riding on a chariot.⁴ And the statues of Romulus bearing the trophies are, as may be seen in Rome, all on foot.

XVII. After the capture of the Caeninensians, while the rest of the Sabines were still busy with their preparations, the people of Fidenae, Crustumerium, and Antemnae banded together against the

¹ In 436 B.C., according to Livy, iv. 19, 1-5.

² In 222 B.C. See Plutarch's Marcellus, vii.

³ Antiq. Rom. ii. 34. ⁴ Cf. Publicola, ix. 5.

PLUTARCH'S LIVES

- γενομένης ἡττηθέντες ὁμοίως, τὰς τε πόλεις Ῥω-μύλῳ παρήκαν ἐλεῖν καὶ τὴν χώραν δάσασθαι
 καὶ μετοικίσαι σφᾶς αὐτοὺς εἰς Ῥώμην. ὁ δὲ Ῥωμύλος τὴν μὲν ἄλλην κατένειμε χώραν τοῖς
 πολίταις, ὅσῃν δ' εἶχον οἱ τῶν ἡρπασμένων
 παρθένων πατέρες, αὐτοὺς ἔχειν ἐκείνους εἶασεν.
- 2 Ἐπὶ τούτοις βαρέως φέροντες οἱ λοιποὶ Σα-
 βῖνοι Τάτιον ἀποδείξαντες στρατηγὸν ἐπὶ τὴν Ῥώμην ἐστράτευσαν· ἦν δὲ δυσπρόσοδος ἡ πόλις, ἔχουσα πρόβλημα τὸ νῦν Καπιτώλιον, ἐν ᾧ
 φρουρὰ καθειστήκει καὶ Ταρπήϊος ἡγεμὼν αὐτῆς, οὐχὶ Ταρπηῖα παρθένος, ὡς ἔνιοι λέγουσιν, εὐήθη
 τὸν Ῥωμύλον ἀποδεικνύοντες· ἀλλὰ θυγάτηρ ἡ Ταρπηῖα τοῦ ἄρχοντος οὔσα προὔδωκε τοῖς Σα-βίνοις, ἐπιθυμήσασα τῶν χρυσῶν βραχιονιστήρων
 οὓς εἶδε περικειμένους, καὶ ἤτησε μισθὸν τῆς προ- 28
- 3 δοσίας ἃ φοροῖεν ἐν ταῖς ἀριστεραῖς χερσί. συνθεμένου δὲ τοῦ Τατίου, νύκτωρ ἀνοίξασα πύλην μίαν
 ἐδέξατο τοὺς Σαβίνους. οὐ μόνος οὖν, ὡς ἔοικεν, Ἀντίγονος ἔφη προδιδόντας μὲν φιλεῖν, προδεδο-κότας δὲ μισεῖν, οὐδὲ Καῖσαρ, εἰπὼν ἐπὶ τοῦ Θρακὸς Ῥοιμητάλκου, φιλεῖν μὲν προδοσίαν, προδότην δὲ μισεῖν· ἀλλὰ κοινόν τι τοῦτο πάθος ἐστὶ
 πρὸς τοὺς πονηροὺς τοῖς δεομένοις αὐτῶν, ὥσπερ
 ἰοῦ καὶ χολῆς ἐνίων θηρίων δέονται· τὴν γὰρ χρεῖαν ὅτε λαμβάνουσιν ἀγαπῶντες, ἐχθαίρουσι
- 4 τὴν κακίαν ὅταν τύχῃσι. τοῦτο καὶ πρὸς τὴν
 Ταρπηῖαν τότε παθῶν ὁ Τάτιος ἐκέλευσε μεμνη-

ROMULUS

Romans,¹ and in a battle which ensued, they were likewise defeated, and surrendered to Romulus their cities to be seized, their territory to be divided, and themselves to be transported to Rome. Romulus distributed among the citizens all the territory thus acquired, excepting that which belonged to the parents of the ravished maidens; this he suffered its owners to keep for themselves.

At this the rest of the Sabines were enraged, and after appointing Tattius their general, marched upon Rome. The city was difficult of access, having as its fortress the present Capitol, on which a guard had been stationed, with Tarpeius as its captain,—not Tarpeia, a maiden, as some say, thereby making Romulus a simpleton. But Tarpeia, a daughter of the commander, betrayed the citadel to the Sabines, having set her heart on the golden armlets which she saw them wearing, and she asked as payment for her treachery that which they wore on their left arms. Tattius agreed to this, whereupon she opened one of the gates by night and let the Sabines in. Antigonus was not alone, then, in saying that he loved men who offered to betray, but hated those who had betrayed; nor yet Caesar, in saying of the Thracian Rhoemetaces, that he loved treachery but hated a traitor; but this is a very general feeling towards the base on the part of those who need their services, just as they need certain wild creatures for their venom and gall; for while they feel the need of them, they put up with them, but abhor their vileness when they have obtained from them what they want. This, too, was the feeling which Tattius then had towards Tarpeia, when he ordered

¹ Cf. Livy, i. 11.

μένους τῶν ὁμολογιῶν τοὺς Σαβίνους μηδενὸς αὐτῇ φθονεῖν ὧν ἐν ταῖς ἀριστεραῖς ἔχουσι. καὶ πρῶτος ἄμα τὸν βραχιονιστῆρα τῆς χειρὸς περιελὼν καὶ τὸν θυρεὸν ἐπέρριψε. πάντων δὲ αὐτὸ ποιούντων βαλλομένη τε τῷ χρυσῷ καὶ καταχωσθεῖσα τοῖς θυρεοῖς ὑπὸ πλήθους καὶ
 5 βάρους ἀπέθανεν. ἐάλω δὲ καὶ Ταρπηῖος προδοσίας ὑπὸ Ῥωμύλου διωχθεῖς, ὡς Ἰόβας φησὶ Γάλβαν Σουλπίκιον ἱστορεῖν. τῶν δ' ἄλλα περὶ Ταρπητίας λεγόντων ἀπίθανοι μὲν εἰσιν οἱ Τατίου θυγατέρα τοῦ ἡγεμόνος τῶν Σαβίνων οὖσαν αὐτήν, Ῥωμύλῳ δὲ βία συνοικοῦσαν, ἱστοροῦντες ταῦτα ποιῆσαι καὶ παθεῖν ὑπὲρ τοῦ πατρός· ὧν καὶ Ἀντίγονός ἐστι. Σιμύλος δ' ὁ ποιητῆς καὶ παντάπασι ληρεῖ μὴ Σαβίνοις οἰόμενος, ἀλλὰ Κελτοῖς τὴν Ταρπητίαν προδοῦναι τὸ Καπιτώλιον ἐρασθεῖσαν αὐτῶν τοῦ βασιλέως. λέγει δὲ ταῦτα·

Ἡ δ' ἀγχοῦ Τάρπεια παραὶ Καπιτώλιον αἶπος
 ναίουσα Ῥώμης ἔπλετο τειχολέτις,
 Κελτῶν ἢ στέρξασα γαμήλια λέκτρα γενέσθαι
 σκηπτούχῳ, πατέρων οὐκ ἐφύλαξε δόμους.
 καὶ μετ' ὀλίγα περὶ τῆς τελευταίας·

Τὴν δ' οὐτ' ἄρ Βοῖοί τε καὶ ἔθνεα μυρία Κελτῶν χηράμενοι ρεῖθρων ἐντὸς ἔθεντο Πάδου·
 ὄπλα δ' ἐπιπροβαλόντες ἀρειμανέων ἀπὸ χειρῶν
 κούρη ἐπὶ στυγερῇ κόσμον ἔθεντο φόνον.

ROMULUS

his Sabines, mindful of their agreement, not to begrudge the girl anything they wore on their left arms. And he was first to take from his arm not only his armlet, but at the same time his shield, and cast them upon her. All his men followed his example, and the girl was smitten by the gold and buried under the shields, and died from the number and weight of them. And Tarpeius also was convicted of treason when prosecuted by Romulus, as, according to Juba, Sulpicius Galba relates. Of those who write differently about Tarpeia, they are worthy of no belief at all who say that she was a daughter of Tatius, the leader of the Sabines, and was living with Romulus under compulsion, and acted and suffered as she did, at her father's behest; of these, Antigonus is one. And Simylus the poet is altogether absurd in supposing that Tarpeia betrayed the Capitol, not to the Sabines, but to the Gauls, because she had fallen in love with their king. These are his words:—

“And Tarpeia, who dwelt hard by the Capitolian steep,
Became the destroyer of the walls of Rome;
She longed to be the wedded wife of the Gallic chieftain,
And betrayed the homes of her fathers.”

And a little after, speaking of her death:—

“Her the Boii and the myriad tribes of Gauls
Did not, exulting, cast amid the currents of the Po;
But hurled the shields from their belligerent arms
Upon the hateful maid, and made their ornament her doom.”

XVIII. Τῆς μέντοι Ταρπητίας ἐκεῖ ταφείσης ὁ λόφος ὠνομάζετο Ταρπήσιος, ἄχρι οὐ Ταρκυνίου βασιλέως Διὶ τὸν τόπον καθιερούντος ἅμα τε τὰ λείψανα μετηνέχθη καὶ τοῦνομα τῆς Ταρπητίας ἐξέλιπε. πλὴν πέτραν ἔτι νῦν ἐν τῷ Καπιτωλίῳ Ταρπητίαν καλοῦσιν, ἀφ' ἧς ἐρρίπτουν τοὺς κακούργους.

- 2 Ἐχομένης δὲ τῆς ἄκρας ὑπὸ τῶν Σαβίνων, ὃ τε Ῥωμύλος ὑπ' ὀργῆς εἰς μάχην αὐτοὺς προὔκαλειτο, καὶ ὁ Τάτιος ἐθάρρει, καρτεράν, εἰ βιασθεῖεν, ἀναχώρησιν ὀρών αὐτοῖς ὑπάρχουσαν. ὁ γὰρ μεταξύ τόπος, ἐν ᾧ συμπίπτειν ἔμελλον, ὑπὸ πολλῶν λόφων περιεχόμενος ἀγῶνα μὲν ὀξύν ἐδόκει καὶ χαλεπὸν ὑπὸ δυσχωρίας ἀμφοτέροις παρέξειν, φυγὰς δὲ καὶ διώξεις ἐν στενῷ βρα-
- 3 χείας. ἔτυχε δὲ τοῦ ποταμοῦ λιμνάσαντος οὐ πολλαῖς πρότερον ἡμέραις, ἐγκαταλελειφθαι τέλμα βαθὺ καὶ τυφλὸν ἐν τόποις ἐπιπέδοις κατὰ τὴν νῦν οὖσαν ἀγοράν· ὅθεν οὐκ ἦν ὄψει πρόδηλον, οὐδ' εὐφύλακτον, ἄλλως δὲ χαλεπὸν καὶ ὑπουλον. ἐπὶ τοῦτο τοῖς Σαβίνοις ἀπειρία φερομένοις εὐτύ-
- 4 χημά γίνεται. Κούρτιος γὰρ ἀνὴρ ἐπιφανής, δόξη καὶ φρονήματι γαῦρος, ἵππον ἔχων πολὺν πρὸ τῶν ἄλλων ἐχώρει· δεξαμένου δὲ τοῦ βαράθρου τὸν ἵππον ἄχρι μὲν τινος ἐπειράτο πληγῇ καὶ παρακελεύσει χρώμενος ἐξελαύνειν, ὡς δ' ἦν ἀμήχανον, ἔασας τὸν ἵππον ἑαυτὸν ἔσωζεν. ὁ μὲν οὖν τόπος δι' ἐκείνον ἔτι νῦν Κούρτιος λάκκος ὀνομάζεται· φυλαξάμενοι δὲ τὸν κίνδυνον οἱ Σαβίνοι μάχην καρτεράν ἐμαχέσαντο κρίσιν οὐ λαβοῦσαν, καίτοι πολλῶν πεσόντων, ἐν οἷς ἦν καὶ

ROMULUS

XVIII. However, Tarpeia was buried there, and the hill was called from her Tarpeius, until King Tarquin dedicated the place to Jupiter, when her bones were removed and the name of Tarpeia died out, except that a cliff on the Capitol is still called the Tarpeian Rock, from which they hurl malefactors.

The citadel thus occupied by the Sabines,¹ Romulus angrily challenged them to battle, and Tatius was bold enough to accept, since he saw that the Sabines, if worsted, had a strong place of retreat. For the intervening space, in which they were to join battle, being surrounded by many hills, seemed to impose upon both parties a sharp and grievous contest, owing to the difficulties of the field, where flight and pursuit must be narrowly confined and short. It happened, too, since the river had overflowed not many days before, that a deep and blind slime had been left in the valley where the forum is now. Wherefore it was not apparent to the eye, nor yet easy to avoid, and besides it was soft beneath the surface and dangerous. On to this the Sabines were ignorantly rushing, when a piece of good fortune befell them. Curtius, a conspicuous man among them, eager for glory and high design, was advancing on horseback far in front of the rest, when his horse sank in the gulf of mud. For some time he tried to drive him out, with blows and cries of encouragement, but since it was impossible, he abandoned his horse and saved himself. Accordingly, the place to this day is called from him "lacus Curtius." But the Sabines, having avoided this peril, fought a sturdy fight, and one which was indecisive, although

¹ Cf. Livy, i. 12.

- 5 Ὀστίλιος. τοῦτον Ἐρσιλίας ἄνδρα καὶ πάππον 29
 Ὀστιλίου τοῦ μετὰ Νομᾶν βασιλεύσαντος γε-νέσθαι λέγουσιν. αὐθις δὲ πολλῶν ἀγῶνων ἐν
 βραχεῖ συνισταμένων, ὡς εἰκός, ἐνὸς μάλιστα τοῦ
 τελευταίου μνημονεύουσιν, ἐν ᾧ Ῥωμύλου τὴν
 κεφαλὴν πληγέντος λίθῳ καὶ πεσεῖν ὀλίγον δεή-σαντος τοῦ τ' ἀντέχειν ὑφεμένου τοῖς Σαβίνοις,
 ἐνέδωκαν οἱ Ῥωμαῖοι καὶ φυγῇ πρὸς τὸ Παλάτιον
 6 ἐχώρουν ἐξωθούμενοι τῶν ἐπιπέδων. ἤδη δὲ ὁ Ῥωμύλος ἐκ τῆς πληγῆς ἀναφέρων ἐβούλετο μὲν
 εἰς τὰ ὄπλα χωρεῖν τοῖς φεύγουσιν ἐναντίως, καὶ
 μέγα βοῶν ἴστασθαι καὶ μάχεσθαι παρεκάλει.
 πολλῆς δὲ τῆς φυγῆς αὐτῷ περιχομένης καὶ
 μηδενὸς ἀναστρέφειν τολμώντος, ἀνατείνας εἰς
 οὐρανὸν τὰς χεῖρας εὐξάτο τῷ Διὶ στήσαι τὸ
 στράτευμα καὶ τὰ Ῥωμαίων πράγματα πεσόντα
 7 μὴ περιιδεῖν, ἀλλ' ὀρθῶσαι. γενομένης δὲ τῆς εὐχῆς, αἰδῶς τε τοῦ βασιλέως ἔσχε πολλοὺς καὶ
 θάρσος ἐκ μεταβολῆς παρέστη τοῖς φεύγουσιν.
 ἔστησαν οὖν πρῶτον οὐ νῦν ὁ τοῦ Διὸς τοῦ Στάτορος ἴδρυται νεώς, ὃν ἐπιστάσιον ἂν τις
 ἐρμηνεύσειεν· εἶτα συνασπίσαντες πάλιν ἔωσαν ὀπίσω τοὺς Σαβίνους ἐπὶ τὴν νῦν Ῥήγιαν προσαγορευομένην καὶ τὸ τῆς Ἑστίας ἱερόν.

XIX. Ἐνταῦθα δ' αὐτοὺς ὥσπερ ἐξ ὑπαρχῆς
 μάχεσθαι παρασκευαζομένους ἐπέσχε δεινὸν ἰδεῖν
 θέαμα καὶ λόγου κρείττων ὄψις. αἱ γὰρ ἠρπα-σμένοι θυγατέρες τῶν Σαβίνων ὠφθησαν ἀλλα-χόθεν ἄλλαι μετὰ βοῆς καὶ ὀλολυγμοῦ διὰ τῶν
 ὀπλων φερόμεναι καὶ τῶν νεκρῶν, ὥσπερ ἐκ θεοῦ

ROMULUS

many fell, among whom was Hostilius. This man, they say, was husband of Hersilia¹ and grandfather to the Hostilius who was king after Numa. Afterwards many conflicts raged within a short time, as might be expected, but one is most memorable, namely the last, in which Romulus was hit on the head with a stone and almost fell to the ground, abandoning his resistance to the Sabines. The Romans thereupon gave way and began to fly to the Palatine, now that they were repulsed from the plain. But presently Romulus, recovering from his blow, wished to stem the tide of fugitives and renew the battle, and called upon them with a loud voice to stand and fight. But as the waves of flight encompassed him and no man dared to face about, he stretched his hands towards heaven and prayed Jupiter to stay his army and not suffer the Roman cause to fall, but to restore it. No sooner was his prayer ended than many stopped out of reverence for their king, and courage returned to the fugitives. They made their first stand, then, where now is the temple of Jupiter Stator, which epithet might be interpreted as Slayer. Then they closed their ranks again and drove the Sabines back to where the so-called Regia² now stands, and the temple of Vesta.

XIX. Here, as they were preparing to renew the battle, they were checked by a sight that was wonderful to behold and a spectacle that passes description.³ The ravished daughters of the Sabines were seen rushing from every direction, with shouts and lamentations, through the armed men and the

¹ Cf. chapter xiv. 6 f.

² In historical times, the house of the Pontifex Maximus. See Numa, xiv. 1.

³ Cf. Livy, i. 13.

PLUTARCH'S LIVES

κάτοχοι, πρὸς τε τοὺς ἄνδρας αὐτῶν καὶ τοὺς
 πατέρας, αἱ μὲν παιδία κομίζουσαι νήπια πρὸς
 ταῖς ἀγκάλαις, αἱ δὲ τὴν κόμην προῖσχόμεναι λελυμένην, πᾶσαι δ' ἀνακαλούμεναι τοῖς φιλτάτοις ὀνόμασι ποτὲ μὲν τοὺς Σαβίνους, ποτὲ δὲ
 2 τοὺς Ῥωμαίους. ἐπεκλάσθησαν οὖν ἀμφότεροι, καὶ διέσχον αὐταῖς ἐν μέσῳ καταστῆναι τῆς
 παρατάξεως· καὶ κλαυθμὸς ἅμα διὰ πάντων ἐχώρει, καὶ πολὺς οἶκτος ἦν πρὸς τε τὴν ὄψιν καὶ
 τοὺς λόγους ἔτι μᾶλλον, εἰς ἰκεσίαν καὶ δέησιν
 ἐκ δικαιολογίας καὶ παρρησίας τελευτῶντας. “Τί 3 γὰρ (ἔφασαν) ὑμᾶς δεινὸν ἢ λυπηρὸν ἐργασάμεναι, τὰ μὲν ἤδη πεπόνθαμεν, τὰ δὲ πάσχομεν
 τῶν σχετλίων κακῶν; ἠρπάσθημεν ὑπὸ τῶν νῦν
 ἐχόντων βία καὶ παρανόμως, ἀρπασθεῖσαι δ' ἡμελήθημεν ὑπ' ἀδελφῶν καὶ πατέρων καὶ οἰκείων χρόνον τοσοῦτον ὅσος ἡμᾶς πρὸς τὰ ἔχθι-στα κεράσας ταῖς μεγίσταις ἀνάγκαις, πεποίηκε
 νῦν ὑπὲρ τῶν βιασαμένων καὶ παρανομησάντων
 4 δεδιέναι μαχομένων καὶ κλαίειν θνησκόντων. οὐ
 γὰρ ἤλθετε τιμωρήσοντες ἡμῖν παρθένοις οὐσαις
 ἐπὶ τοὺς ἀδικούντας, ἀλλὰ νῦν ἀνδρῶν ἀποσπᾶτε γαμετὰς καὶ τέκνων μητέρας, οἰκτροτέραν βοή-θειαν ἐκείνης τῆς ἀμελείας· καὶ προδοσίας βοη-θοῦντες ἡμῖν ταῖς ἀθλίαις. τοιαῦτα μὲν ἠγαπήθημεν ὑπὸ τούτων, τοιαῦτα δὲ ὑφ' ὑμῶν ἐλεού-
 μεθα. καὶ γὰρ εἰ δι' ἄλλην αἰτίαν ἐμάχεσθε, παύσασθαι δι' ἡμᾶς πενθεροὺς γεγονότας καὶ 148

ROMULUS

dead bodies, as if in a frenzy of possession, up to their husbands and their fathers, some carrying young children in their arms, some veiled in their dishevelled hair, and all calling with the most endearing names now upon the Sabines and now upon the Romans. So then both armies were moved to compassion, and drew apart to give the women place between the lines of battle; sorrow ran through all the ranks, and abundant pity was stirred by the sight of the women, and still more by their words, which began with argument and reproach, and ended with supplication and entreaty. "Wherein, pray (they said), have we done you wrong or harm, that we must suffer in the past, and must still suffer now, such cruel evils? We were violently and lawlessly ravished away by those to whom we now belong, but though thus ravished, we were neglected by our brethren and fathers and kinsmen until time had united us by the strongest ties with those whom we had most hated, and made us now fear for those who had treated us with violence and lawlessness, when they go to battle, and mourn for them when they are slain. For ye did not come to avenge us upon our ravishers while we were still maidens, but now ye would tear wives from their husbands and mothers from their children, and the succour wherewith ye would now succour us, wretched women that we are, is more pitiful than your former neglect and abandonment of us. Such is the love which we have here enjoyed, such the compassion shown to us by you. Even if ye were fighting on other grounds, it were meet that ye should cease for our sakes, now that ye are become fathers-in-law and grandsires and have

PLUTARCH'S LIVES

5 παππους καὶ οἰκείους ὄντας ἐχρῆν. εἰ δ' ὑπὲρ ἡμῶν ὁ πόλεμος ἐστὶ, κομίσασθε ἡμᾶς μετὰ γαμβρῶν καὶ τέκνων καὶ ἀπόδοτε ἡμῖν πατέρας καὶ οἰκείους, μηδὲ ἀφέλησθε παῖδας καὶ ἄνδρας. ἰκετεύομεν ὑμᾶς μὴ πάλιν αἰχμάλωτοι γενέσθαι.”

Τοιαῦτα πολλὰ τῆς Ἐρσιλίας προαγορευούσης καὶ τῶν ἄλλων δεομένων, ἐσπείσθησαν
6 ἀνοχαὶ καὶ συνῆλθον εἰς λόγους οἱ ἡγεμόνες. αἱ δὲ γυναῖκες ἐν τούτῳ τοῖς πατράσι καὶ τοῖς ἀδελφοῖς τοὺς ἄνδρας προσῆγον καὶ τὰ τέκνα,¹ προσέφερόν τε τροφὴν καὶ ποτὸν τοῖς δεομένοις, καὶ τοὺς τετρωμένους ἐθεράπευον οἴκαδε κομίζουσαι· καὶ παρείχον ὄραν ἀρχούσας μὲν αὐτὰς τοῦ οἴκου, προσέχοντας δὲ τοὺς ἄνδρας αὐταῖς 30

7 καὶ μετ' εὐνοίας τιμὴν ἄπασαν νέμοντας. ἐκ τούτου συντίθενται τῶν μὲν γυναικῶν τὰς βουλομένας συνοικεῖν τοῖς ἔχουσιν, ὥσπερ εἴρηται, παντὸς ἔργου καὶ πάσης λατρείας πλὴν θαλασσίας ἀφειμένας· οἰκεῖν δὲ κοινῇ τὴν πόλιν Ῥωμαίους καὶ Σαβίνους, καὶ καλεῖσθαι μὲν Ῥώμην ἐπὶ Ῥωμύλῳ τὴν πόλιν, Κυρίτας δὲ Ῥωμαίους ἅπαντας ἐπὶ τῇ Τατίου πατρίδι, βασιλεύειν δὲ κοινῇ καὶ στρατηγεῖν ἀμφοτέρους. ὅπου δὲ ταῦτα συνέθεντο μέχρι νῦν Κομίτιον καλεῖται· κομίρε γὰρ Ῥωμαῖοι τὸ συνελθεῖν καλοῦσι.

XX. Διπλασιασθείσης δὲ τῆς πόλεως, ἑκατὸν μὲν ἐκ Σαβίνων πατρίκιοι προσκατελέχθησαν, αἱ

¹ τὰ τέκνα Coraës and Bekker, after Reiske: τέκνα.

ROMULUS

family ties among your enemies. If, however, the war is on our behalf, carry us away with your sons-in-law and their children, and so restore to us our fathers and kindred, but do not rob us of our children and husbands. Let us not, we beseech you, become prisoners of war again."

Many such appeals were made by Hersilia, and the other women added their entreaties, until a truce was made and the leaders held a conference. Meanwhile the women brought their husbands and their children and presented them to their fathers and brothers; they also carried food and drink to those that wanted, and bore the wounded to their homes for tender nursing; here they also made it evident that they were mistresses of their own households, and that their husbands were attentive to them and showed them all honour with good will. Thereupon agreements were made that such women as wished to do so might continue to live with their husbands, exempt, as aforesaid,¹ from all labour and all drudgery except spinning; also that the city should be inhabited by Romans and Sabines in common; and that the city should be called Rome, from Romulus, but all its citizens Quirites, from the native city of Tatius²; and that Romulus and Tatius should be joint kings and leaders of the army. The place where these agreements were made is to this day called Comitium, from the Roman word "conire," or "coire," to come together.

XX. The city thus doubled in its numbers, a hundred of the Sabines were added by election to the Patricii,³ and the legions were enlarged

¹ Cf. chapter xv. 4. ² Cures, a Sabine town.

³ Cf. chapter xiii. 1.

PLUTARCH'S LIVES

- δὲ λεγεῶνες ἐγένοντο πεζῶν μὲν ἑξακισχιλίων, ἰππέων δὲ ἑξακοσίων. φυλὰς δὲ τρεῖς καταστήσαντες ὠνόμασαν τοὺς μὲν ἀπὸ Ῥωμύλου Ῥαμνήσεως, τοὺς δὲ ἀπὸ Τατίου Τατιήσεως· τρίτους δὲ Λουκερήσεως διὰ τὸ ἄλσος, εἰς ὃ πολλοὶ καταφυγόντες, ἀσυλίας δεδομένης, τοῦ πολιτεύματος
- 2 μετέσχον· τὰ δ' ἄλση λούκουσ ὀνομάζουσιν. ὅτι δ' ἦσαν αἱ φυλαὶ τοσαῦται, τοῦνομα μαρτυρεῖ· τρίβους γὰρ ἔτι νῦν τὰς φυλὰς καλοῦσι, καὶ τριβούρους τοὺς φυλάρχους. ἐκάστη δὲ φυλὴ δέκα φρατρίας εἶχεν, ἃς ἔνιοι λέγουσιν ἐπωνύμους εἶναι ἐκείνων τῶν γυναικῶν. τοῦτο δὲ δοκεῖ ψεῦδος εἶναι· πολλαὶ γὰρ ἔχουσιν ἀπὸ χωρίων
- 3 τὰς προσηγορίας. ἄλλα μέντοι πολλὰ ταῖς γυναιξίν εἰς τιμὴν ἀπέδωκαν, ὧν καὶ ταῦτά ἐστιν· ἐξίστασθαι μὲν ὁδοῦ βαδιζούσαις, αἰσχρὸν δὲ μηδένα μηδὲν εἰπεῖν παρούσης γυναικός, μηδ' ὀφθῆναι γυμνόν, ἢ δίκην φεύγειν παρὰ τοῖς ἐπὶ τῶν φονικῶν καθεστῶσι, φορεῖν δὲ καὶ τοὺς παῖδας αὐτῶν τὴν καλουμένην βοῦλλαν ἀπὸ τοῦ σχήματος, ὅμοιον πομφόλυγι, περιδέρραιόν τι καὶ περιπόρφυρον.
- 4 Ἐβουλευόντο δὲ οἱ βασιλεῖς οὐκ εὐθύς ἐν κοινῷ μετ' ἀλλήλων, ἀλλ' ἐκάτερος πρότερον ἰδίᾳ μετὰ τῶν ἑκατόν, εἶτα οὕτως εἰς ταῦτόν ἅπαντας συνήγον. ὧκει δὲ Τάτιος μὲν ὅπου νῦν ὁ τῆς Μονήτης ναός ἐστι, Ῥωμύλος δὲ παρὰ τοὺς λεγομένους βαθμοὺς καλῆς ἀκτῆς.¹ οὗτοι δὲ εἰσὶ

¹ καλῆς ἀκτῆς a corruption of Κάκου? Cf. Diodorus, iv. 21, 2.

ROMULUS

to six thousand footmen and six hundred horsemen.¹ The people, too, were arranged in three bodies, the first called Ramnenses, from Romulus; the second Tatienses, from Tatius; and the third Lucerenses, from the grove into which many betook themselves for refuge, when a general asylum was offered,² and then became citizens. Now the Roman word for grove is "lucus." That these bodies were three in number, their very name testifies, for to this day they call them tribes, and their chief officers, tribunes. And each tribe had ten phratries, or brotherhoods, which, as some say, were named after the thirty Sabine women;³ but this seems to be false, since many of them bear the names of places. However, they did make many other concessions to the women, to do them honour, some of which are as follow: to give them the right of way when walking; not to utter any indecent word in the presence of a woman; that no man should be seen naked by them, or else that he be liable to prosecution before the judges of homicide; and that their children should wear a sort of necklace, the "bulla," so called from its shape (which was that of a bubble), and a robe bordered with purple.

The two kings did not at once hold council in common with one another, but each at first sat with his own hundred councillors apart, then afterwards they united them all into one body, as at the present time. Tatius dwelt where now is the temple of Moneta, and Romulus beside the so-called Steps of Fair Shore;⁴ these are near the descent into the

¹ Cf. chapter xiii. 1.

² Cf. chapter ix. 3.

³ Cf. chapter xiv. 6.

⁴ The Greek text is probably corrupt. The "scalae Caci," or Steps of Cacus, must be meant.

περὶ τὴν εἰς τὸν ἵππόδρομον τὸν μέγαν ἐκ Πα-5 λατίου κατάβασιν. ἐνταῦθα δὲ καὶ τὴν κρνειαν ἔφασαν τὴν ἱερὰν γεγονέναι, μυθολογούντες
 ὅτι πειρώμενος ὁ Ῥωμύλος αὐτοῦ λόγῃην ἀκοντίσειεν ἀπὸ τοῦ Ἄουεντίνου τὸ ξυστὸν ἔχουσιν
 κρυνείας· καταδύσης δὲ τῆς αἰχμῆς εἰς βάθος, ἀνασπάσαι μὲν οὐδεὶς πειρωμένων πολλῶν
 ἴσχυσε, τὸ δὲ ξύλον ἔστεξεν ἢ γῆ ζώφυτος οὔσα,
 καὶ βλαστοὺς ἀνήκε καὶ στέλεχος εὐμέγεθες
 κρυνείας ἔθρεψε. τοῦτο δ' οἱ μετὰ Ῥωμύλον
 ὡς ὄν τι τῶν ἀγιωτάτων ἱερῶν φυλάττοντες καὶ
 6 σεβόμενοι περιετείχισαν. ὅτῳ δὲ προσιόντι δόξειε μὴ θαλερὸν εἶναι μηδὲ χλωρόν, ἀλλ' οἶον ἀτροφεῖν καὶ φθίνειν, ὁ μὲν εὐθύς ἔφραζε κραυγῇ
 τοῖς προστυγχάνουσιν, οἱ δ', ὥσπερ ἐμπρησμῶ βοηθοῦντες, ἐβόων ὕδωρ, ὕδωρ,¹ καὶ συνέτρεχον πανταχόθεν ἀγγεῖα πλήρη κομίζοντες
 ἐπὶ τὸν τόπον. Γατοῦ δὲ Καίσαρος, ὡς φασι, τὰς ἀναβάσεις ἐπισκευάζοντος καὶ τῶν τεχνιτῶν
 περιορυττόντων τὰ πλησίον, ἔλαθον αἱ ῥίζαι
 κακωθεῖσαι παντάπασι καὶ τὸ φυτὸν ἐμαράνθη.

XXI. Μῆνας μὲν οὖν οἱ Σαβῖνοι τοὺς Ῥωμαίων
 ἐδέξαντο, καὶ περὶ αὐτῶν ὅσα καλῶς εἶχεν ἐν τῇ
 Νομᾷ βίῃ γέγραπται· θυρεοῖς δὲ τοῖς ἐκείνων ὁ Ῥωμύλος ἐχρήσατο, καὶ μετέβαλε τὸν ὄπλισμὸν
 ἑαυτοῦ τε καὶ τῶν Ῥωμαίων, Ἀργολικὰς πρότερον ἀσπίδας φορούντων. ἑορτῶν δὲ καὶ θυσιῶν
 ἀλλήλοις μετεῖχον, ἃς μὲν ἤγε τὰ γένη πρότερον
 οὐκ ἀνελόντες, ἑτέρας δὲ θέμενοι καινάς, ὧν ἡ τε
 τῶν Ματρωναλίων ἐστί, δοθεῖσα ταῖς γυναιξίν

¹ ὕδωρ, ὕδωρ with two Bodleian MSS. (B^{ab}): ὕδωρ.

ROMULUS

Circus Maximus from the Palatine. There also, it is said, grew the sacred cornel-tree, of which the following tale is told. Romulus, once, in trial of his strength, cast thither from the Aventine hill a spear, the shaft of which was made of cornel-wood; the head of the spear sank deep into the ground, and no one had strength to pull it up, though many tried, but the earth, which was fertile, cherished the wooden shaft, and sent up shoots from it, and produced a cornel-trunk of good size. Those who came after Romulus preserved this with religious care as one of the most sacred objects, and walled it in. And if any visitor thought that it was not green nor flourishing, but likely to wither away and die, he immediately proclaimed it loudly to all he met, and these, as though helping to save a house on fire, would cry "Water! Water!" and run together from all sides carrying full buckets to the place. But when Caius Caesar, as they say, was repairing the steps about the enclosure, and the workmen dug here and there in the neighbourhood, the roots were inadvertently destroyed and the tree withered away.

XXI. The Sabines, then, adopted the Roman months, about which I have written sufficiently in my Life of Numa.¹ Romulus, on the other hand, made use of their oblong shields, and changed his own armour and that of the Romans, who before that carried round shields of the Argive pattern. Feasts and sacrifices they shared with one another, not discarding any which the two peoples had observed before, but instituting other new ones. One of these is the Matronalia, which was bestowed upon the women to commemorate their putting a

¹ Chapters xviii. and xix.

ἐπὶ τῇ τοῦ πολέμου καταλύσει, καὶ ἡ τῶν Καρ-
 2 μενταλίων. τὴν δὲ Καρμένταν οἶονταί τινες μοίραν εἶναι κυρίαν ἀνθρώπων γενέσεως· διὸ καὶ
 τιμῶσιν αὐτὴν αἱ μητέρες. οἱ δὲ τὴν τοῦ Εὐάν- 31
 δρου τοῦ Ἀρκάδος γυναῖκα, μαντικὴν τινα καὶ φοιβαστικὴν ἐμμέτρων χρησμῶν γενομένην, Καρμένταν ἐπονομασθῆναι (τὰ γὰρ ἔπη κάρμυνα καλοῦσι). Νικοστράτη¹ δὲ ἦν ὄνομα κύριον αὐτῆς.
 καὶ τοῦτο μὲν ὁμολογεῖται· τὴν δὲ Καρμένταν
 ἔνιοι πιθανώτερον ἄφερμηνεύουσιν οἶον ἐστερη-μένην νοῦ, διὰ τὰς ἐν τοῖς ἐνθουσιασμοῖς παραφροσύνας. τὸ μὲν γὰρ στέρεσθαι καρῆρε, μέντεμ
 3 δὲ τὸν νοῦν ὀνομάζουσι. περὶ δὲ τῶν Παριλίων
 προείρηται. τὰ δὲ Λουπερκάλια τῷ μὲν χρόνῳ
 δόξειεν ἂν εἶναι καθάρσια· δρᾶται γὰρ ἐν ἡμέραις
 ἀποφράσι τοῦ Φεβρουαρίου μηνός, ὃν καθάρσιον
 ἂν τις ἐρμηνεύσειε, καὶ τὴν ἡμέραν ἐκείνην τὸ
 παλαιὸν ἐκάλουν Φεβράτην· τοῦνομα δὲ τῆς
 ἑορτῆς ἑλληνιστὶ σημαίνει Λύκαια, καὶ δοκεῖ διὰ
 τοῦτο παμπάλαιος ἀπ' Ἀρκάδων εἶναι τῶν περὶ
 4 Εὐάνδρον. ἀλλὰ τοῦτο μὲν κοινόν ἐστι· δύναται
 γὰρ ἀπὸ τῆς λυκαίνης γεγονέναι τοῦνομα. καὶ γὰρ ἀρχομένους τῆς περιδρομῆς τοὺς Λουπέρκους ὀρῶ-μεν ἐντεῦθεν ὅπου τὸν Ῥωμύλον ἐκτεθῆναι λέγου-
 σι. τὰ δὲ δρώμενα τὴν αἰτίαν ποιεῖ δυστόπαστον
 σφάττουσι γὰρ αἶγας, εἶτα μεираκίων δυοῖν ἀπὸ

¹ Νικοστράτη Coraës and Bekker with the MSS. : Νικο-στράτη after Stephanus.

ROMULUS

stop to the war; and another is the Carmentalia. This Carmenta is thought by some to be a Fate presiding over human birth, and for this reason she is honoured by mothers. Others, however, say that the wife of Evander the Arcadian,¹ who was a prophetess and inspired to utter oracles in verse, was therefore surnamed Carmenta, since "carmina" is their word for verses, her own proper name being Nicostrate. As to her own name there is general agreement, but some more probably interpret Carmenta as meaning bereft of mind, because of her ecstasies under inspiration, since "carere" is the Roman word for to be bereft, and "mens" for mind. Of the Parilia I have spoken before.² As for the Lupercalia, judging by the time of its celebration, it would seem to be a feast of purification, for it is observed on the inauspicious days³ of the month of February, which name can be interpreted to mean purification, and the very day of the feast was anciently called Febrata. But the name of the festival has the meaning of the Greek "Lycaea," or feast of wolves, which makes it seem of great antiquity and derived from the Arcadians in the following of Evander.⁴ Indeed, this meaning of the name is commonly accepted; for it can be connected with the she-wolf of story. And besides, we see that the Luperci⁵ begin their course around the city at that point where Romulus is said to have been exposed. However, the actual ceremonies of the festival are such that the reason for the name is hard to guess. For the priests slaughter

¹ Cf. Plutarch's Roman Questions, 56 (Morals, p. 278 b, c), and Livy, i. 7, 8

² Chapter xii. 1.

³ "Dies nefasti."

⁴ Cf. Livy, i. 5, 1-2.

⁵ Priests of Faunus, the Roman Pan.

- γένους προσαχθέντων αὐτοῖς, οἱ μὲν ἡμαγμένη μαχαίρα τοῦ μετώπου θιγγάνουσιν, ἕτεροι δ' ἀπο-μάπτουσιν εὐθύς, ἔρισιν βεβρεγμένον γάλακτι
 5 προσφέροντες. γελᾶν δὲ δεῖ τὰ μεϊρίκια μετὰ τὴν
 ἀπόμαξιν. ἐκ δὲ τούτου τὰ δέρματα τῶν αἰγῶν
 κατατεμόντες διαθέουσιν ἐν περιζώσμασι γυμνοί,
 τοῖς σκύτεσι τὸν ἐμποδῶν παίοντες. αἱ δ' ἐν
 ἡλικίᾳ γυναῖκες οὐ φεύγουσι τὸ παίεσθαι, νομίζουσαι πρὸς εὐτοκίαν καὶ κήσιν συνεργεῖν. ἴδιον
 δὲ τῆς ἐορτῆς τὸ καὶ κύνα θύειν τοὺς Λουπέρκους.
 6 Βούτας δὲ τις αἰτίας μυθῶδεις ἐν ἐλεγεῖοις
 περὶ τῶν Ῥωμαϊκῶν ἀναγράφων, φησὶ τοῦ Ἄμουλίου τοὺς περὶ τὸν Ῥωμύλον κρατήσαντας ἐλθεῖν
 δρόμῳ μετὰ χαρᾶς ἐπὶ τὸν τόπον ἐν ᾧ νηπίοις
 οὖσιν αὐτοῖς ἡ λύκαινα θηλὴν ὑπέσχε, καὶ μίμημα
 τοῦ τε δρόμου τὴν ἐορτὴν ἄγεσθαι, καὶ τρέχειν
 τοὺς ἀπὸ γένους τοὺς

Ἐμποδίους τύπτοντας, ὅπως τότε φάσγαν' ἔχοντες
 ἐξ Ἄλβης ἔθεον Ῥωμύλος ἠδὲ Ῥέμος.

- καὶ τὸ μὲν ξίφος ἡμαγμένον προσφέρεσθαι τῷ
 μετώπῳ τοῦ τότε φόνου καὶ κινδύνου σύμβολον,
 τὴν δὲ διὰ τοῦ γάλακτος ἀποκάθαρσιν ὑπόμνημα
 7 τῆς τροφῆς αὐτῶν εἶναι. Γάϊος δὲ Ἀκίλιος ἱστορεῖ
 πρὸ τῆς κτίσεως τὰ θρέμματα τῶν περὶ τὸν Ῥωμύλον ἀφανῆ γενέσθαι· τοὺς δὲ τῷ Φαύνῳ προσευξαμένους ἐκδραμεῖν γυμνοὺς ἐπὶ τὴν ζήτη-σιν, ὅπως ὑπὸ τοῦ ἰδρώτος μὴ ἐνοχλοῖντο· καὶ

ROMULUS

goats, and then, after two youths of noble birth have been brought to them, some of them touch their foreheads with a bloody knife, and others wipe the stain off at once with wool dipped in milk. The youths must laugh after their foreheads are wiped. After this they cut the goats' skins into strips and run about, with nothing on but a girdle, striking all who meet them with the thongs,¹ and young married women do not try to avoid their blows, fancying that they promote conception and easy child-birth. A peculiarity of the festival is that the Luperci sacrifice a dog also.

A certain Butas, who wrote fabulous explanations of Roman customs in elegiac verse, says that Romulus and Remus, after their victory over Amulius, ran exultantly to the spot where, when they were babes, the she-wolf gave them suck, and that the festival is conducted in imitation of this action, and that the two youths of noble birth run “Smiting all those whom they meet, as once with brandished weapons, Down from Alba's heights, Remus and Romulus ran.”

And that the bloody sword is applied to their foreheads as a symbol of the peril and slaughter of that day, while the cleansing of their foreheads with milk is in remembrance of the nourishment which the babes received. But Caius Acilius writes that before the founding of the city Romulus and his brother once lost their flocks, and after praying to Faunus, ran forth in quest of them naked, that they might not be impeded by sweat; and that this is the reason why

¹ Cf. Plutarch's Antony, xii. 1.

διὰ τοῦτο γυμνοὺς περιτρέχειν τοὺς Λουπέρκους.
 τὸν δὲ κύνα φαίη τις ἄν, εἰ μὲν ἢ θυσία καθαρμός
 8 ἔστι, θύεσθαι καθαρσίῳ χρωμένων αὐτῷ· καὶ γὰρ Ἕλληνες ἔν τε τοῖς καθαρσίοις σκύλακας ἐκφέρουσι καὶ πολλαχοῦ χρώνται τοῖς λεγομένοις περισκυλακισμοῖς· εἰ δὲ τῇ λυκαίνῃ χαριστήρια
 ταῦτα καὶ τροφεῖα καὶ σωτήρια Ῥωμύλον τελοῦσιν, οὐκ ἀτόπως ὁ κύων σφάττεται· λύκοις γάρ
 ἔστι πολέμιος· εἰ μὴ νῆ Δία κολάζεται τὸ ζῶον
 ὡς παρενοχλοῦν τοὺς Λουπέρκους ὅταν περι-θέωσι.

XXII. Λέγεται δὲ καὶ τὴν περὶ τὸ πῦρ ἀγι-στεῖαν Ῥωμύλον καταστήσαι πρῶτον, ἀποδεί-ξαντα παρθένους ἱεράς Ἐστιάδας προσαγορευο-μένας. οἱ δὲ τοῦτο μὲν εἰς Νομᾶν ἀναφέρουσι,
 τὰ δ' ἄλλα τὸν Ῥωμύλον θεοσεβῆ διαφερόντως,
 ἔτι δὲ μαντικὸν ἱστοροῦσι γενέσθαι, καὶ φορεῖν
 ἐπὶ μαντικῇ τὸ καλούμενον λίτυον, ἔστι δὲ καμ-πύλη ράβδος, ἣ τὰ πλινθία καθεζομένους ἐπ'
 2 οἰωνῶν διαγράφειν. τοῦτο δ' ἐν Παλατίῳ φυ-λαττόμενον ἀφανισθῆναι περὶ τὰ Κελτικὰ τῆς
 πόλεως ἀλούσης· εἶτα μέντοι τῶν βαρβάρων ἐκπεσόντων εὑρεθῆναι κατὰ τέφρας βαθείας ἀπαθῆς ὑπὸ τοῦ πυρὸς ἐν πᾶσι τοῖς ἄλλοις ἀπολω-λόσι καὶ διεφθαρμένοις.

3 Ἔθηκε δὲ καὶ νόμους τινάς, ὧν σφοδρὸς μὲν
 ἔστιν ὁ γυναικὶ μὴ διδοὺς ἀπολείπειν ἄνδρα, γυναῖκα δὲ διδοὺς ἐκβάλλειν¹ ἐπὶ φαρμακείᾳ καὶ

¹ ἐκβάλλειν Bekker, after Coraës : ἐκβαλεῖν.

ROMULUS

the Luperci run about naked. If the sacrifice is a purification, one might say that the dog is sacrificed as being a suitable victim for such rites, since the Greeks, in their rites of purification, carry forth puppies for burial, and in many places make use of the rites called "periskulakismoï;"¹ and if these rites are performed in grateful remembrance of the she-wolf that nourished and preserved Romulus, it is not without reason that the dog is slain, since it is an enemy to wolves, unless, indeed, the animal is thus punished for annoying the Luperci when they run about.

XXII. It is said also that Romulus first introduced the consecration of fire, and appointed holy virgins to guard it, called Vestals. Others attribute this institution to Numa,² although admitting that Romulus was in other ways eminently religious, and they say further that he was a diviner, and carried for purposes of divination the so-called "lituus," a crooked staff with which those who take auguries from the flight of birds mark out the regions of the heavens. This staff, which was carefully preserved on the Palatine, is said to have disappeared when the city was taken at the time of the Gallic invasion; afterwards, however, when the Barbarians had been expelled, it was found under deep ashes unharmed by the fire, although everything about it was completely destroyed.³

He also enacted certain laws, and among them one of severity, which forbids a wife to leave her husband, but permits a husband to put away his wife

¹ Sacrifices where puppies were killed and carried about.

² See Numa, chapters ix. and x.

³ Cf. Camillus, xxxii. 4-5.

τέκνων ὑποβολῇ¹ καὶ μοιχευθεῖσαν· εἰ δ' ἄλλως 32
 τις ἀποπέμφαιτο, τῆς οὐσίας αὐτοῦ τὸ μὲν τῆς
 γυναικὸς εἶναι, τὸ δὲ τῆς Δήμητρος ἱερὸν κελεύων·
 τὸν δ' ἀποδόμενον γυναικα θύεσθαι χθονίοις θεοῖς.
 4 ἴδιον δὲ τὸ μηδεμίαν δίκην κατὰ πατροκτόνων
 ὀρίσαντα πᾶσαν ἀνδροφονίαν πατροκτονίαν προσ-ειπεῖν, ὡς τούτου μὲν ὄντος ἐναγοῦς, ἐκείνου δὲ
 ἀδυνάτου. καὶ μέχρι χρόνων πολλῶν ἔδοξεν
 ὀρθῶς ἀπογῶναι τὴν τοιαύτην ἀδικίαν· οὐδεὶς
 γὰρ ἔδρασε τοιοῦτον οὐδὲν ἐν Ῥώμῃ σχεδὸν ἐτῶν
 ἑξακοσίων διαγενομένων, ἀλλὰ πρῶτος μετὰ τὸν Ἄννιβιακὸν πόλεμον ἱστορεῖται Λεύκιος Ὅστιος πατροκτόνος γενέσθαι. ταῦτα μὲν οὖν ἱκανὰ περὶ τούτων.

XXIII. Ἐπει δὲ πέμπτῃ τῆς Τάτιου βασιλείας, οἰκεῖοί τινες αὐτοῦ καὶ συγγενεῖς πρέσβεισιν ἀπὸ Λαυρέντου βαδίζουσιν εἰς Ῥώμην ἐντυχόντες καθ'
 ὁδόν, ἐπεχείρουν ἀφαιρεῖσθαι τὰ χρήματα βία,
 καὶ μὴ προῖεμένους, ἀλλ' ἀμυνομένους ἀνεῖλον.
 ἔργου δὲ δεινοῦ τολμηθέντος, ὁ μὲν Ῥωμύλος
 εὐθὺς δεῖν ᾤετο κολάζεσθαι τοὺς ἀδικήσαντας,
 2 ὁ δὲ Τάτιος ἐξέκρουε καὶ παρήγγε. καὶ τοῦτο μόνον αὐτοῖς ὑπῆρξεν αἴτιον ἐμφανοῦς διαφορᾶς·
 τὰ δ' ἄλλα κατακοσμούντες ἑαυτοὺς ὡς ἔτι μά-
 λιστα κοινῶς ἐχρῶντο καὶ μεθ' ὁμονοίας τοῖς
 πράγμασιν. οἱ δὲ τῶν ἀνηρημένων οἰκεῖοι, πάσης ἐξειργόμενοι δίκης νομίμου διὰ τὸν Τάτιον, ἀποκτιννύουσιν αὐτὸν ἐν Λαβινίῳ θύοντα μετὰ Ῥωμύλου προσπεσόντες, τὸν δὲ Ῥωμύλον ὡς δίκαιον

¹ ἐπὶ φαρμακείᾳ καὶ τέκνων ὑποβολῇ with Cobet: ἐπὶ φαρμακείᾳ τέκνων ἢ κλειδῶν ὑποβολῇ (for poisoning his children or counterfeiting his keys).

ROMULUS

for using poisons, for substituting children, and for adultery; but if a man for any other reason sends his wife away, the law prescribes that half his substance shall belong to his wife, and the other half be consecrate to Ceres; and whosoever puts away his wife, shall make a sacrifice to the gods of the lower world. It is also a peculiar thing that Romulus ordained no penalty for parricides, but called all murder parricide, looking upon one as abominable, and upon the other as impossible. And for many ages his judgement of such a crime seemed to have been right, for no one did any such deed at Rome for almost six hundred years; but after the war with Hannibal, Lucius Hostius is reported to have been the first parricide. So much, then, may suffice concerning these matters.

XXIII. In the fifth year of the reign of Tatius, some retainers and kinsmen of his, falling in with ambassadors from Laurentum on their way to Rome, attempted to rob them of their money,¹ and when they would not stand and deliver, slew them. It was a bold and dreadful crime, and Romulus thought its perpetrators ought to be punished at once, but Tatius tried to put off and turn aside the course of justice. This was the sole occasion of open variance between them; in all other matters they acted in the utmost concert and administered affairs with unanimity. The friends of the slain ambassadors, shut out as they were from all lawful redress, through the efforts of Tatius, fell upon him as he was sacrificing with Romulus at Lavinium, and killed him, but escorted Romulus on his way with loud praises of his

¹ Cf. Livy, i. 14, 1-3.

PLUTARCH'S LIVES

- 3 ἄνδρα προὔπεμψαν εὐφημοῦντες. ὁ δὲ τὸ μὲν σῶμα τοῦ Τατίου κομίσας ἐντίμως ἔθαψε, καὶ κείται περὶ τὸ καλούμενον Ἄρμιλούστριον ἐν Ἄουεντίῳ, τῆς δὲ δίκης τοῦ φόνου παντάπασιν ἠμέλησεν. ἔνιοι δὲ τῶν συγγραφέων ἱστοροῦσι τὴν μὲν πόλιν τῶν Λαυρεντίων φοβηθεῖσαν ἐκδιδόναι τοὺς αὐτόχειρας Τατίου, τὸν δὲ Ῥωμύλον
- 4 ἀφεῖναι, φήσαντα φόνον φόνοφ λελύσθαι. τοῦτο δὲ λόγον μὲν τινα παρέσχε καὶ ὑποψίαν ὡς ἀσμένῳ γέγονεν αὐτῷ τὸ τοῦ συνάρχοντος ἀπαλλαγῆναι, τῶν δὲ πραγμάτων οὐδὲν διετάραξεν, οὐδὲ διεστασίασε τοὺς Σαβίνους, ἀλλ' οἱ μὲν εὐνοία τῇ πρὸς αὐτόν, οἱ δὲ φόβῳ τῆς δυνάμεως, οἱ δ' ὡς θεῷ χρώμενοι εἰς πᾶσαν εὐνοίαν,¹ θανμάζοντες διετέλουν.
- 5 Ἐθαύμαζον δὲ πολλοὶ καὶ τῶν ἐκτὸς ἀνθρώπων τὸν Ῥωμύλον· οἱ δὲ προγενέστεροι Λατῖνοι πέμψαντες αὐτῷ φιλίαν ἐποίησαντο καὶ συμμαχίαν. Φιδήνας δὲ εἶλεν, ἀστυγείτονα τῆς Ῥώμης πόλιν, ὡς μὲν ἔνιοί φασιν, ἐξαίφνης τοὺς ἰππέας πέμψας καὶ κελεύσας ὑποτεμεῖν τῶν πυλῶν τοὺς στροφίγγας, εἶτα ἐπιφανεῖς αὐτὸς ἀπροσδοκῆτως·
- 6 ἕτεροι δὲ λέγουσι προτέρους ἐκείνους ἐμβαλόντας ἐλάσασθαί τε λείαν καὶ καθυβρίσαι πολλὰ τὴν χώραν καὶ τὸ προύστειον, ἐνέδρας δὲ τὸν Ῥωμύλον θέμενον αὐτοῖς καὶ διαφθείραντα πολλοὺς λαβεῖν τὴν πόλιν. οὐ μὲν ἀνεῖλεν οὐδὲ κατέσκαψεν, ἀλλὰ Ῥωμαίων ἐποίησεν ἀποικίαν,

¹ χρώμενοι εἰς πᾶσαν εὐνοίαν MSS., Coraës ; Bekker corrects το χρώμενον εἰς πᾶν εὐμενεῖ (because heaven favoured him in all his undertakings.)

ROMULUS

justice. Romulus brought the body of Tatius home and gave it honourable burial, and it lies near the so-called Armilustrum, on the Aventine hill; but he took no steps whatsoever to bring his murderers to justice. And some historians write that the city of Laurentum, in terror, delivered up the murderers of Tatius, but that Romulus let them go, saying that murder had been requited with murder. This led some to say and suspect that he was glad to be rid of his colleague, but it caused no disturbance in the government, nor did it lead the Sabines into faction, nay, some through the good-will they had for him, others through their fear of his power, and others because they regarded him as a benevolent god, all continued to hold him in reverence to the end.

Romulus was held in reverence also by many foreign peoples, and the earlier Latins sent ambassadors and established friendship and alliance with him. Fidenæ, a neighbouring city to Rome, he took,¹ as some say, by sending his horsemen of a sudden with orders to cut away the pivots of the gates, and then appearing himself unexpectedly; but others say that the men of Fidenæ first made an incursion, driving off booty and devastating the territory and outskirts of the city, and that Romulus set an ambush for them, killed many of them, and took their city. He did not, however, destroy or raze it to the ground, but made it a colony of Rome, and sent thither

¹ Cf. Livy, i. 14, 4-11.

δισχιλίους καὶ πεντακοσίους ἀποστείλας οἰκήτορας εἰδοῖς Ἀπριλλίαις.

XXIV. Ἐκ τούτου λοιμὸς ἐμπίπτει, θανάτους μὲν αἰφνιδίους ἀνθρώποις ἄνευ νόσων ἐπιφέρων, ἀπτόμενος δὲ καὶ καρπῶν ἀφορίαις καὶ θρεμμάτων ἀγονίαις. ὕσθη δὲ καὶ σταγόσιν αἵματος ἢ πόλις, ὥστε πολλὴν προσγενέσθαι τοῖς ἀναγκαίοις πάθει δεισιδαιμονίαν. ἐπεὶ δὲ καὶ τοῖς τὸ Λαύρεντον οἰκοῦσιν ὅμοια συνέβαινον, ἤδη παντάπασι ἐδόκει τῶν ἐπὶ Γατίῳ συγκεχυμένων δικαίων ἐπὶ τε τοῖς πρέσβεσι φονευθεῖσι μῆνιμα δαιμόνιον ἀμφοτέρας ἐλαύνειν τὰς πόλεις. ἐκδοθέντων δὲ τῶν φονέων καὶ κολασθέντων παρ' ἀμφοτέροις, ἐλώφησεν ἐπιδήλως τὰ δεινὰ καὶ καθαρμοῖς ὁ Ῥωμύλος ἤγγισε τὰς πόλεις, οὓς ἔτι νῦν ἱστοροῦσιν ἐπὶ τῆς Φερεντίνης πύλης συντελεῖσθαι.

Πρὶν δὲ λῆξαι τὸν λοιμὸν ἐπέθεντο Καμέριοι 33
 Ῥωμαίοις καὶ κατέδραμον τὴν χώραν, ὡς ἀδυνατώντων ἀμύνεσθαι διὰ τὸ πάθος. εὐθύς οὖν ὁ 3
 Ῥωμύλος ἐστράτευσε ἐπ' αὐτοὺς καὶ μάχῃ κρατήσας ἐξακισχιλίους ἀπέκτεινε· καὶ τὴν πόλιν ἐλών, τοὺς μὲν ἡμίσεις τῶν περιγενομένων εἰς Ῥώμην ἐξώκισε, τῶν δ' ὑπομερόντων διπλασίους ἐκ Ῥώμης κατώκισεν εἰς τὴν Καμερίαν Σεξτιλίας καλάνδαις. τοσοῦτον αὐτῷ περιῆν πολιτῶν ἐκκαίδεκα ἔτη σχεδὸν οἰκοῦντι τὴν Ῥώμην. ἐν δὲ τοῖς ἄλλοις λαφύροις καὶ χαλκοῦν ἐκόμισε τέθριππον ἐκ Καμερίας· τοῦτο δὲ ἀνέστησεν ἐν τῷ ἱερῷ τοῦ Ἡφαίστου, ποιησάμενος ἐαυτὸν ὑπὸ Νίκης στεφανούμενον·

XXV. Οὕτω δὲ ῥωννυμένοις τοῖς πράγμασι ν οἱ μὲν ἀσθενέστεροι τῶν προσοίκων ὑπεδύοντο

ROMULUS

twenty-five hundred colonists, on the Ides of April.

XXIV. After this, a plague fell upon the land, bringing sudden death without previous sickness upon the people, and afflicting the crops with unfruitfulness and the cattle with barrenness. There was a rain of blood also in the city, so that many superstitious fears were added to their unavoidable sufferings. And when similar calamities visited the people of Laurentum, all agreed at once that it was the miscarriage of justice for the death of Tatius and the slain ambassadors which brought the wrath of heaven down upon both cities. The murderers, therefore, were delivered up on both sides and punished, and the mischief visibly abated. Romulus also purified the cities with lustral rites, which they say are celebrated to this day at the Ferentine gate.

But before the pestilence had ceased, the people of Cameria attacked the Romans and overran their territory, thinking them incapable of defending themselves by reason of their distress. Romulus therefore at once marched against them, overcame them in battle, and killed six thousand of them. He also took their city, transplanted half of the survivors to Rome, and sent to Cameria as colonists from Rome twice the number he had left there, and this on the first of August. So many citizens had he to spare after dwelling in Rome less than sixteen years. Among other spoils he brought also a bronze four-horse chariot from Cameria, and dedicated it in the temple of Vulcan. For it he had a statue made of himself, with a figure of Victory crowning him.

XXV. The Roman state thus gathering strength, its weaker neighbours submitted to it, and were

PLUTARCH'S LIVES

- καὶ τυγχάνοντες ἀδείας ἡγάπων· οἱ δὲ δυνατοὶ
 δεδιότες καὶ φθονοῦντες οὐκ ᾔνοντο δεῖν περιορᾶν,
 ἀλλ' ἐνίστασθαι τῇ αὐξήσει καὶ κολουεῖν τὸν Ῥωμύλον. πρῶτοι δὲ Τυρρηνῶν Οὐήιοι, χώραν κεκτημένοι πολλὴν καὶ πόλιν μεγάλην οἰκοῦντες, ἀρχὴν ἐποιήσαντο πολέμου Φιδήνας ἀπαιτεῖν,
 2 ὡς προσήκουσαν αὐτοῖς. τὸ δ' οὐκ ἄδικον ἦν
 μόνον, ἀλλὰ καὶ γελοῖον, ὅτι κινδυνεύουσι τότε
 καὶ πολεμουμένοις οὐ προσαμύναντες, ἀλλ' ἐάσαντες ἀπολέσθαι τοὺς ἄνδρας, οἰκίας καὶ γῆν
 ἀπαιτοῖεν ἄλλων ἐχόντων. καθυβρισθέντες οὖν
 ὑπὸ τοῦ Ῥωμύλου ἐν ταῖς ἀποκρίσεσι δίχα διεῖλον
 ἑαυτούς, καὶ τῷ μὲν ἐπέκειντο τῷ Φιδηνῶν στρατεύματι, τῷ δὲ πρὸς Ῥωμύλον ἀπήντων. πρὸς
 μὲν οὖν Φιδήναις δισχιλίους Ῥωμαίων κρατή-σαντες ἀπέκτειναν, ὑπὸ Ῥωμύλου δὲ νικηθέντες
 3 ὑπὲρ ὀκτακισχιλίους ἀπέβαλον. αὐθις δὲ περὶ Φιδήνην ἐμαχέσαντο· καὶ τὸ μὲν πλείστον ἔργον
 αὐτοῦ Ῥωμύλου γενέσθαι, τέχνην τε μετὰ τόλμης
 πᾶσαν ἐπιδειξαμένου ῥώμῃ τε καὶ ποδωκείᾳ
 πολὺν δόξαντος ἀνθρωπίνης κρείττονι κεχρηῆσθαι, πάντες ὁμολογοῦσι· τὸ δ' ὑπ' ἐνίων λεγόμενον
 κομιδῇ μυθῶδές ἐστι, μᾶλλον δὲ ὄλως ἄπιστον,
 ὅτι μυρίων καὶ τετρακισχιλίων πεσόντων ὑπερημίσεις ἦσαν οὓς αὐτὸς ἰδίᾳ χειρὶ Ῥωμύλος ἔ-κτεινεν, ὅπου γε καὶ Μεσσήνιοι κόμπῳ χρήσασθαι
 δοκοῦσι περὶ Ἀριστομένους λέγοντες ὡς τρεῖς
 4 ἑκατομφόνια θύσειεν ἀπὸ Λακεδαιμονίων.

ROMULUS

satisfied to be let alone ; but the powerful ones, out of fear and jealousy, thought they ought not to tolerate, but resist and check the growing power of Romulus. And of the Tuscans, the people of Veii, who possessed much territory and dwelt in a great city, were the first to begin war¹ with a demand for Fidenae, which they said belonged to them. Now this was not only unjust, it was actually ridiculous, that they, who had not come to the aid of the people of Fidenae when they were in the perils of war, but suffered them to perish, then demanded their houses and land from those who had come into possession of them. Accordingly, Romulus gave them contemptuous answers, upon which they divided themselves into two armies, attacked Fidenae with one, and confronted Romulus with the other. Before Fidenae, then, they overpowered two thousand Romans and slew them ; but they were defeated by Romulus with a loss of eight thousand men. Once more a battle was fought near Fidenae, and here all agree that the victory was chiefly due to Romulus himself, who displayed every possible combination of skill and bravery, and seemed endowed with strength and swiftness far beyond the lot of man. But there is a statement made by some writers which is altogether fabulous, nay rather, wholly incredible, namely, that of the fourteen thousand Tuscans who fell in this battle, more than half were slain by Romulus with his own hand ; for even the Messenians seem to have been boastfully extravagant in saying that Aristomenes thrice offered sacrifice for a hundred Lacedaemonian enemies slain.

After the rout of the enemy, Romulus suffered the

¹ Cf. Livy, i. 15, 1-5.

PLUTARCH'S LIVES

περιόντας ὁ Ῥωμύλος, ἐπ' αὐτὴν ἐχώρει τὴν πόλιν· οἱ δ' οὐκ ἠνέσχοντο μεγάλης συμφορᾶς γενομένης, ἀλλὰ δεηθέντες ὁμολογίαν ἐποιήσαντο καὶ φιλίαν εἰς ἔτη ἑκατόν, χώραν τε πολλὴν προέμενοι τῆς ἑαυτῶν, ἣν Σεπτεμπάγιον καλοῦσιν, ὅπερ ἐστὶν ἑπταμόριον, καὶ τῶν παρὰ τὸν ποταμὸν ἐκστάντες ἀλοπηγίων, καὶ πεντήκοντα
 5 τῶν ἀρίστων ὁμήρους ἐγχειρίσαντες, ἐθριάμβευσε δὲ καὶ ἀπὸ τούτων εἰδοῖς Ὀκτωβρίαις, ἄλλους τε πολλοὺς αἰχμαλώτους ἔχων καὶ τὸν ἡγεμόνα τῶν Οὐήτων, ἄνδρα πρεσβύτην, ἀφρόνως δόξαντα καὶ παρ' ἡλικίαν ἀπίεως τοῖς πράγμασι κεχρησθαι. διὸ καὶ νῦν ἔτι θύοντες ἐπινίκια, γέροντα μὲν ἄγουσι δι' ἀγορᾶς εἰς Καπιτώλιον ἐν περιπορφύρῳ, βούλλαν αὐτῷ παιδικὴν ἄψαντες, κηρύττει δ' ὁ κῆρυξ Σαρδιανούς ὠνίους. Τυρρηνοὶ γὰρ ἄποικοι Σαρδιανῶν λέγονται, Τυρρηνικὴ δὲ πόλις οἱ Οὐήιοι.

XXVI. Τοῦτον ἔσχατον πόλεμον ὁ Ῥωμύλος ἐπολέμησεν. εἶθ', ὃ πολλοί, μᾶλλον δὲ πλὴν ὀλίγων πάσχουσι πάντες οἱ μεγάλαις καὶ παραλόγοις ἀρθέντες εὐτυχίαις εἰς δύναμιν καὶ ὄγκον, οὐδ' αὐτὸς διέφυγε παθεῖν, ἀλλ' ἐκτεθαρρηκῶς τοῖς πράγμασι καὶ βαρυτέρῳ φρονήματι χρώμενος, ἐξίστατο τοῦ δημοτικοῦ, καὶ παρήλλαττεν εἰς μοναρχίαν ἐπαχθῆ καὶ λυπούσαν ἀπὸ τοῦ σχήματος πρῶτον ᾧ κατεσχημάτιζεν ἑαυτόν.
 2 ἀλουργῆ μὲν γὰρ ἐνεδύετο χιτῶνα, καὶ τήβεννον ἐφόρει περιπόρφυρον, ἐν θρόνῳ δ' ἀνακλίτῳ καθήμενος ἐχρημάτιζεν. ἦσαν δὲ περὶ αὐτὸν αἰεὶ τῶν νέων οἱ καλούμενοι Κέλερες, ἀπὸ τῆς περὶ τὰς ὑπουργίας ὀξύτητος. ἐβάδιζον δὲ πρόσ-

ROMULUS

survivors to escape, and moved upon their city itself. But they could not hold out after so great a reverse, and suing for peace, made a treaty of friendship for a hundred years, giving up a large portion of their territory, called Septempagium, or the Seven Districts, abandoning their salt-works along the river, and delivering up fifty of their chief men as hostages. Romulus also celebrated a triumph for this victory on the Ides of October, having in his train, besides many other captives, the leader of the Veientes, an elderly man, who seems to have conducted the campaign unwisely, and without the experience to be expected of his years. Wherefore to this very day, in offering a sacrifice for victory, they lead an old man through the forum to the Capitol, wearing a boy's toga with a bulla attached to it, while the herald cries: "Sardians for sale!" For the Tuscans are said to be colonists from Sardis, and Veii is a Tuscan city.

XXVI. This was the last war waged by Romulus. Afterwards, like many, nay, like almost all men who have been lifted by great and unexpected strokes of good fortune to power and dignity, even he was emboldened by his achievements to take on a haughtier bearing, to renounce his popular ways, and to change to the ways of a monarch, which were made hateful and vexatious first by the state which he assumed. For he dressed in a scarlet tunic, and wore over it a toga bordered with purple, and sat on a recumbent throne when he gave audience. And he had always about him some young men called Celeres, from their swiftness in doing service.¹ Others, too, went ¹ Cf. chapter x. 2; and Livy, i. 15, 8.

PLUTARCH'S LIVES

θεν ἕτεροι βακτηρίαις ἀνείργοντες τὸν ὄχλον, ὑπεζωσμένοι δὲ ἰμάντας, ὥστε συνδεῖν εὐθύς οὖς προστάξειε.

- 3 Τὸ δὲ δῆσαι Λατῖνοι πάλαι μὲν λιγᾶρε, νῦν δὲ ἀλλιγᾶρε καλοῦσιν· ὅθεν οἱ τε ραβδούχοι λικτώρεις, αἱ τε ράβδοι βάκυλα καλοῦνται, διὰ τὸ χρῆσθαι τότε βακτηρίαις. εἰκὸς δὲ λικτώρεις ἐντιθεμένου τοῦ κάππα νῦν ὀνομάζεσθαι, πρότερον λιτώρεις, Ἑλληνιστὶ δὲ λειτουργοὺς ὄντας. λήϊτον γὰρ τὸ δημόσιον ἔτι νῦν Ἑλληνες καὶ λαὸν τὸ πλῆθος ὀνομάζουσιν.

- XXVII. Ἐπεὶ δὲ τοῦ πάππου Νομήτορος ἐν Ἄλβη τελευτήσαντος, αὐτῷ βασιλεύειν προσήκον, εἰς μέσον ἔθηκε τὴν πολιτείαν δημαγωγῶν, καὶ κατ' ἐνιαυτὸν ἀπεδείκνυεν ἄρχοντα τοῖς Ἀλβανοῖς, ἐδίδαξε καὶ τοὺς ἐν Ῥώμῃ δυνατοὺς ἀβασίλευτον ζητεῖν καὶ αὐτόνομον πολιτείαν, ἀρχομένους ἐν μέρει καὶ ἄρχοντας. οὐδὲ γὰρ οἱ καλούμενοι πατρίκιοι πραγμάτων μετεῖχον, ἀλλ' ὄνομα καὶ σχῆμα περιῆν ἐντιμον αὐτοῖς, ἔθους ἔνεκα μᾶλλον ἢ γνώμης ἀθροιζομένοις εἰς τὸ βουλευ-
- 2 τήριον. εἶτα σιγῇ προστάττοντος ἠκροῶντο· καὶ τῷ πρότεροι τὸ δεδογμένον ἐκείνῳ πυθέσθαι τῶν πολλῶν πλέον ἔχοντες ἀπηλλάττοντο. καὶ τᾶλλα μὲν ἦν ἐλάττονα· τῆς δὲ γῆς τὴν δορίκτητον

ROMULUS

before him with staves, keeping off the populace, and they were girt with thongs, with which to bind at once those whom he ordered to be bound.

To bind, in the Latin language, was formerly "ligare," though now it is "alligare"; whence the wand-bearers are called "lictores," and the wands themselves "bacula," from the use, in the time of Romulus, of "bakteriai," which is the Greek word for staves.¹ But it is likely that the "c" in the word "lictores," as now used, has been added, and that the word was formerly "litores," which is the Greek "leitourgoi," meaning public servants. For the Greeks still call a public hall "leiton," and the people "laos."¹

XXVII. But when his grandfather Numitor died in Alba, and its throne devolved upon Romulus, he courted the favour of the people by putting the government in their hands, and appointed an annual ruler for the Albans. In this way he taught the influential men at Rome also to seek after a form of government which was independent and without a king, where all in turn were subjects and rulers. For by this time not even the so-called patricians had any share in the administration of affairs, but a name and garb of honour was all that was left them, and they assembled in their council-chamber more from custom than for giving advice. Once there, they listened in silence to the commands of the king, and went away with this advantage only over the multitude, that they learned earlier what he had decreed. The rest of his proceedings were of lesser importance; but when of his own motion merely

¹ For this assumed use of Greek words by the Romans, cf. chapter xv. 3.

- αὐτὸς ἐφ' ἑαυτοῦ δασάμενος τοῖς στρατιώταις, καὶ τοὺς ὁμήρους τοῖς Οὐητοῖς ἀποδοῦς, οὔτε πεισθέντων οὔτε βουλομένων ἐκείνων, ἔδοξε κο-
- 3 μιδῆ τὴν γερουσίαν προπηλακίζειν. ὅθεν εἰς ὑποψίαν καὶ διαβολὴν ἐνέπεσε παραλόγως ἀφανισθέντος αὐτοῦ μετ' ὀλίγον χρόνον. ἠφανίσθη δὲ νῶναις Ἰουλίαις, ὡς νῦν ὀνομάζουσιν, ὡς δὲ τότε, Κυντιλίαις, οὐδὲν εἰπεῖν βέβαιον οὐδὲ ὁμολογούμενον πυθέσθαι περὶ τῆς τελευτῆς ἀπολιπών, ἀλλ' ἢ τὸν χρόνον, ὡς προείρηται. δρᾶται γὰρ ἔτι νῦν ὅμοια τῷ τότε πάθει πολλὰ κατὰ τὴν ἡμέραν ἐκείνην.
- 4 Οὐ δεῖ δὲ θαυμάζειν τὴν ἀσάφειαν, ὅπου Σκηπίωνος Ἀφρικανοῦ μετὰ δεῖπνον οἴκοι τελευτήσαντος, οὐκ ἔσχε πίστιν οὐδ' ἔλεγχον ὁ τρόπος τῆς τελευτῆς, ἀλλ' οἱ μὲν αὐτομάτως ὄντα φύσει νόσώδη καμεῖν λέγουσιν, οἱ δ' αὐτὸν ὑφ' ἑαυτοῦ φαρμάκοις ἀποθανεῖν, οἱ δὲ τοὺς ἐχθροὺς τὴν ἀναπνοὴν ἀπολαβεῖν αὐτοῦ νύκτωρ παρεισπεσόν-
- 5 τας. καίτοι Σκηπίων ἔκειτο νεκρὸς ἐμφανῆς ἰδεῖν πᾶσι, καὶ τὸ σῶμα παρείχε πᾶσιν ὀρώμενον ὑποψίαν τινὰ τοῦ πάθους καὶ κατανοήσιν. Ῥωμύλου δὲ ἄφνω μεταλλάξαντος οὔτε μέρος ὤφθη σώματος οὔτε λείψανον ἐσθῆτος. ἀλλ' οἱ μὲν εἵκαζον ἐν τῷ ἱερῷ τοῦ Ἡφαίστου τοὺς βουλευτὰς ἐπαναστάντας αὐτῷ καὶ διαφθείραντας, νείμαντας τὸ σῶμα καὶ μέρος ἕκαστον ἐνθήμενον εἰς
- 6 τὸν κόλπον ἐξενεγκεῖν. ἕτεροι δ' οἴονται μήτε ἐν τῷ ἱερῷ τοῦ Ἡφαίστου μήτε μόνων τῶν βουλευτῶν παρόντων γενέσθαι τὸν ἀφανισμόν, ἀλλὰ τυχεῖν μὲν ἔξω περὶ τὸ καλούμενον αἰγὸς ἔλος

ROMULUS

he divided the territory acquired in war among his soldiers, and gave back their hostages to the Veientes, without the consent or wish of the patricians, he was thought to be insulting their senate outright. Wherefore suspicion and calumny fell upon that body when he disappeared unaccountably a short time after. He disappeared on the Nones of July, as they now call the month, then Quintilis, leaving no certain account nor even any generally accepted tradition of his death, aside from the date of it, which I have just given. For on that day many ceremonies are still performed which bear a likeness to what then came to pass.

Nor need we wonder at this uncertainty, since although Scipio Africanus died at home after dinner, there is no convincing proof of the manner of his end, but some say that he passed away naturally, being of a sickly habit, some that he died of poison administered by his own hand, and some that his enemies broke into his house at night and smothered him. And yet Scipio's dead body lay exposed for all to see, and all who beheld it formed therefrom some suspicion and conjecture of what had happened to it; whereas Romulus disappeared suddenly, and no portion of his body or fragment of his clothing remained to be seen. But some conjectured that the senators, convened in the temple of Vulcan, fell upon him and slew him, then cut his body in pieces, put each a portion into the folds of his robe, and so carried it away. Others think that it was neither in the temple of Vulcan nor when the senators alone were present that he disappeared, but that he was holding an assembly of the people ἐκκλησίαν ἄγοντα τὸν Ῥωμύλον, ἄφνω δὲ θαυμαστὰ καὶ κρείττονα λόγου περὶ τὸν ἀέρα πάθη

 γενέσθαι καὶ μεταβολὰς ἀπίστους· τοῦ μὲν γὰρ
 ἡλίου τὸ φῶς ἐπιλιπεῖν, νύκτα δὲ κατασχεῖν, οὐ
 πραεῖαν, οὐδὲ ἥσυχον, ἀλλὰ βροντάς τε δεινὰς
 καὶ πνοὰς ἀνέμων ζάλην ἐλαυνόντων πανταχόθεν
 7 ἔχουσαν· ἐν δὲ τούτῳ τὸν μὲν πολὺν ὄχλον σκεδασθέντα φυγεῖν, τοὺς δὲ δυνατοὺς συστραφῆναι μετ' ἀλλήλων· ἐπεὶ δ' ἔληξεν ἡ ταραχὴ καὶ
 τὸ φῶς ἐξέλαμψε καὶ τῶν πολλῶν εἰς ταῦτό
 πάλιν συνερχομένων ζήτησις ἦν τοῦ βασιλέως
 καὶ πόθος, οὐκ ἔαν τοὺς δυνατοὺς ἐξετάξειν οὐδὲ πολυπραγμονεῖν, ἀλλὰ τιμᾶν παρακελεύεσθαι 35
 πᾶσι καὶ σέβεσθαι Ῥωμύλον, ὡς ἀνηρπασμένον
 εἰς θεοὺς καὶ θεὸν εὐμενῆ γενησόμενον αὐτοῖς ἐκ 8 χρηστοῦ βασιλέως. τοὺς μὲν οὖν πολλοὺς ταῦτα πειθομένους καὶ χαίροντας ἀπαλλάττεσθαι
 μετ' ἐλπίδων ἀγαθῶν προσκυνούντας· εἶναι δέ
 τινες οἱ τὸ πρᾶγμα πικρῶς καὶ δυσμενῶς ἐξελέγ-χοντες ἐτάραττον τοὺς πατρικίους καὶ διέβαλλον,
 ὡς ἀβέλτερα τὸν δῆμον ἀναπείθοντας, αὐτοὺς δὲ
 τοῦ βασιλέως αὐτόχειρας ὄντας.

XXVIII. Οὕτως οὖν ¹ ἄνδρα τῶν πατρικίων
 γένει πρῶτον, ἧθει τε δοκιμώτατον, αὐτῷ τε Ῥωμύλῳ πιστὸν καὶ συνήθη, τῶν ἀπ' Ἀλβης
 ἐποίκων, Ἰούλιον Πρόκλον, εἰς ἀγορὰν προελ-θόντα ² καὶ τῶν ἀγιωτάτων ἔνορκον ἱερῶν ἀψάμενον εἰπεῖν ἐν πᾶσιν ὡς ὁδὸν αὐτῷ βαδίζοντι
 Ῥωμύλος ἐξ ἐναντίας προσιῶν φανείη, καλὸς μὲν

¹ οὕτως οὖν Coraës, following Stephanus and C, has οὕτως
 οὖν ταραπτομένων (while such disorder prevailed).

² προελθόντα MSS., Coraës, Sintenis¹: παρελθόντα.

ROMULUS

outside the city near the so-called Goat's Marsh,¹ when suddenly strange and unaccountable disorders with incredible changes filled the air; the light of the sun failed, and night came down upon them, not with peace and quiet, but with awful peals of thunder and furious blasts driving rain from every quarter, during which the multitude dispersed and fled, but the nobles gathered closely together; and when the storm had ceased, and the sun shone out, and the multitude, now gathered together again in the same place as before, anxiously sought for their king, the nobles would not suffer them to inquire into his disappearance nor busy themselves about it, but exhorted them all to honour and revere Romulus, since he had been caught up into heaven, and was to be a benevolent god for them instead of a good king. The multitude, accordingly, believing this and rejoicing in it, went away to worship him with good hopes of his favour; but there were some, it is said, who tested the matter in a bitter and hostile spirit, and confounded the patricians with the accusation of imposing a silly tale upon the people, and of being themselves the murderers of the king.

XXVIII. At this pass, then, it is said that one of the patricians, a man of noblest birth, and of the most reputable character, a trusted and intimate friend also of Romulus himself, and one of the colonists from Alba, Julius Proculus by name,² went into the forum and solemnly swore by the most sacred emblems before all the people that, as he was travelling on the road, he had seen Romulus coming

¹ Cf. Livy, i. 16, 1-4.

² Cf. Livy, i. 16, 5-8.

PLUTARCH'S LIVES

- ὀφθῆναι καὶ μέγας, ὡς οὐποτε πρόσθεν, ὄπλοις δὲ
 2 λαμπροῖς καὶ φλέγουσι κεκοσμημένος. αὐτὸς μὲν
 οὖν ἐκπλαγεῖς πρὸς τὴν ὄψιν “ὦ βασιλεῦ,” φάναι, “τί δὴ παθὼν ἢ διανοηθεῖς ἡμᾶς μὲν ἐν
 αἰτίαις ἀδίκους καὶ πονηραῖς, πᾶσαν δὲ τὴν πόλιν
 ὀρφανὴν ἐν μυρίῳ πένθει προλέλοιπας;” ἐκείνον
 δ’ ἀποκρίνασθαι, “Θεοῖς ἔδοξεν, ὦ Πρόκλε, τοσοῦτον ἡμᾶς γενέσθαι μετ’ ἀνθρώπων χρόνον, ἐκεῖθεν
 ὄντας,¹ καὶ πόλιν ἐπ’ ἀρχῇ καὶ δόξῃ μεγίστη
 κτίσαντας αὐθις οἰκεῖν οὐρανόν. ἀλλὰ χαῖρε, καὶ
 φράζε Ῥωμαίοις ὅτι σωφροσύνην μετ’ ἀνδρείας
 ἀσκούντες ἐπὶ πλείστον ἀνθρωπίνης ἀφίξονται
 3 Κυρίως.” ταῦτα πιστὰ μὲν εἶναι τοῖς Ῥωμαίοις
 ἔδοκει διὰ τὸν τρόπον τοῦ λέγοντος καὶ διὰ τὸν
 ὄρκον· οὐ μὴν ἀλλὰ καὶ δαιμόνιον τι συνεφάψασθαι πάθος ὅμοιον ἐνθουσιασμῷ· μηδένα
 γὰρ ἀντειπεῖν, ἀλλὰ πᾶσαν ὑπόνοιαν καὶ διαβολὴν ἀφέντας εὐχεσθαι Κυρίῳ καὶ θεοκλυ-τεῖν ἐκείνον.
- 4 Ἔοικε μὲν οὖν ταῦτα τοῖς ὑφ’ Ἑλλήνων περὶ
 τε Ἀριστέου τοῦ Προκονησίου καὶ Κλεομήδους
 τοῦ Ἀστυπαλαιέως μυθολογουμένοις. Ἀριστέαν
 μὲν γὰρ ἐν τινι κναφείῳ τελευτήσασθαι φασί, καὶ τὸ
 σῶμα μετιόντων αὐτοῦ τῶν φίλων ἀφανὲς οἴχεσθαι· λέγειν δὲ τινας εὐθύς ἐξ ἀποδημίας ἦκοντας
 ἐντυχεῖν Ἀριστέα τὴν ἐπὶ Κρότωνος πορευομένῳ· Κλεομήδη δέ, ῥώμη καὶ μεγέθει σώματος ὑπερ-φυᾷ γενόμενον ἔμπληκτόν τε τῷ τρόπῳ καὶ
 μανικὸν ὄντα, πολλὰ δρᾶν βίαια, καὶ τέλος ἔν

¹ ἐκεῖθεν ὄντας MSS., Coraës, Sintenis¹, and Bekker; Sintenis² transposes to follow οὐρανόν.

ROMULUS

to meet him, fair and stately to the eye as never before, and arrayed in bright and shining armour. He himself, then, affrighted at the sight, had said: "O King, what possessed thee, or what purpose hadst thou, that thou hast left us patricians a prey to unjust and wicked accusations, and the whole city sorrowing without end at the loss of its father?" Whereupon Romulus had replied: "It was the pleasure of the gods, O Proculus, from whom I came, that I should be with mankind only a short time, and that after founding a city destined to be the greatest on earth for empire and glory, I should dwell again in heaven. So farewell, and tell the Romans that if they practise self-restraint, and add to it valour, they will reach the utmost heights of human power. And I will be your propitious deity, Quirinus." These things seemed to the Romans worthy of belief, from the character of the man who related them, and from the oath which he had taken; moreover, some influence from heaven also, akin to inspiration, laid hold upon their emotions, for no man contradicted Proculus, but all put aside suspicion and calumny and prayed to Quirinus, and honoured him as a god.

Now this is like the fables which the Greeks tell about Aristeas of Proconnesus¹ and Cleomedes of Astypaleia.² For they say that Aristeas died in a fuller's shop, and that when his friends came to fetch away his body, it had vanished out of sight; and presently certain travellers returning from abroad said they had met Aristeas journeying towards Croton. Cleomedes also, who was of gigantic strength and stature, of uncontrolled temper, and like a mad man, is said to have done many deeds

¹ Cf. Herodotus, iv. 14 f.

² Cf. Pausanias, ix. 6 ff.

PLUTARCH'S LIVES

τινι διδασκαλείῳ παίδων τὸν ὑπερείδοντα τὴν ὀροφήν κίονα πατάξαντα τῇ χειρὶ κλάσαι μέσον
 5 καὶ τὴν στέγην καταβαλεῖν. ἀπολομένων δὲ τῶν παίδων διωκόμενον εἰς κιβωτὸν καταφυγεῖν μεγάλην, καὶ τὸ πῶμα κατακλείσαντα συνέχειν ἐντός, ὥστε ἀποσπάσαι μὴ δύνασθαι πολλοὺς ὁμοῦ βιαζομένους· κατασχίσαντας δὲ τὴν κιβωτὸν οὔτε ζῶντα τὸν ἄνθρωπον εὔρειν οὔτε νεκρόν. ἐκπλαγέντας οὖν ἀποστεῖλαι θεοπρόπους εἰς Δελφούς, οἷς τὴν Πυθίαν εἶπεῖν·

Ἐσχατος ἡρώων Κλεομήδης Ἀστυπάλαιεύς.

6 λέγεται δὲ καὶ τὸν Ἀλκμήνης ἐκκομιζομένης νεκρὸν ἄδηλον γενέσθαι, λίθον δὲ φανῆναι κείμενον ἐπὶ τῆς κλίνης. καὶ ὅλως πολλὰ τοιαῦτα μυθολογοῦσι, παρὰ τὸ εἰκὸς ἐκθειάζοντες τὰ θνητὰ τῆς φύσεως ἅμα τοῖς θείοις.

Ἀπογνῶναι μὲν οὖν παντάπασι τὴν θειότητα τῆς ἀρετῆς ἀνόσιον καὶ ἀγεννές, οὐρανῷ δὲ μιγνύειν γῆν ἀβέλτερον. ἐατέον οὖν, ἐχομένοις τῆς ἀσφαλείας, κατὰ Πίνδαρον, ὧς σῶμα μὲν πάντων ἔπεται θανάτῳ περισθενεῖ, ζῶν δ' ἔτι λείπεται αἰῶνος εἰδῶλον· τὸ γὰρ

 ἐστὶ μόνον
 ἐκ θεῶν.

7 ἦκει γὰρ ἐκεῖθεν, ἐκεῖ δ' ἄνεισιν, οὐ μετὰ σώματος, ἀλλ' ἐὰν ὅτι μάλιστα σώματος ἀπαλλαγῇ καὶ διακριθῇ καὶ γένηται καθαρὸν παντάπασι καὶ ἄσαρκον καὶ ἄγνόν. Αὕτη γὰρ ψυχὴ

ROMULUS

of violence, and finally, in a school for boys, he smote with his fist the pillar which supported the roof, broke it in two, and brought down the house. The boys were killed, and Aristetas, being pursued, took refuge in a great chest, closed the lid down, and held it so fast that many men with their united strength could not pull it up; but when they broke the chest to pieces, the man was not to be found, alive or dead. In their dismay, then, they sent messengers to consult the oracle at Delphi, and the Pythian priestess gave them this answer:—

“Last of the heroes he, Cleomedes, Astypalaeon.”

It is said also that the body of Alcmena disappeared, as they were carrying her forth for burial, and a stone was seen lying on the bier instead. In short, many such fables are told by writers who improbably ascribe divinity to the mortal features in human nature, as well as to the divine.

At any rate, to reject entirely the divinity of human virtue, were impious and base; but to mix heaven with earth is foolish. Let us therefore take the safe course and grant, with Pindar,¹ that “Our bodies all must follow death’s supreme behest,

But something living still survives, an image of life, for this alone
Comes from the gods.”

Yes, it comes from them, and to them it returns, not with its body, but only when it is most completely separated and set free from the body, and becomes altogether pure, fleshless, and undefiled. For “a dry

¹ Fragment 131, Bergk, Poet. Lyr. Gr. i. 4 p. 427.

ἀρίστη,¹ καθ' Ἡράκλειτον, ὡσπερ ἀστραπή νέ-φους διαπταμένη τοῦ σώματος. ἡ δὲ σώματι πεφυρμένη καὶ περίπλεως σώματος, οἷον ἀναθυμιάσις ἐμβριθῆς καὶ ὀμιχλώδης, δυσέξαπτός ἐστι
 8 καὶ δυσανακόμιστος. οὐδὲν οὖν δεῖ τὰ σώματα
 τῶν ἀγαθῶν συναναπέμπειν παρὰ φύσιν εἰς οὐρανόν, ἀλλὰ τὰς ἀρετὰς καὶ τὰς ψυχὰς παντά-πασιν οἶεσθαι κατὰ φύσιν καὶ δίκην θείαν ἐκ μὲν
 ἀνθρώπων εἰς ἥρωας, ἐκ δ' ἡρώων εἰς δαίμονας,
 ἐκ δὲ δαιμόνων, ἀν τέλεον ὡσπερ ἐν τελετῇ καθαρθῶσι καὶ ὀσιωθῶσι ἅπαν ἀποφυγεῖν τὸ
 θνητὸν καὶ παθητικόν, οὐ νόμῳ πόλεως, ἀλλ'
 ἀληθείᾳ καὶ κατὰ τὸν εἰκότα λόγον εἰς θεοὺς ἀναφέρεσθαι, τὸ κάλλιστον καὶ μακαριώτατον τέλος ἀπολαβούσας.

XXIX. Τὴν δὲ γενομένην ἐπωνυμίαν τῷ Ῥω-μύλῳ τὸν Κυρίνον οἱ μὲν Ἐνυάλιον προσαγορεύ-ουσιν· οἱ δὲ πολίτην,² ὅτι καὶ τοὺς πολίτας Κυρίτας ὠνόμαζον· οἱ δὲ τὴν αἰχμὴν ἢ τὸ δόρυ
 τοὺς παλαιοὺς κύριν ὀνομάζειν, καὶ Κυρίτιδος Ἡρας ἄγαλμα καλεῖν ἐπ' αἰχμῆς ἰδρυμένον, ἐν δὲ
 τῇ Ῥηγίᾳ δόρυ καθιδρυμένον Ἄρεα προσαγορεῦειν, καὶ δόρατι τοὺς ἐν πολέμοις ἀριστεύοντας
 γεραίρειν· ὡς οὖν ἀρήϊόν τινα τὸν Ῥωμύλον ἢ
 2 αἰχμητὴν θεὸν ὀνομασθῆναι Κυρίνον. ἱερὸν μὲν
 οὖν αὐτοῦ κατεσκευασμένον ἐν τῷ λόφῳ τῷ Κυρίνα προσαγορευομένῳ δι' ἐκεῖνον, ἡ δ' ἡμέρα ἢ
 μετήλλαξεν, ὄχλου φυγὴ καλεῖται, καὶ νῶναι
 Καπρατῖναι διὰ τὸ θύειν εἰς τὸ τῆς αἰγὸς ἔλος ἐκ

¹ Ἄθη γὰρ ψυχὴ ἀρίστη Bekker: αὕτη γὰρ ψυχὴ ξηρὴ καὶ ἀρίστη.

² οἱ δὲ πολίτην, ὅτι Coraës and Bekker, with two Bodleian MSS. (Bab): οἱ δὲ ὅτι.

ROMULUS •

soul is best," according to Heracleitus,¹ and it flies from the body as lightning flashes from a cloud. But the soul which is contaminated with body, and surfeited with body, like a damp and heavy exhalation, is slow to release itself and slow to rise towards its source. We must not, therefore, violate nature by sending the bodies of good men with their souls to heaven, but implicitly believe that their virtues and their souls, in accordance with nature and divine justice, ascend from men to heroes, from heroes to demi-gods, and from demi-gods, after they have been made pure and holy, as in the final rites of initiation, and have freed themselves from mortality and sense, to gods, not by civic law, but in very truth and according to right reason, thus achieving the fairest and most blessed consummation.

XXIX. To the surname of Quirinus bestowed on Romulus, some give the meaning of Mars, others that of Citizen, because the citizens were called Quirites; but others say that the ancients called the spear-head (or the whole spear) "quiris," and gave the epithet Quiritis to the Juno whose statue leans upon a spear, and the name Mars to a spear consecrated in the Regia, and a spear as a prize to those who performed great exploits in war; and that Romulus was therefore called Quirinus as a martial, or spear-wielding, god. However that may be, a temple in his honour is built on the hill called Quirinalis after him, and the day on which he vanished is called People's Flight, and Capratine Nones, because they go out of the city and

¹ Fragment 74 (Bywater, Heracliti Ephesii reliquiae, p. 30).

πόλεως κατιόντας· τὴν γὰρ αἶγα κάπραν ὀνομάζουσιν. ἐξιόντες δὲ πρὸς τὴν θυσίαν πολλὰ τῶν
ἐπιχωρίων ὀνομάτων φθέγγονται μετὰ βοῆς, οἶον Μάρκου, Λουκίου, Γαίου, μιμούμενοι τὴν τότε τροπὴν καὶ ἀνάκλησιν ἀλλήλων μετὰ δέους καὶ ταραχῆς.

- 3 Ἐνιοὶ μέντοι τὸ μίμημα τοῦτό φασι μὴ φυγῆς,
ἀλλ' ἐπέιξεως εἶναι καὶ σπουδῆς, εἰς αἰτίαν
τοιαύτην ἀναφέροντες τὸν λόγον. ἐπεὶ Κελτοὶ
τὴν Ῥώμην καταλαβόντες ἐξεκρούσθησαν ὑπὸ Καμίλλου καὶ δι' ἀσθένειαν ἢ πόλις οὐκέτι ῥαδίως ἑαυτὴν ἀνελάμβανεν, ἐστράτευσαν ἐπ' αὐτὴν πολλοὶ τῶν Λατίνων, ἄρχοντα Λίβιον Ποστού-μιον ἔχοντες. οὗτος δὲ καθίσας τὸν στρατὸν οὐ
πρόσω τῆς Ῥώμης ἔπεμπε κήρυκα, βούλεσθαι
λέγων τοὺς Λατίνους ἐκλιποῦσαν ἤδη τὴν παλαιὰν οἰκειότητα καὶ συγγένειαν ἐκζωπυρῆσαι,
καιναῖς αὐθις ἀνακραθέντων ἐπιγαμίαις τῶν
4 γενῶν. ἂν οὖν πέμψωσι παρθένους τε συχνὰς
καὶ γυναικῶν τὰς ἀνάνδρους, εἰρήνην ἔσεσθαι καὶ
φιλίαν αὐτοῖς, ὡς ὑπήρξε πρὸς Σαβίνους πρότερον ἐκ τῶν ὁμοίων. ταῦτα ἀκούσαντες οἱ Ῥωμαῖοι τὸν τε πόλεμον ἐφοβοῦντο καὶ τὴν παρά-δοσιν τῶν γυναικῶν οὐδὲν αἰχμαλωσίας ἐπιεικέστερον ἔχειν ἐνόμιζον. ἀποροῦσι δ' αὐτοῖς θερα-παινα Φιλωτίς, ὡς δ' ἔνιοι λέγουσι, Τουτόλα καλου-μένη, συνεβούλευσε μηδέτερα ποιεῖν, ἀλλὰ χρησαμένους δόλῳ διαφυγεῖν ἅμα τὸν πόλεμον καὶ τὴν
5 ἔξομήρευσιν. ἦν δ' ὁ δόλος αὐτὴν τε τὴν Φιλωτίδα καὶ σὺν αὐτῇ θεραπαιίδας εὐπρεπεῖς
κοσμήσαντας ὡς ἐλευθέρας ἀποστειλαὶ πρὸς τοὺς
πολεμίους· εἶτα νύκτωρ τὴν Φιλωτίδα πυρσὸν sacrifice at the Goat's Marsh ; and "capra" is their word for she-goat. And as they go forth to the sacrifice, they shout out many local names, like Marcus, Lucius, and Caius, in imitation of the way in which, on the day when Romulus disappeared, they called upon one another in fear and confusion.

ROMULUS

Some, however, say that this imitation is not one of flight, but of haste and eagerness, and explain it as referring to the following occasion. After the Gauls had captured Rome and been driven out by Camillus, and when the city was still too weak to recover itself readily, an expedition was made against it by many of the Latins, under the command of Livius Postumius. This general stationed his army not far from Rome, and sent a herald with the message that the Latins wished to renew their ancient relationship and affinity with the Romans, by fresh intermarriages between the two peoples. If, therefore, the Romans would send them a goodly number of virgins and their widows, they should have peace and friendship, such as they had formerly made with the Sabines on the like terms. On hearing this message, the Romans hesitated between going to war, which they feared, and the surrender of their women, which they thought no more desirable than to have them captured. But while they were in this perplexity, a serving-maid called Philotis (or, as some say, Tutola) advised them to do neither, but by the use of a stratagem to escape alike the war and the giving of hostages. Now the stratagem was this, that they should send to the enemy Philotis herself, and with her other comely serving-maids arrayed like free-born women ; then in the night Philotis was to display a signal-fire, at which the

ἀραι, τοὺς δὲ Ῥωμαίους ἐπελθεῖν μετὰ τῶν ὄπλων
καὶ χρήσασθαι κοιμωμένοις τοῖς πολεμίοις. ταῦτα
δ' ἐδράτο πεισθέντων τῶν Λατίνων· καὶ τὸν πυρσὸν
ἀνέσχευ ἡ Φιλωτὶς ἔκ τινος ἐρινεοῦ, περισχοῦσα
προκαλύμμασι καὶ παραπετάσμασιν ὄπισθεν,
ὥστε τοῖς πολεμίοις ἀόρατον εἶναι τὸ φῶς, τοῖς δὲ
6 Ῥωμαίοις κατάδηλον. ὡς οὖν ἐπέιδον, εὐθύς ἐξήγε-σαν ἐπειγόμενοι καὶ διὰ τὴν ἐπειξιν ἀλλήλους περὶ
τὰς πύλας ἀνακαλοῦντες πολλάκις. ἐμπεσόντες δὲ
τοῖς πολεμίοις ἀπροσδοκῆτως καὶ κρατήσαντες, ἐπινίκιον ἄγουσι τὴν ἑορτήν. καὶ Καπρατῖναι
μὲν αἱ νῶναι καλοῦνται διὰ τὸν ἐρινεὸν καπρίφικον ὑπὸ Ῥωμαίων ὀνομαζόμενον, ἐστιῶσι δὲ
τὰς γυναῖκας ἔξω, συκῆς κλάδοις σκιαζόμενας.
αἱ δὲ θεραπαίνιδες ἀγείρουσι περιούσαι καὶ 37
παίζουσιν, εἶτα πληγαῖς καὶ βολαῖς λίθων χρῶνται πρὸς ἀλλήλας, ὡς καὶ τότε τοῖς Ῥωμαίοις
παραγενόμεναι καὶ συναγωνισάμεναι μαχομένοις.
7 Ταῦτ' οὖν¹ πολλοὶ προσίενται τῶν συγγρα-φῶν, ἀλλὰ καὶ τὸ μεθ' ἡμέραν χρῆσθαι τῇ
ἀνακλήσει τῶν ὀνομάτων καὶ τὸ πρὸς τὸ ἔλος τὸ
τῆς αἰγὸς ὡς ἐπὶ θυσίαν² βαδίζοντας ἔοικε τῷ
προτέρῳ λόγῳ προστίθεσθαι μᾶλλον, εἰ μὴ νῆ Δία τῆς αὐτῆς ἡμέρας ἐν χρόνοις ἑτέροις ἀμφό-τερα τὰ πάθη συνέτυχε γενέσθαι. λέγεται δὲ Ῥωμύλος τέσσαρα μὲν ἔτη καὶ πεντήκοντα γε-γονώς, ὄγδοον δὲ βασιλεύων ἐκείνο καὶ τρια-κοστὸν ἔξ ἀνθρώπων ἀφανισθῆναι.

¹ οὖν with Cobet : οὐ (by few).

² θυσίαν with Coraës (as in xxix. 2) : θάλατταν (sea).

ROMULUS

Romans were to come in arms and deal with their enemies while asleep. This was done, with the approval of the Latins, and Philotis displayed the signal-fire from a certain wild fig-tree, screening it behind with coverlets and draperies, so that its light was unseen by the enemy, but visible to the Romans. When, accordingly, they beheld it, they sallied forth at once in great haste, and because of their haste calling upon one another many times at the gates. They fell upon their enemies when they least expected it and mastered them, and now celebrate this festival in memory of their victory. And the Nones on which it falls are called Capratine from the wild fig-tree, the Roman name for which is "caprificus," and they feast the women outside the city in booths made of fig-tree boughs. Then the serving-maids run about in companies and play, after which they strike and throw stones at one another, in token that on that earlier day they assisted the Romans and shared with them in their battle.¹

These details are accepted by many historians, but their calling out one another's names in the day time, and their marching out to the Goat's Marsh as for sacrifice, seem to be more consonant with the former story, unless, to be sure, both actions happened to take place on the same day in different periods. Romulus is said to have been fifty-four years of age, and in the thirty-eighth year of his reign when he disappeared from among men.

¹ Cf. Camillus, xxxiii.

ΘΗΣΕΩΣ ΚΑΙ ΡΩΜΥΛΟΥ ΣΥΓΚΡΙΣΙΣ

I. Ἄ μὲν οὖν ἄξια μνήμης πυθέσθαι περὶ Ῥωμύλου καὶ Θησέως συμβέβηκεν ἡμῖν, ταῦτ'
 ἐστί. φαίνεται δὲ πρῶτον ὁ μὲν ἐκ προαιρέσεως, οὐδενὸς ἀναγκάζοντος, ἀλλ' ἐξὸν ἀδεῶς ἐν Τροί-ζῆνι βασιλεύειν διαδεξάμενον ἀρχὴν οὐκ ἄδοξον, αὐτὸς ἀφ' ἑαυτοῦ μεγάλων ὀρεχθείς· ὁ δὲ δου-
 λείας φυγῆ παρούσης καὶ τιμωρίας ἐπιφερομένης, ἐκείνο τὸ τοῦ Πλάτωνος, ἀτεχνῶς ὑπὸ δέους ἀνδρείος γενόμενος, καὶ φόβῳ τοῦ τὰ ἔσχατα παθεῖν
 2 ἐπὶ τὸ δρᾶν μεγάλα δι' ἀνάγκην παραγενόμενος. ἔπειτα τούτου μὲν ἔργον ἐστὶ τὸ μέγιστον
 ἀνελεῖν ἓνα τὸν Ἄλβης τύραννον, ἐκείνου δὲ
 πάρεργα καὶ προάγωνες ἦσαν ὁ Σκείρων, ὁ Σίνις,
 ὁ Προκρούστης, ὁ Κορυνήτης, οὗς ἀναιρῶν καὶ
 κολάζων ἀπήλαττε τὴν Ἑλλάδα δεινῶν τυράννων
 πρὶν ὅστις ἐστὶ γινώσκειν τοὺς ὑπ' αὐτοῦ σωζο-μένους. καὶ τῷ μὲν παρῆν ἀπραγμόνως κομίζεσθαι διὰ θαλάττης ἀδικουμένῳ μηδὲν ὑπὸ τῶν
 ληστῶν, Ῥωμύλῳ δ' οὐ παρῆν μὴ πράγματα
 3 ἔχειν Ἀμουλίου ζῶντος. μέγα δὲ τούτου τεκμήριον· ὁ μὲν γὰρ οὐδὲν αὐτὸς ἀδικούμενος ὥρμησεν
 ὑπὲρ ἄλλων ἐπὶ τοὺς πονηροὺς, οἱ δ' ὅσον αὐτοὶ
 κακῶς οὐκ ἔπασχον ὑπὸ τοῦ τυράννου, περιεώρων
 ἀδικοῦντα πάντας. καὶ μὴν εἰ μέγα τὸ τρωθῆναι

COMPARISON OF THESEUS AND ROMULUS

COMPARISON OF THESEUS AND ROMULUS

I. SUCH, then, are the memorable things about Romulus and Theseus which I have been able to learn. And it appears, first of all, that Theseus, of his own choice, when no one compelled him, but when it was possible for him to reign without fear at Troezen as heir to no inglorious realm, of his own accord reached out after great achievements; whereas Romulus, to escape present servitude and impending punishment, became simply "courageous out of fear," as Plato phrases it,¹ and through the dread of extreme penalties proceeded to perform great exploits under compulsion. In the second place, the chief deed of Romulus was the slaying of a single tyrant of Alba; whereas for mere by-adventures and preliminary struggles Theseus had Sciron, Sinis, Procrustes, and Corynetes, by slaying and chastising whom he freed Greece from dreadful tyrants before those who were saved by him knew who he was. Theseus might have travelled to Athens by sea without any trouble, and suffering no outrage at the hands of those robbers; whereas Romulus could not be without trouble while Amulius lived. And there is strong proof of this; for Theseus, although he had suffered no wrong at their hands himself, sallied out in behalf of others against those miscreants; while Romulus and Remus, as long as they themselves were not harmed by the tyrant, suffered him to wrong everybody else. And surely, if it was a great thing for Romulus

¹ Phaedo, p. 68 d.

PLUTARCH'S LIVES

μαχόμενον Σαβίνοις καὶ ἀνελεῖν Ἄκρωνα καὶ πολλῶν μάχῃ κρατῆσαι πολεμίων, τούτοις μὲν ἔστι τοῖς ἔργοις κενταυρομαχίαν καὶ τὰ πρὸς
 4 Ἀμαζόνας παραβαλεῖν· ὁ δ' ἐτόλμησε¹ Θησεὺς περὶ τὸν Κρητικὸν δασμόν, εἴτε τινὶ θηρίῳ βοράν, εἴτε πρόσφαγμα τοῖς Ἀνδρόγεω τάφοις, εἶθ', ὁ κουφώτατόν ἐστι τῶν λεγομένων, λατρεύειν παρ' ἀνδράσιν ὑβρισταῖς καὶ δυσμενέσιν ἀκλεῆ λατρείαν καὶ ἄτιμον ἐπιδούς ἑαυτόν, ἐκουσίως μετὰ παρθένων πλεύσας καὶ παίδων νέων, οὐκ ἂν εἴποι τις ἡλικίης ἐστὶ τόλμης ἢ μεγαλοφροσύνης ἢ δικαιοσύνης περὶ τὸ κοινὸν ἢ πόθου δόξης καὶ
 5 ἀρετῆς. ὥστ' ἔμοιγε φαίνεται μὴ κακῶς ὀρίζεσθαι τοὺς φιλοσόφους τὸν ἔρωτα θεῶν ὑπηρεσίαν πρὸς ἐπιμέλειαν καὶ σωτηρίαν νέων. ὁ γὰρ Ἀριάδνης ἔρωσ παντὸς μᾶλλον ἔοικεν ἔργον θεοῦ καὶ μηχανὴ γενέσθαι σωτηρίας ἔνεκα τοῦ ἀνδρός. καὶ οὐκ ἄξιον αἰτιᾶσθαι τὴν ἐρασθεῖσαν, ἀλλὰ θαυμάζειν εἰ μὴ πάντες οὕτω καὶ πᾶσαι διετέθησαν· εἰ δ' ἐκείνη μόνη τοῦτ' ἔπαθεν, εἰκότως ἔγωγε φαίην ἂν αὐτὴν ἀξιέραστον θεῶ γεγενένηναι, φιλόκαλον καὶ φιλάγαθον καὶ τῶν ἀρίστων ἐρωτικὴν οὔσαν.

II. Ἀμφοτέρων τοίνυν τῇ φύσει πολιτικῶν γεγονότων, οὐδέτερος διεφύλαξε τὸν βασιλικὸν τρόπον· ἐξέστη δὲ καὶ μετέβαλε μεταβολὴν ὁ μὲν δημοτικὴν, ὁ δὲ τυραννικὴν, ταῦτόν ἀπ'

¹ ὁ δ' ἐτόλμησε Coraës and Sintenis would begin the second chapter here.

COMPARISON OF THESEUS AND ROMULUS

to be wounded in a battle with the Sabines, and to slay Acron, and to conquer many enemies in battle, with these exploits we may compare, on the part of Theseus, his battle with the Centaurs and his campaign against the Amazons; but as for the daring which he showed about the Cretan tribute, whether that was food for some monster, or a sacrifice on the tomb of Androgeos, or whether—and this is the mildest form of the story—he offered himself for inglorious and dishonourable servitude among insolent and cruel men when he volunteered to sail away with maidens and young boys, words cannot depict such courage, magnanimity, righteous zeal for the common good, or yearning for glory and virtue. It is therefore my opinion that the philosophers¹ give an excellent definition of love when they call it “a ministration of the gods for the care and preservation of the young.” For Ariadne’s love seems to have been, more than anything else, a god’s work, and a device whereby Theseus should be saved. And we should not blame her for loving him, but rather wonder that all men and women were not thus affected towards him; and if she alone felt this passion, I should say, for my part, that she was properly worthy of a god’s love, since she was fond of virtue, fond of goodness, and a lover of the highest qualities in man.

II. Although Theseus and Romulus were both statesmen by nature, neither maintained to the end the true character of a king, but both deviated from it and underwent a change, the former in the direction of democracy, the latter in the direction of tyranny, making thus the same mistake through opposite ἐναντίων παθῶν ἀμαρτόντες. δεῖ γὰρ τὸν ἄρχοντα σώζειν πρῶτον αὐτὴν τὴν ἀρχήν· σώζεται δ' οὐχ ἦττον ἀπεχομένη τοῦ μὴ προσήκουτος ἢ 2 περιεχομένη τοῦ προσήκουτος. ὁ δ' ἐνδιδούς ἢ ἐπιτείνων οὐ μένει βασιλεὺς οὐδὲ ἄρχων, ἀλλ' ἢ δημαγωγὸς ἢ δεσπότης γιγνόμενος, ἐμποιεῖ τὸ μισεῖν ἢ καταφρονεῖν τοῖς ἀρχομένοις. οὐ μὴν ἀλλ' ἐκεῖνο μὲν ἐπιεικείας δοκεῖ καὶ φιλανθρωπίας εἶναι, τοῦτο δὲ φιλαυτίας ἀμάρτημα καὶ χαλεπότητος.

¹ Polemon, as cited in Morals, p. 780 d.

PLUTARCH'S LIVES

III. Εἰ δὲ δεῖ καὶ τὰ δυστυχηθέντα μὴ παντά- 38
 πασι ποιεῖσθαι δαίμονος, ἀλλ' ἠθικὰς καὶ παθη-τικὰς ζητεῖν ἐν αὐτοῖς διαφοράς, θυμοῦ μὲν ἀλογίστου καὶ τάχος ἐχούσης ἄβουλον ὀργῆς μήτε
 τις ἐκεῖνον ἐν τοῖς πρὸς τὸν ἀδελφὸν ἀπολυέτω
 μήτε τοῦτον ἐν τοῖς πρὸς τὸν υἱόν· ἢ δὲ κινήσασα
 τὸν θυμὸν ἀρχὴ μᾶλλον παραιτεῖται τὸν ὑπὸ
 μείζονος αἰτίας ὥσπερ ὑπὸ πληγῆς χαλεπωτέρας
 2 ἀνατραπέντα. Ῥωμύλῳ μὲν γὰρ ἐκ βουλῆς καὶ
 σκέψεως περὶ κοινῶν συμφερόντων διαφορᾶς γε-νομένης οὐκ ἂν ἠξίωσέ τις ἄφνω τὴν διάνοιαν
 ἐν τηλικούτῳ πάθει γενέσθαι· Θησέα δὲ πρὸς
 τὸν υἱόν, ἃ πάμπαν ὀλίγοι τῶν ὄντων διαπεφεύγασιν, ἔρως καὶ ζηλοτυπία καὶ διαβολαὶ γυναικὸς ἔσφηλαν. ὁ δὲ μείζων ἐστίν, ὁ μὲν Ῥωμύλου
 θυμὸς εἰς ἔργον ἐξέπεσε καὶ πρᾶξις οὐκ εὐτυχῆς
 ἔχουσαν τέλος, ἢ δὲ Θησέως ὀργὴ μέχρι λόγου
 καὶ βλασφημίας καὶ κατάρας πρεσβυτικῆς
 προήλθε, τὰ δ' ἄλλα φαίνεται τῇ τύχῃ χρήσασθαι τὸ μειράκιον. ὥστε ταύτας μὲν ἂν τις ἀποδοῖη τῷ Θησεῖ τὰς ψήφους.

COMPARISON OF THESEUS AND ROMULUS

affections. For the ruler must preserve first of all the realm itself, and this is preserved no less by refraining from what is unbecoming than by cleaving to what is becoming. But he who remits or extends his authority is no longer a king or a ruler; he becomes either a demagogue or a despot, and implants hatred or contempt in the hearts of his subjects. However, the first error seems to arise from kindness and humanity; the second from selfishness and severity.

III. Again, if the misfortunes of men are not to be attributed altogether to fortune, but to the different habits and passions which will be found underlying them, then no one shall acquit Romulus of unreasoning anger or hasty and senseless wrath in dealing with his brother, nor Theseus in dealing with his son, although the cause which stirred his anger leads us to be more lenient towards the one who was overthrown by a stronger provocation, as by a heavier blow. For since the difference between Romulus and his brother arose from a deliberate investigation of the common welfare, there could have been no good reason for his flying into such a passion; while Theseus was impelled to wrong his son by love, jealousy, and a woman's slanders, the overmastering power of which very few men have escaped. And what is of greater weight, the anger of Romulus vented itself in action and a deed of most unfortunate issue; whereas the wrath of Theseus got no farther than words of abuse and an old man's curse, and the rest of the youth's calamities seem to have been due to fortune. On these counts, therefore, one would give his vote of preference to Theseus.

PLUTARCH'S LIVES

IV. Ἐκείνῳ δὲ πρῶτον μὲν ὑπάρχει μέγα τὸ μικροτάτας λαβεῖν ἀρχὰς ἐπὶ τὰ πράγματα. δούλοι γὰρ δὴ καὶ συφορβῶν παῖδες ὀνομαζόμενοι, πρὶν ἐλεύθεροι γενέσθαι, πάντας ὀλίγου δεῖν ἠλευθέρωσαν Λατίνους, ἐνὶ χρόνῳ τῶν καλλίστων ὀνομάτων ἅμα τυχόντες, φονεῖς ἐχθρῶν καὶ σωτήρες οἰκείων καὶ βασιλεῖς ἐθνῶν καὶ οἰκισταὶ πόλεων, οὐ μετοικισταί, καθάπερ ἦν ὁ Θησεύς, ἐκ πολλῶν συντιθεὶς καὶ συνοικοδομῶν ἐν οἰκητήριον, ἀναιρῶν δὲ πολλὰς πόλεις 2 ἐπωνύμους βασιλέων καὶ ἡρώων παλαιῶν. Ῥώμῳ δὲ ταῦτα μὲν ὕστερον ἔδρα, τοὺς πολεμίους ἀναγκάζων τὰ οἰκεία καταβάλλοντας καὶ ἀφανίζοντας τοῖς νενικηκόσι προσνέμεσθαι· τὸ δὲ πρῶτον οὐ μετατιθεὶς οὐδ' αὖξων τὴν ὑπάρχουσαν, ἀλλὰ ποιῶν ἕξ οὐχ ὑπαρχόντων καὶ κτώμενος ἑαυτῷ χώραν ὁμοῦ, πατρίδα, βασιλείαν, γένη, γάμους, οἰκειότητας, ἀνήρει μὲν οὐδένα οὐδὲ ἀπώλλυεν, εὐεργέτει δὲ τοὺς ἕξ ἀοίκων καὶ ἀνεστίων δῆμον ἐθέλοντας εἶναι καὶ πολίτας. ληστὰς δὲ καὶ κακούργους οὐκ ἀπέκτεινεν, ἀλλ' ἔθνη προσηγάγετο πολέμῳ καὶ πόλεις κατεστρέψατο καὶ βασιλεῖς ἐθριάμβευσε καὶ ἡγεμόνας.

V. Καὶ τὸ μὲν Ῥώμῳ πάθος ἀμφισβητούμενον ἔχει τὸν αὐτόχειρα, καὶ τὸ πλεῖστον εἰς ἑτέρους τῆς αἰτίας τρέπουσι· τὴν δὲ μητέρα διολλυμένην ἔσωσε περιφανῶς, καὶ τὸν πάππον ἀκλεῶς δουλεύοντα καὶ ἀτίμως εἰς τὸν Αἰνείου θρόνον ἐκάθισε. καὶ πολλὰ μὲν ἐκῶν εὐεργέ- 2 τησεν, ἔβλαψε δὲ αὐτὸν οὐδὲ ἄκων. τὴν δὲ

COMPARISON OF THESEUS AND ROMULUS

IV. But Romulus has, in the first place, this great superiority, that he rose to eminence from the smallest beginnings. For he and his brother were reputed to be slaves and sons of swineherds, and yet they not only made themselves free, but freed first almost all the Latins; enjoying at one and the same time such most honourable titles as slayers of their foes, saviours of their kindred and friends, kings of races and peoples, founders of cities; not transplanters, as Theseus was, who put together and consolidated one dwelling-place out of many, but demolished many cities bearing the names of ancient kings and heroes: Romulus, it is true, did this later, compelling his enemies to tear down and obliterate their dwellings and enrol themselves among their conquerors; but at first, not by removing or enlarging a city which already existed, but by creating one from nothing, and by acquiring for himself at once territory, country, kingdom, clans, marriages and relationships, he ruined no one and killed no one, but was a benefactor of men without homes and hearths, who wished instead to be a people and citizens of a common city. Robbers and miscreants, it is true, he did not slay, but he subdued nations in war, laid cities low, and triumphed over kings and commanders.

V. Besides, there is dispute as to who actually slew Remus, and most of the blame for the deed is put upon others than Romulus; but Romulus did unquestionably save his mother from destruction, and he set his grandfather, who was living in inglorious and dishonourable subjection, upon the throne of Aeneas. Moreover, he did him many favours of his own accord, and did him no harm, not even inadver-

PLUTARCH'S LIVES

Θησέως λήθην καὶ ἀμέλειαν τῆς περὶ τὸ ἰστίον ἐντολῆς μόλις ἂν οἶμαι μακρᾶ τιμι παραιτήσῃ καὶ ἐν ῥαθύμοις δικασταῖς αἰτίαν ἀποφυγεῖν πατροκτονίας· ὁ δὲ καὶ συνιδῶν τις Ἀττικὸς ἀνὴρ ὡς παγγάλεπόν ἐστι βουλομένοις ἀπολογεῖσθαι, πλάττει τὸν Αἰγέα τῆς νεῶς προσφερομένης ὑπὸ σπουδῆς ἀνατρέχοντα πρὸς τὴν ἀκρόπολιν θέας ἔνεκα καὶ σφαλλόμενον καταπεσεῖν, ὡσπερ ὀπαδῶν ἔρημον, ἢ τὴν ἐπὶ θάλατταν ὁδὸν σπεύδοντι μὴ παρούσης τινὸς θεραπείας.

VI. Καὶ μὴν τὰ περὶ τὰς ἀρπαγὰς τῶν γυναικῶν ἡμαρτημένα Θησεῖ μὲν εὐσχήμονος ἐνδεᾶ προφάσεως γέγονε. πρῶτον μὲν ὅτι πολλάκις ἤρπασε γὰρ Ἀριάδην καὶ Ἀντιόπην καὶ Ἀναξὼ τὴν Τροϊζηνίαν, ἐπὶ πάσαις δὲ τὴν Ἑλένην, παρηκμακῶς οὐκ ἀκμάζουσαν, ἀλλὰ νηπίαν καὶ ἄωρον αὐτὸς ὥραν ἔχων ἤδη γάμων πεπαῦσθαι καὶ νομίμων· ἔπειτα διὰ τὴν αἰτίαν· οὐ γὰρ ἀξιώτεραί γε παιδοποιοὶ τῶν Ἀθήνησιν Ἐρεχθίδων καὶ Κεκροπίδων αἱ Τροϊζηνίων καὶ Λακῶνων καὶ Ἀμαζόνων ἀνέγγυοι θυγατέρες ἦσαν. ἀλλὰ ταῦτα μὲν ὑποψίαν ἔχει πρὸς ὕβριν καὶ καθ' ἡδονὴν πεπρᾶχθαι. Ῥωμύλος δὲ πρῶτον μὲν ὀκτακοσίων ὀλίγον ἀριθμῷ δεούσας 39 ἀρπάσας, οὐ πάσας, ἀλλὰ μίαν, ὡς φασιν, Ἐρσιλίαν ἔλαβε, τὰς δ' ἄλλας διένειμε τοῖς ἀγαθοῖς¹ τῶν πολιτῶν· ἔπειτα τῇ μετὰ ταῦτα τιμῇ καὶ ἀγαπήσει καὶ δικαιοσύνη τῇ περὶ τὰς γυναῖκας ἀπέδειξε τὴν βίαν ἐκείνην καὶ τὴν tently. Theseus, on the contrary, for his forgetfulness and neglect of the command about the sail, can hardly, I think, escape the charge of parricide, be the plea of his advocate ever so long and his judges ever so lenient. Indeed, a certain Attic writer, conscious that would-be defenders of Theseus have a difficult task, feigns that Aegeus, on the approach of the ship, ran up to the acropolis in his eagerness to catch sight of her, and stumbled and fell down the cliff; as though he were without a retinue, or was hurrying down to the sea without any servants.

¹ ἀγαθοῖς MSS. and edd. : ἀγάμοις (unmarried).

COMPARISON OF THESEUS AND ROMULUS

VI. Furthermore, the transgressions of Theseus in his rapes of women admit of no plausible excuse. This is true, first, because there were so many; for he carried off Ariadne, Antiope, Anaxo of Troezen, and at last Helen, when he was past his prime and she had not reached her prime, but was an unripe child, while he was already of an age too great for even lawful wedlock. It is true, secondly, because of the reason for them; for the daughters of Troezenians and Laconians and Amazons were not betrothed to him, and were no worthier, surely, to be the mothers of his children than the daughters of Erechtheus and Cecrops at Athens. But one may suspect that these deeds of his were done in lustful wantonness. Romulus, on the other hand, in the first place, although he carried off nearly eight hundred women, took them not all to wife, but only one, as they say, Hersilia, and distributed the rest among the best of the citizens. And in the second place, by the subsequent honour, love, and righteous treatment given to these women, he made it clear that his

PLUTARCH'S LIVES

ἀδικίαν κάλλιστον ἔργον καὶ πολιτικώτατον εἰς
 3 κοινωνίαν γενομένην. οὕτω συνέμιξεν ἀλλήλοις
 καὶ συνέπηξε τὰ γένη, καὶ παρέσχε πηγὴν τῆς
 εἰς αὐθις εὐνοίας καὶ δυνάμεως τοῖς πράγμασιν.
 αἰδοῦς δὲ καὶ φιλίας καὶ βεβαιότητος, ἦν εἰργά-
 σατο περὶ τοὺς γάμους, ὁ χρόνος ἐστὶ μάρτυς.
 ἐν γὰρ ἔτεσι τριάκοντα καὶ διακοσίοις οὔτε ἀνὴρ
 ἐτόλμησε γυναικὸς οὔτε γυνὴ κοινωνίαν ἀνδρὸς ἐγκαταλιπεῖν, ἀλλ' ὥσπερ ἐν Ἑλλησιν οἱ σφόδρα
 περιττοὶ τὸν πρῶτον ἔχουσιν εἰπεῖν πατροκτόνου
 ἢ μητροφόνου, οὕτω Ῥωμαῖοι πάντες ἴσασιν ὅτι
 4 Καρβίλιος Σπόριος ἀπεπέμψατο γυναῖκα πρῶτος, ἀπαιδίαν αἰτιασάμενος. τῷ δὲ τοσοῦτῳ
 χρόνῳ συμμαρτυρεῖ καὶ τὰ ἔργα. καὶ γὰρ ἀρχῆς
 ἐκοινωνήσαν οἱ βασιλεῖς, καὶ πολιτείας τὰ γένη
 διὰ τὴν ἐπιγαμίαν ἐκείνην· ἀπὸ δὲ τῶν Θησέως γά-μων Ἀθηναίοις φιλικὸν μὲν οὐδὲν οὐδὲ κοινωνικὸν
 ὑπῆρξε πρὸς οὐδένα συμβόλαιον, ἔχθραι δὲ καὶ
 πόλεμοι καὶ φόνοι πολιτῶν καὶ τέλος Ἀφίδνας
 ἀπολέσαι καὶ μόλις ὑπ' οἴκτου τῶν πολεμίων, προσκυνήσαντας καὶ θεοὺς ἀνειπόντας, μὴ πα-
 5 θεῖν ἂ Τρῶες ἔπαθον δι' Ἀλέξανδρον. ἡ μέντοι
 μήτηρ ἢ Θησέως οὐκ ἐκινδύνευσεν, ἀλλ' ἔπαθε
 τὰ τῆς Ἑκάβης, ἐγκαταλιπόντος καὶ προεμένου
 τοῦ παιδός, εἶγε μὴ πέπλασται τὰ τῆς αἰχμαλωσίας, ὡς ἔδει γε καὶ τοῦτο ψεῦδος εἶναι καὶ
 τὰ πλεῖστα τῶν ἄλλων. ἐπεὶ καὶ τὰ περὶ τοῦ θείου μυθολογούμενα πολλὴν ποιεῖ διαφορὰν.

COMPARISON OF THESEUS AND ROMULUS

deed of violence and injustice was a most honourable achievement, and one most adapted to promote political partnership. In this way he intermixed and blended the two peoples with one another, and supplied his state with a flowing fountain of strength and good will for the time to come. And to the modesty, tenderness, and stability which he imparted to the marriage relation, time is witness. For in two hundred and thirty years no man ventured to leave his wife, nor any woman her husband; but, just as the very curious among the Greeks can name the first parricide or matricide, so the Romans all know that Spurius Carvilius was the first to put away his wife, accusing her of barrenness. And the immediate results of his act, as well as the long lapse of time, witness in favour of Romulus. For the two kings shared the government in common, and the two peoples the rights and duties of citizenship, because of that intermarriage; whereas from the marriages of Theseus the Athenians got no new friends at all, nor even any community of enterprise whatsoever, but enmities, wars, slaughters of citizens, and at last the loss of Aphidnae, and an escape from the fate which Troy suffered by reason of Alexander, only because their enemies took compassion on them when they called upon them worshipfully as gods. However, the mother of Theseus was not only in danger, but actually suffered the fate of Hecuba when she was deserted and abandoned by her son, unless, indeed, the tale of her captivity is fictitious, and it may well be false, as well as most of the other stories. For example, the tales told of divine intervention in their lives are in great contrast; for Romulus was

PLUTARCH'S LIVES

Ῥωμύλῳ μὲν γὰρ ἡ σωτηρία μετὰ πολλῆς ὑπῆρξε
θεῶν εὐμενείας, ὁ δ' Αἰγεί δοθεὶς χρησμός, ἀπέχεσθαι γυναικὸς ἐπὶ ξένης, ἔοικεν ἀποφαίνειν
παρὰ γνώμην θεῶν γεγονέναι τὴν Θησέως τέκνωσιν.

COMPARISON OF THESEUS AND ROMULUS

preserved by the signal favour of the gods, while the oracle given to Aegeus, forbidding him to approach a woman while in a foreign land, seems to indicate that the birth of Theseus was not agreeable to the will of the gods.

LYCURGUS

ΛΥΚΟΥΡΓΟΣ

Ι. Περὶ Λυκούργου τοῦ νομοθέτου καθόλου μὲν οὐδὲν ἔστιν εἰπεῖν ἀναμφισβήτητον, οὐ γὰρ καὶ γένος καὶ ἀποδημία καὶ τελευτὴ καὶ πρὸς ἅπασιν ἢ περὶ τοὺς νόμους αὐτοῦ καὶ τὴν πολιτείαν πραγματεία διαφόρους ἔσχηκεν ἱστορίας, ἥκιστα δὲ οἱ χρόνοι καθ' οὓς γέγονεν ὁ ἀνὴρ ὁμολογοῦνται. οἱ μὲν γὰρ Ἰφίτῳ συνακμάσαι καὶ συνδιαθεῖναι τὴν Ὀλυμπιακὴν ἐκεχειρίαν λέγουσιν αὐτόν, ὧν ἔστι καὶ Ἀριστοτέλης ὁ φιλόσοφος, τεκμήριον προσφέρων τὸν Ὀλυμπίασι δίσκον ἐν ᾧ τοῦνομα 2 τοῦ Λυκούργου διασώζεται καταγεγραμμένον· οἱ δὲ ταῖς διαδοχαῖς τῶν ἐν Σπάρτῃ βεβασιλευκότων ἀναλεγόμενοι τὸν χρόνον, ὥσπερ Ἐρατοσθένης καὶ Ἀπολλόδωρος, οὐκ ὀλίγοις ἔτεσι πρᾶτον ἀποφαίνουσι τῆς πρώτης Ὀλυμπιάδος. Τίμαιος δὲ ὑπονοεῖ, δυεῖν ἐν Σπάρτῃ γεγονότων Λυκούργων οὐ κατὰ τὸν αὐτὸν χρόνον, τῷ ἑτέρῳ τὰς ἀμφοῖν πράξεις διὰ τὴν δόξαν ἀνακεῖσθαι· καὶ τὸν γὰρ πρᾶτον οὐ πόρρω τῶν Ὀμήρου γεγονέναι χρόνων, ἔνιοι δὲ καὶ κατ' ὄψιν ἐντυχεῖν Ὀμήρῳ.

LYCURGUS

I. CONCERNING Lycurgus the lawgiver, in general, nothing can be said which is not disputed, since indeed there are different accounts of his birth, his travels, his death, and above all, of his work as law-maker and statesman; and there is least agreement among historians as to the times in which the man lived. Some say that he flourished at the same time with Iphitus, and in concert with him established the Olympic truce. Among these is Aristotle the philosopher, and he alleges as proof the discus at Olympia on which an inscription preserves the name of Lycurgus.¹ But those who compute the time by the successions of kings at Sparta, like Eratosthenes and Apollodorus, prove that Lycurgus was many years earlier than the first Olympiad.² And Timaeus conjectures that there were two Lycurgus at Sparta, at different times, and that to one of them the achievements of both were ascribed, owing to his greater fame; he thinks also that the elder of the two lived not far from the times of Homer, and some assert that he actually met Homer face to face.

¹ As joining with Iphitus in founding, or reviving, the Olympic games, in 776 B.C., the date assigned to the first recorded victory. Cf. Pausanias, v. 4, 5 f.; 20, 1. A stay of hostilities was observed all over Greece during the festival.

² 776-73 B.C.

3 δίδωσι δὲ καὶ Ξενοφῶν ὑπόνοιαν ἀρχαιότητος ἐν 40
οἷς τὸν ἄνδρα λέγει γεγονέναι κατὰ τοὺς Ἡρακλείδας. γένει μὲν γὰρ Ἡρακλείδαι δῆπουθεν
ἦσαν καὶ οἱ νεώτατοι τῶν ἐν Σπάρτῃ βασιλέων, ὁ
δὲ ἔοικε βουλομένῳ τοὺς πρώτους ἐκείνους καὶ
σύνεγγυς Ἡρακλέους ὀνομάζειν Ἡρακλείδας.

Οὐ μὴν ἀλλὰ καίπερ οὕτως πεπλανημένης τῆς
ἱστορίας, πειρασόμεθα τοῖς βραχυτάτας ἔχουσιν
ἀντιλογίας ἢ γνωριμωτάτους μάρτυρας ἐπόμενοι
τῶν γεγραμμένων περὶ τοῦ ἀνδρὸς ἀποδοῦναι τὴν
4 διήγησιν. ἐπεὶ καὶ¹ Σιμωνίδης ὁ ποιητῆς οὐκ Εὐνόμου λέγει τὸν Λυκούργον πατρός, ἀλλὰ Πρυ-τάνιδος καὶ τὸν Λυκούργον καὶ τὸν Εὐνομον, οἱ
δὲ² πλείστοι σχεδὸν οὐχ οὕτω γενεαλογοῦσιν,
ἀλλὰ Προκλέους μὲν τοῦ Ἀριστοδήμου γενέσθαι Σόον, Σόου δὲ Εὐρυπῶντα, τούτου δὲ Πρύτανιν, ἐκ τούτου δὲ Εὐνομον, Εὐνόμου δὲ Πολυδέκτην ἐκ
προτέρας γυναικός, Λυκούργον δὲ νεώτερον ἐκ Διωνάσσης, ὡς Διευτυχίδας ἰστόρηκεν, ἔκτον μὲν
ἀπὸ Προκλέους, ἐνδέκατον δὲ ἀφ' Ἡρακλέους.

II. Τῶν δὲ προγόνων αὐτοῦ μάλιστα μὲν ἔθαιμάσθη Σόος, ἐφ' οὗ καὶ τοὺς εἴλωτας ἐποιήσαντο
δούλους οἱ Σπαρτιᾶται καὶ χώραν προσεκτήσαντο
πολλὴν Ἀρκαδίων ἀποτεμόμενοι. λέγεται δὲ τὸν

¹ ἐπεὶ καὶ Sintenis would begin the second chapter here, assuming also a lacuna in the text preceding.

² οἱ δὲ with Bekker: οἱ.

LYCURGUS

Xenophon, also,¹ makes an impression of simplicity in the passage where he says that Lycurgus lived in the time of the Heracleidae. For in lineage, of course, the latest of the Spartan kings were also Heracleidae; but Xenophon apparently wishes to use the name Heracleidae of the first and more immediate descendants of Heracles, so famous in story.

However, although the history of these times is such a maze, I shall try, in presenting my narrative, to follow those authors who are least contradicted, or who have the most notable witnesses for what they have written about the man. For instance, Simonides the poet says that Lycurgus was not the son of Eunomus, but that both Lycurgus and Eunomus were sons of Prytanis; whereas most writers give a different genealogy, as follows: Aristodemus begat Procles, Procles begat Soüs, Soüs begat Eurypon, and he begat Prytanis, from whom sprang Eunomus, and from Eunomus Polydectes by a first wife, and Lycurgus, who was a younger son by a second wife, Dionassa, as Dieutyichidas has written, making Lycurgus sixth from Procles, and eleventh from Heracles.²

II. Of these ancestors of Lycurgus, Soüs was most famous, under whom the Spartans made the Helots their slaves, and acquired by conquest from the Arcadians a large additional tract of land. It is also

¹ Reip. Lac. x. 8. "Lycurgus is said to have lived in the times of the Heracleidae."

² Aristodemus, from whose twin sons Eurysthenes and Procles the elder and younger royal lines at Sparta (the Agids and Eurypontids) were descended, was the son of Aristomachus, the son of Cleodæus, the son of Hyllus, the son of Heracles. See Pausanias, iii. 1-10; Herodotus, vii. 204 and viii. 131.

PLUTARCH'S LIVES

Σίον ἐν χωρίῳ χαλεπῷ καὶ ἀνύδρῳ πολιορκούμενον ὑπὸ Κλειτορίων, ὁμολογήσαι τὴν δορίκτητον γῆν αὐτοῖς ἀφήσειν, εἰ πίοι καὶ αὐτὸς καὶ οἱ μετ' αὐτοῦ πάντες ἀπὸ τῆς πλησίον πηγῆς. γενομένων δὲ τῶν ὀρκίων¹ συναγαγόντα τοὺς μεθ' ἑαυτοῦ διδόναι τῷ μὴ πiónτι τὴν βασιλείαν· οὐδενὸς δὲ καρτερήσαντος, ἀλλὰ πάντων πiónτων, αὐτὸν ἐπὶ πᾶσι καταβάντα καὶ περιρρανάμενον ἔτι τῶν πολεμίων παρόντων ἀπελθεῖν καὶ τὴν χώραν κατασχεῖν, ὡς μὴ πάντων πiónτων.

Ἄλλὰ καίπερ ἐπὶ τούτοις θαυμάζοντες αὐτὸν οὐκ ἀπὸ τούτου τὴν οἰκίαν, ἀλλὰ τοῦ παιδὸς αὐτοῦ προσηγόρευσαν Εὐρυπωντίδας, ὅτι δοκεῖ πρῶτος Εὐρυπῶν τὸ ἄγαν μοναρχικὸν ἀνεῖναι τῆς βασιλείας, δημαγωγῶν καὶ χαριζόμενος τοῖς πολλοῖς. ἐκ δὲ τῆς τοιαύτης ἀνέσεως τοῦ μὲν δήμου θρασυνομένου, τῶν δ' ὕστερον βασιλέων τὰ μὲν ἀπεχθανομένων τῷ βιάζεσθαι τοὺς πολλούς, τὰ δὲ πρὸς χάριν ἢ δι' ἀσθένειαν ὑποφερομένων, ἀνομία καὶ ἀταξία κατέσχε τὴν Σπάρτην ἐπὶ πολλὸν χρόνον· ὑφ' ἧς καὶ τὸν πατέρα τοῦ Λυκούργου βασιλεύοντα συνέβη τελευτῆσαι. διερύκων γὰρ ἀψιμαχίαν τινά, μαγειρικῇ κοπίδι πληγείς ἀπέθανε, τῷ πρεσβυτέρῳ παιδί Πολυδέκτῃ καταλιπὼν τὴν βασιλείαν.

III. Ἀποθανόντος δὲ καὶ τούτου μετ' ὀλίγον χρόνον ἔδει βασιλεύειν, ὡς πάντες ᾤοντο, τὸν Λυκούργον· καὶ πρὶν γε τὴν γυναῖκα τοῦ ἀδελφοῦ φανερὰν γενέσθαι κύουσαν ἐβασίλευεν. ἐπεὶ related of this Soüs that when he was besieged by the Cleitorians in a rough and waterless place, he agreed to surrender to them the land which he had conquered if he himself and all his men with him should drink from the adjacent spring. After the oaths to this agreement were taken, he assembled his men and offered his kingdom to the one who should not drink; no one of them, however, could forbear, but all of them drank, whereupon Soüs himself went down last of all to the water, sprinkled his face merely, while the enemy were still at hand to see, and then marched away and retained his territory, on the plea that all had not drunk.

¹ ὀρκίων with Bekker and Cobet: ὀρκίων ὁμολογιῶν.

LYCURGUS

But although on these grounds he was held in great admiration, his royal line was not named from him, but were called Eurypontids from his son, because Eurypon appears to have been the first king to relax the excessive absolutism of his sway, seeking favour and popularity with the multitude. But in consequence of such relaxation the people grew bold, and succeeding kings were some of them hated for trying to force their way with the multitude, and some were brought low by their desire for favour or through weakness, so that lawlessness and confusion prevailed at Sparta for a long time; and it was owing to this that the father of Lycurgus, a reigning king, lost his life. For as he was trying to separate some rioters, he was stabbed to death with a butcher's knife, leaving the kingdom to his elder son, Polydectes.

III. Polydectes also died soon afterwards, and then, as was generally thought, the kingdom devolved upon Lycurgus; and until his brother's wife was known to be with child, he was king. But as soon

PLUTARCH'S LIVES

δὲ τοῦτο τάχιστα ἦσθετο, τὴν μὲν βασιλείαν ἀπέφηνε τοῦ παιδὸς οὖσαν, ἄνπερ ἄρρην γένηται, τὴν δὲ ἀρχὴν αὐτὸς ὡς ἐπίτροπος διεῖπε. τοὺς δὲ τῶν ὀρφανῶν βασιλέων ἐπιτρόπους Λακεδαι-
 2 μόνιοι προδίκους¹ ὠνόμαζον. ὡς δὲ ἡ γυνὴ προσέπεμπε κρύφα καὶ λόγους ἐποιεῖτο, βουλομένη διαφθεῖραι τὸ βρέφος ἐπὶ τῷ συνοικεῖν ἐκεῖνφ βασιλεύοντι τῆς Σπάρτης, τὸ μὲν ἦθος αὐτῆς ἐμίσησε, πρὸς δὲ τὸν λόγον αὐτὸν οὐκ ἀντεῖπεν, ἀλλ' ἐπαινεῖν καὶ δέχεσθαι προσποιούμενος, οὐκ ἔφη δεῖν ἀμβλίσκουσαν αὐτὴν καὶ φαρμακευομένην διαλυμαίνεσθαι τὸ σῶμα καὶ κινδυνεύειν· αὐτῷ γὰρ μελήσειν ὅπως εὐθύς ἐκ-
 3 ποδῶν ἔσται τὸ γεννηθέν. οὕτω δὲ παραγαγὼν ἄχρι τοῦ τόκου τὴν ἄνθρωπον, ὡς ἦσθετο τίκτουσαν, εἰσέπεμψε παρέδρους ταῖς ὠδίσι αὐτῆς καὶ φύλακας, οἷς ἦν προστεταγμένοι, ἐὰν μὲν θῆλυ τεχθῆ, παραδοῦναι ταῖς γυναιξίν, ἐὰν δὲ ἄρρεν, κομίσει πρὸς ἑαυτὸν ὅ τι ἂν τύχη πράττων. ἔτυχε δὲ δειπνοῦντος αὐτοῦ μετὰ τῶν 4] ἀρχόντων ἀποκνηθὲν ἄρρεν· καὶ παρήσαν οἱ ὑπη-
 4 ρέται τὸ παιδάριον αὐτῷ κομίζοντες. ὁ δὲ δεξάμενος, ὡς λέγεται, καὶ πρὸς τοὺς παρόντας εἰπὼν, “Βασιλεὺς ὑμῖν γέγονεν, ὦ Σπαρτιᾶται,” κατέκλινεν ἐν τῇ βασιλικῇ χώρᾳ καὶ Χαρίλαον ὠνόμασε διὰ τὸ τοὺς πάντας εἶναι περιχαρεῖς, ἀγαμένους αὐτοῦ τὸ φρόνημα καὶ τὴν δικαιοσύνην. ἐβασίλευσε δὲ μῆνας ὀκτὼ τὸ σῦμπαν. ἦν δὲ καὶ τὰλλα περίβλεπτος ὑπὸ τῶν πολιτῶν, καὶ πλείο-

¹ προδίκους with most MSS. and edd. : προδίκως with A (corrected), the Doric form.

LYCURGUS

as he learned of this, he declared that the kingdom belonged to her offspring, if it should be male, and himself administered the government only as guardian. Now the guardians of fatherless kings are called "prodikoi" by the Lacedaemonians. Presently, however, the woman made secret overtures to him, proposing to destroy her unborn babe on condition that he would marry her when he was a king of Sparta; and although he detested her character, he did not reject her proposition, but pretended to approve and accept it. He told her, however, that she need not use drugs to produce a miscarriage, thereby injuring her health and endangering her life, for he would see to it himself that as soon as her child was born it should be put out of the way. In this manner he managed to bring the woman to her full time, and when he learned that she was in labour, he sent attendants and watchers for her delivery, with orders, if a girl should be born, to hand it over to the women, but if a boy, to bring it to him, no matter what he was doing. And it came to pass that as he was at supper with the chief magistrates, a male child was born, and his servants brought the little boy to him. He took it in his arms, as we are told, and said to those who were at table with him, "A king is born unto you, O men of Sparta;" then he laid it down in the royal seat and named it Charilaüs, or People's Joy, because all present were filled with joy, admiring as they did his lofty spirit and his righteousness. And so he was king only eight months in all. But on other accounts also he was revered by his fellow-citizens, and more than νες ἐγένοντο τῶν ὡς ἐπιτρόπῳ βασιλέως καὶ βασιλικὴν ἐξουσίαν ἔχοντι πειθομένων οἱ δι' ἀρετὴν προσέχοντες αὐτῷ καὶ ποιεῖν ἐθέλοντες ἐτοίμως τὸ προσταττόμενον.

- 5 Ἦν δέ τι καὶ τὸ φθονοῦν καὶ πρὸς τὴν αὔξησιν ὄντι νέῳ πειρώμενον ἐνίστασθαι, μάλιστα μὲν οἱ συγγενεῖς καὶ οἰκεῖοι τῆς τοῦ βασιλέως μητρὸς ὑβρίσθαι δοκούσης, ὃ δὲ ἀδελφὸς αὐτῆς Λεωνίδας καὶ θρασύτερόν ποτε τῷ Λυκούργῳ λαιδορηθεὶς, ὑπέειπεν ὡς εἰδείη σαφῶς μέλλοντα βασιλεύειν αὐτόν, ὑπόνοιαν διδοὺς καὶ προκαταλαμβάνων διαβολῇ τὸν Λυκούργον, εἴ τι συμβαίῃ τῷ βασιλεῖ παθεῖν, ὡς ἐπιβεβουλευκότα. τοιοῦτοι δέ τινες λόγοι καὶ παρὰ τῆς γυναικὸς ἐξεφοίτων· ἐφ' οἷς βαρέως φέρων καὶ δεδοικῶς τὸ ἄδηλον, ἔγνω φυγεῖν ἀποδημία τὴν ὑπόνοιαν, καὶ πλανηθῆναι μέχρις ἂν ὁ ἀδελφιδοῦς ἐν ἡλικίᾳ γενόμενος τεκνώσῃ διάδοχον τῆς βασιλείας.

IV. Οὕτως ἀπάρας πρῶτον μὲν εἰς Κρήτην ἀφίκετο· καὶ τὰς αὐτόθι πολιτείας κατανοήσας καὶ συγγενόμενος τοῖς πρωτεύουσι κατὰ δόξαν ἀνδράσι, τὰ μὲν ἐζήλωσε καὶ παρέλαβε τῶν νόμων, ὡς οἴκαδε μετοίσων καὶ χρησόμενος, ἔστι δ' ὧν κατεφρόνησεν. ἓνα δὲ τῶν νομιζομένων ἐκεῖ σοφῶν καὶ πολιτικῶν χάριτι καὶ φιλίᾳ πείσας ἀπέστειλεν εἰς τὴν Σπάρτην, Θάλητα, ποιητὴν μὲν δοκοῦντα λυρικῶν μελῶν καὶ πρόσχημα τὴν τέχνην ταύτην πεποιημένον, ἔργῳ δὲ ἄπερ οἱ κρᾶτιστοι τῶν νομοθετῶν διαπραττό-

LYCURGUS

those who obeyed him because he was guardian of the king and had royal power in his hands, were those who clave to him for his virtues and were ready and willing to do his bidding.

There was a party, however, which envied him and sought to impede the growing power of so young a man, especially the kinsmen and friends of the queen-mother, who thought she had been treated with insolence. Her brother, Leonidas, actually railed at Lycurgus once quite boldly, assuring him that he knew well that Lycurgus would one day be king, thereby promoting suspicion and paving the way for the accusation, in case any thing happened to the king, that he had plotted against his life. Some such talk was set in circulation by the queen-mother also, in consequence of which Lycurgus was sorely troubled and fearful of what might be in store for him. He therefore determined to avoid suspicion by travelling abroad, and to continue his wanderings until his nephew should come of age and beget a son to succeed him on the throne.

IV. With this purpose, he set sail, and came first to Crete. Here he studied the various forms of government and made the acquaintance of their most distinguished men. Of some things he heartily approved, and adopted some of their laws, that he might carry them home with him and put them in use; for some things he had only contempt. One of the men regarded there as wise statesmen was Thales, whom Lycurgus persuaded, out of favour and friendship, to go on a mission to Sparta. Now Thales passed as a lyric poet, and screened himself behind this art, but in reality he did the work of

PLUTARCH'S LIVES

- 2 μενον. λόγοι γὰρ ἦσαν αἱ ῥῆδαι πρὸς εὐπέθειαν καὶ ὁμόνοιαν ἀνακλητικοί, διὰ μελῶν ἅμα καὶ ῥυθμῶν πολὺ τὸ κόσμιον ἐχόντων καὶ καταστατικόν, ὧν ἀκροώμενοι κατεπραῦνοντο λεληθότως τὰ ἦθη καὶ συνφκειοῦντο τῷ ζήλῳ τῶν καλῶν ἐκ τῆς ἐπιχωριαζούσης τότε πρὸς ἀλλήλους κακοθυμίας, ὥστε τρόπον τινὰ τῷ Λυκούργῳ προοδοποιεῖν τὴν παιδείυσιν αὐτῶν ἐκείνου.
- 3 Ἐπὶ δὲ τῆς Κρήτης ὁ Λυκούργος ἐπὶ Ἀσίαν ἔπλευσε, βουλόμενος, ὡς λέγεται, ταῖς Κρητικαῖς διαίταις, εὐτελέσιιν οὐσαις καὶ αὐστηραῖς, τὰς Ἰωνικὰς πολυτελείας καὶ τρυφάς, ὥσπερ ἰατρὸς σώμασιν ὑγιεινοῖς ὑπουλα καὶ νοσώδη, παραβαλὼν ἀποθεωρῆσαι τὴν διαφορὰν τῶν βίων καὶ
- 4 τῶν πολιτειῶν. ἐκεῖ δὲ καὶ τοῖς Ὀμήρου ποιήμασιν ἐντυχῶν πρῶτον, ὡς ἔοικε, παρὰ τοῖς ἐγγόνοις τοῖς Κρεοφύλου διατηρουμένοις, καὶ κατιδὼν ἐν αὐτοῖς τῆς πρὸς ἡδονὴν καὶ ἀκρασίαν διατριβῆς τὸ πολιτικὸν καὶ παιδευτικὸν οὐκ ἐλάττους ἀξίον σπουδῆς ἀναμεμιγμένον, ἐγράψατο προθύμως καὶ συνήγαγεν ὡς δεῦρο κομμῶν. ἦν γὰρ τις ἤδη δόξα τῶν ἐπῶν ἀμαυρὰ παρὰ τοῖς Ἕλλησιν, ἐκέκτηντο δὲ οὐ πολλοὶ μέρη τινά, σποράδην τῆς ποιήσεως, ὡς ἔτυχε, διαφερομένης· γνωρίμην δὲ αὐτὴν καὶ μάλιστα πρῶτος ἐποίησε Λυκούργος.
- 5 Αἰγύπτιοι δὲ καὶ πρὸς αὐτοὺς ἀφικέσθαι τὸν Λυκούργον οἴονται, καὶ τὴν ἀπὸ τῶν ἄλλων γενῶν τοῦ μαχίμου διάκρισιν μάλιστα θαυμάσαντα

LYCURGUS

one of the mightiest lawgivers. For his odes were so many exhortations to obedience and harmony, and their measured rhythms were permeated with ordered tranquillity, so that those who listened to them were insensibly softened in their dispositions, insomuch that they renounced the mutual hatreds which were so rife at that time, and dwelt together in a common pursuit of what was high and noble. Thales, therefore, after a fashion, was a forerunner in Sparta of Lycurgus and his discipline.

From Crete, Lycurgus sailed to Asia, with the desire, as we are told, of comparing with the Cretan civilization, which was simple and severe, that of the Ionians, which was extravagant and luxurious, just as a physician compares with healthy bodies those which are unsound and sickly; he could then study the difference in their modes of life and forms of government. There too, as it would appear, he made his first acquaintance with the poems of Homer, which were preserved among the posterity of Creophylus; and when he saw that the political and disciplinary lessons contained in them were worthy of no less serious attention than the incentives to pleasure and license which they supplied, he eagerly copied and compiled them in order to take them home with him. For these epics already had a certain faint reputation among the Greeks, and a few were in possession of certain portions of them, as the poems were carried here and there by chance; but Lycurgus was the very first to make them really known.

The Aegyptians think that Lycurgus visited them also, and so ardently admired their separation of the military from the other classes of society that he μετενεγκείν εἰς τὴν Σπάρτην, καὶ χωρίσαντα τοὺς βαναύσους καὶ χειροτέχνας ἀστεῖον ὡς ἀληθῶς τὸ πολίτευμα καὶ καθαρὸν ἀποδείξαι. ταῦτα μὲν οὖν Αἰγυπτίοις ἔνιοι καὶ τῶν Ἑλληνικῶν 6 συγγραφέων μαρτυροῦσιν· ὅτι δὲ καὶ Λιβύην καὶ 42 Ἰβηρίαν ἐπῆλθεν ὁ Λυκούργος καὶ περὶ τὴν Ἰνδικὴν πλανηθεὶς τοῖς Γυμνοσοφισταῖς ὠμίλησεν, οὐδένα πλὴν Ἀριστοκράτη τὸν Ἰππάρχου Σπαρτιάτην εἰρηκότα γινώσκομεν.

V. Οἱ δὲ Λακεδαιμόνιοι τὸν Λυκούργον ἐπόθουν ἀπόντα καὶ μετεπέμποντο πολλάκις, ὡς τοὺς μὲν βασιλεῖς ὄνομα καὶ τιμὴν, ἄλλο δὲ μηδὲν διαφέρουν τῶν πολλῶν ἔχοντας, ἐν ἐκείνῳ δὲ φύσιν ἡγεμονικὴν καὶ δύναμιν ἀνθρώπων ἀγωγὸν οὖσαν. οὐ μὴν οὐδὲ τοῖς βασιλεῦσιν ἦν ἀβούλητος ἡ παρουσία τοῦ ἀνδρός, ἀλλ' ἠλπιζον ἐκείνου συμπαρόντος ἡττον ὑβρίζουσι χρῆσθαι τοῖς πολλοῖς. 2 ἐπανελθὼν οὖν πρὸς οὕτω διακειμένους εὐθύς ἐπεχειρεῖ τὰ παρόντα κινεῖν καὶ μεθιστάναι τὴν πολιτείαν, ὡς τῶν κατὰ μέρος νόμων οὐδὲν ἔργον οὐδὲ ὄφελος, εἰ μὴ τις ὥσπερ σώματι πονηρῷ καὶ γέμοντι παντοδαπῶν νοσημάτων τὴν ὑπάρχουσαν ἐκτήξας καὶ μεταβαλὼν κρᾶσιν ὑπὸ φαρμάκων καὶ καθαρμῶν ἐτέρας ἄρξεται καινῆς διαίτης. 3 διανοηθεὶς δὲ ταῦτα πρῶτον μὲν ἀπεδήμησεν εἰς Δελφούς· καὶ τῷ θεῷ θύσας καὶ χρησάμενος ἐπανῆλθε τὸν διαβόητον ἐκείνον χρῆσμον κομίζων, φ' θεοφιλῆ μὲν αὐτὸν ἡ Πυθία προσεῖπε καὶ θεὸν μᾶλλον ἢ ἄνθρωπον, εὐνομίας δὲ χρῆζοντι transferred it to Sparta, and by removing mechanics and artisans from participation in the government, made his civil polity really refined and pure. At any rate, this assertion of the Aegyptians is confirmed by some Greek historians. But that Lycurgus visited Libya and Iberia also, and that he wandered over India and had conferences with the Gymnosophists, no one has stated, so far as I know, except Aristocrates the son of Hipparchus, the Spartan.

LYCURGUS

V. The Lacedaemonians missed Lycurgus sorely, and sent for him many times. They felt that their kings were such in name and station merely, but in everything else were nothing better than their subjects, while in him there was a nature fitted to lead, and a power to make men follow him. However, not even the kings were averse to having him at home, but hoped that in his presence their subjects would treat them with less insolence. Returning, then, to a people thus disposed, he at once undertook to change the existing order of things and revolutionize the civil polity. He was convinced that a partial change of the laws would be of no avail whatsoever, but that he must proceed as a physician would with a patient who was debilitated and full of all sorts of diseases; he must reduce and alter the existing temperament by means of drugs and purges, and introduce a new and different regimen. Full of this determination, he first made a journey to Delphi, and after sacrificing to the god and consulting the oracle, he returned with that famous response in which the Pythian priestess addressed him as "beloved of the gods, and rather god than man," and said that the god had granted

PLUTARCH'S LIVES

διδόναι καὶ καταινεῖν ἔφη τὸν θεὸν ἢ πολὺ
κρατίστη τῶν ἄλλων ἔσται πολιτειῶν.

4 Ἐπαρθεὶς δὲ τούτοις προσήγετο¹ τοὺς ἀρίστους καὶ συνεφάπτεσθαι παρεκάλει, κρύφα διαλεγόμενος τοῖς φίλοις πρῶτον, εἶτα οὕτως κατὰ
μικρὸν ἀπτόμενος πλειόνων καὶ συνιστὰς ἐπὶ τὴν πρᾶξιν. ὡς δ' ὁ καιρὸς ἦκε, τριάκοντα τοὺς πρῶτους ἐκέλευσε μετὰ τῶν ὄπλων ἔωθεν εἰς ἀγορὰν προελθεῖν ἐκπλήξεως ἔνεκα καὶ φόβου πρὸς τοὺς
ἀντιπράττοντας. ὧν εἴκοσι τοὺς ἐπιφανεστάτους
Ἐρμιππος ἀνέγραψε· τὸν δὲ μάλιστα τῶν Λυκούργου ἔργων κοινωνήσαντα πάντων καὶ συμπραγματευσάμενον τὰ περὶ τοὺς νόμους Ἄρθμιά-5 δαν ὀνομάζουσιν. ἀρχομένης δὲ τῆς ταραχῆς ὁ βασιλεὺς Χαρίλαος φοβηθεὶς ὡς ἐπ' αὐτὸν ὄλης
τῆς πράξεως συνισταμένης, κατέφυγε πρὸς τὴν Χαλκίοικον· εἶτα πεισθεὶς καὶ λαβὼν ὄρκους
ἀνέστη καὶ μετείχε τῶν πραττομένων, φύσει
πρᾶος ὧν· ὡς πού καὶ λέγεται συμβασιλεύοντα
τὸν Ἀρχέλαον αὐτῷ πρὸς τοὺς ἐγκωμιάζοντας τὸν νεανίσκον εἰπεῖν· “Πῶς δ' ἂν εἶη Χαρίλαος ἀνὴρ ἀγαθός, ὃς οὐδὲ τοῖς πονηροῖς χαλεπός ἐστι;”

6 Πλειόνων δὲ καινοτομουμένων ὑπὸ τοῦ Λυ-κούργου πρῶτον ἦν καὶ μέγιστον ἡ κατάστασις
τῶν γερόντων, ἣν φησὶν ὁ Πλάτων τῇ τῶν βασι-λέων ἀρχῇ φλεγμαινούσῃ μιχθεῖσαν καὶ γενομένην
ἰσόψηφον εἰς τὰ μέγιστα σωτηρίαν ἅμα καὶ

¹ προσήγετο Cobet : προσήγε.

LYCURGUS

his prayer for good laws, and promised him a constitution which should be the best in the world.

Thus encouraged, he tried to bring the chief men of Sparta over to his side, and exhorted them to put their hands to the work with him, explaining his designs secretly to his friends at first, then little by little engaging more and uniting them to attempt the task. And when the time for action came, he ordered thirty of the chief men to go armed into the market-place at break of day, to strike consternation and terror into those of the opposite party. The names of twenty of the most eminent among them have been recorded by Hermippus; but the man who had the largest share in all the undertakings of Lycurgus and co-operated with him in the enactment of his laws, bore the name of Arthmiadas. When the tumult began, King Charilaüs, fearing that the whole affair was a conspiracy against himself, fled for refuge to the Brazen House;¹ but he was soon convinced of his error, and having exacted oaths for his safety from the agitators, left his place of refuge, and even joined them in their enterprise, being of a gentle and yielding disposition, so much so, indeed, that Archelaüs, his royal colleague, is said to have remarked to those who were extolling the young king, "How can Charilaüs be a good man, when he has no severity even for the bad?"

Among the many innovations which Lycurgus made, the first and most important was his institution of a senate, or Council of Elders, which, as Plato says,² by being blended with the "feverish" government of the kings, and by having an equal vote with them in matters of the highest importance,

¹ A temple of Athena.

² Laws, p. 691 e.

PLUTARCH'S LIVES

σωφροσύνην παρασχεῖν. αἰωρουμένη γὰρ ἡ πολιτεία καὶ ἀποκλίνουσα νῦν μὲν ὡς τοὺς βασιλεῖς ἐπὶ τυραννίδα, νῦν δὲ ὡς τὸ πλῆθος ἐπὶ 7 δημοκρατίαν, οἶον ἔρμα τὴν τῶν γερόντων ἀρχὴν ἐν μέσῳ θεμένη καὶ ἰσορροπήσασα τὴν ἀσφαλεστάτην τάξιν ἔσχε καὶ κατάστασιν, αἰὲ τῶν ὀκτῶ καὶ εἴκοσι γερόντων τοῖς μὲν βασιλεῦσι προστιθεμένων ὅσον ἀντιβῆναι πρὸς δημοκρατίαν, αὐθις δὲ ὑπὲρ τοῦ μὴ γενέσθαι τυραννίδα τὸν δῆμον ἀναρρωννύντων. τοσοῦτους δὲ φησι κατασταθῆναι τοὺς γέροντας Ἀριστοτέλης, ὅτι 8 τριάκοντα τῶν πρώτων μετὰ Λυκούργου γενομένων δύο τὴν πρᾶξιν ἐγκατέλιπον ἀποδειλιάσαντες. ὁ δὲ Σφαῖρος ἐξ ἀρχῆς φησι τοσοῦτους γενέσθαι τοὺς τῆς γνώμης μετασχόντας. εἶη δ' ἄν τι καὶ τὸ τοῦ ἀριθμοῦ δι' ἑβδομάδος τετράδι πολλαπλασιασθείσης ἀποτελούμενον, καὶ ὅτι τοῖς αὐτοῦ μέρεσιν ἴσος ὢν μετὰ τὴν ἐξάδα τέλειός ἐστιν. ἐμοὶ δὲ δοκεῖ μάλιστα τοσοῦτους ἀποδειξαι τοὺς γέροντας ὅπως οἱ πάντες εἴεν τριάκοντα, τοῖς ὀκτῶ καὶ εἴκοσι τοῖν δυοῖν βασιλέοι 43 προστιθεμένοι.

VI. Οὕτω δὲ περὶ ταύτην ἐσπούδασε τὴν ἀρχὴν ὁ Λυκούργος ὥστε μαντείαν ἐκ Δελφῶν κομίσαι περὶ αὐτῆς, ἣν ῥήτραι καλοῦσιν. ἔχει δὲ οὕτως· “Διὸς Συλλανίου¹ καὶ Ἀθανᾶς Συλλανίας¹ ἱερὸν ἰδρυσάμενον, φυλάς φυλάξαντα καὶ ὠβάς ὠβάξαντα, τριάκοντα γερουσίαν σὺν ἀρχαγέταις καταστήσαντα, ὥρας ἐξ ὥρας ἀπελλάζειν μεταξὺ brought safety and due moderation into counsels of state. For before this the civil polity was veering and unsteady, inclining at one time to follow the kings towards tyranny, and at another to follow the multitude towards democracy; but now, by making the power of the senate a sort of ballast for the ship of state and putting her on a steady keel, it achieved the safest and the most orderly arrangement, since the twenty-eight senators always took the side of the kings when it was a question of curbing democracy, and, on the other hand, always strengthened the people to withstand the encroachments of tyranny. The number of the senators was fixed at twenty-eight because, according to Aristotle, two of the thirty original associates of Lycurgus abandoned the enterprise from lack of courage. But Sphaerus says that this was originally the number of those who shared the confidence of Lycurgus. Possibly there is some virtue in this number being made up of seven multiplied by four, apart from the fact that, being equal to the sum of its own factors, it is the next perfect number after six. But in my own opinion, Lycurgus made the senators of just that number in order that the total might be thirty when the two kings were added to the eight and twenty.

¹ Συλλανίου, Συλλανίας Bekker adopts the corrections of Bryan to Ἑλλανίου and Ἑλλανίας.

LYCURGUS

VI. So eager was Lycurgus for the establishment of this form of government, that he obtained an oracle from Delphi about it, which they call a "rhetra." And this is the way it runs: "When thou hast built a temple to Zeus Syllanius and Athena Syllania, divided the people into 'phylai' and into 'obai,' and established a senate of thirty members, including the 'archagetai,' then from time to

PLUTARCH'S LIVES

Βαβύκας τε καὶ Κνακιῶνος, οὕτως εἰσφέρειν τε καὶ ἀφίστασθαι· δάμω δὲ τὰν κυρίαν ἤμεν καὶ
 2 κράτος.” ἐν τούτοις τὸ μὲν φυλὰς φυλάξαι καὶ ὠβὰς ὠβάξαι διελεῖν ἐστὶ καὶ κατανεῖμαι τὸ πλῆθος εἰς μερίδας, ὧν τὰς μὲν φυλὰς, τὰς δὲ ὠβὰς προσηγόρευκεν. ἀρχαγέται δὲ οἱ βασιλεῖς λέγονται, τὸ δὲ ἀπελλάζειν ἐκκλησιάζειν· ὅτι τὴν ἀρχὴν καὶ τὴν αἰτίαν τῆς πολιτείας εἰς τὸν Πύθιον ἀνήψε. τὴν δὲ Βαβύκαν Χεῖμαρρος,¹ καὶ τὸν Κνακιῶνα νῦν Οἰνοῦντα προσαγορεύουσιν· Ἀριστοτέλης δὲ τὸν μὲν Κνακιῶνα ποταμόν, τὴν δὲ
 3 Βαβύκαν γέφυραν. ἐν μέσῳ δὲ τούτων τὰς ἐκκλησίας ἤγον, οὔτε παστάδων οὐσῶν οὔτε ἄλλης τινὸς κατασκευῆς. οὐθὲν γὰρ ᾤετο ταῦτα πρὸς εὐβουλίαν εἶναι, μᾶλλον δὲ βλάπτειν, φλυαρῶδεις ἀπεργαζόμενα καὶ χαύνους φρονήματι κενῶ τὰς διανοίας τῶν συμπορευομένων, ὅταν εἰς ἀγάλματα καὶ γραφὰς ἢ προσκῆνια θεάτρων ἢ στέγας βουλευτηρίων ἡσκημένους περιπτῶς ἐκκλησιάζοντες ἀποβλέπωσι. τοῦ δὲ πλῆθους ἀθροισθέντος εἰπεῖν μὲν οὐδενὶ γνώμην τῶν ἄλλων ἐφέϊτο, τὴν δ’ ὑπὸ τῶν γερόντων καὶ τῶν βασιλέων προτεθεῖσαν
 4 ἐπικρῖναι κύριος ἦν ὁ δῆμος. ὕστερον μέντοι τῶν πολλῶν ἀφαιρέσει καὶ προσθέσει τὰς γνώμας διαστρεφόντων καὶ παραβιαζομένων, Πολύδωρος καὶ Θεόπομπος οἱ βασιλεῖς τάδε τῇ ῥήτρᾳ παρενέγραψαν· “Αἱ δὲ σκολιὰν ὁ δᾶμος ἔλοιτο, τοὺς πρεσβυγενέας καὶ ἀρχαγέτας ἀποστατήρας ἤμεν,” τοῦτ’ ἐστὶ μὴ κυροῦν, ἀλλ’ ὅλως ἀφίστασθαι καὶ

¹ Χεῖμαρρος this, or some other later name, is thought to have fallen from the text by Sintenis², after E. Curtius, Peloponnesus, ii. p. 315; Coraës and Bekker have τὴν δὲ Βαβύκαν καὶ τὸν Κνακιῶνα, with the MSS.

LYCURGUS

time 'appellazein' between Babyca¹ and Cnacion,¹ and there introduce and rescind measures; but the people must have the deciding voice and the power." In these clauses, the "phylai" and the "obai" refer to divisions and distributions of the people into clans and phratries, or brotherhoods; by "archagetai" the kings are designated, and "apellazein" means to assemble the people, with a reference to Apollo, the Pythian god, who was the source and author of the polity. The Babyca is now called Cheimarrus, and the Cnacion Oenus; but Aristotle says that Cnacion is a river, and Babyca a bridge. Between these they held their assemblies, having neither halls nor any other kind of building for the purpose. For by such things Lycurgus thought good counsel was not promoted, but rather discouraged, since the serious purposes of an assembly were rendered foolish and futile by vain thoughts, as they gazed upon statues and paintings, or scenic embellishments, or extravagantly decorated roofs of council halls. When the multitude was thus assembled, no one of them was permitted to make a motion, but the motion laid before them by the senators and kings could be accepted or rejected by the people. Afterwards, however, when the people by additions and subtractions perverted and distorted the sense of motions laid before them, Kings Polydorus and Theopompus inserted this clause into the rhetra: "But if the people should adopt a distorted motion, the senators and kings shall have power of adjournment"; that is, should not ratify the vote, but dismiss outright and dissolve the session, on the

¹ Probably names of small tributaries of the river Eurotas.

PLUTARCH'S LIVES

διαλύειν τὸν δῆμον, ὡς ἐκτρέποντα καὶ μεταποι-5 οὔντα τὴν γνώμην παρὰ τὸ βέλτιστον. ἔπεισαν δὲ καὶ αὐτοὶ τὴν πόλιν ὡς τοῦ θεοῦ ταῦτα προστάσσοντος, ὡς που Τυρταῖος ἐπιμέμνηται διὰ
 τούτων·

Φοίβου ἀκούσαντες Πυθωνόθεν οἴκαδ' ἔνεικαν
 μαντείας τε θεοῦ καὶ τελέεντ' ἔπεα·
 ἄρχειν μὲν βουλῆς θεοτιμήτους βασιλῆας,
 οἷσι μέλει Σπάρτας ἡμερόεσσα πόλις,
 πρεσβύτας τε γέροντας, ἔπειτα δὲ δημότας
 ἄνδρας,
 εὐθείαις ῥήτραις ἀνταπαμειβομένους.

VII. Οὕτω τὸ πολίτευμα τοῦ Λυκούργου μίξαντος, ὅμως ἄκρατον ἔτι τὴν ὀλιγαρχίαν καὶ
 ἰσχυρὰν οἱ μετ' αὐτὸν ὀρώντες σπαργῶσαν καὶ
 θυμουμένην, ὡς φησιν ὁ Πλάτων, οἷον ψάλιον
 ἐμβάλλουσιν αὐτῇ τὴν τῶν ἐφόρων δύναμιν, ἔτεσί
 που μάλιστα τριάκοντα καὶ ἑκατὸν μετὰ Λυκούρ-2 γου πρώτων τῶν περὶ Ἐλατον ἐφόρων καταστα-φασιν ὑπὸ τῆς ἑαυτοῦ γυναικὸς ὀνειδιζόμενον ὡς ἐλάττω παραδώσοντα τοῖς παισὶ τὴν βασιλείαν ἣ παρέλαβε, “Μείζω μὲν οὖν,” εἰπεῖν, “ὄσφ χρονω-τέραν.” τῷ γὰρ ὄντι τὸ ἄγαν ἀποβαλοῦσα μετὰ
 τοῦ φθόνου διέφυγε τὸν κίνδυνον, ὥστε μὴ παθεῖν

LYCURGUS

ground that it was perverting and changing the motion contrary to the best interests of the state. And they were actually able to persuade the city that the god authorized this addition to the rhētra, as Tyrtaeus reminds us in these verses:—

“ Phoebus Apollo’s the mandate was which they brought from Pytho, Voicing the will of the god, nor were his words
unfulfilled :
Sway in the council and honours divine belong to the princes
Under whose care has been set Sparta’s city of charm ;
Second to them are the elders, and next come the men of the people Duly confirming by vote unperverted decrees.”

VII. Although Lycurgus thus tempered his civil polity, nevertheless the oligarchical element in it was still unmixed and dominant, and his successors, seeing it “swelling and foaming,” as Plato says,¹ “imposed as it were a curb upon it, namely, the power of the ephors.” It was about a hundred and thirty years after Lycurgus that the first ephors, Elatus and his colleagues, were appointed, in the reign of Theopompus. This king, they say, on being reviled by his wife because the royal power, when he handed it over to his sons, would be less than when he received it, said: “Nay, but greater, in that it will last longer.” And in fact, by renouncing excessive claims and freeing itself from jealous hate, royalty at Sparta escaped its perils, so that the Spartan kings did not experience the fate which the

¹ Laws, p. 692 a.

PLUTARCH'S LIVES

ἃ Μεσσηνιοὶ καὶ Ἀργεῖοι τοὺς παρ' αὐτοῖς βασιλεῖς ἔδρασαν, μηδὲν ἐνδοῦναι μηδὲ χαλάσαι τῆς ἐξουσίας ἐπὶ τὸ δημοτικὸν ἐβελήσαντας. ὁ καὶ μάλιστα τὴν Λυκούργου σοφίαν καὶ πρόνοιαν ἐποίησε φανερὰν εἰς τὰς Μεσσηνίων καὶ Ἀργείων, συγγενῶν καὶ γειτόνων, δῆμων καὶ βασιλέων στά-3 σεις καὶ κακοπολιτείας ἀφορῶσιν, οἱ τῶν ἴσων ἀπ' ἀρχῆς τετυχηκότες, ἐν δὲ τῷ κλήρῳ καὶ πλέον ἔχειν ἐκείνων δόξαντες, οὐκ ἐπὶ πολὺν χρόνον εὐδαιμόνησαν, ἀλλ' ὕβρει μὲν τῶν βασιλέων, οὐκ εὐπειθεῖα δὲ τῶν ὄχλων, τὰ καθεστῶτα συνταρά-
 4 ζαντες ἔδειξαν ὅτι θεῖον ἦν ὡς ἀληθῶς εὐτύχημα τοῖς Σπαρτιάταις ὁ τὴν πολιτείαν ἀρμοσάμενος καὶ κεράσας παρ' αὐτοῖς. ταῦτα μὲν οὖν ὕστερον.

VIII. Δεύτερον δὲ τῶν Λυκούργου πολιτευμάτων καὶ νεανικώτατον ὁ τῆς γῆς ἀναδασμός ἐστι. δεινῆς γὰρ οὔσης ἀνωμαλίας καὶ πολλῶν ἀκτημόνων καὶ ἀπόρων ἐπιφερομένων τῇ πόλει, τοῦ δὲ πλούτου παντάπασιν εἰς ὀλίγους συνερρηκότος, ὕβριν καὶ φθόνον καὶ κακουργίαν καὶ τρυφήν καὶ τὰ τούτων ἔτι πρεσβύτερα καὶ μείζω νοσήματα
 2 πολιτείας, πλοῦτον καὶ πενίαν, ἐξελαύνων, συνέπεισε τὴν χώραν ἅπασαν εἰς μέσον θέντας ἐξ ἀρχῆς ἀναδάσασθαι, καὶ ζῆν μετ' ἀλλήλων ἅπαντας ὀμαλεῖς καὶ ἰσοκλήρους τοῖς βίοις γενομένους, τὸ δὲ πρωτεῖον ἀρετῇ μετιόντας, ὡς ἄλλης ἐτέρῳ πρὸς ἕτερον οὐκ οὔσης διαφορᾶς οὐδὲ ἀνισότητος,

LYCURGUS

Messenians and Argives inflicted upon their kings, who were unwilling to yield at all or remit their power in favour of the people. And this brings into the clearest light the wisdom and foresight of Lycurgus, when we contrast the factions and misgovernment of the peoples and kings of Messenia and Argos, who were kinsmen and neighbours of the Spartans. They were on an equality with the Spartans in the beginning, and in the allotment of territory were thought to be even better off than they, and yet their prosperity did not last long, but what with the insolent temper of their kings and the unreasonableness of their peoples, their established institutions were confounded, and they made it clear that it was in very truth a divine blessing which the Spartans had enjoyed in the man who framed and tempered their civil polity for them. These events, however, were of later date.

VIII. A second, and a very bold political measure of Lycurgus, in his redistribution of the land. For there was a dreadful inequality in this regard, the city was heavily burdened with indigent and helpless people, and wealth was wholly concentrated in the hands of a few. Determined, therefore, to banish insolence and envy and crime and luxury, and those yet more deep-seated and afflictive diseases of the state, poverty and wealth, he persuaded his fellow-citizens to make one parcel of all their territory and divide it up anew, and to live with one another on a basis of entire uniformity and equality in the means of subsistence, seeking pre-eminence through virtue alone, assured that there was no other difference or inequality between man

PLUTARCH'S LIVES

πλήν ὄσσην αἰσχροῶν ψόγος ὀρίζει καὶ καλῶν ἔπαινος.

- 3 Ἐπάγων δὲ τῷ λόγῳ τὸ ἔργον ἔνειμε τὴν μὲν ἄλλην τοῖς περιοίκοις Λακωνικὴν τρισμυρίους κλήρους, τὴν δὲ εἰς τὸ ἄστυ τὴν Σπάρτην συντελοῦσαν ἑνακισχιλίους· τοσοῦτοι γὰρ ἐγένοντο κληροὶ Σπαρτιατῶν· ἔνιοι δὲ φασι τὸν μὲν Λυκούργον ἑξακισχιλίους νεῖμαι, τρισχιλίους δὲ μετὰ ταῦτα προσθεῖναι Πολύδωρον· οἱ δὲ τοὺς μὲν ἡμίσεις τῶν ἑνακισχιλίων τούτου, τοὺς δὲ
- 4 ἡμίσεις Λυκούργον. ὁ δὲ κληρὸς ἦν ἐκάστου τοσοῦτος ὥστε ἀποφορὰν φέρειν ἀνδρὶ μὲν ἑβδομήκοντα κριθῶν μεδίμνους, γυναικὶ δὲ δώδεκα, καὶ τῶν ὑγρῶν καρπῶν ἀναλόγως τὸ πλήθος. ἀρκέσειν γὰρ ᾤετο τοσοῦτον αὐτοῖς, τῆς τροφῆς πρὸς εὐεξίαν καὶ ὑγείαν ἱκανῆς, ἄλλου δὲ μηδενὸς δεησομένοις. λέγεται δ' αὐτὸν ὕστερόν ποτε χρόνῳ τὴν χώραν διερχόμενον ἐξ ἀποδημίας ἄρτι τεθερισμένην, ὀρῶντα τοὺς σωρούς παραλλήλους καὶ ὀμαλεῖς, μεδιᾶσαι, καὶ εἰπεῖν πρὸς τοὺς παρόντας ὡς ἡ Λακωνικὴ φαίνεται πᾶσα πολλῶν ἀδελφῶν εἶναι νεωστὶ νενεμημένων.

IX. Ἐπιχειρήσας δὲ καὶ τὰ ἔπιπλα διαιρεῖν, ὅπως παντάπασιν ἐξέλοι τὸ ἄνισον καὶ ἀνώμαλον, ἐπεὶ χαλεπῶς ἑώρα προσδεχομένους τὴν ἀντικρυς ἀφαίρεσιν, ἑτέρα περιήλθεν ὀδῶ καὶ κατεπολιτεύσατο τὴν ἐν τούτοις πλεονεξίαν. πρῶτον μὲν γὰρ ἀκυρώσας πᾶν νόμισμα χρυσοῦν καὶ ἀργυροῦν μόνῳ χρῆσθαι τῷ σιδηρῷ προσέταξε· καὶ τούτῳ δὲ ἀπὸ πολλοῦ σταθμοῦ and man than that which was established by blame for base actions and praise for good ones.

LYCURGUS

Suiting the deed to the word, he distributed the rest of the Laconian land among the "perioeci," or free provincials, in thirty thousand lots, and that which belonged to the city of Sparta, in nine thousand lots, to as many genuine Spartans. But some say that Lycurgus distributed only six thousand lots among the Spartans, and that three thousand were afterwards added by Polydorus; others still, that Polydorus added half of the nine thousand to the half distributed by Lycurgus. The lot of each was large enough to produce annually seventy bushels of barley for a man and twelve for his wife, with a proportionate amount of wine and oil. Lycurgus thought that a lot of this size would be sufficient for them, since they needed sustenance enough to promote vigour and health of body, and nothing else. And it is said that on returning from a journey some time afterwards, as he traversed the land just after the harvest, and saw the heaps of grain standing parallel and equal to one another, he smiled, and said to them that were by: "All Laconia looks like a family estate newly divided among many brothers."

IX. Next, he undertook to divide up their movable property also, in order that every vestige of unevenness and inequality might be removed; and when he saw that they could not bear to have it taken from them directly, he took another course, and overcame their avarice by political devices. In the first place, he withdrew all gold and silver money from currency, and ordained the use of iron money only. Then to a great weight and mass of this he gave a trifling.

PLUTARCH'S LIVES

- καὶ ὄγκου δύναμιν ὀλίγην ἔδωκεν, ὥστε δέκα μνῶν ἀμοιβὴν ἀποθήκης τε μεγάλης ἐν οἰκίᾳ
- 2 δεῖσθαι καὶ ζεύγους ἄγοντος. τούτου δὲ κυρωθέντος ἐξέπεσεν ἀδικημάτων γένη πολλὰ τῆς Λακεδαιμόνος. τίς γὰρ ἢ κλέπτειν ἔμελλεν ἢ δωροδοκεῖν ἢ ἀποστερεῖν ἢ ἄρπάζειν ὃ μήτε κατακρύψαι δυνατὸν ἦν μήτε κεκτηῖσθαι ζηλωτόν, ἀλλὰ μηδὲ κατακόψαι λυσιτελές· ὄξει γάρ, ὡς λέγεται, διαπύρου σιδήρου τὸ στόμωμα κατασβέσας ἀφείλετο τὴν εἰς τὰλλα χρεῖαν καὶ δύναμιν, ἀδρανούς καὶ δυσέργου γενομένου.
- 3 Μετὰ δὲ τοῦτο τῶν ἀχρήστων καὶ περισσῶν ἐποιεῖτο τεχνῶν ξηνηλασίαν. ἔμελλον δὲ πού καὶ μηδενὸς ἐξελαύνοντος αἱ πολλαὶ τῷ κοινῷ νομίσματι συνεκπεσεῖσθαι, διάθεσιν τῶν ἔργων οὐκ ἔχόντων. τὸ γὰρ σιδηροῦν ἀγώγιμον οὐκ ἦν πρὸς τοὺς ἄλλους Ἕλληνας οὐδ' εἶχε τιμὴν καταγελώμενον, ὥστε οὐδὲ πρίασθαι τι τῶν ξενικῶν καὶ ῥωπικῶν ὑπῆρχεν, οὐδ' εἰσέπλει φόρτος ἐμπορικὸς εἰς τοὺς λιμένας, οὐδὲ ἐπέβαινε τῆς Λακωνικῆς οὐ σοφιστῆς λόγων, οὐ μάντις ἀγυρτικός, οὐχ ἑταιρῶν τροφεύς, οὐ χρυσῶν τις, οὐκ ἀργυρῶν καλλωπισμάτων δημιουργός, ἅτε δὴ νομίσματος
- 4 οὐκ ὄντος. ἀλλὰ οὕτως ἀπερημωθεῖσα κατὰ μικρὸν ἢ τρυφῇ τῶν ζωπυρούντων καὶ τρεφόντων αὐτῇ δι' αὐτῆς ἐμαραίνετο· καὶ πλείον οὐδὲν ἦν τοῖς πολλὰ κεκτημένοις, ὁδὸν οὐκ ἐχούσης εἰς μέσον τῆς εὐπορίας, ἀλλ' ἐγκαταφυκοδομημένης καὶ ἀργούσης. διὸ καὶ τὰ πρόχειρα τῶν σκευῶν καὶ ἀναγκαῖα ταῦτα, κλινηῆρες καὶ δίφροι καὶ τράπεζαι, βέλπιστα παρ' αὐτοῖς ἐδημιουργεῖτο, καὶ κώθων ὁ

LYCURGUS

value, so that ten minas' worth¹ required a large store-room in the house, and a yoke of cattle to transport it. When this money obtained currency, many sorts of iniquity went into exile from Lacedaemon. For who would steal, or receive as a bribe, or rob, or plunder that which could neither be concealed, nor possessed with satisfaction, nay, nor even cut to pieces with any profit? For vinegar was used, as we are told, to quench the red-hot iron, robbing it of its temper and making it worthless for any other purpose, when once it had become brittle and hard to work.

In the next place, he banished the unnecessary and superfluous arts. And even without such banishment most of them would have departed with the old coinage, since there was no sale for their products. For the iron money could not be carried into the rest of Greece, nor had it any value there, but was rather held in ridicule. It was not possible, therefore, to buy any foreign wares or bric-à-brac; no merchant-seamen brought freight into their harbours; no rhetoric teacher set foot on Laconian soil, no vagabond soothsayer, no keeper of harlots, no gold- or silver-smith, since there was no money there. But luxury, thus gradually deprived of that which stimulated and supported it, died away of itself, and men of large possessions had no advantage over the poor, because their wealth found no public outlet, but had to be stored up at home in idleness. In this way it came about that such common and necessary utensils as bedsteads, chairs, and tables were most excellently made among them, and the Laconian "kothon," or drinking-cup, was in very high repute

¹ About £40, or $200.

5 Λακωνικὸς εὐδοκίμει μάλιστα πρὸς τὰς στρατείας, ὡς φησι Κριτίας. τὰ γὰρ ἀναγκαίως πινόμενα τῶν ὑδάτων καὶ δυσωποῦντα τὴν ὄψιν ἀπεκρύντετο τῇ χροῇ, καὶ τοῦ θολεροῦ προσκόπτοντος ἐντὸς καὶ προσισχομένου τοῖς ἄμβωσι, καθαρώτερον ἐπλησίαζε τῷ στόματι τὸ πινόμενον. αἴτιος δὲ καὶ τούτων ὁ νομοθέτης· ἀπηλλαγμένοι γὰρ οἱ δημιουργοὶ τῶν ἀχρήστων ἐν τοῖς ἀναγκαίοις ἐπεδείκνυντο τὴν καλλιτεχνίαν.

X. Ἐτι δὲ μᾶλλον ἐπιθέσθαι τῇ τρυφῇ καὶ τὸν ζῆλον ἀφελέσθαι τοῦ πλοῦτου διανοηθεῖς, τὸ τρίτον πολίτευμα καὶ κάλλιστον ἐπήγε, τὴν τῶν συσσιτίων κατασκευὴν, ὥστε δειπνεῖν μετ' ἀλλήλων συνιόντας ἐπὶ κοινοῖς καὶ τεταγμένοις ὄψοις καὶ σιτίοις, οἴκοι δὲ μὴ διαιτᾶσθαι κατακλινέντας εἰς στρωμνὰς πολυτελεῖς καὶ τραπέζας, χερσὶ δημιουργῶν καὶ μαγείρων ὑπὸ σκότος, ὥσπερ 2 ἀδηφάγα ζῶα, παινομένους, καὶ διαφθείροντας ἅμα τοῖς ἡθεσι τὰ σώματα πρὸς πᾶσαν ἐπιθυμίαν ἀνειμένα καὶ πλησμονήν, μακρῶν μὲν ὑπνῶν, θερμῶν δὲ λουτρῶν, πολλῆς δὲ ἡσυχίας καὶ τρόπου τινὰ νοσηλείας καθημερινῆς δεομένην. μέγα μὲν οὖν καὶ τοῦτο ἦν, μείζον δὲ τὸ τὸν πλοῦτον ἄζηλον, ὡς φησι Θεόφραστος, καὶ ἄπλοτον ἀπεργάσασθαι τῇ κοινότητι τῶν δειπνῶν καὶ τῇ περὶ 3 τὴν δίαιταν εὐτελείᾳ. χρήσις γὰρ οὐκ ἦν οὐδὲ ἀπόλαυσις οὐδὲ ὄψις ὅλως ἢ ἐπίδειξις τῆς πολλῆς παρασκευῆς, ἐπὶ τὸ αὐτὸ δεῖπνον τῷ πένητι τοῦ πλουσίου βαδίζοντος· ὥστε τοῦτο δὴ τὸ θρυλούμενον ἐν μόνῃ τῶν ὑπὸ τὸν ἥλιον πόλεων τῇ Σπάρτῃ βλέπεσθαι, τυφλὸν ὄντα τὸν πλοῦτον καὶ

LYCURGUS

for usefulness among soldiers in active service, as Critias tells us. For its colour concealed the disagreeable appearance of the water which they were often compelled to drink, and its curving lips caught the muddy sediment and held it inside, so that only the purer part reached the mouth of the drinker. For all this they had to thank their lawgiver; since their artisans were now freed from useless tasks, and displayed the beauty of their workmanship in objects of constant and necessary use.

X. With a view to attack luxury still more and remove the thirst for wealth, he introduced his third and most exquisite political device, namely, the institution of common messes, so that they might eat with one another in companies, of common and specified foods, and not take their meals at home, reclining on costly couches at costly tables, delivering themselves into the hands of servants and cooks to be fattened in the dark, like voracious animals, and ruining not only their characters but also their bodies, by surrendering them to every desire and all sorts of surfeit, which call for long sleeps, hot baths, abundant rest, and, as it were, daily nursing and tending. This was surely a great achievement, but it was a still greater one to make wealth "an object of no desire," as Theophrastus says, and even "unwealth,"¹ by this community of meals and simplicity of diet. For the rich man could neither use nor enjoy nor even see or display his abundant means, when he went to the same meal as the poor man; so that it was in Sparta alone, of all the cities under the sun, that men could have that far-famed sight, a Plutus blind, and lying as lifeless

¹ Cf. Morals, p. 527 b.

κείμενον ὡσπερ γραφήν ἄψυχον καὶ ἀκίνητον. οὐδὲ γὰρ οἴκοι προδειπνήσαντας ἐξῆν βαδίζειν ἐπὶ τὰ συσσίτια πεπληρωμένους, ἀλλ' ἐπιμελῶς οἱ λοιποὶ παραφυλάττοντες τὸν μὴ πίνοντα μηδὲ ἐσθίοντα μετ' αὐτῶν ἐκάκιζον ὡς ἀκρατῆ καὶ πρὸς τὴν κοινὴν ἀπομαλακίζόμενον δίαιταν.

XI. Διὸ καὶ μάλιστα φασὶ τῷ Λυκούργῳ πρὸς τοῦτο τὸ πολίτευμα χαλεποὺς γενέσθαι τοὺς εὐπόρους, καὶ συστάντας ἐπ' αὐτὸν ἀθρούους καταβοᾶν καὶ ἀγανακτεῖν· τέλος δὲ βαλλόμενος ὑπὸ πολλῶν ἐξέπεσε τῆς ἀγορᾶς δρόμῳ. καὶ τοὺς μὲν ἄλλους ἔφθασεν εἰς ἱερὸν καταφυγῶν· εἰς δὲ τις νεανίσκος, ἄλλως μὲν οὐκ ἀφυῆς, ὄξυς δὲ καὶ θυμοειδής, Ἄλκανδρος, ἐπικείμενος καὶ διώκων ἐπιστραφέντος αὐτοῦ τῇ βακτηρίᾳ πα-
 2 τάξας τὸν ὀφθαλμὸν ἐξέκοψεν. ὁ μὲν οὖν Λυκούργος οὐδὲν ἐνδοὺς πρὸς τὸ πάθος, ἀλλὰ στὰς ἐναντίος ἔδειξε τοῖς πολίταις τὸ πρόσωπον ἡμαγμένον καὶ διεφθαρμένην τὴν ὄψιν· αἰδῶς δὲ πολλῇ καὶ κατήφεια τοὺς ἰδόντας ἔσχευ, ὥστε παραδοῦναι τὸν Ἄλκανδρον αὐτῷ καὶ προπέμψαι μέχρι τῆς οἰκίας συναγανακτοῦντας. ὁ δὲ Λυκούργος ἐκείνους μὲν ἐπαινέσας ἀφῆκε, τὸν δὲ Ἄλκανδρον εἰσαγαγὼν οἴκαδε κακὸν μὲν οὐδὲν οὔτ' ἐποίησεν οὔτ' εἶπεν, ἀπαλλάξας δὲ τοὺς συνήθεις ὑπηρέτας καὶ θεραπευτῆρας ἐκείνον ἐκέλευσεν ὑπηρετεῖν.
 3 ὁ δὲ οὐκ ὦν ἀγευνῆς ἐποίει τὸ προσταττόμενον σιωπῇ, καὶ παραμένων ἅμα τῷ Λυκούργῳ καὶ συνδιαιτώμενος ἐν τῷ κατανοεῖν τὴν πραότητα καὶ τὸ ἀπαθὲς αὐτοῦ τῆς ψυχῆς καὶ τὸ περὶ τὴν δίαιταν αὐστηρὸν καὶ τὸ πρὸς τοὺς πόνους and motionless as a picture. For the rich could not even dine beforehand at home and then go to the common mess with full stomachs, but the rest kept careful watch of him who did not eat and drink with them, and reviled him as a weakling, and one too effeminate for the common diet.

LYCURGUS

XI. It was due, therefore, to this last political device above all, that the wealthy citizens were incensed against Lycurgus, and banding together against him, denounced him publicly with angry shouts and cries ; finally many pelted him with stones, so that he ran from the market-place. He succeeded in reaching sanctuary before the rest laid hands on him ; but one young man, Alcander, otherwise no mean nature, but hasty and passionate, pressed hard upon him, and as he turned about, smote him with his staff and put out one of his eyes. Lycurgus, however, was far from yielding in consequence of this calamity, but confronted his countrymen, and showed them his face besmeared with blood and his eye destroyed. Whereupon they were so filled with shame and sorrow at the sight, that they placed Alcander in his hands, and conducted him to his house with sympathetic indignation. Lycurgus commended them for their conduct, and dismissed them, but took Alcander into the house with him, where he did the youth no harm by word or deed, but after sending away his customary servants and attendants, ordered him to minister to his wants. The youth, who was of a noble disposition, did as he was commanded, without any words, and abiding thus with Lycurgus, and sharing his daily life, he came to know the gentleness of the man, the calmness of his spirit, the rigid simplicity of his habits, and his

ἄκαμπτον, αὐτός τε δεινῶς διετέθη περὶ τὸν
 ἄνδρα, καὶ πρὸς τοὺς συνήθεις καὶ φίλους ἔλεγεν
 ὡς οὐ σκληρὸς οὐδ' αὐθάδης ὁ Λυκούργος, ἀλλὰ 46 4 μόνος ἡμερος καὶ πρῶός ἐστι τοῖς ἄλλοις. οὕτω
 μὲν οὖν οὗτος ἐκεκόλαστο καὶ τοιαύτην ὑπεσχέκει
 δίκην, ἐκ πονηροῦ νέου καὶ αὐθάδους ἐμμελέστα-τος ἀνὴρ καὶ σωφρονικώτατος γενόμενος. τοῦ
 δὲ πάθους ὑπόμνημα Λυκούργος ἰδρύσατο τῆς Ἀθηνᾶς ἱερόν, ἣν Ὀπτιλίτιν προσηγόρευσε· τοὺς
 γὰρ ὀφθαλμοὺς ὀπτίλους οἱ τῆδε Δωριεῖς καλοῦ-
 σιν. ἔνιοι μέντοι τὸν Λυκούργον, ὧν καὶ Διοσκορίδης ἐστὶν ὁ συντεταγμένος τὴν Λακωνικὴν
 πολιτείαν, πληγῆναι μὲν φασιν, οὐ τυφλωθῆναι
 δὲ τὸν ὀφθαλμόν, ἀλλὰ καὶ τὸ ἱερόν τῆ θεῷ τῆς
 ἀκέσεως χαριστήριον ἰδρύσασθαι. τὸ μέντοι
 φέρειν βακτηρίαν ἐκκλησιάζοντες οἱ Σπαρτιᾶται
 μετὰ τὴν συμφορὰν ἐκείνην ἀπέμαθον.

XII. Τὰ δὲ συσσίτια Κρήτες μὲν ἀνδρεία, Λακεδαιμόνιοι δὲ φιδίτια προσαγορεύουσιν, εἴτε
 ὡς φιλίας καὶ φιλοφροσύνης ὑπαρχόντων, ἀντὶ
 τοῦ λ τὸ δ λαμβάνοντες, εἴτε ὡς πρὸς εὐτέλειαν
 καὶ φειδῶ συνεθίζοντων. οὐδὲν δὲ κωλύει καὶ
 τὸν πρῶτον ἔξωθεν ἐπικεῖσθαι φθόγγον, ὥσπερ
 ἔνιοί φασιν, ἐδιτίων παρὰ τὴν δίαιταν καὶ τὴν
 2 ἐδωδὴν λεγομένων. συνήρχοντο δὲ ἀνὰ πεντεκαί-δεκα καὶ βραχεῖ τούτων ἐλάττους ἢ πλείους.
 ἔφερε δὲ ἕκαστος κατὰ μῆνα τῶν συσσίτων ἀλφί-
 των μέδιμνον, οἴνου χόας ὀκτώ, τυροῦ πέντε μνᾶς, σύκων ἡμιμναῖα πέντε, πρὸς δὲ τούτοις εἰς ὄψω-
 νίαν μικρόν τι κομιδῆ νομίσματος. ἄλλως δὲ 236

LYCURGUS

unwearied industry. He thus became a devoted follower of Lycurgus, and used to tell his intimates and friends that the man was not harsh nor self-willed, as he had supposed, but the mildest and gentlest of them all. Such, then, was the chastisement of this young man, and such the penalty laid upon him, namely, to become, instead of a wild and impetuous youth, a most decorous and discreet man. Lycurgus, moreover, in memory of his misfortune, built a temple to Athena Optilitis, so called from "optilus," which is the local Doric word for eye. Some writers, however, of whom one is Dioscorides, who wrote a treatise on the Spartan civil polity, say that although Lyeurgus was struck in the eye, his eye was not blinded, but he built the temple to the goddess as a thank-offering for its healing. Be that as it may, the Spartan practice of carrying staves into their assemblies was abandoned after this unfortunate accident.

XII. As for the public messes, the Cretans call them "andreaia," but the Lacedaemonians, "phiditia," either because they are conducive to friendship and friendliness, "phiditia" being equivalent to "philitia"; or because they accustom men to simplicity and thrift, for which their word is "pheido." But it is quite possible, as some say, that the first letter of the word "phiditia" has been added to it, making "phiditia" out of "editia," which refers merely to meals and eating. They met in companies of fifteen, a few more or less, and each one of the mess-mates contributed monthly a bushel of barley-meal, eight gallons of wine, five pounds of cheese, two and a half pounds of figs, and in addition to this, a very small sum of money for such relishes as flesh and fish. Besides this, whenever any one made a

PLUTARCH'S LIVES

- καὶ θύσας τις ἀπαρχὴν καὶ θηρεύσας μέρος ἔπεμψεν εἰς τὸ συσσίτιον. ἐξῆν γὰρ οἴκοι δειπνεῖν ὁπότε θύσας τις ἢ κυνηγῶν ὀψίσειε, τοὺς
- 3 δὲ ἄλλους ἔδει παρεῖναι. καὶ μέχρι γε πολλοῦ τὰς συσσιτήσεις ἀκριβῶς διεφύλαττον. Ἄγιδος γοῦν τοῦ βασιλέως, ὡς ἐπανῆλθεν ἀπὸ τῆς στρατείας καταπεπολεμηκῶς Ἀθηναίους, βουλομένου παρὰ τῇ γυναικὶ δειπνεῖν καὶ μεταπεμπομένου τὰς μερίδας, οὐκ ἔπεμψαν οἱ πολέμαρχοι, τοῦ δὲ μεθ' ἡμέραν ὑπ' ὀργῆς μὴ θύσαντος ἦν ἔδει θυσίαν, ἐζημίωσαν αὐτόν.
- 4 Εἰς δὲ τὰ συσσίτια καὶ παῖδες ἐφοίτων, ὥσπερ εἰς διδασκαλεῖα σωφροσύνης ἀγόμενοι, καὶ λόγων ἠκροῶντο πολιτικῶν καὶ παιδευτὰς ἐλευθερίας ἐώρων, αὐτοὶ τε παίζειν εἰθίζοντο καὶ σκώπτειν ἄνευ βωμολοχίας καὶ σκωπτόμενοι μὴ δυσχεραίνειν. σφόδρα γὰρ ἐδόκει καὶ τοῦτο Λακωνικὸν εἶναι, σκώμματος ἀνέχεσθαι· μὴ φέροντα δὲ ἐξῆν
- 5 παραιτεῖσθαι, καὶ ὁ σκώπτων ἐπέπαντο. τῶν δ' εἰσιόντων ἐκάστῳ δείξας ὁ πρεσβύτατος τὰς θύρας, “Διὰ τούτων,” φησὶν, “ἔξω λόγος οὐκ ἐκπορεύεται.” δοκιμάζεσθαι δὲ τὸν βουλόμενον τοῦ συσσιτίου μετασχεῖν οὕτω φασί. λαβὼν τῶν συσσιτίων ἕκαστος ἀπομαγαδάλιαν εἰς τὴν χεῖρα, τοῦ διακόνου φέροντος ἀγγεῖον ἐπὶ τῆς κεφαλῆς, ἔβαλλε σιωπῇ καθάπερ ψῆφον, ὁ μὲν δοκιμάζων ἀπλῶς, ὁ δ' ἐκκρίνων σφόδρα τῇ χειρὶ πίεσας.
- 6 ἢ γὰρ πεπεισμένη τὴν τῆς τετρημένης ἔχει δύναμιν. κὰν μίαν εὔρωσι τοιαύτην, οὐ προσδέ-

LYCURGUS

sacrifice of first fruits, or brought home game from the hunt, he sent a portion to his mess. For whenever any one was belated by a sacrifice or the chase, he was allowed to sup at home, but the rest had to be at the mess. For a long time this custom of eating at common mess-tables was rigidly observed. For instance, when King Agis, on returning from an expedition in which he had been victorious over the Athenians, wished to sup at home with his wife, and sent for his rations, the polemarchs¹ refused to send them to him; and when on the following day his anger led him to omit the customary sacrifice, they laid a fine upon him.

Boys also used to come to these public messes, as if they were attending schools of sobriety; there they would listen to political discussions and see instructive models of liberal breeding. There they themselves also became accustomed to sport and jest without scurrility, and to endure jesting without displeasure. Indeed, it seems to have been especially characteristic of a Spartan to endure jesting; but if any one could not bear up under it, he had only to ask it, and the jester ceased. As each one came in, the eldest of the company pointed to the door and said to him: "Through that door no word goes forth outside." And they say that a candidate for membership in one of these messes underwent the following ordeal. Each of the mess-mates took in his hand a bit of soft bread, and when a servant came along with a bowl upon his head, then they cast it into this without a word, like a ballot, leaving it just as it was if he approved of the candidate, but if he disapproved, squeezing it tight in his hand first. For the flattened piece

¹ At Sparta, military commanders under the kings.

χονται τὸν ἐπεισιόντα, βουλόμενοι πάντας ἡδο-μένους ἀλλήλοις συνεῖναι. τὸν δὲ οὕτως ἀποδοκιμασθέντα κεκαδδίσθαι λέγουσι· κάρδιχος γὰρ
 καλεῖται τὸ ἀγγεῖον εἰς ὃ τὰς ἀπομαγδαλίας
 ἐμβάλλουσι. τῶν δὲ ὄψων εὐδοκίμει μάλιστα
 παρ' αὐτοῖς ὁ μέλας ζωμός, ὥστε μηδὲ κρεαδίου
 δεῖσθαι τοὺς πρεσβυτέρους, ἀλλὰ παραχωρεῖν
 τοῖς νεανίσκοις, αὐτοὺς δὲ τοῦ ζωμοῦ καταχεο-7 μένους ἐστιᾶσθαι. λέγεται δὲ τινα τῶν Ποντικῶν βασιλέων ἔνεκα τοῦ ζωμοῦ καὶ πρίασθαι Λακω-νικὸν μάγειρον· εἶτα γευσάμενον δυσχερᾶναι· καὶ
 τὸν μάγειρον εἶπεν· “ὦ βασιλεῦ, τοῦτον δεῖ τὸν ζωμὸν ἐν τῷ Εὐρώτῃ λελουμένους ἐποψᾶσθαι.”
 πίνοντες δὲ μετρίως ἀπίασι δίχα λαμπάδος. οὐ
 γὰρ ἔξεστι πρὸς φῶς βαδίζειν, οὔτε ταύτην οὔτε
 ἄλλην ὁδόν, ὅπως ἐθίζονται σκότους καὶ νυκτὸς εὐθαρσῶς καὶ ἀδεῶς ὁδεύειν. τὰ μὲν οὖν συσσίτια τοιαύτην ἔχει τάξιν.

XIII. Νόμους δὲ γεγραμμένους ὁ Λυκοῦργος 47
 οὐκ ἔθηκεν, ἀλλὰ μία τῶν καλουμένων ῥητρῶν
 ἐστὶν αὕτη. τὰ μὲν γὰρ κυριώτατα καὶ μέγιστα
 πρὸς εὐδαιμονίαν πόλεως καὶ ἀρετὴν, ἐν τοῖς
 ἡθεσιν ᾤετο καὶ ταῖς ἀγωγαῖς τῶν πολιτῶν
 ἐγκατεστοιχειωμένα, μένειν ἀκίνητα καὶ βέβαια, ἔχοντα τὴν προαίρεσιν δεσμὸν ἰσχυρότερον τῆς
 ἀνάγκης, ἣν ἡ παιδείσις ἐμποιεῖ τοῖς νέοις, νομοθέτου διάθεσιν ἀπεργαζομένη περὶ ἕκαστον αὐ-
 2 τῶν. τὰ δὲ μικρὰ καὶ χρηματικὰ συμβόλαια καὶ

LYCURGUS

of bread had the force of a perforated, or negative, ballot. And if one such is found in the bowl, the candidate is not admitted to the mess, because they wish all its members to be congenial. The candidate thus rejected is said to have been "caddished," for "caddichus"¹ is the name of the bowl into which they cast the pieces of bread. Of their dishes, the black broth is held in the highest esteem, so that the elderly men do not even ask for a bit of meat, but leave it for the young men, while they themselves have the broth poured out for their meals. And it is said that one of the kings of Pontus actually bought a Spartan cook for the sake of having this broth, and then, when he tasted it, disliked it; whereupon the cook said: "O King, those who relish this broth must first have bathed in the river Eurotas." After drinking moderately, they go off home without a torch; for they are not allowed to walk with a light, either on this or any other occasion, that they may accustom themselves to marching boldly and without fear in the darkness of night. Such, then, is the fashion of their common messes.

XIII. None of his laws were put into writing by Lycurgus, indeed, one of the so-called "rhetras" forbids it. For he thought that if the most important and binding principles which conduce to the prosperity and virtue of a city were implanted in the habits and training of its citizens, they would remain unchanged and secure, having a stronger bond than compulsion in the fixed purposes imparted to the young by education, which performs the office of a law-giver for every one of them. And as for minor

¹ Or "caddos," from which the verb in the Greek text is formed.

PLUTARCH'S LIVES

μεταπίπτοντα ταῖς χρεῖαις ἄλλοτε ἄλλως, βέλτιον ἦν μὴ καταλαμβάνειν ἐγγράφοις ἀνάγκαις μηδὲ ἀκινήτοις ἔθεσιν, ἀλλ' ἔαν ἐπὶ τῶν καιρῶν, προσθέσεις λαμβάνοντα καὶ ἀφαιρέσεις, ἃς ἂν οἱ πεπαιδευμένοι δοκιμάσωσι. τὸ γὰρ ὅλον καὶ πᾶν τῆς νομοθεσίας ἔργον εἰς τὴν παιδείαν ἀνήψε.

- 3 Μία μὲν οὖν τῶν ῥητρῶν ἦν, ὥσπερ εἴρηται, μὴ χρῆσθαι νόμοις ἐγγράφοις. ἑτέρα δὲ πάλιν κατὰ τῆς πολυτελείας, ὅπως οἰκία πᾶσα τὴν μὲν ὀροφὴν ἀπὸ πελέκεως εἰργασμένην ἔχη, τὰς δὲ θύρας ἀπὸ πρίονος μόνου καὶ μηδενὸς τῶν ἄλλων ἐργαλείων. ὅπερ γὰρ ὕστερον Ἐπαμεινώνδαν εἰπεῖν λέγουσιν ἐπὶ τῆς ἑαυτοῦ τραπέζης, ὡς τὸ τοιοῦτον ἄριστον οὐ χωρεῖ προδοσίαν, τοῦτο πρῶτος ἐνόησε Λυκούργος, ὡς οἰκία τοιαύτη τρυφὴν
- 4 οὐ χωρεῖ καὶ πολυτέλειαν, οὐδ' ἔστιν οὐδεὶς οὕτως ἀπειρόκαλος καὶ ἀνόητος ὥστε εἰς οἰκίαν ἀφελῆ καὶ δημοτικὴν εἰσφέρειν κλίνας ἀργυρόποδας καὶ στρωμνὰς ἀλουργεῖς καὶ χρυσᾶς κύλικας καὶ τὴν τούτοις ἐπομένην πολυτέλειαν, ἀλλ' ἀνάγκη συναρμόζεσθαι καὶ συνεξομοιοῦν τῇ μὲν οἰκίᾳ τὴν κλίνην, τῇ δὲ κλίνῃ τὴν ἐσθῆτα, ταύτῃ δὲ τὴν
- 5 ἄλλην χορηγίαν καὶ κατασκευὴν. ἐκ δὲ ταύτης τῆς συνηθείας φασὶ καὶ Λεωτυχίδην τὸν πρεσβύτερον ἐν Κορίνθῳ δειπνοῦντα, καὶ θεασάμενον τῆς στέγης τοῦ οἴκου τὴν κατασκευὴν πολυτελῆ καὶ φατνωματικὴν, ἐρωτῆσαι τὸν ξένον εἰ τετράγωνα παρ' αὐτοῖς τὰ ξύλα φύεται.

Τρίτην δὲ ῥήτραν διαμνημονεύουσι τοῦ Λυκούργου, τὴν κωλύουσαν ἐπὶ τοὺς αὐτοὺς πολεμίους matters, such as business contracts, and cases where the needs vary from time to time, it was better, as he thought, not to hamper them by written constraints or fixed usages, but to suffer them, as occasion demanded, to receive such modifications as educated men should determine. Indeed, he assigned the function of law-making wholly and entirely to education.

LYCURGUS

One of his rhetras accordingly, as I have said, prohibited the use of written laws. Another was directed against extravagance, ordaining that every house should have its roof fashioned by the axe, and its doors by the saw only, and by no other tool. For, as in later times Epaminondas is reported to have said at his own table, that such a meal did not comport with treachery, so Lycurgus was the first to see clearly that such a house does not comport with luxury and extravagance. Nor is any man so vulgar and senseless as to introduce into a simple and common house silver-footed couches, purple coverlets, gold drinking-cups, and all the extravagance which goes along with these, but one must of necessity adapt and proportion his couch to his house, his coverlets to his couch, and to this the rest of his supplies and equipment. It was because he was used to this simplicity that Leotychides the Elder, as we are told, when he was dining in Corinth, and saw the roof of the house adorned with costly panellings, asked his host if trees grew square in that country.

A third rhetra of Lycurgus is mentioned, which forbids making frequent expeditions against the same πολλάκις¹ στρατεύειν, ἵνα μὴ πολλάκις ἀμύνε-6 σθαι συνεθιζόμενοι πολεμικοὶ γένωνται. καὶ τοῦτό

 γε μάλιστα κατηγοροῦσιν Ἀγησιλάου τοῦ βασιλέως ὕστερον, ὡς ταῖς συνεχέσει καὶ πυκναῖς εἰς
 τὴν Βοιωτίαν ἐμβολαῖς καὶ στρατείαις τοὺς Θη-βαίους ἀντιπάλους τοῖς Λακεδαιμονίοις κατα-σκευάσαντος. διὸ καὶ τετρωμένον αὐτὸν ἰδὼν Ἀνταλκίδας, “Καλά,” ἔφη, “τὰ διδασκάλια παρὰ Θηβαίων ἀπολαμβάνεις, μὴ βουλομένους αὐτοὺς
 μηδὲ εἰδότας μάχεσθαι διδάξας.” τὰ μὲν οὖν τοιαῦτα νομοθετήματα ῥήτρας ὠνόμασεν, ὡς παρὰ
 τοῦ θεοῦ κομιζόμενα² καὶ χρησμούς ὄντα.

XIV. Τῆς δὲ παιδείας, ἣν μέγιστον ἠγείτο τοῦ
 νομοθέτου καὶ κάλλιστον ἔργον εἶναι, πόρρωθεν
 ἀρχόμενος εὐθύς ἐπεσκόπει τὰ περὶ τοὺς γάμους
 καὶ τὰς γενέσεις. οὐ γάρ, ὡς Ἀριστοτέλης φησὶν, ἐπιχειρήσας σωφρονίζειν τὰς γυναῖκας, ἐπαύσατο
 μὴ κρατῶν τῆς πολλῆς ἀνέσεως καὶ γυναικοκρα-τίας διὰ τὰς πολλὰς στρατείας τῶν ἀνδρῶν, ἐν
 αἷς ἠναγκάζοντο κυρίας ἀπολείπειν ἐκείνας, καὶ
 διὰ τοῦτο μᾶλλον τοῦ προσήκουτος αὐτὰς ἐθερά-πευον καὶ δεσποίνας προσηγόρευον· ἀλλὰ καὶ
 τούτων τὴν ἐνδεχομένην ἐπιμέλειαν ἐποιήσατο.
 2 τὰ μὲν γε σώματα τῶν παρθένων δρόμοις καὶ
 πάλαις καὶ βολαῖς δίσκων καὶ ἀκοντίων διεπόνη-σεν, ὡς ἦ τε τῶν γεννωμένων ῥίζωσις ἰσχυρὰν ἐν
 ἰσχυροῖς σώμασιν ἀρχὴν λαβοῦσα βλαστάνοι

¹ πολλάκις inserted before στρατεύειν to agree with Morals, p. 227 c; πολεμίους στρατεύειν.

² κομιζόμενα Cobet, adopting the conjecture of Sintenis²: νομιζόμενα (were believed to come).

LYCURGUS

enemies, in order not to accustom such enemies to frequent defence of themselves, which would make them warlike. And this was the special grievance which they had against King Agesilaüs in later times, namely, that by his continual and frequent incursions and expeditions into Boeotia he rendered the Thebans a match for the Lacedaemonians. And therefore, when Antalcidas saw the king wounded, he said: "This is a fine tuition-fee which thou art getting from the Thebans, for teaching them how to fight, when they did not wish to do it, and did not know how." Such ordinances as these were called "rhetras" by Lycurgus, implying that they came from the god and were oracles.

XIV. In the matter of education, which he regarded as the greatest and noblest task of the law-giver, he began at the very source, by carefully regulating marriages and births. For it is not true that, as Aristotle says,¹ he tried to bring the women under proper restraint, but desisted, because he could not overcome the great licence and power which the women enjoyed on account of the many expeditions in which their husbands were engaged. During these the men were indeed obliged to leave their wives in sole control at home, and for this reason paid them greater deference than was their due, and gave them the title of Mistress. But even to the women Lycurgus paid all possible attention. He made the maidens exercise their bodies in running, wrestling, casting the discus, and hurling the javelin, in order that the fruit of their wombs might have vigorous root in vigorous bodies and come to better maturity, and that they themselves

¹ Pol. ii. 6, 8.

βέλτιον, αὐταὶ τε μετὰ ῥώμης τοὺς τόκους ὑπομένουσαι καλῶς ἄμα καὶ ῥαδίως ἀγωνίζονται πρὸς
 τὰς ὠδίνας. ἀφελὼν δὲ θρύψιν καὶ σκιατραφίαν
 καὶ θηλύτητα πᾶσαν οὐδὲν ἤττον εἶθισε τῶν 48
 κόρων τὰς κόρας γυμνάς τε πομπεύειν καὶ πρὸς
 ἱεροῖς τισιν ὀρχεῖσθαι καὶ ἄδειν τῶν νέων παρόν-3 των καὶ θεωμένων. ἔστι δὲ ὅτε καὶ σκώμματα λέγουσαι πρὸς ἕκαστον εὐχρήστως ἐπελαμβάν-νοντο τῶν ἀμαρτανομένων· καὶ πάλιν εἰς τοὺς
 ἀξιούς αὐτῶν ἐγκώμια μετ' ὠδῆς πεποιημένα διεξιοῦσαι, φιλοτιμίαν πολλὴν καὶ ζῆλον ἐνεποιοῦν
 τοῖς νεανίσκοις. ὁ γὰρ ἐγκωμιασθεὶς ἐπ' ἀνδρα-γαθία καὶ κλεινὸς ἐν ταῖς παρθένοις γεγωνὸς
 ἀπῆει μεγαλυνόμενος ὑπὸ τῶν ἐπαίνων· αἱ δὲ
 μετὰ παιδιᾶς καὶ σκωμμάτων δῆξεις οὐδὲν ἀμ-βλύτεροι τῶν μετὰ σπουδῆς νουθετημάτων ἦσαν,
 ἅτε δὴ πρὸς τὴν θεάν ὁμοῦ τοῖς ἄλλοις πολίταις
 καὶ τῶν βασιλέων καὶ τῶν γερόντων συμπορευο-μένων.

4 Ἡ δὲ γύμνωσις τῶν παρθένων οὐδὲν αἰσχρὸν
 εἶχεν, αἰδοῦς μὲν παρούσης, ἀκρασίας δὲ ἀπούσης,
 ἀλλ' ἐθισμὸν ἀφελῆ καὶ ζῆλον εὐεξίας ἐνεργάζετο,
 καὶ φρονήματος τὸ θῆλυ παρέγευεν οὐκ ἀγεννοῦς,
 ὡς μηδὲν ἤττον αὐτῷ καὶ ἀρετῆς καὶ φιλοτιμίας
 μετουσίαν οὔσαν. ὅθεν αὐταῖς καὶ λέγειν ἐπῆει
 καὶ φρονεῖν οἶα καὶ περὶ Γοργοῦς ἱστόρηται τῆς Λεωνίδου γυναικός. εἰπούσης γάρ τινος, ὡς ἔοικε, ξένης πρὸς αὐτὴν ὡς “ Μόνοι τῶν ἀνδρῶν ἄρχετε
 ὑμεῖς αἱ Λάκαιναι,” “ Μόνοι γάρ,” ἔφη, “ τίκτομεν ἀνδρας.”

XV. Ἦν μὲν οὖν καὶ ταῦτα παρορμητικὰ πρὸς
 γάμον· λέγω δὲ τὰς πομπὰς τῶν παρθένων καὶ

LYCURGUS

might come with vigour to the fulness of their times, and struggle successfully and easily with the pangs of child-birth. He freed them from softness and delicacy and all effeminacy by accustoming the maidens no less than the youths to wear tunics only in processions, and at certain festivals to dance and sing when the young men were present as spectators. There they sometimes even mocked and railed good-naturedly at any youth who had misbehaved himself; and again they would sing the praises of those who had shown themselves worthy, and so inspire the young men with great ambition and ardour. For he who was thus extolled for his valour and held in honour among the maidens, went away exalted by their praises; while the sting of their playful raillery was no less sharp than that of serious admonitions, especially as the kings and senators, together with the rest of the citizens, were all present at the spectacle.

Nor was there anything disgraceful in this scant clothing of the maidens, for modesty attended them, and wantonness was banished; nay, rather, it produced in them habits of simplicity and an ardent desire for health and beauty of body. It gave also to woman-kind a taste of lofty sentiment, for they felt that they too had a place in the arena of bravery and ambition. Wherefore they were led to think and speak as Gorgo, the wife of Leonidas, is said to have done. When some foreign woman, as it would seem, said to her: "You Spartan women are the only ones who rule their men," she answered: "Yes, we are the only ones that give birth to men."

XV. Moreover, there were incentives to marriage in these things,—I mean such things as the appear-

PLUTARCH'S LIVES

- τὰς ἀποδύσεις καὶ τοὺς ἀγῶνας ἐν ὄψει τῶν νέων, ἀγομένων οὐ γεωμετρικαῖς, ἀλλ' ἐρωτικάις, ὡς φησιν ὁ Πλάτων, ἀνάγκαις· οὐ μὴν ἀλλὰ καὶ ἀτιμίαν τινα προσέθηκε τοῖς ἀγάμοις. εἴργοντο γὰρ ἐν ταῖς γυμνοπαιδίαις τῆς θεάς· τοῦ δὲ χειμῶνος οἱ μὲν ἄρχοντες αὐτοὺς ἐκέλευον ἐν κύκλῳ
- 2 γυμνοὺς περιῖεναι τὴν ἀγοράν, οἱ δὲ περιῖόντες ἦδον εἰς αὐτοὺς φδῆν τινα πεπονημένην, ὡς δίκαια πάσχοιεν, ὅτι τοῖς νόμοις ἀπειθοῦσιν τιμῆς δὲ καὶ θεραπείας ἦν νέοι πρεσβυτέροις παρείχον, ἐστέρηντο. ὅθεν καὶ τὸ πρὸς Δερκυλλίδαν ῥηθὲν οὐδεὶς ἐμέμψατο, καίπερ εὐδόκιμον ὄντα στρατηγόν. ἐπιόντι γὰρ αὐτῷ τῶν νεωτέρων τις ἔδρας οὐχ ὑπεῖξεν, εἰπών, “ Οὐδὲ γὰρ ἐμοὶ σὺ τὸν ὑπεῖξοντα γεγέννηκας.”
- 3 Ἐγάμου δὲ δι' ἀρπαγῆς, οὐ μικρὰς οὐδὲ ἀώρους πρὸς γίμον, ἀλλὰ καὶ ἀκμαζούσας καὶ πεπείρους. τὴν δὲ ἀρπασθεῖσαν ἢ νυμφεύτρια καλουμένη παραλαβοῦσα, τὴν μὲν κεφαλὴν ἐν χρῶ περιέκειρεν, ἱματίῳ δὲ ἀνδρείῳ καὶ ὑποδήμασιν ἐνσκευάσασα κατέκλινεν ἐπὶ στιβάδα μόνην ἄνευ φωτός. ὁ δὲ νυμφίος οὐ μεθύων οὐδὲ θρυπτόμενος, ἀλλὰ νήφων, ὥσπερ αἰεὶ, δεδειπνηκῶς ἐν τοῖς φιδιτίοις, παραιρεσθῶν ἔλυσεν τὴν ζώνην καὶ

LYCURGUS

ance of the maidens without much clothing in processions and athletic contests where young men were looking on, for these were drawn on by necessity, "not geometrical, but the sort of necessity which lovers know," as Plato says.¹ Nor was this all; Lycurgus also put a kind of public stigma upon confirmed bachelors. They were excluded from the sight of the young men and maidens at their exercises, and in winter the magistrates ordered them to march round the market-place in their tunics only, and as they marched, they sang a certain song about themselves, and its burden was that they were justly punished for disobeying the laws. Besides this, they were deprived of the honour and gracious attentions which the young men habitually paid to their elders. Therefore there was no one to find fault with what was said to Dercyllidas, reputable general though he was. As he entered a company, namely, one of the younger men would not offer him his seat, but said: "Indeed, thou hast begotten no son who will one day give his seat to me."

For their marriages the women were carried off by force, not when they were small and unfit for wedlock, but when they were in full bloom and wholly ripe. After the woman was thus carried off, the bride's-maid, so called, took her in charge, cut her hair off close to the head, put a man's cloak and sandals on her, and laid her down on a pallet, on the floor, alone, in the dark. Then the bride-groom, not flown with wine nor enfeebled by excesses, but composed and sober, after supping at his public mess-table as usual, slipped stealthily into the room where the bride lay, loosed her virgin's zone, and bore her

¹ Republic, p. 458 d.

PLUTARCH'S LIVES

- 4 μετήνεγκεν ἀράμενος ἐπὶ τὴν κλίνην. συνδιατρίψας δὲ χρόνον οὐ πολὺν ἀπήει κοσμίως οὐτὲρ εἰώθει τὸ πρότερον, καθευδήσων μετὰ τῶν ἄλλων νέων. καὶ τὸ λοιπὸν οὕτως ἔπραττε, τοῖς μὲν ἡλικιώταις συνδιημερεύων καὶ συναναπαυόμενος, πρὸς δὲ τὴν νύμφην κρύφα μετ' εὐλαβείας φοιτῶν, αἰσχυρόμενος καὶ δεδοικῶς μή τις αἰσθοίτο τῶν ἔνδον, ἅμα καὶ τῆς νύμφης ἐπιτεχνωμένης καὶ συνευπορούσης ὅπως ἂν ἐν καιρῷ καὶ λανθάνοντες
- 5 ἀλλήλοις συμπορεύοιντο. καὶ τοῦτο ἔπραττον οὐκ ὀλίγον χρόνον, ἀλλ' ὥστε καὶ παῖδας γενέσθαι ἐνίοις πρὶν ἐς ἡμέραν θεάσασθαι τὰς ἑαυτῶν γυναῖκας. ἡ δὲ τοιαύτη σύνοδος οὐ μόνον ἐγκρατείας καὶ σωφροσύνης ἄσκησις ἦν, ἀλλὰ τοῖς τε σώμασι γονίμους καὶ τῷ φιλεῖν αἰεὶ καινοὺς καὶ προσφάτους ἤγεεν ἐπὶ τὴν κοινωνίαν, οὐ διακορεῖς οὐδ' ἐξιτήλους ταῖς ἀνέδην κοινωνίαις, ἀλλ' αἰεὶ τι λείψανον καὶ ὑπέκκαυμα πόθου καὶ χάριτος ἐναπολείποντας ἀλλήλοις.
- 6 Τοσαύτην δὲ τοῖς γάμοις ἐπιστήσας αἰδῶ καὶ 49 τάξιν, οὐδὲν ἤττον ἐξέβαλε τὴν κενὴν καὶ γυναικῶδη ζηλοτυπίαν, ἐν καλῷ καταστήσας ὕβριν μὲν καὶ ἀναξίαν πᾶσαν εἶργειν ἀπὸ τοῦ γάμου, παίδων δὲ καὶ τεκνώσεως κοινωνεῖν τοῖς ἀξίοις, καταγελῶντας τῶν ὡς ἄμικτα καὶ ἀκοινωνήτα
- 7 ταῦτα μετιόντων σφαγαῖς καὶ πολέμοις. ἐξῆν μὲν γὰρ ἀνδρὶ πρεσβυτέρῳ νέας γυναικός, εἰ δὴ τινα τῶν καλῶν καὶ ἀγαθῶν ἀσπάσαιτο νέων καὶ δοκιμάσειεν, εἰσαγαγεῖν παρ' αὐτὴν καὶ πλήσαντα γενναίου σπέρματος ἴδιον αὐτοῖς ποιή-

LYCURGUS

in his arms to the marriage-bed. Then, after spending a short time with his bride, he went away composedly to his usual quarters, there to sleep with the other young men. And so he continued to do from that time on, spending his days with his comrades, and sleeping with them at night, but visiting his bride by stealth and with every precaution, full of dread and fear lest any of her household should be aware of his visits, his bride also contriving and conspiring with him that they might have stolen interviews as occasion offered. And this they did not for a short time only, but long enough for some of them to become fathers before they had looked upon their own wives by daylight. Such interviews not only brought into exercise self-restraint and moderation, but united husbands and wives when their bodies were full of creative energy and their affections new and fresh, not when they were sated and dulled by unrestricted intercourse; and there was always left behind in their hearts some residual spark of mutual longing and delight.

After giving marriage such traits of reserve and decorum, he none the less freed men from the empty and womanish passion of jealous possession, by making it honourable for them, while keeping the marriage relation free from all wanton irregularities, to share with other worthy men in the begetting of children, laughing to scorn those who regard such common privileges as intolerable, and resort to murder and war rather than grant them. For example, an elderly man with a young wife, if he looked with favour and esteem on some fair and noble young man, might introduce him to her, and adopt her offspring by such a noble father as his

PLUTARCH'S LIVES

σασθαι τὸ γεννηθέν. ἐξῆν δὲ πάλιν ἀνδρὶ χρη-στῶ, τῶν εὐτέκνων τινὰ καὶ σωφρόνων θαυμά-σαντι γυναικῶν ἐτέρῳ γεγαμημένην, πείσαι τὸν
 ἄνδρα συνελθεῖν, ὥσπερ ἐν χώρα καλλικάρπῳ
 φυτεύοντα καὶ ποιούμενον παῖδας ἀγαθούς, ἀγα-8 θῶν ὁμαίμους καὶ συγγενεῖς ἔσομένους. πρῶτον
 μὲν γὰρ οὐκ ἰδίους ἠγεῖτο τῶν πατέρων τοὺς
 παῖδας, ἀλλὰ κοινούς τῆς πόλεως ὁ Λυκοῦργος,
 ὅθεν οὐκ ἐκ τῶν τυχόντων, ἀλλ' ἐκ τῶν ἀρίστων
 ἐβούλετο γεγονότας εἶναι τοὺς πολίτας. ἔπειτα
 πολλὴν ἀβελτερίαν καὶ τῦφον ἐνεώρα τοῖς περὶ
 ταῦτα τῶν ἄλλων νομοθετήμασιν, οἳ κύνας μὲν
 καὶ ἵππους ὑπὸ τοῖς κρατίστοις τῶν ὀχείων βιβάζουσι χάριτι πείθοντες ἢ μισθῶ τοὺς κυ-ρίους, τὰς δὲ γυναῖκας ἐγκλεισάμενοι φρουροῦσιν,
 ἐξ αὐτῶν μόνων τίκτειν ἀξιοῦντες, κὰν ἄφρονες 9 ὦσι, κὰν παρήλικες, κὰν νοσῶδεις, ὡς οὐχὶ πρῶ-τοις τοῖς κεκτημένοις καὶ τρέφουσι τῶν παίδων
 γινομένων ποιηρῶν, ἐὰν ἐκ ποιηρῶν γένωνται,
 καὶ τούναντίον χρηστῶν, ἂν τοιαύτης τύχῳσι
 γενέσεως. ταῦτα δὲ οὕτως πραττόμενα φυσικῶς
 καὶ πολιτικῶς τότε τοσοῦτον ἀπεῖχε τῆς ὕστερον λεγομένης γενέσθαι περὶ τὰς γυναῖκας εὐχερείας
 ὥστε ὅλως ἄπιστον εἶναι τὸ τῆς μοιχείας παρ'
 10 αὐτοῖς. καὶ λόγος ἀπομνημονεύεται Γεράδα τινὸς Σπαρτιάτου τῶν σφόδρα παλαιῶν, ὃς ἐρωτηθεὶς
 ὑπὸ ξένου τί πάσχουσιν οἱ μοιχοὶ παρ' αὐτοῖς,

LYCURGUS

own. And again, a worthy man who admired some woman for the fine children that she bore her husband and the modesty of her behaviour as a wife, might enjoy her favours, if her husband would consent, thus planting, as it were, in a soil of beautiful fruitage, and begetting for himself noble sons, who would have the blood of noble men in their veins. For in the first place, Lycurgus did not regard sons as the peculiar property of their fathers, but rather as the common property of the state, and therefore would not have his citizens spring from random parentage, but from the best there was. In the second place, he saw much folly and vanity in what other peoples enacted for the regulation of these matters; in the breeding of dogs and horses they insist on having the best sires which money or favour can secure, but they keep their wives under lock and key, demanding that they have children by none but themselves, even though they be foolish, or infirm, or diseased; as though children of bad stock did not show their badness to those first who possessed and reared them, and children of good stock, contrariwise, their goodness. The freedom which thus prevailed at that time in marriage relations was aimed at physical and political well-being, and was far removed from the licentiousness which was afterwards attributed to their women, so much so that adultery was wholly unknown among them. And a saying is reported of one Geradas,¹ a Spartan of very ancient type, who, on being asked by a stranger what the punishment for adulterers was among them, answered: "Stranger,

¹ The name is Geradatas in Morals, p. 228 c (Apophtheg. Lacon. 20).

εἶπεν· “ὦ ξένε, οὐδεὶς γίνεται μοιχὸς παρ’ ἡμῖν.”
 ἐκείνου δὲ ὑπολαβόντος, “Ἐὰν οὖν γένηται;” “Ταῦρον,” ἔφη ὁ Γεράδας, “ἐκτίνει μέγαν, ὃς ὑπερκύψας τὸ Ταῦγετον ἀπὸ τοῦ Εὐρώτα πίεται.”
 θαυμάσαντος δ’ ἐκείνου καὶ φήσαντος· “Πῶς δὲ
 ἂν γένοιτο βούς τηλικούτος;” γελάσας ὁ Γεράδας, “Πῶς δ’ ἄν,” ἔφη, “ἐν Σπάρτῃ μοιχὸς γένοιτο;”
 ταῦτα μὲν οὖν ἱστόρηται περὶ τῶν γάμων.

XVI. Τὸ δὲ γεννηθὲν οὐκ ἦν κύριος ὁ γεννήσας
 τρέφειν, ἀλλ’ ἔφερε λαβῶν εἰς τόπον τινα λέσσχην καλούμενον, ἐν ᾧ καθήμενοι τῶν φυλετῶν
 οἱ πρεσβύτατοι καταμαθόντες τὸ παιδάριον, εἰ
 μὲν εὐπαγῆς εἶη καὶ ῥωμαλέον, τρέφειν ἐκέλευον, κληρὸν αὐτῷ τῶν ἐνακισχιλίων προσνείμαντες·
 εἰ δ’ ἀγεννὲς καὶ ἄμορφον, ἀπέπεμπον εἰς τὰς
 λεγομένας Ἀποθέτας, παρὰ Ταῦγετον βαραθρῶ-2 δη τόπον, ὡς οὔτε αὐτῷ ζῆν ἄμεινον ὄν¹ οὔτε
 τῇ πόλει τὸ μὴ καλῶς εὐθύς ἐξ ἀρχῆς πρὸς
 εὐεξίαν καὶ ῥώμην. πεφυκός. ὄθεν οὐδὲ ὕδατι
 τὰ βρέφη, ἀλλ’ οἴνῳ περιέλουον αἱ γυναῖκες,
 βάσανόν τινα ποιούμεναι τῆς κράσεως αὐτῶν.
 λέγεται γὰρ ἐξίστασθαι τὰ ἐπιληπτικὰ καὶ νοσῶδη πρὸς τὸν ἄκρατον ἀποσφακελίζοντα, τὰ δ’
 ὑγιεινὰ μᾶλλον στομοῦσθαι καὶ κρατύνεσθαι τὴν
 3 ἔξιν. ἦν δὲ περὶ τὰς τροφούς ἐπιμέλειά τις μετὰ
 τέχνης, ὥστ’ ἄνευ σπαργάνων ἐκτρεφούσας τὰ
 βρέφη τοῖς μέλεσι καὶ τοῖς εἶδεσιν ἐλευθέρια
 ποιεῖν, ἔτι δὲ εὐκόλα ταῖς διαίταις καὶ ἄσικχα
 καὶ ἀθαμβῆ σκότου καὶ πρὸς ἐρημίαν ἄφοβα καὶ

¹ ὄν supplied by van Herwerden : ἄμεινον οὐτε.

LYCURGUS

there is no adulterer among us." "Suppose, then," replied the stranger, "there should be one." "A bull," said Geradas, "would be his forfeit, a bull so large that it could stretch over Mount Taygetus and drink from the river Eurotas." Then the stranger was astonished and said: "But how could there be a bull so large?" To which Geradas replied, with a smile: "But how could there be an adulterer in Sparta?" Such, then, are the accounts we find of their marriages.

XVI. Offspring was not reared at the will of the father, but was taken and carried by him to a place called Lesche, where the elders of the tribes officially examined the infant, and if it was well-built and sturdy, they ordered the father to rear it, and assigned it one of the nine thousand lots of land; but if it was ill-born and deformed, they sent it to the so-called Apothetae, a chasm-like place at the foot of Mount Taygetus, in the conviction that the life of that which nature had not well equipped at the very beginning for health and strength, was of no advantage either to itself or the state. On the same principle, the women used to bathe their new-born babes not with water, but with wine, thus making a sort of test of their constitutions. For it is said that epileptic and sickly infants are thrown into convulsions by the strong wine and loose their senses, while the healthy ones are rather tempered by it, like steel, and given a firm habit of body. Their nurses, too, exercised great care and skill; they reared infants without swaddling-bands, and thus left their limbs and figures free to develop; besides, they taught them to be contented and happy, not dainty about their food, nor fearful of the dark, nor afraid to be left alone, ἄπειρα δυσκολίας ἀγεννοῦς καὶ κλαυθμυρισμῶν. διὸ καὶ τῶν ἔξωθεν ἔνιοι τοῖς τέκνοις Λακωνικὰς ἐωνοῦντο τίτθας· καὶ τὴν γε τὸν Ἀθηναῖον Ἀλκιβιάδην τιτθεύσασαν Ἀμύκλαν ἱστοροῦσι γεγομέναι Λάκαιναν.

- 4 Ἀλλὰ τούτῳ μὲν, ὡς Πλάτων φησί, Ζώπυρον ἐπέστησε παιδαγωγὸν Περικλῆς, οὐδέν τι τῶν ἄλλων διαφέροντα δούλων· τοὺς δὲ Σπαρτιατῶν 50
 παῖδας οὐκ ἐπὶ ὠνητοῖς οὐδὲ μισθίοις ἐποιήσατο παιδαγωγοῖς ὁ Λυκούργος, οὐδ' ἐξῆν ἐκάστῳ τρέφειν οὐδὲ παιδεύειν ὡς ἐβούλετο τὸν υἱόν, ἀλλὰ πάντα εὐθύς ἐπταετείς γενομένους παραλαμβάνων αὐτὸς εἰς ἀγέλας κατελόχιζε, καὶ συννόμους ποιῶν καὶ συντρόφους μετ' ἀλλήλων
 5 εἴθιζε συμπαίξειν καὶ συσχολάζειν. ἄρχοντα δ' αὐτοῖς παρίστατο τῆς ἀγέλης τὸν τῷ φρονεῖν διαφέροντα καὶ θυμοειδέστατον ἐν τῷ μάχεσθαι· καὶ πρὸς τοῦτον ἀφεώρων καὶ προστάττοντος ἠκροῶντο καὶ κολάζοντος ἐκαρτέρουν, ὥστε τὴν παιδείαν εἶναι μελέτην εὐπειθείας. ἐπεσκόπουν δὲ οἱ πρεσβύτεροι παίζοντας αὐτούς, καὶ τὰ πολλὰ μάχας τινὰς ἐμβάλλοντες ἀεὶ καὶ φιλονεικίας, οὐ παρέργως κατεμάνθανον ὁποῖός ἐστι τὴν φύσιν ἕκαστος αὐτῶν πρὸς τὸ τολμᾶν καὶ μὴ φυγομαχεῖν ἐν ταῖς ἀμίλλαις.
 6 Γράμματα μὲν οὖν ἔνεκα τῆς χρείας ἐμάνθανον· ἢ δ' ἄλλη πᾶσα παιδεία πρὸς τὸ ἄρχεσθαι καλῶς ἐγίνετο καὶ καρτερεῖν πονοῦντα καὶ νικᾶν μαχόμενον. διὸ καὶ τῆς ἡλικίας προερχομένης ἐπέτεινον αὐτῶν τὴν ἄσκησιν, ἐν χρῆ τε κείροντες

LYCURGUS

nor given to contemptible peevishness and whimpering. This is the reason why foreigners sometimes bought Spartan nurses for their children. Amycla, for instance, the nurse of the Athenian Alcibiades, is said to have been a Spartan.¹

And yet Alcibiades, as Plato says,² had for a tutor, set over him by Pericles, one Zopyrus, who was just a common slave. But Lycurgus would not put the sons of Spartans in charge of purchased or hired tutors, nor was it lawful for every father to rear or train his son as he pleased, but as soon as they were seven years old, Lycurgus ordered them all to be taken by the state and enrolled in companies, where they were put under the same discipline and nurture, and so became accustomed to share one another's sports and studies. The boy who excelled in judgement and was most courageous in fighting, was made captain of his company; on him the rest all kept their eyes, obeying his orders, and submitting to his punishments, so that their boyish training was a practice of obedience. Besides, the elderly men used to watch their sports, and by ever and anon egging them on to mimic battles and disputes, learned accurately how each one of them was naturally disposed when it was a question of boldness and aggressiveness in their struggles.

Of reading and writing, they learned only enough to serve their turn; all the rest of their training was calculated to make them obey commands well, endure hardships, and conquer in battle. Therefore, as they grew in age, their bodily exercise was increased; their heads were close-clipped, and they

¹ Cf. Alcibiades i. 2.

² Alcibiades i. p. 122 b.

PLUTARCH'S LIVES

καὶ βαδίζειν ἀνυποδήτους παίζειν τε γυμνοὺς ὡς τὰ πολλὰ συνεθίζοντες. γενόμενοι δὲ δωδεκαετείς ἄνευ χιτῶνος ἤδη διετέλουν, ἐν ἱμάτιον εἰς τὸν ἐνιαυτὸν λαμβάνοντες, αὐχμηροὶ τὰ σώματα καὶ λουτρῶν καὶ ἀλειμμάτων ἄπειροι· πλὴν ὀλίγας ἡμέρας τινὰς τοῦ ἐνιαυτοῦ τῆς τοιαύτης φιλαν-
 7 θρωπίας μετείχον. ἐκάθευδον δὲ ὁμοῦ κατ' Ἴλην καὶ ἀγέλην ἐπὶ στιβάδων, ἅς αὐτοῖς συνεφόρουν, τοῦ παρὰ τὸν Εὐρώταν πεφυκῶτος καλάμου τὰ ἄκρα ταῖς χερσὶν ἄνευ σιδήρου κατακλάσαντες. ἐν δὲ τῷ χειμῶνι τοὺς λεγομένους λυκόφοντας ὑπεβάλλοντο καὶ κατεμίγνυσαν ταῖς στιβάσι, θερμαντικὸν ἔχειν τι τῆς ὕλης δοκούσης.

XVII. Ἦδη δὲ τοῖς τηλικούτοις ἐρασταὶ τῶν εὐδοκίμων νέων συνανεστρέφοντο· καὶ προσεῖχον οἱ πρεσβύτεροι, καὶ μᾶλλον ἐπιφοιτῶντες εἰς τὰ γυμνάσια, καὶ μαχομένοις καὶ σκώπτουσιν ἀλλήλους παρατυγχάνοντες, οὐ παρέργως, ἀλλὰ τρό-
 2 οὐ μὴν ἀλλὰ καὶ παιδονόμος ἐκ τῶν καλῶν καὶ ἀγαθῶν ἀνδρῶν ἐτάττετο, καὶ κατ' ἀγέλας αὐτοὶ προϊστάντο τῶν λεγομένων εἰρένων ἀεὶ τὸν σωφρονέστατον καὶ μαχιμώτατον. εἰρένας δὲ καλοῦσι τοὺς ἔτος ἤδη δεύτερον ἐκ παίδων γεγονότας, μελλείρενας δὲ τῶν παίδων τοὺς πρεσβυτάτους. οὗτος οὖν ὁ εἶρην, εἴκοσι ἔτη γεγονώς, ἄρχει τε τῶν ὑποτεταγμένων ἐν ταῖς μάχαις, καὶ κατ'

LYCURGUS

were accustomed to going bare-foot, and to playing for the most part without clothes. When they were twelve years old, they no longer had tunics to wear, received one cloak a year, had hard, dry flesh, and knew little of baths and ointments; only on certain days of the year, and few at that, did they indulge in such amenities. They slept together, in troops and companies, on pallet-beds which they collected for themselves, breaking off with their hands—no knives allowed—the tops of the rushes which grew along the river Eurotas. In the winter-time, they added to the stuff of these pallets the so-called “lycophon,” or thistle-down, which was thought to have warmth in it.

XVII. When the boys reached this age, they were favoured with the society of lovers from among the reputable young men. The elderly men also kept close watch of them, coming more frequently to their places of exercise, and observing their contests of strength and wit, not cursorily, but with the idea that they were all in a sense the fathers and tutors and governors of all the boys. In this way, at every fitting time and in every place, the boy who went wrong had someone to admonish and chastise him. Nor was this all; one of the noblest and best men of the city was appointed paedonome, or inspector of the boys, and under his directions the boys, in their several companies, put themselves under the command of the most prudent and warlike of the so-called Eirens. This was the name given to those who had been for two years out of the class of boys, and Melleirens, or Would-be Eirens, was the name for the oldest of the boys. This eiren, then, a youth of twenty years, commands his subordinates in their

3 οίκον ὑπηρεταῖς χρήται πρὸς τὸ δεῖπνον. ἐπιτάσσει δὲ τοῖς μὲν ἀδροῖς ξύλα φέρειν, τοῖς δὲ
 μικροτέροις λάχανα. καὶ φέρουσι κλέπτοντες,
 οἱ μὲν ἐπὶ τοὺς κήπους βαδίζοντες, οἱ δὲ εἰς τὰ
 τῶν ἀνδρῶν συσσίτια παρεισρέοντες εὖ μάλα πανούργως καὶ πεφυλαγμένως· ἂν δ' ἄλφῃ, πολλὰς λαμβάνει πληγὰς τῇ μάστιγι, ῥαθύμως δοκῶν κλέπτειν καὶ ἀτέχνως. κλέπτουσι δὲ καὶ τῶν
 σιτίων ὃ τι ἂν δύνωνται, μανθάνοντες εὐφυῶς
 ἐπιτίθεσθαι τοῖς καθεύδουσιν ἢ ῥαθύμως φυλάτ-4 τούσι. τῷ δὲ ἀλόντι ζημία πληγαὶ καὶ τὸ πει-
 νῆν. γλίσχρον γὰρ αὐτοῖς ἐστὶ δεῖπνον, ὅπως
 δι' αὐτῶν ἀμυνόμενοι τὴν ἔνδειαν ἀναγκάζονται
 τολμᾶν καὶ πανουργεῖν.

Καὶ τοῦτο μὲν ἔργον τῆς ὀλιγοσιτίας· παρέργον
 δὲ φασὶ τὴν τῶν σωμάτων αὐξησιν. φέρεται
 γὰρ εἰς μῆκος, ὅταν τὸ πνεῦμα μὴ πολλὴν σχῆ
 διατριβὴν καὶ ἀσχολίαν ὑπὸ πλήθους τροφῆς
 εἰς βάθος καὶ πλάτος πιεζόμενον, ἀλλ' ἄνω βα-
 5 ραδίως ἐπιδιδόντος. τὸ δ' αὐτὸ τοῦτο καὶ καλοὺς
 δοκεῖ ποιεῖν· αἱ γὰρ ἰσχνὰ καὶ διάκενοι μᾶλλον
 ἔξεις ὑπακούουσι πρὸς τὴν διάρθρωσιν, αἱ δὲ
 ὀγκώδεις καὶ πολύτροφοι διὰ βάρους ἀντιβαί-νουσιν, ὥσπερ ἀμέλει καὶ τῶν ἐν τῷ κύειν καθαι-ρομένων γυναικῶν ἰσχνὰ μὲν, εὐειδῆ δὲ καὶ γλα-φυρὰ γίνεται τὰ βρέφη, διὰ τὴν ἐλαφρότητα τῆς
 ὕλης κρατουμένης μᾶλλον ὑπὸ τοῦ τυπούντος.
 ἀλλὰ γὰρ ἢ μὲν αἰτία τοῦ συμβαίνοντος ἐν μέσῳ
 προκείσθω σκοπεῖν.

XVIII. Οὕτω δὲ κλέπτουσι πεφροντισμένως
 οἱ παῖδες, ὥστε λέγεται τις ἤδη σκύμνον ἀλώ-

LYCURGUS

mimic battles, and in doors makes them serve him at his meals. He commissions the larger ones to fetch wood, and the smaller ones potherbs. And they steal what they fetch, some of them entering the gardens, and others creeping right slyly and cautiously into the public messes of the men ; but if a boy is caught stealing, he is soundly flogged, as a careless and unskilful thief. They steal, too, whatever food they can, and learn to be adept in setting upon people when asleep or off their guard. But the boy who is caught gets a flogging and must go hungry. For the meals allowed them are scanty, in order that they may take into their own hands the fight against hunger, and so be forced into boldness and cunning.

This is the main object of their spare diet ; a secondary one is to make them grow tall. For it contributes to height of stature when the vitality is not impeded and hindered by a mass of nourishment which forces it into thickness and width, but ascends of its own lightness, and when the body grows freely and easily. The same thing seems also to conduce to beauty of form ; for lean and meagre habits yield more readily to the force of articulation, whereas the gross and over-fed are so heavy as to resist it. Just so, we may be sure, women who take physic while they are pregnant, bear children which are lean, it may be, but well-shaped and fine, because the lightness of the parent matter makes it more susceptible to moulding. However, the reason for this I must leave for others to investigate.

XVIII. The boys make such a serious matter of their stealing, that one of them, as the story goes, πεκος κεκλοφῶς καὶ τῷ τριβωνίῳ περιστέλλων, σπαρασσόμενος ὑπὸ τοῦ θηρίου τὴν γαστέρα τοῖς ὄνυξι καὶ τοῖς ὀδοῦσιν, ὑπὲρ τοῦ λαθεῖν ἐγκαρτερῶν ἀποθανεῖν. καὶ τοῦτο μὲν οὐδὲ ἀπὸ τῶν νῦν ἐφήβων ἄπιστόν ἐστιν, ὧν πολλοὺς ἐπὶ τοῦ βωμοῦ τῆς Ὀρθίας ἐωράκαμεν ἐναποθνήσκοντας ταῖς πληγαῖς.

PLUTARCH'S LIVES

- 2 Δειπνήσας δὲ ὁ εἶρην κατακείμενος τῷ μὲν ἄσαι προσέταξε τῶν παίδων, τῷ δὲ ἐρώτημά τι προῦβαλε πεφροντισμένης δεόμενον ἀποκρίσεως· οἶον, ὅστις ἄριστος ἐν τοῖς ἀνδράσιν, ἢ ποῖα τις ἢ τοῦδε πρᾶξις. ἐκ τούτου δὲ καὶ κρίνειν τὰ καλὰ καὶ πολυπραγμονεῖν εὐθύς ἐξ ἀρχῆς εἰθίζοντο περὶ τῶν πολιτῶν. τὸ γὰρ ἐρωτηθέντα, τίς πολίτης ἀγαθός, ἢ τίς οὐκ εὐδόκιμος, ἀπορεῖν τοῦ ἀποκρίνασθαι, νωθρᾶς ἐποιοῦντο καὶ πρὸς ἀρετὴν ἀφιλοτίμου ψυχῆς σημεῖον. ἔδει δὲ τὴν ἀπόκρισιν καὶ¹ μετ' αἰτίας εἶναι καὶ ἀποδείξεως εἰς βραχύν τινα συνηγμένης λόγον καὶ σύντομον· ὁ δὲ πλημμελῶς ἀποκρινάμενος ἐκόλαζετο δῆγμα λαμβάνων ὑπὸ τοῦ εἵρενος εἰς τὸν ἀντίχειρα. πολλάκις δὲ καὶ πρεσβυτέρων παρόντων καὶ ἀρχόντων ὁ εἶρην ἐκόλαζε τοὺς παῖδας, ἀπόδειξιν διδοὺς εἰ μετὰ λόγου καὶ ὡς δεῖ κολάζει. καὶ κολάζων μὲν οὐκ ἐκωλύετο, τῶν δὲ παίδων ἀπελθόντων εὐθύνας ὑπείχεν, εἰ τραχύτερον τοῦ δέοντος ἐπετίμησεν ἢ τούναντίον ἐκλελυμένως καὶ ἀτόνως.
- 4 Ἐκοινωνοῦν δὲ οἱ ἐρασταὶ τοῖς παισὶ τῆς δόξης ἐπ' ἀμφότερα· καὶ λέγεται ποτε παιδὸς ἐν τῷ

¹ τὴν ἀπόκρισιν καὶ Coraës, Sintenis¹, and Bekker, with the MSS. : καὶ τὴν ἀπόκρισιν.

LYCURGUS

who was carrying concealed under his cloak a young fox which he had stolen, suffered the animal to tear out his bowels with its teeth and claws, and died rather than have his theft detected. And even this story gains credence from what their youths now endure, many of whom I have seen expiring under the lash at the altar of Artemis Orthia.

The eiren, as he reclined after supper, would order one of the boys to sing a song, and to another would put a question requiring a careful and deliberate answer, as, for instance, "Who is the best man in the city?" or, "What thinkest thou of this man's conduct?" In this way the boys were accustomed to pass right judgements and interest themselves at the very outset in the conduct of the citizens. For if one of them was asked who was a good citizen, or who an infamous one, and had no answer to make, he was judged to have a torpid spirit, and one that would not aspire to excellence. And the answer must not only have reasons and proof given for it, but also be couched in very brief and concise language, and the one who gave a faulty answer was punished with a bite in the thumb from the eiren. Often-times, too, the eiren punished the boys in the presence of the elders and magistrates, thus showing whether his punishments were reasonable and proper or not. While he was punishing them, he suffered no restraint, but after the boys were gone, he was brought to an account if his punishments were harsher than was necessary, or, on the other hand, too mild and gentle.

The boys' lovers also shared with them in their honour or disgrace; and it is said that one of them μάχεσθαι φωνὴν ἀγεννῆ προεμένου ζημιωθῆναι τὸν ἐραστὴν ὑπὸ τῶν ἀρχόντων. οὕτω δὲ τοῦ ἐρᾶν ἐγκεκριμένου παρ' αὐτοῖς, ὥστε καὶ τῶν παρθένων ἐρᾶν τὰς καλὰς καὶ ἀγαθὰς γυναῖκας, τὸ ἀντερᾶν οὐκ ἦν, ἀλλὰ μᾶλλον ἀρχὴν ἐποιούντο φιλίας πρὸς ἀλλήλους οἱ τῶν αὐτῶν ἐρασθέντες, καὶ διετέλουν κοινῇ σπουδάζοντες ὅπως ἄριστον ἀπεργάσαιτο τὸν ἐρώμενον.

- XIX. Ἐδίδασκον δὲ τοὺς παῖδας καὶ λόγῳ χρῆσθαι πικρίαν ἔχοντι μεμιγμένην χάριτι καὶ πολλὴν ἀπὸ βραχείας λέξεως ἀναθεώρησιν. τὸ μὲν γὰρ σιδηροῦν νόμισμα μικρὰν ἔχειν ἐποίησεν ἀπὸ πολλοῦ σταθμοῦ δύναμιν ὁ Λυκούργος, ὡς εἴρηται, τὸ δὲ τοῦ λόγου νόμισμα τοῦναντίον ἀπ' εὐτελοῦς καὶ ὀλίγης λέξεως εἰς πολλὴν καὶ περιττὴν κατεσκεύασε διάνοιαν, τῇ πολλῇ σιωπῇ τοὺς παῖδας ἀποφθεγματικούς καὶ πεπαιδευμένους πρὸς τὰς ἀποκρίσεις μηχανώμενος. ὡς γὰρ τὸ σπέρμα τῶν πρὸς τὰς συνουσίας ἀκολάστων ἄγονον ὡς τὰ πολλὰ καὶ ἄκαρπὸν ἐστίν, οὕτως ἢ πρὸς τὸ λαλεῖν ἀκρασία κενὸν τὸν λόγον ποιεῖ
 2 καὶ ἀνόητον. Ἄγις μὲν οὖν ὁ βασιλεύς, σκώπτοντος Ἀττικοῦ τινος τὰς Λακωνικὰς μαχαίρας εἰς τὴν μικρότητα, καὶ λέγοντος ὅτι ῥαδίως αὐτὰς οἱ θαυματοποιοὶ καταπίνουσιν ἐν τοῖς θεάτροις, “Καὶ μὴν μάλιστα,” εἶπεν, “ἡμεῖς ἐφικνούμεθα τοῖς ἐγχειριδίοις τῶν πολεμίων” ἐγὼ δὲ καὶ τὸν λόγον ὁρῶ τὸν Λακωνικὸν βραχὺν μὲν εἶναι δοκοῦντα, μάλιστα δὲ τῶν πραγμάτων ἐφικνούμενον, καὶ τῆς διανοίας ἀπτόμενον τῶν ἀκροωμένων.
 3 Καὶ γὰρ ὁ Λυκούργος αὐτὸς βραχυλόγος 52

LYCURGUS

was once fined by the magistrates because his favourite boy had let an ungenerous cry escape him while he was fighting. Moreover, though this sort of love was so approved among them that even the maidens found lovers in good and noble women, still, there was no jealous rivalry in it, but those who fixed their affections on the same boys made this rather a foundation for friendship with one another, and persevered in common efforts to make their loved one as noble as possible.

XIX. The boys were also taught to use a discourse which combined pungency with grace, and condensed much observation into a few words. His iron money, indeed, Lycurgus made of large weight and small value, as I have observed,¹ but the current coin of discourse he adapted to the expression of deep and abundant meaning with simple and brief diction, by contriving that the general habit of silence should make the boys sententious and correct in their answers. For as sexual incontinence generally produces unfruitfulness and sterility, so intemperance in talking makes discourse empty and vapid. King Agis, accordingly, when a certain Athenian decried the Spartan swords for being so short, and said that jugglers on the stage easily swallowed them, replied: "And yet we certainly reach our enemies with these daggers." And I observe that although the speech also of the Spartans seems short, yet it certainly reaches the point, and arrests the thought of the listener.

And indeed Lycurgus himself seems to have been

¹ Chapter ix. 1.

τις ἔοικε γενέσθαι καὶ ἀποφθεγματικός, εἰ δεῖ τεκμαίρεσθαι τοῖς ἀπομνημονεύμασιν· οἷόν ἐστι τὸ περὶ τὰς πολιτείας πρὸς τὸν ἀξιούντα ποιεῖν δημοκρατίαν ἐν τῇ πόλει. “Σὺ γάρ,” ἔφη, “πρῶτος ἐν τῇ οἰκίᾳ σου ποίησον δημοκρατίαν.” καὶ περὶ τῶν θυσιῶν πρὸς τὸν πυθόμενον διὰ τί μικρὰς οὕτω καὶ εὐτελεῖς ἔταξεν, “Ἴνα μὴ ποτε,” 4 ἔφη, “τιμῶντες τὸ θεῖον διαλίπωμεν.” καὶ περὶ τῶν ἀθλημάτων, ταῦτα μόνον μὴ κωλύσαντος ἀγωνίζεσθαι τοὺς πολίτας ἐν οἷς χεῖρ οὐκ ἀνατείνεται. φέρονται δὲ αὐτοῦ καὶ δι’ ἐπιστολῶν ἀποκρίσεις τοιαῦται πρὸς τοὺς πολίτας. πῶς ἂν πολεμίων ἔφοδον ἀλεξοίμεθα; “Ἄν πτωχοὶ μένητε καὶ μὴ μέσδων ἄτερος θατέρω ἐράτε ἤμεν.” καὶ πάλιν περὶ τῶν τειχῶν· “Οὐκ ἂν εἶη ἀτείχιστος πόλις ἄτις ἀνδρεσσι,¹ καὶ οὐ πλίνθοις ἐστεφάνωται.” περὶ μὲν οὖν τούτων καὶ τῶν τοιούτων ἐπιστολῶν οὔτε ἀπιστῆσαι ῥάδιον οὔτε πιστεῦσαι.

XX. Τῆς δὲ πρὸς τὰ μήκη τῶν λόγων διαβολῆς δείγματα τοιαῦτα τῶν ἀποφθεγμάτων ἐστί. Λεωνίδας ὁ βασιλεὺς ἀκαίρως τινὸς περὶ πραγμάτων οὐκ ἀχρήστων διαλεχθέντος, “ὦ ξένε,” εἶπεν, “οὐκ ἐν δέοντι χρέη τῷ δέοντι.” Χαρίλαος δὲ ὁ ἀδελφιδοῦς τοῦ Λυκούργου περὶ τῆς ὀλιγότητος αὐτοῦ τῶν νόμων ἐρωτηθεὶς, εἶπεν ὡς οἱ λόγοις μὴ χρώμενοι πολλοῖς οὐδὲ νόμων δέονται πολλῶν.
 2 Ἄρχιδαμίδας δὲ μεμφομένων τινῶν Ἐκαταῖον τὸν σοφιστὴν ὅτι παραληφθεὶς εἰς τὸ συσσίτιον οὐδὲν ἔλεγεν, “Ὁ εἰδώς,” ἔφη, “λόγον καὶ καιρὸν οἶδεν.” ἃ δὲ τῶν πικρῶν ἔφην ἀπομνημονευμάτων οὐκ

¹ ἀνδρεσσι Cobet : ἀνδρείοις.

LYCURGUS

short and sententious in his speech, if we may judge from his recorded sayings; that, for instance, on forms of government, to one who demanded the establishment of democracy in the city: "Go thou," said he, "and first establish democracy in thy household." That, again, to one who inquired why he ordained such small and inexpensive sacrifices: "That we may never omit," said he, "to honour the gods." Again, in the matter of athletic contests, he allowed the citizens to engage only in those where there was no stretching forth of hands.¹ There are also handed down similar answers which he made by letter to his fellow-citizens. When they asked how they could ward off an invasion of enemies, he answered: "By remaining poor, and by not desiring to be greater the one than the other." And when they asked about fortifying their city, he answered: "A city will be well fortified which is surrounded by brave men and not by bricks." Now regarding these and similar letters, belief and scepticism are alike difficult.

XX. Of their aversion to long speeches, the following apophthegms are proof. King Leonidas, when a certain one discoursed with him out of all season on matters of great concern, said: "My friend, the matter urges, but not the time." Charilaüs, the nephew of Lycurgus, when asked why his uncle had made so few laws, answered: "Men of few words need few laws." Archidamidas, when certain ones found fault with Hecataeus the Sophist for saying nothing after being admitted to their public mess, answered: "He who knows how, knows also when to speak." Instances of the pungent sayings

¹ After the manner of men begging their conquerors to spare their lives.

PLUTARCH'S LIVES

- ἀμοιρεῖν χάριτος, τοιαῦτ' ἐστὶ. Δημάρατος ἀνθρώπου πονηροῦ κόπτοντος αὐτὸν ἀκαίροις ἐρωτήμασι καὶ δὴ τοῦτο πολλάκις ἐρωτῶντος, "Τίς ἄριστος Σπαρτιατῶν;" ἔφη· "Ὁ τὴν ἀνομοιότατος."
- 3 Ἄγις δέ, ἐπαινούντων τινῶν τοὺς Ἡλείους ὡς καλῶς τὰ Ὀλύμπια καὶ δικαίως ἄγοντας, "Καὶ τί μέγα," ἔφη, "Ἡλείοι ποιοῦντι δι' ἐτῶν πέντε ἡμέρα μιᾷ χρώμενοι τῇ δικαιοσύνῃ;" Θεόπομπος δὲ ξένου τινὸς εὐνοίαν ἐνδεικνυμένου, καὶ φάσκοντος ὡς παρὰ τοῖς αὐτοῦ πολίταις φιλολάκων καλεῖται, "Κάλλιον¹ ἦν τοι," εἶπεν, "ὦ ξένε, φιλο-
- 4 πολίταν καλεῖσθαι." Πλειστῶναξ δὲ ὁ Παισανίου, ῥήτορος Ἀθηναίου τοὺς Λακεδαιμονίους ἀμαθεῖς ἀποκαλοῦντος, "Ὀρθῶς," ἔφη, "λέγεις· μόνοι γὰρ Ἑλλάνων ἄμμες οὐδὲν κακὸν μεμαθήκαμεν παρ' ὑμῶν." Ἀρχιδαμίδας δὲ πρὸς τὸν πυθόμενον πόσοι εἰσὶ Σπαρτιαῖται, "Ἰκανοί," εἶπεν, "ὦ ξένε, τοὺς κακοὺς ἀπερύκειν."
- 5 Ἔστι δὲ καὶ τοῖς μετὰ παιδιᾶς εἰρημένοις ὑπ' αὐτῶν τεκμήρασθαι τὸν ἐθισμόν. εἰθίζοντο γὰρ μηδέποτε χρῆσθαι τῷ λόγῳ παρέργως, μηδὲ ἀφιέναι φωνὴν ἣτις οὐκ ἀμῶς γέ πως εἶχέ τινας θεωρίας ἀξίαν διάνοιαν. ὁ μὲν γὰρ ἀκοῦσαι τοῦ μιμουμένου τὴν ἀηδὸνα παρακαλούμενος, "Αὐτᾶς," ἔφη, "ἄκουκα τήνας." ὁ δὲ ἀναγνοὺς τὸ ἐπίγραμμα τοῦτο·

Σβεννύντας ποτὲ τοῦσδε τυραννίδα χάλκεος Ἀρης
εἶλε· Σελινούντος δ' ἀμφὶ πύλας ἔθανον,

¹ κάλλιον Cobet, van Herwerden; cf. κρείσσον Morals, p. 221 e: καλὸν (it were well).

LYCURGUS

not devoid of grace, of which I spoke,¹ are the following. Demaratus, when a troublesome fellow was pestering him with ill-timed questions, and especially with the oft repeated query who was the best of the Spartans, answered at last: "He who is least like thee." And Agis, when certain ones were praising the Eleians for their just and honourable conduct of the Olympic games, said: "And what great matter is it for the Eleians to practise righteousness one day in five years?" And Theopompus, when a stranger kept saying, as he showed him kindness, that in his own city he was called a lover of Sparta, remarked: "My good Sir, it were better for thee to be called a lover of thine own city." And Pleistoanax, the son of Pausanias, when an Athenian orator declared that the Lacedaemonians had no learning, said: "True, we are indeed the only Hellenes who have learned no evil from you." And Archidamus, when some one asked him how many Spartans there were, replied: "Enough, good Sir, to keep evil men away."

And even from their jests it is possible to judge of their character. For it was their wont never to talk at random, and to let slip no speech which had not have some thought or other worth serious attention. For instance, when one of them was invited to hear a man imitate the nightingale, he said: "I have heard the bird herself." And another, on reading the epitaph:—

"Tyranny's fires they were trying to quench when panoplied Ares
Slew them; Selinus looked down from her gates on their death,"

¹ Chapter xix. 1.

6 “Δικαίως,” εἶπε, “τεθνάκанти τοὶ ἄνδρες· ἔδει γὰρ ἀφέμεν ὄλαν αὐτὰν κατακαᾶμεν.” νεανίσκος δὲ πρὸς τὸν ἐπαγγελλόμενον αὐτῷ δώσειν ἀλεκτρύονας ἀποθνήσκοντας ἐν τῷ μάχεσθαι, “Μὴ σύ γε,” εἶπεν, “ἀλλὰ δός μοι τῶν ἀποκτεινόντων ἐν τῷ μάχεσθαι.” ἕτερος δὲ τις ἰδὼν ἐν ἀποχωρήσει θακεύοντας ἐπὶ δίφρων ἀνθρώπους, “Μὴ γένοιτο,” εἶπεν, “ἐνταῦθα καθίσαι ὅθεν οὐκ ἔστιν ὑπεξαναστήναι πρεσβυτέρῳ.” τὸ μὲν οὖν τῶν ἀποφθεγμάτων εἶδος ἦν τοιοῦτον ὥστε καὶ λέγειν τινὰς οὐκ ἀτόπως ὅτι μᾶλλον ἔστι τὸ φιλοσοφεῖν ἢ τὸ φιλογυμναστεῖν λακωνίζειν.

XXI. Ἡ δὲ περὶ τὰς ψυχὰς καὶ τὰ μέλη παι- 53
 δευσις οὐχ ἤττον ἐσπουδάζετο τῆς ἐν τοῖς λόγοις εὐζηλίας καὶ καθαριότητος, ἀλλὰ καὶ τὰ μέλη κέντρον εἶχεν ἐγερτικὸν θυμοῦ καὶ παραστατικὸν ὁρμῆς ἐνθουσιώδους καὶ πραγματικῆς, καὶ ἡ λέξις ἦν ἀφελῆς καὶ ἄθρυπτος ἐπὶ πράγμασι σεμνοῖς καὶ ἡθοποιοῖς. ἔπαινοι γὰρ ἦσαν ὡς τὰ πολλὰ τῶν τεθνηκότων ὑπὲρ τῆς Σπάρτης εὐδαιμονιζομένων, καὶ ψόγοι τῶν τρεσάντων, ὡς ἀλγεινὸν καὶ κακοδαίμονα βιούντων βίον, ἐπαγγελία τε καὶ μεγαλαυχία πρὸς ἀρετὴν πρέπουσα ταῖς ἡλικίαις·
 2 ὧν ἕνεκα δείγματος οὐ χεῖρόν ἐστιν ἔν τι προενέγκασθαι. τριῶν γὰρ χορῶν κατὰ τὰς τρεῖς ἡλικίας συνισταμένων ἐν ταῖς ἑορταῖς, ὁ μὲν τῶν γερόντων ἀρχόμενος ἦδεν·

· Ἄμμες πόκ' ἡμες ἄλκιμοι νεανῖαι.

LYCURGUS

said: "The men deserved to die; they should have let the fires burn out entirely." And a youth, when some one promised to give him game-cocks that would die fighting, said, "Don't do that, but give me some of the kind that kill fighting." Another, seeing men seated on stools in a privy, said: "May I never sit where I cannot give place to an elder." The character of their apophthegms, then, was such as to justify the remark that love of wisdom rather than love of bodily exercise was the special characteristic of a Spartan.

XXI. Nor was their training in music and poetry any less serious a concern than the emulous purity of their speech, nay, their very songs had a stimulus that roused the spirit and awoke enthusiastic and effectual effort; the style of them was simple and unaffected, and their themes were serious and edifying. They were for the most part praises of men who had died for Sparta, calling them blessed and happy; censure of men who had played the coward, picturing their grievous and ill-starred life; and such promises and boasts of valour as befitted the different ages. Of the last, it may not be amiss to cite one, by way of illustration. They had three choirs at their festivals, corresponding to the three ages, and the choir of old men would sing first:—

"We once did deeds of prowess and were strong young men."

PLUTARCH'S LIVES

ὁ δὲ τῶν ἀκμαζόντων ἀμειβόμενος ἔλεγεν·

Ἄμμες δέ γ' εἰμέν· αἱ δὲ λῆς, αὐγάσδεο.¹

ὁ δὲ τρίτος ὁ τῶν παίδων·

Ἄμμες δέ γ' ἐσσόμεσθα πολλῶ κάρρονες.

- 3 Ὅλωσ δὲ ἄν τις ἐπιστήσας τοῖς Λακωνικοῖς ποιήμασιν, ὧν ἔτι καθ' ἡμᾶς ἕνια διεσώζετο, καὶ τοὺς ἐμβατηρίους ῥυθμοὺς ἀναλαβών, οἷς ἐχρῶντο πρὸς τὸν αὐλὸν ἐπάγοντες τοῖς πολεμίοις, οὐ καλῶς ἠγήσασαιτο καὶ τὸν Τέρπανδρον καὶ τὸν Πίνδαρον τὴν ἀνδρείαν τῇ μουσικῇ συνάπτειν. ὁ μὲν γὰρ οὕτως πεποίηκε περὶ τῶν Λακεδαιμονίων·

Ἐνθ' αἰχμὰ τε νέων θάλλει καὶ μούσα λίγεια
καὶ δίκαια εὐρύγυια — —

- 4 Πίνδαρος δέ φησιν·

Ἐνθα βουλαὶ γερόντων
καὶ νέων ἀνδρῶν ἀριστεύουσι αἰχμαὶ
καὶ χοροὶ καὶ Μούσα καὶ ἀγλατα.

Μουσικωτάτους γὰρ ἄμα καὶ πολεμικωτάτους ἀποφαίνουσιν αὐτούς·

Ῥέπει² γὰρ ἄντα τῷ σιδάρῳ τὸ καλῶς κί-θαρίσδεν,

ὡς ὁ Λακωνικὸς ποιητὴς εἶρηκε. καὶ γὰρ ἐν ταῖς μάχαις προεθύετο ταῖς Μούσαις ὁ βασιλεύς, ἀναμιμνήσκων, ὡς ἔοικε, τῆς παιδείας καὶ τῶν

¹ αὐγάσδεο Cobet, as in Morals, pp. 238 b, 544 e, and S (first hand): πεῖραν λαβέ (come take a try).

² Ῥέπει Scaliger's correction of ἔρπει. Cf. Bergk, Poet. Lyr. Gr. iii.⁴ p. 51 (Alcman, Frag. 35).

LYCURGUS

Then the choir of young men would respond :—

“ We are so now, and if you wish, behold and see.”

And then the third choir, that of the boys, would sing :—

“ We shall be sometime mightier men by far than both.”

In short, if one studies the poetry of Sparta, of which some specimens were still extant in my time, and makes himself familiar with the marching songs which they used, to the accompaniment of the flute, when charging upon their foes, he will conclude that Terpander and Pindar were right in associating valour with music. The former writes thus of the Lacedaemonians :—

“ Flourish there both the spear of the brave and the Muse’s clear message,
Justice, too, walks the broad streets——.”

And Pindar says :—¹

“ There are councils of Elders,
And young men’s conquering spears,
And dances, the Muse, and joyousness.”

The Spartans are thus shown to be at the same time most musical and most warlike ;

“ In equal poise to match the sword hangs the sweet art of the harpist,”

as their poet says. For just before their battles, the king sacrificed to the Muses, reminding his warriors, as it would seem, of their training, and of the firm

¹ Fragment 199, Bergk, Poet. Lyr. Gr. i.⁴ p. 448.

PLUTARCH'S LIVES

κρίσεων, ἵνα ὧσι πρόχειροι παρὰ τὰ δεινὰ καὶ λόγου τινὸς ἀξίας παρέχωσι τὰς πράξεις τῶν μαχομένων.

XXII. Τότε δὲ καὶ τοῖς νέοις τὰ σκληρότατα τῆς ἀγωγῆς ἐπανιέντες, οὐκ ἐκώλουν καλλωπίζεσθαι περὶ κόμην καὶ κόσμον ὄπλων καὶ ἱματίων, χαίροντες, ὥσπερ ἵπποις, γαυριῶσι καὶ φρναττομένοις πρὸς τοὺς ἀγῶνας. διὸ κομῶντες εὐθύς ἐκ τῆς τῶν ἐφήβων ἡλικίας, μάλιστα περὶ τοὺς κινδύνους ἐθεράπευον τὴν κόμην λιπαρὰν τε φαίνεσθαι καὶ διακεκριμένην, ἀπομνημονεύοντές τινα καὶ Λυκούργου λόγον περὶ τῆς κόμης, ὅτι τοὺς μὲν καλοὺς εὐπρεπεστέρους ποιεῖ, τοὺς δὲ αἰσ-
 2 χροὺς φοβερωτέρους. ἐχρῶντο δὲ καὶ γυμνασίοις μαλακωτέροις παρὰ τὰς στρατείας, καὶ τὴν ἄλλην δίαιταν οὐχ οὕτω κεκολασμένην οὐδ' ὑπεύθυνον τοῖς νέοις παρείχον, ὥστε μόνοις ἀνθρώπων ἐκείνοις τῆς εἰς τὸν πόλεμον ἀσκήσεως ἀνάπαυσιν εἶναι τὸν πόλεμον. ἤδη δὲ συντεταγμένης τῆς φάλαγγος αὐτῶν καὶ τῶν πολεμίων παρόντων,¹ ὁ βασιλεὺς ἅμα τὴν τε χίμαιραν ἐσφαγιάζετο καὶ στεφανοῦσθαι παρήγγελλε πᾶσι καὶ τοὺς αὐλητὰς αὐλεῖν ἐκέλευε τὸ Καστόρειον μέλος.
 3 ἅμα δ' ἐξῆρχεν ἐμβατηρίου παιᾶνος, ὥστε σεμνὴν ἅμα καὶ καταπληκτικὴν τὴν ὄψιν εἶναι, ῥυθμῶ τε πρὸς τὸν αὐλὸν ἐμβαινόντων καὶ μήτε διάσπασμα ποιούντων ἐν τῇ φάλαγγι μήτε ταῖς ψυχαῖς θορυβουμένων, ἀλλὰ πράως καὶ ἰλαρῶς ὑπὸ τοῦ μέλους ἀγομένων ἐπὶ τὸν κίνδυνον. οὔτε γὰρ φόβον οὔτε θυμὸν ἐγγίνεσθαι πλεονάζοντα

¹ παρόντων MSS., Coraës, Sintenis¹, and Bekker: ὁρώντων (in the sight of), with Xenophon, Reip. Lac. xiii. 8.

LYCURGUS

decisions they had made, in order that they might be prompt to face the dread issue, and might perform such martial deeds as would be worthy of some record.¹

XXII. In time of war, too, they relaxed the severity of the young men's discipline, and permitted them to beautify their hair and ornament their arms and clothing, rejoicing to see them, like horses, prance and neigh for the contest. Therefore they wore their hair long as soon as they ceased to be youths, and particularly in times of danger they took pains to have it glossy and well-combed, remembering a certain saying of Lycurgus, that a fine head of hair made the handsome more comely still, and the ugly more terrible. Their bodily exercises, too, were less rigorous during their campaigns, and in other ways their young warriors were allowed a regimen which was less curtailed and rigid, so that they were the only men in the world with whom war brought a respite in the training for war. And when at last they were drawn up in battle array and the enemy was at hand, the king sacrificed the customary she-goat, commanded all the warriors to set garlands upon their heads, and ordered the pipers to pipe the strains of the hymn to Castor; then he himself led off in a marching paeon, and it was a sight equally grand and terrifying when they marched in step with the rhythm of the flute, without any gap in their line of battle, and with no confusion in their souls, but calmly and cheerfully moving with the strains of their hymn into the deadly fight. Neither fear nor excessive fury is likely to possess men so disposed,

¹ The Greek of this sentence is obscure, and the translation doubtful.

τοῖς οὕτω διακειμένοις εἰκός ἐστιν, ἀλλ' εὐσταθὲς φρόνημα μετ' ἐλπίδος καὶ θράσους, ὡς τοῦ θεοῦ συμπαρόντος.

- 4 Ἐχώρει δὲ ὁ βασιλεὺς ἐπὶ τοὺς πολεμίους ἔχων μεθ' ἑαυτοῦ στεφανίτην ἀγῶνα νενικηκότα. καὶ φασὶ γέ τινα χρημάτων πολλῶν ἐν Ὀλυμπίοις διδομένων αὐτῷ μὴ δεξάμενον, ἀλλὰ πολλῶν πόνῳ καταπαλαίσαντα τὸν ἀνταγωνιστήν, ὡς τις εἶπεν αὐτῷ, “Τί σοι πλέον, ὦ Λάκων, γέγονε διὰ τῆς νίκης;” φάναι μειδιάσαντα, “Πρὸ τοῦ βασι-
5 λέως τεταγμένος μαχοῦμαι τοῖς πολεμίοις.” τρεψάμενοι δὲ καὶ νικήσαντες ἐδίωκον ὅσον ἐκβεβαιώσασθαι τὸ νίκημα τῇ φυγῇ τῶν πολεμίων, εἴτα εὐθύς ἀνεχώρουν, οὔτε γενναῖον οὔτε Ἑλληνικὸν ἠγούμενοι κόπτειν καὶ φονεύειν ἀπολεγομένους καὶ παρακεχωρηκότας. ἦν δὲ οὐ μόνον καλὸν τοῦτο καὶ μεγαλόψυχον, ἀλλὰ καὶ χρήσιμον. εἰδότες γὰρ οἱ μαχόμενοι πρὸς αὐτοὺς ὅτι τοὺς ὑφισταμένους ἀναιροῦσι, φείδονται δὲ τῶν ἐνδιδόντων, τοῦ μένειν τὸ φεύγειν ἠγούντο λυσιτελέστερον.

XXIII. Αὐτὸν δὲ τὸν Λυκούργον Ἰππίας μὲν ὁ σοφιστῆς πολεμικώτατον φησι γενέσθαι καὶ πολλῶν ἔμπειρον στρατειῶν, Φιλοστέφανος δὲ καὶ τὴν κατ' οὐλαμοὺς τῶν ἰππέων διανομὴν Λυκούργῳ προστίθησιν εἶναι δὲ τὸν οὐλαμόν, ὡς ἐκεῖνος συνέστησεν, ἰππέων πεντήκοντα πλῆθος ἐν τετραγώνῳ σχήματι τεταγμένων. ὁ δὲ Φαληρεὺς Δημήτριος, οὐδεμιᾶς ἀψάμενον πολεμικῆς πράξεως ἐν εἰρήνῃ καταστήσασθαι τὴν πολιτείαν. ἔοικε δὲ καὶ τῆς Ὀλυμπιακῆς ἐκεχειρίας ἢ ἐπίνοια πρᾶον καὶ πρὸς εἰρήνην οἰκείως ἔχοντος ἀνδρὸς εἶναι. καίτοι φασὶ τινες, ὡς Ἑρμιππος

LYCURGUS

but rather a firm purpose full of hope and courage, believing as they do that Heaven is their ally.

The king marched against the enemy in close companionship with one who had been crowned victor in the great games. And they tell of a certain Spartan who refused to be bought off from a contest at Olympia by large sums of money, and after a long struggle outwrestled his antagonist. When some one said to him then: "What advantage, O Spartan, hast thou got from thy victory?" he answered, with a smile: "I shall stand in front of my king when I fight our enemies." When they had conquered and routed an enemy, they pursued him far enough to make their victory secure by his flight, and then at once retired, thinking it ignoble and unworthy of a Hellene to hew men to pieces who had given up the fight and abandoned the field. And this was not only a noble and magnanimous policy, but it was also useful. For their antagonists, knowing that they slew those who resisted them, but showed mercy to those who yielded to them, were apt to think flight more advantageous than resistance.

XXIII. Hippias the Sophist says that Lycurgus himself was very well versed in war and took part in many campaigns, and Philostephanus attributes to him the arrangement of the Spartan cavalry by "oulamoi," explaining that the "oulamos," as constituted by him, was a troop of fifty horsemen in a square formation. But Demetrius the Phalerean says he engaged in no warlike undertakings, and established his constitution in a time of peace. And indeed the design of the Olympic truce would seem to bespeak a man of gentleness, and predisposed to peace. And yet there are some who say, as μνημονεύει, τὸν Λυκούργον οὐ προσέχειν οὐδὲ κοινωεῖν ἐν ἀρχῇ τοῖς περὶ τὸν Ἴφιτον, ἀλλὰ τυγχάνειν ἄλλως ἐπιδημοῦντα καὶ θεώμενον· ἀκούσαι δὲ φωνὴν ὥσπερ ἀνθρώπου τινὸς ἐξόπισθεν ἐπιτιμῶντος αὐτῷ καὶ θαυμάζοντος ὅτι τοὺς πολίτας οὐ προτρέπεται κοινωεῖν τῆς πανηγύρεως· ὡς δὲ μεταστραφέντος οὐδαμοῦ φανερὸς ὁ φθειγξάμενος ἦν, θείον ἠγησάμενον, οὕτω πρὸς τὸν Ἴφιτον τραπέσθαι καὶ συνδιακοσμήσαντα τὴν ἑορτὴν ἐνδοξότεραν καὶ βεβαιοτέραν καταστήσαι.

PLUTARCH'S LIVES

XXIV. Ἡ δὲ παιδεία μέχρι τῶν ἐνηλίκων διέτεινεν. οὐδεὶς γὰρ ἦν ἀφειμένος ὡς ἐβούλετο ζῆν, ἀλλ' οἶον ἐν στρατοπέδῳ τῇ πόλει καὶ δίαιταν ἔχοντες ὠρισμένην καὶ διατριβὴν περὶ τὰ κοινά, καὶ ὅλως νομίζοντες οὐχ αὐτῶν, ἀλλὰ τῆς πατρίδος εἶναι διετέλουν, εἰ μὴ τι πράττειν ἕτερον εἴη προστεταγμένον, ἐπισκοποῦντες τοὺς παῖδας, καὶ διδάσκοντές τι τῶν χρησίμων ἢ μανθάνοντες

2 αὐτοὶ παρὰ τῶν πρεσβυτέρων. καὶ γὰρ ἐν τι τοῦτο τῶν καλῶν ἦν καὶ μακαρίων ἃ παρεσκεύασε τοῖς ἑαυτοῦ πολίταις ὁ Λυκούργος, ἀφθονία σχολῆς, οἷς τέχνης μὲν ἄψασθαι βαναύσου τὸ παράπαν οὐκ ἐφείτο, χρηματισμοῦ δὲ συναγωγὴν ἔχοντος ἐργώδη καὶ πραγματεῖαν οὐδ' ὀτιοῦν ἔδει,

3 ἀτιμον. οἱ δὲ εἴλωτες αὐτοῖς εἰργάζοντο τὴν γῆν, ἀποφορὰν τὴν εἰρημένην τελούντες. ἐπιδημῶν δέ τις Ἀθήνησι δικαστηρίων ὄντων, καὶ πυθόμενός τινα δίκην ἀργίας ὠφληκότα βαδίζειν ἀθυμοῦντα

LYCURGUS

Hermippus reminds us, that at the outset Lycurgus had nothing whatever to do with Iphitus and his enterprise, but happened to come that way by chance, and be a spectator at the games; that he heard behind him, however, what seemed to be a human voice, chiding him and expressing amazement that he did not urge his fellow-citizens to take part in the great festival; and since, on turning round, he did not see the speaker anywhere, he concluded that the voice was from heaven, and therefore betook himself to Iphitus, and assisted him in giving the festival a more notable arrangement and a more enduring basis.

XXIV. The training of the Spartans lasted into the years of full maturity. No man was allowed to live as he pleased, but in their city, as in a military encampment, they always had a prescribed regimen and employment in public service, considering that they belonged entirely to their country and not to themselves, watching over the boys, if no other duty was laid upon them, and either teaching them some useful thing, or learning it themselves from their elders. For one of the noble and blessed privileges which Lycurgus provided for his fellow-citizens, was abundance of leisure, since he forbade their engaging in any mechanical art whatsoever, and as for money-making, with its laborious efforts to amass wealth, there was no need of it at all, since wealth awakened no envy and brought no honour. Besides, the Helots tilled their ground for them, and paid them the produce mentioned above.¹ Therefore it was that one of them who was sojourning at Athens when the courts were in session, and learned that a certain

¹ Chapter viii. 4.

καὶ προπεμπόμενον ὑπὸ τῶν φίλων συναχθομένων
καὶ βαρέως φερόντων, ἐδεῖτο δεῖξαι τοὺς συμπαρ-όντας αὐτῷ τίς ἐστὶν ὁ τὴν ἐλευθερίας¹ ἐαλωκῶς
δίκην. οὕτω δουλοπρεπὲς ἠγούντο τὴν περὶ τὰς
4 τέχνας καὶ τὸν χρηματισμὸν ἀσχολίαν. δίκαι
δέ, ὡς εἰκός, ἐξέλιπον ἅμα τῷ νομίσματι, μῆτε πλεουεξίας μῆτε ἀπορίας αὐτοῖς παρούσης, ἰσό-τητος δὲ ἐν εὐπορίᾳ καὶ ῥαστώνῃ δι' εὐτέλειαν
γεγενημένης. χοροὶ δὲ καὶ θαλαῖαι καὶ εὐωχίαι
καὶ διατριβαὶ περὶ τε θήρας καὶ γυμνάσια καὶ
λέσχας τὸν ἅπαντα χρόνον ἐπεχωρίαζον, ὅτε μὴ
στρατευόμενοι τύχοιεν.

XXV. Οἱ μὲν γε νεώτεροι τριάκοντα ἐτῶν τὸ
παράπαν οὐ κατέβαινον εἰς ἀγοράν, ἀλλὰ διὰ 55
τῶν συγγενῶν καὶ τῶν ἐραστῶν ἐποιοῦντο τὰς
ἀναγκαίας οἰκονομίας. τοῖς δὲ πρεσβυτέροις
αἰσχρὸν ἦν συνεχῶς ὀρᾶσθαι περὶ ταῦτα διατριβουσιν, ἀλλὰ μὴ τὸ πλεῖστον τῆς ἡμέρας περὶ τὰ
γυμνάσια καὶ τὰς καλουμένας λέσχας ἀναστρέφεσθαι. καὶ γὰρ εἰς ταύτας συνιόντες ἐπιεικῶς
ἐσχόλαζον μετ' ἀλλήλων, οὐδενὸς μεμνημένοι τῶν
πρὸς χρηματισμὸν ἢ χρεῖαν ἀγοραῖον συντε-
2 λούντων· ἀλλὰ τὸ πλεῖστον ἦν τῆς τοιαύτης
διατριβῆς ἔργον ἐπαινεῖν τι τῶν καλῶν, ἢ τῶν αἰσχρῶν ψέγειν, μετὰ παιδιᾶς καὶ γέλωτος, ἐλα-φρῶς ὑποφέροντος εἰς νουθεσίαν καὶ διόρθωσιν.
οὐδὲ γὰρ αὐτὸς ἦν ἀκράτως αὐστηρὸς ὁ Λυ-κούργος· ἀλλὰ καὶ τὸ τοῦ Γέλωτος ἀγαλμάτιον
ἐκείνον ἰδρύσασθαι Σωσίβιος ἱστορεῖ, τὴν παιδιὰν ὡσπερ ἡδυσμα τοῦ πόνου καὶ τῆς διαίτης

¹ ἐλευθερίας, Sintenis² with Coraës, after Bryan; ἐλευθερίαν MSS., Sintenis¹, and Bekker.

LYCURGUS

Athenian had been fined for idleness and was going home in great distress of mind and attended on his way by sympathetic and sorrowing friends, begged the bystanders to show him the man who had been fined for living like a freeman. So servile a thing did they regard the devotion to the mechanical arts and to money-making. And law-suits, of course, vanished from among them with their gold and silver coinage, for they knew neither greed nor want, but equality in well-being was established there, and easy living based on simple wants. Choral dances and feasts and festivals and hunting and bodily exercise and social converse occupied their whole time, when they were not on a military expedition.

XXV. Those who were under thirty years of age did not go into the market-place at all, but had their household wants supplied at the hands of their kinsfolk and lovers. And it was disreputable for the elderly men to be continually seen loitering there, instead of spending the greater part of the day in the places of exercise and the so-called "leschai."¹ For if they gathered in these, they spent their time suitably with one another, making no allusions to the problems of money-making or of exchange, nay, they were chiefly occupied there in praising some noble action or censuring some base one, with jesting and laughter which made the path to instruction and correction easy and natural. For not even Lycurgus himself was immoderately severe; indeed, Sosibius tells us that he actually dedicated a little statue of Laughter, and introduced seasonable jesting into their drinking parties and like ἐμβαλόντα κατὰ καιρὸν εἰς τὰ συμπόσια καὶ τὰς τοιαύτας διατριβάς.

¹ Places where men assembled for conversation.

PLUTARCH'S LIVES

- 3 Τὸ δὲ ὅλον εἵθιζε τοὺς πολίτας μὴ βούλεσθαι μηδὲ ἐπίστασθαι κατ' ἰδίαν ζῆν, ἀλλ' ὥσπερ τὰς μελίττας τῷ κοινῷ συμφυεῖς ὄντας ἀεὶ καὶ μετ' ἀλλήλων εἰλουμένους περὶ τὸν ἄρχοντα, μικροῦ δεῖν ἐξεστῶτας ἑαυτῶν ὑπ' ἐνθουσιασμοῦ καὶ φιλοτιμίας, ὅλους εἶναι τῆς πατρίδος· ὡς ἔστι καὶ φωναῖς τισιν αὐτῶν ἀποθεωρῆσαι τὴν διά-
- 4 νοιαν. ὁ μὲν γὰρ Παιδάρητος οὐκ ἐγκριθεὶς εἰς τοὺς τριακοσίους ἀπῆει μάλα φαιδρός, ὥσπερ χαίρων ὅτι βελτίονας αὐτοῦ τριακοσίους ἢ πόλις ἔχει. Πολυκρατίδας δὲ ὁ πρεσβεύων πρὸς τοὺς βασιλέως στρατηγούς μεθ' ἑτέρων, ἐρομένων αὐτῶν πότερον ἰδία πάρεισιν ἢ δημοσίᾳ πεμφθέντες, εἶπεν, “ Αἶκα τύχωμεν, δημοσίᾳ, αἶκα ἀποτύ-
- 5 χωμεν, ἰδία.” ἡ δὲ Βρασίδου μήτηρ Ἀργιλεωνίς, ὡς ἀφικόμενοί τινες εἰς Λακεδαίμονα τῶν ἐξ Ἀμφιπόλεως εἰσῆθλον πρὸς αὐτήν, ἠρώτησεν εἰ καλῶς ὁ Βρασίδης ἀπέθανε καὶ τὰς Σπάρτας ἀξίως μεγαλυνόντων δὲ ἐκείνων τὸν ἄνδρα καὶ λεγόντων ὡς οὐκ ἔχει τοιοῦτον ἄλλον ἢ Σπάρτη· “ Μὴ λέγετε,” εἶπεν, “ ὦ ξένοι· καλὸς μὲν γὰρ ἦν καὶ ἀγαθὸς ὁ Βρασίδης, πολλοὺς δὲ ἄνδρας Λακεδαίμων ἔχει τήνου κάρρονας.”

XXVI. Τοὺς δὲ γέροντας αὐτὸς μὲν, ὡς εἴρηται, κατέστησε τὸ πρῶτον ἐκ τῶν μετασχόντων τοῦ βουλευματος· ὕστερον δὲ ἀντὶ τοῦ τελευτῶντος ἔταξε καθιστάναι τὸν ἄριστον ἀρετῇ κριθέντα τῶν ὑπὲρ ἐξήκοντα ἔτη γεγονότων. καὶ μέγιστος diversions, to sweeten, as it were, their hardships and meagre fare.

LYCURGUS

In a word, he trained his fellow-citizens to have neither the wish nor the ability to live for themselves; but like bees they were to make themselves always integral parts of the whole community, clustering together about their leader, almost beside themselves with enthusiasm and noble ambition, and to belong wholly to their country. This idea can be traced also in some of their utterances. For instance, Paedaretus, when he failed to be chosen among the three hundred best men, went away with a very glad countenance, as if rejoicing that the city had three hundred better men than himself. And again, Polycratidas, one of an embassy to the generals of the Persian king, on being asked by them whether the embassy was there in a private or a public capacity, replied: "If we succeed, in a public capacity; if we fail, in a private." Again, Argileonis, the mother of Brasidas, when some Amphipolitans who had come to Sparta paid her a visit, asked them if Brasidas had died nobly and in a manner worthy of Sparta. Then they greatly extolled the man and said that Sparta had not such another, to which she answered: "Say not so, Strangers; Brasidas was noble and brave, but Sparta has many better men than he."

XXVI. The senators were at first appointed by Lycurgus himself, as I have said,¹ from those who shared his counsels; but afterwards he arranged that any vacancy caused by death should be filled by the man elected as most deserving out of those above sixty years of age. And of all the contests in

¹ Chapter v. 7 f.

PLUTARCH'S LIVES

ἐδόκει τῶν ἐν ἀνθρώποις ἀγῶνων οὗτος εἶναι καὶ
 περιμαχητότατος· οὐ γὰρ ἐν ταχέσι τάχιστον
 οὐδ' ἐν ἰσχυροῖς ἰσχυρότατον, ἀλλ' ἐν ἀγαθοῖς
 καὶ σώφροσιν ἄριστον καὶ σωφρονέστατον ἔδει
 κριθέντα νικητήριον ἔχειν τῆς ἀρετῆς διὰ βίου τὸ
 σύμπαν, ὡς εἰπεῖν, κράτος ἐν τῇ πολιτείᾳ, κύριον
 ὄντα καὶ θανάτου καὶ ἀτιμίας καὶ ὄλως τῶν
 2 μεγίστων. ἐγένετο δὲ ἡ κρίσις τόνδε τὸν τρόπον.
 ἐκκλησίας ἀθροισθείσης ἄνδρες αἰρετοὶ καθείρ-γνυντο πλησίον εἰς οἴκημα, τὴν μὲν ὄψιν οὐχ
 ὀρώντες οὐδὲ ὀρώμενοι, τὴν δὲ κραυγὴν μόνον
 ἀκούοντες ἐκκλησιαζόντων. βοῆ γὰρ ὡς τᾶλλα
 καὶ τοὺς ἀμιλλωμένους ἔκρινον, οὐχ ὁμοῦ πάντων,
 ἀλλ' ἐκάστου κατὰ κλῆρον εἰσαγομένου καὶ σιωπῇ
 3 διαπορευομένου τὴν ἐκκλησίαν. ἔχοντες οὖν οἱ κατάκλειστοι γραμματεῖα, καθ' ἕκαστον ἐπεσημαίνοντο τῆς κραυγῆς τὸ μέγεθος, οὐκ εἰδότες
 ὅτῳ γένοιτο, πλὴν ὅτι πρῶτος ἢ δεύτερος ἢ τρίτος
 ἢ ὀψοστοσοῦν εἴη τῶν εἰσαγομένων. ὅτῳ δὲ
 πλείστη γένοιτο καὶ μεγίστη, τοῦτον ἀνηγόρευον.
 ὁ δὲ στεφανωσάμενος περιῆει τοὺς θεοῦς· εἶποντο
 δὲ πολλοὶ νέοι ζηλοῦντες τὸν ἄνδρα καὶ μεγαλύ-νοντες, πολλαὶ τε γυναῖκες ἐγκωμιάζουσαι δι'
 φθῆς τὴν ἀρετὴν καὶ τὸν βίον εὐδαιμονίζουσαι.
 4 τῶν δὲ ἐπιτηδείων ἕκαστος αὐτῷ δεῖπνον παρα- 56
 τιθεὶς ἔλεγεν ὅτι ἡ πόλις ταύτη τιμᾷ τῇ τραπέζῃ.
 περιελθὼν δὲ εἰς τὸ συσσίτιον ἀπήει· καὶ τὰ μὲν
 ἄλλα ἐγένετο συνήθως, δευτέρας δὲ μερίδος αὐτῷ

LYCURGUS

the world this would seem to have been the greatest and the most hotly disputed. For it was not the swiftest of the swift, nor the strongest of the strong, but the best and wisest of the good and wise who was to be elected, and have for the rest of his life, as a victor's prize for excellence, what I may call the supreme power in the state, lord as he was of life and death, honour and dishonour, and all the greatest issues of life. The election was made in the following manner. An assembly of the people having been convened, chosen men were shut up in a room near by so that they could neither see nor be seen, but only hear the shouts of the assembly. For as in other matters, so here, the cries of the assembly decided between the competitors. These did not appear in a body, but each one was introduced separately, as the lot fell, and passed silently through the assembly. Then the secluded judges, who had writing-tablets with them, recorded in each case the loudness of the shouting, not knowing for whom it was given, but only that he was introduced first, second, or third, and so on. Whoever was greeted with the most and loudest shouting, him they declared elected. The victor then set a wreath upon his head and visited in order the temples of the gods. He was followed by great numbers of young men, who praised and extolled him, as well as by many women, who celebrated his excellence in songs, and dwelt on the happiness of his life. Each of his relations and friends set a repast before him, saying: "The city honours thee with this table." When he had finished his circuit, he went off to his mess-table. Here he fared in other ways as usual, but a second portion of food was set before him,

PLUTARCH'S LIVES

παρατεθείσης ἐφύλαττεν ἀράμενος· καὶ μετὰ τὸ δεῖπνον ἐπὶ ταῖς θύραις τοῦ φιδιτίου τῶν οἰκείων παρουσῶν γυναικῶν, ἣν μάλιστα τυγχάνοι τιμῶν προσεκαλεῖτο, καὶ διδοὺς τὴν μοῖραν ἔλεγεν ὅτι ταύτην αὐτὸς λαβὼν ἀριστεῖον ἐκείνη δίδωσιν, ὥστε κακείνην ζηλουμένην ὑπὸ τῶν ἄλλων προπέμπεσθαι γυναικῶν.

XXVII. Καὶ μὴν καὶ τὰ περὶ τὰς ταφὰς ἄριστα διεκόσμησεν αὐτοῖς.¹ πρῶτον μὲν γὰρ ἀνελὼν δεισιδαιμονίαν ἅπασαν ἐν τῇ πόλει θάπτει τοὺς νεκρούς, καὶ πλησίον ἔχειν τὰ μνήματα τῶν ἱερῶν οὐκ ἐκώλυσε, συντρόφους ποιῶν ταῖς τοιαύταις ὄψεσι καὶ συνήθεις τοὺς νέους, ὥστε μὴ ταράττεσθαι μηδ' ὀρρωδεῖν τὸν θάνατον ὡς μαινόντα τοὺς ἀψαμένους νεκροῦ σώματος ἢ διὰ τάφων διελθόντας. ἔπειτα συνθάπτει οὐδὲν εἶσεν, ἀλλὰ ἐν φοινικίδι καὶ φύλλοις ἐλαίας which he took and put by. After the supper was over, the women who were related to him being now assembled at the door of the mess-hall, he called to him the one whom he most esteemed and gave her the portion he had saved, saying that he had received it as a meed of excellence, and as such gave it to her. Upon this, she too was lauded by the rest of the women and escorted by them to her home.
 2 θέντες τὸ σῶμα περιέστελλον. ἐπιγράψαι δὲ τοῦνομα θάψαντας οὐκ ἐξῆν τοῦ νεκροῦ, πλὴν ἀνδρὸς ἐν πολέμῳ καὶ γυναικὸς τῶν ἱερῶν ἀποθανόντων. χρόνον δὲ πένθους ὀλίγον προσώρισεν, ἡμέρας ἔνδεκα· τῇ δὲ δωδεκάτῃ θύσαντας ἔδει Δήμητρι λύειν τὸ πάθος. οὐδὲν γὰρ ἦν ἀργὸν οὐδὲ ἀφειμένον, ἀλλὰ πᾶσι κατεμίγνυε τοῖς ἀναγκαίοις ἀρετῆς τινα ζῆλον ἢ κακίας διαβολὴν· καὶ κατεπύκνου παραδειγμάτων πλήθει τὴν πόλιν, οἷς ἀναγκαῖον ἦν ἐντυγχάνοντας αἰεὶ καὶ συντρεφομένους ἄγεσθαι καὶ κατασχηματίζεσθαι ἰόντας πρὸς τὸ καλόν.

¹ αὐτοῖς Coraës and Bekker, after Bryan: αὐτός (himself).

LYCURGUS

XXVII. Furthermore, Lycurgus made most excellent regulations in the matter of their burials. To begin with, he did away with all superstitious terror by allowing them to bury their dead within the city, and to have memorials of them near the sacred places, thus making the youth familiar with such sights and accustomed to them, so that they were not confounded by them, and had no horror of death as polluting those who touched a corpse or walked among graves. In the second place, he permitted nothing to be buried with the dead; they simply covered the body with a scarlet robe and olive leaves when they laid it away. To inscribe the name of the dead upon the tomb was not allowed, unless it were that of a man who had fallen in war, or that of a woman who had died in sacred office. He set apart only a short time for mourning, eleven days; on the twelfth, they were to sacrifice to Demeter and cease their sorrowing. Indeed, nothing was left untouched and neglected, but with all the necessary details of life he blended some commendation of virtue or rebuke of vice; and he filled the city full of good examples, whose continual presence and society must of necessity exercise a controlling and moulding influence upon those who were walking the path of honour.

- 3 "Οθεν οὐδ' ἀποδημεῖν ἔδωκε τοῖς βούλομένοις καὶ πλανᾶσθαι, ξενικὰ συνάγοντας ἤθη καὶ μιμήματα βίων ἀπαιδευτῶν καὶ πολιτευμάτων διαφόρων. ἀλλὰ καὶ τοὺς ἀθροιζομένους ἐπ' οὐδενὶ χρησίμῳ καὶ παρεισρέοντας εἰς τὴν πόλιν ἀπήλαυνεν, οὐχ, ὡς Θουκυδίδης φησί, δεδιὼς μὴ τῆς πολιτείας μιμηταὶ γένωνται καὶ πρὸς ἀρετὴν τι χρήσιμον ἐκμάθωσιν, ἀλλὰ μᾶλλον ὅπως μὴ
- 4 διδάσκαλοι κακοῦ τινος ὑπάρξωσιν. ἅμα γὰρ ξένοις σώμασιν ἀνάγκη λόγους ἐπεισιέναι ξένους· λόγοι δὲ καινοὶ κρίσεις καινὰς ἐπιφέρουσιν. ἐξ ὧν ἀνάγκη πάθη πολλὰ φύεσθαι καὶ προαιρέσεις ἀπαδούσας πρὸς τὴν καθεστῶσαν πολιτείαν, ὥσπερ ἀρμονίαν. διὸ μᾶλλον ᾤετο χρῆναι φυλάττειν τὴν πόλιν ὅπως ἡθῶν οὐκ ἀναπλησθήσεται πονηρῶν ἢ σωμάτων νοσερῶν ἕξωθεν ἐπεισιόντων.

XXVIII. Ἐν μὲν οὖν τούτοις οὐδέν ἐστιν ἀδικίας ἴχνος οὐδὲ πλεονεξίας, ἣν ἐγκαλοῦσιν ἔνιοι τοῖς Λυκούργου νόμοις, ὡς ἱκανῶς ἔχουσι πρὸς ἀνδρείαν, ἐνδεῶς δὲ πρὸς δικαιοσύνην. ἡ δὲ καλουμένη κρυπτεία παρ' αὐτοῖς, εἴ γε δὴ τοῦτο τῶν Λυκούργου πολιτευμάτων ἔν ἐστιν, ὡς Ἀριστοτέλης ἰστόρηκε, ταύτην ἂν εἴη καὶ τῷ Πλάτωνι περὶ τῆς πολιτείας καὶ τοῦ ἀνδρὸς

2 ἐνειργασμένη δόξαν. ἦν δὲ τοιαύτη· τῶν νέων οἱ ἄρχοντες διὰ χρόνου τοὺς μάλιστα νοῦν ἔχειν δοκούντας εἰς τὴν χώραν ἄλλως ἐξέπεμπον, ἔχοντας ἐγχειρίδια καὶ τροφὴν ἀναγκαίαν, ἄλλο δὲ οὐδέν· οἱ δὲ μεθ' ἡμέραν μὲν εἰς ἀσυνδήλους διασπειρόμενοι τόπους, ἀπέκρυπτον ἑαυτοὺς καὶ

LYCURGUS

This was the reason why he did not permit them to live abroad at their pleasure and wander in strange lands, assuming foreign habits and imitating the lives of peoples who were without training and lived under different forms of government. Nay more, he actually drove away from the city the multitudes which streamed in there for no useful purpose, not because he feared they might become imitators of his form of government and learn useful lessons in virtue, as Thucydides says,¹ but rather that they might not become in any wise teachers of evil. For along with strange people; strange doctrines must come in; and novel doctrines bring novel decisions, from which there must arise many feelings and resolutions which destroy the harmony of the existing political order. Therefore he thought it more necessary to keep bad manners and customs from invading and filling the city than it was to keep out infectious diseases.

XXVIII. Now in all this there is no trace of injustice or arrogance, which some attribute to the laws of Lycurgus, declaring them efficacious in producing valour, but defective in producing righteousness. The so-called "krupeteia," or secret service, of the Spartans, if this be really one of the institutions of Lycurgus, as Aristotle says it was, may have given Plato also² this opinion of the man and his civil polity. This secret service was of the following nature. The magistrates from time to time sent out into the country at large the most discreet of the young warriors, equipped only with daggers and such supplies as were necessary. In the day time they scattered into obscure and out of the way places,

¹ In the Funeral Oration of Pericles, ii. 39, 1.

² Laws, p. 630 d.

ἀνεπαύοντο, νύκτωρ δὲ κατιόντες εἰς τὰς ὁδοὺς
 3 τῶν εἰλώτων τὸν ἀλισκόμενον ἀπέσφαττον. πολλάκις δὲ καὶ τοῖς ἀγροῖς¹ ἐπιπορευόμενοι τοὺς ῥωμαλεωτάτους καὶ κρατίστους αὐτῶν ἀνήρουν.
 ὥσπερ καὶ Θουκυδίδης ἐν τοῖς Πελοποννησιακοῖς
 ἱστορεῖ τοὺς ἐπ' ἀνδρεία προκριθέντας ὑπὸ τῶν Σπαρτιατῶν στεφανώσασθαι μὲν ὡς ἐλευθέρους 57
 γεγονότας καὶ περιελθεῖν τὰ τῶν θεῶν ἱερά,
 μικρὸν δὲ ὕστερον ἅπαντας ἀφανεῖς γενέσθαι,
 πλείονας ἢ δισχιλίους ὄντας, ὡς μήτε παραχρῆμα
 μήτε ὕστερον ἔχειν τινὰ λέγειν ὄψω² τρόπῳ
 4 διεφθάρησαν. Ἀριστοτέλης δὲ μάλιστα φησι
 καὶ τοὺς ἐφόρους, ὅταν εἰς τὴν ἀρχὴν καταστῶσι
 πρῶτον, τοῖς εἰλωσι καταγγέλλειν πόλεμον,
 ὅπως εὐαγὲς ἦ τὸ ἀνελεῖν.

Καὶ τᾶλλα δὲ τραχέως προσεφέροντο καὶ
 σκληρῶς αὐτοῖς, ὥστε καὶ πίνειν ἀναγκάζοντες
 πολὺν ἄκρατον εἰς τὰ συσσίτια παρεισήγον, ἐπι-δεικνύμενοι τὸ μεθύειν οἷόν ἐστι τοῖς νέοις. καὶ
 ψδὰς ἐκέλευον ἄδειν καὶ χορείας χορεύειν ἀγεννεῖς
 καὶ καταγελάστους, ἀπέχεσθαι δὲ τῶν ἐλευθέρων.
 5 διὸ καὶ φασιν ὕστερον ἐν τῇ Θηβαίων εἰς τὴν
 Λακωνικὴν στρατείᾳ τοὺς ἀλισκομένους εἰλωτας
 κελευομένους ἄδειν τὰ Τερπάνδρου καὶ Ἀλκμᾶνος
 καὶ Σπένδοντος τοῦ Λάκωνος παραιτεῖσθαι, φά-σκοντας οὐκ ἐθέλειν τοὺς δεσποσύνους. ὥστε τοὺς
 λέγοντας, ἐν Λακεδαίμονι καὶ τὸν ἐλεύθερον μάλιστα ἐλεύθερον εἶναι καὶ τὸν δοῦλον μάλιστα

¹ τοῖς ἀγροῖς MSS. (incl. S): τοὺς ἀγροὺς after Coraës.

² ὄψω Cobet, cf. Thuc. iv. 80, 4: τῷ.

LYCURGUS

where they hid themselves and lay quiet; but in the night they came down into the highways and killed every Helot whom they caught. Oftentimes, too, they actually traversed the fields where Helots were working and slew the sturdiest and best of them. So, too, Thucydides, in his history of the Peloponnesian war,¹ tells us that the Helots who had been judged by the Spartans to be superior in bravery, set wreaths upon their heads in token of their emancipation, and visited the temples of the gods in procession, but a little while afterwards all disappeared, more than two thousand of them, in such a way that no man was able to say, either then or afterwards, how they came by their deaths. And Aristotle in particular says also that the ephors, as soon as they came into office, made formal declaration of war upon the Helots, in order that there might be no impiety in slaying them.

And in other ways also they were harsh and cruel to the Helots. For instance, they would force them to drink too much strong wine, and then introduce them into their public messes, to show the young men what a thing drunkenness was. They also ordered them to sing songs and dance dances that were low and ridiculous, but to let the nobler kind alone. And therefore in later times, they say, when the Thebans made their expedition into Laconia,² they ordered the Helots whom they captured to sing the songs of Terpander, Alcman, and Spondon the Spartan; but they declined to do so, on the plea that their masters did not allow it, thus proving the correctness of the saying: "In Sparta the freeman is more a freeman than anywhere else in the world,

¹ iv. 80.

² Under Epaminondas, 369 B.C.

δοῦλον, οὐ φαύλως τεθεωρηκέναι τὴν διαφορὰν.
 6 τὰς μὲν οὖν τοιαύτας χαλεπότητας ὕστερον ἐγγενέσθαι τοῖς Σπαρτιάταις νομίζω, μάλιστα μετὰ τὸν μέγαν σεισμόν, ᾧ συνεπιθέσθαι τοὺς εἴλωτας μετὰ Μεσσηνίων ἱστοροῦσι, καὶ πλείστα κακὰ τὴν χώραν ἐργάσασθαι καὶ μέγιστον τῇ πόλει περιστήσαι κίνδυνον. οὐ γὰρ ἂν ἔγωγε προσθείην Λυκούργῳ μιὰρὸν οὕτω τῆς κρυπτείας ἔργον ἀπὸ τῆς ἄλλης αὐτοῦ πραότητος καὶ δικαιοσύνης τεκμαιρόμενος τὸν τρόπον, ᾧ καὶ τὸ δαιμόνιον ἐπεμαρτύρησε.

XXIX. Κατειλημμένων δὲ τοῖς ἔθισμοῖς ἤδη τῶν κυριωτάτων ὑπ' αὐτοῦ, καὶ τῆς πολιτείας ἐκτεθραμμένης ἱκανῶς καὶ δυναμένης φέρειν ἑαυτὴν καὶ σώζειν δι' ἑαυτῆς, ὥσπερ ὁ Πλάτων φησὶν ἐπὶ τῷ κόσμῳ γενομένῳ καὶ κινήθῃν τὴν πρώτην κίνησιν εὐφραίνῃναι τὸν θεόν, οὕτως ἀγασθεὶς καὶ ἀγαπήσας τὸ τῆς νομοθεσίας κάλλος καὶ μέγεθος ἐν ἔργῳ γενομένης καὶ ὁδῷ βαδίζούσης, ἐπεθύμησεν, ὡς ἀνυστὸν ἐξ ἀνθρωπίνης προνοίας, ἀθάνατον αὐτὴν ἀπολιπεῖν καὶ ἀκίνητον
 2 εἰς τὸ μέλλον. συναγαγὼν οὖν ἅπαντας εἰς ἐκκλησίαν, τὰ μὲν ἄλλα μετρίως ἔχειν ἔφη καὶ ἱκανῶς πρὸς εὐδαιμονίαν καὶ ἀρετὴν τῆς πόλεως, ὃ δὲ κυριωτάτον ἐστὶ καὶ μέγιστον οὐκ ἂν ἐξευεγκεῖν πρότερον πρὸς αὐτοὺς ἢ χρήσασθαι τῷ θεῷ. δεῖν οὖν ἐκείνους ἐμμένειν τοῖς καθεστῶσι νόμοις καὶ μηδὲν ἀλλάσσειν μηδὲ μετακινεῖν ἕως ἐπάνεισιν ἐκ Δελφῶν αὐτός· ἐπανελθὼν γὰρ ὃ τι

LYCURGUS

and the slave more a slave." However, in my opinion, such cruelties were first practised by the Spartans in later times, particularly after the great earthquake,¹ when the Helots and Messenians together rose up against them, wrought the widest devastation in their territory, and brought their city into the greatest peril. I certainly cannot ascribe to Lycurgus so abominable a measure as the "krup-teia," judging of his character from his mildness and justice in all other instances. To this the voice of the god also bore witness.²

XXIX. When his principal institutions were at last firmly fixed in the customs of the people, and his civil polity had sufficient growth and strength to support and preserve itself, just as Plato says³ that Deity was rejoiced to see His universe come into being and make its first motion, so Lycurgus was filled with joyful satisfaction in the magnitude and beauty of his system of laws, now that it was in operation and moving along its pathway. He therefore ardently desired, so far as human forethought could accomplish the task, to make it immortal, and let it go down unchanged to future ages. Accordingly, he assembled the whole people, and told them that the provisions already made were sufficiently adapted to promote the prosperity and virtue of the state, but that something of the greatest weight and importance remained, which he could not lay before them until he had consulted the god at Delphi. They must therefore abide by the established laws and make no change nor alteration in them until he came back from Delphi in person ; ✓

¹ 464 B.C. Cf. Plutarch's Cimon, xvi.

² See chapter v. 3. ³ Timaeus, p. 37 c.

PLUTARCH'S LIVES

3 ἂν τῷ θεῷ δοκῆ ποιήσειν. ὁμολογούντων δὲ πάντων καὶ κελευόντων βαδίζειν, ὄρκους λαβὼν παρὰ τῶν βασιλέων καὶ τῶν γερόντων, ἔπειτα παρὰ τῶν ἄλλων πολιτῶν, ἐμμενεῖν καὶ χρῆσθαι τῇ καθεστώσῃ πολιτείᾳ μέχρις ἂν ἐπανέλθῃ ὁ Λυκούργος, ἀπῆρεν εἰς Δελφούς.

Παραγενόμενος δὲ πρὸς τὸ μαντεῖον καὶ τῷ θεῷ θύσας, ἠρώτησεν εἰ καλῶς οἱ νόμοι καὶ ἱκανῶς πρὸς εὐδαιμονίαν καὶ ἀρετὴν πόλεως κείμενοι
 4 τυγχάνουσιν. ἀποκριναμένου δὲ τοῦ θεοῦ καὶ τοὺς νόμους καλῶς κείσθαι καὶ τὴν πόλιν ἐνδοξοτάτην διαμενεῖν τῇ Λυκούργου χρωμένην πολιτείᾳ, τὸ μάντευμα γραψάμενος εἰς Σπάρτην ἀπέστειλεν. αὐτὸς δὲ τῷ θεῷ πάλιν θύσας καὶ τοὺς φίλους ἀσπασάμενος καὶ τὸν υἱόν, ἔγνω μηκέτι τοῖς πολίταις ἀφεῖναι τὸν ὄρκον, αὐτοῦ δὲ καταλύσαι τὸν βίον ἐκουσίως, ἡλικίας γεγονῶς ἐν ἧ καὶ βιοῦν ἔτι καὶ πεπαῦσθαι βουλομένοις ὠραῖόν ἐστι, καὶ
 5 κούντων. ἐτελεύτησεν οὖν ἀποκαρτερήσας, ἡγούμενος χρῆναι τῶν πολιτικῶν ἀνδρῶν μηδὲ τὸν θάνατον ἀπολίτευτον εἶναι μηδὲ ἀργὸν τὸ τοῦ βίου τέλος, ἀλλ' ἐν ἀρετῆς μερίδι καὶ πράξεως γενόμενον. αὐτῷ τε γὰρ ἐξειργασμένῳ τὰ κάλλιστα τὴν τελευτὴν ὡς ἀληθῶς ἐπιτελείωσιν εἶναι τῆς εὐδαιμονίας, καὶ τοῖς πολίταις ὧν διὰ τοῦ βίου παρεσκεύασε καλῶν καὶ ἀγαθῶν φύλακα τὸν θάνατον ἀπολείψειν, ὁμωμοκόσι χρῆσθαι τῇ πο-
 6 λιτείᾳ μέχρις ἂν ἐκείνος ἐπανέλθῃ. καὶ οὐ διεψεύ-

LYCURGUS

then he would do whatsoever the god thought best. When they all agreed to this and bade him set out on his journey, he exacted an oath from the kings and the senators, and afterwards from the rest of the citizens, that they would abide by the established polity and observe it until Lycurgus should come back ; then he set out for Delphi.

On reaching the oracle, he sacrificed to the god, and asked if the laws which he had established were good, and sufficient to promote a city's prosperity and virtue. Apollo answered that the laws which he had established were good, and that the city would continue to be held in highest honour while it kept to the polity of Lycurgus. This oracle Lycurgus wrote down, and sent it to Sparta. But for his own part, he sacrificed again to the god, took affectionate leave of his friends and of his son, and resolved never to release his fellow-citizens from their oath, but of his own accord to put an end to his life where he was. He had reached an age in which life was not yet a burden, and death no longer a terror ; when he and his friends, moreover, appeared to be sufficiently prosperous and happy. He therefore abstained from food till he died, considering that even the death of a statesman should be of service to the state, and the ending of his life not void of effect, but recognized as a virtuous deed. As for himself, since he had wrought out fully the noblest tasks, the end of life would actually be a consummation of his good fortune and happiness ; and as for his fellow-citizens, he would make his death the guardian, as it were, of all the blessings he had secured for them during his life, since they had sworn to observe and maintain his polity until he should return. And he was not

σθη τῶν λογισμῶν· τοσοῦτον ἐπρώτευσεν ἡ πόλις τῆς Ἑλλάδος εὐνομία καὶ δόξη, χρόνον ἐτῶν πεντακοσίων τοῖς Λυκούργου χρησαμένη νόμοις, οὓς δεκατεσσάρων βασιλέων μετ' ἐκείνον εἰς Ἄγιν τὸν Ἀρχιδάμου γενομένων οὐδεὶς ἐκίνησεν. ἡ γὰρ τῶν ἐφόρων κατάστασις οὐκ ἄνεσις ἦν, ἀλλ' ἐπίτασις τῆς πολιτείας, καὶ δοκοῦσα πρὸς τοῦ δήμου γεγονέαι σφοδροτέραν ἐποίησε τὴν ἀριστοκρατίαν.

XXX. Ἄγιδος δὲ βασιλεύοντος εἰσερρήν νόμισμα πρῶτον εἰς τὴν Σπάρτην, καὶ μετὰ τοῦ νομίσματος πλεονεξία καὶ πλούτου ζῆλος ἐπέβη διὰ Λύσανδρον, ὃς αὐτὸς ὦν ἀνάλωτος ὑπὸ χρημάτων, ἐνέπλησε τὴν πατρίδα φιλοπλουτίας καὶ τρυφῆς, χρυσὸν καὶ ἄργυρον ἐκ τοῦ πολέμου καταγαγὼν καὶ τοὺς Λυκούργου καταπολιτευσάμε-
 2 νος νόμους. ὦν ἐπικρατούντων πρότερον οὐ πόλεως ἢ Σπάρτη πολιτείαν, ἀλλ' ἀνδρὸς ἀσκητοῦ καὶ σοφοῦ βίον ἔχουσα, μᾶλλον δ', ὥσπερ οἱ ποιεῖται τὸν Ἡρακλέα μυθολογοῦσι δέρμα καὶ ξύλον ἔχοντα τὴν οἰκουμένην ἐπιπορεύεσθαι, κολλάζοντα τοὺς παρανόμους καὶ θηριώδεις τυράννους, οὕτως ἡ πόλις ἀπὸ σκυτάλης μιᾶς καὶ τριβωνος ἄρχουσα τῆς Ἑλλάδος ἐκούσης καὶ βουλομένης, κατέλυε τὰς ἀδίκους δυναστείας καὶ τυραννίδας ἐν τοῖς πολιτεύμασι, καὶ πολέμους ἐβράβευε καὶ στάσεις κατέπαυε, πολλάκις οὐδ' ἄσπίδα κινήσασα μίαν, ἀλλ' ἕνα πέμψασα πρεσβευτήν, ᾧ πάντες εὐθύς ἐποίουν τὸ προστασσόμενον, ὥσπερ αἱ μέλισσαι φανέντος ἡγεμόνος, συντρέχοντες καὶ κατακοσμούμενοι. τοσοῦτον περιῆν εὐνομίας τῇ πόλει καὶ δικαιοσύνης.

LYCURGUS

deceived in his expectations, so long did his city have the first rank in Hellas for good government and reputation, observing as she did for five hundred years the laws of Lycurgus, in which no one of the fourteen kings who followed him made any change, down to Agis the son of Archidamus. For the institution of the ephors did not weaken, but rather strengthened the civil polity, and though it was thought to have been done in the interests of the people, it really made the aristocracy more powerful.

XXX. But in the reign of Agis, gold and silver money first flowed into Sparta, and with money, greed and a desire for wealth prevailed through the agency of Lysander, who, though incorruptible himself, filled his country with the love of riches and with luxury, by bringing home gold and silver from the war, and thus subverting the laws of Lycurgus. While these remained in force, Sparta led the life, not of a city under a constitution, but of an individual man under training and full of wisdom. Nay rather, as the poets weave their tales of Heracles, how with his club and lion's skin he traversed the world chastising lawless and savage tyrants, so we may say that Sparta, simply with the dispatch-staff and cloak of her envoys, kept Hellas in willing and glad obedience, put down illegal oligarchies and tyrannies in the different states, arbitrated wars, and quelled seditions, often without so much as moving a single shield, but merely sending one ambassador, whose commands all at once obeyed, just as bees, when their leader appears, swarm together and array themselves about him. Such a surplus fund of good government and justice did the city enjoy.

PLUTARCH'S LIVES

- 3 "Οθεν ἔγωγε θαυμάζω τῶν λεγόντων ὡς ἄρχε-σθαι μὲν ἤδεσαν, ἄρχειν δὲ οὐκ ἠπίσταντο Λακεδαιμόνιοι, καὶ τὸν Θεοπόμπου τοῦ βασιλέως
ἐπαινούντων λόγον, ὃς, εἰπόντος τινὸς σῶζεσθαι
τὴν Σπάρτην διὰ τοὺς βασιλεῖς ἀρχικούς γεγο-νότας, "Μᾶλλον," εἶπε, "διὰ τοὺς πολίτας πει-4 θαρχικούς ὄντας" οὐ γὰρ ἀκούειν ὑπομένουσι τῶν προστατεῖν μὴ δυναμένων, ἀλλ' ἡ πειθαρχία μάθη-μα μὲν ἐστὶν τοῦ ἄρχοντος¹ (ἐμποιεῖ γὰρ ὁ καλῶς
ἄγων τὸ καλῶς ἔπεσθαι· καὶ καθάπερ ἵππικῆς
τέχνης ἀποτέλεσμα πρᾶου ἵππου καὶ πειθήνιου
παρασχεῖν, οὕτω βασιλικῆς ἐπιστήμης ἔργον ἀνθρώποις εὐπείθειαν ἐνεργάσασθαι), Λακεδαι-μόνιοι δὲ οὐκ εὐπείθειαν, ἀλλ' ἐπιθυμίαν ἐνεργά-ζοντο τοῖς ἄλλοις τοῦ ἄρχεσθαι καὶ ὑπακούειν
5 αὐτοῖς. ἦτουν γὰρ οὐ ναῦς οὐδὲ χρήματα παρ'
αὐτῶν οὐδὲ ὀπλίτας πέμποντες, ἀλλὰ ἓνα Σπαρ-τιατὴν ἡγεμόνα· καὶ λαβόντες ἐχρῶντο μετὰ
τιμῆς καὶ δέους, ὥσπερ Γυλίππῳ Σικελιώται
καὶ Βρασίδα Χαλκιδεῖς, Λυσάνδρῳ δὲ καὶ Καλλι-κρατίδῃ καὶ Ἀγησιλάῳ πάντες οἱ τὴν Ἀσίαν
οἰκοῦντες Ἕλληνας, τοὺς μὲν ἄνδρας ἄρμοστὰς
καὶ σωφρονιστὰς τῶν ἑκασταχοῦ δήμων καὶ
ἀρχόντων ὀνομάζοντες, πρὸς δὲ σύμπασαν τὴν
τῶν Σπαρτιατῶν πόλιν ὥσπερ παιδαγωγὸν ἢ
διδάσκαλον εὐσχήμονος βίου καὶ τεταγμένης
6 πολιτείας ἀποβλέποντες. εἰς δὲ καὶ Στρατόνικος
ἐπισκῶψαι δοκεῖ, μετὰ παιδιᾶς νομοθετῶν καὶ
κελεύων Ἀθηναίους ἄγειν μυστήρια καὶ πομπάς, Ἡλείους δὲ ἀγωνοθετεῖν, ὡς κάλλιστα τοῦτο
ποιούντας, Λακεδαιμονίους δέ, ἂν ἀμαρτάνωσιν

¹ τοῦ ἄρχοντος with S: ἄρχοντος.

LYCURGUS

Wherefore, I for one am amazed at those who declare that the Lacedaemonians knew how to obey, but did not understand how to command, and quote with approval the story of King Theopompus, who, when some one said that Sparta was safe and secure because her kings knew how to command, replied: "Nay, rather because her citizens know how to obey." For men will not consent to obey those who have not the ability to rule, but obedience is a lesson to be learned from a commander. For a good leader makes good followers, and just as the final attainment of the art of horsemanship is to make a horse gentle and tractable, so it is the task of the science of government to implant obedience in men. And the Lacedaemonians implanted in the rest of the Greeks not only a willingness to obey, but a desire to be their followers and subjects. People did not send requests to them for ships, or money, or hoplites, but for a single Spartan commander; and when they got him, they treated him with honour and reverence, as the Sicilians treated Gylippus; the Chalcidians, Brasidas; and all the Greeks resident in Asia, Lysander, Callicratidas, and Agesilaüs. These men, wherever they came, were styled regulators and chasteners of peoples and magistrates, and the city of Sparta from which they came was regarded as a teacher of well-ordered private life and settled civil polity. To this position of Sparta Stratonicus would seem to have mockingly alluded when, in jest, he proposed a law that the Athenians should conduct mysteries and processions, and that the Eleians should preside at games, since herein lay their special excellence, but that the Lacedaemonians should be cudgelled if the others

οὔτοι, δέρεσθαι. καὶ τοῦτο μὲν εἶρηται χάριν τοῦ γελοίου· Ἀντισθένης δὲ ὁ Σωκρατικὸς ἀπὸ τῆς ἐν Λεύκτροις μάχης ὄρων τοὺς Θηβαίους μέγα φρονούντας, οὐδὲν αὐτοὺς ἔφη διαφέρειν 59 παιδαρίων ἐπὶ τῷ συγκόψαι τὸν παιδαγωγὸν γαυριῶντων.

XXXI. Οὐ μὴν τοῦτό γε τῷ Λυκούργῳ κεφάλαιον ἦν τότε, πλείστων ἡγουμένην ἀπολιπεῖν τὴν πόλιν· ἀλλ' ὥσπερ ἐνὸς ἀνδρὸς βίῳ καὶ πόλεως ὅλης νομίζων εὐδαιμονίαν ἀπ' ἀρετῆς ἐγγίνεσθαι καὶ ὁμοιοῖας τῆς πρὸς αὐτήν, πρὸς τοῦτο συνέταξε καὶ συνήρμοσεν, ὅπως ἐλευθέριοι καὶ αὐτάρκεις γενόμενοι καὶ σωφρονούντες ἐπὶ 2 πλείστον χρόνον διατελῶσι. ταύτην καὶ Πλάτων ἔλαβε τῆς πολιτείας ὑπόθεσιν καὶ Διογένης καὶ Ζήνων καὶ πάντες ὅσοι τι περὶ τούτων ἐπιχειρήσαντες εἰπεῖν ἐπαινοῦνται, γράμματα καὶ λόγους ἀπολιπόντες μόνον. ὁ δὲ οὐ γράμματα καὶ λόγους, ἀλλ' ἔργῳ πολιτείαν ἀμίμητον εἰς φῶς προενεγκάμενος, καὶ τοῖς ἀνύπαρκτον εἶναι τὴν λεγομένην περὶ τὸν σοφὸν διάθεσιν ὑπολαμβάνουσιν ἐπιδείξας ὅλην τὴν πόλιν φιλοσοφοῦσαν, εἰκότως ὑπερῆρε τῇ δόξῃ τοὺς πώποτε πολιτευσαμένους ἐν 3 τοῖς Ἕλλησι. δι' ὅπερ καὶ Ἀριστοτέλης ἐλάττωνας σχεῖν φησι τιμὰς ἢ προσῆκον ἦν αὐτὸν ἔχειν ἐν Λακεδαιμόνι, καίπερ ἔχοντα τὰς μεγίστας. ἱερόν τε γάρ ἐστιν αὐτοῦ, καὶ θύουσι καθ' ἕκαστον ἐνιαυτὸν ὡς θεῷ. λέγεται δὲ καὶ τῶν λειψάων αὐτοῦ κομισθέντων οἴκαδε κεραυνὸν εἰς τὸν

LYCURGUS

did amiss.¹ This was a joke ; but Antisthenes the Socratic, when he saw the Thebans in high feather after the battle of Leuctra,² said in all seriousness that they were just like little boys strutting about because they had thrashed their tutor.

XXXI. It was not, however, the chief design of Lycurgus then to leave his city in command over a great many others, but he thought that the happiness of an entire city, like that of a single individual, depended on the prevalence of virtue and concord within its own borders. The aim, therefore, of all his arrangements and adjustments was to make his people free-minded, self-sufficing, and moderate in all their ways, and to keep them so as long as possible. His design for a civil polity was adopted by Plato, Diogenes, Zeno, and by all those who have won approval for their treatises on this subject, although they left behind them only writings and words. Lycurgus, on the other hand, produced not writings and words, but an actual polity which was beyond imitation, and because he gave, to those who maintain that the much talked of natural disposition to wisdom exists only in theory, an example of an entire city given to the love of wisdom, his fame rightly transcended that of all who ever founded polities among the Greeks. Therefore Aristotle says that the honours paid him in Sparta were less than he deserved, although he enjoys the highest honours there. For he has a temple, and sacrifices are offered to him yearly as to a god. It is also said that when his remains were brought home, his

¹ Cf. chapter xviii. 4.

² In 371 B.C., when the Thebans under Epaminondas broke the supremacy of Sparta.

τάφον κατασκήψαι· τούτο δὲ οὐ ῥαδίως ἐτέρῳ
τινὶ τῶν ἐπιφανῶν πλην Εὐριπίδῃ συμπεσεῖν
ὑστερον, τελευτήσαντι καὶ ταφέντι τῆς Μακεδονίας περὶ Ἀρέθουσας. ὥστε ἀπολόγημα καὶ μαρ-τύριον μέγα εἶναι τοῖς ἀγαπῶσι τὸν Εὐριπίδην τὸ
μόνῳ συμπεσεῖν αὐτῷ μετὰ τελευτῆν¹ ἂ τῷ
θεοφιλεστάτῳ καὶ ὀσιωτάτῳ πρότερον συνέπεσε.

- 4 Τελευτήσαι δὲ τὸν Λυκούργον οἱ μὲν ἐν Κίρρα
λέγουσιν, Ἀπολλόθεμις δὲ εἰς Ἥλιον κομισθέντα, Τίμαιος δὲ καὶ Ἀριστόξενος ἐν Κρήτῃ καταβιώ-σαντα· καὶ τάφον Ἀριστόξενος αὐτοῦ δείκνυσθαί
φησιν ὑπὸ Κρητῶν τῆς Περγαμίας περὶ τὴν
ξενικὴν ὁδόν. υἱὸν δὲ λέγεται μονογενῆ καταλιπεῖν Ἀντίωρον· οὗ τελευτήσαντος ἀτέκνου τὸ γένος
- 5 ἐξέλιπεν. οἱ δ' ἑταῖροι καὶ οἰκεῖοι διαδοχὴν τινα
καὶ σύνοδον ἐπὶ πολλοὺς χρόνους διαμείνασαν
κατέστησαν, καὶ τὰς ἡμέρας ἐν αἷς συνήρχοντο Λυκουργίδας προσηγόρευσαν. Ἀριστοκράτης δὲ
ὁ Ἰππάρχου φησὶ τοὺς ξένους τοῦ Λυκούργου
τελευτήσαντος ἐν Κρήτῃ καῦσαι τὸ σῶμα καὶ
διασπεῖραι τὴν τέφραν εἰς τὴν θάλατταν, αὐτοῦ
δεσθέντος καὶ φυλαξαμένου μὴ ποτε ἄρα τῶν λειψάνων εἰς Λακεδαίμονα κομισθέντων, ὡς ἐπανήκοντος αὐτοῦ καὶ τῶν ὄρκων λελυμένων, μετα-βάλωσι τὴν πολιτείαν. ταῦτα μὲν οὖν περὶ τοῦ Λυκούργου.

¹ The words καὶ γενέσθαι following τελευτῆν are deleted
by Bekker and Sintenis² (in critical notes).

LYCURGUS

tomb was struck by lightning, and that this hardly happened to any other eminent man after him except Euripides, who died and was buried at Arethusa in Macedonia. The lovers of Euripides therefore regard it as a great testimony in his favour that he alone experienced after death what had earlier befallen a man who was most holy and beloved of the gods.

Some say that Lycurgus died in Cirrha; Apollonthemis, that he was brought to Elis and died there; Timaeus and Aristoxenus, that he ended his days in Crete; and Aristoxenus adds that his tomb is shown by the Cretans in the district of Pergamus, near the public highway. It is also said that he left an only son, Antiorus, on whose death without issue, the family became extinct. His friends and relations, however, instituted a periodical assembly in his memory, which continued to be held for many ages, and they called the days on which they came together, Lycurgidae. Aristocrates the son of Hipparchus says that the friends of Lycurgus, after his death in Crete, burned his body and scattered the ashes into the sea, and that this was done at his request, and because he wished to prevent his remains from ever being carried to Sparta, lest the people there should change his polity, on the plea that he had come back, and that they were therefore released from their oaths. This, then, is what I have to say about Lycurgus.

NUMA

VOL. I.

X

NOMAS

I. Ἔστι δὲ καὶ περὶ τῶν Νομᾶ τοῦ βασιλέως χρόνων, καθ' οὗς γέγονε, νεανικὴ διαφορὰ, καίπερ ἐξ ἀρχῆς εἰς τοῦτον κατάγεσθαι τῶν στεμμάτων ἀκριβῶς δοκούντων. ἀλλὰ Κλώδιός τις ἐν ἐλέγχῳ χρόνων (οὕτω γάρ πως ἐπιγέγραπται τὸ βιβλίον) ἰσχυρίζεται τὰς μὲν ἀρχαίας ἐκείνας ἀναγραφὰς ἐν τοῖς Κελτικοῖς πάθεισι τῆς πόλεως ἠφανίσθαι, τὰς δὲ νῦν φαινομένας οὐκ ἀληθῶς συγκεῖσθαι δι' ἀνδρῶν χαριζομένων τισὶν εἰς τὰ πρῶτα γένη καὶ τοὺς ἐπιφανεστάτους οἴκους ἐξ οὗ προσηκόντων
2 εἰσβιαζομένοις. λεγομένου δ' οὖν ὡς Νομᾶς γένου- 60
το Πυθαγόρου συνήθης, οἱ μὲν ὅλως ἀξιούσι μηδὲν Ἑλληνικῆς παιδείσεως Νομᾶ μετεῖναι, καθάπερ ἢ φύσει δυνατὸν καὶ ἀντάρκη γενέσθαι πρὸς ἀρετὴν ἢ βελτίονι Πυθαγόρου βαρβάρῳ τινὶ τὴν τοῦ βασιλέως ἀποδοῦναι παιδευσιν· οἱ δὲ Πυθαγόραν μὲν ὄψε γενέσθαι, τῶν Νομᾶ χρόνων
3 ὁμοῦ τι πέντε γενεαῖς ἀπολειπόμενον, Πυθαγόραν δὲ τὸν Σπαρτιάτην Ὀλύμπια νενικηκότα στάδιον ἐπὶ τῆς ἑκαταδικῆς Ὀλυμπιάδος, ἧς ἔτει τρίτῳ Νομᾶς εἰς τὴν βασιλείαν κατέστη, πλανηθέντα περὶ τὴν Ἰταλίαν συγγενέσθαι τῷ Νομᾶ καὶ συν-

NUMA

I. THERE is likewise¹ a vigorous dispute about the time at which King Numa lived, although from the beginning down to him the genealogies seem to be made out accurately. But a certain Clodius, in a book entitled "An Examination of Chronology," insists that the ancient records were lost when the city was sacked by the Gauls,² and that those which are now exhibited as such were forged, their compilers wishing to gratify the pride of certain persons by inserting their names among the first families and the most illustrious houses, where they had no cause to appear. Accordingly, when it is said that Numa was an intimate friend of Pythagoras, some deny utterly that Numa had any Greek culture, holding either that he was naturally capable of attaining excellence by his own efforts, or that the culture of the king was due to some Barbarian superior to Pythagoras. Others say that Pythagoras the philosopher lived as many as five generations after Numa, but that there was another Pythagoras, the Spartan, who was Olympic victor in the foot-race for the sixteenth Olympiad³ (in the third year of which Numa was made king), and that in his wanderings about Italy he made the acquaintance of Numa, and helped him arrange the

¹ Cf. Lycurgus, i. 1-3.

² 390 B.C. Cf. Camillus, xix.-xxix. ³ 657-654 B.C.

διακοσμήσαι τὴν πολιτείαν, ὅθεν οὐκ ὀλίγα τοῖς Ῥωμαϊκοῖς ἐπιτηδεύμασι τῶν Λακωνικῶν ἀναμειχθαι Πυθαγόρου διδάξαντος. ἄλλως δὲ Νομάς γένος μὲν ἦν ἐκ Σαβίνων, Σαβῖνοι δὲ βούλονται

4 Λακεδαιμονίων ἑαυτοὺς ἀποίκους γεγονέναι. τοὺς μὲν οὖν χρόνους ἐξακριβῶσαι χαλεπὸν ἐστὶ, καὶ μάλιστα τοὺς ἐκ τῶν Ὀλυμπιονικῶν ἀναγομένους, ὧν τὴν ἀναγραφὴν ὀψέ φασιν Ἰππίαν ἐκδούναί τὸν Ἡλείον, ἀπ' οὐδενὸς ὀρμώμενον ἀναγκαίου πρὸς πίστιν· ἃ δὲ παρειλήφαμεν ἡμεῖς ἄξια λόγου περὶ Νομά, διέξιμεν ἀρχὴν οἰκείαν λαβόντες.

II. Ἐβδομον ἐνιαυτὸν ἢ Ῥώμη καὶ τριακοστὸν ἤδη Ῥωμύλου βασιλεύοντος ᾤκειτο· πέμπτη δὲ ἰσταμένου μηνός, ἦν νῦν ἡμέραν νῶνας Καπρατίνας καλοῦσι, θυσίαν τιὰ δημοτελῆ πρὸ τῆς πόλεως ὃ Ῥωμύλος ἔθυε περὶ τὸ καλούμενον Αἰγὸς ἔλος, καὶ παρῆν ἢ τε βουλή καὶ τοῦ δήμου

2 τὸ πλεῖστον. ἐξαίφνης δὲ μεγάλης περὶ τὸν ἀέρα τροπῆς γενομένης καὶ νέφους ἐπὶ τὴν γῆν ἐρείσαντος ἅμα πνεύματι καὶ ζάλῃ, τὸν μὲν ἄλλον ὄμιλον ἐκπλαγέντα συνέβη φυγεῖν καὶ σκεδασθῆναι, τὸν δὲ Ῥωμύλον ἀφανῆ γενέσθαι, καὶ μήτε αὐτὸν ἔτι μήτε σῶμα τεθνηκότος εὐρεθῆναι, χαλεπὴν δὲ τιν' ὑπόνοιαν ἄψασθαι τῶν πατρικίων, καὶ ῥυῆναι λόγον ἐν τῷ δήμῳ κατ' αὐτῶν ὡς πάλαι βαρυνόμενοι τὸ βασιλεύεσθαι καὶ μεταστήσαι τὸ κράτος εἰς αὐτοὺς θέλοντες ἀνέλοιεν τὸν βασιλέα. καὶ γὰρ ἐδόκει τραχύτερον ἤδη

3 προσφέρεσθαι καὶ μοναρχικώτερον αὐτοῖς. ἀλλὰ ταύτην μὲν τὴν ὑποψίαν ἐθεράπευον εἰς θεῶν

NUMA

government of the city, whence it came about that many Spartan customs were mingled with the Roman, as Pythagoras taught them to Numa. And at all events, Numa was of Sabine descent, and the Sabines will have it that they were colonists from Lacedaemon. Chronology, however, is hard to fix, and especially that which is based on the names of victors in the Olympic games, the list of which is said to have been published at a late period by Hippias of Elis, who had no fully authoritative basis for his work. I shall therefore begin at a convenient point, and relate the noteworthy facts which I have found in the life of Numa.

II. For thirty-seven years, now, Rome had been built and Romulus had been its king; and on the fifth of the month of July, which day they now call the Capratine Nones, Romulus was offering a public sacrifice outside the city at the so-called Goat's Marsh, in the presence of the senate and most of the people. Suddenly there was a great commotion in the air, and a cloud descended upon the earth bringing with it blasts of wind and rain. The throng of common folk were terrified and fled in all directions, but Romulus disappeared, and was never found again either alive or dead. Upon this a grievous suspicion attached itself to the patricians, and an accusing story was current among the people to the effect that they had long been weary of kingly rule, and desired to transfer the power to themselves, and had therefore made away with the king. And indeed it had been noticed for some time that he treated them with greater harshness and arrogance. This suspicion the patricians sought to remove by ascribing divine honours to Romulus, τιμὰς ἀνάγοντες ὡς οὐ τεθνηκότα τὸν Ῥωμύλον, ἀλλὰ κρείττονος ὄντα μοίρας· καὶ Πρόκλος, ἀνὴρ ἐπιφανής, διωμόσατο Ῥωμύλον ἰδεῖν εἰς οὐρανὸν σὺν τοῖς ὄπλοις ἀναφερόμενον, καὶ φωνῆς ἀκοῦσαι κελεύοντος αὐτὸν ὀνομάζεσθαι Κυρίνον.

- 4 Ἐτέρα δὲ ταραχὴ καὶ στάσις κατελάμβανε τὴν πόλιν ὑπὲρ τοῦ μέλλοντος ἀποδειχθήσεσθαι βασιλέως, οὐπὼ τῶν ἐπηλύδων κομιδῇ τοῖς πρώτοις συγκεκραμένων πολίταις, ἀλλ' ἔτι τοῦ τε δήμου πολλὰ κυμαίνοντος ἐν ἑαυτῷ καὶ τῶν πατρικίων ἐν ὑποψίαις ἐκ τοῦ διαφόρου πρὸς ἀλλήλους ὄντων. οὐ μὴν ἀλλὰ βασιλεύεσθαι μὲν ἐδόκει πᾶσιν, ἤρισαν δὲ καὶ διέστησαν οὐχ ὑπὲρ ἀνδρὸς μόνου, ἀλλὰ καὶ γένους, ὀπότερον
- 5 παρέξει τὸν ἡγεμόνα. καὶ γὰρ οἱ μετὰ Ῥωμύλου πρῶτοι συνοικίσαντες τὴν πόλιν οὐκ ἀνασχετὸν ἐποιοῦντο πόλεως καὶ χώρας τοὺς Σαβίνους μεταλαβόντας ἄρχειν βιάζεσθαι τῶν ἐπὶ ταῦτα δεξαμένων, καὶ τοῖς Σαβίνοις ἦν τις εὐγνώμων λόγος, ἐπεὶ Τατίου τοῦ βασιλέως αὐτῶν ἀποθανόντος οὐκ ἔστασίασαν πρὸς Ῥωμύλον, ἀλλ' εἶασαν ἄρχειν μόνου, αὐθις ἀξιούντων τὸν ἄρχοντα γενέσθαι παρ' αὐτῶν. οὔτε γὰρ ἐκ ταπεινοτέρων κρείττοσι προσγενέσθαι, καὶ προσγεγνόμενοι πλήθει τε ῥῶσαι καὶ προαγαγεῖν εἰς ἀξίωμα πόλεως ἐκείνους μεθ' ἑαυτῶν. ὑπὲρ μὲν οὖν τούτων ἔστασίαζον.
- 6 Ὅπως δὲ μὴ σύγχυσις ἐκ τῆς ἀναρχίας ἢ στάσις ἀπεργάσεται, μετεώρου τοῦ πολιτεύματος ὄντος, ἔταξαν οἱ πατρικιοὶ πενήτηντα 61

NUMA

on the ground that he was not dead, but blessed with a better lot. And Proculus, a man of eminence, took oath that he had seen Romulus ascending to heaven in full armour, and had heard his voice commanding that he be called Quirinus.¹

The city was now beset with fresh disturbance and faction over the king to be appointed in his stead, for the new comers were not yet altogether blended with the original citizens, but the commonalty was still like a surging sea, and the patricians full of jealousy towards one another on account of their different nationalities. It is indeed true that it was the pleasure of all to have a king, but they wrangled and quarrelled, not only about the man who should be their leader, but also about the tribe which should furnish him. For those who had built the city with Romulus at the outset thought it intolerable that the Sabines, after getting a share in the city and its territory, should insist on ruling those who had received them into such privileges; and the Sabines, since on the death of their king Tatius they had raised no faction against Romulus, but suffered him to rule alone, had a reasonable ground for demanding that now the ruler should come from them. They would not admit that they had added themselves as inferiors to superiors, but held rather that their addition had brought the strength of numbers and advanced both parties alike to the dignity of a city. On these questions, then, they were divided into factions.

But in order that their factions might not produce utter confusion from the absence of all authority, now that the administration of affairs was suspended,

¹ Cf. Romulus, xxvii. 3—xxviii. 3.

PLUTARCH'S LIVES

καὶ ἑκατὸν ὄντων αὐτῶν, ἕκαστον ἐν μέρει τοῖς βασιλικοῖς παρασήμοις κοσμούμενον θύειν τε τοῖς θεοῖς τὰ νενομισμένα καὶ χρηματίζειν ἕξ μὲν ὥρας 7 τῆς νυκτός, ἕξ δὲ τῆς ἡμέρας. καὶ γὰρ ἡ διανομὴ τῶν καιρῶν ἑκατέρου πρὸς ἰσότητα καλῶς ἔχειν ἐδόκει τοῖς ἄρχουσι, καὶ πρὸς τὸν δῆμον ἡ μεταβολὴ τῆς ἐξουσίας ἀφαιρεῖν τὸν φθόνον, ὀρῶντα τῆς αὐτῆς ἡμέρας καὶ νυκτός τὸν αὐτὸν ἰδιώτην ἐκ βασιλέως γινόμενον. τὸ δὲ σχῆμα τοῦτο τῆς ἀρχῆς μεσοβασιλείαν Ῥωμαῖοι καλοῦσιν.

III. Ἄλλὰ καίπερ οὕτω πολιτικῶς καὶ ἀνεπαχθῶς ἀφηγεῖσθαι δοκοῦντες, ὑπονοίαις καὶ θορύβοις περιέπιπτον, ὡς μεθιστάντες εἰς ὀλιγαρχίαν τὰ πράγματα καὶ διαπαιδαγωγούντες ἐν σφίσι αὐτοῖς τὴν πολιτείαν, βασιλεύεσθαι δὲ οὐκ ἐθέλοιεν. ἐκ τούτου συνέβησαν ἀμφότεραι πρὸς ἀλλήλας αἱ στάσεις, ὥστε τὴν ἑτέραν ἐκ 2 τῆς ἑτέρας ἀποδείξαι βασιλέα· μάλιστα γὰρ ἂν οὕτως ἐν τε τῷ παρόντι παύσασθαι τὴν φιλονεικίαν, καὶ τὸν ἀποδειχθέντα πρὸς ἀμφοτέρους ἴσον γενέσθαι, τοὺς μὲν ὡς ἐλομένους ἀγαπῶντα, τοῖς δὲ εὖνουν ὄντα διὰ συγγένειαν. ἐπιτρεψάντων δὲ προτέροις τοῖς Ῥωμαίοις τῶν Σαβίνων τὴν αἴρεσιν, ἔδοξε μᾶλλον ἐλέσθαι Σαβίνον αὐτοὺς ἀποδείξαντας ἢ παρασχεῖν Ῥωμαῖον ἐκείνων 3 ἐλομένων. καὶ βουλευσάμενοι καθ' ἑαυτοὺς ἀποδεικνύουσιν ἐκ Σαβίνων Νομᾶν Πομπήλιον, ἄνδρα τῶν μὲν εἰς Ῥώμην ἀφικισμένων οὐ γενόμενον,

NUMA

it was arranged by the senators, who were one hundred and fifty in number,¹ that each of them in his turn should assume the insignia of royalty, make the customary sacrifices to the gods, and transact public business, for the space of six hours by day and six hours by night. This distribution of times seemed well adapted to secure equality between the two factions, and the transfer of power likely to remove all jealousy on the part of the people, when they saw the same man, in the course of a single day and night, become king and then a private citizen again. This form of government the Romans call "interregnum."

III. But although in this way the senators were thought to rule constitutionally and without oppression, they roused suspicions and clamorous charges that they had changed the form of government to an oligarchy, and were holding the state in tutelage among themselves, and were unwilling to be ruled by a king. Therefore it was agreed by both factions that one should appoint a king from the other. This was thought the best way to end their prevailing partisanship, and the king thus appointed would be equally well-disposed to both parties, being gracious to the one as his electors, and friendly to the other because of his kinship with them. Then, as the Sabines gave the Romans their option in the matter, it seemed to them better to have a Sabine king of their own nomination, than to have a Roman made king by the Sabines. They took counsel, therefore, among themselves, and nominated Numa Pompilius from among the Sabines, a man who had not joined the emigrants to Rome,

¹ Cf. Romulus, xx. 1.

γνώριμον δ' οὕτω δι' ἀρετὴν ὄντα πᾶσιν ὥστε τῶν ἐλομένων προθυμότερον ὀνομασθέντος αὐτοῦ δέξασθαι τοὺς Σαβίνους. φράσαντες οὖν τῷ δήμῳ τὰ δεδογμένα, πρέσβεις ἐκπέμπουσι πρὸς τὸν ἄνδρα κοινῇ τοὺς πρωτεύοντας ἀπ' ἀμφοτέρων, ἤκειν δεησομένους καὶ παραλαβεῖν τὴν βασιλείαν.

- 4 Ἦν δὲ πόλεως μὲν ὁ Νομᾶς ἐπιφανοῦς ἐν Σαβίνοις τῆς Κύρεων, ἀφ' ἧς καὶ Κυρίτας Ῥωμαῖοι σφᾶς αὐτοὺς ἅμα τοῖς ἀνακραθεῖσι Σαβίνοις προσηγόρευσαν, υἱὸς δὲ Πόμπωνος,¹ ἄνδρὸς εὐδοκίμου, τεσσάρων ἀδελφῶν νεώτατος· ἡμέρα δὲ γεγωνῶς κατὰ δὴ τινα θείαν τύχην ἐν ἧ τὴν Ῥώμην ἔκτισαν οἱ περὶ Ῥωμύλον· αὕτη δέ
- 5 ἔστι πρὸ δεκαμῶς καλανδῶν Μαίων. φύσει δὲ πρὸς πᾶσαν ἀρετὴν εὖ κεκραμένος τὸ ἦθος, ἔτι μᾶλλον αὐτὸν ἐξημέρωσε διὰ παιδείας καὶ κακοπαθείας καὶ φιλοσοφίας,² οὐ μόνον τὰ λοιδορούμενα πάθη τῆς ψυχῆς, ἀλλὰ καὶ τὴν εὐδοκίμουσαν ἐν τοῖς βαρβάροις βίαν καὶ πλεονεξίαν ἐκποδῶν ποιησάμενος, ἀνδρείαν δὲ ἀληθῆ τὴν ὑπὸ λόγου τῶν ἐπιθυμιῶν ἐν αὐτῷ κάθειρξιν ἡγού-
- 6 μενος. ἐκ δὲ τούτου πᾶσαν οἰκοθεν ἅμα τρυφὴν καὶ πολυτέλειαν ἐξελαύνων, παντὶ δὲ πολίτῃ καὶ ξένῳ χρῆσθαι παρέχων ἑαυτὸν ἄμεμπτον δικαστὴν καὶ σύμβουλον, αὐτὸς δ' ἑαυτῷ σχολάζοντι χρώμενος οὐδὲν πρὸς ἡδυπαθείας καὶ πορισμούς, ἀλλὰ θεραπείαν θεῶν καὶ θεωρίαν διὰ λόγου φύσεώς τε αὐτῶν καὶ δυνάμεως, ὄνομα μέγα καὶ

¹ Πόμπωνος a correction of Πομπωνίου by Sintenis² (critical notes), adopted by Bekker, and now confirmed by S.

² καὶ φιλοσοφίας omitted by Bekker, with C.

NUMA

but was so universally celebrated for his virtues that, when he was nominated, the Sabines accepted him with even greater readiness than those who had chosen him. Accordingly, after making their decision known to the people, the leading senators of both parties were sent as ambassadors to Numa, begging him to come and assume the royal power.

Numa belonged to a conspicuous city of the Sabines called Cures, from which the Romans, together with the incorporated Sabines, took the joint name of Quirites. He was a son of Pompon, an illustrious man, and was the youngest of four brothers. He was born, moreover, by some divine felicity, on the very day when Rome was founded by Romulus, that is, the twenty-first day of April.¹ By natural temperament he was inclined to the practice of every virtue, and he had subdued himself still more by discipline, endurance of hardships, and the study of wisdom. He had thus put away from himself not only the infamous passions of the soul, but also that violence and rapacity which are in such high repute among Barbarians, believing that true bravery consisted in the subjugation of one's passions by reason. On this account he banished from his house all luxury and extravagance, and while citizen and stranger alike found in him a faultless judge and counsellor, he devoted his hours of privacy and leisure, not to enjoyments and money-making, but to the service of the gods, and the rational contemplation of their nature and power. In consequence he had a great

¹ Cf. Romulus, xii. 1.

PLUTARCH'S LIVES

δόξαν εἶχεν, ὥστε καὶ Τάτιον τὸν ἐν Ῥώμῃ
 συμβασιλεύσαντα Ῥωμύλῳ, μιᾶς αὐτῷ θυγατρὸς
 7 οὔσης Τατίας, ποιήσασθαι γαμβρὸν ἐκείνον. οὐ
 μὴν ἐπήρθη γε τῷ γάμῳ μετοικίσασθαι πρὸς τὸν
 πευθερόν, ἀλλ' αὐτοῦ περιέπων πατέρα γηραιὸν
 ἐν Σαβίνοις ὑπέμενευ, ἅμα καὶ τῆς Τατίας ἐλομέ-νης τὴν τοῦ ἀνδρὸς ἰδιωτεύοντος ἡσυχίαν πρὸ τῆς
 ἐν Ῥώμῃ διὰ τὸν πατέρα τιμῆς καὶ δόξης. αὕτη
 μὲν οὖν λέγεται τρίτῳ καὶ δεκάτῳ μετὰ τὸν
 γάμον ἔτει τελευτῆσαι.

IV. Ὁ δὲ Νομᾶς ἐκλείπων τὰς ἐν ἄστει διατριβὰς ἀγραυλεῖν τὰ πολλὰ καὶ πλανᾶσθαι μόνος
 ἤθελεν, ἐν ἄλσεσι θεῶν καὶ λειμῶσιν ἱεροῖς καὶ
 τόποις ἐρήμοις ποιούμενος τὴν δίαιταν. ὅθεν 62
 οὐχ ἤκιστα τὴν ἀρχὴν ὁ περὶ τῆς θεᾶς ἔλαβε
 λόγος, ὡς ἄρα Νομᾶς ἐκείνος οὐκ ἀδημονία τινὶ
 ψυχῆς καὶ πλάνῃ τὸν μετὰ ἀνθρώπων ἀπολέ-
 2 λοιπε βίον, ἀλλὰ σεμνοτέρας γεγευμένος ὀμιλίας
 καὶ γάμων θείων ἠξιωμένος, Ἡγερίᾳ δαίμονι
 συνὼν ἐρώση καὶ συνδιδαιτώμενος, εὐδαίμων ἀνὴρ
 καὶ τὰ θεία πεπνυμένος γέγονεν. ὅτι μὲν οὖν
 ταῦτα πολλοῖς τῶν πάνυ παλαιῶν μύθων ἔοικεν,
 οὓς οἱ Φρύγες τε περὶ Ἄττεω καὶ Βιθυνοὶ περὶ Ἡροδότου καὶ περὶ Ἐνδυμίωνος Ἀρκάδες ἄλλοι τε περὶ ἄλλων εὐδαιμόνων δὴ τινων καὶ θεοφιλῶν
 γενέσθαι δοκούντων παραλαβόντες ἠγάπησαν, 3 οὐκ ἄδηλόν ἐστι. καὶ που λόγον ἔχει τὸν θεόν,
 οὐ φίλιππον οὐδὲ φίλορριν, ἀλλὰ φιλάνθρωπον
 ὄντα, τοῖς διαφερόντως ἀγαθοῖς ἐθέλειν συνεῖναι, καὶ μὴ δυσχεραίνειν μηδὲ ἀτιμάζειν ἀνδρὸς ὀσίου 316

NUMA

name and fame, so that Tatius, the royal colleague of Romulus at Rome, made him the husband of his only daughter, Tatia. He was not, however, so exalted by his marriage as to go to dwell with his royal father-in-law, but remained among the Sabines ministering to his aged father. Tatia, too, preferred the quiet life which her husband led as a private citizen to the honour and fame which she had enjoyed at Rome because of her father. But she died, as we are told, in the thirteenth year after her marriage.

IV. Then Numa, forsaking the ways of city folk, determined to live for the most part in country places, and to wander there alone, passing his days in groves of the gods, sacred meadows, and solitudes. This, more than anything else, gave rise to the story about his goddess. It was not, so the story ran, from any distress or aberration of spirit that he forsook the ways of men, but he had tasted the joy of more august companionship and had been honoured with a celestial marriage; the goddess Egeria loved him and bestowed herself upon him, and it was his communion with her that gave him a life of blessedness and a wisdom more than human. However, that this story resembles many of the very ancient tales which the Phrygians have received and cherished concerning Attis, the Bithynians concerning Herodotus, the Arcadians concerning Endymion, and other peoples concerning other mortals who were thought to have achieved a life of blessedness in the love of the gods, is quite evident. And there is some reason in supposing that Deity, who is not a lover of horses or birds, but a lover of men, should be willing to consort with men of superlative goodness, and should not dislike or disdain the company of a wise and holy καὶ σώφρονος ὀμιλίαν. ὡς δὲ καὶ σώματος ἀνθρωπίνου καὶ ὥρας ἐστὶ τις θεῶ καὶ δαίμονι κοινωνία καὶ χάρις, ἔργον ἤδη καὶ τοῦτο πεισθῆναι.

PLUTARCH'S LIVES

- 4 Καίτοι δοκοῦσιν οὐκ ἀπιθάνως Αἰγύπτιοι διαιρεῖν ὡς γυναικὶ μὲν οὐκ ἀδύνατον πνεῦμα πλησιάσαι θεοῦ καὶ τινὰς ἐντεκεῖν ἀρχὰς γενέσεως, ἀνδρὶ δὲ οὐκ ἔστι σύμμικτος πρὸς θεὸν οὐδὲ ὀμιλία σώματος. ἀγνοοῦσι δὲ ὅτι τὸ μὴ γινόμενον ᾧ μίγνυται τὴν ἴσην ἀνταποδίδωσι κοινωνίαν. οὐ μὴν ἀλλὰ φιλίαν γε πρὸς ἄνθρωπον εἶναι θεῶ καὶ τὸν ἐπὶ ταύτῃ λεγόμενον ἔρωτα καὶ φνόμενον εἰς ἐπιμέλειαν ἠθους καὶ ἀρετῆς, πρέπον ἂν εἴη.
- 5 καὶ οὐ πλημμελοῦσιν οἱ τὸν Φόρβαντα καὶ τὸν Ἰάκινθον καὶ τὸν Ἄδμητον ἐρωμένους Ἀπόλλωνος γεγονέναι μυθολογοῦντες, ὥσπερ αὐτὸ καὶ τὸν Σικυῶνιον Ἰππόλυτον, ᾧ δὴ καὶ φασιν, ὁσάκις τύχοι διαπλέων εἰς Κίρραν ἐκ Σικυῶνος, τὴν Πυθίαν, οἷον αἰσθανομένου τοῦ θεοῦ καὶ χαίροντος, ἀποθεσπίζειν τότε τὸ ἠρῶν.

Καὶ δ' αὖθ' Ἰππολύτοιο φίλον κἄρα εἰς ἄλλα βαίνει.

- 6 Πινδάρου δὲ καὶ τῶν μελῶν ἐραστὴν γενέσθαι τὸν Πᾶνα μυθολογοῦσιν. ἀπέδωκε δέ τινα τιμὴν καὶ Ἀρχιλόφῳ καὶ Ἡσιόδῳ τελευτήσασιν διὰ τὰς Μούσας τὸ δαιμόνιον. Σοφοκλεῖ δὲ καὶ ζῶντι

NUMA

man. But that an immortal god should take carnal pleasure in a mortal body and its beauty, this, surely, is hard to believe.

And yet the Aegyptians make a distinction here which is thought plausible, namely, that while a woman can be approached by a divine spirit and made pregnant, there is no such thing as carnal intercourse and communion between a man and a divinity. But they lose sight of the fact that intercourse is a reciprocal matter, and that both parties to it enter into a like communion. However, that a god should have affection for a man, and a so-called love which is based upon affection, and takes the form of solicitude for his character and his virtue, is fit and proper. And therefore it is no mistake when the ancient poets tell their tales of the love Apollo bore Phorbas, Hyacinthus, and Admetus, as well as the Sicyonian Hippolytus also, of whom it is said, that, as often as he set out to sail from Sicyon to Cirrha, the Pythian priestess, as though the god knew of his coming and rejoiced thereat, chanted this prophetic verse:—

“Lo, once more doth beloved Hippolytus hither
make voyage.”

There is a legend, too, that Pan became enamoured of Pindar and his verses. And the divine powers bestowed signal honour on Archilochus and Hesiod after their deaths, for the sake of the Muses.¹ Again,

¹ The Delphian oracle pronounced a curse on the man who killed Archilochus, because “he had slain the servant of the Muses.” And the same oracle told the people of Orchomenus, when a plague had fallen upon them, that “the only remedy was to bring back the bones of Hesiod from the land of Naupactus to the land of Orchomenus.”

PLUTARCH'S LIVES

τὸν Ἀσκληπιὸν ἐπιξενωθῆναι λόγος ἐστὶ πολλὰ
 μέχρι δεῦρο διασώζων τεκμήρια, καὶ τελευτήσαντι
 τυχεῖν ταφῆς ἄλλος θεός, ὡς λέγεται, παρέσχευ.
 7 ἄρα οὖν ἄξιόν ἐστι, ταῦτα συγχωροῦντας ἐπὶ
 τούτων, ἀπιστεῖν εἰ Ζαλεύκῳ καὶ Μίνῳ καὶ Ζωροάστρῃ καὶ Νομᾷ καὶ Λυκούργῳ βασιλείας
 κυβερνώσι καὶ πολιτείας διακοσμοῦσιν· εἰς τὸ
 αὐτὸ ἐφοῖτα τὸ δαιμόνιον, ἢ τούτοις μὲν εἰκὸς ἐστὶ
 καὶ σπουδάζοντας θεοὺς ὁμιλεῖν ἐπὶ διδασκαλία
 καὶ παραινέσει τῶν βελτίστων, ποιηταῖς δὲ καὶ
 λυρικοῖς μινυρίζουσιν, εἴπερ ἄρα, χρῆσθαι παί-
 8 ζοντας; εἰ δὲ λέγει τις ἄλλως, κατὰ Βακχυλίδην, “Πλατεῖα κέλευθος.” οὐδὲ γὰρ ἄτερος λόγος ἔχει
 τι φαῦλον, ὃν περὶ Λυκούργου καὶ Νομᾷ καὶ
 τοιούτων ἄλλων ἀνδρῶν λέγουσιν, ὡς δυσκάθεκτα
 καὶ δυσάρεστα πλήθη χειρούμενοι καὶ μεγάλας ἐπιφέρουντες ταῖς πολιτείαις καινοτομίας, προσε-ποιήσαντο τὴν ἀπὸ τοῦ θεοῦ δόξαν, αὐτοῖς ἐκεί-νοις πρὸς οὓς ἐσχηματίζοντο σωτήριον οὔσαν.

V. Ἄλλὰ γὰρ ἔτος ἤδη διατελοῦντι τῷ Νομᾷ
 τεσσαρακοστὸν ἦκον ἀπὸ Ῥώμης οἱ πρέσβεις παρακαλοῦντες ἐπὶ τὴν βασιλείαν. τοὺς δὲ λό-γους ἐποίησατο Πρόκλος καὶ Οὐέλεσος, ὧν πρότερον ἐπίδοξος ἦν ὁ δῆμος αἰρήσεσθαι τὸν ἕτερον
 βασιλέα, Πρόκλῳ μὲν τῶν Ῥωμύλου λαῶν, Οὐελέσῳ δὲ τῶν Τατίου μάλιστα προσεχόντων.
 οὔτοι μὲν οὖν βραχέα διελέχθησαν, οἰόμενοι τῷ

NUMA

there is a story, still well attested, that Sophocles, during his life, was blessed with the friendship of Aesculapius, and that when he died, another deity procured him fitting burial.¹ Is it worth while, then, if we concede these instances of divine favour, to disbelieve that Zaleucus, Minos, Zoroaster, Numa, and Lycurgus, who piloted kingdoms and formulated constitutions, had frequent audience of the Deity? Is it not likely, rather, that the gods are in earnest when they hold converse with such men as these, in order to instruct and advise them in the highest and best way, but use poets and warbling singers, if at all, for their own diversion? However, if any one is otherwise minded, I say with Bacchylides, "Broad is the way."² Indeed there is no absurdity in the other account which is given of Lycurgus and Numa and their like, namely, that since they were managing headstrong and captious multitudes, and introducing great innovations in modes of government, they pretended to get a sanction from the god, which sanction was the salvation of the very ones against whom it was contrived.

V. But to resume the story, Numa was already completing his fortieth year when the embassy came from Rome inviting him to take the throne. The speakers were Proculus and Velesus, one or the other of whom the people was expected to choose as their king, Proculus being the favourite of the people of Romulus, and Velesus of the people of Tattius. These speakers, then, were brief, supposing

¹ Dionysus is said to have appeared to Lysander and ordered him to allow Sophocles to be buried in the tomb of his fathers, on the road to Deceleia, then occupied by the Lacedaemonian army. See Pausanias, i. 21, 1, with Frazer's note.

² Fragment 29 (Jebb, Bacchylides, p. 423).

- 2 Νομᾶ τὴν συντυχίαν ἀσπαζομένῳ γεγονέναι ἦν δ' οὐ μικρόν, ὡς ἔοικεν, ἔργον, ἀλλὰ καὶ λόγων πολλῶν καὶ δεήσεως τὸ πείσαι καὶ μεταστῆσαι γνώμην ἀνδρὸς ἐν ἡσυχίᾳ καὶ εἰρήνῃ βεβιωκότος εἰς ἀρχὴν πόλεως τρόπον τινὰ καὶ γεγενημένης¹ πολέμου καὶ συνηυξημένης. ἔλεγεν οὖν τοῦ τε 63 πατρὸς αὐτοῦ παρόντος καὶ Μαρκίου, τῶν συγγενῶν ἐνός, ὡς “Πᾶσα μὲν ἀνθρωπίνου βίου μεταβολὴ σφαλερόν· ᾧ δὲ μῆτ' ἀπεστί τι τῶν ἱκανῶν μῆτε μεμπτόν ἐστι τῶν παρόντων, τοῦτον οὐδὲν ἄλλο πλὴν ἄνοια μετακοσμεῖ καὶ μεθίστησιν ἐκ τῶν συνήθων· οἷς κὰν εἰ μηδὲν ἕτερον προσείη,
- 3 τῷ βεβαιοτέρῳ διαφέρει τῶν ἀδήλων. ἀλλ' οὐδὲ ἀδηλα τὰ τῆς βασιλείας τοῖς Ῥωμύλου τεκμαιρομένῳ παθήμασιν, ὡς πονηρὰν μὲν αὐτὸς ἔλαβε δόξαν ἐπιβουλεῦσαι τῷ συνάρχοντι Τατίῳ, πονηρὰν δὲ τοῖς ὁμοτίμοις περιεποίησεν ὡς ἀνηρημένος ὑπ' αὐτῶν. καίτοι Ῥωμύλον μὲν οὗτοι παῖδα θεῶν ὑμνοῦσι φήμαις, καὶ τροφήν τινα δαιμόνιον αὐτοῦ καὶ σωτηρίαν ἀπιστον ἔτι νηπίου λέγουσιν· ἐμοὶ δὲ καὶ γένος θνητόν ἐστι καὶ τροφή καὶ παιδευσίς ὑπ' ἀνθρώπων ὧν οὐκ
- 4 ἀγνοεῖτε γεγενημένη· τὰ δ' ἐπαινούμενα τοῦ τρόπου βασιλεύειν πόρρω μέλλοντος ἀνδρὸς, ἡσυχία τε πολλὴ καὶ διατριβὴ περὶ λόγους ἀπράγμονας, ὃ τε δεινὸς οὗτος καὶ σύντροφος εἰρήνης ἔρως καὶ πραγμάτων ἀπολέμων καὶ ἀνθρώπων ἐπιτιμῇ θεῶν καὶ φιλοφροσύναις εἰς τὸ αὐτὸ συνιόντων, τὰ δὲ ἄλλα καθ' ἑαυτοὺς γεωργούντων ἢ

¹ γεγενημένης Bekker has γεγεννημένης (born), after Coraës.

NÚMA

that Numa would welcome his good fortune. It was, however, no slight task, but one requiring much argument and entreaty, to persuade and induce a man who had lived in peace and quiet, to accept the government of a city which owed its existence and growth, in a fashion, to war. His reply, therefore, in the presence of his father and one of his kinsmen named Marcius, was as follows. "Every change in a man's life is perilous; but when a man knows no lack, and has no fault to find with his present lot, nothing short of madness can change his purposes and remove him from his wonted course of life, which, even though it have no other advantage, is at least fixed and secure, and therefore better than one which is all uncertain. But the lot of one who becomes your king cannot even be called uncertain, judging from the experience of Romulus, since he himself was accused of basely plotting against his colleague Tatius, and involved the patricians in the charge of having basely put their king out of the way. And yet those who bring these accusations laud Romulus as a child of the gods, and tell how he was preserved in an incredible way and fed in a miraculous manner when he was still an infant. But I am of mortal birth, and I was nourished and trained by men whom you know. Moreover, the very traits in my disposition which are commended, are far from marking a man destined to be a king, namely, my great love of retirement, my devotion to studies inconsistent with the usual activities of men, and my well-known strong and inveterate love of peace, of unwarlike occupations, and of men who come together only for the worship of the gods and for friendly intercourse, but who otherwise live by themselves as

PLUTARCH'S LIVES

5 νεμόντων. ὑμῖν δέ, ὦ Ῥωμαῖοι, πολλοὺς μὲν ἴσως ἀβουλήτους ἀπολέλοιπε πολέμους Ῥωμύλος, οἷς ἀντερείδοντας ἢ πόλις ἐμπείρου δεῖται βασιλέως καὶ ἀκμάζοντος· πολλὴ δὲ καὶ συνήθεια καὶ προθυμία δι' εὐτυχίαν γέγονε τῷ δήμῳ, καὶ οὐδένα λέληθεν αὔξασθαι καὶ κρατεῖν ἐτέρων βουλόμενος, ὥστε καὶ γέλωσ ἂν εἶη τὰμά, θεραπεύοντος θεοῦ, καὶ δίκην τιμᾶν, βίαν δὲ καὶ πόλεμον ἐχθαίρειν διδάσκοντος πόλιν στρατηλάτου μᾶλλον ἢ βασιλέως δεομένην.”

VI. Τοιούτοις λόγοις ἀφοσιούμενου τὴν βασιλείαν τοῦ ἀνδρός, οἷ τε Ῥωμαῖοι πᾶσαν ἐποιοῦντο σπουδὴν ἀντιβολουῦντες καὶ δεόμενοι μὴ σφᾶς αὐθις εἰς στάσιν ἐμβαλεῖν καὶ πόλεμον ἐμφύλιον, οὐκ ὄντος ἐτέρου πρὸς ὃν ἀμφότεροι συννεύσουσιν αἱ στάσεις, ὅ τε πατὴρ καὶ ὁ Μάρκιος ἐκείνων μεταστάντων ἰδίᾳ προσκείμενοι τὸν Νομᾶν ἔπει-
 2 θον δέχεσθαι μέγα καὶ θεῖον δῶρον. “Εἰ δὲ αὐτὸς οὔτε πλούτου δέη δι' αὐτάρκειαν οὔτε δόξαν ἀρχῆς καὶ δυναστείας ἐζήλωκας κρείσσονα τὴν ἀπ' ἀρετῆς ἔχων, ἀλλ' ὑπηρεσίαν γε θεοῦ τὸ βασιλεύειν ἠγούμενος, ὅς γε ἀνίστησι καὶ οὐκ ἐᾷ κείσθαι καὶ ἀργεῖν τὴν ἐν σοὶ τοσαύτην δικαιοσύνην, μὴ φεῦγε μηδὲ ἀποδίδρασκε τὴν ἀρχήν, ἀνδρὶ φρονίμῳ πράξεων καλῶν καὶ μεγάλων οὐσαν χώραν, ἐν ἣ καὶ θεραπείαι θεῶν μεγαλοπρεπεῖς εἰσι καὶ πρὸς εὐσέβειαν ἀνθρώπων ἡμερώσεις ῥᾶστα καὶ τάχιστα μετακοσμουμένων ὑπὸ

NUMA

tillers of the soil or herdsmen. Whereas, unto you, O Romans, whether you want them or not, Romulus has bequeathed many wars, and to make head against these the city needs a king with a warrior's experience and strength. Besides, the people has become much accustomed to war, and eager for it because of their successes, and no one is blind to their desire for growth by conquest. I should therefore become a laughing-stock if I sought to serve the gods, and taught men to honour justice and hate violence and war, in a city which desires a leader of its armies rather than a king."

VI. With such words did Numa decline the kingdom. Then the Romans put forth every effort to meet his objections, and begged him not to plunge them again into faction and civil war, since there was none other on whom both parties could unite. His father also and Marcius, when the envoys had withdrawn, beset him privately, and tried to persuade him to accept so great a gift or the gods. "Even though," they said, "thou neither desirest wealth for thyself, because thou hast enough, nor covetest the fame which comes from authority and power, because thou hast the greater fame which comes from virtue, yet consider that the work of a true king is a service rendered to God, who now rouses up and refuses to leave dormant and inactive the great righteousness which is within thee. Do not, therefore, avoid nor flee from this office, which a wise man will regard as a field for great and noble actions, where the gods are honoured with magnificent worship, and the hearts of men are easily and quickly softened and inclined towards piety, through the moulding influence of their ruler. This people

3 τοῦ κρατοῦντος. οὗτοι καὶ Τάτιον ἔστερξαν ἔπηλυν ἡγεμόνα, καὶ τὴν Ῥωμύλου μνήμην ἀπο-θεοῦσι ταῖς τιμαῖς. τίς δὲ οἶδεν εἰ καὶ νικῶντι
 δήμῳ πολέμου κόρος ἐστί, καὶ μεστοὶ θριάμβων
 καὶ λαφύρων γεγονότες ἡγεμόνα πρᾶον καὶ δίκης
 ἑταῖρον ἐπ' εὐνομία καὶ εἰρήνῃ ποθοῦσιν; εἰ δὲ δὴ
 καὶ παντάπασιν ἀκρατῶς ἔχουσι καὶ μανικῶς
 πρὸς πόλεμον, ἂρ' οὐχὶ βέλτιον ἀλλαχόσε τὴν
 ὄρμην αὐτῶν τρέπειν, διὰ χειρὸς ἔχοντα τὰς
 ἡνίας, τῇ δὲ πατρίδι καὶ παντὶ τῷ Σαβίνων ἔθνει
 σύνδεσμον εὐνοίας καὶ φιλίας πρὸς πόλιν ἀκμά-4 ζουσαν καὶ δυνατὴν γενέσθαι;" τούτοις προσῆν, ὡς λέγεται, σημεῖά τε χρηστὰ καὶ σπουδὴ τῶν
 πολιτῶν καὶ ζῆλος, ὡς ἐπύθοντο τὴν πρεσβείαν, δεομένων βαδίζειν καὶ παραλαμβάνειν τὴν βασι-λείαν ἐπὶ κοινωμία καὶ συγκράσει τῶν πολιτῶν.¹

VII. Ὡς οὖν ἐδέδοκτο, θύσας τοῖς θεοῖς προἦγεν εἰς τὴν Ῥώμην. ἀπήντα δὲ ἡ βουλὴ καὶ ὁ
 δῆμος ἔρωτι θαυμαστῷ τοῦ ἀνδρός, εὐφημίαι τε
 πρέπουσαι γυναικῶν ἐγίνοντο καὶ θυσίαι πρὸς 64
 ἱεροῖς καὶ χαρὰ πάντων, ὥσπερ οὐ βασιλέα τῆς
 πόλεως, ἀλλὰ βασιλείαν δεχομένης. ἐπεὶ δὲ εἰς
 τὴν ἀγορὰν κατέστησαν, ὁ μὲν ταῖς ὥραις ἐκείναις συνειληχῶς μεσοβασιλεὺς Σπόριος Οὐέτιος ψῆ-φον ἐπέδωκε τοῖς πολίταις καὶ πάντες ἤνεγκαν, προσφερομένων δ' αὐτῷ τῶν βασιλικῶν παρα-
 σήμων ἐπισχεῖν κελεύσας ἔφη δεῖσθαι καὶ θεοῦ
 2 τὴν βασιλείαν ἐμπεδοῦντος αὐτῷ. παραλαβὼν

¹ πολιτῶν MSS. and edd., including Sintenis¹. Bekker corrects to πόλεων (cities), and is followed by Sintenis².

NUMA

loved Tatius, though he was a foreign prince, and they pay divine honours to the memory of Romulus. And who knows but that the people, even though victorious, is sated with war, and, now that it is glutted with triumphs and spoils, is desirous of a gentle prince, who is a friend of justice, and will lead them in the paths of order and peace? But if, indeed, they are altogether intemperate and mad in their desire for war, then were it not better that thou, holding the reins of government in thy hand, shouldst turn their eager course another way, and that thy native city and the whole Sabine nation should have in thee a bond of goodwill and friendship with a vigorous and powerful city?" These appeals were strengthened, we are told, by auspicious omens and by the zealous ardour of his fellow-citizens, who, when they learned of the embassy from Rome, begged him to return with it and assume the royal power there, in order to unite and blend together the citizens.

VII. Numa therefore decided to yield, and after sacrificing to the gods, set out for Rome. The senate and people met him on his way, filled with a wondrous love of the man; women welcomed him with fitting cries of joy; sacrifices were offered in the temples, and joy was universal, as if the city were receiving, not a king, but a kingdom. When they were come down into the forum, Spurius Vettius, whose lot it was to be "interrex"¹ at that hour, called for a vote of the citizens, and all voted for Numa. But when the insignia of royalty were brought to him, he bade the people pause, and said his authority must first be ratified by Heaven. Then

¹ Cf. chapter ii. 7.

- δὲ μάντις καὶ ἱερεῖς ἀνέβαινον εἰς τὸ Καπιτώλιον· Ταρπήϊον αὐτὸ λόφον οἱ τότε Ῥωμαῖοι προσηγόρευον. ἐνταῦθα τῶν μάντεων ὁ πρωτεύων τὸν μὲν εἰς μεσημβρίαν τρέψας ἐγκεκαλυμμένον, αὐτὸς δὲ παραστὰς ἐξόπισθεν καὶ τῇ δεξιᾷ τῆς κεφαλῆς ἐφαπτόμενος αὐτοῦ κατεύξατο, καὶ περιεσκόπει τὰ παρὰ τῶν θεῶν ἐν οἰωνοῖς ἢ συμβόλοις προφαινόμενα, πανταχόσε τὰς ὄψεις
- 3 περιφέρων. σιγῇ δὲ ἄπιστος ἐν πλήθει τοσοῦτω τὴν ἀγορὰν κατεῖχε παραδοκούντων καὶ συναιρουμένων τῷ μέλλοντι, μέχρι οὐ προῦφάνησαν ὄρνιθες ἀγαθοὶ καὶ δεξιοὶ ἐπέτρεψαν.¹ οὕτω δὲ τὴν βασιλικὴν ἀναλαβὼν ἐσθῆτα κατέβαινε Νομάς εἰς τὸ πλῆθος ἀπὸ τῆς ἄκρας. τότε δὲ καὶ φωναὶ καὶ δεξιώσεις ἦσαν ὡς εὐσεβέστατον καὶ θεοφιλέστατον δεχομένων.
- 4 Παραλαβὼν δὲ τὴν ἀρχὴν πρῶτον μὲν τὸ τῶν τριακοσίων σύστημα διέλυσε, οὗς Ῥωμύλος ἔχων αἰεὶ περὶ τὸ σῶμα Κέλερας προσηγόρευσε, ὅπερ ἐστὶ ταχεῖς· οὔτε γὰρ ἀπιστεῖν πιστεύουσιν οὔτε βασιλεύειν ἀπιστούντων ἤξει. δεύτερον δὲ τοῖς οὖσιν ἱερεῦσι Διὸς καὶ Ἄρεως τρίτον Ῥωμύλου προσκατέστησεν, ὃν Φλάμινα Κυρινάλιον ὠνόμασεν.
- 5 ἐκάλουν δὲ καὶ τοὺς προγενεστέρους Φλάμινας ἀπὸ τῶν περικρανίων πύλων οὗς περὶ ταῖς κεφαλαῖς φοροῦσι, πιλαμένας τινὰς ὄντας, ὡς ἱστοροῦσι, τῶν Ἑλληνικῶν ὀνομάτων τότε μᾶλλον ἢ νῦν τοῖς Λατίνοις ἀνακεκραμένων. καὶ γὰρ ἅς ἐφόρουσαν οἱ ἱερεῖς λαίνας ὁ taking with him the augurs and priests, he ascended the Capitol, which the Romans of that time called the Tarpeian Hill. There the chief of the augurs turned the veiled head of Numa towards the south, while he himself, standing behind him, and laying the right hand on his head, prayed aloud, and turned his eyes in all directions to observe whatever birds or other omens might be sent from the gods. Then an incredible silence fell upon the vast multitude in the forum, who watched in eager suspense for the issue, until at last auspicious birds appeared and approached the scene on the right. Then Numa put on his royal robes and went down from the citadel to the multitude, where he was received with glad cries of welcome as the most pious of men and most beloved of the gods.

¹ καὶ δεξιοὶ ἐπέτρεψαν with S: καὶ δεξιοὶ καὶ ἐπέτρεψαν.

NUMA

His first measure on assuming the government was to disband the body of three hundred men that Romulus always kept about his person, and called "Celeres" (that is, *swift ones*¹); for he would not consent to distrust those who trusted him, nor to reign over those who distrusted him. His second measure was to add to the two priests of Jupiter and Mars a third priest of Romulus, whom he called the Flamen Quirinalis. Now before this time the Romans called their priests "flamines," from the close-fitting "piloï," or caps, which they wear upon their heads, and which have the longer name of "pilamenai," as we are told, there being more Greek words mingled with the Latin at that time than now.² Thus also the name "laena," which the Romans

¹ Cf. Romulus, xxvi. 2.

² Cf. Romulus, xv. 3. Plutarch does not hesitate to derive the Latin "flamines" from the doubtful Greek "pilamenai."

Ἰόβας χλαίνας φησὶν εἶναι, καὶ τὸν ὑπηρετοῦντα τῷ ἱερεί τῷ Διὸς ἀμφιθαλῆ παῖδα λέγεσθαι Κάμιλλον, ὡς καὶ τὸν Ἑρμῆν οὕτως ἔνιοι τῶν Ἑλλήνων Κάμιλλον¹ ἀπὸ τῆς διακονίας προσηγόρευον.

VIII. Ταῦτα δὲ ὁ Νομᾶς ἐπ' εὐνοίᾳ καὶ χάριτι τοῦ δήμου πολιτευσάμενος εὐθύς ἐπεχείρει τὴν πόλιν, ὥσπερ σίδηρον, ἐκ σκληρᾶς καὶ πολεμικῆς μαλακώτεραν ποιῆσαι καὶ δικαιοτέραν. ἀτεχνῶς γὰρ ἦν Πλάτων ἀποκαλεῖ φλεγμαίνουσαν πόλιν ἐκείνη τότε ἦν, συστάσα μὲν εὐθύς ἐξ ἀρχῆς τύλμη τινὶ καὶ παραβόλῳ θρασύτητι τῶν θραυστάτων καὶ μαχιμωτάτων ἐκεῖ παντα-

2 χόθεν ὡσαμένων, ταῖς δὲ πολλαῖς στρατείαις καὶ τοῖς συνεχέσι πολέμοις τροφῇ χρησαμένη καὶ αὐξήσει τῆς δυνάμεως, καὶ καθάπερ τὰ καταπηγνύμενα τῷ σείεσθαι μᾶλλον ἐδράζεται, ῥώνυσθαι δοκοῦσα διὰ τῶν κινδύνων. οὕτω δὲ μετέωρον καὶ τετραχυμένον δῆμον οὐ μικρᾶς οὐδὲ φαύλης οἰόμενος εἶναι πραγματείας μεταχειρίσασθαι καὶ μετακοσμήσαι πρὸς εἰρήνην, ἐπηγά-

3 γετο τὴν ἀπὸ τῶν θεῶν βοήθειαν, τὰ μὲν πολλὰ θυσίαις καὶ πομπαῖς καὶ χορείαις, ἃς αὐτὸς ὠργίασε καὶ κατέστησεν, ἅμα σεμνότητι διαγωγῆν ἐπίχαριν καὶ φιλάνθρωπον ἡδονὴν ἐχούσαις, δημαγωγῶν καὶ τιθασέων τὸ θυμοειδὲς καὶ φιλοπόλεμον· ἔστι δ' ὅτε καὶ φόβους τινὰς ἀπαγγέλλων παρὰ τοῦ θεοῦ καὶ φάσματα δαιμόνων ἀλλόκοτα καὶ φωνὰς οὐκ εὐμενεῖς, ἐδούλου καὶ

¹ Κάμιλλον deleted by Bekker; corrected to Καδμίλον by Sintenis².

NUMA

give to the priestly mantle, Juba says is the same as the Greek "chlaina"; and that the name Camillus, which the Romans give to the boy with both parents living who attends upon the priest of Jupiter, is the same as that which some of the Greeks give to Hermes, from his office of attendant.

VIII. After taking such measures to secure the goodwill and favour of the people, Numa straightway attempted to soften the city, as iron is softened in the fire, and change its harsh and warlike temper into one of greater gentleness and justice. For if a city was ever in what Plato calls¹ a "feverish" state, Rome certainly was at that time. It was brought into being at the very outset by the excessive daring and reckless courage of the boldest and most warlike spirits, who forced their way thither from all parts, and in its many expeditions and its continuous wars it found nourishment and increase of its power; and just as what is planted in the earth gets a firmer seat the more it is shaken, so Rome seemed to be made strong by its very perils. And therefore Numa, judging it to be no slight or trivial undertaking to mollify and newly fashion for peace so presumptuous and stubborn a people, called in the gods to aid and assist him. It was for the most part by sacrifices, processions, and religious dances, which he himself appointed and conducted, and which mingled with their solemnity a diversion full of charm and a beneficent pleasure, that he won the people's favour and tamed their fierce and warlike tempers. At times, also, by heralding to them vague terrors from the god, strange apparitions of divine beings and threatening voices, he would subdue and humble

¹ Cf. Lycurgus, v. 6.

PLUTARCH'S LIVES

ταπεινήν ἐποιεῖ τὴν διάνοιαν αὐτῶν ὑπὸ δεισιδαι-4 μούϊας. ἐξ ὧν καὶ μάλιστα λόγον ἔσχευ ἡ σοφία καὶ ἡ παιδείυς τοῦ ἀνδρός, ὡς Πυθαγόρα
 συγγεγονότος. μέγα γὰρ ἦν μέρος, ὡς ἐκείνῳ τῆς φιλοσοφίας, καὶ τούτῳ τῆς πολιτείας ἡ περὶ τὸ
 θεῖον ἀγιστεία¹ καὶ διατριβή. λέγεται δὲ καὶ
 τὸν ἔξωθεν ὄγκον καὶ σχηματισμὸν ἀπὸ τῆς
 5 αὐτῆς Πυθαγόρα διανοίας περιβαλέσθαι. καὶ 65
 γὰρ ἐκεῖνος ἀετόν τε δοκεῖ πρᾶθναι, φωναῖς τισιν
 ἐπιστήσας καὶ ἀταγαγῶν ὑπεριπτάμενον, τὸν τε
 μηρὸν ὑποφῆναι χρυσοῦν Ὀλυμπίασι διαπορευόμενος τὴν πανήγυριν· ἄλλας τε τερατώδεις μη-χανὰς αὐτοῦ καὶ πράξεις ἀναγγέλλουσιν, ἐφ' αἷς
 καὶ Τίμων ὁ Φλιάσιος ἔγραψε·

Πυθαγόρην δὲ γόητας ἀποκλίνουτ' ἐπὶ δόξας
 θήρη ἐπ' ἀνθρώπων, σεμνηγορίας ὀαριστήν·

6 τῷ δὲ Νομᾷ δρᾶμα θεᾶς τινος ἢ νύμφης ὀρείας
 ἔρωσ ἦν καὶ συνουσία πρὸς αὐτὸν ἀπόρρητος, ὥσπερ εἶρηται, καὶ κοιναὶ μετὰ Μουσῶν δια-
 τριβαί. τὰ γὰρ πλεῖστα τῶν μαντευμάτων εἰς Μούσας ἀνήγε, καὶ μίαν Μούσαν ἰδίως καὶ
 διαφερόντως ἐδίδαξε σέβεσθαι τοὺς Ῥωμαίους, Τακίταν προσαγορεύσας, οἷον σιωπηλὴν ἢ ἐνεάν
 ὅπερ εἶναι δοκεῖ τὴν Πυθαγόρειον ἀπομνημονεύοντος ἐχεμυθίαν καὶ τιμῶντος.

7 Ἔστι δὲ καὶ τὰ περὶ τῶν ἀφιδρυμάτων νομοθετήματα παντάπασιν ἀδελφὰ τῶν Πυθαγόρου

¹ ἀγιστεία Bryan's correction, after Amyot, adopted by Coraës and Bekker: ἀγχιστεία (relationship).

NUMA

their minds by means of superstitious fears. This was the chief reason why Numa's wisdom and culture were said to have been due to his intimacy with Pythagoras; for in the philosophy of the one, and in the civil polity of the other, religious services and occupations have a large place. It is said also that the solemnity of his outward demeanour was adopted by him because he shared the feelings of Pythagoras about it. That philosopher, indeed, is thought to have tamed an eagle, which he stopped by certain cries of his, and brought down from his lofty flight; also to have disclosed his golden thigh as he passed through the assembled throngs at Olympia. And we have reports of other devices and performances of his which savoured of the marvellous, regarding which Timon the Phliasian wrote:—

“Down to a juggler's level he sinks with his cheating devices, Laying his nets for men, Pythagoras, lover of bombast.”

In like manner Numa's fiction was the love which a certain goddess or mountain nymph bore him, and her secret meetings with him, as already mentioned,¹ and his familiar converse with the Muses. For he ascribed the greater part of his oracular teachings to the Muses, and he taught the Romans to pay especial honours to one Muse in particular, whom he called Tacita, that is, the silent, or speechless one; thereby perhaps handing on and honouring the Pythagorean precept of silence.

Furthermore, his ordinances concerning images are altogether in harmony with the doctrines of Chapter iv. 1-2.

PLUTARCH'S LIVES

δογμάτων. οὔτε γὰρ ἐκεῖνος αἰσθητὸν ἢ παθητὸν, ἀόρατον δὲ καὶ ἄκτιστον¹ καὶ νοητὸν ὑπελάμβανεν εἶναι τὸ πρῶτον, οὗτός τε διεκάλυπεν ἀνθρωποειδῆ καὶ ζῳόμορφον εἰκόνα θεοῦ Ῥωμαίους νομίζειν. οὐδ' ἦν παρ' αὐτοῖς οὔτε γραπτὸν
 8 οὔτε πλαστὸν εἶδος θεοῦ πρότερον, ἀλλ' ἐν ἑκατὸν ἑβδομήκοντα τοῖς πρώτοις ἔτεσι ναοὺς μὲν οἰκοδομοῦμενοι καὶ καλιάδας ἱερὰς ἰστώντες, ἄγαλμα δὲ οὐδὲν ἔμμορφον ποιούμενοι διετέλουν, ὡς οὔτε ὄσιον ἀφομοιοῦν τὰ βελτίονα τοῖς χείροσιν οὔτε ἐφάπτεσθαι θεοῦ δυνατὸν ἄλλως ἢ νοήσει. κομιδῇ δὲ καὶ τὰ τῶν θυσιῶν ἔχεται τῆς Πυθαγορικῆς ἀγιστείας· ἀναίμακτοι γὰρ ἦσαν αἱ γε πολλαί, δι' ἀλφίτου καὶ σπονδῆς καὶ τῶν εὐτελεστάτων πεπονημένοι.

9 Χωρὶς δὲ τούτων ἑτέροις ἕξωθεν ἐπαγωνίζονται τεκμηρίοις οἱ τὸν ἄνδρα τῷ ἀνδρὶ συνοικειοῦντες. ὧν ἐν μὲν ἔστιν ὅτι Πυθαγοραν Ῥωμαῖοι τῇ πολιτείᾳ προσέγραψαν, ὡς ἰστόρηκεν Ἐπίχαρμος ὁ κωμικὸς ἐν τινι λόγῳ πρὸς Ἀντήνορα γεγραμμένῳ, παλαιὸς ἀνὴρ καὶ τῆς Πυθαγορικῆς διατριβῆς μετεσχηκῶς· ἕτερον δὲ ὅτι τεσσάρων υἱῶν βασιλεῖ Νομᾷ γενομένων ἓνα Μάμερκον ἐπὶ τῷ
 10 Πυθαγόρου παιδὶ προσηγόρευσε. ἀπ' ἐκείνου δὲ καὶ τὸν Αἰμιλίων οἶκον ἀναμυχθέντα τοῖς πατρικίοις ὀνομασθῆναί φασιν, οὕτως ὑποκοριζομένου τοῦ βασιλέως τὴν ἐν τοῖς λόγοις τοῦ ἀνδρὸς αἰμυλίαν καὶ χάριν. αὐτοὶ δ' ἀκηκόαμεν πολλῶν ἐν Ῥώμῃ διεξιόντων ὅτι χρησμοῦ ποτε Ῥωμαίοις

¹ ἄκτιστον Sintenis¹ with AC, followed by Bekker: ἀκήρατον (unmixed).

NUMA

Pythagoras. For that philosopher maintained that the first principle of being was beyond sense or feeling, was invisible and uncreated, and discernible only by the mind. And in like manner Numa forbade the Romans to revere an image of God which had the form of man or beast. Nor was there among them in this earlier time any painted or graven likeness of Deity, but while for the first hundred and seventy years they were continually building temples and establishing sacred shrines, they made no statues in bodily form for them, convinced that it was impious to liken higher things to lower, and that it was impossible to apprehend Deity except by the intellect. Their sacrifices, too, were altogether appropriate to the Pythagorean worship; for most of them involved no bloodshed, but were made with flour, drink-offerings, and the least costly gifts.

And apart from these things, other external proofs are urged to show that the two men were acquainted with each other. One of these is that Pythagoras was enrolled as a citizen of Rome. This fact is recorded by Epicharmus the comic poet, in a certain treatise which he dedicated to Antenor; and Epicharmus was an ancient, and belonged to the school of Pythagoras. Another proof is that one of the four sons born to king Numa was named Mamercus, after the son of Pythagoras. And from him they say that the patrician family of the Aemilii took its name, Aemilius being the endearing name which the king gave him for the grace and winsomeness of his speech. Moreover, I myself have heard many people at Rome recount how, when an oracle once commanded the γενομένου τὸν φρονιμώτατον καὶ τὸν ἀνδρειότατον Ἑλλήνων ιδρύσασθαι παρ' αὐτοῖς, ἔστησαν ἐπὶ τῆς ἀγορᾶς εἰκόνας χαλκᾶς δύο, τὴν μὲν Ἀλκιβιάδου, τὴν δὲ Πυθαγόρου. ταῦτα μὲν οὖν ἀμφισβητήσεις ἔχοντα πολλὰς καὶ τὸ κινεῖν διὰ μακροτέρων καὶ τὸ πιστοῦσθαι¹ μειρακιώδους ἐστὶ φιλονεικίας.

PLUTARCH'S LIVES

IX. Νομᾶ δὲ καὶ τὴν τῶν ἀρχιερέων, οὓς Ποντίφικας καλοῦσι, διάταξιν καὶ κατάστασιν ἀποδιδόασιν, καὶ φασιν αὐτὸν ἓνα τούτων τὸν πρῶτον γεγενῆναι. κεκλήσθαι δὲ τοὺς Ποντίφικας οἱ μὲν ὅτι τοὺς θεοὺς θεραπεύουσι δυνατοὺς καὶ κυρίους πάντων ὄντας· ὁ γὰρ δυνατὸς ὑπὸ Ῥωμαίων ὀνομάζεται 2 πότης· ἕτεροι δὲ φασιν πρὸς ὑπεξαίρεσιν γεγενῆναι τοῦνομα τῶν δυνατῶν, ὡς τοῦ νομοθέτου τὰς δυνατὰς ἐπιτελεῖν ἱερουργίας τοὺς ἱερεῖς κελεύοντος, ἂν δὲ ἢ τι κώλυμα μείζον, οὐ συκοφαντοῦντος. οἱ δὲ πλείστοι μάλιστα καὶ τὸ γελώμενον τῶν ὀνομάτων δοκιμάζουσιν, ὡς οὐδὲν ἄλλ' ἢ γεφυροποιούς τοὺς ἀνδρας ἐπικληθέντας ἀπὸ τῶν ποιουμένων περὶ τὴν γέφυραν ἱερῶν, ἀγιωτάτων καὶ παλαιοτάτων ὄντων· πόντεμ γὰρ οἱ Λατίνοι 3 τὴν γέφυραν ὀνομάζουσιν. εἶναι μέντοι καὶ τὴν τήρησιν αὐτῆς καὶ τὴν ἐπισκευήν, ὥσπερ ἄλλο τι τῶν ἀκινήτων καὶ πατρίων ἱερῶν, προσήκουσαν 66 τοῖς ἱερεῦσιν. οὐ γὰρ θεμιτόν, ἀλλ' ἐπάρατον ἡγεῖσθαι Ῥωμαίους τὴν κατάλυσιν τῆς ξυλίνης γεφύρας. λέγεται δὲ καὶ τὸ πᾶμπαν ἄνευ σιδήρου

¹ πιστοῦσθαι a correction of Reiske's, accepted by Coraës and Bekker: πιστεύεσθαι (believe).

NUMA

Romans to erect in their city monuments to the wisest and the bravest of the Greeks, they set up in the forum two statues in bronze, one of Alcibiades, and one of Pythagoras.¹ However, since the matter of Numa's acquaintance with Pythagoras is involved in much dispute, to discuss it at greater length, and to win belief for it, would savour of youthful contentiousness.

IX. To Numa is also ascribed the institution of that order of high priests who are called Pontifices, and he himself is said to have been the first of them. According to some they are called Pontifices because employed in the service of the gods, who are powerful and supreme over all the world; and "potens" is the Roman word for powerful. Others say that the name was meant to distinguish between possible and impossible functions; the lawgiver enjoining upon these priests the performance of such sacred offices only as were possible, and finding no fault with them if any serious obstacle prevented. But most writers give an absurd explanation of the name; Pontifices means, they say, nothing more nor less than bridge-builders, from the sacrifices which they performed at the bridge over the Tiber, sacrifices of the greatest antiquity and the most sacred character; for "pons" is the Latin word for bridge. They say, moreover, that the custody and maintenance of the bridge, like all the other inviolable and ancestral rites, attached to the priesthood, for the Romans held the demolition of the wooden bridge to be not only unlawful, but actually sacrilegious. It is also said

¹ According to the elder Pliny (N.H. xxxiv. 12), these statues stood in the comitium at Rome from the time of the Samnite wars (343-290 B.C.) down to that of Sulla (138-78 B.C.).

PLUTARCH'S LIVES

κατὰ δὴ τι λόγιον συγγεγομφῶσθαι διὰ τῶν
 ξύλων. ἢ δὲ λιθίνῃ πολλοῖς ὕστερον ἐξειργάσθη
 4 χρόνοις ὑπ' Αἰμιλίου ταμειούντος. οὐ μὴν ἀλλὰ
 καὶ τὴν ξυλίην τῶν Νομᾶ χρόνων ἀπολείπεσθαι
 λέγουσιν, ὑπὸ Μαρκίου τοῦ Νομᾶ θυγατρίδου βασιλεύοντος ἀποτελεσθεῖσαν.

Ὁ δὲ μέγιστος τῶν Ποντιφίκων οἶον ἐξηγητοῦ
 καὶ προφήτου, μᾶλλον δὲ ἱεροφάντου τάξιν εἴληχεν, οὐ μόνον¹ τῶν δημοσίου δρωμένων ἐπιμελού-μενος, ἀλλὰ καὶ τοὺς ἰδία θύοντας ἐπισκοπῶν καὶ κωλύων παρεκβαίνειν τὰ νενομισμένα, καὶ διδά-σκων ὅτου τις δέοιτο πρὸς θεῶν τιμὴν ἢ παραί-5 τησιν. ἦν δὲ καὶ τῶν ἱερῶν παρθένων ἐπίσκοπος, ἃς Ἐστιάδας προσαγορεύουσι. Νομᾶ γὰρ δὴ καὶ
 τὴν τῶν Ἐστιάδων παρθένων καθιέρωσιν καὶ
 ὅλως τὴν περὶ τὸ πῦρ τὸ ἀθάνατον, ὃ φυλάττουσιν
 αὐταί, θεραπείαν τε καὶ τιμὴν ἀποδιδόασιν, εἶτε
 ὡς καθαρὰν καὶ ἄφθαρτον τὴν τοῦ πυρὸς οὐσίαν
 ἀκηράτοις καὶ ἀμίαντοις παρατιθεμένου σώμασιν,
 εἶτε τὸ ἄκαρπον καὶ ἄγονον τῇ παρθενίᾳ συν-οικειούντος. ἐπεὶ τοι τῆς Ἑλλάδος ὅπου πῦρ
 ἄσβεστόν ἐστιν, ὡς Πυθοῖ καὶ Ἀθήνησιν, οὐ
 παρθένοι, γυναῖκες δὲ πεπαυμέναι γάμων ἔχουσι 6 τὴν ἐπιμέλειαν· ἐὰν δὲ ὑπὸ τύχης τινὸς ἐκλίπη, καθάπερ Ἀθήνησι μὲν ἐπὶ τῆς Ἀριστίωνος
 λέγεται τυραννίδος ἀποσβεσθῆναι τὸν ἱερὸν
 λύχνον, ἐν Δελφοῖς δὲ τοῦ ναοῦ καταπρησθέντος
 ὑπὸ Μήδων, περὶ δὲ τὰ Μιθριδατικά καὶ τὸν
 ἐμφύλιον Ῥωμαίων πόλεμον ἅμα τῷ βωμῷ τὸ

¹ μόνον with most MSS. (including S) and edd. : μόνων.

NUMA

that it was built entirely without iron and fastened together with wooden pins in obedience to an oracle. The stone bridge was constructed at a much later period, when Aemilius was quaestor.¹ However, it is said that the wooden bridge also was later than the time of Numa, and was completed by Ancus Marcius, the grandson of Numa by his daughter, when he was king.

The chief of the Pontifices, the Pontifex Maximus, had the duty of expounding and interpreting the divine will, or rather of directing sacred rites, not only being in charge of public ceremonies, but also watching over private sacrifices and preventing any departure from established custom, as well as teaching whatever was requisite for the worship or propitiation of the gods. He was also overseer of the holy virgins called Vestals; for to Numa is ascribed the consecration of the Vestal virgins, and in general the worship and care of the perpetual fire entrusted to their charge. It was either because he thought the nature of fire pure and uncorrupted, and therefore entrusted it to chaste and undefiled persons, or because he thought of it as unfruitful and barren, and therefore associated it with virginity. Since wherever in Greece a perpetual fire is kept, as at Delphi and Athens, it is committed to the charge, not of virgins, but of widows past the age of marriage. And if by any chance it goes out, as at Athens during the tyranny of Aristion² the sacred lamp is said to have been extinguished, and at Delphi when the temple was burned by the Medes, and as during the Mithridatic and the Roman civil wars the altar was demolished

¹ 179 B.C.

² 88-86 B.C. Cf. Lucullus, xix. 6; Sulla, xiii. 3.

PLUTARCH'S LIVES

πῦρ ἠφανίσθη, οὐ φασι δεῖν ἀπὸ ἑτέρου πυρὸς ἐναύεσθαι, καινὸν δὲ ποιεῖν καὶ νέον, ἀνάπτοντας ἀπὸ τοῦ ἡλίου φλόγα καθαρὰν καὶ ἀμίαντον.

7 ἐξάπτουσι δὲ μάλιστα τοῖς σκαφεῖσι, ἃ κατασκευάζεται μὲν ἀπὸ πλευρᾶς ἰσοσκελοῦς ὀρθογωνίου τριγώνου κοιλαινόμενα, συννεύει δ' εἰς ἓν ἐκ τῆς περιφερείας κέντρον. ὅταν οὖν θέσιν ἐναντίαν λάβῃ πρὸς τὸν ἥλιον, ὥστε τὰς αὐγὰς πανταχόθεν ἀνακοπτομένας ἀθροίζεσθαι καὶ συμπλέκεσθαι περὶ τὸ κέντρον, αὐτὸν τε διακρίνει τὸν ἀέρα λεπτυνόμενον, καὶ τὰ κουφότατα καὶ ξηρότατα τῶν προστιθεμένων ὀξέως ἀνάπτει κατὰ τὴν ἀντέρεισιν, σῶμα καὶ πληγὴν πυρώδη τῆς αὐγῆς λαβούσης.

8 ἔνιοι μὲν οὖν οὐδὲν ὑπὸ τῶν ἱερῶν παρθένων ἀλλ' ἢ τὸ ἄσβεστον ἐκείνο φρουρεῖσθαι πῦρ νομίζουσιν· ἔνιοι δὲ εἶναι τινὰ φασιν ἀθέατα τοῖς ἄλλοις ἱερὰ κρυπτόμενα, περὶ ὧν ὅσα καὶ πυθέσθαι καὶ φράσαι θεμιτὸν ἐν τῷ Καμίλλου βίῳ γέγραπται.

Χ. Πρῶτον μὲν οὖν ὑπὸ Νομᾶ καθιερωθῆναι λέγουσι Γεγανίαν καὶ Βερηνίαν, δεύτερον δὲ Κανουλητῆαν καὶ Ταρπητῆαν· ὕστερον δὲ Σερβίου δύο προσθέντος ἄλλας τῷ ἀριθμῷ διατηρεῖσθαι¹ μέχρι τῶν χρόνων τούτων τὸ πλῆθος. ὠρίσθη δὲ ταῖς ἱεραῖς παρθένοις ὑπὸ τοῦ βασιλέως ἀγνεία τριακονταετίς, ἐν ἣ τὴν μὲν πρώτην δεκαετίαν ἂ χρῆ δρᾶν μαυθάνουσι, τὴν δὲ μέσην ἂ μεμαθήκασιν δρῶσι, τὴν δὲ τρίτην ἑτέρας αὐταὶ διδάσκουσιν.

2 εἶτα ἀνεῖται τῇ βουλομένη μετὰ τὸν χρόνον τοῦ-

¹ διατηρεῖσθαι the correction of Coraës, adopted by Bekker: διατηρῆσαι.

NUMA

and the fire extinguished, then they say it must not be kindled again from other fire, but made fresh and new, by lighting a pure and unpolluted flame from the rays of the sun. And this they usually effect by means of metallic mirrors, the concavity of which is made to follow the sides of an isosceles rectangular triangle, and which converge from their circumference to a single point in the centre. When, therefore, these are placed opposite the sun, so that its rays, as they fall upon them from all sides, are collected and concentrated at the centre, the air itself is rarefied there, and very light and dry substances placed there quickly blaze up from its resistance, the sun's rays now acquiring the substance and force of fire. Some, moreover, are of the opinion that nothing but this perpetual fire is guarded by the sacred virgins; while some say that certain sacred objects, which none others may behold, are kept in concealment by them. What may lawfully be learned and told about these things, I have written in my Life of Camillus.¹

X. In the beginning, then, they say that Gegania and Verenia were consecrated to this office by Numa, who subsequently added to them Canuleia and Tarpeia; that at a later time two others were added by Servius, making the number which has continued to the present time. It was ordained by the king that the sacred virgins should vow themselves to chastity for thirty years; during the first decade they are to learn their duties, during the second to perform the duties they have learned, and during the third to teach others these duties. Then, the thirty years being now passed, any one who

¹ Chapter xx. 3-6.

τον ἤδη καὶ γάμου μεταλαμβάνειν καὶ πρὸς ἕτερον τραπέσθαι βίον, ἀπαλλαγείη τῆς ἱερουργίας. λέγονται δὲ οὐ πολλὰ ταύτην ἀσπασασθαι τὴν ἄδειαν, οὐδὲ ἀσπασαμέναις χρηστὰ πράγματα συντυχεῖν, ἀλλὰ μετανοία καὶ κατηφεία συνοῦσαι τὸν λοιπὸν βίον ἐμβαλεῖν τὰς ἄλλας εἰς δεισιδαιμονίαν, ὥστε μέχρι γήρωσ καὶ θανάτου διατελεῖν ἐγκαρτερούσας καὶ παρθενευομένας.

- 3 Τιμὰς δὲ μεγάλας ἀπέδωκεν αὐταῖς, ὧν ἔστι καὶ τὸ διαθέσθαι ζῶντος ἐξεῖναι πατρὸς καὶ τὰλλα πράττειν ἄνευ προστάτου διαγούσας, ὥσπερ αἱ τρίπαιδες. ῥαβδουχοῦνται δὲ προϊοῦσαι· κὰν ἀγομένῳ τινὶ πρὸς θάνατον αὐτομάτως συντύχωσιν, οὐκ ἀναιρεῖται. δεῖ δὲ ἀπομόσαι τὴν παρθένου ἀκούσιον καὶ τυχαίαν καὶ οὐκ ἐξεπίτηδες γεγονέναι τὴν ἀπάντησιν. ὁ δὲ ὑπελθὼν κομιζο- 67
- 4 μένων ὑπὸ τὸ φορεῖον ἀποθνήσκει. κόλασις δὲ τῶν μὲν ἄλλων ἀμαρτημάτων πληγαὶ ταῖς παρθένοις, τοῦ μεγίστου Ποντίφικος κολάζοντος ἔστιν ὅτε καὶ γυμνὴν τὴν πλημμελήσασαν, ὀθόνης ἐν παλινσκίῳ παρατεινομένης· ἡ δὲ τὴν παρθενίαν καταισχύνασα ζῶσα κατορύττεται παρὰ τὴν Κολλίην λεγομένην πύλην· ἐν ἣ τις ἔστιν ἐντὸς τῆς πόλεως ὄφρυς γεώδης παρατεινοῦσα πόρρω·
- 5 καλεῖται δὲ χῶμα διαλέκτῳ τῆ Λατίνων. ἐνταῦθα κατασκευάζεται κατάγειος οἶκος οὐ μέγας, ἔχων ἄνωθεν κατάβασιν. κεῖται δὲ ἐν αὐτῷ κλίνη τε ὑπεστρωμένη καὶ λύχνος καιόμενος, ἀπαρχαί τε τῶν πρὸς τὸ ζῆν ἀναγκαίων βραχεῖαί τινες, οἶον ἄρτος, ὕδωρ ἐν ἀγγείῳ, γάλα, ἔλαιον, ὥσπερ ἀφοσιουμένων τὸ μὴ λιμῷ διαφθείρειν σῶμα ταῖς
- 6 μεγίσταις καθιερωμένον ἀγιστεῖαις. αὐτὴν δὲ

NUMA

wishes has liberty to marry and adopt a different mode of life, after laying down her sacred office. We are told, however, that few have welcomed the indulgence, and that those who did so were not happy, but were a prey to repentance and dejection for the rest of their lives, thereby inspiring the rest with superstitious fears, so that until old age and death they remained steadfast in their virginity.

But Numa bestowed great privileges upon them, such as the right to make a will during the life time of their fathers, and to transact and manage their other affairs without a guardian, like the mothers of three children. When they appear in public, the fasces are carried before them, and if they accidentally meet a criminal on his way to execution, his life is spared; but the virgin must make oath that the meeting was involuntary and fortuitous, and not of design. He who passes under the litter on which they are borne, is put to death. For their minor offences the virgins are punished with stripes, the Pontifex Maximus sometimes scourging the culprit on her bare flesh, in a dark place, with a curtain interposed. But she that has broken her vow of chastity is buried alive near the Colline gate. Here a little ridge of earth extends for some distance along the inside of the city-wall; the Latin word for it is "agger." Under it a small chamber is constructed, with steps leading down from above. In this are placed a couch with its coverings, a lighted lamp, and very small portions of the necessaries of life, such as bread, a bowl of water, milk, and oil, as though they would thereby absolve themselves from the charge of destroying by hunger a life which had been consecrated to the highest services of religion.

τὴν κολαζομένην εἰς φορεῖον ἐνθήμενοι καὶ καταστεγάσαντες ἔξωθεν καὶ καταλαβόντες ἰμάσιν, ὡς
 μηδὲ φωνὴν ἐξάκουστον γενέσθαι, κομίζουσι δι'
 ἀγορᾶς. ἐξίστανται δὲ πάντες σιωπῇ καὶ παραπέμπουσιν ἄφθογοι μετὰ τινος δεινῆς κατηφείας·
 οὐδὲ ἐστὶν ἕτερον θέαμα φρικτότερον, οὐδ' ἡμέραν
 7 ἢ πόλις ἄλλην ἄγει στυγγοτέραν ἐκείνης. ὅταν
 δὲ πρὸς τὸν τόπον κομισθῇ τὸ φορεῖον, οἱ μὲν
 ὑπηρέται τοὺς δεσμοὺς ἐξέλυσαν, ὁ δὲ τῶν ἱερέων
 ἔξαρχος εὐχὰς τινὰς ἀπορρήτους ποιησάμενος καὶ
 χεῖρας ἀνατείνας θεοῖς πρὸ τῆς ἀνάγκης, ἐξάγει
 συγκεκαλυμμένην καὶ καθίστησιν ἐπὶ κλίμακος
 εἰς τὸ οἶκημα κάτω φερούσης. εἶτα αὐτὸς μὲν
 ἀποτρέπεται μετὰ τῶν ἄλλων ἱερέων· τῆς δὲ
 καταβάσης ἢ τε κλίμαξ ἀναιρεῖται καὶ κατα-κρύπτεται τὸ οἶκημα γῆς πολλῆς ἄνωθεν ἐπιφορουμένης, ὥστε ἰσόπεδον τῷ λοιπῷ χώματι γενέσθαι
 τὸν τόπον. οὕτω μὲν αἱ προέμεναι τὴν ἱερὰν παρ-θενίαν κολάζονται.

XI. Νομᾶς δὲ λέγεται καὶ τὸ τῆς Ἑστίας ἱερὸν
 ἐγκύκλιον περιβαλέσθαι τῷ ἀσβέστῳ πυρὶ φρου-
 ράν, ἀπομιμούμενος οὐ τὸ σχῆμα τῆς γῆς ὡς Ἑστίας οὔσης, ἀλλὰ τοῦ σύμπαντος κόσμου, οὐ
 μέσον οἱ Πυθαγορικοὶ τὸ πῦρ ἰδρῦσθαι νομίζουσι,
 2 καὶ τοῦτο Ἑστίαν καλοῦσι καὶ μονάδα· τὴν δὲ
 γῆν οὔτε ἀκίνητον οὔτε ἐν μέσῳ τῆς περιφορᾶς
 οὔσαν, ἀλλὰ κύκλῳ περὶ τὸ πῦρ αἰωρουμένην οὐ
 τῶν τιμιωτάτων οὐδὲ τῶν πρώτων τοῦ κόσμου
 μορίων ὑπάρχειν. ταῦτα δὲ καὶ Πλάτωνά φασι
 πρεσβύτην γενόμενον διανοηθῆσθαι περὶ τῆς γῆς

NUMA

Then the culprit herself is placed on a litter, over which coverings are thrown and fastened down with cords so that not even a cry can be heard from within, and carried through the forum. All the people there silently make way for the litter, and follow it without uttering a sound, in a terrible depression of soul. No other spectacle is more appalling, nor does any other day bring more gloom to the city than this. When the litter reaches its destination, the attendants unfasten the cords of the coverings. Then the high-priest, after stretching his hands toward heaven and uttering certain mysterious prayers before the fatal act, brings forth the culprit, who is closely veiled, and places her on the steps leading down into the chamber. After this he turns away his face, as do the rest of the priests, and when she has gone down, the steps are taken up, and great quantities of earth are thrown into the entrance to the chamber, hiding it away, and making the place level with the rest of the mound. Such is the punishment of those who break their vow of virginity.

XI. Furthermore, it is said that Numa built the temple of Vesta, where the perpetual fire was kept, of a circular form, not in imitation of the shape of the earth, believing Vesta to be the earth, but of the entire universe, at the centre of which the Pythagoreans place the element of fire, and call it Vesta and Unit. And they hold that the earth is neither motionless nor situated in the centre of surrounding space, but that it revolves in a circle about the central fire, not being one of the most important, nor even one of the primary elements of the universe. This is the conception, we are told, which Plato also, in his old age, had of the earth, namely that it is

PLUTARCH'S LIVES

ὡς ἐν ἑτέρα χώρα καθεστῶσης, τὴν δὲ μέσῃν καὶ κυριωτάτῃν ἑτέρῳ τινὶ κρείττονι προσήκουσαν.

- XII. Οἱ δὲ Ποντίφικες καὶ τὰ περὶ τὰς ταφὰς πάτρια τοῖς χρήζουσιν ἀφηγοῦνται, Νομᾶ διδάξαντος μηδὲν ἡγεῖσθαι μίασμα τῶν τοιούτων, ἀλλὰ καὶ τοὺς ἐκεῖ θεοὺς σέβεσθαι τοῖς νενομισμένοις, ὡς τὰ κυριώτατα τῶν ἡμετέρων ὑποδεχομένους· ἐξαιρέτως δὲ τὴν προσαγορευομένην Λιβίτιναν, ἐπίσκοπον τῶν περὶ τοὺς θνήσκοντας ὁσίων θεὸν οὔσαν, εἴτε Περσεφόνῃν εἴτε μᾶλλον, ὡς οἱ λογιώτατοι Ῥωμαίων ὑπολαμβάνουσιν, Ἄφροδίτην, οὐ κακῶς εἰς μιᾶς δύναμιν θεοῦ τὰ περὶ τὰς γενέσεις καὶ τὰς τελευτὰς ἀνάπτουτες.
- 2 αὐτὸς δὲ καὶ τὰ πένθη καθ' ἡλικίας καὶ χρόνους ἔταξεν· οἶον παῖδα μὴ πενθεῖν νεώτερον τριετοῦς, μηδὲ πρεσβύτερον πλείονας μῆνας ὧν ἐβίωσεν ἐνιαυτῶν μέχρι τῶν δέκα, καὶ περαιτέρω μηδεμίαν ἡλικίαν, ἀλλὰ τοῦ μακροτάτου πένθους χρόνον εἶναι δεκαμηνιαῖον, ἐφ' ὅσον καὶ χηρεύουσιν αἱ τῶν ἀποθανόντων γυναῖκες. ἡ δὲ πρότερον γαμηθεῖσα βοῦν ἐγκύμονα κατέθυεν ἐκείνου νομοθετήσαντος.
- 3 Πολλὰς δὲ καὶ ἄλλας Νομᾶ καταδείξαντος ἱερωσύνας ἔτι δεῖν μνησθήσομαι, τῆς τε Σαλίῳν καὶ τῆς τῶν Φιτιαλέων, αἱ μάλιστα τὴν εὐσέβειαν τοῦ ἀνδρὸς ἐμφαίνουσιν. οἱ μὲν γὰρ 68 Φιτιαλεῖς εἰρηνοφύλακές τινες ὄντες, ὡς δ' ἐμοὶ δοκεῖ, καὶ τοῦνομα λαβόντες ἀπὸ τῆς πράξεως, established in a secondary space, and that the central and sovereign space is reserved for some other and nobler body.

NUMA

XII. The Pontifices also explain and direct the ancestral rites of burial for those who desire it, and they were taught by Numa not to regard any such offices as a pollution, but to honour the gods below also with the customary rites, since they receive into their keeping the most sovereign part of us, and particularly the goddess called Libitina, who presides over the solemn services for the dead, whether she is Proserpina, or, as the most learned Romans maintain, Venus; thereby not inaptly connecting man's birth and death with the power of one and the same goddess. Numa himself also regulated the periods of mourning according to ages. For instance, over a child of less than three years there was to be no mourning at all; over one older than that, the mourning was not to last more months than it had lived years, up to ten; and no age was to be mourned longer than that, but ten months was the period set for the longest mourning.¹ This is also the period during which women who have lost their husbands remain in widowhood, and she who took another husband before this term was out, was obliged by the laws of Numa to sacrifice a cow with calf.

Numa also established many other orders of priesthood, of which I shall mention two, besides, those of the Salii and the Fetiales, which more than any others give evidence of the man's reverent piety. The Fetiales were guardians of peace, so to speak, and in my opinion took their name from their office, which was to put a stop to disputes by oral conference, or

¹ Cf. chapter xix. 1.

PLUTARCH'S LIVES

- λόγῳ τὰ νείκη κατέπαυον, οὐκ ἐὼντες στρατεύειν
 πρότερον ἢ πᾶσαν ἐλπίδα δίκης ἀποκοπήναι.
 4 καὶ γὰρ εἰρήνην Ἕλληνες καλοῦσιν ὅταν λόγῳ,
 μὴ βίᾳ, πρὸς ἀλλήλους χρώμενοι λύσωσι τὰς
 διαφοράς. οἱ δὲ Ῥωμαίων Φιτιαλεῖς πολλάκις
 μὲν ἐβάδιζον ὡς τοὺς ἀδικοῦντας αὐτοὶ πείθοντες
 εὐγνωμονεῖν· ἀγνωμονούντων δὲ μαρτυράμενοι
 θεούς, καὶ κατευξάμενοι πολλὰ καὶ δεινὰ καθ'
 αὐτῶν αὐτοὶ καὶ τῆς πατρίδος εἰ μὴ δικαίως
 ἐπεξίασιν, οὕτω κατήγγελλον αὐτοῖς τὸν πόλεμον.
 5 κωλύοντων δὲ τούτων ἢ μὴ συναινούντων, οὔτε
 στρατιώτῃ θεμιτὸν οὔτε βασιλεῖ Ῥωμαίων ὄπλα
 κινεῖν, ἀλλὰ παρὰ τούτων ἔδει τὴν ἀρχὴν τοῦ
 πολέμου δεξάμενον ὡς δικαίου τὸν ἄρχοντα, τότε
 σκοπεῖν περὶ τοῦ συμφέροντος. λέγεται δὲ καὶ
 τὸ Κελτικὸν ἐκεῖνο πάθος τῇ πόλει γενέσθαι
 τούτων τῶν ἱερέων παρανομηθέντων.
- 6 Ἐτυχον μὲν γὰρ οἱ βάρβαροι Κλουσίνουσ
 πολιορκοῦντες· ἐπέμφθη δὲ πρεσβευτῆς Φάβιος Ἀμβουστός εἰς τὸ στρατόπεδον διαλύσεις πράξων
 ὑπὲρ τῶν πολιορκουμένων. λαβὼν δὲ ἀποκρίσεις οὐκ ἐπιεικεῖς καὶ πέρασ σχεῖν αὐτῷ τὴν πρεσβείαν οἴομενος, ἐνεανιεύσατο πρὸ τῶν Κλου-σίνων ὄπλα λαβὼν προκαλέσασθαι τὸν ἀριστεύ-7 οντα τῶν βαρβάρων. τὰ μὲν οὖν τῆς μάχης εὐτυχεῖτο καὶ καταβαλὼν ἐσκύλευσε τὸν ἄνδρα·
 γνωρίσαντες δὲ οἱ Κελτοὶ πέμπουσιν εἰς Ῥώμην
 κήρυκα τοῦ Φαβίου κατηγοροῦντες ὡς ἐκσπόνδου
 καὶ ἀπίστου καὶ ἀκατάγγελτου ἐξενηνοχότος πρὸς
 αὐτοὺς πόλεμον. ἐνταῦθα τὴν μὲν σύγκλητον
 οἱ Φιτιαλεῖς ἔπειθον ἐκδιδόναι τὸν ἄνδρα τοῖς

NUMA

*parley*¹; and they would not suffer a hostile expedition to be made before every hope of getting justice had been cut off. For the Greeks call it peace when two parties settle their quarrels by mutual conference, and not by violence. And the Roman Fetiales often went to those who were doing them a wrong and made personal appeals for fair treatment; but if the unfair treatment continued, they called the gods to witness, invoked many dreadful evils upon themselves and their country in case they resorted to hostilities unjustly, and so declared war upon them. But if they forbade it or withheld their consent, neither soldier nor king of Rome could lawfully take up arms. War had to begin with their verdict that it was just, and the ruler, on receiving this verdict, must then deliberate on the proper way to wage it. And it is said that the dreadful disaster which the city experienced at the hands of the Gauls was in consequence of the illegal treatment of these priests.

For when the Barbarians were besieging Clusium, Fabius Ambustus was sent from Rome to their camp to bring about a cessation of hostilities on behalf of the besieged. But on receiving an unseemly answer, he thought his office of ambassador was at an end, and committed the youthful folly of taking up arms for the Clusians and challenging the bravest of the Barbarians to single combat. Fabius fought successfully, unhorsed his adversary, and stripped him of his armour. But when the Gauls discovered who he was, they sent a herald to Rome denouncing Fabius for violating a truce, breaking his oath, and fighting against them before war was formally declared. At Rome the Fetiales tried to persuade the senate to

¹ Connecting the name with fateri, fari, to speak.

PLUTARCH'S LIVES

Κελτοῖς, καταφυγὼν δὲ ἐκεῖνος εἰς τοὺς πολλοὺς καὶ τῷ δήμῳ σπουδάζοντι χρησάμενος διεκρούσατο τὴν δίκην. μετ' ὀλίγον δὲ ἐπελθόντες οἱ Κελτοὶ τὴν Ῥώμην πλὴν τοῦ Καπιτωλίου διεπόρθησαν. ἀλλὰ ταῦτα μὲν ἐν τοῖς περὶ Καμίλλου μᾶλλον ἀκριβοῦνται.

XIII. Τοὺς δὲ Σαλίους ἱερεῖς ἐκ τοιαύτης λέγεται συστήσασθαι προφάσεως. ἔτος ὄγδοον αὐτοῦ βασιλεύοντος λοιμώδης νόσος περιϊούσα τὴν Ἰταλίαν ἐστρόβησε καὶ τὴν Ῥώμην· ἀθυμούντων δὲ τῶν ἀνθρώπων ἱστορεῖται χαλκῆν πέλτην ἐξ οὐρανοῦ καταφερομένην εἰς τὰς Νομᾶ πεσεῖν χεῖρας. ἐπὶ δὲ αὐτῇ θαυμάσιόν τινα λόγον λέγεσθαι ὑπὸ τοῦ βασιλέως, ὃν Ἠγερίας

2 τε καὶ τῶν Μουσῶν πυθέσθαι. τὸ μὲν γὰρ ὄπλον ἦκειν ἐπὶ σωτηρίᾳ τῆς πόλεως, καὶ δεῖν αὐτὸ φρουρεῖσθαι γενομένων ἄλλων ἔνδεκα καὶ σχῆμα καὶ μέγεθος καὶ μορφήν ἐκείνῳ παραπλησίων, ὅπως ἄπορον εἶη τῷ κλέπτῃ δι' ὁμοιότητα τοῦ διοπετοῦς ἐπιτυχεῖν· ἔτι δὲ χρῆναι Μούσαις καθιερῶσαι τὸ χωρίον ἐκεῖνο καὶ τοὺς περὶ αὐτὸ λειμῶνας, ὅπου τὰ πολλὰ φοιτῶσαι συνδιατρίβουσιν αὐτῷ. τὴν δὲ πηγὴν ἢ κατάρδει τὸ χωρίον, ὕδωρ ἱερὸν ἀποδείξαι ταῖς Ἑστιάσι παρθένοις, ὅπως λαμβάνουσαι καθ' ἡμέραν ἀγνίζωσι

3 καὶ ραίνωσι τὸ ἀνάκτορον. τούτοις μὲν οὖν μαρτυρῆσαι λέγουσι καὶ τὰ τῆς νόσου παραχρήμα παυσάμενα. τὴν δὲ πέλτην προθέντος αὐτοῦ καὶ κελεύσαντος ἀμιλλᾶσθαι τοὺς τεχνίτας ὑπὲρ τῆς ὁμοιότητος, τοὺς μὲν ἄλλους ἀπειπεῖν, Οὐετούριον δὲ Μαμούριον ἓνα τῶν ἄκρων δημιουργῶν οὕτως ἐφικέσθαι τῆς ἐμφερείας, καὶ

NUMA

deliver Fabius into the hands of the Gauls, but he took refuge with the multitude, and through the favour of the populace evaded his punishment. After a little, therefore, the Gauls came up and sacked Rome, with the exception of the Capitol. But this story is more fully given in my Life of Camillus.¹

XIII. The priesthood of the Salii Numa is said to have been established for the following reason. In the eighth year of his reign a pestilence, which traversed Italy, distracted Rome also. The story goes that while the people were disheartened by this, a bronze buckler fell from heaven, which came into the hands of Numa, and a wonderful account of it was given by the king, which he learned from Egeria and the Muses. The buckler came, he said, for the salvation of the city, and must be carefully preserved by making eleven others of like fashion, size, and shape, in order that the resemblance between them might make it difficult for a thief to distinguish the one that fell from heaven. He said further that the spot where it fell, and the adjacent meadows, where the Muses usually had converse with him, must be consecrated to them; and that the spring which watered the spot should be declared holy water for the use of the Vestal virgins, who should daily sprinkle and purify their temple with it. Moreover, they say that the truth of all this was attested by the immediate cessation of the pestilence. When Numa showed the buckler to the artificers and bade them do their best to make others like it, they all declined, except Veturius Mamurius, a most excellent workman, who was so happy in his imitation of it, and made all the eleven so exactly

¹ Chapters xvii.-xxii.

κατασκευάσαι πάσας ὁμοίας, ὥστε μηδ' αὐτὸν
 ἔτι τὸν Νομᾶν διαγινώσκειν. τούτων οὖν φύ-λακας καὶ ἀμφιπόλους ἀπέδειξε τοὺς Σαλίους
 4 ἱερεῖς. Σάλιοι δὲ ἐκλήθησαν, οὐχ, ὡς ἔνιοι
 μυθολογοῦσι, Σαμόθρακος ἀνδρὸς ἢ Μαντινέως, ὄνομα Σαλίου, πρώτου τὴν ἐνόπλιον ἐκδιδάξαντος
 ὀρχησιν, ἀλλὰ μᾶλλον ἀπὸ τῆς ὀρχήσεως αὐτῆς, ἀλτικῆς οὔσης, ἣν ὑπορχοῦνται διαπορευόμενοι
 τὴν πόλιν, ὅταν τὰς ἱεράς πέλτας ἀναλάβωσιν
 ἐν τῷ Μαρτίῳ μηνί, φοινικοὺς μὲν ἐνδεδυμένοι 69
 πλατεταῖαι καὶ κράνη χαλκᾶ φοροῦντες, ἐγχειρι-5 δίοις δὲ μικροῖς τὰ ὄπλα κρούοντες. ἡ δὲ ἄλλη
 τῆς ὀρχήσεως ποδῶν ἔργον ἐστὶ· κινοῦνται γὰρ
 ἐπιτερπῶς, ἐλιγμούς τινας καὶ μεταβολὰς ἐν
 ῥυθμῷ τάχος ἔχοντι καὶ πυκνότητα μετὰ ῥώμης
 καὶ κουφότητος ἀποδιδόντες.

Αὐτὰς δὲ τὰς πέλτας ἀγκύλια καλοῦσι διὰ τὸ
 σχῆμα· κύκλος γὰρ οὐκ ἔστιν οὐδὲ ἀποδίδωσιν,
 ὡς πέλτη, τὴν περιφέρειαν, ἀλλ' ἐκτομὴν ἔχει
 γραμμῆς ἐλικοειδοῦς, ἣς αἱ κεραῖαι καμπὰς ἔχου-
 σαι καὶ συνεπιστρέφουσαι τῇ πυκνότητι πρὸς
 6 ἀλλήλας ἀγκύλον τὸ σχῆμα ποιοῦσιν· ἢ διὰ τὸν
 ἀγκῶνα περὶ ὃν περιφέρονται. ταῦτα γὰρ ὁ Ἰόβας εἶρηκε γλιχόμενος ἐξελληνίσαι τοῦνομα.
 δύναιτο δ' ἂν τῆς ἀνέκαθεν φορᾶς πρώτον ἐπώνυ-
 μον γεγονέναι, καὶ τῆς ἀκέσεως τῶν νοσοῦντων,
 καὶ τῆς τῶν αὐχμῶν λύσεως, ἔτι δὲ τῆς τῶν
 δεινῶν ἀνασχέσεως, καθ' ὃ καὶ τοὺς Διοσκούρους

NUMA

like it, that not even Numa himself could distinguish them. For the watch and care of these bucklers, then, he appointed the priesthood of the Salii. Now the Salii were so named, not, as some tell the tale, from a man of Samothrace or Mantinea, named Salius, who first taught the dance in armour; but rather from the *leaping*¹ which characterized the dance itself. This dance they perform when they carry the sacred bucklers through the streets of the city in the month of March, clad in purple tunics, girt with broad belts of bronze, wearing bronze helmets on their heads, and carrying small daggers with which they strike the shields. But the dance is chiefly a matter of step; for they move gracefully, and execute with vigour and agility certain shifting convolutions, in quick and oft-recurring rhythm.

The bucklers themselves are called "ancilia," from their shape; for this is not round, nor yet completely oval, like that of the regular shield, but has a curving indentation, the arms of which are bent back and united with each other at top and bottom; this makes the shape "ancylon," the Greek for curved. Or, they are named from the elbow on which they are carried, which, in Greek, is "ankon." This is what Juba says, who is bent on deriving the name from the Greek. But the name may come from the Greek "anekathen," inasmuch as the original shield fell from on high; or from "akesis," because it healed those who were sick of the plague; or from "auchmon lysis," because it put an end to the drought; or, further, from "anaschesis," because it brought a cessation of calamities, just as Castor and Pollux were called Anakes by the Athenians; if,

¹ The Latin "salire," to leap.

PLUTARCH'S LIVES

Ἄνακας Ἀθηναῖοι προσηγόρευσαν, εἴ γε δεῖ πρὸς τὴν Ἑλληνικὴν διάλεκτον ἐξάγειν τοῦνομα.

7 Τῷ δὲ Μαμουρίῳ λέγουσι μισθὸν γενέσθαι τῆς τέχνης ἐκείνης μνήμην τινὰ δι' ᾧδῆς ὑπὸ τῶν Σαλίων ἅμα τῇ πυρρίχῃ διαπεραινομένης. οἱ δὲ οὐ Οὔετούριον Μαμούριον εἶναι φασὶ τὸν ἀδόμενον, ἀλλὰ οὔτερέμ μεμορίαμ, ὅπερ ἐστί, παλαιὰν μνήμην.

XIV. Ἐπεὶ δὲ διεκόσμησε τὰς ἱερωσύνας, ἐδείματο πλησίον τοῦ τῆς Ἐστίας ἱεροῦ τὴν καλουμένην Ῥηγίαν, οἷόν τι βασίλειον οἴκημα· καὶ τὸ πλεῖστον αὐτόθι τοῦ χρόνου διέτριβεν ἱεουργῶν ἢ διδάσκων τοὺς ἱερεῖς ἢ πρὸς ἐννοίᾳ τινὶ τῶν θείων πρὸς αὐτὸν σχολάζων. οἰκίαν δ' εἶχεν ἑτέραν περὶ τὸν Κυρίνου λόφον, ἧς ἔτι νῦν τὸν τόπον ἐπιδεικνύουσιν. ἐν δὲ ταῖς προπομπαῖς καὶ ὄλως τῶν ἱερέων ταῖς πομπαῖς προηγούντο κήρυκες ἀνὰ τὴν πόλιν ἐλινύειν κελεύοντες καὶ

2 τὰ ἔργα καταπαύοντες. ὡς γάρ φασὶ τοὺς Πυθαγορικοὺς οὐκ εἶναι ἐκ παρόδου προσκυνεῖν καὶ προσεύχεσθαι τοῖς θεοῖς, ἀλλ' οἴκοθεν εὐθύς ἐπὶ τοῦτο γνώμη παρεσκευασμένους βαδίζειν, οὕτως ᾤετο Νομάς χρῆναι τοὺς πολίτας μῆτε ἀκούειν τι τῶν θείων μῆτε ὄραν ἐν παρέργῳ καὶ ἀμελῶς, ἀλλὰ σχολὴν ἄγοντας ἀπὸ τῶν ἄλλῳ καὶ προσέχοντας τὴν διάνοιαν ὡς πράξει μεγίστη τῇ περὶ τὴν εὐσέβειαν, ψόφων τε καὶ πατάγων καὶ στεναγμῶν, καὶ ὅσα τοιαῦτα τοῖς ἀναγκαίοις καὶ βαναύσοις πόνοις ἔπεται, καθαρὰς τὰς ὁδοὺς ταῖς ἱεουργίαις παρέχοντας. ὧν ἴχνος τι μέχρι

NUMA

that is, we are bound to derive the name from the Greek.

We are told that Mamertius was rewarded for his wonderful art by having his name mentioned in a song which the Salii sing as they perform their war-dance. Some, however, say that the song does not commemorate Veturius Mamurius, but "veterem memoriam," that is to say, ancient remembrance.

XIV. After Numa had thus established and regulated the priestly orders, he built, near the temple of Vesta, the so-called Regia, or royal house. Here he passed most of his time, performing sacred functions, or teaching the priests, or engaged in the quiet contemplation of divine things. He also had another house on the Quirinal hill, the site of which is still pointed out. At all public and solemn processions of the priests, heralds were sent on before through the city, bidding the people make holiday, and putting a stop to all labour. For, just as it is said that the Pythagoreans do not allow men to worship and pray to their gods cursorily and by the way, but would have them go from their homes directly to this office, with their minds prepared for it, so Numa thought that his citizens ought neither to hear nor see any divine service while they were occupied with other matters and therefore unable to pay attention. They should rather be free from all distractions and devote their thoughts to the religious ceremony as a matter of the highest importance. They should also rid their streets of noise and clatter and clamour, and all such accompaniments of menial and manual labour, and clear them for the sacred ceremonies. And the Romans still preserve some traces of this earlier feeling.

PLUTARCH'S LIVES

νῦν διασώζοντες, ὅταν ἄρχων πρὸς ὄρνισιν ἢ θυσίαις διατρίβῃ, βοῶσιν “Ὁκ ἄγε” σημαίνει δὲ ἡ φωνὴ “Τοῦτο πρᾶσσε,” συνεπιστρέφουσα καὶ κατακοσμοῦσα τοὺς προστυγχάνοντας.

- 3 Ἦν δὲ καὶ τῶν ἄλλων παραγγελμάτων αὐτοῦ πολλὰ τοῖς Πυθαγορικοῖς εἰκότα. ὡς γὰρ ἐκεῖνοι παρήνουν ἐπὶ χοίνικος μὴ καθῆσθαι, καὶ μαχαίρα πῦρ μὴ σκαλεύειν, καὶ βαδίζοντας εἰς ἀποδημίας μὴ μεταστρέφεσθαι, καὶ τοῖς μὲν οὐρανόις περισσὰ θύειν, ἄρτια δὲ τοῖς χθονίοις, ὧν ἐκάστου τὴν διάνοιαν ἀπεκρύπτοντο πρὸς τοὺς πολλούς, οὕτως ἕνια τῶν Νομᾶ πατρίων ἀπόρρητον ἔχει τὸν λόγον· οἶον τὸ μὴ σπένδειν θεοῖς ἐξ ἀμπέλων ἀτμήτων μηδὲ θύειν ἄτερ ἀλφίτων· καὶ τὸ προσκυνεῖν περιστρεφομένους
- 4 καὶ τὸ καθῆσθαι προσκυνήσαντας. τὰ μὲν οὖν πρῶτα δύο τὴν γῆς ἐξημέρωσιν εἰκοι διδάσκειν, ὡς μόριον εὐσεβείας οὖσαν· ἡ δὲ περιστροφή τῶν προσκυνούντων λέγεται μὲν ἀπομίμησις εἶναι τῆς τοῦ κόσμου περιφορᾶς, δόξειε δ' ἂν μᾶλλον ὁ προσκυνῶν, ἐπεὶ πρὸς ἕω τῶν ἱερῶν βλέπόντων ἀπέστραπται τὰς ἀνατολάς, μεταβάλλειν ἑαυτὸν ἐνταῦθα καὶ περιστρέφειν ἐπὶ τὸν θεόν, κύκλον ποιῶν καὶ συνάπτων τὴν ἐπιτελείωσιν τῆς εὐχῆς
- 5 δι' ἀμφοῖν· εἰ μὴ νῆ Δία τοῖς Αἰγυπτίοις τροχοῖς αἰνίττεται τι καὶ διδάσκει παραπλήσιον ἢ μετα- 70
βολὴ τοῦ σχήματος, ὡς οὐδενὸς ἐστῶτος τῶν ἀνθρωπίνων, ἀλλ' ὅπως ἂν στρέφῃ καὶ ἀνελίττη τὸν βίον ἡμῶν ὁ θεός, ἀγαπᾶν καὶ δέχεσθαι προσῆκον. τὸ δὲ καθέζεσθαι προσκυνήσαντας οἰωνισμὸν εἶναι λέγουσι τοῦ βεβαιότητα ταῖς

NUMA

When a magistrate is busy taking auspices or sacrificing, the people cry "Hoc age," which means "Mind this," and helps to make the bystanders attentive and orderly.

Many of his other precepts also resembled those of the Pythagoreans. For instance, the Pythagoreans said: "Don't use a quart-measure as a seat"; "Don't poke the fire with a sword"; "When you set out for foreign parts, don't turn back"; and "To the celestial gods sacrifice an even number, but an odd number to the terrestrial"; and the meaning of all these precepts they would keep hidden from the vulgar. So in some of Numa's rules the meaning is hidden; as, for instance, "Don't offer to the gods wine from unpruned vines"; "Don't make a sacrifice without meal"; "Turn round as you worship"; and "Sit down after worship." The first two rules would seem to teach that the subjection of the earth is a part of religion; and the worshippers' turning round is said to be an imitation of the rotary motion of the universe; but I would rather think that the worshipper who enters a temple, since temples face the east and the Sun, has his back towards the sunrise, and therefore turns himself half round in that direction, and then wheels fully round to face the god of the temple, thus making a complete circle, and linking the fulfilment of his prayer with both deities; unless, indeed, this change of posture, like the Aegyptian wheels, darkly hints and teaches that there is no stability in human affairs, but that we must accept contentedly whatever twists and turns our lives may receive from the Deity. And as for the sitting down after worship, we are told that it is an augury of the

PLUTARCH'S LIVES

εὐχαίς καὶ διαμονὴν τοῖς ἀγαθοῖς ἐπιγίνεσθαι. λέγουσι δὲ καὶ πράξεων διορισμὸν εἶναι τὴν
 6 ἀνάπαυσιν· ὡς οὖν τῇ προτέρᾳ πράξει πέρασ
 ἐπιτιθέντας καθέζεσθαι παρὰ τοῖς θεοῖς, ἵνα
 ἑτέρας πάλιν ἀρχὴν παρ' ἐκείνων λάβωσι. δύνα-ται δὲ καὶ τοῦτο τοῖς εἰρημένοις ὁμολογεῖν, ἐθί-ζοντος ἡμᾶς τοῦ νομοθέτου μὴ ποιεῖσθαι τὰς πρὸς
 τὸ θεῖον ἐντεύξεις ἐν ἀσχολίᾳ καὶ παρέργως οἷον σπεύδοντας, ἀλλ' ὅταν χρόνον ἔχωμεν καὶ σχολὴν ἄγωμεν.

XV. Ἐκ δὲ τῆς τοιαύτης παιδαγωγίας πρὸς
 τὸ θεῖον οὕτως ἡ πόλις ἐγεγόνει χειροῆθης καὶ
 κατατεθαμβημένη τὴν τοῦ Νομᾶ δύναμιν, ὥστε
 μύθοις εἰκότας τὴν ἀτοπίαν λόγους παραδέχεσθαι, καὶ νομίζειν μηδὲν ἄπιστον εἶναι μηδὲ
 2 ἀμήχανον ἐκείνου βουλευθέντος. λέγεται γοῦν
 ποτε καλέσας ἐπὶ τὴν τράπεζαν οὐκ ὀλίγους τῶν
 πολιτῶν, σκεύη τε φαῦλα καὶ δεῖπνον εὐτελὲς
 πάνυ προθέσθαι καὶ δημοτικόν· ἀρξαμένων δὲ
 δειπνεῖν ἐμβαλὼν λόγον ὡς ἡ θεὸς ἢ σύνεστιν
 ἦκοι πρὸς αὐτόν, αἰφνίδιον ἐπιδείξει τὸν τε οἶκον
 ἐκπωμάτων πλήρη πολυτελῶν καὶ τὰς τραπέζας
 ὄψων τε παντοδαπῶν καὶ παρασκευῆς δαψιλοῦς
 3 γεμούσας. πᾶσαν δὲ ὑπερβέβληκεν ἀτοπίαν
 τὸ ὑπὲρ τῆς τοῦ Διὸς ὀμιλίας ἱστορούμενον.
 μυθολογοῦσι γὰρ εἰς τὸν Ἀβεντίνον λόφον οὐπω
 μέρος ὄντα τῆς πόλεως οὐδὲ συνοικούμενον, ἀλλ'
 ἔχοντα πηγὰς τε δαψιλεῖς ἐν αὐτῷ καὶ νάπας
 σκιερὰς, φοιτᾶν δύο δαίμονας, Πίκον καὶ Φαῦνον·
 οὓς τὰ μὲν ἄλλα Σατύρων ἂν τις ἢ Πανῶν γένει
 προσεικάζσειε, δυνάμει δὲ φαρμάκων καὶ δεινότητι
 τῆς περὶ τὰ θεῖα γοητείας λέγονται ταῦτ' αὐτοῖς

NUMA

acceptance of the worshipper's prayers and the duration of his blessings. We are also told, that, as different acts are separated by an interval of rest, so the worshipper, having completed one act, sits down in the presence of the gods, in order that he may begin another with their blessing. But this, too, can be brought into agreement with what was said above : the lawgiver is trying to accustom us not to make our petitions to the Deity when we are busied with other matters and in a hurry, as it were, but when we have time and are at leisure.

XV. By such training and schooling in religious matters the city became so tractable, and stood in such awe of Numa's power, that they accepted his stories, though fabulously strange, and thought nothing incredible or impossible which he wished them to believe or do. At any rate, the story goes that he once invited a large number of the citizens to his table, and set before them mean dishes and a very simple repast ; but just as they began to eat, he surprised them by saying that the goddess with whom he consorted was come to visit him, and lo, on a sudden, the room was full of costly beakers and the tables were laden with all sorts of meats and abundant furniture. But nothing can be so strange as what is told about his conversation with Jupiter. When the Aventine hill—so runs the tale—was not yet a part of the city nor even inhabited, but abounded in springs and shady dells, two demi-gods, Picus and Faunus, made it their haunt. In other ways these divinities might be likened to Satyrs or Pans, but they are said to have used powerful drugs and practised clever incantations, and to have traversed ὑφ' Ἑλλήνων προσαγορευθεῖσιν Ἰδαίοις Δακτύ-

 4 λους σοφιζόμενοι περιῖεναι τὴν Ἰταλίαν. τούτους
 φασὶ χειρώσασθαι τὸν Νομᾶν, οἶνφ καὶ μέλιτι
 κεράσαντα τὴν κρήνην ἀφ' ἧς ἔπινον συνήθως.
 ληφθέντας δὲ πολλὰς μὲν ἰδέας τρέπεσθαι καὶ
 μετεκδύεσθαι τὴν αὐτῶν φύσιν, ἀλλόκοτα φάσματα καὶ φοβερὰ τῆς ὄψεως προβαλλομένους·
 ἐπεὶ δὲ ἔγνωσαν ἐαλωκότες ἰσχυρὰν καὶ ἄφυκτον
 ἄλωσιν, ἄλλα τε προθεσπίσαι πολλὰ τῶν μελ-λόντων καὶ τὸν ἐπὶ τοῖς κεραυνοῖς ἐκδιδάξαι
 5 καθαρμόν, ὃς ποιεῖται μέχρι νῦν διὰ κρομμύων
 καὶ τριχῶν καὶ μαινίδων. ἔνιοι δὲ οὐ τοὺς
 δαίμονας φασιν ὑποθέσθαι τὸν καθαρμόν, ἀλλ'
 ἐκείνους μὲν καταγαγεῖν τὸν Δία μαγεύσαντας,
 τὸν δὲ θεὸν ὀργιζόμενον τῷ Νομᾶ προστάσσειν
 ὡς χρὴ γενέσθαι τὸν καθαρμόν κεφαλαῖς ὑπο-λαβόντος δὲ τοῦ Νομᾶ, “κρομμύων;” εἰπεῖν, “ἀνθρώπων” τὸν δὲ αὐθις ἐκτρέποντα τὸ τοῦ προστάγματος δεινὸν ἐπερέσθαι, “θριξίν;” ἀποκριναμένου δὲ τοῦ Διός, “ἐμψύχοις,” ἐπαγαγεῖν
 τὸν Νομᾶν, “μαινίσι;” ταῦτα λέγειν ὑπὸ τῆς
 6 Ἠγερίας δεδιδασμένον. καὶ τὸν μὲν θεὸν ἀπελθεῖν ἴλω γενόμενον, τὸν δὲ τόπον Ἰλίκιον ὑπ'
 ἐκείνου προσαγορευθῆναι καὶ τὸν καθαρμόν οὕτω συντελεῖσθαι. ταῦτα μὲν οὖν τὰ μυθώδη καὶ
 γελοῖα τὴν τῶν τότε ἀνθρώπων ἐπιδείκνυται
 διάθεσιν πρὸς τὸ θεῖον, ἣν ὁ ἔθισμός αὐτοῖς
 ἐνεποίησεν. αὐτὸν δὲ τὸν Νομᾶν οὕτω φασὶν εἰς
 τὸ θεῖον ἀνηρτῆσθαι ταῖς ἐλπίσιν, ὥστε καὶ προσαγγελίας αὐτῷ ποτε γενομένης ὡς ἐπέρχονται πολέμιοι, μειδιᾶσαι καὶ εἰπεῖν· “Ἐγὼ δὲ θύω.”

NUMA

Italy playing the same tricks as the so-called Idaean Dactyli¹ of the Greeks. These demi-gods Numa is said to have caught, by mixing wine and honey with the water of the spring from which they were wont to drink. When captured, they dropped their own forms and assumed many different shapes, presenting hideous and dreadful appearances. But when they perceived that they were fast caught and could not escape, they foretold to Numa many things that would come to pass, and taught him besides the charm against thunder and lightning, which is still practised with onions, hair, and sprats. Some, however, say that it was not the imps themselves who imparted the charm, but that they called Jupiter down from heaven by their magic, and that this deity angrily told Numa that he must charm thunder and lightning with "heads." "Of onions?" asked Numa, filling out the phrase. "Of men," said Jupiter. Thereupon Numa, trying once more to avert the horror of the prescription, asked, "with hair?" "Nay," answered Jupiter, "with living—" "sprats?" added Numa, as he had been taught by Egeria to say. Then the god returned to heaven in a gracious mood,—"hileos," as the Greeks say,—and the place was called Ilicium from this circumstance; and that is the way the charm was perfected. These stories, fabulous and ridiculous as they are, show us the attitude which the men of that time, from force of custom, took towards the gods. And Numa himself, as they say, had such implicit confidence in the gods, that once, when a message was brought to him that enemies were coming up against the city, he smiled and said: "But I am sacrificing."

¹ Fabulous gnomes associated with the Mount Ida of Phrygia and Crete.

XVI. Πρῶτον δέ φασι καὶ Πίστεως καὶ Τέρμονος ἱερὸν ἰδρῦσασθαι. καὶ τὴν μὲν Πίστιν
 ὄρκον ἀποδείξαι Ῥωμαίοις μέγιστον, ᾧ χρώμενοι
 μέχρι νῦν διατελοῦσιν· ὁ δὲ Τέρμων ὄρος ἂν τις
 εἴη, καὶ θύουσιν αὐτῷ δημοσίᾳ καὶ ἰδίᾳ κατὰ
 τοὺς τῶν ἀγρῶν περιορισμούς, νῦν μὲν ἔμφυχα,
 τὸ παλαιὸν δὲ ἀναίμακτος ἦν ἡ θυσία, Νομᾶ 71
 φιλοσοφήσαντος ὡς χρὴ τὸν ὄριον θεὸν εἰρήνης
 φύλακα καὶ δικαιοσύνης μάρτυν ὄντα φόνου
 2 καθαρὸν εἶναι. δοκεῖ δὲ καὶ ὅλως οὗτος ὀρίσαι
 τὴν χώραν ὁ βασιλεὺς, Ῥωμύλου μὴ βουλη-θέντος ἐξομολογήσασθαι τῷ μέτρῳ τοῦ οἰκείου
 τὴν ἀφαίρεσιν τοῦ ἀλλοτρίου· δεσμὸν γὰρ εἶναι
 τῆς δυνάμεως τὸν ὄρον, ἂν φυλάττηται, μὴ
 φυλαττόμενον δὲ τῆς ἀδικίας ἔλεγχον. οὐ μὴν
 οὐδὲ ἦν δαψιλῆς χώρα τῇ πόλει κατ' ἀρχάς, ἀλλὰ
 3 τὴν πολλὴν αἰχμῇ προσεκλήσατο Ῥωμύλος· καὶ
 ταύτην πᾶσαν ὁ Νομᾶς διένειμε τοῖς ἀπόροις
 τῶν πολιτῶν, ὡς ἀνάγκη τῆς ἀδικίας ἀφαιρῶν
 τὴν ἀπορίαν, καὶ τρέπων ἐπὶ γεωργίαν τὸν δῆμον
 ἅμα τῇ χώρᾳ συνεξημερούμενον. οὐδὲν γὰρ ἄλλο
 τῶν ἐπιτηδευμάτων οὕτως ἔρωτα δριμύνει εἰρήνης ἐργάζεται καὶ ταχύνει ὡς ὁ ἀπὸ γῆς βίος, ἐν ᾧ καὶ τῆς πολεμικῆς εὐτολμίας τὸ μὲν ὑπερμαχητικὸν τοῦ οἰκείου διαμένει καὶ πάρεστι, τὸ δὲ εἰς ἀδικίαν καὶ πλεονεξίαν ἀνειμένον ἐκκέκοπται.
 4 διὸ καὶ τὴν γεωργίαν ὁ Νομᾶς οἶον εἰρήνης
 φίλτρον ἐμμίξας τοῖς πολίταις καὶ μᾶλλον ὡς
 ἠθοποιὸν ἢ πλουτοποιὸν ἀγαπήσας τέχνην, εἰς
 μέρη τὴν χώραν διεῖλεν, ἅ πάγους προσηγόρευσε,
 καὶ καθ' ἕκαστον ἐπισκόπους ἔταξε καὶ περι-

NUMA

XVI. He was also the first, they say, to build temples to Faith and Terminus; and he taught the Romans their most solemn oath by Faith, which they still continue to use. Terminus signifies boundary, and to this god they make public and private sacrifices where their fields are set off by boundaries; of living victims nowadays, but anciently the sacrifice was a bloodless one, since Numa reasoned that the god of boundaries was a guardian of peace and a witness of just dealing, and should therefore be clear from slaughter. And it is quite apparent that it was this king who set bounds to the territory of the city, for Romulus was unwilling to acknowledge, by measuring off his own, how much he had taken away from others. He knew that a boundary, if observed, fetters lawless power; and if not observed, convicts of injustice. And indeed the city's territory was not extensive at first, but Romulus acquired most of it later with the spear. All this was distributed by Numa among the indigent citizens. He wished to remove the destitution which drives men to wrongdoing, and to turn the people to agriculture, that they might be subdued and softened along with the soil they tilled. For there is no other occupation which produces so keen and quick a relish for peace as that of a farmer's life, where so much of the warrior's daring as prompts a man to fight for his own, is always preserved, while the warrior's licence to indulge in rapacity and injustice is extirpated. Numa, therefore, administering agriculture to his citizens as a sort of peace-potion, and well pleased with the art as fostering character rather than wealth, divided the city's territory into districts, to which he gave the name of "pagi," and in each of them he set

PLUTARCH'S LIVES

πόλους. ἔστι δ' ὅτε καὶ αὐτὸς ἐφορῶν καὶ τεκμαιρόμενος ἀπὸ τῶν ἔργων τοὺς τρόπους τῶν πολιτῶν τοὺς μὲν εἰς τιμὰς καὶ πίστεις ἀνῆγε, τοὺς δὲ ῥαθύμους καὶ ἀμελεῖς ψέγων καὶ κακίζων ἐσωφρόνιζε.

XVII. Τῶν δὲ ἄλλων αὐτοῦ πολιτευμάτων ἡ κατὰ τέχνας διανομὴ τοῦ πλήθους μάλιστα θαυμάζεται. τῆς γὰρ πόλεως ἐκ δυεῖν γενῶν, ὥσπερ εἴρηται, συνεστάναι δοκούσης, διεστώσης δὲ μᾶλλον καὶ μηδενὶ τρόπῳ μιᾶς γενέσθαι βουλομένης μηδὲ οἶον ἐξαλεῖψαι τὴν ἑτερότητα καὶ διαφορὰν, ἀλλὰ συγκρούσεις ἀπαύστους καὶ φιλονεικίας τῶν μερῶν ἐχούσης, διανοηθεὶς ὅτι καὶ τῶν σωμάτων τὰ φύσει δύσμικτα καὶ σκληρὰ καταθραύοντες καὶ διαιροῦντες ἀναμιγνύουσιν, ὑπὸ μικρότητος ἀλλήλοις συμβαίοντα μᾶλλον,
 2 ἔγνω κατατεμεῖν τομὰς πλείονας τὸ σύμπαν πλῆθος· ἐκ δὲ τούτων εἰς ἑτέρας ἐμβαλὼν διαφορὰς τὴν πρώτην ἐκείνην καὶ μεγάλην ἀφανίσαι ταῖς ἐλάττωσιν ἐνδιασπαρεῖσαν. ἦν δὲ ἡ διανομὴ κατὰ τὰς τέχνας, αὐλητῶν, χρυσοχόων, τεκτόνων, βαφέων, σκυτοτόμων, σκυτοδεψῶν, χαλκίων, κεραμέων. τὰς δὲ λοιπὰς τέχνας εἰς ταῦτ' ἀναγαγὼν ἐν αὐτῶν ἐκ πασῶν ἀπέδειξε σύστημα.
 3 κοινωνίας δὲ καὶ συνόδους καὶ θεῶν τιμὰς ἰποδούς ἐκάστῳ γένει προπέουσας, τότε πρῶτον ἐκ τῆς πόλεως ἀνείλε τὸ λέγεσθαι καὶ νομίζεσθαι τοὺς μὲν Σαβίνους, τοὺς δὲ Ῥωμαίους, καὶ τοὺς overseers and patrols. But sometimes he would inspect them in person, and judging of the characters of the citizens from the condition of their farms, would advance some to positions of honour and trust; while others, who were indolent and careless, he would chide and reproach, and so try to make them sensible.

NUMA

XVII. But of all his measures, the one most admired was his distribution of the people into groups according to their trades or arts. For the city was supposed to consist of two tribes, as has been said,¹ although it had no consistency, but was rather divided into two tribes, and utterly refused to become united, or to blot out its diversities and differences. On the contrary, it was filled with ceaseless collisions and contentions between its component parts. Numa, therefore, aware that hard substances which will not readily mingle may be crushed and pulverized, and then more easily mix and mingle with each other, owing to the smallness of their particles, determined to divide the entire body of the people into a greater number of divisions, and so, by merging it in other distinctions, to obliterate the original and great distinction, which would be lost among the lesser ones. He distributed them, accordingly, by arts and trades, into musicians, goldsmiths, carpenters, dyers, leather-workers, curriers, braziers, and potters. The remaining trades he grouped together, and made one body out of all who belonged to them. He also appointed social gatherings and public assemblies and rites of worship befitting each body. And thus, at last, he banished from the city the practice of speaking and thinking of some citizens as Sabines, and of others

¹ Chapter ii. 4 f.

PLUTARCH'S LIVES

μὲν Τατίου, τοὺς δὲ Ῥωμύλου πολίτας, ὥστε τὴν διαίρεσιν εὐαρμοστίαν καὶ ἀνάμιξιν πάντων γενέσθαι πρὸς πάντας.

- 4 Ἐπαινεῖται δὲ τῶν πολιτικῶν αὐτοῦ καὶ τὸ περὶ τὸν νόμον διόρθωμα τὸν διδόντα τοῖς πατράσι τοὺς παῖδας πιπρᾶσκειν, ὑπέξελομένου τοὺς γεγαμηκότας, εἰ τοῦ πατρὸς ἐπαινοῦντος καὶ κελεύοντος ὁ γάμος γένοιτο. δεινὸν γὰρ ἡγεῖτο τὴν ὡς ἐλευθέρῳ γεγαμημένην γυναῖκα δούλῳ συνοικεῖν.

- XVIII. Ἡψατο δὲ καὶ τῆς περὶ τὸν οὐρανὸν πραγματείας οὔτε ἀκριβῶς οὔτε παντάπασιν ἀθεωρήτως. Ῥωμύλου γὰρ βασιλεύοντος ἀλόγως ἐχρῶντο τοῖς μῆσι καὶ ἀτάκτως, τοὺς μὲν οὐδὲ εἴκοσιν ἡμερῶν, τοὺς δὲ πέντε καὶ τριάκοντα, τοὺς δὲ πλειόνων λογιζόμενοι, τῆς δὲ γινομένης ἀνωμαλίας περὶ τὴν σελήνην καὶ τὸν ἥλιον ἔννοιαν οὐκ ἔχοντες, ἀλλ' ἐν φυλάττοντες μόνον, ὅπως ἐξήκοντα καὶ τριακοσίων ἡμερῶν ὁ ἐνιαυτὸς
- 2 ἔσται. Νομᾶς δὲ τὸ παράλλαγμα τῆς ἀνωμαλίας ἡμερῶν ἔνδεκα γίνεσθαι λογιζόμενος, ὡς τοῦ μὲν σεληνιακοῦ τριακοσίας πεντήκοντα τέσσαρας ἔχοντος ἡμέρας, τοῦ δὲ ἡλιακοῦ τριακοσίας ἐξήκοντα πέντε, τὰς ἔνδεκα ταύτας ἡμέρας διπλασιάζων ἐπήγαγε παρ' ἐνιαυτὸν ἐπὶ τῷ Φεβρου-
- 72 ἀρίῳ μηνὶ τὸν ἐμβόλιμον, ὑπὸ Ῥωμαίων Μερκηδῖνον καλούμενον, εἴκοσι καὶ δυοῖν ἡμερῶν ὄντα.
- 3 καὶ τοῦτο μὲν αὐτῷ τὸ ἴαμα τῆς ἀνωμαλίας μειζόνων ἔμελλεν ἰαμάτων δεήσεσθαι.

Μετεκίνησε δὲ καὶ τὴν τάξιν τῶν μηνῶν· τὸν γὰρ Μάρτιον πρῶτον ὄντα τρίτον ἔταξε, πρῶτον δὲ τὸν Ἰανουάριον, ὃς ἦν ἐνδέκατος ἐπὶ Ῥωμύλου, as Romans; or of some as subjects of Tattius, and others of Romulus, so that his division resulted in a harmonious blending of them all together.

NUMA

Praise is also given to that measure of his whereby the law permitting fathers to sell their sons was amended. He made an exception of married sons, provided they had married with the consent and approval of their fathers. For he thought it a hard thing that a woman who had married a man whom she thought free, should find herself living with a slave.

XVIII. He applied himself, also, to the adjustment of the calendar, not with exactness, and yet not altogether without careful observation. For during the reign of Romulus, they had been irrational and irregular in their fixing of the months, reckoning some at less than twenty days, some at thirty-five, and some at more; they had no idea of the inequality in the annual motions of the sun and moon, but held to this principle only, that the year should consist of three hundred and sixty days. But Numa, estimating the extent of the inequality at eleven days, since the lunar year had three hundred and fifty-four days, but the solar year three hundred and sixty-five, doubled these eleven days, and every other year inserted after the month of February the intercalary month called Mercedinus by the Romans, which consisted of twenty-two days. This correction of the inequality which he made was destined to require other and greater corrections in the future.

He also changed the order of the months. March, which had been first, he made the third month, and January, which had been the eleventh under Romulus,

PLUTARCH'S LIVES

δωδέκατος δὲ καὶ τελευταῖος ὁ Φεβρουάριος, ᾧ
 νῦν δευτέρῳ χρῶνται. πολλοὶ δὲ εἰσιν οἱ καὶ προστεθῆναι τούτους ὑπὸ Νομᾶ τοὺς μῆνας λέ-γουσι, τὸν τε Ἰανουάριον καὶ τὸν Φεβρουάριον, 4 ἐξ ἀρχῆς δὲ χρῆσθαι δέκα μόνον εἰς τὸν ἐνιαυτὸν,
 ὡς ἔνιοι τῶν βαρβάρων τρισί, καὶ τῶν Ἑλλήνων Ἀρκάδες μὲν τέσσαρσιν, ἐξ δὲ Ἀκαρνανες, Αἴγυ-πτίοις δὲ μηνιαῖος ἦν ὁ ἐνιαυτός, εἶτα τετρά-μηνος, ὡς φασι. διὸ καὶ νεωτάτην χώραν οἰκοῦντες ἀρχαιότατοι δοκοῦσιν εἶναι καὶ πλήθος
 ἀμύχανον ἐτῶν ἐπὶ ταῖς γενεαλογίαις καταφέρου-σιν, ἅτε δὴ τοὺς μῆνας εἰς ἐτῶν ἀριθμὸν τιθέμενοι.

XIX. Ῥωμαῖοι δὲ ὅτι μὲν δέκα μῆνας εἰς τὸν
 ἐνιαυτὸν ἔταπτον, οὐ δώδεκα, τεκμήριον ἢ τοῦ
 τελευταίου προσηγορία· δέκατον γὰρ αὐτὸν ἄχρι
 νῦν καλοῦσιν· ὅτι δὲ τὸν Μάρτιον πρῶτον, ἢ
 τάξις· τὸν γὰρ ἀπ' ἐκείνου πέμπτον ἐκάλουν
 πέμπτον· ἕκτον δὲ τὸν ἕκτον καὶ τῶν ἄλλων
 ἐξῆς ὁμοίως ἕκαστον, ἐπεὶ τὸν Ἰανουάριον καὶ
 τὸν Φεβρουάριον πρὸ τοῦ Μαρτίου τιθεμένους
 συνέβαινε αὐτοῖς τὸν εἰρημένον μῆνα πέμπτον
 2 μὲν ὀνομάζειν, ἕβδομον δὲ ἀριθμεῖν. ἄλλως δὲ
 καὶ λόγον εἶχε τὸν Μάρτιον Ἄρει καθιερωμένον
 ὑπὸ τοῦ Ῥωμύλου πρῶτον ὀνομάζεσθαι· δεύτερον
 δὲ τὸν Ἀπρίλλιον, ἐπώνυμον ὄντα τῆς Ἀφροδί-της, ἐν ᾧ θύουσί τε τῇ θεῷ καὶ ταῖς καλάνδαῖς
 αἱ γυναῖκες ἐστεφανωμένοι μυρσίνη λούονται.
 τινὲς δὲ οὐ διὰ τὴν Ἀφροδίτην τὸν Ἀπρίλλιόν

NUMA

he made the first month ; February, which had been twelfth and last, thus became the second month, as now. But there are many who say that these months of January and February were added to the calendar by Numa, and that at the outset the Romans had only ten months in their year, as some Barbarians have three, and as, among the Greeks, the Arcadians have four, and the Acarnanians six ; the Aegyptian year had at first only a single month in it, afterwards four, as we are told. And therefore, though they inhabit a very recent country,¹ they have the credit of being a very ancient people, and load their genealogies with a prodigious number of years, since they really count their months as so many years.

XIX. That the Romans had at first only ten months in their year, and not twelve, is proved by the name of their last month ; for they still call it December, or the tenth month. And that March used to be their first month, is proved by the sequence of months after it ; for the fifth month after it used to be called Quintilis, the sixth Sextilis, and so on with the rest. Therefore, when they placed January and February before March, they were guilty of naming the above-mentioned month Quintilis, or fifth, but counting it seventh. And besides, it was reasonable that March, which is consecrate to Mars, should be put in the first place by Romulus, and April in the second place, since this month is named after Aphrodite. In it they sacrificed to this goddess, and on its first day the women bathe with myrtle garlands on their heads. Some, however, say that April, with its smooth "p," cannot ¹ Perhaps as formed by the deposits of the Nile (Herod. ii. 5 and 9).

PLUTARCH'S LIVES

- φασιν, ἀλλ' ὥσπερ ἔχει τοῦνομα ψιλόν, Ἀπρίλιον κεκλήσθαι τὸν μῆνα τῆς ἔαρινῆς ὥρας ἀκμαζούσης ἀνοίγοντα καὶ ἀνακαλύπτοντα τοὺς βλαστοὺς τῶν φυτῶν· τοῦτο γὰρ ἡ γλῶττα σημαίνει.
- 3 τῶν δ' ἐφεξῆς τὸν μὲν Μαΐιον καλοῦσιν ἀπὸ Μαΐας· Ἑρμῆ γὰρ ἀνιέρωται· τὸν δὲ Ἰούνιον ἀπὸ τῆς Ἥρας. εἰσὶ δέ τινες οἱ τούτους ἡλικίας ἐπωνύμους εἶναι λέγοντες πρεσβυτέρας καὶ νεωτέρας· μαϊώρεις γὰρ οἱ πρεσβύτεροι παρ' αὐτοῖς, ἰουνιώρεις δὲ οἱ νεώτεροι καλοῦνται. τῶν δὲ λοιπῶν ἕκαστον ἀπὸ τῆς τάξεως, ὥσπερ ἀριθμοῦντες, ὠνόμαζον πέμπτου, ἕκτου, ἑβδομου, ὄγδοου, ἕνατου, δέκατου.
- 4 εἶτα ὁ πέμπτος ἀπὸ Καίσαρος τοῦ καταγωνισαμένου Πομπηίου Ἰούλιος· ὁ δὲ ἕκτος Αὐγουστος ἀπὸ τοῦ δευτέρου μὲν ἄρξαντος, Σεβαστοῦ δὲ ἐπικληθέντος, ὠνομάσθη. τοὺς δὲ ἐφεξῆς¹ Δομετιανὸς εἰσεποίησε ταῖς αὐτοῦ προσωυμίαις οὐ πολὺν χρόνον, ἀλλὰ τὰς αὐτῶν ἀναλαβόντες πάλιν ἐκείνου σφαγέντος ὁ μὲν ἑβδομος, ὁ δὲ ὄγδοος καλοῦνται. μόνοι δ' οἱ τελευταῖοι δύο τὴν ἀπὸ τῆς τάξεως κλήσιν, ὥσπερ ἔσχον ἐξ ἀρχῆς, διεφύλαξαν.
- 5 Τῶν δὲ ὑπὸ Νομᾶ προστεθέντων ἡ μετατεθέντων ὁ μὲν Φεβρουάριος οἶον καθάρσιος ἂν τις εἴη· καὶ γὰρ ἡ λέξις ἔγγιστα τοῦτο σημαίνει, καὶ τοῖς φθιτοῖς ἐναγίζουσι τότε καὶ τὴν τῶν Λουπερκαλίων ἑορτὴν εἰς τὰ πολλὰ καθαρμῶ προσεοικυῖαν τελούσιν· ὁ δὲ πρῶτος Ἰανουάριος ἀπὸ τοῦ Ἰανοῦ. δοκεῖ δέ μοι τὸν Μάρτιον ὁ Νομᾶς

¹ ἐφεξῆς Bekker adds δύο.

NUMA

be derived from Aphrodite, with its rough "ph," but that this month of high spring time is called April because it opens and discloses the buds and shoots in vegetation, this being the meaning of the word "aperio." The next month in order is called May, from Maia, the mother of Mercury, to whom it is sacred ; and June is so named from Juno. There are some, however, who say that these months get their name from an age, older and younger ; for "majores" is their name for the elder, "juniores" for the younger men. Each of the remaining months they named from its arithmetical position in the list, the fifth Quintilis, the sixth Sextilis, and so on with September, October, November, and December. Afterwards the fifth month was named Julius, from Julius Caesar, the conqueror of Pompey ; and the sixth month Augustus, from the second Caesar, who was given that title. The seventh and eighth months bore for a short time the names Germanicus and Domitianus, which the emperor Domitian gave them ; but when he was slain, they resumed their old names of September and October. Only the last two months, November and December, preserved the names derived from their position in the list just as they were at the outset.

Of the months which were added or transposed by Numa, February must have something to do with purification, for this is nearest to the meaning of the word, and in this month they make offerings to the dead and celebrate the festival of the Lupercalia, which, in most of its features, resembles a purification.¹ The first month, January, is so named from Janus. And I think that March, which is

¹ Cf. Romulus, xxi. 4-8.

PLUTARCH'S LIVES

ἐπώνυμον ὄντα τοῦ Ἄρεως ἐκ τῆς προεδρίας μεταστῆσαι, βουλόμενος ἐν παντὶ τῆς πολεμικῆς 6 δυνάμεως προτιμᾶσθαι τὴν πολιτικὴν. ὁ γὰρ Ἴανὸς ἐν τοῖς πάνυ παλαιοῖς εἴτε δαίμων εἴτε βασιλεὺς γενόμενος πολιτικὸς καὶ κοινωνικὸς ἐκ τοῦ θηριώδους καὶ ἀγρίου λέγεται μεταβαλεῖν τὴν δίαιταν. καὶ διὰ τοῦτο πλάττουσιν αὐτὸν ἀμφιπρόσωπον, ὡς ἑτέραν ἐξ ἑτέρας τῷ βίῳ περιποιήσαντα τὴν μορφήν καὶ διάθεσιν.

XX. Ἔστι δὲ αὐτοῦ καὶ νεὸς ἐν Ῥώμῃ 73
δίθυρος, ὃν πολέμου πύλην καλοῦσι. νομίζεται γὰρ ἀνεῶχθαι μὲν αὐτὸν ὅταν ἢ πόλεμος, κεκλείσθαι δὲ εἰρήνης γενομένης. ὁ δὲ χαλεπὸν ἦν καὶ σπανίως γινόμενον, αἰεὶ τιμὴν συνητημένης πολέμου τῆς ἡγεμονίας, διὰ μέγεθος τοῖς κύκλω περικεχυμένοις γένεσι βαρβάροις ἀντεριδούσης.
2 πλὴν ἐπὶ γε τοῦ Σεβαστοῦ Καίσαρος ἐκλείσθη καθελόντος Ἀντώνιον καὶ πρότερον ὑπατευόντων Μάρκου Ἀτιλίου καὶ Τίτου Μαλλίου χρόνον οὐ πολὺν· εἶτα εὐθὺς ἀνεῶχθη πολέμου συρραγέντος. ἀλλ' ἐπὶ γε τῆς Νομᾶ βασιλείας οὐδεμίαν ἡμέραν ἀνεωγμένος ὤφθη, τρία δὲ καὶ τετταράκοντα ἔτη συνεχῶς ἔμεινε κεκλεισμένος· οὕτως ἐξῆρητο παντελῶς τὰ τοῦ πολέμου καὶ
3 πανταχόθεν. οὐ γὰρ μόνον ὁ Ῥωμαίων ἡμέρωτο καὶ κατεκεκλήθητο τῇ δικαιοσύνῃ καὶ πραότητι τοῦ βασιλέως δῆμος, ἀλλὰ καὶ τὰς κύκλω πόλεις, ὥσπερ αὐρας τινὸς ἐκείθεν ἢ πνεύματος ὑγιεινοῦ φέροντος, ἀρχὴ μεταβολῆς ἔλαβε καὶ πόθος εἰσερρήνῃ πάντας εὐνομίας καὶ εἰρήνης καὶ γῆν φυτεύειν καὶ τέκνα τρέφειν ἐν ἡσυχίᾳ καὶ named from Mars, was moved by Numa from its place at the head of the months because he wished in every case that martial influences should yield precedence to civil and political. For this Janus, in remote antiquity, whether he was a demi-god or a king, was a patron of civil and social order, and is said to have lifted human life out of its bestial and savage state. For this reason he is represented with two faces, implying that he brought men's lives out of one sort and condition into another.

NUMA

XX. He also has a temple at Rome with double doors, which they call the gates of war; for the temple always stands open in time of war, but is closed when peace has come. The latter was a difficult matter, and it rarely happened, since the realm was always engaged in some war, as its increasing size brought it into collision with the barbarous nations which encompassed it round about. But in the time of Augustus Caesar it was closed, after he had overthrown Antony; and before that, when Marcus Atilius and Titus Manlius were consuls, it was closed a short time; then war broke out again at once, and it was opened. During the reign of Numa, however, it was not seen open for a single day, but remained shut for the space of forty-three years together, so complete and universal was the cessation of war. For not only was the Roman people softened and charmed by the righteousness and mildness of their king, but also the cities round about, as if some cooling breeze or salubrious wind were wafted upon them from Rome, began to experience a change of temper, and all of them were filled with longing desire to have good government, to be at peace, to till the earth, to rear their children

PLUTARCH'S LIVES

- 4 σέβεσθαι θεούς. ἑορταὶ δὲ καὶ θαλῖαι καὶ παρ' ἀλλήλους ἀδεῶς ἰόντων καὶ ἀναμικνυμένων ὑποδοχαὶ καὶ φιλοφροσύναι τὴν Ἰταλίαν κατεῖχον, οἷον ἐκ πηγῆς τῆς Νομᾶ σοφίας τῶν καλῶν καὶ δικαίων ἐπεισερόντων εἰς ἅπαντας καὶ διαχεομένης τῆς περὶ ἐκεῖνον γαλήνης· ὥστε καὶ τὰς ποιητικὰς ὑπερβολὰς ἐνδεῖν πρὸς τὴν τότε κατά-
- 5 στασιν λέγουσιν· “Ἐν δὲ σιδαροδέτοις πόρπαξιν αἰθᾶν ἀραχνᾶν ἔργα” καί, “εὐρὼς δάμναται ἔγχεά τε λογχωτὰ ξίφεά τ' ἀμφήκεα, χαλκεᾶν δὲ οὐκέτι σαλπύγγων κτύπος, οὐδὲ συλᾶται μελίφρων ὕπνος ἀπὸ βλεφάρων.” οὔτε γὰρ πόλεμος οὔτε στάσις οὔτε νεωτερισμὸς περὶ πολιτείαν ἱστορήται Νομᾶ βασιλεύοντος· οὐ μὴν οὐδ' ἐπ' αὐτὸν ἐκεῖνον ἔχθρα τις ἢ φθόνος ἢ δι' ἔρωτα
- 6 βασιλείας ἐπιβουλὴ καὶ σύστασις ἀνδρῶν, ἀλλ' εἴτε φόβος θεῶν προκῆδεσθαι δοκούντων τοῦ ἀνδρὸς εἴτε τῆς ἀρετῆς αἰδῶς εἴτε δαιμόνιος¹ τύχη, πάσης κακίας ἄθικτον ἐπ' ἐκεῖνον καὶ καθαρὸν διαφυλάττουσα τὸν βίον, ἐναργὲς ἐξήνεγκε παράδειγμα καὶ τεκμήριον τῆς Πλατωνικῆς φωνῆς, ἣν ὕστερον ἐκεῖνος οὐκ ὀλίγοις χρόνοις
- 7 γενόμενος ἐτόλμησεν ἀφεῖναι περὶ πολιτείας, ὡς μία κακῶν παῦλα καὶ λύσις ἀνθρώποις ἐστίν, ἕκτινος τύχης θείας εἰς ταῦτ' οὐκ ὀλίγοις χρόνοις φιλσοσόφῳ βασιλικὴν συμπεσοῦσαν δύναμιν ἐγκρατῆ καὶ ὑπερδέξιον τῆς κακίας τὴν ἀρετὴν καταστήσαι. “Μακάριος μὲν γὰρ αὐτὸς” ὁ σῶφρων ὡς ἀλη-

¹ δαιμόνιος Bryan's correction, adopted by Coraës and Bekker : δαίμονος.

NUMA

in quiet, and to worship the gods. Festivals and feasts, hospitalities and friendly converse between people who visited one another promiscuously and without fear,—these prevailed throughout Italy, while honour and justice flowed into all hearts from the wisdom of Numa, as from a fountain, and the calm serenity of his spirit diffused itself abroad. Thus even the hyperboles of the poets fall short of picturing the state of man in those days: “And on the iron-bound shield-handles lie the tawney spiders’ webs”; and, “rust now subdues the sharp-pointed spears and two-edged swords; no longer is the blast of brazen trumpets heard, nor are the eyelids robbed of delicious sleep.”¹ For there is no record either of war, or faction, or political revolution while Numa was king. Nay more, no hatred or jealousy was felt towards his person, nor did ambition lead men to plot and conspire against his throne. On the contrary, either fear of the gods, who seemed to have him in their especial care, or reverence for his virtue, or a marvellous felicity, which in his days kept life free from the taint of every vice, and pure, made him a manifest illustration and confirmation of the saying which Plato,² many generations later, ventured to utter regarding government, namely, that human ills would only then cease and disappear when, by some divine felicity, the power of a king should be united in one person with the insight of a philosopher, thereby establishing virtue in control and mastery over vice. “Blessed,” indeed, is such a wise man

¹ A free citation, apparently from memory, of Bacchylides, Fragment 13 (Bergk). See Jebb's Bacchylides, p. 411.

² Republic, p. 487 e.

8 θῶς, “μακάριοι δὲ οἱ συνήκοι τῶν ἐκ τοῦ σωφρο-νουήτος στόματος ἰόντων λόγων.” τάχα γὰρ οὐδὲ ἀνάγκης τινὸς δεῖ πρὸς τοὺς πολλοὺς οὐδὲ ἀπειλῆς, αὐτοὶ δὲ τὴν ἀρετὴν ἐν εὐδήλῳ παραδείγματι
 καὶ λαμπρῷ τῷ βίῳ τοῦ ἄρχοντος ὀρῶντες, ἐκου-σίως σωφρονούσι καὶ συμμετασχηματίζονται
 πρὸς τὸν ἐν φιλία καὶ ὁμονοίᾳ τῇ πρὸς αὐτοὺς
 μετὰ δικαιοσύνης καὶ μετριότητος ἀμύμονα¹ καὶ
 μακάριον βίον, ἐν ᾧ τὸ κάλλιστον ἀπάσης πολιτείας τέλος ἐστί, καὶ βασιλικώτατος ἀπάντων
 ὁ τοῦτον τὸν βίον καὶ ταύτην τὴν διάθεσιν τοῖς ὑπηκόοις ἐνεργάσασθαι δυνάμενος. ταῦτα μὲν
 οὖν Νομᾶς παντὸς μᾶλλον φαίνεται συνεωρακῶς.

XXI. Περὶ δὲ παίδων αὐτοῦ καὶ γάμων ἀντιλογίαι γεγόνασι τοῖς ἱστορικοῖς. οἱ μὲν γὰρ οὔτε
 γάμον ἄλλον ἢ τὸν Τατίας λαβεῖν αὐτὸν οὔτε
 παιδὸς ἐτέρου γενέσθαι πατέρα πλὴν μίᾳ θυγατρὸς Πομπιλίας λέγουσιν· οἱ δὲ πρὸς ταύτην τέσ-σαρὰς υἱοὺς ἀναγράφουσιν αὐτοῦ, Πόμπωνα,
 Πῖνον, Κάλπον, Μάμερκον, ὧν ἕκαστον οἴκου
 2 διαδοχὴν καὶ γένους ἐντίμου καταλιπεῖν. εἶναι
 γὰρ ἀπὸ μὲν τοῦ Πόμπωνος τοὺς Πομπωνίους, ἀπὸ δὲ Πῖνου τοὺς Πιναρίους, ἀπὸ δὲ Κάλπου 74
 τοὺς Καλπουρνίους, ἀπὸ δὲ Μάμερκου τοὺς Μαμερκίους, οἷς διὰ τοῦτο καὶ Ῥήγας γενέσθαι
 παρωνύμιον, ὅπερ ἐστὶ βασιλέας. τρίτοι δὲ εἰσιν
 οἱ τούτων μὲν κατηγοροῦντες ὡς χαριζομένων τοῖς
 γένεσι καὶ προστιθέντων οὐκ ἀληθῆ στέμματα
 τῆς ἀπὸ Νομᾶ διαδοχῆς, τὴν δὲ Πομπιλίαν οὐκ ἐκ Τατίας γεγενῆσθαι λέγοντες, ἀλλ’ ἐξ ἐτέρας γυναι-

¹ ἀμύμονα MSS. and edd. : ἀκύμονα (inactive, serene), after Wytttenbach.

NUMA

“in himself, and blessed, too, are those who hear the words of wisdom issuing from his lips.”¹ For possibly there is no need of any compulsion or menace in dealing with the multitude, but when they see with their own eyes a conspicuous and shining example of virtue in the life of their ruler, they will of their own accord walk in wisdom’s ways, and unite with him in conforming themselves to a blameless and blessed life of friendship and mutual concord, attended by righteousness and temperance. Such a life is the noblest end of all government, and he is most a king who can inculcate such a life and such a disposition in his subjects. This, then, as it appears, Numa was preeminent in discerning.

XXI. As regards his marriages and offspring, historians are at variance. Some say that he had no other wife than Tatia, and no other child than one daughter, Pompilia. Others ascribe to him four sons besides, Pompon, Pinus, Calpus, and Mamercus, each one of whom was the founder of an honourable family. From Pompon the Pomponii are descended, from Pinus the Pinarii, from Calpus the Calpurnii, and from Mamercus the Mamercii, who for this reason had also the surname of Reges, or Kings. But there is a third class of writers who accuse the former of paying court to these great families by forging for them lines of descent from Numa, and they say that Pompilia was not the daughter of Tatia, but of Lucretia, another wife whom Numa

¹ Cf. Plato, Laws, p. 711 e.

PLUTARCH'S LIVES

- 3 κός, ἦν ἤδη βασιλεύων ἔγηνε, Λουκρητίας πάντες δ' οὖν ὁμολογοῦσι τὴν Πομπιλίαν Μαρκίῳ γαμηθῆναι. παῖς δὲ ἦν ὁ Μάρκιος ἐκείνου Μαρκίου τοῦ Νομᾶν παρορμήσαντος ἐπὶ τὴν βασιλείαν· καὶ γὰρ συμμετώκησεν εἰς Ῥώμην αὐτῷ καὶ τῆς συγκλήτου μετέσχε τιμώμενος, καὶ μετὰ τὴν Νομᾶ τελευταίην Ὀστιλίῳ περὶ τῆς βασιλείας εἰς ἀγῶνα καταστάς καὶ ἠττηθεὶς ἀπεκατέρησεν. ὁ δὲ υἱὸς αὐτοῦ Μάρκιος ἔχων τὴν Πομπιλίαν κατέμεινεν ἐν Ῥώμῃ καὶ Μάρκιον Ἄγκον ἐγέννησεν, ὃς μετὰ Τύλλον Ὀστίλιον ἐβασίλευσε.
- 4 τοῦτον, ὡς λέγεται, πενταετῆ καταλιπὼν ὁ Νομᾶς ἐτελεύτησεν, οὐ ταχείας οὐδ' αἰφνιδίου γενομένης αὐτῷ τῆς τελευτῆς, ἀλλὰ κατὰ μικρὸν ὑπὸ γήρωσ καὶ νόσου μαλακῆς ἀπομαραινόμενος, ὡς ἰστόρηκε Πείσων. ἐτελεύτησε δὲ χρόνον οὐ πολὺν τοῖς ὀγδοήκοντα προσβιώσας.

XXII. Ζηλωτὸν δὲ αὐτοῦ καὶ τῷ τάφῳ τὸν βίον ἐποίησαν οἱ τε σύμμαχοι καὶ φίλοι δῆμοι, συνελθόντες ἐπὶ τὰς ταφὰς ἅμα δημοσίαις ἐπιφοραῖς καὶ στεφάνοις, οἱ τε πατρίκιοι τὸ λέχος ἀράμενοι, καὶ συμπαρόντες οἱ τῶν θεῶν ἱερεῖς καὶ παρπέμποντες, ὁ δ' ἄλλος ὄμιλος ἀναμειγμένων καὶ γυναικῶν καὶ παίδων οὐχ ὡς βασιλέως ταφαῖς γηραιοῦ παρόντες, ἀλλ' ὡς τινα τῶν φιλτάτων ἕκαστος ἐν ἀκμῇ βίου ποθούμενον θάπτων, μετ' οἰμωγῆς καὶ κλαυθμῶν ἐπόμεινοι. πυρὶ μὲν οὖν οὐκ ἔδοσαν τὸν νεκρὸν αὐτοῦ κωλύσαντος, ὡς λέγεται, δύο δὲ ποιησάμενοι λιθίνας σορούς ὑπὸ τὸ Ἰάνοκλον ἔθηκαν, τὴν μὲν ἑτέραν ἔχουσαν τὸ σῶμα, τὴν δὲ ἑτέραν τὰς ἱερὰς βίβλους ἃς ἐγράψατο μὲν αὐτός, married after he became king. However, all are agreed that Pompilia was married to Marcius. Now this Marcius was a son of the Marcius who induced Numa to accept the throne.¹ That Marcius accompanied Numa to Rome, and there was honoured with membership in the Senate. After Numa's death, he competed for the throne with Hostilius, and being defeated, starved himself to death. But his son Marcius, the husband of Pompilia, remained at Rome, and begat Ancus Marcius, who succeeded Tullus Hostilius in the kingdom. This Ancus Marcius is said to have been only five years old when Numa died, not a speedy nor a sudden death, but wasting away gradually from old age and a mild disorder, as Piso writes. He was something over eighty years old when he died.

NUMA

XXII. His obsequies were as much to be envied as his life. The peoples which were in alliance and friendship with Rome assembled at the rites with public offerings and crowns; the senators carried his bier, the priests of the gods served as its escort, and the rest of the people, including women and children, followed with groans and lamentations, not as though they were attending the funeral of an aged king, but as though each one of them was burying some dearest relation taken away in the flower of life. They did not burn his body, because, as it is said, he forbade it; but they made two stone coffins and buried them under the Janiculum. One of these held his body, and the other the sacred books which he had written out with his own hand, as the Greek

¹ Cf. chapter vi.

PLUTARCH'S LIVES

- ὥσπερ οἱ τῶν Ἑλλήνων νομοθέται τοὺς κύρβεις, ἐκδιδάξας δὲ τοὺς ἱερεῖς ἔτι ζῶν τὰ γεγραμμένα καὶ πάντων ἕξιν τε καὶ γνώμην ἐνεργασάμενος αὐτοῖς, ἐκέλευσε συνταφῆναι μετὰ τοῦ σώματος, ὡς οὐ καλῶς ἐν ἀψύχοις γράμμασι φρουρουμένων
- 3 τῶν ἀπορρήτων. ᾧ λογισμῷ φασὶ μηδὲ τοὺς Πυθαγορικοὺς εἰς γραφὴν κατατίθεσθαι τὰ συντάγματα, μνήμην δὲ καὶ παιδείυσιν αὐτῶν ἀγραφον ἐμποιεῖν τοῖς ἀξίοις. καὶ τῆς γε περὶ τὰς ἀπόρους καὶ ἀρρήτους λεγομένας ἐν γεωμετρίας μεθόδους πραγματείας πρὸς τινα τῶν ἀναξίων ἐκδοθείσης, ἔφασαν ἐπισημαίνειν τὸ δαιμόνιον μεγάλῳ τινὶ καὶ κοινῷ κακῷ τὴν γεγενημένην
- 4 παρανομίαν καὶ ἀσέβειαν ἐπεξερχόμενον. ὥστε συγγνώμην ἔχειν πολλὴν τοῖς εἰς τὸ αὐτὸ Πυθαγόρᾳ Νομῶν φιλοτιμουμένοις συνάγειν ἐπὶ τισαύταις ὁμοιότησιν.

Οἱ δὲ περὶ Ἀντίαν ἱστοροῦσι δώδεκα μὲν εἶναι βίβλους ἱεροφαντικὰς, δώδεκα δὲ ἄλλας Ἑλληνικὰς φιλοσόφους τὰς εἰς τὴν σορὸν συντεθείσας. τετρακοσίων δὲ που διαγενομένων ἐτῶν ὑπατοὶ μὲν ἦσαν Πόπλιος Κορνήλιος καὶ Μάρκος Βαίβιος· ὄμβρων δὲ μεγάλων ἐπιπεσόντων καὶ χῶματος περιρραγέντος ἐξέωσε τὰς σοροὺς τὸ lawgivers their tablets. But since, while he was still living, he had taught the priests the written contents of the books, and had inculcated in their hearts the scope and meaning of them all, he commanded that they should be buried with his body, convinced that such mysteries ought not to be entrusted to the care of lifeless documents. This is the reason, we are told, why the Pythagoreans also do not entrust their precepts to writing, but implant the memory and practice of them in living disciples worthy to receive them. And when their treatment of the abstruse and mysterious processes of geometry had been divulged to a certain unworthy person, they said the gods threatened to punish such lawlessness and impiety with some signal and wide-spread calamity. Therefore we may well be indulgent with those who are eager to prove, on the basis of so many resemblances between them, that Numa was acquainted with Pythagoras.

5 ρεῦμα· καὶ τῶν ἐπιθημάτων ἀποπεσόντων ἡ μὲν ἑτέρα κενὴ παντάπασιν ὤφθη καὶ μέρος οὐδὲν οὐδὲ λείψανον ἔχουσα τοῦ σώματος, ἐν δὲ τῇ ἑτέρα τῶν γραμμάτων εὐρεθέντων ἀναγνῶναι μὲν αὐτὰ λέγεται Πετίλιος στρατηγῶν τότε, πρὸς δὲ τὴν σύγκλητον κομίσαι,¹ μὴ δοκεῖν αὐτῷ θεμιτὸν εἶναι λέγων μηδὲ ὅσιον ἔκπυστα πολλοῖς τὰ γε-

¹ κομίσαι Coraës, Sintenis¹, and Bekker, with C: ὀρμήσαι.

NUMA

Antias, however, writes that it was twelve pontifical books, and twelve others of Greek philosophy, which were placed in the coffin. And about four hundred years afterwards, when Publius Cornelius and Marcus Baebius were consuls, heavy rains fell, and the torrent of water tore away the earth and dislodged the coffins. When their lids had fallen off, one coffin was seen to be entirely empty, without any trace whatever of the body, but in the other the writings were found. These Petilius, who was then praetor, is said to have read, and then brought to the senate, declaring that, in his opinion, it was not lawful or proper that the γραμμένα γενέσθαι· διὸ καὶ κομισθείσας εἰς τὸ Κομίτιον τὰς βίβλους κατακαῆναι.

PLUTARCH'S LIVES

- 6 Πᾶσι μὲν οὖν ἔπεται τοῖς δικαίοις καὶ ἀγαθοῖς ἀνδράσι μείζων ὁ κατόπιον καὶ μετὰ τὴν τελευτὴν ἔπαινος, τοῦ φθόνου πολὺν χρόνον οὐκ ἐπιζῶντος, ἐνίων δὲ καὶ προαποθνήσκοντος· οὐ μὴν ἀλλ' ἐκείνου γε τὴν δόξαν αἱ τῶν ὕστερον βασιλέων 75 τύχαι λαμπροτέραν ἐποίησαν. πέντε γὰρ γενομένων μετ' αὐτὸν ὁ μὲν ἔσχατος ἐκπεσὼν τῆς ἀρχῆς ἐν φυγῇ κατεγήρασε, τῶν δὲ τεσσάρων οὐδεὶς κατὰ φύσιν ἐτελεύτησεν, ἀλλ' οἱ μὲν τρεῖς 7 ἐπιβουλευθέντες ἐσφάγησαν, Ὀστίλιος δὲ Τύλλος, ὃς μετὰ Νομᾶν ἐβασίλευσε, καὶ τὰ πλεῖστα τῶν ἐκείνου καλῶν, ἐν δὲ πρώτοις καὶ μάλιστα τὴν περὶ τὸ θεῖον εὐλάβειαν, ἐπιχλευάσας καὶ καθυβρίσας ὡς ἀργοποιὸν καὶ γυναικῶδη, πρὸς πόλεμον ἔτρεψε τοὺς πολίτας, οὐδ' αὐτὸς ἐνέμεινε τοῖς νεανιεύμασι τούτοις, ἀλλ' ὑπὸ νόσου χαλεπῆς καὶ πολυτρόπου τὴν γνώμην ἀλλασσόμενος εἰς δεισιδαιμονίαν ἐνέδωκεν οὐδέν τι τῇ κατὰ Νομᾶν εὐσεβείᾳ προσήκουσαν, ἔτι δὲ μᾶλλον ἐνεποίησε τοῖς ἄλλοις τὸ τοιοῦτον πάθος, ὡς λέγεται, καταφλεχθεὶς ὑπὸ κεραυνῶν.

ΛΥΚΟΥΡΓΟΥ ΚΑΙ ΝΟΜΑ ΣΥΓΚΡΙΣΙΣ

Ι. Ἄλλ' ἐπεὶ τὸν Νομᾶ καὶ Λυκούργου διεληλύθαμεν βίον, ἐκκειμένων ἀμφοῖν, εἰ καὶ χαλεπὸν ἔργον, οὐκ ἀποκνητέον συναγαγεῖν τὰς διαφοράς.

COMPARISON OF LYCURGUS AND NUMA

writings should be published abroad. The books were therefore carried to the comitium and burned.

It is true, indeed, of all just and good men, that they are praised more after they have left the world than before, since envy does not long survive them, and some even see it die before them ; but in Numa's case the misfortunes of the kings who followed him made his fame shine all the brighter. For of the five who came after him, the last was dethroned and grew old in exile, and of the other four, not one died a natural death. Three of them were conspired against and slain ; and Tullus Hostilius, who reigned next after Numa, and who mocked and derided most of his virtues, and above all his devotion to religion, declaring that it made men idle and effeminate, turned the minds of the citizens to war. He himself, however, did not abide by his presumptuous folly, but was converted by a grievous and complicated disease, and gave himself over to a superstition which was far removed from the piety of Numa. His subjects, too, were even more affected with superstition, as we are told, when he died by a stroke of lightning.

COMPARISON OF LYCURGUS AND NUMA

I. Now that we have recounted the lives of Numa and Lycurgus, and both lie clearly before us, we must attempt, even though the task be difficult, to assemble and put together their points of difference.

PLUTARCH'S LIVES

- αἱ μὲν γὰρ κοινότητες ἐπιφαίνονται ταῖς πράξεσιν, οἷον ἡ σωφροσύνη τῶν ἀνδρῶν, ἡ εὐσέβεια, τὸ πολιτικόν, τὸ παιδευτικόν, τὸ μίαν ἀρχὴν παρὰ τῶν θεῶν ἀμφοτέρους λαβεῖν τῆς νομοθεσίας· τῶν δὲ ἰδίᾳ ἐκατέρου καλῶν πρῶτόν ἐστι Νομᾶ μὲν ἡ παράληψις τῆς βασιλείας, Λυκούργῳ δὲ ἡ
- 2 παράδοσις. ὁ μὲν γὰρ οὐκ αἰτῶν ἔλαβεν, ὁ δὲ ἔχων ἀπέδωκε. καὶ τὸν μὲν ἕτεροι κύριον αὐτῶν κατέστησαν ἰδιώτην καὶ ξένον ὄντα, ὁ δὲ αὐτὸς αὐτὸν ἰδιώτην ἐκ βασιλέως ἐποίησε. καλὸν μὲν οὖν τὸ κτήσασθαι δικαιοσύνη τὴν βασιλείαν, καλὸν δὲ τὸ προτιμῆσαι τὴν δικαιοσύνην τῆς βασιλείας. ἡ γὰρ ἀρετὴ τὸν μὲν οὕτως ἔνδοξον κατέστησεν ὥστε βασιλείας ἀξιωθῆναι, τὸν δὲ οὕτω μέγαν ἐποίησεν ὥστε βασιλείας καταφρονῆσαι.
- 3 Δεύτερον τοίνυν, ἐπεὶ καθάπερ ἀρμονικοὶ λύρας, ὁ μὲν ἐκλελυμένην καὶ τρυφῶσαν ἐπέτεινε τὴν Σπάρτην, ὁ δὲ τῆς Ῥώμης τὸ σφοδρὸν ἀνήκε καὶ σύντονον, ἡ μὲν χαλεπότης τοῦ ἔργου τῷ Λυκούργῳ πρόσσεστιν. οὐ γὰρ θώρακας ἐκδύναι καὶ ξίφη τοὺς πολίτας καταθέσθαι ἔπειθεν, ἀλλὰ χρυσὸν καὶ ἄργυρον ἀφείναι καὶ στρωμνὰς ἐμβαλεῖν πολυτελεῖς καὶ τραπέζας, οὐδὲ πανσαμένους πολέμων ἐορτάζειν καὶ θύειν, ἀλλὰ δεῖπνα καὶ πότους ἐάσαντας ἐν τοῖς ὄπλοις καὶ ταῖς
- 4 παλαίστραις διαπνεῖσθαι καὶ ἀσκεῖν. ὅθεν ὁ μὲν δι' εὐνοίας καὶ τιμῆς ἅπαντα πείθων ἔπραξεν, ὁ δὲ κινδυνεύων καὶ βαλλόμενος μόγις ἐπεκράτησεν.

COMPARISON OF LYCURGUS AND NUMA

For their points of likeness are obvious from their careers: their wise moderation, their piety, their talent for governing and educating, and their both deriving their laws from a divine source. But each also performed noble deeds peculiar to himself. To begin with, Numa accepted, but Lycurgus resigned, a kingdom. One got it without asking for it, the other had it and gave it up. One was made by others their sovereign, though a private person and a stranger; the other made himself a private person, though he was a king. It was a noble thing, of course, to win a kingdom by righteousness; but it was also a noble thing to set righteousness above a kingdom. For it was virtue which rendered the one so famous as to be judged worthy of a kingdom, and virtue, too, which made the other so great as to scorn a kingdom.

In the second place, then, it is granted that, just as musicians tune their lyres, so Lycurgus tightened the strings at Sparta, which he found relaxed with luxury, and Numa loosened the strings at Rome, where the tones were sharp and high; but the task was more difficult in the case of Lycurgus. For his efforts were to persuade the citizens, not to take off their breast-plates and lay aside their swords, but to cast away gold and silver, and abandon costly couches and tables; not to cease from wars and hold festivals and sacrifices, but to give up feasting and drinking and practise laboriously as soldiers and athletes. Wherefore the one accomplished all his ends by persuasion, through the good-will and honour in which his people held him; but the other had to risk his life and suffer wounds, and scarcely then prevailed.

PLUTARCH'S LIVES

Ἡμερος μέντοι καὶ φιλόανθρωπος ἢ τοῦ Νομᾶ
 μούσα πρὸς εἰρήνην καὶ δικαιοσύνην μεθαρμοσαμένου καὶ καταπραΰναντος ἐξ ἀκρατῶν καὶ
 διαπύρων ἠθῶν τοὺς πολίτας. εἰ δὲ καὶ τὸ
 5 περὶ τοὺς Εἰλωτας ἀναγκάσει τις ἡμᾶς εἰς τὴν
 Λυκούργου θέσθαι πολιτείαν, ὠμότατον ἔργον
 καὶ παρανομώτατον, μακρῷ τινι τὸν Νομᾶν ἑλληνικώτερον γεγονέναι νομοθέτην φήσομεν, ὅς γε
 καὶ τοὺς ὠμολογημένους δούλους ἔγευσε τιμῆς
 ἐλευθέρας, ἐν τοῖς Κρονίοις ἐστιᾶσθαι μετὰ τῶν
 δεσποτῶν ἀναμεμιγμένους ἐθίσας. καὶ γὰρ τοῦτο
 τῶν Νομᾶ πατρίων ἐν εἶναι λέγουσιν, ἐπὶ τὰς
 τῶν ἐτησίων ἀπολαύσεις καρπῶν τοὺς συνεργοὺς
 παραλαμβάνοντος. ἔνιοι δὲ τοῦτο ὑπόμνημα τῆς Κρονικῆς ἐκείνης ἰσονομίας ἀποσώζεσθαι μυθο-λογοῦσιν, ὡς μηδενὸς δούλου μηδὲ δεσπότης,
 πάντων δὲ συγγενῶν καὶ ἰσοτίμων νομιζομένων.

II. Ὅλως δὲ φαίνονται πρὸς τὴν αὐτάρκειαν
 ἀμφοτέροι καὶ σωφροσύνην ὁμοίως ἄγοντες τὰ
 πλήθη, τῶν δὲ ἄλλων ἀρετῶν ὁ μὲν τὴν ἀνδρείαν
 μᾶλλον, ὁ δὲ τὴν δικαιοσύνην ἠγαπηκῶς· εἰ μὴ νῆ
 Δία διὰ τὴν ὑποκειμένην τῶν πολιτευμάτων
 2 ἑκατέρου φύσιν ἢ συνήθειαν, οὐχ ὁμοίαν οὔσαν, 76
 ἀνομοίας ἔδει παρασκευῆς. οὔτε γὰρ Νομᾶς διὰ
 δειλίαν κατέλυσε τὸ πολεμεῖν, ἀλλ' ἐπὶ τῷ μὴ
 ἀδικεῖν, οὔτε Λυκούργος εἰς ἀδικίαν κατεσκεύασε
 πολεμικούς, ἀλλ' ὑπὲρ τοῦ μὴ ἀδικεῖσθαι. τὰς
 οὖν ὑπερβολὰς ἀφαιροῦντες ἀμφοτέροι καὶ τὰς
 ἐνδείας ἀναπληροῦντες τῶν ὑπαρχόντων περὶ τοὺς πολίτας, ἠναγκάζοντο μεγάλας χρήσθαι μετα-βολαῖς.

COMPARISON OF LYCURGUS AND NUMA

Numa's muse, however, was gentle and humane, and he converted his people to peace and righteousness, and softened their violent and fiery tempers. And if we must ascribe to the administration of Lycurgus the treatment of the Helots, a most savage and lawless practice, we shall own that Numa was far more Hellenic as a lawgiver, since he gave acknowledged slaves a taste of the dignity of freedom, by making it the custom for them to feast in the company of their masters during the Saturnalia.¹ For this too was one of the institutions of Numa, as we are told, who thereby admitted to the enjoyment of the yearly fruits of the earth those who had helped to produce them. Some, however, fancy that this custom was a reminder of the equality which characterized the famous Saturnian age, when there was neither slave nor master, but all were regarded as kinsmen and equals.

II. In general, both alike manifestly strove to lead their peoples to independence and sobriety; but as regards the other virtues, the one set his affections more on bravery, the other on righteousness; unless, indeed, the different natures or usages on which the government of each was based required different provisions. For it was not out of cowardice that Numa put a stop to the waging of war, but to prevent the commission of injustice; neither was it to promote the commission of injustice that Lycurgus made his people warlike, but that they might not suffer injustice. Accordingly, in removing the excesses and supplying the deficiencies of their citizens, both were forced to make great innovations.

¹ A mid-winter harvest festival in honour of Saturnus.

PLUTARCH'S LIVES

- 3 Καὶ μὴν τῆς τε διατάξεως καὶ τῆς διαιρέσεως τῶν πολιτευμάτων ὀχλικὴ μὲν ἀκράτως ἢ τοῦ Νομᾶ καὶ θεραπευτικὴ τοῦ πλήθους, ἐκ χρυσοχόων καὶ αὐλητῶν καὶ σκυτοτόμων συμμαγῆ τινα καὶ παμποίκιον ἀποφαίνοντος δῆμον, αὐστηρὰ δὲ ἢ Λυκούργειος καὶ ἀριστοκρατικὴ, τὰς μὲν βαναύσους ἀποκαθαίρουσα τέχνας εἰς οἰκετῶν καὶ μετοίκων χεῖρας αὐτοὺς δὲ τοὺς πολίτας εἰς τὴν ἄσπίδα καὶ τὸ δόρυ συνάγουσα, πολέμου χειροτέχνας καὶ θεράποντας Ἄρεως ὄντας, ἄλλο δὲ οὐδὲν εἰδότας οὐδὲ μελετῶντας ἢ πείθεσθαι τοῖς
- 4 ἄρχουσι καὶ κρατεῖν τῶν πολεμίων. Οὐδὲ γὰρ χρηματίζεσθαι τοῖς ἐλευθέροις ἐξῆν, ἵνα ἐλευθεροὶ παντελῶς καὶ καθάπαξ ὦσιν, ἀλλ' ἦν ἢ περὶ τὰ χρήματα κατασκευὴ δεδομένη δούλοις καὶ Ἐλλωσι, ὥσπερ ἢ περὶ τὸ δεῖπνον καὶ ὄψου διακονία. Νομᾶς δὲ οὐδὲν διέκρινε τοιοῦτον, ἀλλὰ τὰς μὲν στρατιωτικὰς ἔπαυσε πλεονεξίας, τὸν δὲ ἄλλον οὐκ ἐκώλυσε χρηματισμόν, οὐδὲ τὴν
- 5 τοιαύτην κατεστόρεσεν ἀνωμαλίαν, ἀλλὰ καὶ πλούτῳ προῖεναι μέχρι παντὸς ἐφήκε, καὶ πενίας πολλῆς ἀθροισμένης καὶ ὑπορρεούσης εἰς τὴν πόλιν ἠμέλησε, δέον εὐθύς ἐν ἀρχῇ, μηδέπω πολλῆς μηδὲ μεγάλης ἀνισότητος οὐσης, ἀλλ' ἔτι τοῖς βίοις ὀμαλῶν καὶ παραπλησίων ὄντων, ἐνστήναι πρὸς τὴν πλεονεξίαν, ὥσπερ Λυκούργος, καὶ φυλάξασθαι τὰς ἀπ' αὐτῆς βλάβας, οὐ μικρὰς γενομένας, ἀλλὰ τῶν πλείστων καὶ μεγίστων κακῶν, ὅσα συνηνέχθη, σπέρμα καὶ ἀρχὴν παρα-
- 6 σχούσας. ὁ δὲ τῆς γῆς ἀναδασμὸς οὔτε τὸν Λυκαῦργον, ἐμοὶ δοκεῖν, ποιεῖ ψεκτὸν γενόμενος οὔτε τὸν Νομᾶν μὴ γενόμενος. τῷ μὲν γὰρ ἔδραν

COMPARISON OF LYCURGUS AND NUMA

And surely, as regards the arrangement and classification of the citizens under their respective governments, Numa's was strongly popular and inclined to favour the masses, resulting in a promiscuous and variegated commonalty of goldsmiths, musicians, and leather-workers ; but that of Lycurgus was rigid and aristocratic, relegating the mechanical arts into the hands of slaves and aliens, but confining the citizens themselves to the use of the shield and the spear, so that they were artificers of war and servants of Ares, but knew and cared for nothing else than to obey their commanders and master their enemies. For freemen were not even permitted to transact business, that they might be entirely and forever free, but the whole apparatus of business was turned over to slaves and Helots, just like the preparation and serving of their meals. Numa, on the contrary, made no such distinctions, but, while he put a stop to military rapacity, he prohibited no other gainful occupation. Nor did he reduce the great inequalities resulting therefrom, but left the acquisition of wealth wholly unrestricted, and paid no attention to the great increase of poverty and its gradual influx into the city. And yet it was his duty at the very outset, while as yet there was no general or great disparity of means, but people still lived on much the same plane, to make a stand against rapacity, as Lycurgus did, and take measures of precaution against its mischiefs ; for these were not trifling, but furnished the seed and source of the most and greatest evils of after times. But as regards the redistribution of the land, Lycurgus, in my opinion, is not to be censured for making it, nor Numa for not making it. In the one case, the re-καὶ κρηπίδα τῆς πολιτείας ἢ ἰσότης αὕτη παρέσχε, τὸν δὲ προσφάτου τῆς κληρουχίας οὔσης οὐδὲν ἤπειγεν ἄλλον ἐμβαλεῖν ἀναδασμὸν οὐδὲ κινεῖν τὴν πρώτην νέμησιν, ὡς εἰκὸς ἔστι, κατὰ χῶραν μένουσαν.

- III. Τῆς δὲ περὶ τοὺς γάμους καὶ τὰς τεκνώσεις κοινωνίας τὸ ἀξηλότυπον ὀρθῶς καὶ πολιτικῶς ἐμποιοῦντες ἀμφοτέροι τοῖς ἀνδράσιν οὐ κατὰ πᾶν εἰς τοῦτο συνηέχθησαν, ἀλλ' ὁ Ῥωμαῖος μὲν ἀνὴρ ἱκανῶς ἔχων παιδοτροφίας, ὑφ' ἑτέρου δὲ πεισθεὶς δεομένου τέκνων, ἐξίστατο τῆς γυναικός, ἐκδόσθαι καὶ μετεκδόσθαι κύριος ὑπάρχων, ὁ δὲ Λάκων, οἴκοι τῆς γυναικός οὔσης παρ' αὐτῷ καὶ τοῦ γάμου μένοντος ἐπὶ τῶν ἐξ ἀρχῆς δικαίων, μετεδίδου τῷ πείσαντι
- 2 τῆς κοινωνίας εἰς τέκνωσιν. πολλοὶ δέ, ὥσπερ εἴρηται, καὶ παρακαλοῦντες εἰσῆγον ἐξ ὧν ἂν ἐδόκουν μάλιστα παῖδας εὐειδεῖς καὶ ἀγαθοὺς γενέσθαι. τίς οὖν ἢ διάκρισις τῶν ἐθισμῶν; ἢ ταῦτα μὲν ἰσχυρὰ καὶ ἄκρατος ἀπάθεια πρὸς γαμετὴν καὶ τὰ ταραττοντα καὶ κατακαίοντα ζηλοτυπίαις τοὺς πολλοὺς, ἐκεῖνα δὲ ὥσπερ αἰσχυνομένη ἀτυφία τις, παρακάλυμμα τὴν ἐγγύην ἐφελκομένη καὶ τὸ δυσκάρτερον ἐξομολογουμένη τῆς κοινωνίας;
- 3 Ἔτι δὲ μᾶλλον ἢ περὶ τὰς παρθένους φυλακὴ κατέσταλται τῷ Νομῷ πρὸς τὸ θῆλυ καὶ κόσμιον· ἢ δὲ τοῦ Λυκούργου παντάπασιν ἀναπεπταμένη καὶ ἄθηλος οὔσα τοῖς ποιηταῖς λόγον παρέσχηκε. φαινομηρίδας τε γὰρ αὐτὰς ἀποκαλοῦσιν, ὡς

COMPARISON OF LYCURGUS AND NUMA

sulting equality was the foundation and base of his polity ; but in the other, since the allotment of lands was recent, there was no urgent reason for introducing another division, or for disturbing the first assignment, which probably was still in force.

• III. With regard to community in marriage and parentage, though both, by a sound policy, inculcated in husbands a freedom from selfish jealousy, still, their methods were not entirely alike. The Roman husband, if he had a sufficient number of children to rear, and another, who lacked children, could persuade him to the step, relinquished his wife to him, having the power of surrendering her entirely, or only for a season ; but the Spartan, while his wife remained in his house, and the marriage retained its original rights and obligations, might allow any one who gained his consent to share his wife for the purpose of getting children by her. And many husbands, as we have said,¹ would actually invite into their homes men whom they thought most likely to procure them handsome and noble children. What, then, is the difference between the two customs ? We may say, perhaps, that the Spartan implies a complete indifference to the wife, and to the jealous emotions which confound and consume the hearts of most men ; while the Roman, as if with shame-faced modesty, makes a veil of the new betrothal, and concedes that community of wives is really insupportable.

Still further, Numa's watchful care of young maidens was more conducive to feminine decorum ; but the treatment of them by Lycurgus, being entirely unconfined and unfeminine, has given occasion to the poets. They call them " phainomerides,"

¹ Lycurgus, xv. 7.

PLUTARCH'S LIVES

Ἴβυκος, καὶ ἀνδρομανεῖς λαιδοροῦσιν, ὡς Εὐριπίδης, λέγων·

Αἱ σὺν νέοισιν ἐξερημοῦσιν¹ δόμους
γυμνοῖσι μηροῖς καὶ πέπλοις ἀνειμένους.

- 4 τῷ γὰρ ὄντι τοῦ παρθενικοῦ χιτῶνος αἱ πτέρυγες 77
οὐκ ἦσαν συνερραμμέναι κάτωθεν, ἀλλ' ἀνεπτύσσοντο καὶ συνανεγύμνουσαν ὅλον ἐν τῷ βαδίζειν τὸν μηρόν. καὶ σαφέστατα τὸ γινόμεον εἶρηκε Σοφοκλῆς ἐν τούτοις·

Καὶ τὰν νέορτον, ἃς ἔτ' ἄστολος χιτῶν
θυραῖον ἀμφὶ μηρόν
πτύσσεται, Ἑρμιόναν.

- 5 διὸ καὶ θρασύτεραι λέγονται γενέσθαι καὶ πρὸς αὐτοὺς πρῶτον ἀνδρώδεις τοὺς ἄνδρας, ἅτε δὴ τῶν μὲν οἴκων ἄρχουσαι κατὰ κράτος, ἐν δὲ τοῖς δημοσίοις πράγμασι καὶ γνώμης μεταλαμβάνουσαι καὶ παρρησίας περὶ τῶν μεγίστων. ὁ δὲ Νομᾶς ταῖς γαμεταῖς τὸ μὲν ἀξίωμα καὶ τὴν τιμὴν ἐτήρησε πρὸς τοὺς ἄνδρας, ἦν εἶχον ἀπὸ Ῥωμύλου θεραπευόμεναι διὰ τὴν ἀρπαγὴν, αἰδῶ δὲ πολλὴν ἐπέστησεν αὐταῖς καὶ πολυπραγμοσύνην ἀφεῖλε καὶ νήφειν ἐδίδαξε καὶ σιωπᾶν εἴθισεν, οἴνου μὲν ἀπεχομένας τὸ πάμπαν, λόγῳ δὲ μηδὲ ὑπὲρ τῶν ἀναγκαίων ἀνδρὸς ἀνευ χρωμέναις.
- 6 λέγεται γοῦν ποτε γυναικὸς εἰπούσης δίκην ἰδίαν ἐν ἀγορᾷ πέμψαι τὴν σύγκλητον εἰς θεοῦ, πυν-

¹ ἐξερημοῦσιν adapted from ἐξερημοῦσαι (leaving their homes).

COMPARISON OF LYCURGUS AND NUMA

bare-thighed (so Ibycus), and revile them as mad after men. Thus Euripides says ¹ :—

“ They leave their homes to mingle with the youths ;
Their thighs are naked, flying free their robes.”

For in fact the flaps of the tunic worn by their maidens were not sewn together below the waist, but would fly back and lay bare the whole thigh as they walked. Sophocles pictures the thing very clearly in these words ² :—

“ And that young maid, whose tunic, still unsewn, Lays bare her gleaming thigh
Between its folds, Hermione.”

And so their women, it is said, were too bold, putting on men's airs with their husbands even, to begin with, since they ruled their houses absolutely, and besides, on public occasions, taking part in debate and the freest speech on the most important subjects. But Numa, while carefully preserving to the matrons that dignified and honourable relation to their husbands which was bestowed on them by Romulus,³ when he tried by kindly usage to efface the memory of the violence done them, nevertheless enjoined great modesty upon them, forbade them all busy intermeddling, taught them sobriety, and accustomed them to be silent ; wine they were to refrain from entirely, and were not to speak, even on the most necessary topics, unless their husbands were with them. At any rate, it is said that when a woman once pleaded her own cause in the forum, the senate sent to inquire of an oracle what the event might

¹ Andromache, 587 f. (Kirchhoff), slightly adapted.

² Fragment 788 (Nauck). ³ Cf. Romulus, xix. 6.

θανομένην τίνος ἄρα τῇ πόλει σημεῖον εἶη τὸ γεγενημένον. καὶ τῆς ἄλλης εὐπειθείας καὶ πραότητος αὐτῶν μέγα τεκμήριον ἢ μνήμη τῶν χειρόνων. ὡς γὰρ παρ' ἡμῖν οἱ ἱστορικοὶ γράφουσι τοὺς πρώτους ἢ φόνον ἐμφύλιον ἐργασασμένους ἢ πολεμήσαντας ἀδελφοῖς ἢ πατρὸς αὐτόχειρας ἢ μητρὸς

7. γενομένους, οὕτω Ῥωμαῖοι μνημονεύουσιν ὅτι πρῶτος μὲν ἀπεπέμψατο γυναῖκα Σπόριος Καρβίλιος, μετὰ τὴν Ῥώμης κτίσιν ἔτεσι τριάκοντα καὶ διακοσίοις οὐδενὸς τοιοῦτου γεγονότος, πρώτη δὲ γυνὴ Πιναρίου Θαλαΐα τοῦνομα διηνέχθη πρὸς ἐκυρὰν αὐτῆς Γεγαΐαν Ταρκυνίου Σουπέρβου βασιλεύοντος. οὕτω καλῶς καὶ κοσμίως τεταγμένα τὰ τῶν γάμων ἦν ὑπὸ τοῦ νομοθέτου.

IV. Τῇ δὲ ἄλλῃ τῶν παρθένων ἀγωγῇ καὶ τὰ περὶ τὰς ἐκδόσεις ὁμολογεῖ, τοῦ μὲν Λυκούργου πεπείρους καὶ ὀργώσας νυμφεύοντος, ὅπως ἢ τε ὀμιλία, δεομένης ἤδη τῆς φύσεως, χάριτος ἢ καὶ φιλίας ἀρχὴ μᾶλλον ἢ μίσους καὶ φόβου παρὰ φύσιν βιαζομένων, καὶ τὰ σώματα ῥώμην ἔχῃ πρὸς τὸ τὰς κηύσεις ἀναφέρειν καὶ τὰς ὠδίννας, ὡς ἐπ' οὐδὲν ἄλλο γαμουμένων ἢ τὸ τῆς τεκνώσεως ἔργον, τῶν δὲ Ῥωμαίων δωδεκαετείς καὶ νεωτέρας ἐκδιδόντων· οὕτω γὰρ ἂν μάλιστα καὶ τὸ σῶμα καὶ τὸ ἦθος καθαρὸν καὶ ἄθικτον ἐπὶ

2 τῷ γαμοῦντι γίνεσθαι. δῆλον οὖν ὅτι τὸ μὲν

COMPARISON OF LYCURGUS AND NUMA

portend for the city. And for their usual gentleness and readiness to obey, there is strong evidence in the specific mention made of those who were less amenable. For just as our Greek historians record the names of those who first slew kinsfolk, or made war on their brothers, or were parricides, or matricides, so the Romans make record of the fact that Spurius Carvilius was the first to divorce his wife, two hundred and thirty years after the founding of Rome, there being no precedent for it; also that the wife of Pinarius, Thalea by name, was the first woman to quarrel with her own mother-in-law, Gegania, in the reign of Tarquinius Superbus. In such fitting and proper manner were marriages regulated by their lawgiver.

IV. Further, the practice of the two peoples in the matter of giving their young maids in marriage conforms to their education of them in general. Lycurgus made them brides only when they were fully ripe and eager for it, in order that intercourse with a husband, coming at a time when nature craved it, might produce a kindly love, instead of the timorous hate that follows unnatural compulsion; also that their bodies might be vigorous enough to endure the strain of conception and child-birth, convinced as he was that marriage had no other end than the production of children. The Romans, on the other hand, gave their maidens in marriage when they were twelve years old, or even younger. In this way more than any other, it was thought, both their bodies and their dispositions would be pure and undefiled when their husbands took control of them. It is clear, therefore, that one practice regarded nature more, with children in view; the other reφυσικώτερον πρὸς τέκνωσιν, τὸ δὲ ἠθικώτερον πρὸς συμβίωσιν.

PLUTARCH'S LIVES

Ἄλλὰ μὴν ἐπιστασίαις τε παίδων καὶ συναγελασμοῖς καὶ παιδαγωγίαις καὶ κοινωνίαις, περί τε δεῖπνα καὶ γυμνάσια καὶ παιδιὰς αὐτῶν ἐμμελείαις καὶ διακοσμήσεσιν, οὐδέν τι τοῦ προστυχόντος νομοθέτου βελτίονα τὸν Νομᾶν ὁ Λυκούργος ἀποδείκνυσιν, ἐπὶ ταῖς τῶν πατέρων ποιησάμενον ἐπιθυμίαις ἢ χρεΐαις τὰς τῶν νέων ἀγωγάς, εἴτε τις ἐργάτην γῆς βούλοιτο ποιεῖν τὸν υἱὸν εἴτε ναυπηγὸν ἢ χαλκέα διδάσκειν ἢ αὐλητὴν, ὥσπερ οὐ πρὸς ἓν τέλος ὀφείλοντας ἐξ ἀρχῆς ἄγεσθαι καὶ συνεπιστρέφεσθαι τοῖς ἠθεσιν, ἀλλ' οἶον εἰς ναῦν ἐπιβάτας ἕτερον ἐξ ἐτέρας ἤκουτα χρεΐας καὶ προαιρέσεως ἐν τοῖς κινδύνοις μόνον φόβῳ τοῦ ἰδίου συνίστασθαι πρὸς τὸ κοινόν,

4 ἄλλως δὲ τὸ καθ' αὐτὸν σκοπεῖν ἕκαστον. καὶ τοῖς μὲν πολλοῖς οὐκ ἄξιον ἐγκαλεῖν νομοθέταις ἐλλείπουσιν ἢ δι' ἄγνοιαν ἢ δι' ἀσθένειαν· ἀνδρὶ δὲ σοφῷ βασιλείαν παραλαβόντι δήμου νεωστὶ συνισταμένου καὶ πρὸς μηδὲν ἀντιτείνοντος, περὶ τί πρῶτον¹ ἦν σπουδάσαι προσῆκον ἢ παίδων ἐκτροφὴν καὶ νέων ἀσκησιν, ὅπως μὴ διάφοροι μηδὲ παραχῶδεις γένοιοντο τοῖς ἠθεσιν, ἀλλ' εἰς ἓν τι 78 κοινὸν ἀρετῆς ἵχνος εὐθύς ἐξ ἀρχῆς πλαττόμενοι

5 καὶ τυπούμενοι συμβαίνοιεν ἀλλήλοις; ὃ δὴ πρὸς τε τὰ ἄλλα καὶ σωτηρίαν νόμων ὠφέλησε τὸν Λυκούργον. μικρὸς γὰρ ἦν ὁ τῶν ὄρκων φόβος, εἰ garded more the formation of character, with married life in view.

¹ πρῶτον Bekker corrects to πρότερον.

COMPARISON OF LYCURGUS AND NUMA

But surely, by his careful attention to boys, by their collection into companies, their discipline and constant association, and by his painstaking arrangements for their meals and bodily exercise and sports, Lycurgus proves that Numa was no more than an ordinary lawgiver. For Numa left the bringing up of youths to the wishes or necessities of their fathers. A father might, if he wished, make his son a tiller of the soil, or a shipwright, or might teach him to be a smith or a flute-player, as if it were not important that all of them should be trained with one and the same end in view from the outset, and have their dispositions formed alike; but rather as if they were like passengers on a ship, each coming with a different object and purpose, and each therefore uniting with the rest for the common good only in times of peril, through fear of private loss, but otherwise consulting only his own interests. Now, it is not worth while to censure the common run of legislators, who fail through ignorance or weakness. But when a wise man had consented to be king over a people newly constituted and pliant to his every wish, what should have been his first care, unless it was the rearing of boys and the training of youths so that there might be no confusing differences in their characters, but that they might be moulded and fashioned from the very outset so as to walk harmoniously together in the same path of virtue? This, indeed, was what helped Lycurgus to secure, among other things, the stability and permanence of his laws. The Spartans took oaths to maintain these laws, it is true, but

μη δια τῆς παιδείας καὶ τῆς ἀγωγῆς οἶον ἀνέδευσε¹
 τοῖς ἤθεσι τῶν παίδων τοὺς νόμους, καὶ συνωκείωσε
 τῇ τροφῇ τὸν ζῆλον τῆς πολιτείας, ὥστε πεντακοσίων ἐτῶν πλείω χρόνον τὰ κυριώτατα καὶ
 μέγιστα διαμεῖναι τῆς νομοθεσίας, ὥσπερ βαφῆς
 ἀκράτου καὶ ἰσχυρῶς καθαψαμένης.

6 Νομᾶ δὲ ὅπερ ἦν τέλος τῆς πολιτείας, ἐν
 εἰρήνῃ καὶ φιλίᾳ τὴν Ῥώμην ὑπάρχειν, εὐθύς
 συνεξέλιπε· καὶ μετὰ τὴν τελευταίαν ἐκείνου τὸν
 ἀμφίθυρον οἶκον, ὃν κεκλεισμένον αὐτὸς συνείχεν,
 ὥσπερ ὄντως ἐν αὐτῷ τιθασέων καθειργμένον τὸν
 πόλεμον, ἐξ ἀμφοτέρων ἀναπετάσαντες αἵματος
 καὶ νεκρῶν τὴν Ἰταλίαν ἐνέπλησαν· καὶ οὐδὲ ὀλίγον χρόνον ἢ καλλίστη καὶ δικαιοτάτη κατάστασις ἔμεινεν, ἅτε δὴ καὶ τὸ συνδυκτικὸν ἐν αὐτῇ,
 τὴν παιδείαν, οὐκ ἔχουσα.

7 “Τί οὖν,” φήσει τις, “οὐκ ἐπὶ τὸ βέλτιον ἢ Ῥώμῃ προῆλθε τοῖς πολεμικοῖς;” ἐρωτῶν ἐρώτημα
 μακρᾶς ἀποκρίσεως δεόμενον πρὸς ἀνθρώπους
 τὸ βέλτιον ἐν πλούτῳ καὶ τρυφῇ καὶ ἡγεμονίᾳ
 μᾶλλον ἢ σωτηρίᾳ καὶ πραότητι καὶ τῇ μετὰ
 δικαιοσύνης αὐταρκεῖᾳ τιθεμένους. οὐ μὴν ἀλλὰ
 καὶ τοῦτο Λυκούργῳ που δόξει βοηθεῖν, τὸ
 Ῥωμαίους μὲν τὴν ἐπὶ Νομᾶ κατάστασιν ἐξαλλά-8 ξαντας ἐπιδιδῶναι τοῖς πράγμασι τοσοῦτον, Λακεδαιμονίους δὲ ἅμα τῷ πρῶτον ἐκβῆναι τὴν Λυκούργου διάταξιν, ἐκ μεγίστων ταπεινοτάτους
 γενέσθαι καὶ τὴν τῶν Ἑλλήνων ἡγεμονίαν ἀπο-

¹ ἀνέδευσε Bekker adopts Reiske's correction to ἐνέδευσε.

COMPARISON OF LYCURGUS AND NUMA

this would have availed little had he not, by means of his training and education of the boys, infused his laws, as it were, into their characters, and made the emulous love of his government an integral part of their rearing. The result was that for more than five hundred years the sovereign and fundamental features of his legislation remained in force, like a strong and penetrating dye.

But that which was the end and aim of Numa's government, namely, the continuance of peace and friendship between Rome and other nations, straightway vanished from the earth with him. After his death the double doors of the temple¹ which he had kept continuously closed, as if he really had war caged and confined there, were thrown wide open, and Italy was filled with the blood of the slain. Thus not even for a little time did the beautiful edifice of justice which he had reared remain standing, because it lacked the cement of education.

"What, then!" some one will say, "was not Rome advanced and bettered by her wars?" That is a question which will need a long answer, if I am to satisfy men who hold that betterment consists in wealth, luxury and empire, rather than in safety, gentleness, and that independence which is attended by righteousness. However, it will be thought, I suppose, to favour the superior claims of Lycurgus, that, whereas the Romans increased in power as they did after abandoning the institutions of Numa's time, the Lacedaemonians, on the other hand, just as soon as they forsook the precepts of Lycurgus, sank from the highest to the lowest place, lost their supremacy over the Greeks, and were in danger of

¹ Cf. Numa, xx. 1.

PLUTARCH'S LIVES

βαλόντας κινδυνεύσαι περὶ ἀναστάσεως. ἐκεῖνο μέντοι τῷ Νομᾷ μέγα καὶ θεῖον ὡς ἀληθῶς ὑπάρχει, τὸ ξένῳ τε μεταπέμπτῳ γενέσθαι καὶ πάντα πειθοῖ μεταβαλεῖν, καὶ κρατῆσαι πόλεως οὐπω συμπεπνευκυίας, μήτε ὀπλων δεηθέντα μήτε βίας τινός, ὡς Λυκούργος ἐπὶ τὸν δῆμον ἤγε τοὺς ἀρίστους, ἀλλὰ σοφία καὶ δικαιοσύνη πάντας προσαγαγόμενον καὶ συναρμόσαντα.

COMPARISON OF LYCURGUS AND NUMA

utter destruction. Nevertheless, this remains a great feature in Numa's career, and one really divine, that he was a stranger, and yet was summoned to the throne, where he changed the whole nature of the state by force of persuasion alone, and mastered a city which was not yet in sympathy with his views ; and that he accomplished this without appeal to arms or any violence (unlike Lycurgus, who led the nobles in arms against the commons), but by his wisdom and justice won the hearts of all the citizens and brought them into harmony.

SOLON

D D 2

ΣΟΛΩΝ

I. Δίδυμος ὁ γραμματικὸς ἐν τῇ περὶ τῶν ἀξόνων τῶν Σόλωνος ἀντιγραφῇ πρὸς Ἀσκληπιάδην Φιλοκλέους τινὸς τέθεικε λέξιν, ἐν ἣ τὸν Σόλωνα πατρὸς Εὐφορίωνος ἀποφαίνει παρὰ τὴν τῶν ἄλλων δόξαν, ὅσοι μέμνηται Σόλωνος. Ἐξηκεστίδου γὰρ αὐτὸν ἅπαντες ὁμαλῶς γεγονέναι λέγουσιν, ἀνδρὸς οὐσία μὲν, ὡς φασι, καὶ δυνάμει μέσου τῶν πολιτῶν, οἰκίας δὲ πρώτης
 2 κατὰ γένος· ἦν γὰρ Κοδρίδης ἀνεκάθεν. τὴν δὲ μητέρα τοῦ Σόλωνος Ἡρακλείδης ὁ Ποντικὸς ἱστορεῖ τῆς Πεισιστράτου μητρὸς ἀνεψιᾶν γενέσθαι. καὶ φιλία τὸ πρῶτον ἦν αὐτοῖς πολλή μὲν διὰ τὴν συγγένειαν, πολλή δὲ διὰ τὴν 79 εὐφυΐαν καὶ ὄραν, ὡς ἔνιοί φασιν, ἐρωτικῶς τὸν Πεισίστρατον ἀσπαζομένου τοῦ Σόλωνος. ὅθεν ὕστερον, ὡς ἔοικεν, εἰς διαφορὰν αὐτῶν ἐν τῇ πολιτείᾳ καταστάτων οὐδὲν ἤνεγκεν ἢ ἔχθρα σκληρὸν οὐδ' ἄγριον πάθος, ἀλλὰ παρέμεινε ἐκεῖνα τὰ δίκαια ταῖς ψυχαῖς, καὶ παρεφύλαξε,

Τυφόμενα Δίου πυρὸς ἔτι ζῶσαν φλόγα,

3 τὴν ἐρωτικὴν μνήμην καὶ χάριν. ὅτι δὲ πρὸς τοὺς καλοὺς οὐκ ἦν ἐχυρὸς ὁ Σόλων οὐδ' Ἔρωτι θαρραλέος “ἀνταναστῆναι πύκτης ὅπως ἐς χεῖρας,”¹

¹ Ἔρωτι μὲν νυν ὅστις ἀντανίσταται

πύκτης ὅπως ἐς χεῖρας, οὐ καλῶς φρονεῖ.

(Sophocles, Trachiniae, 441 f.)

SOLON

I. DIDYMU^S the grammarian, in his reply to Asclepiades on Solon's tables of law, mentions a remark of one Philocles, in which it is stated that Solon's father was Euphorion, contrary to the opinion of all others who have written about Solon. For they all unite in saying that he was a son of Execestides, a man of moderate wealth and influence in the city, but a member of its foremost family, being descended from Codrus. Solon's mother, according to Heracleides Ponticus, was a cousin of the mother of Peisistratus. And the two men were at first great friends, largely because of their kinship, and largely because of the youthful beauty of Peisistratus, with whom, as some say, Solon was passionately in love. And this may be the reason why, in later years, when they were at variance about matters of state, their enmity did not bring with it any harsh or savage feelings, but their former amenities lingered in their spirits, and preserved there,

“smouldering with a lingering flame of Zeus-sent fire,”¹

the grateful memory of their love. And that Solon was not proof against beauty in a youth, and made not so bold with Love as “to confront him like a boxer, hand to hand,” may be inferred from his ¹ Euripides, Bacchae, 8.

PLUTARCH'S LIVES

ἔκ τε τῶν ποιημάτων αὐτοῦ λαβεῖν ἔστι, καὶ νόμον ἔγραψε διαγορεύοντα δοῦλον μὴ ξηραλοφείν μηδὲ παιδεραστεῖν, εἰς τὴν τῶν καλῶν μερίδα καὶ σεμνῶν ἐπιτηδευμάτων τιθέμενος τὸ πρῶγμα, καὶ τρόπον τινὰ τοὺς ἀξίους προκαλοῦ-
 4 μενος ὧν τοὺς ἀναξίους ἀπήλαυε. λέγεται δὲ καὶ Πεισίστρατος ἐραστὴς Χάρμου γενέσθαι, καὶ τὸ ἄγαλμα τοῦ Ἑρωτος ἐν Ἀκαδημείᾳ καθιερώσαι, ὅπου τὸ πῦρ ἀνάπτουσιν οἱ τὴν ἱερὰν λαμπάδα διαθέοντες.

II. Ὁ δ' οὖν Σόλων τὴν οὐσίαν τοῦ πατρὸς ἐλαττώσαντος εἰς φιλανθρωπίας τινάς, ὡς φησιν Ἑρμιππος, καὶ χάριτας, οὐκ ἂν ἀπορήσας τῶν βουλομένων ἐπαρκεῖν, αἰδούμενος δὲ λαμβάνειν παρ' ἐτέρων ἐξ οἰκίας γεγωνῶς εἰθισμένης ἐτέροις βοηθεῖν, ὥρμησε νέος ὧν ἔτι πρὸς ἐμπορίαν. καίτοι φασὶν ἔνιοι πολυπειρίας ἔνεκα μᾶλλον καὶ ἱστορίας ἢ χρηματισμοῦ πλανηθῆναι τὸν Σόλωνα.
 2 σοφίας μὲν γὰρ ἦν ὁμολογουμένως ἐραστὴς, ὅς γε καὶ πρεσβύτερος ὧν ἔλεγε "γηράσκειν αἰεὶ πολλὰ διδασκόμενος"¹ πλοῦτον δ' οὐκ ἐθαύμαζεν, ἀλλὰ καὶ φησιν ὁμοίως πλουτεῖν ᾧ τε²

πολὺς ἄργυρός ἐστι
 καὶ χρυσὸς καὶ γῆς πυροφόρου πεδία
 ἵπποι θ' ἡμίονοί τε, καὶ ᾧ μόνᾳ ταῦτα πάρεστι,
 γαστρί τε καὶ πλευρῇ καὶ ποσὶν ἀβρὰ παθεῖν,
 παιδός τ' ἠδὲ γυναικός, ἐπὴν καὶ ταῦτ' ἀφίκηται,
 ἦβη, σὺν δ' ὥρῃ γίνεταί ἀρμοδία.

¹ Γηράσκω δ' αἰεὶ πολλὰ διδασκόμενος. Fragment 18 (Bergk, Poet. Lyr. Gr. ii.⁴ p. 47).

² Ἴσόν τοι πλουτοῦσιν ὄψω πολὺς ἄργυρός ἐστιν, κ.τ.λ., Fragment 24 (Bergk), verses 1-6.

SOLON

poems. He also wrote a law forbidding a slave to practise gymnastics or have a boy lover, thus putting the matter in the category of honourable and dignified practices, and in a way inciting the worthy to that which he forbade the unworthy. And it is said that Peisistratus also had a boy lover, Charmus, and that he dedicated the statue of Love in the Academy, where the runners in the sacred torch race light their torches.

II. Solon, then, after his father had impaired his estate in sundry benevolent charities, as Hermippus tells us, might have found friends enough who were willing to aid him. But he was ashamed to take from others, since he belonged to a family which had always helped others, and therefore, while still a young man, embarked in commerce. And yet some say that he travelled to get experience and learning rather than to make money. For he was admittedly a lover of wisdom, since even when he was well on in years he would say that he "grew old ever learning many things"; and he was not an admirer of wealth, but actually says that two men are alike wealthy of whom one

"much silver hath,
And gold, and wide domains of wheat-bearing soil,
Horses and mules; while to the other only enough belongs
To give him comfort of food, and clothes, and shoes,
Enjoyment of child and blooming wife, when these
too come,
And only years commensurate therewith are his."

3 ἀλλ' ἐτέρωθι λέγει·

Χρήματα δ' ἰμείρω μὲν ἔχειν, ἀδίκως δὲ πεπᾶσθαι

οὐκ ἐθέλω· πάντως ὕστερον ἦλθε δίκη.

κωλύει δὲ οὐδὲν τὸν ἀγαθὸν καὶ πολιτικὸν ἄνδρα
μήτε τῶν περιττῶν τὴν κτήσιν ἐν σπουδῇ τί-θεσθαι μήτε τῆς χρείας τῶν ἀναγκαίων καὶ
ἰκανῶν καταφρονεῖν. ἐν δὲ τοῖς τότε χρόνοις,
καθ' Ἡσίοδον, ἔργον οὐδὲν ἦν ὄνειδος, οὐδὲ τέχνη
διαφορὰν ἔφερεν, ἐμπορία δὲ καὶ δόξαν εἶχεν οἰκειομένη τὰ βαρβαρικὰ καὶ προξενούσα φι-λίας βασιλέων καὶ πραγμάτων ἐμπείρους ποιού-4 σα πολλῶν. ἔνιοι δὲ καὶ πόλεων οἰκισταὶ γε-γόνασι μεγάλων, ὡς καὶ Μασσαλίας Πρώτις
ὑπὸ Κελτῶν τῶν περὶ τὸν Ῥοδανὸν ἀγαπηθεῖς.
καὶ Θαλῆν δὲ φασὶν ἐμπορίᾳ χρῆσασθαι καὶ Ἰπποκράτην τὸν μαθηματικόν, καὶ Πλάτωνι τῆς
ἀποδημίας ἐφόδιον ἐλαίου τινὸς ἐν Αἰγύπτῳ διάθεσιν γενέσθαι.

III. Τὸ δ' οὖν εὐδάπανον τῷ Σόλωνι καὶ ὑγρὸν
πρὸς τὴν δίαιταν, καὶ τὸ φορτικώτερον ἢ φιλοσο-φώτερον ἐν τοῖς ποιήμασι διαλέγεσθαι περὶ τῶν
ἡδονῶν, τὸν ἐμπορικὸν οἶονται βίον προστε-τριφθαι· πολλοὺς γὰρ ἔχοντα κινδύνους καὶ
μεγάλους ἀνταπαιτεῖν πάλιν εὐπαθείας τινὰς καὶ
2 ἀπολαύσεις. ὅτι δ' αὐτὸν ἐν τῇ τῶν πενήτων μερίδι μᾶλλον ἢ τῇ τῶν πλουσίων ἔταπτε, δῆλόν
ἔστιν ἐκ τούτων·

Πολλοὶ γὰρ πλουτεῦσι κακοί, ἀγαθοὶ δὲ πένονται·

ἀλλ' ἡμεῖς αὐτοῖς οὐ διαμειψόμεθα

SOLON

However, in another place he says:—¹

“Wealth I desire to have ; but wrongfully to get it,
I do not wish. Justice, even if slow, is sure.”

And there is no reason why a good statesman should either set his heart too much on the acquisition of superfluous wealth, or despise unduly the use of what is necessary and convenient. In those earlier times, to use the words of Hesiod,² “work was no disgrace,” nor did a trade bring with it social inferiority, and the calling of a merchant was actually held in honour, since it gave him familiarity with foreign parts, friendships with foreign kings, and a large experience in affairs. Some merchants were actually founders of great cities, as Protis, who was beloved by the Gauls along the Rhone, was of Marseilles. Thales is said to have engaged in trade, as well as Hippocrates the mathematician ; and Plato defrayed the expenses of his sojourn there by the sale of oil in Egypt.

III. Accordingly, if Solon's way of living was expensive and profuse, and if, in his poems, he speaks of pleasure with more freedom than becomes a philosopher, this is thought to be due to his mercantile life ; he encountered many and great dangers, and sought his reward therefor in sundry luxuries and enjoyments. But that he classed himself among the poor rather than the rich, is clear from these verses:—³

“For often evil men are rich, and good men poor ;
But we will not exchange with them

¹ Fragment 13 (Bergk), verses 7 f.

² Works and Days, 311. ³ Fragment 15 (Bergk).

PLUTARCH'S LIVES

τῆς ἀρετῆς τὸν πλοῦτον· ἐπεὶ τὸ μὲν ἔμπεδον αἰεὶ,
 χρήματα δ' ἀνθρώπων ἄλλοτε ἄλλος ἔχει.

- 3 τῇ δὲ ποιήσει κατ' ἀρχὰς μὲν εἰς οὐδὲν ἄξιον 80
 σπουδῆς, ἀλλὰ παίζων ἔοικε προσχρήσασθαι
 καὶ παράγων ἑαυτὸν ἐν τῷ σχολάζειν· ὕστερον
 δὲ καὶ γνώμας ἐνέτεινε φιλοσόφους καὶ τῶν
 πολιτικῶν πολλὰ συγκατέπλεκε τοῖς ποιήμασιν, οὐχ ἱστορίας ἔνεκεν καὶ μνήμης, ἀλλ' ἀπολογι-σμούς τε τῶν πεπραγμένων ἔχοντα καὶ προτρο-
 πὰς ἐνιαχοῦ καὶ νουθεσίας καὶ ἐπιπλήξεις πρὸς
 4 τοὺς Ἀθηναίους. ἔνιοι δὲ φασιν ὅτι καὶ τοὺς
 νόμους ἐπεχείρησεν ἐντείναι εἰς ἔπος ἐξενεγκεῖν,
 καὶ διαμνημονεύουσι τὴν ἀρχὴν οὕτως ἔχουσαν·

Πρῶτα μὲν εὐχόμεσθα Διὶ Κρονίδῃ βασιλῆϊ
 θεσμοῖς τοῖσδε τύχην ἀγαθὴν καὶ κῦδος ὀπάσ-σαι.

Φιλοσοφίας δὲ τοῦ ἠθικοῦ μάλιστα τὸ πολιτι-
 κόν, ὥσπερ οἱ πλείστοι τῶν σοφῶν, ἠγάπησεν.
 ἐν δὲ τοῖς φυσικοῖς ἀπλοῦς ἐστὶ λίαν καὶ ἀρχαῖος,
 ὡς δῆλον ἐκ τούτων·

- 5 Ἐκ νεφέλης πέλεται χιόνος μένος ἠδὲ χαλάζης·
 βροντὴ δ' ἐκ λαμπρᾶς γίνεται ἀστεροπῆς.
 ἐξ ἀνέμων δὲ θάλασσα ταρασσεται· ἦν δὲ τις αὐτὴν
 μὴ κινῆ, πάντων ἐστὶ δικαιοσύνη.

καὶ ὅλως ἔοικεν ἡ Θάλασσα μόνου σοφία τότε
 περαιτέρω τῆς χρείας ἐξικέσθαι τῇ θεωρίᾳ· τοῖς

SOLON

Our virtue for their wealth, since one abides always,
While riches change their owners every day."

And he seems to have composed his poetry at first with no serious end in view, but as amusement and diversion in his hours of leisure. Then later, he put philosophic maxims into verse, and interwove many political teachings in his poems, not simply to record and transmit them, but because they contained justifications of his acts, and sometimes exhortations, admonitions, and rebukes for the Athenians. Some say, too, that he attempted to reduce his laws to heroic verse before he published them, and they give us this introduction to them:—

"First let us offer prayers to Zeus, the royal son of Cronus,
That he may give these laws of ours success and fame." ¹

In philosophy, he cultivated chiefly the domain of political ethics, like most of the wise men of the time; and in physics, he is very simple and antiquated, as is clear from the following verses:—

"From clouds come sweeping snow and hail,
And thunder follows on the lightning's flash.
By winds the sea is lashed to storm, but if it be Unvexed, it is of all things most amenable." ²

And in general, it would seem that Thales was the only wise man of the time who carried his speculations beyond the realm of the practical; the

¹ Fragment 31 (Bergk).

² Fragment 9, verses 1-2; and fragment 12 (Bergk).

PLUTARCH'S LIVES

δὲ ἄλλοις ἀπὸ τῆς πολιτικῆς ἀρετῆς τὸ ὄνομα τῆς σοφίας ὑπῆρξε.

- IV. Γενέσθαι δὲ μετ' ἀλλήλων ἔν τε Δελφοῖς ὁμοῦ λέγονται καὶ πάλιν ἐν Κορίνθῳ, Περιάνδρου σύλλογόν τινα κοινὸν αὐτῶν καὶ συμπόσιον κατασκευάσαντος. ἔτι δὲ μᾶλλον εἰς ἀξίωμα καὶ δόξαν αὐτοὺς κατέστησεν ἡ τοῦ τρίποδος περίοδος καὶ διὰ πάντων ἀνακύκλῃσι καὶ ἀνθύπειξις μετ'
- 2 εὐμενείας φιλοτίμου γενομένη. Κῶν γάρ, ὡς φασι, καταγόντων σαγήνην, καὶ ξένων ἐκ Μιλήτου πριαμένων τὸν βόλον οὐπω φανερὸν ὄντα, χρυσοὺς ἐφάνη τρίπους ἐλκόμενος, ὃν λέγουσιν Ἑλένην πλέουσιν ἐκ Τροίας αὐτόθι καθεῖναι χρησμοῦ τινος ἀναμνησθεῖσαν παλαιοῦ. γενομένης δὲ τοῖς ξένοις πρῶτον ἀντιλογίας πρὸς τοὺς ἀλίας περὶ τοῦ τρίποδος, εἶτα τῶν πόλεων ἀναδεξαμένων τὴν διαφορὰν ἄχρι πολέμου προελθοῦσαν, ἀνεῖλεν ἀμφοτέροις ἡ Πυθία τῷ σοφω-
- 3 τάτῳ τὸν τρίποδα ἀποδοῦναι. καὶ πρῶτον μὲν ἀπεστάλη πρὸς Θαλῆν εἰς Μίλητον, ἐκουσίως τῶν Κῶν ἐνὶ δωρουμένων ἐκείνῳ περὶ οὐ πρὸς ἅπαντας ὁμοῦ Μιλησίους ἐπολέμησαν. Θάλῳ δὲ Βίαντα σοφώτερον ἀποφαίνοντος αὐτοῦ πρὸς ἐκείνον ἦκεν ἀπ' ἐκείνου δ' αὐθις ἀπεστάλη πρὸς ἄλλον ὡς σοφώτερον. εἶτα περιῶν καὶ ἀναπεμπόμενος οὕτως ἐπὶ Θαλῆν τὸ δεύτερον ἀφίκετο, καὶ τέλος εἰς Θήβας ἐκ Μιλήτου κομισθεὶς τῷ Ἴσμηνίῳ Ἀπόλλωνι καθιερώθη.

SOLON

rest¹ got the name of wisdom from their excellence as statesmen.

IV. They are all said to have met together at Delphi, and again in Corinth, where Periander arranged something like a joint conference for them, and a banquet. But what contributed still more to their honour and fame was the circuit which the tripod made among them, its passing round through all their hands, and their mutual declination of it, with generous expressions of good will. Some Coans, as the story goes, were dragging in a net, and some strangers from Miletus bought the catch as yet unseen. It proved to contain a golden tripod which Helen, on her voyage from Troy, is said to have thrown in there, when she called to mind a certain ancient oracle. First the strangers had a dispute with the fishermen about the tripod, and then their cities took up the quarrel and went at last to war, whereupon the Pythian priestess of Apollo told both parties in an oracle that the tripod must be given to the wisest man. So in the first place it was sent to Thales at Miletus, the Coans willingly bestowing upon him alone that for which they had waged war against all the Milesians together. But Thales declared that Bias was a wiser man than he, and the tripod was sent to Bias. From Bias, in his turn, it was dispatched to another, as wiser than he. So it went the rounds and was sent away by each in turn, until at last it came to Thales for the second time. Finally, it was carried from Miletus to Thebes and dedicated to Ismenian Apollo.

¹ The names usually given in the list of the Seven Wise Men are: Bias of Priene, Chilon of Sparta, Cleobulus of Lindus, Periander of Corinth, Pittacus of Mitylene, Solon of Athens, and Thales of Miletus. See chapter xii. 4.

4 Θεόφραστος δέ φησι, πρῶτον μὲν εἰς Πιρήνην Βίαντι τὸν τρίποδα πεμφθῆναι, δεύτερον δ' εἰς Μίλητον Θαλῆ Βιάντος ἀποπέμψαντος· οὕτω δὲ διὰ πάντων πάλιν εἰς Βιάντα περιελθεῖν, τέλος δὲ εἰς Δελφοὺς ἀποσταλῆναι. ταῦτα μὲν οὖν ὑπὸ πλειόνων τεθρύληται, πλὴν ὅτι τὸ δῶρον ἀντὶ τοῦ τρίποδος οἱ μὲν φιάλην ὑπὸ Κροίσου πεμφθεῖσαν, οἱ δὲ ποτήριον Βαθυκλέους ἀπολιπόντος εἶναι λέγουσιν.

V. Ἰδία δ' Ἀναχάρσεως τε πρὸς Σόλωνα καὶ πάλιν Θάλεω συνουσίαν τινὰ καὶ λόγους ἀναγράφουσι τοιούτους. Ἀνάχαρσιν μὲν εἰς Ἀθήνας φασὶν ἐπὶ τὴν Σόλωνος οἰκίαν ἐλθόντα κόπτειν, καὶ λέγειν ὡς ξένος ὢν ἀφίκεται φιλίαν ποιησόμενος καὶ ξενίαν πρὸς αὐτόν. ἀποκριναμένου δὲ τοῦ Σόλωνος ὡς οἴκοι βέλτιόν ἐστι ποιείσθαι φιλίας, “Οὐκοῦν,” φάναι τὸν Ἀνάχαρσιν, “αὐτὸς ὢν οἴκοι
 2 σὺ ποίησαι φιλίαν καὶ ξενίαν πρὸς ἡμᾶς.” οὕτω δὲ θαυμάσαντα τὴν ἀγχίνοιαν τοῦ ἀνδρὸς τὸν Σόλωνα δέξασθαι φιλοφρόνως, καὶ χρόνον τινὰ κατασχεῖν παρ' αὐτῷ, ἤδη τὰ δημόσια πράττοντα καὶ συν-
 3 ταττόμενον τοὺς νόμους. τὸν οὖν Ἀνάχαρσιν 81 πυθόμενον καταγελᾶν τῆς πραγματείας τοῦ Σόλωνος, οἰόμενον γράμμασιν ἐφέξειν τὰς ἀδικίας καὶ πλεονεξίας τῶν πολιτῶν, ἃ μηδὲν τῶν ἀραχνίων διαφέρειν, ἀλλ' ὡς ἐκεῖνα τοὺς μὲν ἀσθενεῖς καὶ λεπτοὺς τῶν ἀλισκομένων καθέξειν, ὑπὸ δὲ τῶν δυνατῶν καὶ πλουσίων διαρραγήσεσθαι. τὸν δὲ Σόλωνα πρὸς ταῦτά φασιν εἰπεῖν ὅτι καὶ συν-θήκας ἀνθρώποι φυλάττουσιν, ἃς οὐδετέρῳ λυσι-

SOLON

Theophrastus, however, says that the tripod was sent in the first place to Bias at Priene, and in the second place to Thales at Miletus, at the instance of Bias, and so passed through the hands of all the wise men until it came round again to Bias, and finally was sent to Delphi. These, then, are the more common versions of the tale. But some say that the gift thus passed from hand to hand was not the tripod now seen at Delphi, but a bowl sent there by Croesus; and others that it was a beaker left there by Bathyacles.

V. In particular we are told of private intercourse between Solon and Anacharsis, and between Solon and Thales, of which the following accounts are given.¹ Anacharsis came to Athens, knocked at Solon's door, and said that he was a stranger who had come to make ties of friendship and hospitality with him. On Solon's replying that it was better to make one's friendships at home, "Well then," said Anacharsis, "do thou, who art at home, make me thy friend and guest." So Solon, admiring the man's ready wit, received him graciously and kept him with him some time. This was when he was already engaged in public affairs and compiling his laws. Anacharsis, accordingly, on learning what Solon was about, laughed at him for thinking that he could check the injustice and rapacity of the citizens by written laws, which were just like spiders' webs; they would hold the weak and delicate who might be caught in their meshes, but would be torn in pieces by the rich and powerful. To this Solon is said to have answered that men keep their agreements with each other when neither party profits by τελές ἐστὶ παραβαίνειν τῶν θεμένων· καὶ τοὺς νόμους αὐτὸς οὕτως ἀρμόζεται τοῖς πολίταις ὥστε πᾶσι τοῦ παρανομεῖν βέλτιον ἐπιδείξει τὸ δικαιοπραγεῖν. ἀλλὰ ταῦτα μὲν ὡς Ἀνάχαρσις εἵκαζεν ἀπέβη μᾶλλον ἢ κατ' ἐλπίδα τοῦ Σόλωνος. ἔφη δὲ κάκεῖνο θαυμάζειν ὁ Ἀνάχαρσις ἐκκλησίᾳ παραγενόμενος, ὅτι λέγουσι μὲν οἱ σοφοὶ παρ' Ἑλλησι, κρίνουσι δὲ οἱ ἀμαθεῖς.

¹ In chapters. v. and vi.

PLUTARCH'S LIVES

VI. Πρὸς Θαλῆν δ' εἰς Μίλητον ἐλθόντα τὸν Σόλωνα θαυμάζειν ὅτι γάμου καὶ παιδοποιίας τὸ παράπαν ἠμέληκε. καὶ τὸν Θαλῆν τότε μὲν σιωπῆσαι, διαλιπόντα δ' ὀλίγας ἡμέρας ἄνδρα παρασκευάσαι ξένον, ἀρτίως ἤκειν φάσκοντα δεκαταῖον ἐξ Ἀθηνῶν. πυθομένου δὲ τοῦ Σόλωνος εἰ δὴ τι καινὸν ἐν ταῖς Ἀθήναις, δεδιδαγμένον ἂν χρή λέγειν τὸν ἄνθρωπον, “Οὐδέν,” εἰπεῖν, “ἕτερον, εἰ μὴ νῆ Δία νεανίσκου τινὸς ἦν ἐκφορὰ
 2 καὶ προῦπεμπεν ἢ πόλις. ἦν γὰρ υἱός, ὡς ἔφασαν, ἀνδρὸς ἐνδόξου καὶ πρωτεύοντος ἀρετῇ τῶν πολιτῶν· οὐ παρῆν δέ, ἀλλ' ἀποδημεῖν ἔφασαν αὐτὸν ἤδη πολὺν χρόνον.” “Ὡς δυστυχεῖς ἐκεῖνος,” φάναι τὸν Σόλωνα. “τίνα δὲ ὠνόμαζον αὐτόν;” “Ἦκουσα,” φάναι, “τοῦνομα,” τὸν ἄνθρωπον, “ἀλλ' οὐ μνημονεύω· πλὴν ὅτι πολὺς λόγος ἦν αὐτοῦ σοφίας καὶ δικαιοσύνης.” οὕτω δὲ καθ' ἐκάστην ἀπόκρισιν τῷ φόβῳ προσαγόμενον τὸν Σόλωνα καὶ τέλος ἤδη συντεταραγμένον αὐτὸν ὑποβάλλειν τοῦνομα τῷ ξένῳ, πυθθανόμενον μὴ Σόλωνος
 3 ὁ τεθνηκῶς υἱὸς ὠνομάζετο. φήσαντος δὲ τοῦ ἀνθρώπου, τὸν μὲν ὀρμήσαι παίειν τὴν κεφαλὴν καὶ τὰλλα ποιεῖν καὶ λέγειν ἂν συμβαίνει τοῖς

SOLON

the breaking of them, and he was adapting his laws to the citizens in such a manner as to make it clear to all that the practice of justice was more advantageous than the transgression of the laws. But the results justified the conjecture of Anacharsis rather than the hopes of Solon. It was Anacharsis, too, who said, after attending a session of the assembly, that he was amazed to find that among the Greeks, the wise men pleaded causes, but the fools decided them.

VI. On his visit to Thales at Miletus, Solon is said to have expressed astonishment that his host was wholly indifferent to marriage and the getting of children. At the time Thales made no answer, but a few days afterwards he contrived to have a stranger say that he was just arrived after a ten days' journey from Athens. When Solon asked what news there was at Athens, the man, who was under instructions what to say, answered: "None other than the funeral of a young man, who was followed to the grave by the whole city. For he was the son, as I was told, of an honoured citizen who excelled all others in virtue; he was not at the funeral of his son; they told me that he had been travelling abroad for a long time." "O the miserable man!" said Solon; "pray, what was his name?" "I heard the name," the man said, "but I cannot recall it; only there was great talk of his wisdom and justice." Thus every answer heightened Solon's fears, and at last, in great distress of soul, he told his name to the stranger and asked him if it was Solon's son that was dead. The man said it was; whereupon Solon began to beat his head and to do and say everything else that betokens a transport of περιπαθοῦσι, τὸν δὲ Θαλῆν ἐπιλαβόμενον αὐτοῦ καὶ γελάσαντα, "Ταῦτά τοι," φάναι, "ὦ Σόλων, ἐμὲ γάμου καὶ παιδοποιίας ἀφίστησιν, ἃ καὶ σὲ κατερείπει τὸν ἔρρωμενέστατον. ἀλλὰ θάρρει τῶν λόγων ἔνεκα τούτων· οὐ γάρ εἰσιν ἀληθεῖς." ταῦτα μὲν οὖν Ἑρμιππος ἱστορεῖν φησι Πάταικον, ὃς ἔφασκε τὴν Αἰσώπου ψυχὴν ἔχειν.

PLUTARCH'S LIVES

VII. Ἄτοπος δὲ καὶ ἀγεννῆς ὁ τῷ φόβῳ τῆς ἀποβολῆς τὴν κτῆσιν ὧν χρῆ προϊέμενος· οὕτω γὰρ ἂν τις οὐ πλούτου, οὐ δόξαν, οὐ σοφίαν ἀγαπήσειε παραγενομένην, δεδιὼς στέρεσθαι. καὶ γὰρ ἀρετὴν, ἧς κτῆμα μείζον οὐδὲν οὐδ' ἡδιον, ἐξισταμένην ὑπὸ νόσων καὶ φαρμάκων ὀρώμεν αὐτῷ τε Θαλῆ μὴ γήμαντι πλέον οὐδὲν εἰς ἀφοβίαν, εἰ μὴ καὶ φίλων κτῆσιν ἔφυγε καὶ οἰκείων
 2 καὶ πατρίδος. ἀλλὰ καὶ παῖδα θετὸν ἔσχε ποιησάμενος αὐτὸς τὸν τῆς ἀδελφῆς, ὡς φασι, Κύβισθον. ἐχούσης γάρ τι τῆς ψυχῆς ἀγαπητικὸν ἐν ἑαυτῇ καὶ πεφυκυίας, ὥσπερ αἰσθάνεσθαι καὶ διανοεῖσθαι καὶ μνημονεύειν, οὕτω καὶ φιλεῖν, ἐνδύεταιί τι τούτῳ καὶ προσφύεται τῶν ἐκτὸς οἷς οἰκείον οὐδὲν ἔστιν, καὶ καθάπερ οἶκον ἢ χώραν γνησίων ἔρημον διαδόχων, τὸ φιλόστοργον ἀλλότριον καὶ νόθοι παῖδες ἢ θεράποντες εἰσοικισάμενοι καὶ καταλαβόντες ἅμυ τῷ φιλεῖν τὸ φροντίζειν καὶ δεδιέναι περὶ αὐτῶν ἐνεποίησαν.
 3 ὥστ' ἴδοις ἂν ἀνθρώπους στερροτέρα τῇ φύσει περὶ γάμου καὶ γενέσεως παίδων διαλεγόμενους, εἶτα τοὺς αὐτοὺς ἐπὶ παισὶν οἰκοτρίβων ἢ θρέμμασι παλλακῶν νοσοῦσι καὶ θνήσκουσι παρατεινομένους πόθῳ καὶ φωνὰς ἀγεννεῖς ἀφιέντας.

SOLON

grief. But Thales took him by the hand and said, with a smile, "This it is, O Solon, which keeps me from marriage and the getting of children; it overwhelms even thee, who art the most stout-hearted of men. But be not dismayed at this story, for it is not true." Such, at any rate, according to Hermippus, is the story of Pataecus, who used to boast that he had Aesop's soul.

VII. However, it is irrational and ignoble to renounce the acquisition of what we want for fear of losing it; for on this principle a man cannot be gratified by the possession of wealth, or honour, or wisdom, for fear he may be deprived of them. Indeed, even virtue, the most valuable and pleasing possession in the world, is often banished by sickness and drugs. And Thales himself, though unmarried, was nevertheless not wholly free from apprehension, unless he also avoided having friends, or relations, or country. On the contrary, he had a son by his own adoption, as we are told, Cybisthus, his sister's son. For the soul has in itself a capacity for affection, and loves just as naturally as it perceives, understands, and remembers. It clothes itself in this capacity, and attaches itself to those who are not akin to it, and just as if it were a house or an estate that lacks lawful heirs, this craving for affection is entered and occupied by alien and illegitimate children, or retainers, who, along with love for them, inspire anxiety and fear in their behalf. So that you will find men of a somewhat rugged nature who argue against marriage and the begetting of children, and then, when children of their servants, or offspring of their concubines fall sick and die, these same men are racked with sorrow and lament abjectly. Some, too,

PLUTARCH'S LIVES

ἔνιοι δὲ καὶ κυνῶν θανάτῳ καὶ ἵππων αἰσχροῦς
καὶ ἀβιώτως ὑπὸ λύπης διετέθησαν. ἀλλ' ἕτεροί
γε παῖδας ἀγαθοὺς ἀποβαλόντες οὐδὲν ἔπαθον
δεινὸν οὐδ' ἐποίησαν αἰσχρόν, ἀλλὰ καὶ χρώμενοι
4 τῷ λοιπῷ βίῳ κατὰ λόγον διετέλεσαν. ἀσθένεια
γάρ, οὐκ εὖνοια, λύπας ἀπεράντους ἐπάγεται καὶ
φόβους ἀνθρώποις ἀνασκήτοις ὑπὸ λόγου πρὸς τύχην, οἷς οὐδ' ἀπόλαυσις ἐγγίνεται τοῦ ποθουμένου παρόντος, τοῦ μέλλοντος ὠδίνας αἰεὶ καὶ
τρόμους καὶ ἀγῶνας, εἰ στερήσονται, παρέχοντος
αὐτοῖς. δεῖ δὲ μήτε πενία πρὸς χρημάτων
πεφράχθαι¹ στήρησιν μήτε ἀφιλία πρὸς φίλων
ἀποβολὴν μήτ' ἀπαιδία πρὸς τέκνων θάνατον,
ἀλλὰ τῷ λογισμῷ πρὸς πάντα. καὶ ταῦτα μὲν,
ὡς ἐν τῷ παρόντι, πλείονα τῶν ἱκανῶν.

VIII. Ἐπεὶ δὲ μακρόν τινα καὶ δυσχερῆ πόλεμον οἱ ἐν ἄστει περὶ τῆς Σαλαμινίων νήσου Μεγαρεῦσι πολεμοῦντες ἐξέκαμον, καὶ νόμον ἔθεντο
μήτε γράψαι τινὰ μήτ' εἰπεῖν αὐθις ὡς χρὴ τὴν
πόλιν ἀντιποιεῖσθαι τῆς Σαλαμίνος, ἢ θανάτῳ
ζημιουῖσθαι, βαρέως φέρων τὴν ἀδοξίαν ὁ Σόλων,
καὶ τῶν νέων ὀρώων πολλοὺς δεομένους ἀρχῆς ἐπὶ
τὸν πόλεμον, αὐτοὺς δὲ μὴ θαρροῦντας ἄρξασθαι
διὰ τὸν νόμον, ἐσκήψατο μὲν ἕκστασιν τῶν λο-
2 γισμῶν, καὶ λόγος εἰς τὴν πόλιν ἐκ τῆς οἰκίας
διεδόθη παρακινήτικῶς ἔχειν αὐτόν, ἐλεγεία δὲ
κρύφα συνθεῖς καὶ μελετήσας ὥστε λέγειν ἀπὸ
στόματος, ἐξεπήδησεν εἰς τὴν ἀγορὰν ἄφνω
πυλίδιον περιθέμενος. ὄχλου δὲ πολλοῦ συνδρα-

¹ πεφράχθαι Bekker and Cobet, after Bryan: πεπαῖσθαι (be delivered from).

SOLON

at the death even of dogs and horses, have been plunged into shameful and intolerable grief. But others have borne the loss of noble sons without terrible sorrow or unworthy conduct, and have conformed the rest of their lives to the dictates of reason. For it is weakness, not kindness, that brings men into endless pains and terrors when they are not trained by reason to endure the assaults of fortune. Such men do not even enjoy what they long for when they get it, but are filled with continual pangs, tremors, and struggles by the fear of future loss. However, we must be fortified not by poverty against deprivation of worldly goods, nor by friendlessness against loss of friends, nor by childlessness against death of children, but by reason against all adversities. This, under present circumstances, is more than enough on this head.

VIII. Once when the Athenians were tired out with a war which they were waging against the Megarians for the island of Salamis, they made a law that no one in future, on pain of death, should move, in writing or orally, that the city take up its contention for Salamis. Solon could not endure the disgrace of this, and when he saw that many of the young men wanted steps taken to bring on the war, but did not dare to take those steps themselves on account of the law, he pretended to be out of his head, and a report was given out to the city by his family that he showed signs of madness. He then secretly composed some elegiac verses, and after rehearsing them so that he could say them by rote, he sallied out into the market-place of a sudden, with a cap upon his head. After a large crowd had

PLUTARCH'S LIVES

μόντος ἀναβάς ἐπὶ τὸν τοῦ κήρυκος λίθον ἐν ᾧδῃ διεξήλθε τὴν ἐλεγείαν, ἧς ἐστὶν ἀρχή·

Αὐτὸς κήρυξ ἦλθον ἀφ' ἡμερτῆς Σαλαμίνας, κόσμον ἐπέων ᾧδῃν ἀντ' ἀγορῆς θέμενος.

- 3 τοῦτο τὸ ποίημα Σαλαμίς ἐπιγέγραπται καὶ στίχων ἑκατὸν ἐστὶ, χαριέντως πάνυ πεποιημένον. τότε δὲ ἀσθέντος αὐτοῦ καὶ τῶν φίλων τοῦ Σόλωνος ἀρξαμένων ἐπαινεῖν, μάλιστα δὲ τοῦ Πεισιστράτου τοῖς πολίταις ἐγκελευομένου καὶ παρορμῶντος πεισθῆναι τῷ λέγοντι, λύσαντες τὸν νόμον αὐθις ἤπτοντο τοῦ πολέμου, προστησάμενοι τὸν Σόλωνα.
- 4 Τὰ μὲν οὖν δημῶδη τῶν λεγομένων τοιαύτ' ἐστίν, ὅτι πλεύσας ἐπὶ Κωλιάδα μετὰ τοῦ Πεισιστράτου, καὶ καταλαβὼν αὐτόθι πάσας τὰς γυναῖκας τῇ Δήμητρι τὴν πάτριον θυσίαν ἐπιτελούσας, ἔπεμψεν ἄνδρα πιστὸν εἰς Σαλαμίνα προσποιούμενον αὐτόμολον εἶναι, κελεύοντα τοὺς Μεγαρεῖς, εἰ βούλονται τῶν Ἀθηναίων τὰς πρώτας λαβεῖν γυναῖκας, ἐπὶ Κωλιάδα μετ' αὐτοῦ
- 5 πλεῖν τὴν ταχίστην. ὡς δὲ πεισθέντες οἱ Μεγαρεῖς ἄνδρας ἐξέπεμψαν ἐν τῷ πλοίῳ καὶ κατειῶεν ὁ Σόλων τὸ πλοῖον ἐλαυνόμενον ἀπὸ τῆς νήσου, τὰς μὲν γυναῖκας ἐκποδῶν ἀπελθεῖν ἐκέλευσε, τῶν δὲ νεωτέρων τοὺς μηδέπω γενειῶντας ἐνδύμασι καὶ μίτραις καὶ ὑποδήμασι τοῖς ἐκείνων σκευασάμενους καὶ λαβόντας ἐγχειρίδια κρυπτὰ παίξειν καὶ χορεύειν προσέταξε πρὸς τῇ θαλάσῃ, μέχρις ἂν ἀποβῶσιν οἱ πολέμιοι καὶ γένηται τὸ
- 6 πλοῖον ὑποχείριον. οὕτω δὲ τούτων πραττομένων,

SOLON

collected there, he got upon the herald's stone and recited the poem which begins :—

“ Behold in me a herald come from lovely Salamis, With a song in ordered verse instead of a harangue.”¹

This poem is entitled “Salamis,” and contains a hundred very graceful verses. When Solon had sung it, his friends began to praise him, and Peisistratus in particular urged and incited the citizens to obey his words. They therefore repealed the law and renewed the war, putting Solon in command of it.

The popular account of his campaign is as follows. Having sailed to Cape Colias with Peisistratus, he found all the women of the city there, performing the customary sacrifice to Demeter. He therefore sent a trusty man to Salamis, who pretended to be a deserter, and bade the Megarians, if they wished to capture the principal women of Athens, to sail to Colias with him as fast as they could. The Megarians were persuaded by him, and sent off some men in his ship. But when Solon saw the vessel sailing back from the island, he ordered the women to withdraw, and directed those of the younger men who were still beardless, arraying themselves in the garments, head-bands, and sandals which the women had worn, and carrying concealed daggers, to sport and dance on the sea shore until the enemy had disembarked and the vessel was in their power. This being done as he directed, the ¹ Only six more verses are preserved (Fragments 1-3, Bergk). They contain reproaches of the Athenians for abandoning Salamis, and an exhortation to go and fight for it.

ὑπαχθέντες οἱ Μεγαρεῖς τῇ ὄψει καὶ προσμίξαντες ἐγγύς, ἐξεπήδων ὡς ἐπὶ γυναῖκας, ἀμιλλώμενοι πρὸς ἀλλήλους,¹ ὥστε μηδένα διαφυγεῖν, ἀλλὰ πάντας ἀπολέσθαι, καὶ τὴν νῆσον ἐπιπλεύ-σαντας εὐθὺς ἔχειν τοὺς Ἀθηναίους.

IX. Ἄλλοι δέ φασιν οὐ τοῦτον τὸν τρόπον
γενέσθαι τὴν κατάληψιν, ἀλλὰ πρῶτον μὲν αὐτῶ
τὸν ἐν Δελφοῖς θεὸν χρῆσαι·

Ἄρχηγους χώρας θυσίαις ἥρωας ἐνοίκους
Ἰλασο, τοὺς κόλποις Ἀσωπιάς ἀμφικαλύπτει,
οἱ φθίμενοι δέρκονται ἐς ἥλιον δύνοντα·

83

τὸν δὲ Σόλωνα διαπλεύσαντα νυκτὸς εἰς τὴν
νῆσον ἐντεμεῖν σφάγια Περιφήμφ καὶ Κυχρεῖ
2 τοῖς ἥρωσιν. εἶτα παρὰ τῶν Ἀθηναίων ἐβελοντὰς
λαβεῖν πεντακοσίους, δόγματος γενομένου τούτους, ἂν κατασχῶσι τὴν νῆσον, κυρίους εἶναι τοῦ
πολιτεύματος. ἀναχθέντα δὲ συχναῖς ἀλιάσιν
ἅμα τριακοντόρου συμπαραπλευούσης ὑφορμί-σασθαι τῇ Σαλαμῖνι κατὰ χηλὴν τινα πρὸς τὴν
Εὐβοίαν² ἀποβλέπουσαν. πυθομένους δὲ τοὺς ἐν
Σαλαμῖνι Μεγαρεῖς ἔκ τινος φήμης οὐδὲν βέβαιον, αὐτοὺς μὲν εἰς τὰ ὄπλα θορυβουμένους βαδίξειν,
ναῦν δ' ἀποστεῖλαι κατασκεψομένην τῶν πολε-
3 μίων· ἧς ἐγγύς ἐλθούσης κρατῆσαι τὸν Σόλωνα
καὶ καθεῖρξαι τοὺς Μεγαρεῖς. ἐμβιβάσαι δὲ τῶν Ἀθηναίων τοὺς κρατίστους κελεύσαντα πλεῖν ἐπὶ
τὴν πόλιν, ὡς ἂν ἐνδέχεται μάλιστα κρύπτοντας

¹ ἀλλήλους Sintenis and Bekker assume here a lacuna in the text, where such details were given as are found in Polyaeus, Strategemata, i. 20.

² Εὐβοίαν Sintenis suggests Νίσαιαν (cf. xii. 3).

SOLON

Megarians were lured on by what they saw, beached their vessel, and leapt out to attack women, as they supposed, vying with one another in speed. The result was that not a man of them escaped, but all were slain, and the Athenians at once set sail and took possession of the island.

IX. Others, however, say that the island was not taken in this way, but that Solon first received this oracle from the god at Delphi :—

“ The tutelary heroes of the land where once they lived, with sacred rites Propitiate, whom the Asopian plain now hides in its bosom ;
There they lie buried with their faces toward the setting sun.”

Thereupon Solon sailed by night to the island and made sacrifices to the heroes Periphemus and Cychreus. Then he took five hundred Athenian volunteers, a decree having been made that these should be supreme in the government of the island if they took it, and setting sail with a number of fishing boats convoyed by a thirty-oared ship, he anchored off the island of Salamis, at a point of land looking towards Euboea. But the Megarians in the city of Salamis, hearing only an uncertain report of what had happened, armed themselves hurriedly and set out for the place, at the same time dispatching a ship to spy out the enemy. This ship came near and was captured by Solon, who put her crew in confinement. Then he manned her with the best of his Athenians, and ordered them to sail against the city, keeping themselves as much

PLUTARCH'S LIVES

ἑαυτούς· ἅμα δὲ τοὺς ἄλλους Ἀθηναίους ἀναλαβόντα περὶ συμφέρεσθαι τοῖς Μεγαρεῦσι· καὶ τῆς μάχης ἔτι συνεστώσης φθάσαι τοὺς ἀπὸ τῆς νεῶς καταλαβόντας τὴν πόλιν.

- 4 Ἔοικε δὲ τῷ λόγῳ τούτῳ καὶ τὰ δρώμενα μαρτυρεῖν. ναῦς γάρ τις Ἀττικὴ προσέπλει σιωπῇ τὸ πρῶτον, εἶτα κραυγῇ καὶ ἀλαλαγμῷ προσφερομένων εἰς ἀνὴρ ἔνοπλος ἐξαλλόμενος μετὰ βοῆς ἔθει πρὸς ἄκρον τὸ Σκιράδιον¹ ἐκ γῆς προσφερομένοις. πλησίον δὲ τοῦ Ἐνναλίου τὸ ἱερόν ἐστιν ἰδρυσαμένου Σόλωνος. ἐνίκησε γὰρ τοὺς Μεγαρέας, καὶ ὅσοι μὴ διεφθάρησαν ἐν τῇ μάχῃ, πάντα ὑποσπόνδους ἀφήκεν.

X. Οὐ μὴν ἀλλὰ τῶν Μεγαρέων ἐπιμενόντων πολλὰ κακὰ καὶ δρώντες ἐν τῷ πολέμῳ καὶ πάσχοντες, ἐποίησαντο Λακεδαιμονίους διαλλακτὰς καὶ δικαστὰς. οἱ μὲν οὖν πολλοὶ τῷ Σόλῳ συναγωνίσασθαι λέγουσι τὴν Ὀμήρου δόξαν· ἐμβαλόντα γὰρ αὐτὸν ἔπος εἰς νεῶν κατάλογον ἐπὶ τῆς δίκης ἀναγνῶναι·

Αἴας δ' ἐκ Σαλαμῖνος ἄγεν δυοκαίδεκα νῆας, στῆσε δ' ἄγων ἔν' Ἀθηναίων ἴσταντο φάλαγγες.

- 2 αὐτοὶ δ' Ἀθηναῖοι ταῦτα μὲν οἴονται φλυαρίαν εἶναι, τὸν δὲ Σόλωνα φασιν ἀποδειξαι τοῖς δικασταῖς ὅτι Φιλαῖος καὶ Εὐρυσάκης, Αἴαντος υἱοί, Ἀθήνησι πολιτείας μεταλαβόντες παρέconcealed as was feasible. At the same time, with the rest of his Athenians, he engaged the Megarians on land, and while the fight was still raging, the crew of the ship succeeded in capturing the city.

¹ Σκιράδιον after this word Sintenis and Bekker assume a lacuna in the text.

SOLON

Now there seems to be a confirmation of this story in certain ceremonies afterwards established. Namely, an Attic ship would approach the island in silence at first, then its crew would make an onset with shouts and cries, and one man in full armour would leap out with a shout of triumph and run to the promontory of Sciradium to inform those who were attacking by land. Hard by that place is the temple of Enyalius¹ which was erected by Solon. For he conquered the Megarians, and all who were not slain in the battle were released on parole.

X. Notwithstanding all this, the Megarians persisted in their opposition, and both sides inflicted and suffered many injuries in the war, so that finally they made the Lacedaemonians arbiters and judges of the strife. Accordingly, most writers say that the fame of Homer favoured the contention of Solon; for after himself inserting a verse into the Catalogue of Ships, he read the passage at the trial thus:—

“ Ajax from Salamis brought twelve ships,
And bringing, stationed them near the Athenian hosts.”²

The Athenians themselves, however, think this an idle tale, and say that Solon proved to the judges that Philaeus and Eurysaces, the sons of Ajax, became citizens of Athens, made over their island

¹ Ares.

² Iliad, ii. 557 f.

δοσαν τὴν νῆσον αὐτοῖς, καὶ κατώκησαν ὁ μὲν ἐν Βραυρῶνι τῆς Ἀττικῆς, ὁ δὲ ἐν Μελίτῃ· καὶ δῆμον ἐπώνυμον Φιλαίου τῶν Φιλαϊδῶν ἔχουσιν, 3 ὅθεν ἦν Πεισίστρατος. ἔτι δὲ μᾶλλον ἐξελέγξαι τοὺς Μεγαρέας βουλόμενον ἰσχυρίσασθαι περὶ τῶν νεκρῶν ὡς οὐχ ὄν τρόπον ἐκείνοι θάπτουσι κεκηδευμένων, ἀλλ' ὄν αὐτοί. θάπτουσι δὲ Μεγαρεῖς πρὸς ἑὼ τοὺς νεκροὺς στρέφοντες, Ἀθηναῖοι δὲ πρὸς ἐσπέραν. Ἡρέας δὲ ὁ Μεγαρεὺς ἐνιστάμενος λέγει καὶ Μεγαρεῖς πρὸς ἐσπέραν τετραμμένα τὰ σώματα τῶν νεκρῶν τιθέναι· καὶ μείζον ἔτι τούτου, μίαν ἕκαστον Ἀθηναίων ἔχειν θήκην, Μεγαρέων δὲ καὶ τρεῖς καὶ τέσσαρας ἐν 4 μῆ κείσθαι. τῷ μέντοι Σόλωνι καὶ Πυθικὸς τινὰς βοηθῆσαι λέγουσι χρησμούς, ἐν οἷς ὁ θεὸς Ἰαουίαν τὴν Σαλαμίνα προσηγόρευσε. ταύτην τὴν δίκην ἐδίκασαν Σπαρτιατῶν πέντε ἄνδρες, Κριτολαΐδας, Ἀμομφάρετος, Ὑψηχίδας, Ἀναξίλας, Κλεομένης.

XI. Ἦδη μὲν οὖν καὶ ἀπὸ τούτων ἔνδοξος ἦν ὁ Σόλων καὶ μέγας. ἐθαυμάσθη δὲ καὶ διεβοήθη μᾶλλον ἐν τοῖς Ἑλλησιν εἰπὼν ὑπὲρ τοῦ ἱεροῦ τοῦ ἐν Δελφοῖς, ὡς χρὴ βοηθεῖν καὶ μὴ περιορᾶν Κιρραίους ὑβρίζοντας εἰς τὸ μαντεῖον, ἀλλὰ προσαμύνειν ὑπὲρ τοῦ θεοῦ Δελφοῖς. πεισθέντες γὰρ ὑπ' ἐκείνου πρὸς τὸν πόλεμον ὤρμησαν οἱ Ἀμφικτύονες, ὡς ἄλλοι τε μαρτυροῦσι καὶ Ἀριστοτέλης ἐν τῇ τῶν Πυθιονικῶν ἀναγραφῇ to them, and took up their residence in Attica, one at Brauron, and the other at Melité; and they have a township named after Philaeus, namely Philaïdae, to which Peisistratus belonged. They say, too, that Solon, wishing to refute the claims of the Megarians still further, made the point that the dead on the island of Salamis were not buried after the Megarian, but after the Athenian fashion. For the Megarians bury their dead facing the east, but the Athenians facing the west. However, Hereas the Megarian denies this, and says that the Megarians also turn the faces of their dead to the west. And what is still more important than this, he says that the Athenians use one tomb for each body, whereas the Megarians (like the early inhabitants of Salamis) place three or four bodies in one tomb. However, they say that Solon was further supported by sundry Pythian oracles, in which the god spoke of Salamis as Ionian. This case was decided by five Spartans, Critolaïdas, Amompharetus, Hypsechidas, Anaxilas, and Cleomenes.

SOLON

XI. These events, then, presently made Solon famous and powerful. But he was even more admired and celebrated among the Greeks for what he said in behalf of the temple at Delphi, namely, that the Greeks must come to its relief, and not suffer the people of Cirrha to outrage the oracle, but aid the Delphians in maintaining the honour of the god. For it was by his persuasion that the Amphictyons¹ undertook the war, as Aristotle, among others, testifies, in his list of the victors at the Pythian games,

¹ The twelve peoples who had as common sanctuaries the temple of Apollo at Delphi and the temple of Demeter at Anthela, near Thermopylae.

2 Σόλωνι τὴν γνώμην ἀνατιθείς. οὐ μέντοι στρα- 84
τηγὸς ἐπὶ τοῦτον ἀπεδείχθη τὸν πόλεμον, ὡς
λέγειν φησὶν Ἑρμιππος Εὐάνθη τὸν Σάμιον· οὔτε
γὰρ Αἰσχίνης ὁ ῥήτωρ τοῦτ' εἶρηκεν, ἔν τε τοῖς
Δελφῶν ὑπομνήμασιν Ἀλκμαίων, οὐ Σόλων, Ἀθηναίων στρατηγὸς ἀναγέγραπται.

XII. Τὸ δὲ Κυλώνειον ἄγος ἤδη μὲν ἐκ πολλοῦ
διετάραττε τὴν πόλιν, ἐξ οὗ τοὺς συνωμότας τοῦ Κύλωνος ἱκετεύοντας τὴν θεὸν Μεγακλῆς ὁ ἄρχων
ἐπὶ δίκη κατελθεῖν ἔπεισεν· ἐξάψαντας δὲ τοῦ
ἔδους κρόκην κλωστήν καὶ ταύτης ἔχομένους, ὡς
ἐγένοντο περὶ τὰς σεμνὰς θεὰς καταβαίνοντες,
αὐτομάτως τῆς κρόκης ῥαγείσης, ὥρμησε συλ-λαμβάνειν ὁ Μεγακλῆς καὶ οἱ συνάρχοντες, ὡς
τῆς θεοῦ τὴν ἱκεσίαν ἀπολεγομένης· καὶ τοὺς μὲν
ἔξω κατέλευσαν, οἱ δὲ τοῖς βωμοῖς προσφυγόντες
ἀπεσφάγησαν· μόνοι δ' ἀφείθησαν οἱ τὰς γυναῖ-
2 κας αὐτῶν ἱκετεύσαντες. ἐκ τούτου δὲ κληθέντες ἐναγεῖς ἐμισοῦντο· καὶ τῶν Κυλωνείων οἱ περι-γενόμενοι πάλιν ἦσαν ἰσχυροί, καὶ στασιάζοντες
αἰεὶ διετέλουν πρὸς τοὺς ἀπὸ τοῦ Μεγακλέους.
ἐν δὲ τῷ τότε χρόνῳ τῆς στάσεως ἀκμὴν λα-βούσης μάλιστα καὶ τοῦ δήμου διαστάντος, ἤδη
δόξαν ἔχων ὁ Σόλων παρήλθεν εἰς μέσον ἅμα
τοῖς ἀρίστοις τῶν Ἀθηναίων, καὶ δεόμενος καὶ
διδάσκων ἔπεισε τοὺς ἐναγεῖς λεγομένους δίκην

SOLON

where he ascribes the measure to Solon. He was not, however, appointed general for this war, as Evanthes the Samian says (according to Hermippus), for Aeschines the orator makes no such statement,¹ and in the records of Delphi it is stated that Alcmaeon, and not Solon, commanded the Athenians.

XII. Now the Cylonian pollution had for a long time agitated the city, ever since Megacles the archon had persuaded Cylon and his fellow-conspirators, who had taken sanctuary in the temple of Athena, to come down and stand their trial.² They fastened a braided thread to the image of the goddess and kept hold of it, but when they reached the shrine of the Erinyes on their way down, the thread broke of its own accord, upon which Megacles and his fellow-archons rushed to seize them, on the plea that the goddess refused them the rights of suppliants. Those who were outside of sacred precincts were stoned to death, and those who took refuge at the altars were slaughtered there; only those were spared who made supplication to the wives of the archons. Therefore the archons were called polluted men and were held in execration. The survivors of the followers of Cylon also recovered strength, and were forever at variance with the descendants of Megacles. At this particular time the quarrel was at its height and the people divided between the two factions. Solon, therefore, being now in high repute, interposed between them, along with the noblest of the Athenians, and by his entreaties and injunctions persuaded the men who were held to be polluted to submit to a trial, and to

¹ In his speech Against Ctesiphon, § 109.

² About 636 B.C. Cf. Herod. v. 71; Thuc. i. 126.

PLUTARCH'S LIVES

- ὑποσχεῖν καὶ κριθῆναι τριακοσίων ἀριστίνδην
 3 δικαζόντων. Μύρωνος δὲ τοῦ Φλυέως κατηγο-ρούντος ἐάλωσαν οἱ ἄνδρες, καὶ μετέστησαν οἱ ζῶντες· τῶν δ' ἀποθανόντων τοὺς νεκροὺς ἀνο-ρύξαντες ἐξέριψαν ὑπὲρ τοὺς ὄρους. ταῦταις
 δὲ ταῖς ταραχαῖς καὶ Μεγαρέων συνεπιθεμένων
 ἀπέβαλόν τε Νίσαιαν οἱ Ἀθηναῖοι καὶ Σαλαμίνας ἐξέπεσον αὐθις. καὶ φόβοι τινὲς ἐκ δεισιδαιμονίας ἄμα καὶ φάσματα κατεῖχε τὴν πόλιν, οἳ
 τε μάντις ἄγη καὶ μiasμούς δεομένους καθαρμῶν
 προφαίνεσθαι διὰ τῶν ἱερῶν ἠγόρευον.
- 4 Οὕτω δὴ μετάπεμπτος αὐτοῖς ἦκεν ἐκ Κρήτης Ἐπιμενίδης ὁ Φαίστιος, ὃν ἑβδομον ἐν τοῖς σοφοῖς
 καταριθμοῦσιν ἔνιοι τῶν οὐ προσιεμένων τὸν Περίανδρον. ἐδόκει δὲ τις εἶναι θεοφιλῆς καὶ
 σοφὸς περὶ τὰ θεῖα τὴν ἐνθουσιαστικὴν καὶ τε-λεστικὴν σοφίαν, διὸ καὶ παῖδα νύμφης ὄνομα Βάλτης καὶ Κούρητα νέον αὐτὸν οἱ τότε ἄνθρωποι
 προσηγόρευον. ἐλθὼν δὲ καὶ τῷ Σόλωνι χρησά-5 μενος φίλῳ πολλὰ προσυπειργάσατο καὶ προ-δοποίησεν αὐτῷ τῆς νομοθεσίας. καὶ γὰρ εὐσταλεῖς ἐποίησε τὰς ἱερουργίας καὶ περὶ τὰ πένθη
 πραοτέρους, θυσίας τινὰς εὐθὺς ἀναμίξας πρὸς
 τὰ κήδη, καὶ τὸ σκληρὸν ἀφελὼν καὶ τὸ βαρβαρικὸν ᾧ συνείχοντο πρότερον αἱ πλείσται γυ-ναῖκες. τὸ δὲ μέγιστον, ἰλασμοῖς τισι καὶ καθ-αρμοῖς καὶ ἰδρύσεσι κατοργιάσας καὶ καθοσιώ-

SOLON

abide by the decision of three hundred jurors selected from the nobility. Myron of Phlya conducted the prosecution, and the family of Megacles was found guilty. Those who were alive were banished, and the bodies of the dead were dug up and cast forth beyond the borders of the country. During these disturbances the Megarians also attacked the Athenians, who lost Nisaea, and were driven out of Salamis once more. The city was also visited with superstitious fears and strange appearances, and the seers declared that their sacrifices indicated pollutions and defilements which demanded expiation.

Under these circumstances they summoned to their aid from Crete Epimenides of Phaestus, who is reckoned as the seventh Wise Man by some of those who refuse Periander a place in the list.¹ He was reputed to be a man beloved of the gods, and endowed with a mystical and heaven-sent wisdom in religious matters. Therefore the men of his time said that he was the son of a nymph named Balte, and called him a new Cures.² On coming to Athens he made Solon his friend, assisted him in many ways, and paved the way for his legislation. For he made the Athenians decorous and careful in their religious services, and milder in their rites of mourning, by attaching certain sacrifices immediately to their funeral ceremonies, and by taking away the harsh and barbaric practices in which their women had usually indulged up to that time. Most important of all, by sundry rites of propitiation and purification, and by sacred foundations, he hallowed and conse-

¹ See note on iii. 5, and cf. Aristotle. Const. of Athens, i.

² The Curetes were Cretan priests of Idaean Zeus, who took their name from the demi-gods to whose care Rhea was said to have committed the infant Zeus.

σας τὴν πόλιν ὑπήκοον τοῦ δικαίου καὶ μᾶλλον
 εὐπειθῆ πρὸς ὁμόνοιαν κατέστησε. λέγεται δὲ
 τὴν Μουνηχίαν ἰδὼν καὶ καταμαθὼν πολὺν
 χρόνον, εἰπεῖν πρὸς τοὺς παρόντας ὡς τυφλόν
 6 ἔστι τοῦ μέλλοντος ἄνθρωπος· ἐκφαγεῖν γὰρ ἂν
 Ἀθηναίους τοῖς αὐτῶν ὁδοῦσιν, εἰ προήδεσαν ὅσα
 τὴν πόλιν ἀνιάσει τὸ χωρίον· ὅμοιον δέ τι καὶ Θαλῆν εἰκάσαι λέγουσι· κελεύσαι γὰρ αὐτὸν ἔν
 τινι τόπῳ τῆς Μιλησίας φαύλῳ καὶ παρορωμένῳ
 7 τελευτήσαντα θείναι, προειπὼν ὡς ἀγορά ποτε
 τοῦτο Μιλησίων ἔσται τὸ χωρίον· Ἐπιμενίδης
 μὲν οὖν μάλιστα θαυμασθεὶς, καὶ χρήματα δι-δόντων πολλὰ καὶ τιμὰς μεγάλας τῶν Ἀθηναίων, οὐδὲν ἢ θαλλὸν ἀπὸ τῆς ἱερᾶς ἐλαίας αἰτησάμενος
 καὶ λαβὼν ἀπήλθεν.

XIII. Οἱ δ' Ἀθηναῖοι τῆς Κυλωνείου πεπαυμένης ταραχῆς καὶ μεθεστώτων, ὥσπερ εἴρηται,
 τῶν ἐναγῶν, τὴν παλαιὰν αὐθις στάσιν ὑπὲρ τῆς
 πολιτείας ἐστασίαζον, ὅσας ἢ χώρα διαφορὰς
 εἶχεν, εἰς τοσαῦτα μέρη τῆς πόλεως διαστάσης.
 ἦν γὰρ τὸ μὲν τῶν Διακρίων γένος δημοκρατικώ- 85
 τατον, ὀλιγαρχικώτατον δὲ τὸ τῶν Πεδιέων· τρίτοι δ' οἱ Πάραλοι μέσον τινα καὶ μεμιγμένον
 αἰρούμενοι πολιτείας τρόπον, ἐμποδῶν ἦσαν καὶ
 2 διεκώλυον τοὺς ἑτέρους κρατῆσαι. τότε δὲ τῆς τῶν
 πενήτων πρὸς τοὺς πλουσίους ἀνωμαλίας ὥσπερ
 ἀκμὴν λαβούσης παντάπασιν ἐπισφαλῶς ἢ πόλις
 διέκειτο, καὶ μόνως ἂν ἐδόκει καταστῆναι καὶ

SOLON

crated the city, and brought it to be observant of justice and more easily inclined to unanimity. It is said that when he had seen Munychia¹ and considered it for some time, he remarked to the bystanders that man was indeed blind to the future; for if the Athenians only knew what mischiefs the place would bring upon their city, they would devour it with their own teeth. A similar insight into futurity is ascribed to Thales. They say that he gave directions for his burial in an obscure and neglected quarter of the city's territory, predicting that it would one day be the market-place of Miletus. Well then, Epimenides was vastly admired by the Athenians, who offered him much money and large honours; but he asked for nothing more than a branch of the sacred olive-tree, with which he returned home.

XIII. But the Athenians, now that the Cylonian disturbance was over and the polluted persons banished, as described,² relapsed into their old disputes about the form of government, the city being divided into as many parties as there were diversities in its territory. The Hill-men favoured an extreme democracy; the Plain-men an extreme oligarchy; the Shore-men formed a third party,³ which preferred an intermediate and mixed form of government, was opposed to the other two, and prevented either from gaining the ascendancy. At that time, too, the disparity between the rich and the poor had culminated, as it were, and the city was in an altogether perilous condition; it seemed as if the only

¹ The acropolis of the Peiraeus, strategically commanding not only that peninsula, but also Athens itself. It was often garrisoned by conquerors of Athens. ² Chapter xii. 3.

³ Cf. Aristotle, Const. of Athens, xiii. 4.

PLUTARCH'S LIVES

παύσασθαι ταραττομένη τυραννίδος γενομένης. ἅπας μὲν γὰρ ὁ δῆμος ἦν ὑπόχρεως τῶν πλουσίων. ἡ γὰρ ἐγεώργουν ἐκείνοις ἕκτα τῶν γινομένων τελούντες, ἕκτημόριοι προσαγορευόμενοι καὶ θῆτες, ἡ χρέα λαμβάνοντες ἐπὶ τοῖς σώμασιν ἀγώγιμοι τοῖς δανείζουσιν ἦσαν, οἱ μὲν αὐτοῦ δουλεύοντες, οἱ δ' ἐπὶ τὴν ξένην πιπρασκόμενοι.

3 πολλοὶ δὲ καὶ παῖδας ἰδίους ἠναγκάζοντο πωλεῖν (οὐδεὶς γὰρ νόμος ἐκώλυε) καὶ τὴν πόλιν φεύγειν διὰ τὴν χαλεπότητα τῶν δανειστών. οἱ δὲ πλείστοι καὶ ῥωμαλεώτατοι συνίσταντο καὶ παρεκάλουν ἀλλήλους μὴ περιορᾶν, ἀλλ' ἐλομένους ἕνα προστάτην ἄνδρα πιστὸν ἀφελέσθαι τοὺς ὑπερημέρους καὶ τὴν γῆν ἀναδάσασθαι καὶ ὅλως μεταστῆσαι τὴν πολιτείαν.

XIV. Ἐνταῦθα δὴ τῶν Ἀθηναίων οἱ φρονιμώτατοι συνορῶντες τὸν Σόλωνα μόνον μάλιστα τῶν ἀμαρτημάτων ἐκτὸς ὄντα, καὶ μήτε τοῖς πλουσίοις κοινωvντα τῆς ἀδικίας μήτε ταῖς τῶν πενήτων ἀνάγκαις ἐνεχόμενον, ἐδέοντο τοῖς κοινοῖς προσελθεῖν καὶ καταπαῦσαι τὰς διαφοράς. καίτοι Φανίας ὁ Λέσβιος αὐτὸν ἱστορεῖ τὸν Σόλωνα, χρησάμενον ἀπάτη πρὸς ἀμφοτέρους ἐπὶ σωτηρίᾳ τῆς πόλεως, ὑποσχέσθαι κρύφα τοῖς μὲν ἀπόροις τὴν νέμησιν, τοῖς δὲ χρηματικοῖς βεβαίωσιν τῶν συμβολαίων.

2 ἀλλ' αὐτὸς ὁ Σόλων ὀκνῶν φησι τὸ πρῶτον ἄψασθαι τῆς πολιτείας, καὶ δεδοικῶς τῶν μὲν τὴν φιλοχρηματίαν, τῶν δὲ τὴν ὑπερηφανίαν. ἤρέθη δὲ ἄρχων μετὰ Φιλόμβροτον ὁμοῦ καὶ διαλλακτῆς καὶ νομοθέτης, δεξαμένων προθύμως αὐτὸν ὡς μὲν way to settle its disorders and stop its turmoils was to establish a tyranny. All the common people were in debt to the rich. For they either tilled their lands for them, paying them a sixth of the increase (whence they were called Hectemorioi and Thetes), or else they pledged their persons for debts and could be seized by their creditors, some becoming slaves at home, and others being sold into foreign countries. Many, too, were forced to sell their own children (for there was no law against it), or go into exile, because of the cruelty of the money-lenders. But the most and sturdiest of them began to band together and exhort one another not to submit to their wrongs, but to choose a trusty man as their leader, set free the condemned debtors, divide the land anew, and make an entire change in the form of government.

SOLON

XIV. At this point, the wisest of the Athenians cast their eyes upon Solon. They saw that he was the one man least implicated in the errors of the time; that he was neither associated with the rich in their injustice, nor involved in the necessities of the poor. They therefore besought him to come forward publicly and put an end to the prevailing dissensions. And yet Phanias the Lesbian writes that Solon of his own accord played a trick upon both parties in order to save the city, and secretly promised to the poor the distribution of land which they desired, and to the rich, validation of their securities. But Solon himself says that he entered public life reluctantly, and fearing one party's greed and the other party's arrogance.¹ However, he was chosen archon² to succeed Philombrotus, and made mediator and legislator for the crisis, the rich

¹ Cf. Aristotle, Const. of Athens, v. 3. ² 594 B.C.

PLUTARCH'S LIVES

εὐπορον τῶν πλουσίων, ὡς δὲ χρηστὸν τῶν πενήτων. λέγεται δὲ καὶ φωνή τις αὐτοῦ περιφερομένη πρότερον, εἰπόντος ὡς τὸ ἴσον πόλεμον οὐ ποιεῖ, καὶ τοῖς κτηματικοῖς ἀρέσκειν καὶ τοῖς ἀκτήμοσι, τῶν μὲν ἀξία καὶ ἀρετῆ, τῶν δὲ μέτρῳ καὶ ἀριθμῷ
 3 τὸ ἴσον ἔξειν προσδοκῶντων· ὅθεν ἐπ' ἐλπίδος μεγάλης ἑκατέρων γενομένων οἱ προϋστάμενοι προσέκειντο τῷ Σόλωνι τυραννίδα προξενούντες καὶ ἀναπειθόντες εὐτολμότερον ἄψασθαι τῆς πόλεως ἐγκρατῆ γενόμενον. πολλοὶ δὲ καὶ τῶν διὰ μέσου πολιτῶν, τὴν ὑπὸ λόγου καὶ νόμου μεταβολὴν ὀρῶντες ἐργώδη καὶ χαλεπὴν οὔσαν, οὐκ ἔφευγον ἓνα τὸν δικαιοτάτον καὶ φρονιμώτα-
 4 τον ἐπιστῆσαι τοῖς πράγμασιν. ἔνιοι δὲ φασὶ καὶ μαντεῖαν γενέσθαι τῷ Σόλωνι Πυθοῖ τοιαύτην·

Ἦσο μέσην κατὰ νῆα κυβερνητήριον ἔργον εὐθύνων· πολλοὶ τοι Ἀθηναίων ἐπίκουροι.

μάλιστα δὲ οἱ συνήθεις ἐκάκιζον εἰ διὰ τοῦνομα δυσωπεῖται τὴν μοναρχίαν, ὥσπερ οὐκ ἀρετῆ τοῦ λαβόντος εὐθύς ἂν βασιλείαν γενομένην, καὶ γεγενημένην πρότερον μὲν Εὐβοεῦσι Τυννῶν-5 δαν, νῦν δὲ Μιτυληναίοις Πιπτακὸν ἡρημένους τύραννον.

Τούτων οὐδὲν ἐξέκρουσε τὸν Σόλωνα τῆς αὐτοῦ προαιρέσεως, ἀλλὰ πρὸς μὲν τοὺς φίλους εἶπεν, ὡς λέγεται, καλὸν μὲν εἶναι τὴν τυραννίδα χωρίον, οὐκ ἔχειν δὲ ἀπόβασιν, πρὸς δὲ Φῶκον ἐν τοῖς ποιήμασι γράφων·

SOLON

accepting him readily because he was well-to-do, and the poor because he was honest. It is also said that a certain utterance of his which was current before his election, to the effect that equality bred no war, pleased both the men of substance and those who had none; the former expecting to have equality based on worth and excellence, the latter on measure and count. Therefore both parties were in high hopes, and their chief men persistently recommended a tyranny to Solon, and tried to persuade him to seize the city all the more confidently now that he had it completely in his power. Many citizens, too, who belonged to neither party, seeing that it would be a laborious and difficult matter to effect a change by means of argument and law, were not reluctant to have one man, the justest and wisest of all, put at the head of the state. Furthermore, some say that Solon got an oracle at Pytho which ran as follows:—

“Take thy seat amidships, the pilot’s task is thine;
Perform it; many in Athens are thine allies.”

And above all, his familiar friends chid him for being averse to absolute power because of the name of tyranny, as if the virtues of him who seized it would not at once make it a lawful sovereignty. Euboea (they argued) had formerly found this true of Tynnondas, and so had the Mitylenaeans, now that they had chosen Pittacus to be their tyrant.

None of these things shook Solon from his resolution. To his friends he said, as we are told, that a tyranny was a lovely place, but there was no way down from it. And in his poems he writes to Phocus:—

Εἰ δὲ γῆς (φησὶν) ἐφεισάμην
πατρίδος, τυραννίδος δὲ καὶ βίης ἀμειλίχου
οὐ καθηψάμην μίνας καὶ καταισχύνας κλέος, οὐδὲν αἰδεύμαι· πλέον γὰρ ὧδε νικήσειν δοκέω
πάντας ἀνθρώπους.

ὅθεν εὐδῆλον ὅτι καὶ πρὸ τῆς νομοθεσίας μεγά-6 λην δόξαν εἶχεν. ἃ δὲ φυγόντος αὐτοῦ τὴν τυραν-νίδα πολλοὶ καταγελῶντες ἔλεγον, γέγραφεν
οὕτως·

Οὐκ ἔφν Σόλων βαθύφρων οὐδὲ βουλήεις ἀνὴρ·
ἔσθλα γὰρ θεοῦ διδόντος αὐτὸς οὐκ ἐδέξατο.
περιβαλὼν δ' ἄγραν ἀγασθεὶς οὐκ ἐπέσπασεν μέγα

δίκτυον, θυμοῦ θ' ἀμαρτῆ καὶ φρενῶν ἀπο-σφαλείς.

ἤθελον¹ γὰρ κεν κρατήσας, πλοῦτον ἄφθονον
λαβὼν

καὶ τυραννεύσας Ἀθηνῶν μῶνον ἡμέραν μίαν,
ἀσκόδ¹ ὕστερον δεδάρθαι κάπιτετριφθαι γένος.

XV. Ταῦτα τοὺς πολλοὺς καὶ φαύλους περὶ
αὐτοῦ πεποίηκε λέγοντας. οὐ μὴν ἀπωσάμενός
γε τὴν τυραννίδα τὸν πραότατον ἐχρήσατο τρόπον
τοῖς πράγμασιν, οὐδὲ μαλακῶς οὐδ' ὑπέικων τοῖς
δυναμένοις οὐδὲ πρὸς ἡδονὴν τῶν ἐλομένων ἔθετο

¹ ἤθελον, ἀσκόδς Bergk, with the better MSS. : ἤθελεν, αὐτός
(he (Solon) would have been willing; himself).

SOLON

“ And if,” he says, “ I spared my land,
My native land, and unto tyranny and violence
implacable
Did not set hand, polluting and disgracing my fair
fame,
I’m not ashamed ; in this way rather shall my name
be set above
That of all other men.” ¹

From this it is clear that even before his legislation he was in high repute. And as for the ridicule which many heaped upon him for refusing the tyranny, he has written as follows ;—

“ Solon was a shallow thinker and a man of counsel void ;
When the gods would give him blessings, of his own
will he refused.
When his net was full of fish, amazed, he would not pull it in,
All for lack of spirit, and because he was bereft of sense.
I had certainly been willing, for the power, and boundless wealth,
And to be tyrant over Athens no more than a single day,
Then to have a pouch flayed from me, and my lineage blotted out.” ²

XV. Thus he represents the multitude and men of low degree as speaking of him. However, though he rejected the tyranny, he did not administer affairs in the mildest possible manner, nor in the enactment of his laws did he show a feeble spirit, nor make concessions to the powerful, nor consult the pleasure

¹ Fragment 32 (Bergk).

² Fragment 33 (Bergk).

PLUTARCH'S LIVES

τοὺς νόμους· ἀλλ' ἢ μὲν ἄριστον ἦν, οὐκ ἐπήγαγεν
 ἰατροίαν οὐδὲ καινοτομίαν, φοβηθεὶς μὴ συγχέας
 παντάπασι καὶ ταραξας τὴν πόλιν ἰσθενέστερος
 γένηται τοῦ καταστήσαι πάλιν καὶ συναρμό-2 σασθαι πρὸς τὸ ἄριστον· ἃ δὲ καὶ λέγων ἤλπιζε πειθομένοις καὶ προσάγων ἀνάγκην ὑπομένουσι
 χρήσασθαι, ταῦτ' ἔπραττεν, ὡς φησιν αὐτός,

‘Ομοῦ βίην τε καὶ δίκην συναρμόσας.¹

ὅθεν ὕστερον ἐρωτηθεὶς εἰ τοὺς ἀρίστους Ἀθηναίοις νόμους ἔγραψεν, “Ὦν ἄν,” ἔφη, “προσεδέξαντο τοὺς ἀρίστους.”

“Α δ' οὖν οἱ νεώτεροι τοὺς Ἀθηναίους λέγουσι
 τὰς τῶν πραγμάτων δυσχερείας ὀνόμασι χρηστοῖς
 καὶ φιλανθρώποις ἐπικαλύπτοντας ἀστείως ὑπο-3 κορίζεσθαι, τὰς μὲν πόρνας ἑταίρας, τοὺς δὲ φόρους συντάξεις, φυλακὰς δὲ τὰς φρουρὰς τῶν
 πόλεων, οἴκημα δὲ τὸ δεσμωτήριον καλοῦντας, πρώτου Σόλωνος ἦν, ὡς ἔοικε, σόφισμα τὴν τῶν
 χρεῶν ἀποκοπὴν σεισάχθειαν ὀνομάσαντος. τοῦτο
 γὰρ ἐποίησατο πρῶτον πολίτευμα, γράψας τὰ
 μὲν ὑπάρχοντα τῶν χρεῶν ἀνεῖσθαι, πρὸς δὲ τὸ
 4 λοιπὸν ἐπὶ τοῖς σώμασι μηδένα δανείζειν. καίτοι
 τινὲς ἔγραψαν, ὧν ἐστὶν Ἀνδροτίων, οὐκ ἀποκοπὴν
 χρεῶν, ἀλλὰ τόκων μετριότητι κουφισθέντας ἀγαπῆσαι τοὺς πένητας, καὶ σεισάχθειαν ὀνομάσαι
 τὸ φιλανθρώπευμα τοῦτο καὶ τὴν ἅμα τούτῳ γενομένην τῶν τε μέτρων ἐπαύξησιν καὶ τοῦ νομί-σματος τιμὴν. ἑκατὸν γὰρ ἐποίησε δραχμῶν τὴν

¹ Fragment 36, verse 14 (Bergk); verse 16 of the longer fragment now found in Aristotle's Const. of Athens, chapter xii. 4, where we have κράτει νόμου, βίην τε κτλ.

SOLON

of his electors. Nay, where a condition was as good as it could well be, he applied no remedy, and introduced no innovation, fearing lest, after utterly confusing and confounding the city, he should be too weak to establish it again and recompose it for the best. But those things wherein he hoped to find them open to persuasion or submissive to compulsion, these he did,

“Combining both force and justice together,”

as he says himself. Therefore when he was afterwards asked if he had enacted the best laws for the Athenians, he replied, “The best they would receive.”

Now later writers observe that the ancient Athenians used to cover up the ugliness of things with auspicious and kindly terms, giving them polite and endearing names. Thus they called harlots “companions,” taxes “contributions,” the garrison of a city its “guard,” and the prison a “chamber.” But Solon was the first, it would seem, to use this device, when he called his cancelling of debts a “disburdenment.” For the first of his public measures was an enactment that existing debts should be remitted, and that in future no one should lend money on the person of a borrower. Some writers, however, and Androtion is one of them, affirm that the poor were relieved not by a cancelling of debts, but by a reduction of the interest upon them, and showed their satisfaction by giving the name of “disburdenment” to this act of humanity, and to the augmentation of measures and the purchasing power of money which accompanied it.¹ For

¹ See Aristotle, Const. of Athens, x. 1, with Sandys' note.

PLUTARCH'S LIVES

μνᾶν πρότερον ἑβδομήκοντα καὶ τριῶν οὔσαν, ὥστ' ἀριθμῶ μὲν ἴσον, δυνάμει δ' ἔλαττον ἀποδιδόντων, ὠφελείσθαι μὲν τοὺς ἐκτίνοντας μεγάλα, 5 μηδὲν δὲ βλάπτεσθαι τοὺς κομιζομένους. οἱ δὲ πλείστοι πάντων ὁμοῦ φασὶ τῶν συμβολαίων ἀναίρεσιν γενέσθαι τὴν σεισάχθειαν, καὶ τούτοις συνάδει μᾶλλον τὰ ποιήματα. Σεμνύνεται γὰρ Σόλων ἐν τούτοις ὅτι τῆς τε προὔποκειμένης γῆς

“Ορους ἀνείλε πολλαχῆ πεπηγότας· πρόσθεν δὲ δουλεύουσα, νῦν ἐλευθέρα·

καὶ τῶν ἀγωγίμων πρὸς ἀργύριον γεγονότων πολιτῶν τοὺς μὲν ἀνήγαγεν ἀπὸ ξένης,

γλῶσσαν οὐκέτ' Ἀττικὴν
ιέντας, ὡς ἂν πολλαχῆ πλανωμένους·
τοὺς δ' ἐνθάδ' αὐτοῦ δουλίην ἀεικέα ἔχοντας

ἐλευθέρους φησὶ ποιῆσαι.

6 Πρᾶγμα δ' αὐτῷ συμπεσεῖν λέγεται πάντων
ἀνιαιρότατον ἀπὸ τῆς πράξεως ἐκείνης. ὡς γὰρ ᾤρησεν ἀνιέναι τὰ χρέα καὶ λόγους ἀρμόττοντας
ἐζήτηι καὶ πρέπουσαν ἀρχήν, ἐκοινώσατο τῶν
φίλων οἷς μάλιστα πιστεύων καὶ χρώμενος
ἐτύγχανε, τοῖς περὶ Κόνωνα καὶ Κλεινίαν καὶ Ἰππόδικον, ὅτι γῆν μὲν οὐ μέλλει κινεῖν, χρεῶν
δὲ ποιεῖν ἀποκοπὰς ἔγνωκεν. οἱ δὲ προλαβόντες 87
εὐθύς καὶ φθάσαντες ἔδανείσαντο συχρὸν ἀργύριον

SOLON

he made the mina to consist of a hundred drachmas, which before had contained only seventy-three, so that by paying the same amount of money, but money of a lesser value, those who had debts to discharge were greatly benefited, and those who accepted such payments were no losers. But most writers agree that the "disburdenment" was a removal of all debt, and with such the poems of Solon are more in accord. For in these he proudly boasts that from the mortgaged lands

"He took away the record-stones that everywhere were planted;

Before, Earth was in bondage, now she is free."¹

And of the citizens whose persons had been seized for debt, some he brought back from foreign lands,

"uttering no longer Attic speech,

So long and far their wretched wanderings;

And some who here at home in shameful servitude

Were held"²

he says he set free.

This undertaking is said to have involved him in the most vexatious experience of his life. For when he had set out to abolish debts, and was trying to find fitting arguments and a suitable occasion for the step, he told some of his most trusted and intimate friends, namely, Conon, Cleinias, and Hipponicus, that he was not going to meddle with the land, but had determined to cancel debts. They immediately took advantage of this confidence and anticipated

¹ Fragment 36, verses 4 f. (Bergk), with adaptation from the first person; verses 6 f. in Aristotle's citation.

² Fragment 36, verses 9-12 (Bergk); verses 11-14 in Aristotle.

PLUTARCH'S LIVES

παρὰ τῶν πλουσίων καὶ μεγάλας συνεωνήσαντο
 7 χώρας. εἶτα τοῦ δόγματος ἐξενεχθέντος τὰ μὲν κτήματα καρπούμενοι, τὰ δὲ χρήματα τοῖς δανείσασιν οὐκ ἀποδιδόντες, εἰς αἰτίαν τὸν Σόλωνα
 μεγάλην καὶ διαβολήν, ὥσπερ οὐ συναδικούμενον,
 ἀλλὰ συναδικούντα, κατέστησαν. ἀλλὰ τοῦτο
 μὲν εὐθύς ἐλύθη τὸ ἔγκλημα τοῖς πέντε ταλάντοις·
 τοσαῦτα γὰρ εὐρέθη δανείζων, καὶ ταῦτα πρῶτος
 ἀφῆκε κατὰ τὸν νόμον. ἔνιοι δὲ πεντεκαίδεκα
 λέγουσιν, ὧν καὶ Πολύζηλος ὁ Ῥόδιός ἐστι.
 τοὺς μέντοι φίλους αὐτοῦ χρεωκοπίδας καλοῦντες
 διετέλεσαν.

XVI. Ἦρесе δ' οὐδετέροις, ἀλλ' ἐλύπησε καὶ
 τοὺς πλουσίους ἀνελὼν τὰ συμβόλαια, καὶ μᾶλλον
 ἔτι τοὺς πένητας, ὅτι γῆς ἀναδασμὸν οὐκ ἐποίησεν
 ἐλπίσασιν αὐτοῖς, οὐδὲ παντάπασιν, ὥσπερ ὁ Λυκουῦργος, ὁμαλοὺς τοῖς βίοις καὶ ἴσους κατέ-
 στησεν. ἀλλ' ἐκεῖνος μὲν ἐνδέκατος ὧν ἀφ'
 Ἡρακλέους καὶ βεβασιλευκῶς ἔτη πολλὰ τῆς
 Λακεδαιμόνος, ἀξίωμα μέγα καὶ φίλους καὶ
 δύναμιν οἷς ἔγνω καλῶς περὶ τῆς πολιτείας
 ὑπηρετοῦσαν εἶχε, καὶ βία μᾶλλον ἢ πειθοῖ
 χρησάμενος, ὥστε καὶ τὸν ὀφθαλμὸν ἐκκοπήναι, κατειργάσατο τὸ μέγιστον εἰς σωτηρίαν πόλεως
 καὶ ὁμόνοιαν, μηδένα πένητα μηδὲ πλούσιον εἶναι
 2 τῶν πολιτῶν· Σόλων δὲ τούτου μὲν οὐκ ἐφίκετο
 τῇ πολιτείᾳ δημοτικὸς ὧν καὶ μέσος, ἐνδεέστερον
 δὲ τῆς ὑπαρχούσης δυνάμεως οὐδὲν ἔπραξεν,

SOLON

Solon's decree by borrowing large sums from the wealthy and buying up great estates. Then, when the decree was published, they enjoyed the use of their properties, but refused to pay the moneys due their creditors. This brought Solon into great condemnation and odium, as if he had not been imposed upon with the rest, but were a party to the imposition.¹ However, this charge was at once dissipated by his well-known sacrifice of five talents. For it was found that he had lent so much, and he was the first to remit this debt in accordance with his law. Some say that the sum was fifteen talents, and among them is Polyzelus the Rhodian. But his friends were ever after called "chreocopidae," or debt-cutters.

XVI. He pleased neither party, however; the rich were vexed because he took away their securities for debt, and the poor still more, because he did not re-distribute the land, as they had expected, nor make all men equal and alike in their way of living, as Lycurgus did. But Lycurgus was eleventh in descent from Heracles, and had been king in Lacedaemon for many years. He therefore had great authority, many friends, and power to support his reforms in the commonwealth. He also employed force rather than persuasion, insomuch that he actually lost his eye thereby,² and most effectually guaranteed the safety and unanimity of the city by making all its citizens neither poor nor rich. Solon, on the contrary, could not secure this feature in his commonwealth, since he was a man of the people and of modest station; yet he in no wise

¹ Cf. Aristotle, Const. of Athens, vi.

² Cf. Lycurgus, xi.

PLUTARCH'S LIVES

ὀρμώμενος ἐκ μόνου τοῦ βούλεσθαι καὶ πιστεύειν αὐτῷ τοὺς πολίτας. ὅτι δ' οὖν προσέκρουσε τοῖς πλείστοις ἕτερα προσδοκήσασιν, αὐτὸς εἴρηκε περὶ αὐτῶν, ὡς

Χαῦνα μὲν τὸτ' ἐφράσαντο, νῦν δέ μοι χολού-μενοι

λοξὸν ὀφθαλμοῖς ὀρώσι πάντες ὥστε δῆϊον.

καίτοι φησὶν ὡς, εἴ τις ἄλλος ἔσχε τὴν αὐτὴν δύναμιν,

Οὐκ ἂν κατέσχε δῆμον, οὐδ' ἐπαύσατο,
πρὶν ἀνταράξας, πῖαρ ἐξεῖλεν γάλα.¹

- 3 Ταχὺ μέντοι τοῦ συμφέροντος αἰσθόμενοι καὶ τὰς ἰδίας αὐτῶν μέμψεις ἀφέντες ἔθυσάν τε κοινῇ, σεισάχθειαν τὴν θυσίαν ὀνομάσαντες, καὶ τὸν Σόλωνα τῆς πολιτείας διορθωτὴν καὶ νομοθέτην ἀπέδειξαν, οὐ τὰ μὲν, τὰ δ' οὐχί, πάντα δ' ὁμαλῶς ἐπιτρέψαντες, ἀρχάς, ἐκκλησίας, δικαστήρια, βουλὰς, καὶ τίμημα τούτων ἐκάστου καὶ ἀριθμὸν καὶ καιρὸν ὀρίσαι, λύνοντα καὶ φυλάττοντα τῶν ὑπαρχόντων καὶ καθεστώτων ὃ τι δοκοίη.

XVII. Πρῶτον μὲν οὖν τοὺς Δράκοντος νόμους ἀνεῖλε πλὴν τῶν φονικῶν ἅπαντας, διὰ τὴν χαλεπότητα καὶ τὸ μέγεθος τῶν ἐπιτιμίων. μία γὰρ ὀλίγου δεῖν ἅπασιν ὤριστο τοῖς ἀμαρτάνουσι

¹ So the verses are now more correctly found in Aristotle (Const. of Athens, xii. 5, Sandys).

SOLON

acted short of his real power, relying as he did only on the wishes of the citizens and their confidence in him. Nevertheless he gave offence to the greater part of them, who expected different results, as he himself says of them in the lines :—

“Then they had extravagant thoughts of me, but now, incensed,
All look askance at me, as if I were their foe.”¹

And yet had any other man, he says, acquired the same power,

“He had not held the people down, nor made an end
Until he had confounded all, and skimmed the cream.”

Soon, however, they perceived the advantages of his measure, ceased from their private fault-finding, and offered a public sacrifice, which they called Seisactheia, or Disburdenment. They also appointed Solon to reform the constitution and make new laws, laying no restrictions whatever upon him, but putting everything into his hands, magistracies, assemblies, courts-of-law, and councils. He was to fix the property qualification for each of these, their numbers, and their times of meeting, abrogating and maintaining existing institutions at his pleasure.

XVII. In the first place, then, he repealed the laws of Draco, all except those concerning homicide,² because they were too severe and their penalties too heavy. For one penalty was assigned to almost all transgressions, namely death, so that even those

¹ Fragment 34 (Bergk); now verses 4 f. of a fragment of nine verses cited by Aristotle (Const. of Athens, xii. 3).

² Cf. Aristotle, op. cit. vii. 1.

PLUTARCH'S LIVES

ζημία θάνατος, ὥστε καὶ τοὺς ἀργίας ἀλόντας ἀποθνήσκειν, καὶ τοὺς λάχανα κλέψαντας ἢ ὀπώραν ὁμοίως κολάζεσθαι τοῖς ἱεροσύλοις καὶ 2 ἀνδροφόνοις. διὸ Δημάδης ὕστερον εὐδοκίμησεν εἰπὼν ὅτι δι' αἵματος, οὐ διὰ μέλανος, τοὺς νόμους ὁ Δράκων ἔγραψεν. αὐτὸς δ' ἐκείνος, ὡς φασιν, ἐρωτώμενος διὰ τί τοῖς πλείστοις ἀδικήμασι ζημίαν ἔταξε θάνατον, ἀπεκρίνατο τὰ μὲν μικρὰ ταύτης ἄξια νομίζειν, τοῖς δὲ μεγάλοις οὐκ ἔχειν μείζονα.

XVIII. Δεύτερον δὲ Σόλων τὰς μὲν ἀρχὰς ἀπάσας, ὥσπερ ἦσαν, τοῖς εὐπόροις ἀπολιπεῖν βουλόμενος, τὴν δ' ἄλλην μίξαι πολιτείαν, ἧς ὁ δῆμος οὐ μετείχεν, ἔλαβε τὰ τιμήματα τῶν πολιτῶν, καὶ τοὺς μὲν ἐν ξηροῖς ὁμοῦ καὶ ὑγροῖς μέτρα πεντακόσια ποιῶντας πρῶτους ἔταξε καὶ 88 πεντακοσιομεδίμνους προσηγόρευσε· δευτέρους δὲ τοὺς ἵππου τρέφειν δυναμένους ἢ μέτρα ποιεῖν 2 τριακόσια· καὶ τούτους ἱππάδα τελούντας ἐκάλουν· ζευγίται δ' οἱ τοῦ τρίτου τιμήματος ὠνομάσθησαν, οἷς μέτρον ἦν συναμφοτέρων διακοσίων. οἱ δὲ λοιποὶ πάντες ἐκαλοῦντο θῆτες, οἷς οὐδεμίαν ἄρχειν ἔδωκεν ἀρχήν, ἀλλὰ τῷ συνεκκλησιάζειν καὶ δικάζειν μόνον μετείχον τῆς πολιτείας. ὁ κατ' ἀρχὰς μὲν οὐδέν, ὕστερον δὲ παμμέγεθες ἐφάνη· τὰ γὰρ πλείστα τῶν διαφόρων ἐνέπιπτεν εἰς τοὺς δικαστάς. καὶ γὰρ ὅσα ταῖς ἀρχαῖς ἔταξε κρίνειν, ὁμοίως καὶ περὶ ἐκείνων εἰς τὸ convicted of idleness were put to death, and those who stole salad or fruit received the same punishment as those who committed sacrilege or murder. Therefore Demades, in later times, made a hit when he said that Draco's laws were written not with ink, but blood. And Draco himself, they say, being asked why he made death the penalty for most offences, replied that in his opinion the lesser ones deserved it, and for the greater ones no heavier penalty could be found.

SOLON

XVIII. In the second place, wishing to leave all the magistracies in the hands of the well-to-do, as they were, but to give the common people a share in the rest of the government, of which they had hitherto been deprived, Solon made an appraisement of the property of the citizens.¹ Those who enjoyed a yearly increase of five hundred measures (wet and dry), he placed in the first class, and called them Pentakosiomedimnoi; the second class was composed of those who were able to keep a horse, or had a yearly increase of three hundred measures, and they were called Hippada Telountes, since they paid a Knight's tax; the members of the third class, whose yearly increase amounted to two hundred measures (wet and dry together), were called Zeugitai. All the rest were called Thetes; they were not allowed to hold any office, but took part in the administration only as members of the assembly and as jurors. This last privilege seemed at first of no moment, but afterwards proved to be of the very highest importance, since most disputes finally came into the hands of these jurors. For even in cases which Solon assigned to the magistrates

¹ Cf. Aristotle, Const. of Athens, vii. 3 f.

PLUTARCH'S LIVES

- δικαστήριον ἐφέσεις ἔδωκε τοῖς βουλομένοις.
 3 λέγεται δὲ καὶ τοὺς νόμους ἀσαφέστερον γράψας
 καὶ πολλὰς ἀντιλήψεις ἔχοντας αὐξῆσαι τὴν
 τῶν δικαστηρίων ἰσχύν· μὴ δυναμένους γὰρ ὑπὸ
 τῶν νόμων διαλυθῆναι περὶ ὧν διεφέροντο, συνέβαιεν ἀεὶ δεῖσθαι δικαστῶν καὶ πᾶν ἄγειν
 ἀμφισβήτημα πρὸς ἐκείνους, τρόπον τινὰ τῶν 4 νόμων κυρίου ὄντας. ἐπισημαίνεται δ' αὐτὸς αὐτῷ τὴν ἀξίωσιν οὕτως·

Δήμῳ μὲν γὰρ ἔδωκα τόσον κράτος ὅσσον
 ἀπαρκεῖ,

τιμῆς οὐτ' ἀφελῶν οὐτ' ἐπορεζάμενος·

οἱ δ' εἶχον δύναμιν καὶ χρήμασιν ἦσαν ἀγῆτοί,
 καὶ τοῖς ἐφρασίμην μηδὲν ἄεικὲς ἔχειν.

ἔστην δ' ἀμφιβαλῶν κρατερόν σάκος ἀμφοτέ-ροισι·

νικᾶν δ' οὐκ εἶασ' οὐδετέρους ἀδίκως.

- 5 Ἐπι μέντοι μᾶλλον οἰόμενος δεῖν ἐπαρκεῖν τῇ
 τῶν πολλῶν ἀσθενείᾳ, παντὶ λαβεῖν δίκην ὑπὲρ
 τοῦ κακῶς πεπουθότος ἔδωκε. καὶ γὰρ πληγέντος
 ἑτέρου καὶ βιασθέντος ἢ βλαβέντος ἐξῆν τῷ
 δυναμένῳ καὶ βουλομένῳ γράφεσθαι τὸν ἀδικοῦντα καὶ διώκειν, ὀρθῶς ἐθίζοντος τοῦ νομοθέτου
 τοὺς πολίτας ὥσπερ ἐνὸς μέρη σώματος¹ συναι-σθάνεσθαι καὶ συναλγεῖν ἀλλήλοις. τούτῳ δὲ τῷ
 νόμῳ συμφωνοῦντα λόγον αὐτοῦ διαμνημονεύου-

¹ μέρη σώματος (or σώματος μέρη) Coraës and Bekker, after Xylander : ἐνὸς μέρους.

SOLON

for decision, he allowed also an appeal to a popular court when any one desired it. Besides, it is said that his laws were obscurely and ambiguously worded on purpose to enhance the power of the popular courts. For since parties to a controversy could not get satisfaction from the laws, the result was that they always wanted jurors to decide it, and every dispute was laid before them, so that they were in a manner masters of the laws. And he himself claims the credit for this in the following words:—

“ For to the common people I gave so much power
as is sufficient,
Neither robbing them of dignity, nor giving them
too much ;
And those who had power, and were marvellously
rich,
Even for these I contrived that they suffered no
harm.
I stood with a mighty shield in front of both classes,
And suffered neither of them to prevail unjustly.”¹

Moreover, thinking it his duty to make still further provision for the weakness of the multitude, he gave every citizen the privilege of entering suit in behalf of one who had suffered wrong. If a man was assaulted, and suffered violence or injury, it was the privilege of any one who had the ability and the inclination, to indict the wrong-doer and prosecute him. The law-giver in this way rightly accustomed the citizens, as members of one body, to feel and sympathize with one another's wrongs. And we are told of a saying of his which is consonant with this

¹ Fragment 5 (Bergk) ; Aristotle, Const. of Athens, xii. 1 ; cf. also ix. 1 f.

σιν. ἐρωτηθεῖς γάρ, ὡς ἔοικεν, ἦτις οἰκείται κάλλιστα τῶν πόλεων, “Ἐκείνη,” εἶπεν, “ἐν ἧ τῶν ἀδικουμένων οὐχ ἦττον οἱ μὴ ἀδικούμενοι προβάλλονται καὶ κολάζουσι τοὺς ἀδικούντας.”

XIX. Συστησάμενος δὲ τὴν ἐν Ἀρείῳ πάγῳ βουλὴν ἐκ τῶν κατ’ ἐνιαυτὸν ἀρχόντων, ἧς διὰ τὸ ἄρξαι καὶ αὐτὸς μετείχεν, ἔτι δ’ ὄρων τὸν δῆμον οἰδοῦντα καὶ θρασυνόμενον τῇ τῶν χρεῶν ἀφέσει, δευτέραν προσκατένευε βουλὴν, ἀπὸ φυλῆς ἐκάστης, τεττάρων οὐσῶν, ἑκατὸν ἄνδρας ἐπιλεξάμενος, οὓς προβουλεύειν ἔταξε τοῦ δήμου καὶ μηδὲν ἔαν ἀπροβούλευτον εἰς ἐκκλησίαν
2 εἰσφέρεισθαι. τὴν δ’ ἄνω βουλὴν ἐπίσκοπον πάντων καὶ φύλακα τῶν νόμων ἐκάθισεν, οἰόμενος ἐπὶ δυσὶ βουλαῖς ὥσπερ ἀγκύραις ὀρμούσαν ἦττον ἐν σάλῳ τὴν πόλιν ἔσεσθαι καὶ μᾶλλον ἀτρεμοῦντα τὸν δῆμον παρέξειν.

Οἱ μὲν οὖν πλείστοι τὴν ἐξ Ἀρείου πάγου βουλὴν, ὥσπερ εἴρηται, Σόλωνα συστήσασθαί φασι καὶ μαρτυρεῖν αὐτοῖς δοκεῖ μάλιστα τὸ μηδαμοῦ τὸν Δράκοντα λέγειν μηδ’ ὀνομάζειν Ἀρεοπαγίτας, ἀλλὰ τοῖς ἐφέταις αἰεὶ διαλέγεσθαι
3 περὶ τῶν φονικῶν. ὁ δὲ τρισκαιδέκατος ἄξων τοῦ Σόλωνος τὸν ὄγδοον ἔχει τῶν νόμων οὕτως αὐτοῖς ὀνόμασι γεγραμμένον. “Ἀτίμων ὅσοι ἄτιμοι ἦσαν πρὶν ἢ Σόλωνα ἄρξαι, ἐπιτίμουσ εἶναι πλὴν ὅσοι ἐξ Ἀρείου πάγου ἢ ὅσοι ἐκ τῶν

Amnest

SOLON

law. Being asked, namely, what city was best to live in, "That city," he replied, "in which those who are not wronged, no less than those who are wronged, exert themselves to punish the wrongdoers."

XIX. After he had established the council of the Areiopagus, consisting of those who had been archons year by year (and he himself was a member of this body, since he had been archon), he observed that the common people were uneasy and bold in consequence of their release from debt, and therefore established another council besides, consisting of four hundred men, one hundred chosen from each of the four tribes.¹ These were to deliberate on public matters before the people did, and were not to allow any matter to come before the popular assembly without such previous deliberation. Then he made the upper council a general overseer in the state, and guardian of the laws, thinking that the city with its two councils, riding as it were at double anchor, would be less tossed by the surges, and would keep its populace in greater quiet.

Now most writers say that the council of the Areiopagus, as I have stated, was established by Solon. And their view seems to be strongly supported by the fact that Draco nowhere makes any mention whatsoever of Areiopagites, but always addresses himself to the "ephetai" in cases of homicide. Yet Solon's thirteenth table contains the eighth of his laws recorded in these very words: "As many of the disfranchised as were made such before the archonship of Solon, shall be restored to their rights and franchises, except such as were ἔφετῶν ἢ ἐκ πρυτανείου καταδικασθέντες ὑπὸ

¹ Cf. Aristotle, Const. of Athens, viii. 4.

 τῶν βασιλέων ἐπὶ φόνοφ ἢ σφαγαῖσιν ἢ ἐπὶ
 4 τυραννίδι ἔφευγον ὅτε ὁ θεσμός ἐφάνη ὅδε." ταῦτα
 δὴ πάλιν ὡς πρὸ τῆς Σόλωνος ἀρχῆς καὶ νομοθεσίας τὴν ἐξ Ἀρείου πάγου βουλήν οὖσαν
 ἐνδείκνυται. τίνες γὰρ ἦσαν οἱ πρὸ Σόλωνος
 ἐν Ἀρείῳ πάγῳ καταδικασθέντες, εἰ πρῶτος Σόλων ἔδωκε τῇ ἐξ Ἀρείου πάγου βουλῇ τὸ
 κρίνειν; εἰ μὴ νῆ Δία γέγονέ τις ἀσάφεια τοῦ 89
 γράμματος ἢ ἔκλειψις, ὥστε τοὺς ἠλωκότας ἐπ'
 αἰτίαις αἷς κρίνουσι νῦν οἱ Ἀρεοπαγῖται καὶ
 ἐφέται καὶ πρυτάνεις, ὅτε ὁ θεσμός ἐφάνη ὅδε,
 μένειν ἀτίμους, τῶν ἄλλων ἐπιτίμων γενομένων.
 ταῦτα μὲν οὖν καὶ αὐτὸς ἐπισκόπει.

XX. Τῶν δ' ἄλλων αὐτοῦ νόμων ἴδιος μὲν
 μάλιστα καὶ παράδοξος ὁ κελεύων ἄτιμον εἶναι
 τὸν ἐν στάσει μηδετέρας μερίδος γενόμενον. βούλεται δ', ὡς ἔοικε, μὴ ἀπαθῶς μηδ' ἀναισθήτως
 ἔχειν πρὸς τὸ κοινόν, ἐν ἀσφαλεῖ θέμενον τὰ
 οἰκεῖα καὶ τῷ μὴ συναλγεῖν μηδὲ συννοσεῖν τῇ
 πατρίδι καλλωπιζόμενον, ἀλλ' αὐτόθεν τοῖς τὰ
 βελτίῳ καὶ δικαιοτέρα πράττουσι προσθέμενον,
 συγκινδυνεύειν καὶ βοηθεῖν, μᾶλλον ἢ περιμένειν
 2 ἀκινδύνως τὰ τῶν κρατούντων. ἄτοπος δὲ δοκεῖ
 καὶ γελοῖος ὁ τῇ ἐπικλήρῳ διδούς, ἂν ὁ κρατῶν
 καὶ κύριος γεγονῶς κατὰ τὸν νόμον αὐτὸς μὴ
 δυνατὸς ἢ πλησιάζειν, ὑπὸ τῶν ἔγγιστα τοῦ

SOLON

condemned by the Areiopagus, or by the ephetai, or in the prytaneium by the kings, on charges of murder or homicide, or of seeking to establish a tyranny, and were in exile when this law was published." This surely proves to the contrary that the council of the Areiopagus was in existence before the archonship and legislation of Solon. For how could men have been condemned in the Areiopagus before the time of Solon, if Solon was the first to give the council of the Areiopagus its jurisdiction? Perhaps, indeed, there is some obscurity in the document, or some omission, and the meaning is that those who had been convicted on charges within the cognizance of those who were Areiopagites and ephetai and prytanes when the law was published, should remain disfranchised, while those convicted on all other charges should recover their rights and franchises. This question, however, my reader must decide for himself.

XX. Among his other laws there is a very peculiar and surprising one which ordains that he shall be disfranchised who, in time of faction, takes neither side.¹ He wishes, probably, that a man should not be insensible or indifferent to the common weal, arranging his private affairs securely and glorying in the fact that he has no share in the distempers and distresses of his country, but should rather espouse promptly the better and more righteous cause, share its perils and give it his aid, instead of waiting in safety to see which cause prevails. That law, too, seems absurd and ridiculous, which permits an heiress, in case the man under whose power and authority she is placed by law is himself unable to consort with her, to be married by one of his next of kin.

¹ Cf. Aristotle, Const. of Athens, viii. 5.

PLUTARCH'S LIVES

- ἀνδρὸς ὀπύεσθαι. καὶ τοῦτο δ' ὀρθῶς ἔχειν
 τινὲς φασι πρὸς τοὺς μὴ δυναμένους συνείναι, χρημάτων δ' ἕνεκα λαμβάνοντας ἐπικλήρους καὶ
 τῷ νόμῳ καταβιαζομένους τὴν φύσιν. ὀρῶντες
 γὰρ ᾧ βούλεται τὴν ἐπικλήρον συνούσαν ἢ προήσονται τὸν γάμον ἢ μετ' αἰσχύνης καθέξουσι, 3 φιλοπλουτίας καὶ ὕβρεως δίκην διδόντες. εὖ
 δ' ἔχει καὶ τὸ μὴ πᾶσιν, ἀλλὰ τῶν συγγενῶν
 τοῦ ἀνδρὸς ᾧ βούλεται διαλέγεσθαι τὴν ἐπικλή-ρον, ὅπως οἰκείον ἢ καὶ μετέχον τοῦ γένους τὸ
 τικτόμενον. εἰς τοῦτο δὲ συντελεῖ καὶ τὸ τὴν
 νύμφην τῷ νυμφίῳ συγκαθείργνησθαι μήλου κυδωνίου κατατραγοῦσαν, καὶ τὸ τρις ἑκάστου
 μηνὸς ἐντυγχάνειν πάντως τῇ ἐπικλήρῳ τὸν
 λαβόντα. καὶ γὰρ εἰ μὴ γένοιτο παῖδες, ἀλλὰ
 τιμὴ τις ἀνδρὸς αὕτη πρὸς σώφρονα γυναῖκα, καὶ
 φιλοφροσύνη πολλὰ τῶν συλλεγομένων ἑκάστοτε
 δυσχερῶν ἀφαιροῦσα, καὶ ταῖς διαφοραῖς οὐκ
 ἐῴσα παντάπασιν ἀποστραφῆναι.
- 4 Τῶν δ' ἄλλων γάμων ἀφείλε τὰς φερνάς, ἱμάτια
 τρία καὶ σκευὴ μικροῦ νομίσματος ἄξια κελεύσας, ἕτερον δὲ μηδὲν ἐπιφέρεισθαι τὴν γαμουμένην. οὐ
 γὰρ ἐβούλετο μισθοφόρον οὐδ' ὄμιον εἶναι τὸν
 γάμον, ἀλλ' ἐπὶ τεκνώσει καὶ χάριτι καὶ φιλότῃ
 γίνεσθαι τὸν ἀνδρὸς καὶ γυναικὸς συνοικισμὸν.
 ὁ μὲν γὰρ Διονύσιος, ἀξιούσης τῆς μητρὸς αὐτοῦ
 δοθῆναί τινα τῶν πολιτῶν πρὸς γάμον, ἔφη τοὺς
 μὲν τῆς πόλεως νόμους λελυκέναι τυραννῶν, τοὺς
 δὲ τῆς φύσεως οὐκ εἶναι δυνατὸς βιάζεσθαι γά-5 μους νυμφαγωγῶν παρ' ἡλικίαν· ἐν δὲ ταῖς πόλεσι
 τὴν ἀταξίαν ταύτην οὐ δοτέον, οὐδὲ περιοπτέον

SOLON

Some, however, say that this was a wise provision against those who are unable to perform the duties of a husband, and yet, for the sake of their property, marry heiresses, and so under cover of law, do violence to nature. For when they see that the heiress can consort with whom she pleases, they will either desist from such a marriage, or make it to their shame, and be punished for their avarice and insolence. It is a wise provision, too, that the heiress may not choose her consort at large, but only from the kinsmen of her husband, that her offspring may be of his family and lineage. Conformable to this, also, is the requirement that the bride eat a quince and be shut up in a chamber with the bridegroom; and that the husband of an heiress shall approach her thrice a month without fail. For even though they have no children, still, this is a mark of esteem and affection which a man should pay to a chaste wife; it removes many of the annoyances which develop in all such cases, and prevents their being altogether estranged by their differences.

In all other marriages he prohibited dowries; the bride was to bring with her three changes of raiment, household stuff of small value, and nothing else. For he did not wish that marriage should be a matter of profit or price, but that man and wife should dwell together for the delights of love and the getting of children. Dionysius, indeed, when his mother asked him to give her in marriage to one of his citizens, said that, although he had broken the laws of the city by being its tyrant, he could not outrage the laws of nature by giving in marriage where age forbade. And so our cities should not allow this irregularity, nor tolerate unions which age forbids

PLUTARCH'S LIVES

ἀώρους καὶ ἀχαρίτους ἐπιπλοκάς καὶ μηδὲν ἔργον
γαμήλιον ἐχούσας μηδὲ τέλος. ἀλλὰ γέροντι νέαν
ἀγομένην φαίη τις ἂν ἐμμελῆς ἄρχων ἢ νομοθέτης
τὸ πρὸς τὸν Φιλοκτῆτην·

εὖ γοῦν ὡς γαμεῖν ἔχεις τάλας,

καὶ νέον ἐν δωματίῳ πλουσίας πρεσβύτιδος,
ὥσπερ οἱ πέρδικες, ἀπὸ συνουσίας παχυνόμενον
ἐξανευρῶν μετοικίσει πρὸς παρθένον νύμφην
ἀνδρὸς δεομένην. ταῦτα μὲν οὖν περὶ τούτων.

- XXI. Ἐπαινεῖται δὲ τοῦ Σόλωνος καὶ ὁ κωλύων
νόμος τὸν τεθηκότα κακῶς ἀγορεύειν. καὶ γὰρ
ὄσιον τοὺς μεθεστῶτας ἱεροὺς νομίζειν, καὶ δίκαιον
ἀπέχεσθαι τῶν οὐχ ὑπαρχόντων, καὶ πολιτικὸν
ἀφαιρεῖν τῆς ἔχθρας τὸ αἶδιον. ζῶντα δὲ κακῶς
λέγειν ἐκώλυσε πρὸς ἱεροῖς καὶ δικαστηρίοις καὶ
ἀρχείοις καὶ θεωρίας οὔσης ἀγῶνων· ἢ τρεῖς
δραχμὰς τῷ ἰδιώτῃ, δύο δ' ἄλλας ἀποτίνειν εἰς
τὸ δημόσιον ἔταξε. τὸ γὰρ μηδαμοῦ κρατεῖν
ὀργῆς ἀπαίδευτον καὶ ἀκόλαστον· τὸ δὲ πανταχοῦ
χαλεπὸν, ἐνίοις δὲ ἀδύνατον· δεῖ δὲ πρὸς τὸ δυνα- 90
τὸν γράφεσθαι τὸν νόμον, εἰ βούλεται χρησίμως
ὀλίγους, ἀλλὰ μὴ πολλοὺς ἀχρήστως κολάζειν.
- 2 Εὐδοκίμησε δὲ κὰν τῷ περὶ διαθηκῶν νόμῳ·
πρότερον γὰρ οὐκ ἐξῆν, ἀλλ' ἐν τῷ γένει τοῦ
τεθηκότος ἔδει τὰ χρήματα καὶ τὸν οἶκον κατα-μένειν, ὁ δ' ὧ βούλεται τις ἐπιτρέψας, εἰ μὴ

SOLON

and love does not invite, which do not fulfil the function of marriage, and defeat its object. Nay, to an old man who is marrying a young wife, any worthy magistrate or lawgiver might say what is said to Philoctetes¹:

“Indeed, poor wretch, thou art in fine state for marrying!”

And if he discovers a young man in the house of a rich and elderly woman, waxing fat, like a cock-partridge, in her service, he will remove him and give him to some marriageable maid that wants a husband. Thus much, then, on this head.

XXI. Praise is given also to that law of Solon which forbids speaking ill of the dead. For it is piety to regard the deceased as sacred, justice to spare the absent, and good policy to rob hatred of its perpetuity. He also forbade speaking ill of the living in temples, courts-of-law, public offices, and at festivals; the transgressor must pay three drachmas to the person injured, and two more into the public treasury. For never to master one's anger is a mark of intemperance and lack of training; but always to do so is difficult, and for some, impossible. And a law must regard the possibilities in the case, if its maker wishes to punish a few to some purpose, and not many to no purpose.

He was highly esteemed also for his law concerning wills. Before his time, no will could be made, but the entire estate of the deceased must remain in his family. Whereas he, by permitting a ¹ In a play of this name, of uncertain authorship. See Nauck, *Trag. Graec. Frag.*², p. 841. Plutarch cites two entire verses in Morals, p. 789 a.

PLUTARCH'S LIVES

- παῖδες εἶεν αὐτῷ, δοῦναι τὰ αὐτοῦ, φιλίαν τε συγγενείας ἐτίμησε μᾶλλον καὶ χάριν ἀνάγκης, καὶ τὰ χρήματα κτήματα τῶν ἐχόντων ἐποίησεν.
- 3 οὐ μὴν ἀνέδην γε πάλιν οὐδ' ἀπλῶς τὰς δόσεις ἐφῆκεν, ἀλλ' εἰ μὴ νόσων ἔνεκεν ἢ φαρμάκων ἢ δεσμῶν¹ ἢ ἀνάγκη κατασχεθεὶς ἢ γυναικὶ πιθόμενος,² εὖ πάνυ καὶ προσηκόντως τὸ πεισθῆναι παρὰ τὸ βέλτιστον οὐδὲν ἡγούμενος τοῦ βιασθῆναι διαφέρειν, ἀλλ' εἰς ταῦτ' οὐκ ἀπάτην τῇ ἀνάγκῃ καὶ τῷ πόνῳ τὴν ἡδονὴν θέμενος, ὡς οὐχ ἤττον ἐκστήσαι λογισμὸν ἀνθρώπου δυναμένων.
- 4 Ἐπέστησε δὲ καὶ ταῖς ἐξόδοις τῶν γυναικῶν καὶ τοῖς πένθεσι καὶ ταῖς ἑορταῖς νόμον ἀπειργοντα τὸ ἄτακτον καὶ ἀκόλαστον ἐξίεναι μὲν ἱματίων τριῶν μὴ πλέον ἔχουσιν κελεύσας, μηδὲ βρωτὸν ἢ ποτὸν πλείονος ἢ ὀβολοῦ φερομένην, μηδὲ κάρηνα πηχυαίου μείζονα, μηδὲ νύκτωρ πορεύεσθαι πλὴν ἀμάξῃ κομιζομένην λύχνου προφαίνοντος. Ἄμυχὰς δὲ κοπτομένων καὶ τὸ θρηνεῖν πεποιημένα καὶ τὸ κωκύειν ἄλλον ἐν ταφαῖς
- 5 ἐτέρων ἀφεῖλεν. ἐναγίζειν δὲ βοῦν οὐκ εἶασεν, οὐδὲ συντιθέναι πλέον ἱματίων τριῶν, οὐδ' ἐπ' ἀλλότρια μνήματα βαδίζειν χωρὶς ἐκκομιδῆς. ὧν τὰ πλεῖστα καὶ τοῖς ἡμετέροις νόμοις ἀπηγόρευται· πρόσκειται δὲ τοῖς ἡμετέροις ζημιουῖσθαι

¹ δεσμῶν Bekker adopts Schaefer's correction to δεσμῶ.

² πιθόμενος Cobet : κειθόμενος.

SOLON

man who had no children to give his property to whom he wished, ranked friendship above kinship, and favour above necessity, and made a man's possessions his own property. On the other hand, he did not permit all manner of gifts without restriction or restraint, but only those which were not made under the influence of sickness, or drugs, or imprisonment, or when a man was the victim of compulsion or yielded to the persuasions of his wife. He thought, very rightly and properly, that being persuaded into wrong was no better than being forced into it, and he placed deceit and compulsion, gratification and affliction, in one and the same category, believing that both were alike able to pervert a man's reason.

He also subjected the public appearances of the women, their mourning and their festivals, to a law which did away with disorder and licence. When they went out, they were not to wear more than three garments, they were not to carry more than an obol's worth of food or drink, nor a pannier more than a cubit high, and they were not to travel about by night unless they rode in a waggon with a lamp to light their way. Laceration of the flesh by mourners, and the use of set lamentations, and the bewailing of any one at the funeral ceremonies of another, he forbade. The sacrifice of an ox at the grave was not permitted, nor the burial with the dead of more than three changes of raiment, nor the visiting of other tombs than those of their own family, except at the time of interment. Most of these practices are also forbidden by our laws, but ours contain the additional proviso that such τοὺς τὰ τοιαῦτα ποιούντας ὑπὸ τῶν γυναικονόμων, ὡς ἀνάνδρῳις καὶ γυναικῶδεσι τοῖς περὶ τὰ πένθη πάθεσι καὶ ἀμαρτήμασιν ἐνεχομένους.

PLUTARCH'S LIVES

XXII. Ὅρων δὲ τὸ μὲν ἄστῳ πιμπλάμενον ἀνθρώπων αἰὲν συρρεόντων πανταχόθεν ἐπ' ἀδείας εἰς τὴν Ἀττικὴν, τὰ δὲ πλεῖστα τῆς χώρας ἀγεννῆ καὶ φαῦλα, τοὺς δὲ χρωμένους τῇ θαλάττῃ μηδὲν εἰθότας εἰσάγειν τοῖς μηδὲν ἔχουσιν ἀντιδούσαι, πρὸς τὰς τέχνας ἔτρεψε τοὺς πολίτας, καὶ νόμον ἔγραψεν υἱῷ τρέφειν τὸν πατέρα μὴ διδαζάμενον
 2 τέχνην ἐπάναγκες μὴ εἶναι. τῷ μὲν γὰρ Λυκούργῳ καὶ πόλιν οἰκοῦντι καθαρὰν ὄχλου ξενικοῦ καὶ χώραν κεκτημένῳ

Πολλοῖσι πολλήν, δις τοσοῖς δὲ πλείονα,¹

κατ' Εὐριπίδην, καὶ τὸ μέγιστον, εἰλωτικοῦ πλήθους, ὃ βέλτιον ἦν μὴ σχολάζειν, ἀλλὰ τριβόμενον αἰὲν καὶ πονοῦν ταπεινοῦσθαι, περικεχυμένου τῇ Λακεδαίμονι, καλῶς εἶχεν ἀσχολιῶν ἐπιπόνων καὶ βαναύσων ἀπαλλάξαντα τοὺς πολίτας συνέχειν ἐν τοῖς ὅπλοις, μίαν τέχνην ταύτην ἐκμανθάνοντας καὶ ἀσκοῦντας· Σόλων δὲ τοῖς πράγμασι 3 τοὺς νόμους μᾶλλον ἢ τὰ πράγματα τοῖς νόμοις προσαρμόζων, καὶ τῆς χώρας τὴν φύσιν ὄρων τοῖς γεωργοῦσι γλίσχρως διαρκούσαν, ἀργὸν δὲ καὶ σχολαστὴν ὄχλον οὐ δυναμένην τρέφειν, ταῖς τέχναις ἀξίωμα περιέθηκε, καὶ τὴν ἐξ Ἀρείου πάγου βουλήν ἔταξεν ἐπισκοπεῖν ὅθεν ἕκαστος ἔχει τὰ ἐπιτήδεια, καὶ τοὺς ἀργοὺς κολάζειν.

¹ Following Nauck (*Trag. Graec. Frag.*², p. 680): πολλοῖς, τοσοῖσδε.

SOLON

offenders shall be punished by the board or censors for women, because they indulge in unmanly and effeminate extravagances of sorrow when they mourn.

XXII. Observing that the city was getting full of people who were constantly streaming into Attica from all quarters for greater security of living, and that most of the country was unfruitful and worthless, and that seafaring men are not wont to import goods for those who have nothing to give them in exchange, he turned the attention of the citizens to the arts of manufacture, and enacted a law that no son who had not been taught a trade should be compelled to support his father. It was well enough for Lycurgus, whose city was free from swarms of strangers, and whose country was, in the words of Euripides,

“For many large, for twice as many more than large,”

and because, above all, that country was flooded with a multitude of Helots, whom it was better not to leave in idleness, but to keep down by continual hardships and toil,—it was well enough for him to set his citizens free from laborious and mechanical occupations and confine their thoughts to arms, giving them this one trade to learn and practice. But Solon, adapting his laws to the situation, rather than the situation to his laws, and observing that the land could give but a mere subsistence to those who tilled it, and was incapable of supporting an unoccupied and leisured multitude, gave dignity to all the trades, and ordered the council of the Areiopagus to examine into every man's means of livelihood, and chastise those who had no occupation.

PLUTARCH'S LIVES

4 Ἐκείνο δ' ἤδη σφοδρότερον, τὸ μὴδὲ τοῖς ἐξ
 ἑταίρας γενομένοις ἐπάναγκες εἶναι τοὺς πατέρας τρέφειν, ὡς Ἡρακλείδης ἰστόρηκεν ὁ Ποντικός. ὁ
 γὰρ ἐν γάμῳ παρορῶν τὸ καλὸν οὐ τέκνων ἔνεκα
 δῆλός ἐστιν, ἀλλ' ἡδονῆς ἀγόμενος γυναῖκα, τὸν
 τε μισθὸν ἀπέχει, καὶ παρρησίαν αὐτῷ πρὸς τοὺς γενομένους οὐκ ἀπολέλοιπεν, οἷς αὐτὸ τὸ γενέσθαι
 πεποίηκεν ὄνειδος.

XXIII. Ὅλως δὲ πλείστην ἔχειν ἀτοπίαν οἱ
 περὶ τῶν γυναικῶν νόμοι τῷ Σόλωνι δοκοῦσι.
 μοιχὸν μὲν γὰρ ἀνελεῖν τῷ λαβόντι δέδωκεν·
 εἰ δ' ἀρπάσῃ τις ἐλευθέραν γυναῖκα καὶ βιά-σηται, ζημίαν ἑκατὸν δραχμὰς ἔταξε· κἂν προ-αγωγεύῃ, δραχμὰς εἴκοσι, πλὴν ὅσοι πεφασμένως 91
 πωλοῦνται, λέγων δὴ τὰς ἑταίρας. αὗται γὰρ
 2 ἐμφανῶς φοιτῶσι πρὸς τοὺς διδόντας. ἔτι δ' οὔτε
 θυγατέρας πωλεῖν οὔτ' ἀδελφὰς δίδωσι, πλὴν
 ἂν μὴ λάβῃ παρθένον ἀνδρὶ συγγεγενημένην.
 τὸ δ' αὐτὸ πρᾶγμα ποτὲ μὲν πικρῶς καὶ ἀπαραι-
 τήτως κολάζειν, ποτὲ δ' εὐκόλως καὶ παίζοντα, πρόστιμον ζημίαν τὴν τυχοῦσαν ὀρίζοντα, ἄλογόν
 ἐστὶ· πλὴν εἰ μὴ σπανίζοντος τότε τοῦ νομίσματος
 ἐν τῇ πόλει μεγάλας ἐποίει τὰς ἀργυρικὰς ζημίας
 3 τὸ δυσπόριστον. εἰς μὲν γε τὰ τιμήματα τῶν θυσίων λογίζεται πρόβατον καὶ δραχμὴν ἀντὶ
 μεδίμνου· τῷ δ' Ἴσθμια νικήσαντι δραχμὰς ἔταξεν
 ἑκατὸν δίδοσθαι, τῷ δ' Ὀλύμπια πεντακοσίας·
 λύκον δὲ τῷ κομίσαντι πέντε δραχμὰς ἔδωκε, λυκιδέα δὲ μίαν, ὧν φησιν ὁ Φαληρεὺς Δημήτριος
 τὸ μὲν βοῶς εἶναι, τὸ δὲ προβάτου τιμήν. ἄς γὰρ

SOLON

But that provision of his was yet more severe, which, as Heracleides Ponticus informs us, relieved the sons who were born out of wedlock from the necessity of supporting their fathers at all. For he that avoids the honourable state of marriage, clearly takes a woman to himself not for the sake of children, but of pleasure; and he has his reward, in that he robs himself of all right to upbraid his sons for neglecting him, since he has made their very existence a reproach to them.

XXIII. But in general, Solon's laws concerning women seem very absurd. For instance, he permitted an adulterer caught in the act to be killed; but if a man committed rape upon a free woman, he was merely to be fined a hundred drachmas; and if he gained his end by persuasion, twenty drachmas, unless it were with one of those who sell themselves openly, meaning of course the courtesans. For these go openly to those who offer them their price. Still further, no man is allowed to sell a daughter or a sister, unless he find that she is no longer a virgin. But to punish the same offence now severely and inexorably, and now mildly and pleasantly, making the penalty a slight fine, is unreasonable; unless money was scarce in the city at that time, and the difficulty of procuring it made these monetary punishments heavy. In the valuations of sacrificial offerings, at any rate, a sheep and a bushel of grain are reckoned at a drachma; the victor in the Isthmian games was to be paid a hundred drachmas, and the Olympic victor five hundred; the man who brought in a wolf, was given five drachmas, and for a wolf's whelp, one; the former sum, according to Demetrius the Phalerian, was the price of an ox, the latter that of

PLUTARCH'S LIVES

- ἐν τῷ ἑκκαίδεκάτῳ τῶν ἀξόνων ὀρίζει τιμὰς τῶν ἐκκρίτων ἱερείων, εἰκὸς μὲν εἶναι πολλαπλασίας, ἄλλως δὲ κἀκεῖναι πρὸς τὰς νῦν εὐτελεῖς εἰσιν.
- 4 ἀρχαῖον δὲ τοῖς Ἀθηναίοις τὸ πολεμεῖν τοῖς λυκοῖς, βελτίονα νέμειν ἢ γεωργεῖν χώραν ἔχουσι. καὶ τὰς φυλὰς εἰσὶν οἱ λέγοντες οὐκ ἀπὸ τῶν Ἴωνος υἱῶν, ἀλλ' ἀπὸ τῶν γενῶν, εἰς ἃ διηρέθησαν οἱ βίοι τὸ πρῶτον, ὠνομάσθαι, τὸ μὲν μάχιμον Ὀπλίτας, τὸ δ' ἐργατικὸν Ἐργάδεις· δυεῖν δὲ τῶν λοιπῶν Γελέοντας μὲν τοὺς γεωργοὺς, Αἰγικορεῖς δὲ τοὺς ἐπὶ νομαῖς καὶ προβατείαις διατρίβοντας.
- 5 Ἐπεὶ δὲ πρὸς ὕδωρ οὔτε ποταμοῖς ἐστὶν ἀενάοις οὔτε λίμναις τισὶν οὔτ' ἀφθόνοις πηγαῖς ἡ χώρα διαρκής, ἀλλ' οἱ πλεῖστοι φρέασι ποιητοῖς ἐχρῶντο, νόμον ἔγραψεν, ὅπου μὲν ἐστὶ δημόσιον φρέαρ ἐντὸς ἵππικοῦ, χρῆσθαι τούτῳ· τὸ δ' ἵππικὸν διάστημα τεσσάρων ἦν σταδίων· ὅπου δὲ πλεῖον ἀπέχει, ζητεῖν ὕδωρ ἴδιον· ἐὰν δὲ ὀρύξαντες ὀργυιῶν δέκα βύθος παρ' ἑαυτοῖς μὴ εὕρωσι, τότε λαμβάνειν παρὰ τοῦ γείτονος ἐξάχουν ὑδρίαν δις ἐκάστης ἡμέρας πληροῦντας· ἀπορία γὰρ ᾤετο δεῖν βοηθεῖν, οὐκ ἀργίαν ἐφοδιάζειν.
- 6 ὤρισε δὲ καὶ φυτειῶν μέτρα μάλ' ἐμπείρως, τοὺς μὲν ἄλλο τι φυτεύοντας ἐν ἀγρῷ πέντε πόδας

SOLON

a sheep. For although the prices which Solon fixes in his sixteenth table are for choice victims, and naturally many times as great as those for ordinary ones, still, even these are low in comparison with present prices. Now the Athenians were from of old great enemies of wolves, since their country was better for pasturage than for tillage. And there are those who say that their four tribes were originally named, not from the sons of Ion, but from the classes into which occupations were divided; thus the warriors were called Hoplitai, the craftsmen Ergadeis; and of the remaining two, the farmers were called Geleontes, the shepherds and herdsmen Aigikoreis.¹

Since the country was not supplied with water by ever-flowing rivers, or lakes, or copious springs, but most of the inhabitants used wells which had been dug, he made a law that where there was a public well within a "hippikon," a distance of four furlongs, that should be used, but where the distance was greater than this, people must try to get water of their own; if, however, after digging to a depth of ten fathoms on their own land, they could not get water, then they might take it from a neighbour's well, filling a five gallon jar twice a day; for he thought it his duty to aid the needy, not to provision the idle. He also showed great experience in the limits which he set to the planting of trees; no one could set out a tree in a field within five feet of his

¹ This is strained etymology to explain the ancient tribal names of Hopletes, Argadeis, Geleontes, and Aigikoreis, which are derived, in Herodotus v. 66, from the names of the four sons of Ion. The first has nothing to do with "hopla," arms; nor the second with "ergon," work; nor the third with "ge," earth; nor the fourth with "aix," goat.

PLUTARCH'S LIVES

ἀπέχειν τοῦ γείτονος κελεύσας, τοὺς δὲ συκὴν ἢ ἐλαίαν ἐννέα. πορρωτέρω γὰρ ἐξικνεῖται ταῦτα ταῖς ρίζαις, καὶ οὐ πᾶσι γειννῆ τοῖς φυτοῖς ἀσινῶς, ἀλλὰ καὶ τροφήν παραιρεῖται καὶ βλάπτουσιν ἐνίοις ἀπορροὴν ἀφήσει. βόθρους δὲ καὶ τάφρους τὸν βουλόμενον ἐκέλευσεν ὀρύσσειν, ὅσον ἐμβάλλει βάθος, ἀφιστάμενον μῆκος τὰλλοτρίου· καὶ μελισσῶν σμήνη καθιστάμενον ἀπέχειν τῶν ὑφ' ἐτέρου πρότερον ἰδρυμένων πόδας τριακοσίου.

XXIV. Τῶν δὲ γινομένων διάθεσιν πρὸς ξένους ἐλαίου μόνον ἔδωκεν, ἄλλα δ' ἐξάγειν ἐκώλυσε· καὶ κατὰ τῶν ἐξαγόντων ἀρὰς τὸν ἄρχοντα ποιῆσαι προσέταξεν, ἢ ἐκτίνειν αὐτὸν ἑκατὸν δραχμᾶς εἰς τὸ δημόσιον. καὶ πρῶτος ἄξων ἐστὶν ὁ τοῦτον περιέχων τὸν νόμον. οὐκ ἂν οὖν τις ἠγήσαιο παντελῶς ἀπιθάνους τοὺς λέγοντας ὅτι καὶ σύκων ἐξαγωγή τὸ παλαιὸν ἀπείρητο, καὶ τὸ φαίνειν ἐνδεικνύμενον τοὺς ἐξάγοντας κληθῆναι συκοφαντεῖν. ἔγραψε δὲ καὶ βλάβης τετραπόδων νόμον, ἐν ᾧ καὶ κύνα δακόντα παραδοῦναι κελεύει κλοιῶ τριπήχει δεδεμένον· τὸ μὲν ἐνθύμημα χάριεν πρὸς ἀσφάλειαν.

- 2 Παρέχει δ' ἀπορίαν καὶ ὁ τῶν δημοποιήτων νόμος, ὅτι γενέσθαι πολίταις οὐ δίδωσι πλὴν τοῖς φεύγουσιν ἀειφυγία τὴν ἑαυτῶν ἢ πανεστίοις Ἀθήναζε μετοικιζομένοις ἐπὶ τέχνη. τοῦτο δὲ ποιῆσαί φασιν αὐτὸν οὐχ οὕτως ἀπελαύνοντα τοὺς ἄλλους ὡς κατακαλούμενον Ἀθήναζε τούτους ἐπὶ βεβαίῳ τῷ μεθέξειν τῆς πολιτείας, καὶ ἅμα neighbour's field, or, in case it was a fig-tree or an olive-tree, within nine. For these reach out farther with their roots, and injure some trees by their proximity, taking away their nourishment, and emitting an exhalation which is sometimes noxious. He that would dig a pit or a trench, must dig it at the distance of its own depth from his neighbour's; and he that would set out hives of bees, must put them three hundred feet away from those which another had already installed.

SOLON

XXIV. Of the products of the soil, he allowed oil only to be sold abroad, but forbade the exportation of others; and if any did so export, the archon was to pronounce curses upon them, or else himself pay a hundred drachmas into the public treasury. His first table is the one which contains this law. One cannot, therefore, wholly disbelieve those who say that the exportation of figs also was anciently forbidden, and that the one who showed up, or pointed out such exporters, was called a "sycophant," or fig-shower. He also enacted a law concerning injuries received from beasts, according to which a dog that had bitten anybody must be delivered up with a wooden collar three cubits long fastened to it; a happy device this for promoting safety.

But the law concerning naturalized citizens is of doubtful character. He permitted only those to be made citizens who were permanently exiled from their own country, or who removed to Athens with their entire families to ply a trade. This he did, as we are told, not so much to drive away other foreigners, as to invite these particular ones to Athens with the full assurance of becoming citizens; he also thought that reliance could be placed both

PLUTARCH'S LIVES

πιστοὺς νομίζοντα τοὺς μὲν ἀποβεβληκότας τὴν
 ἑαυτῶν διὰ τὴν ἀνάγκην, τοὺς δ' ἀπολελοιπότας
 3 διὰ τὴν γνώμην. ἴδιον δὲ τοῦ Σόλωνος καὶ τὸ
 περὶ τῆς ἐν δημοσίῳ σιτήσεως, ὅπερ αὐτὸς
 παρασιτεῖν κέκληκε. τὸν γὰρ αὐτὸν οὐκ ἔᾶ σιτεῖσθαι πολλάκις, ἐὰν δὲ ᾤ καθήκει μὴ βούληται, κολάζει, τὸ μὲν ἡγούμενος πλεονεξίαν, τὸ
 δ' ὑπεροψίαν τῶν κοινῶν.

XXV. Ἴσχὺν δὲ τοῖς νόμοις πᾶσιν εἰς ἑκατὸν
 ἐνιαυτοὺς ἔδωκε· καὶ κατεγράφησαν εἰς ξυλίνοὺς ἄξονας ἐν πλαισίοις περιέχουσι στρεφομένους,
 ὧν ἔτι καθ' ἡμᾶς ἐν Πρυτανείῳ λείψανα μικρὰ
 διεσώζετο· καὶ προσηγορεύθησαν, ὡς Ἀριστοτέλης φησί, κύρβεις. καὶ Κρατῖνος ὁ κωμικὸς
 εἴρηκέ που·

Πρὸς τοῦ Σόλωνος καὶ Δράκοντος οἴσι νῦν
 φρύγουσιν ἤδη τὰς κάχρυσ τοῖς κύρβεσιν.

2 ἔνιοι δὲ φασιν ἰδίως ἐν οἷς ἱερὰ καὶ θυσίαι
 περιέχονται, κύρβεις, ἄξονας δὲ τοὺς ἄλλους
 ὠνομάσθαι. κοινὸν μὲν οὖν ὤμνουν ὄρκον ἢ βουλή
 τοὺς Σόλωνος νόμους ἐμπεδώσειν, ἴδιον δ' ἕκαστος
 τῶν θεσμοθετῶν ἐν ἀγορᾷ πρὸς τῷ λίθῳ, κατα-φατίζων, εἴ τι παραβαίῃ τῶν θεσμῶν, ἀνδριάντα
 χρυσοῦν ἰσομέτρητον¹ ἀναθήσειν ἐν Δελφοῖς.¹

¹ ἰσομέτρητον and ἐν Δελφοῖς are not in the text of Aristotle.

SOLON

on those who had been forced to abandon their own country, and on those who had left it with a fixed purpose. Characteristic of Solon also was his regulation of the practice of eating at the public table in the townhall, for which his word was "parasitein."¹ The same person was not allowed to eat there often, but if one whose duty it was to eat there refused, he was punished. Solon thought the conduct of the first grasping; that of the second, contemptuous of the public interests.

XXV. All his laws were to have force for a hundred years, and they were written on "axones," or wooden tablets, which revolved with the oblong frames containing them. Slight remnants of these were still preserved in the Prytaneium when I was at Athens, and they were called, according to Aristotle,² "kurbeis." Cratinus, also, the comic poet, somewhere says:—

"By Solon, and by Draco too I make mine oath, Whose kurbeis now are used to parch our barley-corns."³

But some say that only those tablets which relate to sacred rites and sacrifices are properly called "kurbeis," and the rest are called "axones." However that may be, the council took a joint oath to ratify the laws of Solon, and each of the "thesmothetai," or guardians of the statutes, swore separately at the herald's stone in the market-place, vowing that if he transgressed the statutes in any way, he would dedicate at Delphi a golden statue of commensurate worth.

¹ Hence, with scornful meaning, the word parasite.

² Cf. Const. of Athens, vii. 1, with Sandys' notes.

³ Kock, Com. Att. Frag. i. p. 94.

PLUTARCH'S LIVES

3 Συνιδὼν δὲ τοῦ μηνὸς τὴν ἀνωμαλίαν, καὶ τὴν κίνησιν τῆς σελήνης οὔτε δυομένῳ τῷ ἡλίῳ πάντως οὔτ' ἀνίσχοντι συμφερομένην, ἀλλὰ πολλάκις τῆς αὐτῆς ἡμέρας καὶ καταλαμβάνουσιν καὶ παρερχομένην τὸν ἥλιον, αὐτὴν μὲν ἔταξε ταύτην ἔνῃ καὶ νέαν καλεῖσθαι, τὸ μὲν πρὸ συνόδου μόριον αὐτῆς τῷ παυομένῳ μηνί, τὸ δὲ λοιπὸν ἤδη τῷ ἀρχομένῳ προσήκειν ἡγούμενος, πρῶτος, ὡς ἔοικεν, ὀρθῶς ἀκούσας Ὀμήρου λέγοντος,

Τοῦ μὲν φθίνοντος μηνός, τοῦ δ' ἰσταμένουιο,

τὴν δ' ἐφεξῆς ἡμέραν νομηνίαν ἐκάλεσε. τὰς δ' ἀπ' εἰκάδος οὐ προστιθείς, ἀλλ' ἀφαιρῶν καὶ ἀναλύων, ὥσπερ τὰ φῶτα τῆς σελήνης ἑώρα, μέχρι τριακάδος ἠρίθμησεν.

4 Ἐπεὶ δὲ τῶν νόμων εἰσενεχθέντων ἔνιοι τῷ Σόλωνι καθ' ἐκάστην προσήεσαν ἡμέραν, ἐπαινοῦντες ἢ ψέγοντες ἢ συμβουλεύοντες ἐμβάλλειν τοῖς γεγραμμένοις ὅ τι τύχοιεν ἢ ἀφαιρεῖν, πλείστοι δ' ἦσαν οἱ πυνθανόμενοι καὶ ἀνακρίνοντες καὶ κελεύοντες αὐτὸν ὅπως ἕκαστον ἔχει καὶ πρὸς ἣν κείται διάνοιαν ἐπεκιδιάσκειν καὶ σαφηνίζειν, ὁρῶν ὅτι ταῦτα καὶ τὸ πράττειν ἄτοπον καὶ τὸ μὴ πράττειν ἐπίφθονον, ὅλως δὲ ταῖς ἀπορίαις ὑπεκστῆναι βουλόμενος καὶ διαφυγεῖν

SOLON

Observing the irregularity of the month, and that the motion of the moon does not always coincide with the rising and setting of the sun, but that often she overtakes and passes the sun on the same day, he ordered that day to be called the Old and New, assigning the portion of it which preceded the conjunction to the expiring month, and the remaining portion to the month that was just beginning. He was thus the first, as it would seem, to understand Homer's verse,¹ which speaks of a day when

“This month is waning, and the next is setting in,”

and the day following this he called the first of the month. After the twentieth he did not count the days by adding them to twenty, but by subtracting them from thirty, on a descending scale, like the waning of the moon.²

No sooner were the laws of Solon put into operation than some would come to him every day with praise or censure of them, or with advice to insert something into the documents, or take something out. Very numerous, too, were those who came to him with inquiries and questions about them, urging him to teach and make clear to them the meaning and purpose of each several item. He saw that to do this was out of the question, and that not to do it would bring odium upon him, and wishing to be wholly rid of these perplexities and to escape from

¹ Odyssey, xiv. 162=xix. 307, of the day when Odysseus would return to Ithaca.

² Thus the twenty-first was called the tenth, the twenty-second the ninth, and so on, “of the waning month.” The twenty-ninth was the second of the waning month, the thirtieth the Old and New.

PLUTARCH'S LIVES

τὸ δυσάρεστον καὶ φιλαίτιον τῶν πολιτῶν (ἔργμασι γὰρ ἐν μεγάλοις πᾶσιν ἀδεῖν χαλεπόν, ὡς αὐτὸς εἶρηκε), πρόσχημα τῆς πλάνης τὴν ναυκληρίαν ποιησάμενος ἐξέπλευσε, δεκαετῆ παρὰ τῶν Ἀθηναίων ἀποδημίαν αἰτησάμενος. ἤλπιζε γὰρ ἐν τῷ χρόνῳ τούτῳ καὶ τοῖς νόμοις αὐτοῦς¹ ἔσσεσθαι συνήθεις.

XXVI. Πρῶτον μὲν οὖν εἰς Αἴγυπτον ἀφίκετο καὶ διέτριψεν, ὡς αὐτὸς φησι, Νείλου ἐπὶ προχοῆσι Κανωβίδος ἐγγύθεν ἀκτῆς.

χρόνον δέ τινα καὶ τοῖς περὶ Ψένωφιν τὸν Ἡλιου-πολίτην καὶ Σῶγχιν τὸν Σαῖτην, λογιωτάτοις οὔσι τῶν ἱερέων, συνεφιλοσόφησε· παρ' ὧν καὶ τὸν Ἀτλαντικὸν ἀκούσας λόγον, ὡς Πλάτων φησίν, ἐπεχείρησε διὰ ποιήματος ἐξενεγκεῖν εἰς² τοὺς Ἕλληνας. ἔπειτα πλεύσας εἰς Κύπρον ἠγαπήθη διαφερόντως ὑπὸ Φιλοκύπρου τινὸς τῶν ἐκεῖ βασιλέων, ὃς εἶχεν οὐ μεγάλην πόλιν, ὠκισμένην ὑπὸ Δημοφῶντος τοῦ Θεσέως, περὶ τὸν Κλάριον ποταμὸν ἐν χωρίοις ὄχυροῖς μὲν, ἄλλως δὲ δυσχερέσι καὶ φαύλοις κειμένην. ἔπεισεν οὖν αὐτὸν ὁ Σόλων ὑποκειμένου καλοῦ³ πεδίου μεταθέντα τὴν πόλιν ἡδίονα καὶ μείζονα κατασκευάσαι. καὶ παρῶν ἐπεμελήθη τοῦ συν-οικισμοῦ, καὶ συνδιεκόσμησε πρὸς τε διαγωγὴν ἄριστα καὶ πρὸς ἀσφάλειαν, ὥστε πολλοὺς μὲν οἰκῆτορας τῷ Φιλοκύπρῳ συνελθεῖν, ζηλώσαι δὲ τοὺς ἄλλους βασιλέας· διὸ καὶ τῷ Σόλωνι τιμῆν

¹ τοῖς νόμοις αὐτοῦς after MSS. cited by Stephanus; Bekker has τοὺς νόμους αὐτοῖς, the conjecture of Stephanus (the laws would be familiar to them).

SOLON

the captiousness and censoriousness of the citizens (for "in great affairs," as he says himself,¹ "it is difficult to please all"), he made his ownership of a vessel an excuse for foreign travel, and set sail, after obtaining from the Athenians leave of absence for ten years. In this time he hoped they would be accustomed to his laws.

XXVI. In the first place, then, he went to Egypt,² and lived, as he himself says,³

"Where Nile pours forth his floods, near the Canobic shore."

He also spent some time in studies with Psenophis of Heliopolis and Sonchis of Saïs, who were very learned priests. From these, as Plato says,⁴ he heard the story of the lost Atlantis, and tried to introduce it in a poetical form to the Greeks.⁵ Next he sailed to Cyprus, and was greatly beloved of Philocyprus, one of the kings of the island. This prince had a small city, founded by Demophon, the son of Theseus, and lying near the river Clarius, in a position which was strong, but otherwise incommo-dious and sorry. Solon therefore persuaded him to remove the city to the fair plain which lay below it, and make it more spacious and pleasant. He also remained and took charge of the new city's consolidation, and helped to arrange it in the best possible manner both for convenience of living and for safety. The result was that many colonists flocked to Philocyprus, and he was the envy of the other kings. He therefore paid Solon the honour of

¹ Fragment 7 (Bergk).

² Cf. Aristotle, Const. of Athens, xi. 1.

³ Fragment 28 (Bergk). ⁴ Timaeus, p. 22 a.

⁵ Cf. chapters xxxi. 3; xxxii. 1 f.

PLUTARCH'S LIVES

ἀποδιδούς Αἰπείαν τὴν πόλιν καλουμένην πρό-4 τερον ἀπ' ἐκείνου Σόλους προσηγόρευσε. καὶ
 αὐτὸς δὲ μέμνηται τοῦ συνοικισμοῦ· προσαγο-ρεύσας γὰρ ἐν ταῖς ἐλεγείαις τὸν Φιλόκυπρον,

Νῦν δὲ (φησί) σὺ μὲν Σολίοισι πολὺν χρόνον
 ἐνθάδ' ἀνάσσω

τὴνδε πόλιν ναίοις καὶ γένος ὑμέτερον·
 αὐτὰρ ἐμὲ ξὺν νηϊ θοῇ κλεινῆς ἀπὸ νήσου
 ἀσκηθῆ πέμποι Κύπρις ἰοστέφανος·
 οἰκισμῶ δ' ἐπὶ τῷδε χάριν καὶ κῦδος ὀπάζοι
 ἐσθλὸν καὶ νόστον πατρίδ' ἐς ἡμετέρην.

XXVII. Τὴν δὲ πρὸς Κροῖσον ἔντευξιν αὐτοῦ
 δοκοῦσιν ἔνιοι τοῖς χρόνοις ὡς πεπλασμένην
 ἐλέγχειν. ἐγὼ δὲ λόγον ἔνδοξον οὕτω καὶ το-σούτους μάρτυρας ἔχοντα, καί, ὃ μείζον ἐστι, πρέποντα τῷ Σόλωνος ἦθει καὶ τῆς ἐκείνου μεγαλοφροσύνης καὶ σοφίας ἄξιον, οὐ μοι δοκῶ προήσεσθαι χροنيκοῖς τισι λεγομένοις κανόσιν,
 οὓς μυρίοι διορθοῦντες ἄχρι σήμερον εἰς οὐδὲν
 αὐτοῖς ὁμολογούμενον δύνανται καταστήσαι τὰς
 2 ἀντιλογίας. τὸν δ' οὖν Σόλωνά φασιν εἰς Σάρδεις
 δεσθέντι τῷ Κροίσῳ παραγενόμενον, παθεῖν τι παραπλήσιον ἀνδρὶ χερσαίῳ κατιόντι πρῶτον ἐπὶ
 θάλατταν. ἐκείνός τε γὰρ ὄρων ἄλλον ἐξ ἄλλου
 ποταμὸν ᾤετο τὴν θάλασσαν εἶναι, καὶ τῷ Σόλωνι
 τὴν αὐτὴν διαπορευομένῳ καὶ πολλοὺς ὄρωντι
 τῶν βασιλικῶν κεκοσμημένους πολυτελῶς, καὶ

SOLON

naming the new city after him, and called it Soli ; its name had been Aipeia. Solon himself also makes mention of this consolidation. In his elegies, namely, he addresses Philocyprus, and says ¹ :—

“ Now mayest thou long time be lord and master for the Solii here,
Dwelling in this city thyself, and thy family after thee ;
But may I and my swift ship, as we leave this storied isle,
Be brought upon our way in safety by Cypris of the violet crown.
Upon this settlement of thine may she bestow
favour and glory ;
And upon me an auspicious return to my fatherland.”

XXVII. As for his interview with Croesus, some think to prove by chronology that it is fictitious. But when a story is so famous and so well-attested, and, what is more to the point, when it comports so well with the character of Solon, and is so worthy of his magnanimity and wisdom, I do not propose to reject it out of deference to any chronological canons, so called, which thousands are to this day revising, without being able to bring their contradictions into any general agreement. So then, they say that Solon, on visiting Sardis at the invitation of Croesus,² had much the same experience as an inland man who goes down for the first time to the sea. For just as such a man thinks each successive river that he sees to be the sea, so Solon, as he passed through the court and beheld many of the king's retainers in

¹ Fragment 19 (Bergk).

² Cf. Herodotus, i. 30-33.

- σοβούντας ἐν ὄχλῳ προπομπῶν καὶ δορυφόρων, ἕκαστος ἐδόκει Κροῖσος εἶναι, μέχρι πρὸς αὐτὸν ἤχθη, πᾶν ὅσον ἐν λίθοις, ἐν βαφαῖς ἐσθήτος, ἐν τέχναις χρυσοῦ περι κόσμον ἐκπρεπὲς ἔχειν ἢ περιττὸν ἢ ζηλωτὸν ἐδόκει περικείμενον, ὡς δὴ θέαμα σεμνότατον ὀφθείη καὶ ποικιλώτατον.
- 3 ἐπεὶ δ' ὁ Σόλων ἄντικρυς καταστάς οὐτ' ἔπαθεν οὐδὲν οὐτ' εἶπε πρὸς τὴν ὄψιν ὧν ὁ Κροῖσος προσεδόκησεν, ἀλλὰ καὶ δῆλος ἦν τοῖς εὐ φρονούσι τῆς ἀπειροκαλίας καὶ μικροπρεπείας καταφρονῶν, ἐκέλευσεν αὐτῷ τούς τε θησαυροὺς ἀνοῖξαι τῶν χρημάτων, καὶ τὴν ἄλλην ἄγοντας ἐπιδείξαι μηδὲν δεομένῳ κατασκευὴν καὶ πολυτέλειαν. ἦρκει γὰρ αὐτὸς ἐν ἑαυτῷ τοῦ τρόπου κατανόησιν παρασχεῖν. ὡς δ' οὖν αὐθις ἤχθη γεγωνὸς ἀπάντων θεατῆς, ἠρώτησεν αὐτὸν ὁ Κροῖσος εἴ τινα
- 4 οἶδεν ἀνθρώπων αὐτοῦ μακαριώτερον. ἀποφνηαμένου δὲ τοῦ Σόλωνος ὅτι οἶδε Τέλλον αὐτοῦ πολίτην, καὶ διεξελθόντος ὅτι χρηστὸς ἀνὴρ ὁ Τέλλος γενόμενος καὶ παῖδας εὐδοκίμους καταλιπὼν καὶ βίον οὐδενὸς ἐνδεᾶ τῶν ἀναγκαίων, ἐτελεύτησεν ἐνδόξως ἀριστεύσας ὑπὲρ τῆς πατρίδος, ἥδη μὲν ἀλλόκοτος ἐδόκει εἶναι τῷ Κροίσῳ καὶ ἄγροικος, εἰ μὴ πρὸς ἀργύριον πολὺ μηδὲ χρυσίον τῆς εὐδαιμονίας ποιείται τὴν ἀναμέτρησιν, ἀλλὰ δημοτικῷ καὶ ιδιώτου βίον καὶ θάνατον ἀνθρώπου μᾶλλον ἢ τοσαύτην ἀγαπήν δύναμιν καὶ ἀρχήν.
- 5 οὐ μὴν ἀλλὰ πάλιν ἠρώτησεν αὐτὸν εἰ μετὰ Τέλλον ἄλλον ἔγνωκεν ἀνθρώπων εὐδαιμονέστερον. πάλιν δὲ τοῦ Σόλωνος εἰπόντος εἰδέναι Κλέοβιν καὶ Βίτωνα, φιλαδέλφους καὶ φιλομή-

SOLON

costly apparel and moving proudly amid a throng of couriers and armed guards, thought each in turn to be Croesus, until he was brought to the king himself, who was decked out with everything in the way of precious stones, dyed raiment, and wrought gold that men deem remarkable, or extravagant, or enviable, in order that he might present a most august and gorgeous spectacle. But when Solon, in this presence, neither showed any astonishment at what he saw, nor made any such comments upon it as Croesus had expected, but actually made it clear to all discerning eyes that he despised such vulgarity and pettiness, the king ordered his treasure chambers to be thrown open for the guest, and that he should be led about to behold the rest of his sumptuous equipments. Of this there was no need, for the man himself sufficed to give Solon an understanding of his character. However, when Solon had seen everything and had been conducted back again, Croesus asked him if he had ever known a happier man than he. Solon said he had, and that the man was Tellus, a fellow-citizen of his own ; Tellus, he went on to say, had proved himself an honest man, had left reputable sons behind him, and had closed a life which knew no serious want with a glorious display of valour in behalf of his country. Croesus at once judged Solon to be a strange and uncouth fellow, since he did not make an abundance of gold and silver his measure of happiness, but admired the life and death of an ordinary private man more than all this display of power and sovereignty. Notwithstanding, he asked him again whether, next to Tellus, he knew any other man more fortunate than he. Again Solon said he did, naming Cleobis and Bito, men surpass-

94
 6 7

τορας διαφερόντως ἄνδρας, οἱ τὴν μητέρα τῶν
 βοῶν βραδυνόντων ὑποδύντες αὐτοὶ τῷ ζυγῷ τῆς
 ἀμάξης ἐκόμισαν πρὸς τὸ τῆς Ἡρας ἱερὸν εὐδαιμονιζομένην ὑπὸ τῶν πολιτῶν καὶ χαίρουσαν, εἶτα θύσαντες καὶ πιόντες οὐκ ἔτι μεθ' ἡμέραν ἀνέστη-σαν, ἀλλὰ τεθνηκότες ἀναλγῆ καὶ ἄλυπον ἐπὶ
 δόξῃ τοσαύτῃ θάνατον ὤφθησαν, “Ἡμᾶς δέ,” εἶπεν ἤδη πρὸς ὄργην ὁ Κροῖσος, “εἰς οὐδένα
 τίθης εὐδαιμόνων ἀριθμὸν ἀνθρώπων;” καὶ ὁ Σόλων οὔτε κολακεύειν βουλόμενος αὐτὸν οὔτε
 περαιτέρω παροξύνειν, “Ἐλλησιν,” εἶπεν, “ὦ βασιλεῦ Λυδῶν, πρὸς τε τᾶλλα μετρίως ἔχειν ὁ
 θεὸς ἔδωκε, καὶ σοφίας τινὸς ἀθαρσοῦς, ὡς ἔοικε, καὶ δημοτικῆς, οὐ βασιλικῆς οὐδὲ λαμπρᾶς, ὑπὸ μετριότητος ἡμῖν μέτεστιν, ἢ τύχαις ὀρώσα παντοδαπαῖς χρώμενον αἰεὶ τὸν βίον, οὐκ ἐᾷ τοῖς
 παροῦσιν ἀγαθοῖς μέγα φρονεῖν, οὐδὲ θαυμάζειν
 ἀνδρὸς εὐτυχίαν μεταβολῆς χρόνον ἔχουσαν.
 ἔπεισι γὰρ ἐκάστῳ ποικίλον ἐξ ἀδήλου τὸ μέλλον
 ᾧ δ' εἰς τέλος ὁ δαίμων ἔθετο τὴν εὐπραξίαν, τοῦτον εὐδαίμονα νομίζομεν. ὁ δὲ ζῶντος ἔτι καὶ
 κινδυνεύοντος ἐν τῷ βίῳ μακαρισμός, ὥσπερ
 ἀγωνιζομένου κήρυγμα καὶ στέφανος, ἐστὶν
 ἀβέβαιος καὶ ἄκυρος.” ταῦτ' εἰπὼν ὁ Σόλων ἀπηλλάττετο λυπήσας μὲν, οὐ νουθετήσας δὲ τὸν Κροῖσον.

XXVIII. Ὁ δὲ λογοποιὸς Αἴσωπος, ἐτύγχανε

SOLON

ing all others in brotherly love and in dutiful affection towards their mother ; for once, he said, when the car in which she was riding was delayed by the oxen, they took the yoke upon their own shoulders and brought their mother to the temple of Hera, where her countrymen called her a happy woman and her heart was rejoiced ; then, after sacrifice and feasting, they laid themselves to rest, and never rose again, but were found to have died a painless and tranquil death with so great honour fresh upon them. "What!" said Croesus, who by this time was angered, "dost thou not count us among happy men at all?" Then Solon, who was unwilling to flatter him and did not wish to exasperate him further, said : "O king of Lydia, as the Deity has given us Greeks all other blessings in moderation, so our moderation gives us a kind of wisdom which is timid, in all likelihood, and fit for common people, not one which is kingly and splendid. This wisdom, such as it is, observing that human life is ever subject to all sorts of vicissitudes, forbids us to be puffed up by the good things we have, or to admire a man's felicity while there is still time for it to change. For the future which is advancing upon every one is varied and uncertain, but when the Deity bestows prosperity on a man up to the end, that man we consider happy ; to pronounce any one happy, however, while he is still living and running the risks of life, is like proclaiming an athlete victorious and crowning him while he is still contending for the prize ; the verdict is insecure and without authority." When he had said this, Solon departed, leaving Croesus vexed, but none the wiser for it.

XXVIII. Now it so happened that Aesop, the

γὰρ εἰς Σάρδεις μετάπεμπος γεγονὼς ὑπὸ Κροΐσου καὶ τιμώμενος, ἠχθέσθη τῷ Σόλωνι μηδεμιᾶς τυχόντι φιλανθρωπίας· καὶ προτρέπων αὐτόν, “ὦ Σόλων,” ἔφη, “τοῖς βασιλεῦσι δεῖ ὡς ἥκιστα ἢ ὡς ἥδιστα ὀμιλεῖν.” καὶ ὁ Σόλων, “Μὰ Δί,” εἶπεν, “ἀλλ’ ὡς ἥκιστα ἢ ὡς ἄριστα.”

- 2 Τότε μὲν οὖν ὁ Κροῖσος οὕτω τοῦ Σόλωνος κατεφρόνησεν· ἐπεὶ δὲ Κύρῳ συμβαλὼν ἐκρατήθη μάχῃ, καὶ τὴν πόλιν ἀπώλεσε, καὶ ζῶν ἀλοὺς αὐτὸς ἔμελλε καταπίμπρασθαι, καὶ γενομένης πυρᾶς ἀνεβιβάσθη δεδεμένος θεωμένων Περσῶν ἀπάντων καὶ Κύρου παρόντος, ἐφ’ ὅσον ἐξικνεῖτο καὶ δυνατὸς ἦν τῇ φωνῇ φθειγξάμενος ἀνεβόησε τρίς, “ὦ Σόλων.” θαυμάσας οὖν ὁ Κύρος ἔπεμψε τοὺς ἐρησομένους ὅστις ἀνθρώπων ἢ θεῶν οὗτός ἐστιν ὁ Σόλων, ὃν ἐν τύχαις¹ ἀπόροις μόνον
- 3 ἀνακαλεῖται. καὶ ὁ Κροῖσος οὐδὲν ἀποκρυψάμενος εἶπεν ὅτι “Τῶν παρ’ Ἑλλησι σοφῶν εἰς οὗτος ἦν ὁ ἀνὴρ, ὃν ἐγὼ μετεπεμψάμην οὐκ ἀκούσαι τι βουλόμενος οὐδὲ μαθεῖν ὧν ἐνδεὴς ἦμην, ἀλλ’ ὡς δὴ μοι θεατῆς γένοιτο καὶ μάρτυς ἀπίοι τῆς εὐδαιμονίας ἐκείνης, ἣν ἀποβαλεῖν ἄρα μείζον ἦν κακὸν ἢ λαβεῖν ἀγαθόν. λόγος γὰρ ἦν καὶ δόξα τὰγαθὸν παρούσης· αἱ μεταβολαὶ δὲ μοι αὐτῆς εἰς πάθη δεινὰ καὶ συμφορὰς ἀνηκέστους
- 4 ἔργω τελευτῶσι. καὶ ταῦτ’ ἐκεῖνος ὁ ἀνὴρ ἐκ τῶν τότε τὰ νῦν τεκμαιρόμενος, ἐκέλευε τὸ τέλος τοῦ βίου σκοπεῖν καὶ μὴ θρασυνόμενον ἀβεβαίους ὑπονοίαις ὑβρίζειν.” ἐπεὶ δὲ τοῦτ’ ἀνηνέχθη πρὸς τὸν Κύρον, ἅτε δὴ σοφώτερος ὢν τοῦ Κροῖσου καὶ

¹ ἐν τύχαις Coraës, Cobet, and S: τύχαις.

SOLON

writer of fables, was in Sardis, having been summoned thither by Croesus, and receiving much honour at his hands. He was distressed that Solon met with no kindly treatment, and said to him by way of advice : “ O Solon, our converse with kings should be either as rare, or as pleasing as is possible.” “ No, indeed ! ” said Solon, “ but either as rare or as beneficial as is possible.”

At this time, then, Croesus held Solon in a contempt like this ; but afterwards he encountered Cyrus, was defeated in battle, lost his city, was taken alive and condemned to be burnt ; and then, as he lay bound upon the pyre in the sight of all the Persians and of Cyrus himself, with all the reach and power of which his voice was capable, he called out thrice :¹ “ O Solon ! ” Cyrus, then, astonished at this, sent men to ask him what man or god this Solon was on whom alone he called in his extremity. And Croesus, without any concealment, said : “ This man was one of the sages of Greece, and I sent for him, not with any desire to hear or learn the things of which I stood in need, but in order that he might behold, and, when he left me, bear testimony to the happiness I then enjoyed, the loss of which I now see to be a greater evil than its possession was a good. For when it was mine, the good I derived from it was matter of report and men’s opinion, but its departure from me issues in terrible sufferings and irreparable calamities which are real. And that man, conjecturing this future from what he then saw, bade me look to the end of my life, and not let insecure conjectures embolden me to be proud and insolent.” When this was reported to Cyrus, since he was a wiser man than Croesus, and τὸν λόγον τοῦ Σόλωνος ἰσχυρὸν ἐν τῷ παραδείγματι βλέπων, οὐ μόνον ἀφήκε τὸν Κροῖσον, ἀλλὰ καὶ τιμῶν ἐφ' ὅσον ἔζη διετετέλεσε· καὶ δόξαν ἔσχεν ὁ Σόλων ἐνὶ λόγῳ τὸν μὲν σώσας, τὸν δὲ παιδεύσας τῶν βασιλέων.

¹ Cf. Herodotus, i. 86.

PLUTARCH'S LIVES

XXIX. Οἱ δὲ ἐν ἄστει πάλιν ἐστασίαζον ἀποδημοῦντος τοῦ Σόλωνος· καὶ προειστήκει τῶν μὲν Πεδιέων Λυκούργος, τῶν δὲ Παράλων Μεγακλῆς ὁ Ἀλκμαίωνος, Πεισίστρατος δὲ τῶν Διακρίων, ἐν οἷς ἦν ὁ θητικὸς ὄχλος καὶ μάλιστα τοῖς πλουσίοις ἀχθόμενος· ὥστε χρῆσθαι μὲν ἔτι τοῖς νόμοις τὴν πόλιν, ἤδη δὲ πράγματα νεώτερα προσδοκᾶν καὶ ποθεῖν ἅπαντας ἐτέραν κατάστασιν, οὐκ ἴσον ἐλπίζοντας, ἀλλὰ πλέον ἔξειν ἐν τῇ μεταβολῇ καὶ κρατήσειν παντάπασι τῶν διαφορομένων. οὕτω δὲ τῶν πραγμάτων ἐχόντων ὁ Σόλων παραγενόμενος εἰς τὰς Ἀθήνας, αἰδῶ μὲν εἶχε καὶ τιμὴν παρὰ πᾶσιν, ἐν δὲ κοινῷ λέγειν καὶ πράσσειν ὁμοίως οὐκ ἔτ' ἦν δυνατὸς οὐδὲ πρόθυμος ὑπὸ γῆρως, ἀλλ' ἐντυγχάνων ἰδίᾳ τοῖς προεστῶσι τῶν στάσεων ἀνδράσιν ἐπειράτο διαλύειν καὶ συναρμόττειν, μάλιστα τοῦ Πεισιστράτου προσέχειν δοκοῦντος αὐτῷ. καὶ γὰρ αἰμύλον τι καὶ προσφιλὲς εἶχεν ἐν τῷ διαλέγεσθαι, καὶ βοηθητικὸς ἦν τοῖς πένησι καὶ πρὸς τὰς ἔχθρας ἐπιεικῆς καὶ μέτριος. ἃ δὲ φύσει μὴ προσῆν αὐτῷ, καὶ ταῦτα μιμούμενος ἐπιστεύετο μᾶλλον τῶν ἐχόντων, ὡς εὐλαβῆς καὶ κόσμιος ἀνὴρ καὶ μάλιστα δὴ τὸ ἴσον ἀγαπῶν, καὶ δυσχεραίνων εἴ τις τὰ παρόντα saw the word of Solon confirmed in the example before him, he not only released Croesus, but actually held him in honour as long as he lived. And thus Solon had the reputation of saving one king and instructing another by means of a single saying.

SOLON

XXIX. But the people of Athens were again divided into factions while Solon was away. The Plain-men were headed by Lycurgus; the Shore-men by Megacles the son of Alcmaeon, and the Hill-men by Peisistratus.¹ Among the last was the multitude of Thetes, who were the bitter enemies of the rich. As a consequence, though the city still observed the new laws, yet all were already expecting a revolution and desirous of a different form of government, not in hopes of an equality, but each party thinking to be bettered by the change, and to get the entire mastery of its opponents. Such was the state of affairs when Solon returned to Athens. He was revered and honoured by all, but owing to his years he no longer had the strength or the ardour to speak and act in public as before. He did, however, confer privately with the chiefs of the opposing factions, endeavouring to reconcile and harmonize them, and Peisistratus seemed to pay him more heed than the others. For Peisistratus had an insinuating and agreeable quality in his address, he was ready to help the poor, and was reasonable and moderate in his enmities. Even those virtues which nature had denied him were imitated by him so successfully that he won more confidence than those who actually possessed them. He was thought to be a cautious and order-loving man, one that prized equality above all things, and would take it ill if any one disturbed the existing κινοίη καὶ νεωτέρων ὀρέγοιτο· τούτοις γὰρ ἐξηπάτα τοὺς πολλούς. ὁ δὲ Σόλων ταχὺ τὸ ἦθος ἐφώρασεν αὐτοῦ καὶ τὴν ἐπιβουλήν πρῶτος ἐγκατείδεν· οὐ μὴν ἐμίσησεν, ἀλλ' ἐπειράτο πραῦνειν καὶ νουθετεῖν, καὶ πρὸς αὐτὸν ἔλεγε καὶ πρὸς ἐτέρους ὡς εἴ τις ἐξέλοι τὸ φιλόπρωτον αὐτοῦ τῆς ψυχῆς καὶ τὴν ἐπιθυμίαν ἰάσαιτο τῆς τυραννίδος, (οὐκ ἔστιν ἄλλος εὐφυνέστερος) πρὸς ἀρετὴν οὐδὲ βελτίων πολίτης.

¹ Cf. Aristotle, Const. of Athens, xiii. 4.

PLUTARCH'S LIVES

isambic

- 4 Ἀρχομένων δὲ τῶν περὶ Θέσπιν ἤδη τὴν τραγωδίαν κινεῖν, καὶ διὰ τὴν καινότητα τοὺς πολλοὺς ἄγοντος τοῦ πράγματος, οὐπω δ' εἰς ἄμιλλαν ἐναγώνιον ἐξηγμένου, φύσει φιλήκοος ὢν καὶ φιλομαθῆς ὁ Σόλων, ἔτι μᾶλλον ἐν γήρα σχολῇ καὶ παιδιᾷ καὶ νῆ Δία πότοις καὶ μουσικῇ παραπέμπων ἑαυτὸν, ἐθεάσατο τὸν Θέσπιν αὐτὸν ὑποκρινόμενον, ὥσπερ ἔθος ἦν τοῖς παλαιοῖς.
- 5 μετὰ δὲ τὴν θέαν προσαγορεύσας αὐτὸν ἠρώτησεν εἰ τοσούτων ἐναντίον οὐκ αἰσχύνεται τηλικαῦτα ψευδόμενος. φήσαντος δὲ τοῦ Θέσπιδος μὴ δεινὸν εἶναι τὸ μετὰ παιδιᾶς λέγειν τὰ τοιαῦτα καὶ πρᾶσσειν, σφόδρα τῇ βακτηρίᾳ τὴν γῆν ὁ Σόλων πατίξας· “Ταχὺ μέντοι τὴν παιδιάν,” ἔφη, “ταύτην ἐπαινοῦντες οὕτω καὶ τιμῶντες εὐρήσομεν ἐν τοῖς συμβολαίοις.”

XXX. Ἐπεὶ δὲ κατατρώσας αὐτὸς ἑαυτὸν ὁ Πεισίστρατος ἦκεν εἰς ἀγορὰν ἐπὶ ζεύγους κομιζόμενος, καὶ παρώξυνε τὸν δῆμον ὡς διὰ τὴν πολιτείαν ὑπὸ τῶν ἐχθρῶν ἐπιβεβουλευμένος, order and attempted a change. On these points, indeed, he completely deceived most people. But Solon quickly detected his real character, and was the first to perceive his secret designs. He did not, however, treat him as an enemy, but tried to soften and mould him by his instructions. He actually said to him and to others that if the desire for pre-eminence could but be banished from his soul, and his eager passion for the tyranny be cured, no other man would be more naturally disposed to virtue, or a better citizen.

SOLON

Thespis was now beginning to develop tragedy, and the attempt attracted most people because of its novelty, although it was not yet made a matter of competitive contest. Solon, therefore, who was naturally fond of hearing and learning anything new, and who in his old age more than ever before indulged himself in leisurely amusement, yes, and in wine and song, went to see Thespis act in his own play, as the custom of the ancient poets was. After the spectacle, he accosted Thespis, and asked him if he was not ashamed to tell such lies in the presence of so many people. Thespis answered that there was no harm in talking and acting that way in play, whereupon Solon smote the ground sharply with his staff and said: "Soon, however, if we give play of this sort so much praise and honour, we shall find it in our solemn contracts."

XXX. Now when Peisistratus, after inflicting a wound upon himself,¹ came into the market-place riding in a chariot, and tried to exasperate the populace with the charge that his enemies had plotted against his life on account of his political

¹ Cf. Herodotus, i. 59 ; Aristotle, Const. of Athens, xiv. 1.

PLUTARCH'S LIVES

καὶ πολλοὺς εἶχεν ἀγανακτοῦντας καὶ βοῶντας, προσελθὼν ἐγγὺς ὁ Σόλων καὶ παραστάς, “Ὁὐ καλῶς,” εἶπεν, “ὦ παῖ Ἴπποκράτους, ὑποκρίνη τὸν Ὀμηρικὸν Ὀδυσσεά· ταῦτα γὰρ ποιεῖς τοὺς πολίτας παρακρουόμενος οἷς ἐκείνος τοὺς πολεμίου² μίους ἐξηπάτησεν, αἰκισάμενος ἑαυτόν.” ἐκ τούτου τὸ μὲν πλῆθος ἦν ἔτοιμον ὑπερμαχεῖν τοῦ Πεισιστράτου, καὶ συνήλθεν εἰς ἐκκλησίαν ὁ δῆμος. Ἀρίστωνος δὲ γράψαντος ὅπως δοθῶσι πεντήκοντα κορυνηφόροι τῷ Πεισιστράτῳ φυλακὴ τοῦ σώματος, ἀντείπεν ὁ Σόλων ἀναστάς καὶ πολλὰ διεξήλθεν ὅμοια τούτοις οἷς διὰ τῶν ποιημάτων γέγραπεν·

Εἰς γὰρ γλῶσσαν ὁρᾶτε καὶ εἰς ἔπη αἰμύλου ἀνδρός.

ὑμῶν δ' εἰς μὲν ἕκαστος ἀλώπεκος ἔχρῃσι βαίνει, σύμπασιν δ' ὑμῖν χαῦνος ἔνεστι νόος.

3 ὁρῶν δὲ τοὺς μὲν πένητας ὠρμημένους χαρίζεσθαι τῷ Πεισιστράτῳ καὶ θορυβοῦντας, τοὺς δὲ πλουσίους ἀποδιδράσκοντας καὶ ἀποδειλιῶντας, ἀπῆλθεν εἰπὼν ὅτι τῶν μὲν ἐστὶ σοφώτερος, τῶν δὲ ἀνδρειότερος· σοφώτερος μὲν τῶν μὴ συνιέντων τὸ πραπτόμενον, ἀνδρειότερος δὲ τῶν συνιέντων μὲν, ἐναντιοῦσθαι δὲ τῇ τυραννίδι φοβουμένων. τὸ δὲ ψήφισμα κυρώσας ὁ δῆμος οὐδὲ περὶ τοῦ πλήθους ἐτι τῶν κορυνηφόρων διεμικρολογεῖτο πρὸς τὸν Πεισίστρατον, ἀλλ' ὅσους ἐβούλετο τρέφοντα καὶ συνάγοντα φανερῶς περιεώρα, μέχρι τὴν ἀκρόπολιν κατέσχε.

4 Γενομένου δὲ τούτου καὶ τῆς πόλεως συντα-

SOLON

opinions, and many of them greeted the charge with angry cries, Solon drew near and accosted him, saying: "O son of Hippocrates, thou art playing the Homeric Odysseus badly; for when he disfigured himself it was to deceive his enemies,¹ but thou doest it to mislead thy fellow-citizens." After this the multitude was ready to fight for Peisistratus, and a general assembly of the people was held. Here Ariston made a motion that Peisistratus be allowed a body-guard of fifty club-bearers, but Solon formally opposed it, and said many things which were like what he has written in his poems:—

"Ye have regard indeed to the speech and words of a wily man.

Yet every one of you walks with the steps of a fox,
And in you all dwells an empty mind."²

But when he saw that the poor were tumultuously bent on gratifying Peisistratus, while the rich were fearfully slinking away from any conflict with him, he left the assembly, saying that he was wiser than the one party, and braver than the other; wiser than those who did not understand what was being done, and braver than those who, though they understood it, were nevertheless afraid to oppose the tyranny.³ So the people passed the decree, and then held Peisistratus to no strict account of the number of his club-bearers, but suffered him to keep and lead about in public as many as he wished, until at last he seized the acropolis.

When this had been done, and the city was in an

¹ Odyssey, iv. 244-264.

² Fragment 11 (Bergk), verses 7, 5, and 6. Plutarch has changed the order; Bekker and Cobet restore it.

³ Cf. Aristotle, Const. of Athens, xiv. 2.

ραχθείσης, ὁ μὲν Μεγακλῆς εὐθὺς ἔφυγε μετὰ
 τῶν ἄλλων Ἀλκμαιωνιδῶν, ὁ δὲ Σόλων ἤδη μὲν 96
 ἦν σφόδρα γέρων καὶ τοὺς βοηθοῦντας οὐκ εἶχεν,
 ὁμῶς δὲ προῆλθεν εἰς ἀγορὰν καὶ διελέχθη πρὸς
 τοὺς πολίτας, τὰ μὲν κακίζων τὴν ἀβουλίαν αὐ-
 τῶν καὶ μαλακίαν, τὰ δὲ παροξύνων ἔτι καὶ
 5 παρακαλῶν μὴ προέσθαι τὴν ἐλευθερίαν· ὅτε καὶ
 τὸ μνημονευόμενον εἶπεν, ὡς πρῶην μὲν ἦν εὐμαρέστερον αὐτοῖς τὸ κωλύσαι τὴν τυραννίδα
 συνισταμένην, νῦν δὲ μείζον ἔστι καὶ λαμπρότερον
 ἐκκόψαι καὶ ἀνελεῖν συνεστῶσαν ἤδη καὶ πεφυκυῖαν. οὐδενὸς δὲ προσέχοντος αὐτῷ διὰ τὸν
 φόβον ἀπῆλθεν εἰς τὴν οἰκίαν τὴν ἑαυτοῦ, καὶ
 λαβὼν τὰ ὄπλα καὶ πρὸ τῶν θυρῶν θέμενος εἰς
 τὸν στενωπὸν, “Ἐμοὶ μὲν,” εἶπεν, “ὡς δυνατὸν 6 ἦν βεβοῆθηται τῇ πατρίδι καὶ τοῖς νόμοις.” καὶ
 τὸ λοιπὸν ἡσυχίαν ἤγε, καὶ τῶν φίλων φεύγειν παραινούντων οὐ προσεῖχεν, ἀλλὰ ποιήματα γρά-φων ὠνείδιζε τοῖς Ἀθηναίοις·

Εἰ δὲ πεπόνθατε λυγρὰ δι' ὑμετέρην κακότητα,
 μή τι θεοῖς τούτων μῆνιν ἐπαμφέρετε.
 αὐτοὶ γὰρ τούτους ηὔξησατε ρύματα δόντες,
 καὶ διὰ ταῦτα κακὴν ἔσχετε δουλοσύνην.

XXXI. Ἐπὶ τούτοις δὲ πολλῶν νουθετούντων
 αὐτὸν ὡς ἀποθανούμενον ὑπὸ τοῦ τυράννου, καὶ

SOLON

uproar, Megacles¹ straightway fled, with the rest of the Alcmaeonidae. But Solon, although he was now a very old man, and had none to support him, went nevertheless into the market-place and reasoned with the citizens, partly blaming their folly and weakness, and partly encouraging them still and exhorting them not to abandon their liberty. Then it was, too, that he uttered the famous saying, that earlier it had been easier for them to hinder the tyranny, while it was in preparation; but now it was a greater and more glorious task to uproot and destroy it when it had been already planted and was grown. No one had the courage to side with him, however, and so he retired to his own house, took his arms, and placed them in the street in front of his door, saying: "I have done all I can to help my country and its laws."² From that time on he lived in quiet retirement, and when his friends urged him to fly, he paid no heed to them, but kept on writing poems, in which he heaped reproaches on the Athenians:—

"If now ye suffer grievously through cowardice all
your own,
Cherish no wrath against the gods for this,
For ye yourselves increased the usurper's power by giving him a guard,
And therefore are ye now in base subjection."³

XXXI. In view of this, many warned him that the tyrant would put him to death, and asked him on ¹ Grandson of the Megacles who brought the taint of pollution upon the family (chapter xii. 1-3). He had been allowed to return from banishment.

² It was for others now to do the same. Cf. Aristotle, Const. of Athens, xiv. 2. ³ Fragment 11 (Bergk), verses 1-4.

PLUTARCH'S LIVES

- πυνθανομένων τίνι πιστεύων οὕτως ἀπονοεῖται, “Γῶ γῆρα,” εἶπεν. οὐ μὴν ἄλλ’ ὁ Πεισίστρατος ἐγκρατῆς γενόμενος τῶν πραγμάτων οὕτως ἐξεθεράπευσε τὸν Σόλωνα, τιμῶν καὶ φιλοφρονούμενος καὶ μεταπεμπόμενος, ὥστε καὶ σύμβουλον εἶναι καὶ πολλὰ τῶν πρᾶσσομένων ἐπαινεῖν. καὶ γὰρ ἐφύλαττε τοὺς πλείστους νόμους τοῦ Σόλωνος, ἐμμένων πρῶτος αὐτὸς καὶ τοὺς φίλους
- 2 ἀναγκάζων ὅς γε καὶ φόνου προσκληθεῖς εἰς Ἀρειον πάγον, ἤδη τυραννῶν, ἀπήντησε κοσμίως ἀπολογησόμενος, ὁ δὲ κατήγορος οὐχ ὑπήκουσε· καὶ νόμους αὐτὸς ἑτέρους ἔγραψεν, ὧν ἐστὶ καὶ ὁ τοὺς πηρωθέντας ἐν πολέμῳ δημοσίᾳ τρέφεσθαι κελεύων. τοῦτο δὲ φησὶν Ἡρακλείδης καὶ πρότερον ἐπὶ Θερσίππῳ πηρωθέντι τοῦ Σόλωνος ψηφισαμένου μιμήσασθαι τὸν Πεισίστρατον. ὡς δὲ Θεόφραστος ἰστόρηκε, καὶ τὸν τῆς ἀργίας νόμον οὐ Σόλων ἔθηκεν, ἀλλὰ Πεισίστρατος, ᾧ τὴν τε χώραν ἐνεργότεραν καὶ τὴν πόλιν ἡρεμαιοτέραν ἐποίησεν.
- 3 Ὁ δὲ Σόλων ἀψάμενος μεγάλης τῆς περὶ τὸν Ἀτλαντικὸν λόγον ἢ μῦθον πραγματείας, δὴν διήκουσε τῶν περὶ Σάϊν λογίων προσήκοντα τοῖς Ἀθηναίοις, ἐξέκαμεν, οὐ δι’ ἀσχολίαν, ὡς Πλάτων φησὶν, ἀλλὰ μᾶλλον ὑπὸ γῆρας, φοβηθεῖς τὸ μέγεθος τῆς γραφῆς. ἐπεὶ σχολῆς

SOLON

what he relied that he was so lost to all sense, to which he answered, "My old age." However, when Peisistratus had become master of the situation, he paid such court to Solon by honouring him, showing him kindness, and inviting him to his palace, that Solon actually became his counsellor and approved of many of his acts. For he retained most of Solon's laws, observing them first himself, and compelling his friends to do so. For instance, he was summoned before the Areiopagus on a charge of murder, when he was already tyrant, and presented himself there to make his defence in due form, but his accuser did not put in an appearance. He also made other laws himself, one of which provides that those who are maimed in war shall be maintained at the public charge. But Heracleides says that even before that Solon had caused a decree to be passed to this effect in the case of Thersippus, who had been so maimed, and that Peisistratus was following his example. Moreover, Theophrastus writes that the law against idleness, in consequence of which the country became more productive and the city more tranquil, was not made by Solon, but by Peisistratus.

Now Solon, after beginning his great work on the story or fable of the lost Atlantis, which, as he had heard from the learned men of Saïs,¹ particularly concerned the Athenians, abandoned it, not for lack of leisure, as Plato says, but rather because of his old age, fearing the magnitude of the task. For ¹ Cf. chapter xxvi. 1. There is no trace of any such work of Solon's, and the attribution of it to him is probably a play of Plato's fancy.

PLUTARCH'S LIVES

γε περιουσίαν αὐτοῦ μηνύουσιν αἱ τοιαῦται
φωναί·

Γηράσκω δ' αἰεὶ πολλὰ διδασκόμενος·

καί,

Ἔργα δὲ Κυπρογενοῦς νῦν μοι φίλα καὶ Διονύσου

καὶ Μουσέων, ἃ τίθησ' ἀνδράσιν εὐφροσύνας.

XXXII. Ὡς δὲ χώρας καλῆς ἔδαφος ὁ Πλάτων
ἔρημον, αὐτῷ δὲ πως κατὰ συγγένειαν προσήκον, ἐξεργάσασθαι καὶ διακοσμήσαι φιλοτιμούμενος
τὴν Ἀτλαντικὴν ὑπόθεσιν, πρόθυρα μὲν μεγάλα
καὶ περιβόλους καὶ αὐλὰς τῇ ἀρχῇ περιέθηκεν,
οἷα λόγος οὐδεὶς ἄλλος ἔσχεν οὐδὲ μῦθος οὐδὲ
2 ποίησις, ὃψὲ δὲ ἀρξάμενος προκατέλυσε τοῦ
ἔργου τὸν βίον, ὅσφ' μᾶλλον εὐφραίνει τὰ γεγραμμένα, τοσούτῳ μᾶλλον τοῖς ἀπολειφθεῖσιν
ἀνιάσας. ὡς γὰρ ἡ πόλις τῶν Ἀθηναίων τὸ
Ἄλυμπιόν, οὕτως ἡ Πλάτωνος σοφία τὸν Ἀτλαντικὸν ἐν πολλοῖς καλοῖς μόνον ἔργον ἀτε-λὲς ἔσχηκεν.

3 Ἐπεβίωσε δ' οὖν ὁ Σόλων ἀρξαμένου τοῦ
Πεισιστράτου τυραννεῖν, ὡς μὲν Ἡρακλείδης ὁ Ποντικὸς ἱστορεῖ, συχνὸν χρόνον, ὡς δὲ Φανίας
ὁ Ἐρέσιος, ἐλάττονα δυοῖν ἐτῶν. ἐπὶ Κωμίου 97
μὲν γὰρ ἤρξατο τυραννεῖν Πεισίστρατος, ἐφ'
Ἡγεστράτου δὲ Σόλωνά φησιν ὁ Φανίας ἀπο-

SOLON

that he had abundant leisure, such verses as these testify :—

“ But I grow old ever learning many things ; ” ¹

and again,

“ But now the works of the Cyprus-born goddess are dear to my soul,
Of Dionysus, too, and the Muses, which impart delights to men.” ²

XXXII. Plato, ambitious to elaborate and adorn the subject of the lost Atlantis, as if it were the soil of a fair estate unoccupied, but appropriately his by virtue of some kinship with Solon,³ began the work by laying out great porches, enclosures, and court-yards, such as no story, tale, or poesy ever had before. But he was late in beginning, and ended his life before his work.⁴ Therefore the greater our delight in what he actually wrote, the greater is our distress in view of what he left undone. For as the Olympieium in the city of Athens, so the tale of the lost Atlantis in the wisdom of Plato is the only one among many beautiful works to remain unfinished.

Well, then, Solon lived on after Peisistratus had made himself tyrant, as Heracleides Ponticus states, a long time ; but as Phantias of Eresos says, less than two years. For it was in the archonship of Comeas ⁵ that Peisistratus began his tyranny, and Phantias says that Solon died in the archonship of Hegestratus,

¹ Cf. chapter ii. 2.

² Fragment 26 (Bergk).

³ Plato mentions the relationship of Critias, his maternal uncle, with Solon (Charmides, p. 155 a).

⁴ Plato's Critias is a splendid fragment. ⁵ 561-60 B. C.

PLUTARCH'S LIVES

4 θανεῖν τοῦ μετὰ Κωμίαν ἄρξαντος. ἡ δὲ διασπορὰ κατακαυθέντος αὐτοῦ τῆς τέφρας περὶ
τὴν Σαλαμινίων νῆσον ἔστι μὲν διὰ τὴν ἀτοπίαν
ἀπίθανος παντάπασι καὶ μυθώδης, ἀναγέγραπται
δ' ὑπὸ τε ἄλλων ἀνδρῶν ἀξιολόγων καὶ Ἀριστο-τέλους τοῦ φιλοσόφου.

SOLON

the successor of Comeas. The story that his body was burned and his ashes scattered on the island of Salamis is strange enough to be altogether incredible and fabulous, and yet it is given by noteworthy authors, and even by Aristotle the philosopher.

PUBLICOLA

ΠΟΠΛΙΚΟΛΑΣ

- I. Τοιούτῳ δὴ γενομένῳ τῷ Σόλωνι τὸν Ποπλικόλαν παραβάλλομεν, ᾧ τοῦτο μὲν ὕστερον ὁ Ῥωμαίων δῆμος ἐξεύρεν ἐπὶ τιμῇ τοῦνομα, πρὸ τοῦ δὲ Πόπλιος Οὐαλλέριος ἐκαλεῖτο, Οὐαλλερίου δοκῶν ἀπόγονος εἶναι τῶν παλαιῶν ἀνδρὸς αἰτιωτάτου γενομένου Ῥωμαίους καὶ Σαβίνους ἐκ πολεμίων ἕνα γενέσθαι δῆμον· ὁ γὰρ μάλιστα τοὺς βασιλεῖς εἰς ταῦτὸ πείσας συνελθεῖν καὶ
- 2 διαλλάξας ἐκείνός ἐστι. τούτῳ δὴ κατὰ γένος προσήκων ὁ Οὐαλλέριος, ὡς φασι, βασιλευμένης μὲν ἔτι τῆς Ῥώμης ἐπιφανῆς ἦν διὰ λόγον καὶ πλοῦτον, ὧν τῷ μὲν ὀρθῶς καὶ μετὰ παρρησίας ἀεὶ χρώμενος ὑπὲρ τῶν δικαίων, ἀφ' οὗ δὲ τοῖς δεομένοις ἐλευθερίως καὶ φιλανθρώπως ἐπαρκῶν, δῆλος ἦν εὐθύς, εἰ γένοιτο δημοκρατία, πρωτεύσων.
- 3 Ἐπεὶ δὲ Ταρκύνιον Σούπερβον οὔτε λαβόντα τὴν ἀρχὴν καλῶς, ἀλλ' ἀνόσιως καὶ παρανόμως, οὔτε χρώμενον αὐτῇ βασιλικῶς, ἀλλ' ὑβρίζοντα καὶ τυραννοῦντα, μισῶν ὁ δῆμος καὶ βαρυνόμενος, ἀρχὴν ἀποστάσεως ἔλαβε τὸ Λουκρητίας πάθος αὐτὴν ἐπὶ τῷ βιασθῆναι διεργασαμένης, καὶ Λεύκιος Βρούτος ἀπτόμενος τῶν πραγμάτων

PUBLICOLA

I. SUCH was Solon, and with him we compare Publicola, to whom the Roman people gave this surname later as a mark of honour. Before that he was called Publius Valerius, and was reputed to be a decendant of that ancient Valerius who was most instrumental in making the Romans and the Sabines one people instead of enemies ; for it was he more than anyone else that persuaded their kings to come together, and settled their differences. Such being his lineage, Valerius, as we are told, while Rome was still a kingdom, was conspicuous for his eloquence and wealth, always employing the one with integrity and boldness in the service of justice, while with the other he gave liberal and kindly aid to the poor and needy. It was therefore clear that, should Rome become a democracy, he would at once be one of its foremost men.

Now Tarquinius Superbus had not acquired his power honourably, but by the violation of divine and human laws ; nor did he exercise it in kingly fashion, but after the manner of an insolent and haughty tyrant. The people therefore hated him, resented his oppressions, and found occasion for revolt in the fate of Lucretia, who made away with herself after violence had been done to her. Lucius Brutus, engaging in the revolution, came to

τῆς μεταβολῆς ἐπὶ πρῶτον ἦλθε τὸν Οὐαλλέριον
καὶ χρησάμενος αὐτῷ προθυμοτάτῳ συνεξέβαλε
4 τοὺς βασιλεῖς, μέχρι μὲν ἐπίδοξος ἦν ὁ δῆμος ἕνα
χειροτονήσειν ἀντὶ τοῦ βασιλέως στρατηγόν, ἡσυχίαν ἦγειν ὁ Οὐαλλέριος, ὡς τῷ Βρούτῳ
μᾶλλον ἄρχειν προσῆκον ἡγεμόνι τῆς ἐλευθερίας
γεγενημένῳ· δυσχεραينوμένου δὲ τοῦ τῆς μοναρχίας
ὀνόματος, καὶ δοκοῦντος ἂν ἀλυπότερον τοῦ
δήμου μερισθεῖσαν ὑπομεῖναι τὴν ἀρχὴν καὶ δύο
προβαλλομένου καὶ καλοῦντος, ἐλπίζων μετὰ τὸν Βρούτον αἰρεθήσεσθαι καὶ συνυπατεύσειν διήμαρ-
τεν. ἡρέθη γὰρ ἄκουτι τῷ Βρούτῳ συνάρχων
ἀντὶ τοῦ Οὐαλλερίου Ταρκύνιος Κολλατῖνος, ὁ Λουκρητίας ἀνὴρ, οὐδὲν ἀρετῇ Οὐαλλερίου διαφέρων, ἀλλ' οἱ δυνατοὶ δεδιότες τοὺς βασιλεῖς ἔτι
πολλὰ πειρῶντας ἔξωθεν καὶ μαλάσσοντας τὴν
πόλιν, ἐβούλοντο τὸν ἐντονώτατον αὐτοῖς ἐχθρὸν
ἔχειν στρατηγὸν ὡς οὐχ ὑψησόμενον.

II. Ἀγανακτῶν οὖν ὁ Οὐαλλέριος, εἰ μὴ πιστεύεται πάντα πράττειν ἕνεκα τῆς πατρίδος,
ὅτι μηδὲν ἰδίᾳ κακὸν ὑπὸ τῶν τυράννων πέπονθε,
τῆς τε βουλῆς ἀπέστη καὶ τὰς συνηγορίας ἀπέειπε
καὶ τὸ πράττειν τὰ κοινὰ παντελῶς ἐξέλιπεν,
ᾧστε καὶ λόγον τοῖς πολλοῖς παρασχεῖν καὶ
φροντίδα, φοβουμένοις μὴ δι' ὀργὴν προσθέμενος
τοῖς βασιλεῦσιν ἀνατρέψῃ τὰ πρῶγματα καὶ τὴν 98
2 πόλιν ἐπισφαλῶς ἔχουσιν. ἐπεὶ δὲ καὶ πρὸς

PUBLICOLA

Valerius first of all, and with his most zealous assistance drove out the kings.¹ Then, as long as the people was likely to elect one man as their commander in place of the king, Valerius acquiesced, thinking it more fitting that Brutus should have the office, because he had led the way to freedom. But the very name of monarchy was odious to the people, who thought that it would be less vexatious to submit to an authority which was divided, and therefore proposed and demanded that two men should be elected to the highest office. Then Valerius, who hoped that he would be chosen next to Brutus, and would be consul with him, was disappointed. For against the wishes of Brutus, Tarquinius Collatinus, the husband of Lucretia, was elected as his colleague,² instead of Valerius. He was a man of no greater excellence than Valerius, but the influential citizens were afraid of the kings, who were still putting forth many efforts outside, and trying to appease resentment inside the city, and they therefore desired to have as their commander the most pronounced enemy of the royal family, believing that he would make no concessions to them.

II. Valerius, accordingly, vexed that his desire to do his utmost for his country should be doubted, merely because he had received no private injury at the hands of the tyrants, withdrew from the senate, gave up his practice as an advocate, and abandoned entirely his public activities. This caused anxious remark among the multitude. They feared lest, in his wrath, he should attach himself to the royal exiles, and subvert the established order of the city, which was in a dangerous pass. But when Brutus,

¹ Cf. Livy, i. 58 f. ; ii. 2, 11. ² Cf. Livy, i. 60, 4.

PLUTARCH'S LIVES

ἑτέροισιν τινὰς ὑποψίαν ἔχων ὁ Βρούτος ἐβούλετο
 διὰ σφαγίων ὀρκῶσαι τὴν βουλὴν καὶ προεῖπεν
 ἡμέραν, καταβάς μάλα φαιδρὸς εἰς ἀγορὰν ὁ Οὐαλλέριος, καὶ πρῶτος ὁμώσας μηδὲν ἐνδώσειν
 μηδ' ὑφήσεσθαι Ταρκυνίοις, ἀλλὰ πολεμήσειν
 κατὰ κράτος ὑπὲρ τῆς ἐλευθερίας, ἡδονὴν τε τῇ
 βουλῇ καὶ θάρσος ἅμα τοῖς ἄρχουσι παρέσχευεν.
 εὐθύς δὲ καὶ τὰ ἔργα τὸν ὄρκον ἐβεβαίον.

3 πρέσβεις γὰρ ἦγον ἀπὸ Ταρκυνίου γράμματα
 κομίζοντες ἐπαγωγὰ τοῦ δήμου καὶ λόγους ἐπιεικέεις, οἷς μάλιστα τοὺς πολλοὺς φόντο διαφθεῖρειν, λεγομένοις παρὰ βασιλέως ἀφεικέναι
 τὸ φρόνημα καὶ μετρίων δεῖσθαι δοκοῦντος.
 τούτους εἰς τὸ πλῆθος οἰομένων δεῖν τῶν ὑπάτων
 προαγαγεῖν οὐκ εἶασεν ὁ Οὐαλλέριος, ἀλλ' ἐνέστη
 καὶ διεκώλυσεν ἀνθρώποις πένησι καὶ βαρυνομένοις μᾶλλον τῆς τυραννίδος τὸν πόλεμον ἀρχὰς
 καὶ προφάσεις νεωτερισμῶν ἐγγενέσθαι.

III. Μετὰ δὲ ταῦτα πρέσβεις ἦγον ἕτεροι τῆς
 τε βασιλείας ἀφίστασθαι καὶ πολεμοῦντα παύ-σασθαι τὸν Ταρκύνιον λέγοντες, ἀπαιτεῖν δὲ τὰ
 χρήματα καὶ τὰς οὐσίας αὐτῷ καὶ φίλοις καὶ
 οἰκείοις, ἀφ' ὧν διαβιώσονται φεύγοντες. ἐπικλωμένων δὲ πολλῶν καὶ μάλιστα τοῦ Κολλατίνου
 συναγορεύοντος, ἄτρεπτος ὢν ἀνὴρ καὶ τραχὺς
 ὄργην ὁ Βρούτος ἐξέδραμεν εἰς ἀγορὰν, προδότην
 ἀποκαλῶν τὸν συνάρχοντα, πολέμου καὶ τυραννίδος ἀφορμὰς χαριζόμενον οἷς δεινὸν ἦν ὄντως

2 ἐφόδια φυγῆς ψηφίσασθαι. συνελθόντων δὲ τῶν
 πολιτῶν πρῶτος ἰδιώτης ἀνὴρ εἶπεν ἐν δήμῳ τότε

PUBLICOLA

who had his suspicions of certain others also, desired the senators to take a sacrificial oath, and set a day for the ceremony, Valerius went down with a glad countenance into the forum, and was the first to take oath that he would make no submission or concession to the Tarquins, but would fight with all his might in defence of freedom. This pleased the senate and inspired the consuls with courage. And his actions speedily confirmed his oath. For envoys came from Tarquin bringing letters calculated to seduce the people, and specious words by which they thought the multitude were most likely to be corrupted, coming as they did from a king who seemed to have humbled himself, and to ask only moderate terms. These envoys the consuls thought should be brought before the assembled people, but Valerius would not suffer it. He was unalterably opposed to giving poor men, who considered war a greater burden than tyranny, occasions and excuses for revolution.

III. After this, other envoys came announcing that Tarquin abdicated his throne and ceased to wage war upon the city, but demanded for himself, his friends, and his kinsmen, their moneys and effects,¹ wherewith to maintain themselves in exile. Many were inclined to grant this favour, and Collatinus in particular joined in advocating it, but Brutus, a man of harsh and unyielding temper, ran forth into the forum and denounced his colleague as a traitor, because he would bestow the means for waging war and maintaining tyranny on men to whom it were a terrible mistake to vote even a bare subsistence in exile. And when an assembly of the citizens was held, the first to speak among them

¹ Cf. Livy, ii. 3, 5.

PLUTARCH'S LIVES

Γάιος Μινούκιος, τῷ τε Βρούτῳ διακελευόμενος καὶ τοῖς Ῥωμαίοις παραινῶν ὁρᾶν ὅπως τὰ χρήματα μετ' αὐτῶν ὄντα πολεμοίῃ πρὸς τοὺς τυράννους μᾶλλον ἢ μετ' ἐκείνων πρὸς αὐτούς. οὐ μὴν ἄλλ' ἔδοξε τοῖς Ῥωμαίοις τὴν ἐλευθερίαν ἔχουσιν, ὑπὲρ ἧς ἐπολέμουν, μὴ προέσθαι τὴν εἰρήνην ἕνεκα χρημάτων, ἀλλὰ συνεκβαλεῖν καὶ ταῦτα τοῖς τυράννοις.

Ἦν δὲ ἄρα Ταρκυνίῳ λόγος μὲν ἐλάχιστος τῶν χρημάτων, ἡ δ' ἀπαίτησις ἅμα πείρα τοῦ
 3 δήμου καὶ κατασκευὴ προδοσίας. καὶ ταῦτ' ἔπραττον οἱ πρέσβεις ὑπομένοντες ἐπὶ τῇ τῶν χρημάτων προφάσει, τὰ μὲν ἀποδίδοσθαι, τὰ δὲ φυλάττειν, τὰ δ' ἀποπέμπειν φάσκοντες, ἄχρι οὐ διέφθειραν οἴκους δύο τῶν καλῶν κάγαθῶν νομιζομένων, τὸν Ἀκυλλίων τρεῖς ἔχοντα βουλευτὰς καὶ δύο τὸν Οὐϊτελλίων. οὗτοι πάντες ἦσαν ἀπὸ μητέρων ἀδελφιδοῖ Κολλατίνου τοῦ ὑπατεύοντος, ἰδίᾳ δὲ Οὐϊτελλίοις ἑτέρα πρὸς Βρούτῳ οἰκειότης ὑπῆρχεν. ἀδελφὴν γὰρ αὐτῶν
 4 ὁ Βρούτος εἶχε καὶ παῖδας ἕξ αὐτῆς πλείονας· ὧν δύο τοὺς ἐν ἡλικίᾳ συγγενεῖς ὄντας ἅμα καὶ συνήθεις οἱ Οὐϊτέλλιοι προσηγάγοντο καὶ συνέπεισαν ἐν τῇ προδοσίᾳ γενέσθαι καὶ καταμίξαντας ἑαυτοὺς εἰς γένος μέγα τὸ τῶν Ταρκυνίων καὶ βασιλικὰς ἐλπίδας ἀπαλλαγῆναι τῆς τοῦ πατρὸς ἀβελτερίας καὶ χαλεπότητος· χαλεπότητα μὲν τὸ ἀπαραίτητον αὐτοῦ πρὸς τοὺς πονηροὺς λέγοντες, τῇ δ' ἀβελτερίᾳ προσποιή-

PUBLICOLA

was Caius Minucius, a private man, who exhorted Brutus and advised the Romans to see to it that the treasures fought with them against the tyrants, rather than with the tyrants against them. However, the Romans decided that, since they had the liberty for which they were at war, they would not sacrifice peace for the sake of wealth, but cast this also out along with the tyrants.¹

Now the wealth, of course, was of very slight consequence to Tarquin, but the demand for it was at once a test of the people's disposition and a means of instigating treachery among them. And it was with this that the envoys busied themselves, making the property merely a pretext for remaining in the city, and saying that they were selling part of it, and reserving part, and sending part of it away. At last they succeeded in corrupting two of the noble families of Rome, that of the Aquillii, which had three senators, and that of the Vitellii, which had two. All these, by the mother's side, were nephews of Collatinus the consul, and besides, the Vitellii were related in another manner to Brutus. For Brutus had married a sister of theirs, and she had borne him several sons. Two of these, who had come to manhood, and were their near kindred and close companions, the Vitellii won over and persuaded to join the plot for betraying the city, to ally themselves with the great family and the royal expectations of the Tarquins, and rid themselves of the stupidity and cruelty of their father. For they gave the name of cruelty to that father's inexorable treatment of criminals, and as for his stupidity, he had for a long time, as it appears, feigned and

¹ Cf. Livy, ii. 4, 3.

ματι καὶ παρακαλύμματι πολὺν χρόνον, ὡς ἔοικε, χρῆσάμενος ἀσφαλείας ἕνεκα πρὸς τοὺς τυράννους, οὐδ' ὕστερον ἔφυγεν αὐτῆς τὴν ἐπωνυμίαν.

- IV. Ὡς δ' οὖν συνεπέισθη τὰ μειράκια καὶ τοῖς Ἀκυλλίοις εἰς λόγους ἦλθεν, ὄρκον ὁμόσαι μέγαν ἔδοξε πᾶσι καὶ δεινόν, ἀνθρώπου σφαγέντος ἐπισπείσαντας αἷμα καὶ τῶν σπλάγχων θιγόντας. ἐπὶ τούτοις εἰς τὴν Ἀκυλλίων οἰκίαν συνῆλθον. ἦν δ' ὁ οἶκος, ἐν ᾧ ταῦτα δράσειν ἔμελλον, οἶον εἰκός, ὑπέρημος καὶ σκοτώδης. ἔλαθεν οὖν αὐτοὺς οἰκέτης ὄνομα Οὐνδίκιος ἔνδον κατακρύψας ἑαυτόν, οὐ κατ' ἐπιβουλήν 99
- 2 ἢ προαίσθησίν τινα τοῦ μέλλοντος, ἀλλ' ἔνδον ὦν ἔτυχε καὶ προσιοῦσιν αὐτοῖς μετὰ σπουδῆς ὀφθῆναι φοβηθεὶς ὑπέστη, λάρνακα κειμένην πρὸ αὐτοῦ ποιησάμενος, ὥστε καὶ τῶν πραττομένων θεατῆς γενέσθαι καὶ τῶν βουλευμάτων ἐπήκοος. ἔδοξε δ' αὐτοῖς τοὺς ὑπάτους ἀναιρεῖν, καὶ ταῦτα δηλούσας γράψαντες ἐπιστολὰς πρὸς τὸν Ταρκύνιον ἔδωκαν τοῖς πρέσβεσι· καὶ γὰρ ᾤκουν αὐτόθι, τῶν Ἀκυλλίων ξένοι γεγονότες, καὶ τότε τῇ συνωμοσίᾳ παρήσαν.
- 3 Ὡς δὲ ταῦτα πράξαντες ἀπηλλάγησαν, ὑπεξελθὼν ὁ Οὐνδίκιος λάθρα, χρήσασθαι τοῖς προσπεσοῦσιν οὐκ εἶχεν, ἀλλ' ἠπορεῖτο, δεινὸν μὲν ἠγούμενος, ὥσπερ ἦν, πρὸς πατέρα Βροῦτον υἱῶν ἐξάγιστα κατηγορεῖν ἢ πρὸς θεῖον ἀδελφιδῶν τὸν Κολλατῖνον, ιδιώτην δὲ Ῥωμαίων οὐδένα νο-

PUBLICOLA

assumed this, to insure his safety from the cruel designs of the tyrants, and afterwards the surname of Brutus, which had been given him for it, clung to him.

IV. When, accordingly, the youths had been persuaded and held conference with the Aquillii, it was decided that all the conspirators should swear a great and dreadful oath, pouring in libation the blood of a slain man, and touching his entrails. For this purpose they met at the house of the Aquillii.¹ Now the room in which the ceremony was to be held was, as was natural, dark and somewhat desolate. Without their knowing it, therefore, a slave named Vindicius had concealed himself therein, not with design, or with any inkling of what was to happen there; he merely chanced to be there, and when they came in with anxious haste, he was afraid to be seen by them, and hid himself behind a chest that lay there, so that he saw what they did, and heard what they resolved upon. Their decision was to kill the consuls, and when they had written letters to Tarquin to this effect, they gave them to his envoys, who were living there as guests of the Aquillii, and were then present at the conspiracy.

Their business transacted, the conspirators departed, and then Vindicius stole secretly away from the house. He knew not what use to make of what had befallen him, but was at a loss, considering it a dreadful thing, as it really was, to arraign the sons of Brutus before their father, or the nephews of Collatinus before their uncle, on the most abominable charges, and yet believing that no Roman in a private station could be entrusted with such im-

¹ At the house of the Vitellii, according to Livy, ii. 4, 5.

4 μίζων ἐχέγγυον ἀπορρήτων τηλικούτων. πᾶν δ' αὐτὸ μᾶλλον ἢ δυνατὸς ὦν ἡσυχίαν ἄγειν, ἐλαυνόμενος δὲ τῷ συνειδότι τοῦ πράγματος, ὄρμησέ πως πρὸς τὸν Οὐαλλέριον, μάλιστα τοῖς κοινοῖς καὶ φιλανθρώποις¹ ἐπαχθεὶς τοῦ ἀνδρός, ὅτι πᾶσιν εὐπρόσοδος ἦν τοῖς δεομένοις, καὶ τὴν οἰκίαν αἰεὶ παρέιχεν ἀνεφωγμένην, καὶ λόγον οὐδενὸς οὐδὲ χρεῖαν ἀπερρίπτει τῶν ταπεινῶν.

V. Ὡς οὖν ἀνέβη πρὸς αὐτὸν ὁ Οὐινδίκιος καὶ κατεῖπε πάντα, Μάρκου τε τοῦ ἀδελφοῦ παρόντος αὐτῷ μόνου καὶ τῆς γυναικός, ἐκπλαγεὶς καὶ δείσας ὁ Οὐαλλέριος οὐκέτι προήκατο τὸν ἄνθρωπον, ἀλλὰ κατακλείσας εἰς τὸ οἶκημα καὶ φύλακα τὴν ἑαυτοῦ γυναῖκα ταῖς θύραις ἐπιστήσας, τὸν μὲν ἀδελφὸν ἐκέλευσε τὴν βασιλικὴν ἔπαυλιν περισχόντα τὰ γράμματα λαβεῖν, ἂν δυνατὸν ἦ, καὶ τοὺς οἰκέτας παραφυλάττειν αὐτὸς δὲ πελατῶν τε πολλῶν καὶ φίλων αἰεὶ περὶ αὐτὸν ὄντων καὶ θεραπείας συχνῆς, ἐβάδιζε πρὸς τὴν οἰκίαν τῶν Ἀκυλλίων οὐκ ἔνδον ὄντων.

2 διὸ μηδενὸς ἂν προσδοκῆσαντος ὡσάμενος διὰ θυρῶν ἐπιτυγχάνει τοῖς γράμμασι κειμένοις ὅπου κατέλυον οἱ πρέσβεις. ταῦτα δ' αὐτοῦ πράττοντος οἱ Ἀκυλλιοὶ δρόμῳ προσεφέροντο, καὶ περὶ τὰς θύρας συμμίζαντες ἐζήτουν ἀφελέσθαι τὰς ἐπιστολάς. οἱ δ' ἠμύνοντο, καὶ τὰ ἱμάτια περιβαλόντες αὐτῶν τοῖς τραχήλοις ὑπὸ βίας καὶ μόλις ὠθούμενοι καὶ ὠθούμενοι διὰ τῶν στενωπῶν εἰς τὴν ἀγορὰν ἐνέβαλον. τὰ δ' αὐτὰ καὶ περὶ τὴν ἔπαυλιν ἅμα τὴν βασιλικὴν ἐγένετο, τοῦ Μάρκου γραμμάτων ἐτέρων ἐν τοῖς σκεύεσι κομιζομένων

¹ φιλανθρώποις Bekker supplies τρόποις, after Porson.

PUBLICOLA

portant secrets. The last thing that he could do, however, was to hold his peace, and driven on by his knowledge of the affair, he made his way somehow to Valerius, attracted especially by the affable and kindly ways of the man.¹ For he was easily accessible to all the needy, always kept open house, and never refused to hear or help one of the lowly.

V. Accordingly, when Vindicius came to him and told him the whole story, in the presence of his brother Marcus only, and of his wife, Valerius was struck with consternation and fear, and would not now let the man go, but shut him up in a room and set his own wife to guard the door. Then he ordered his brother to surround the royal residence, seize the letters, if possible, and take the servants into custody. He himself, with the numerous clients and friends who were always about him, and with a large company of retainers, went to the house of the Aquillii, who were not at home. Therefore, to the surprise of everybody, he forced the door, and came upon the letters lying in the quarters where the envoys were lodging. Meantime the Aquillii came up in hot haste, joined battle at the door, and sought to take away the letters. But Valerius and his party resisted the attack, threw their togas about their opponents' necks, and after much struggling on both sides, at last succeeded in pushing them through the streets into the forum. The same success was had at the royal residence, where Marcus laid hands on other letters which were to be conveyed away in the baggage, seized as many

¹ Vindicius laid the matter before the consuls, according to Livy, ii. 4, 6.

PLUTARCH'S LIVES

ἐπιλαμβανομένου, καὶ τῶν βασιλικῶν ὄσους δυνατὸς ἦν ἔλκοντας εἰς τὴν ἀγορὰν.

- VI. Ἐπεὶ δὲ τὸν θόρυβον κατέπαυσαν οἱ ὑπατοὶ καὶ τοῦ Οὐαλλερίου κελεύσαντος ἐκ τῆς οἰκίας ὁ Οὐινδίκιος προήχθη, καὶ γενομένης κατηγορίας ἀνεγνώσθη τὰ γράμματα καὶ πρὸς οὐδὲν ἐτόλμησαν ἀντειπεῖν οἱ ἄνδρες, ἦν μὲν κατήφεια καὶ σιωπὴ τῶν ἄλλων, ὀλίγοι δὲ βουλόμενοι τῷ Βρούτῳ χαρίζεσθαι φυγῆς ἐμέμνητο. καὶ τὸ καὶ Κολλατῖνος αὐτοῖς ἐλπίδος ἐπιεικοῦς ἐνεδίδου δεδακρυμένος καὶ Οὐαλλέριος σιωπῶν. ὁ δὲ Βρούτος ὀνομαστὶ τῶν υἱῶν ἐκάτερον προσειπὼν,
- 2 “Ἄγε, ὦ Τίτε,” εἶπεν, “ἄγε, ὦ Τιβέριε, τί οὐκ ἀπολογεῖσθε πρὸς τὴν κατηγορίαν;” ὡς δ' οὐδὲν ἀπεκρίναντο τρεῖς ἐρωτηθέντες, οὕτως πρὸς τοὺς ὑπηρέτας ἀποστρέψας τὸ πρόσωπον, “Τμέτερον ἤδη,” εἶπε, “τὸ λοιπὸν ἔργον.” οἱ δὲ εὐθὺς συλλαβόντες τοὺς νεανίσκους περιερρήγγουν τὰ ἱμάτια, τὰς χεῖρας ἀπῆγον ὀπίσω, ῥάβδοις
- 3 ἔξαινον τὰ σώματα, τῶν μὲν ἄλλων οὐ δυνάμενων προσορᾶν οὐδὲ καρτερούντων, ἐκεῖνον δὲ λέγεται μῆτε τὰς ὄψεις ἀπαγαγεῖν ἀλλαχόσε μῆτ' οἴκτῳ τι τρέψαι τῆς περὶ τὸ πρόσωπον ὀργῆς καὶ βαρύτητος, ἀλλὰ δεινὸν ἐνορᾶν κολαζομένοις τοῖς παισὶν ἄχρι οὐ κατατείναντες αὐτοὺς ἐπὶ τοῦδαφος πελέκει τὰς κεφαλὰς ἀπέκοψαν. οὕτω δὲ τοὺς ἄλλους ἐπὶ τῷ συνάρχοντι
- 4 ἐφικτόν. ἡ γὰρ ἀρετῆς ὕψος εἰς ἀπάθειαν ἐξέστησε τὴν ψυχὴν, ἡ πάθους μέγεθος εἰς ἀναλ-

PUBLICOLA

of the king's people as he could, and haled them to the forum.

VI. When the consuls had quieted the tumult, Valerius ordered Vindicius to be brought from his house, the denunciation was made, the letters were read aloud, and the accused had no courage to reply. Most of the people held their peace for very sorrow, but a few spoke of exile as a penalty, wishing to do Brutus a kindness. They were also somewhat encouraged to hope by the tears of Collatinus and the silence of Valerius. But Brutus, calling each of his sons by name, said: "Come, Titus, come Tiberius, why do ye not defend yourselves against this denunciation?" But when they made no answer, though he put his question to them thrice, he turned to the lictors and said: "It is yours now to do the rest." These straightway seized the young men, tore off their togas, bound their hands behind their backs, and scourged their bodies with their rods. The rest could not endure to look upon the sight, but it is said that the father neither turned his gaze away, nor allowed any pity to soften the stern wrath that sat upon his countenance, but watched the dreadful punishment of his sons until the lictors threw them on the ground and cut off their heads with the axe. Then he rose and went away, after committing the other culprits to the judgement of his colleague.¹ He had done a deed which it is difficult for one either to praise or blame sufficiently. For either the loftiness of his virtue made his spirit incapable of suffering, or else the magnitude of his

¹ With this account, compare Livy, ii. 5, 5-9. Brutus looked on "eminente animo patrio inter publicae poenae ministerium."

PLUTARCH'S LIVES

γησίαν. οὐδέτερον δὲ μικρὸν οὐδ' ἀνθρώπινον, ἀλλ' ἢ θεῖον ἢ θηριῶδες. δίκαιον δὲ τῇ δόξῃ τοῦ ἀνδρὸς τὴν κρίσιν ἔπεσθαι μᾶλλον ἢ τὴν ἀρετὴν ἀσθενείᾳ τοῦ κρίνοντος ἀπιστεῖσθαι. Ῥωμαῖοι γὰρ οὐ τοσοῦτον ἔργον οἴονται Ῥωμύλου γενέσθαι τῆς πόλεως τὴν ἴδρυσιν, ὅσον Βρούτου τὴν κτίσιν τῆς πολιτείας καὶ κατάστασιν.

VII. Ὡς δ' οὖν ἀπήλθεν ἐξ ἀγορᾶς τότε, πολὺν μὲν χρόνον ἔκπληξίς εἶχε καὶ φρίκη καὶ σιωπὴ πάντα ἐπὶ τοῖς διαπεπραγμένοις· πρὸς δὲ τὴν Κολλατίνου μαλακίαν καὶ μέλλησιν ἀνεθάρρησαν οἱ Ἀκύλλιοι, καὶ χρόνον ἠξίουσαν λαβόντες ἀπολογήσασθαι, καὶ τὸν Οὐινδίκιον αὐτοῖς ἀποδοθῆναι δούλον ὄντα, καὶ μὴ παρὰ τοῖς κατηγοροῖς
 2 εἶναι. βουλομένου δὲ ταῦτα συγχωρεῖν καὶ διαλύοντος ἐπὶ τούτοις τὴν ἐκκλησίαν, ὁ Οὐαλλέριος οὔτε τὸν ἄνθρωπον οἷός τ' ἦν ἀφεῖναι τῷ περὶ αὐτὸν ὄχλῳ καταμεμιγμένον, οὔτε τὸν δῆμον εἶα προέμενον τοὺς προδότας ἀπελθεῖν. τέλος δὲ τοῖς σώμασιν ἐπιβαλὼν τὰς χεῖρας ἐπεκαλεῖτο τὸν Βρούτον, καὶ τὸν Κολλατίνον ἐβόα δεινὰ ποιεῖν, εἰ τῷ συνάρχοντι παιδοφονίας ἀνάγκην προστριψάμενος αὐτὸς οἶεται δεῖν καταχαρίζεσθαι ταῖς γυναιξὶ τοὺς προδότας καὶ πολεμίους τῆς
 3 πατρίδος. ἀγανακτοῦντος δὲ τοῦ ὑπάτου καὶ κελεύοντος ἀπάγεσθαι τὸν Οὐινδίκιον, οἱ μὲν ὑπηρέται διωσάμενοι τὸν ὄχλον ἤπτοντο τοῦ ἀνθρώπου καὶ τοὺς ἀφαιρουμένους ἔτυπτον, οἱ suffering made it insensible to pain. In neither case was his act a trivial one, or natural to a man, but either god-like or brutish. However, it is right that our verdict should accord with the reputation of the man, rather than that his virtue should be discredited through weakness in the judge. For the Romans think that the work of Romulus in building the city was not so great as that of Brutus in founding and establishing its form of government.

516

PUBLICOLA

VII. After Brutus had left the forum at this time, for a long while consternation, horror, and silence prevailed among all who remained, as they thought of what had been done. But soon the weakness and hesitation of Collatinus gave the Aquillii fresh courage; they demanded time in which to make their defence, and the surrender of Vindicius to them, since he was their slave, and ought not to be in the hands of their accusers. Collatinus was willing to grant this request, and was about to dissolve the assembly with this understanding; but Valerius was neither able to surrender the slave, who had mingled with the throng about him, nor would he suffer the people to release the traitors and withdraw. So at last he seized the persons of the Aquillii and summoned Brutus to the scene, crying aloud that Collatinus was acting shamefully in laying upon his colleague the necessity of killing his own sons, and then thinking it necessary for himself to bestow upon their wives the lives of his country's betrayers and foes. The consul was indignant at this, and ordered that Vindicius should be taken away, whereupon the lictors pushed their way through the crowd, seized the man, and beat those who tried to rescue him. Then Valerius and his

δὲ φίλοι τοῦ Οὐαλλερίου προέστησαν ἀμυνόμενοι· καὶ ὁ δῆμος ἐβόα κελεύων παρεῖναι τὸν Βροῦτον. ἤκεν οὖν αὐθις ὑποστρέψας· καὶ γενομένης αὐτῷ σιωπῆς εἶπεν ὅτι τοῖς μὲν υἱοῖς αὐτὸς ἀποχρῶν ἦν δικαστής, περὶ δὲ τῶν ἄλλων τοῖς πολίταις ἐλευθέροις οὐσι ψῆφον δίδωσι· λεγέτω δὲ ὁ βουλόμενος καὶ πειθέτω τὸν δῆμον. οὐκέτι μέντοι λόγων ἐδέξην, ἀλλὰ τῆς ψήφου δοθείσης πάσαις ἀλόντες ἐπελεκίσθησαν.

- 4 Ὁ δὲ Κολλατῖνος ἦν μὲν, ὡς ἔοικεν, ἐν ὑποψία τινὶ καὶ διὰ συγγένειαν τῶν βασιλέων, ἤχθοντο δ' αὐτοῦ καὶ τῷ δευτέρῳ τῶν ὀνομάτων, ἀφοσιούμενοι τὸν Ταρκύνιον. ὡς δὲ καὶ ταῦτα συνέβη, παντάπασι προσκρούσας ἀφῆκε τὴν ἀρχὴν ἐκὼν καὶ τῆς πόλεως ὑπεξῆλθεν. οὕτω δὲ πάλιν ἀρχαιρεσιῶν γενομένων ὑπατος ἀπεδείχθη λαμπρῶς ὁ Οὐαλλέριος, ἀξίαν ἀπολαβὼν τῆς προ-
- 5 θυμίας χάριν· ἧς οἰόμενός τι δεῖν ἀπολαῦσαι τὸν Οὐινδίκιον ἐψηφίσατο πρῶτον ἀπελεύθερον ἐκείνον ἐν Ῥώμῃ γενέσθαι πολίτην καὶ φέρειν ψῆφον ἢ βούλοιτο φρατρία προσνεμηθέντα. τοῖς δ' ἄλλοις ἀπελευθέροις ὄψε καὶ μετὰ πολὺν χρόνον ἐξουσίαν ψήφου δημαγωγῶν ἔδωκεν Ἄππιος· ἡ δὲ παντελὴς ἀπελευθέρωσις ἄχρι νῦν οὐινδίκτα λέγεται δι' ἐκείνον, ὡς φασι, τὸν Οὐινδίκιον.

VIII. Ἐκ τούτου τὰ μὲν χρήματα τῶν βασιλέων διαρπάσαι τοῖς Ῥωμαίοις ἔδωκαν, τὴν δὲ friends stood forth in the man's defence, while the people shouted for Brutus to come. He turned back, therefore, and came, and when silence had been made for him, said that for his sons, he himself sufficed as judge, but he would leave the fate of the other traitors to the votes of the citizens, who were free, and any one who wished might speak and try to persuade the people. However, by this time there was no need of oratory, but a vote was taken which unanimously condemned the men, and they were beheaded.

PUBLICOLA

Collatinus, as it would seem, was already under some suspicion on account of his relationship to the royal family, and the second of his names also was hateful to the people, who loathed the sound of Tarquin. But after these recent events, he saw that he was altogether obnoxious, and therefore resigned his office and withdrew secretly from the city.¹ A new election was consequently held, and Valerius was triumphantly declared consul, thus receiving a worthy reward for his zeal. In this reward he thought that Vindicius ought to share, and therefore had a decree passed which made him, first of all freedmen, a citizen of Rome, and entitled him to vote with any curia in which he chose to be enrolled. Other freedmen received the right of suffrage in much later times from Appius,² who thus courted popularity. And from this Vindicius, as they say, a perfect manumission is to this day called "vindicta."³

VIII. After this, the property of the royal family was given to the Romans to plunder, and their house

¹ Cf. Livy, ii. 2, 3-10.

² Appius Claudius Caecus, censor in 312 B. C.

³ Cf. Livy, ii. 5, 10.

- οἰκίαν κατέσκαψαν καὶ τὴν ἔπαυλιν· τοῦ δ' Ἀρείου πεδίου τὸ ἡδίστον ἐκέκτητο Ταρκύνιος, καὶ τοῦτο τῷ θεῷ καθιέρωσάν. ἔτυχε δὲ τεθρισμένον ἄρτι, καὶ κειμένων ἔτι τῶν δραγμάτων οὐκ ᾤοντο δεῖν ἀλοᾶν οὐδὲ χρῆσθαι διὰ τὴν καθιέρωσιν, ἀλλὰ συνδραμόντες ἐφόρουν τὰς
- 2 ἀμάλλας εἰς τὸν ποταμόν. ὡς δ' αὐτως καὶ τὰ δένδρα κόπτοντες ἐνέβαλλον, ἀργὸν παντάπασιν τὸ χωρίον ἀνιέντες τῷ θεῷ καὶ ἄκαρπον. ὠθουμένων δὲ πολλῶν ἐπ' ἀλλήλοις καὶ ἀθρόων ὑπήγαγεν ὁ ῥοῦς οὐ πολὺν τόπον, ἀλλ' ὅπου τὰ πρῶτα συνενεχθέντα καὶ περιπεσόντα τοῖς στερεοῖς ὑπέστη, τῶν ἐπιφερομένων διέξοδον οὐκ ἐχόντων, ἀλλ' ἐνισχομένων καὶ περιπλεκομένων, ἐλάμβανεν ἢ σύμπηξις ἰσχὺν καὶ ῥίζωσιν αὐξανο- 101
- 3 μένην ὑπὸ τοῦ ρεύματος. ἰλὺν τε γὰρ ἐπήγαγε πολλήν, ἣ προσισταμένη τροφήν παρείχεν ἅμα καὶ κόλλησιν, αἷ τε πληγαὶ σάλου οὐκ ἐποίουν, ἀλλὰ μαλακῶς πιέζουσαι συνήλαυνον εἰς ταῦτο πάντα καὶ συνέπλαττον. ὑπὸ δὲ μεγέθους καὶ στάσεως ἕτερον αὐτὸ μέγεθος ἐκτάτο καὶ χώραν ἀναδεχομένην τὰ πλείστα τῶν ὑπὸ τοῦ ποταμοῦ καταφερομένων. τοῦτο νῦν νῆσός ἐστιν ἱερά κατὰ τὴν πόλιν, ἔχει δὲ ναοὺς θεῶν καὶ περιπάτους, καλεῖται δὲ φωνῇ τῇ Λατίνων Μέση δυοῖν γεφυρῶν.
- 4 Ἐνιοὶ δὲ τοῦτο συμπεσεῖν ἱστοροῦσιν οὐχ ὅτε Ταρκυνίου καθιερώθη τὸ πεδίου, ἀλλὰ χρόνοις ὕστερον ἄλλο χωρίον ὁμοροῦν ἐκείνῳ Ταρκυνίας and palace were razed to the ground. But the pleasantest part of the field of Mars, which had belonged to Tarquin, was dedicated to that god. Now it chanced that it had just been reaped, and the grain still lay upon the ground; but since the field had been consecrated, they thought it not right to thresh it or use it in any way. They therefore with one accord carried the sheaves to the river and cast them in. In like manner also they cast in the trees which had been cut, and left the place wholly untilled and barren for the god of war. The quantities of stuff thus heaped together were not borne along by the current very far, but the advanced portions stopped and accumulated at the shallows which they encountered. The portions that followed these could not get through them, but impinged upon them and blended inextricably with them, and the aggregation was made increasingly firm and fast by the action of the stream. For this brought along great quantities of mud, the addition of which increased the size and cohesion of the mass. And besides, the impacts of the current were not rude, but with a gentle pressure pushed and moulded everything together. Owing to its size and position the mass acquired fresh size, and an extent sufficient to receive most of what was brought down by the river. It is now a sacred island over against the city, containing temples of the gods and covered walks,¹ and is called in the Latin tongue "Inter duos pontes."

PUBLICOLA

Some, however, say that this did not happen when the field of Tarquin was consecrated, but in later times, when Tarquinia devoted another field adjacent

Cf. Livy, ii. 5, 1-4.

PLUTARCH'S LIVES

ανείσης. ἡ δὲ Ταρκυνία παρθένος ἦν ἱέρεια, μία τῶν Ἑστιάδων, ἔσχε δὲ τιμὰς ἀντὶ τούτου μεγάλας, ἐν αἷς ἦν καὶ τὸ μαρτυρίαν αὐτῆς δέχεσθαι μόνης γυναικῶν. τὸ δ' ἐξεῖναι γαμείσθαι ψηφισαμένων οὐ προσεδέξατο. καὶ ταῦτα μὲν οὕτω γενέσθαι μυθολογοῦσι.

IX. Ταρκύνιον δὲ τὴν ἐκ προδοσίας ἀπογνόντα τῆς ἀρχῆς ἀνάληψιν ἐδέξαντο Τυρρηνοὶ προθύμως καὶ μεγάλη δυνάμει κατήγγον. ἀντεξῆγγον δὲ τοὺς Ῥωμαίους οἱ ὑπατοὶ, καὶ παρέταξαν ἐν χωρίοις ἱεροῖς, ὧν τὸ μὲν Ἄρσιον¹ ἄλσος, τὸ δὲ Αἰσούειον λειμῶνα προσαγορεύουσιν. ἀρχομένων δὲ αὐτῶν συνάγειν εἰς χεῖρας Ἄρρων ὁ Ταρκυνίου παῖς καὶ Βροῦτος ὁ Ῥωμαίων ὑπάτος οὐ κατὰ τύχην ἀλλήλοις περιπεσόντες, ἀλλ' ὑπ' ἔχθους καὶ ὀργῆς, ὁ μὲν ὡς ἐπὶ τύραννον καὶ πολέμιον τῆς πατρίδος, ὁ δὲ τῆς φυγῆς ἀμυνόμενος, ὥρμησαν ὁμόσε τοῖς ἵπποις. θυμῷ δὲ μᾶλλον ἢ λογισμῷ προσμίξαντες ἠφείδησαν αὐτῶν καὶ συναπέθανον ἀλλήλοις. οὕτω δὲ δεινοῦ γενομένου τοῦ προάγωνος οὐκ ἔσχεν ὁ ἀγὼν τέλος ἐπιεικέστερον, ἀλλὰ καὶ δράσαντες ἴσα καὶ παθόντες οἱ στρατοὶ διεκρίθησαν ὑπὸ χειμῶνος.

3 Ἦν οὖν ἐν ἀπόροις ὁ Οὐαλλέριος, οὐκ εἰδὼς τὸ τῆς μάχης πέρασ, ἀλλὰ τοὺς στρατιώτας ὀρῶν τοῖς μὲν αὐτῶν νεκροῖς ἀθυμοῦντας, ἐπαιρομένους δὲ τοῖς τῶν πολεμίων· οὕτως ἄκριτος ἦν καὶ

¹ Ἄρσιον Amyot, Coraës, Bekker, after Livy's silva Arsia (ii. 7, 2) : Οὐρσον.

PUBLICOLA

to this. Now Tarquinia was a holy virgin, one of the Vestals, and received great honours for this act, among which was this, that of all women her testimony alone should be received. The people also voted her permission to marry, but she did not avail herself of it. This is how the thing happened, as the tale runs.

IX. But Tarquin, despairing of attempts to regain his throne by treachery, was eagerly welcomed by the Tuscans,¹ who set out to restore him with a great force. The consuls led the Romans out to meet them, and arrayed their forces in certain sacred precincts, one of which was called the Arsian grove, the other the Aesuvian meadow. When the engagement began, Aruns the son of Tarquin and Brutus the Roman consul encountered each other. It was not by chance, but both were driven on by hatred and wrath, the one to attack a tyrant and foe of his country, the other to avenge himself on the author of his exile. They urged their horses to the combat, but since they engaged with fury rather than calculation, they were reckless of themselves, and fell by one another's hands. The battle which had such a dreadful beginning, ended no less disastrously; the armies, after inflicting and suffering equal losses, were separated by a tempest.²

Valerius was therefore in perplexity, not knowing what the issue of the battle was, but seeing his soldiers as much disheartened by their own losses as they were encouraged by those of their enemies. So undistinguishable and equal was the slaughter on ¹ By the people of Veii and Tarquinii, according to Livy, ii. 6, 4f.

² According to Livy (ii. 7, 1), the Tuscans departed in terror after the battle.

PLUTARCH'S LIVES

παράλληλος ὑπὸ πλήθους ὁ φόνος. οὐ μὴν ἄλλ' ἐκατέροις ἐγγύθεν ὀρώμενα τὰ οἰκεῖα μᾶλλον ἐβεβαίου τὴν ἡτταν ἢ τὴν νίκην εἰκαζόμενα τὰ τῶν πολεμίων. ἐπελθούσης δὲ νυκτὸς οἶαν εἰκὸς οὕτω μεμαχημένοις, καὶ γενομένων ἐν ἡσυχίᾳ τῶν στρατοπέδων, λέγουσι σεισθῆναι τὸ ἄλσος, ἐκ δ' αὐτοῦ φωνὴν ἐκπεσεῖν μεγάλην φράζουσαν ὡς ἐνὶ πλείους ἐν τῇ μάχῃ τεθνήκασι Τυρρηνῶν ἢ Ῥωμαίων. ἦν δ' ἄρα θεῖόν τι τὸ φθεγξάμενον· εὐθύς τε γὰρ ὑπ' αὐτοῦ τοῖς μὲν ἀλαλάξαι παρέστη μέγα καὶ θαρραλέον, οἱ δὲ Τυρρηνοὶ περίφοβοι γενόμενοι καὶ συνταραχθέντες ἐξέπεσον ἐκ τοῦ στρατοπέδου καὶ διεσπάρησαν οἱ πλείστοι· τοὺς δὲ καταλειφθέντας ὀλίγῳ πεντακισχιλίων ἐλάσσους ἐπελθόντες εἶλον οἱ Ῥωμαῖοι, καὶ τὰλλα διήρπασαν. οἱ δὲ νεκροὶ διαριθμηθέντες εὐρέθησαν τριακόσιοι μὲν ἐπὶ χιλίοις καὶ μυρίοις οἱ τῶν πολεμίων, οἱ δὲ Ῥωμαίων παρ' ἓνα τοσοῦτοι.

Ταύτην τὴν μάχην λέγουσι γενέσθαι πρὸ μιᾶς καλανδῶν Μαρτίων. ἐθριάμβευσε δ' ἀπ' αὐτῆς Οὐαλλέριος εἰσελάσας τεθρίππῳ πρῶτος ὑπάτων. καὶ τὸ πρῶγμα σεμνὴν καὶ μεγαλοπρεπῆ παρέσχεν ὄψιν, οὐκ ἐπίφθονον οὐδ' ἀνιάσασαν, ὡς ἔνιοι λέγουσι, τοὺς ὀρώντας· οὐ γὰρ ἂν ἔσχε ζῆλον τοσοῦτον οὐδὲ φιλοτιμίαν εἰς ἔτη πάμπολλα διαμένουσαν. ἀπεδέξαντο δὲ τοῦ Οὐαλλερίου καὶ τὰς εἰς τὸν συνάρχοντα τιμάς, αἷς ἐκκομιζόμενον καὶ θαπτόμενον ἐκόσμησε· καὶ λόγον ἐπ' αὐτῷ διεξῆλθεν ἐπιτάφιον, ὃς οὕτως ὑπὸ Ῥωμαίων ἠγαπήθη καὶ τοσαύτην ἔσχε χάριν

PUBLICOLA

both sides. Each army, however, was more convinced of defeat by the near sight of its own dead, than it could be of victory by conjecturing those of the enemy. But when such a night came on as must needs follow such a battle, and both camps were quiet, they say that the grove was shaken, and a loud voice issued from it declaring that the Tuscans had lost one man more in the battle than the Romans. The utterance was manifestly from some god,¹ for at once the Romans were inspired by it to loud shouts of courage, while the Tuscans were panic-stricken, abandoned their camp in confusion, and were for the most part dispersed. As for those that remained, a little less than five thousand in number, the Romans fell upon them, took them prisoners, and plundered the camp. And when the dead on both sides were numbered, those of the enemy were found to be eleven thousand and three hundred, and those of the Romans as many less one.

It is said that this battle was fought on the last day of February. Valerius celebrated a triumph for it, being the first consul to drive into the city on a four-horse chariot. And the proceeding afforded a spectacle which was imposing and magnificent, not odious and offensive to the spectators, as some say; otherwise it would not have been continued with such ardour and emulation for countless years. The people were also pleased with the honours which Valerius bestowed upon his colleague at the funeral ceremonies. He even delivered a funeral oration in his honour, which was so admired by the Romans and won such favour that from that time on, when ὥστε πᾶσι τοῖς ἀγαθοῖς καὶ μεγάλοις ὑπάρχειν ἐξ ἐκείνου τελευτήσασιν ὑπὸ τῶν ἀρίστων ἐγκωμιάζεσθαι. λέγεται δὲ καὶ τῶν Ἑλληνικῶν ἐπιταφίων ἐκείνος γενέσθαι πρεσβύτερος, εἶγε μὴ καὶ τοῦτο Σόλωνός ἐστιν, ὡς Ἀναξιμένης ὁ ῥήτωρ ιστόρηκεν.

¹ Silvanus, as Livy tells the tale (ii. 7, 2).

PLUTARCH'S LIVES

Χ. Ἀλλὰ δι' ἐκείνα μᾶλλον ἤχθοντο τῷ Οὐαλλερίῳ καὶ προσέκρουον, ὅτι Βροῦτος μὲν, ὃν πατέρα τῆς ἐλευθερίας ἐνόμιζεν ὁ δῆμος, οὐκ ἠξίωσε μόνος ἄρχειν, ἀλλὰ καὶ πρῶτον αὐτῷ συνάρχοντα προσείλετο καὶ δεύτερον· “Οὔτοσὶ δ’,” ἔφασαν, “εἰς αὐτὸν ἅπαντα συνενεγκάμενος οὐκ ἔστι τῆς Βρούτου κληρονόμος ὑπατείας μηδὲν αὐτῷ προσηκούσης, ἀλλὰ τῆς Ταρκυνίου τυραννίδος. καίτοι τί δεῖ λόγῳ μὲν Βρούτον ἐγκωμιάζειν, ἔργῳ δὲ μιμῆσθαι Ταρκύνιον, ὑπὸ ῥάβδοις ὁμοῦ πάσαις καὶ πελέκεσι κατιόντα μόνον ἐξ οἰκίας τοσαύτης τὸ μέγεθος ὅσῃν οὐ καθεῖλε τὴν τοῦ βασιλέως;” καὶ γὰρ ὄντως ὁ Οὐαλλέριος ᾧκει τραγικώτερον ὑπὲρ τὴν καλουμένην Οὐελίαν οἰκίαν ἐπικρεμαμένην τῇ ἀγορᾷ καὶ καθορῶσαν ἐξ ὕψους ἅπαντα, δυσπρόσοδον δὲ πελάσαι καὶ χαλεπὴν ἔξωθεν, ὥστε καταβαίνοντος αὐτοῦ τὸ σχῆμα μετέωρον εἶναι καὶ βασιλικὸν τῆς προπομπῆς τὸν ὄγκον. ὅσον οὖν ἐν ἀρχῇ καὶ πράγμασι μεγάλοις ἀγαθὸν ἦν ἔχειν ὡτα παρρησίαν ἀντὶ κολακείας προσιέμενα καὶ λόγους ἀληθεῖς, ἔδειξεν. ἀκούσας γὰρ ὅτι τοῖς πολλοῖς ἀμαρτάνειν ἐδόκει τῶν φίλων διεξιόντων, οὐκ ἐφιλονέκησεν, οὐδ’ ἠγανάκτησεν, ἀλλὰ τάχῃ πολλοὺς their great and good men died, encomiums were pronounced upon them by the most distinguished citizens. And this funeral oration of his is said to have been earlier than any among the Greeks, unless Anaximenes the orator is right in saying that the custom originated with Solon.

PUBLICOLA

X. But that which the rather displeased and offended the people in Valerius was this. Brutus, whom they regarded as the father of their liberties, would not consent to rule alone, but once and again chose a colleague to rule with him. "But this Valerius," they said, "in concentrating all power upon himself, is not a successor to the consulate of Brutus, to which he has no right, but to the tyranny of Tarquin. Yet why should he extol Brutus in words, while in deeds he imitates Tarquin, descending to the forum alone, escorted by all the rods and axes together, from a house no less stately than the royal house which he demolished?" For, as a matter of fact, Valerius was living in a very splendid house on the so-called Velia.¹ It hung high over the forum, commanded a view of all that passed there, and was surrounded by steeps and hard to get at, so that when he came down from it the spectacle was a lofty one, and the pomp of his procession worthy of a king. Accordingly, Valerius showed what a good thing it is for men in power and high station to have ears which are open to frankness and truth instead of flattery. For when he heard from his friends, who spared him no detail, that he was thought by the multitude to be transgressing, he was not obstinate nor exasperated, but quickly got together a large force of workmen, and while it

¹ An eminence of the Palatine hill.

PLUTARCH'S LIVES

- συναγαγὼν τεχνίτας ἔτι νυκτὸς οὔσης κατέβαλε
 τὴν οἰκίαν καὶ κατέσκαψεν εἰς ἔδαφος πᾶσαν,
 4 ὥστε μεθ' ἡμέραν τοὺς Ῥωμαίους ὀρώντας καὶ
 συνισταμένους τοῦ μὲν ἀνδρὸς ἀγαπᾶν καὶ θαυμάζειν τὴν μεγαλοφροσύνην, ἄχθεσθαι δὲ τῆς
 οἰκίας καὶ ποθεῖν τὸ μέγεθος καὶ τὸ κάλλος,
 ὥσπερ ἀνθρώπου, διὰ φθόνον οὐ δικαίως καταλελυμένης, τοῦ δὲ ἄρχοντος, ὥσπερ ἀνεστίου,
 παρ' ἑτέροις οἰκοῦντος. ἐδέχοντο γὰρ οἱ φίλοι
 τὸν Οὐαλλέριον ἄχρι οὗ τόπον ἔδωκεν ὁ δῆμος
 αὐτῷ καὶ κατεσκεύασεν οἰκίαν ἐκείνης μετριωτέραν, ὅπου νῦν ἱερόν ἐστιν Οὐίκας πότας ὀνομαζόμενον.
- 5 Βουλόμενος δὲ μὴ μόνον ἑαυτὸν, ἀλλὰ καὶ τὴν
 ἀρχὴν ἀντὶ φοβερᾶς χειροῆθη καὶ προσφιλή
 ποιεῖν τοῖς πολλοῖς, τοὺς τε πελέκεις ἀπέλυσε
 τῶν ῥάβδων, αὐτάς τε τὰς ῥάβδους εἰς ἐκκλησίαν
 παριῶν ὑφῆκε τῷ δήμῳ καὶ κατέκλινε, μέγα
 ποιῶν τὸ πρόσχημα τῆς δημοκρατίας. καὶ τοῦτο
- 6 μέχρι νῦν διαφυλάττουσιν οἱ ἄρχοντες. ἐλάνθανε
 δὲ τοὺς πολλοὺς οὐχ ἑαυτὸν, ὡς φῶντο, ποιῶν
 ταπεινόν, ἀλλὰ τὸν φθόνον τῇ μετριότητι ταύτῃ
 καθαιρῶν καὶ κολούων, αὐτῷ δὲ προστιθεὶς τοσοῦτον μέγεθος δυνάμεως ὅσον ἀφαιρεῖν ἐδόκει
 τῆς ἐξουσίας, ὑποδουμένου μεθ' ἡδονῆς αὐτῷ τοῦ

PUBLICOLA

was still night tore the house down, and razed it all to the ground. In the morning, therefore, the Romans saw what had happened, and came flocking together. They were moved to love and admiration by the man's magnanimity, but were distressed for the house, and mourned for its stately beauty, as if it had been human, now that envy had unjustly compassed its destruction. They were also distressed for their ruler, who, like a homeless man, was now sharing the homes of others. For Valerius was received into the houses of his friends until the people gave him a site and built him a house, of more modest dimensions than the one he had lived in before, where now stands the temple of Vica Pota,¹ so-called.

Wishing now to make not only himself but also the government, instead of formidable, submissive and agreeable to the multitude, he removed the axes from the lictors' rods, and when he came into the assembly, inclined and lowered the rods themselves to the people, emphasizing the majesty of the democracy. This custom the consuls observe to this day. And before the multitude were aware of it, he had succeeded, not by humbling himself, as they thought, but by checking and removing their envious feelings through such moderation on his part, in adding to his real influence over them just as much as he had seemed to take away from his authority, and the people submitted to him with pleasure and bore his δήμον καὶ φέροντος ἔκουσίως. ὥστε καὶ Ποπλικόλαν ἀνηγόρευσεν αὐτόν· σημαίνει δὲ τοῦνομα δημοκηδῆ· καὶ τοῦτο μᾶλλον ἴσχυσε τῶν ἀρχαίων ὀνομάτων, ᾧ καὶ ἡμεῖς χρῆσόμεθα τὸν λοιπὸν βίον τοῦ ἀνδρὸς ἱστοροῦντες.

¹ Victress Possessor, a name of the goddess of victory, whose temple was at the foot of the Velia (Livy, ii. 7, 12). According to Livy, Valerius was building the house on the Velia, but in order to allay the people's jealousy, brought the materials to the foot of the hill, and built the house there.

XI. Ὑπατεῖαν μὲν γὰρ ἔδωκε μετιέναι καὶ παραγγέλλειν τοῖς βουλομένοις· πρὸ δὲ τῆς καταστάσεως τοῦ συνάρχοντος οὐκ εἰδὼς τὸν γενησόμενον, ἀλλὰ δεδιὼς ἀντίπραξιν ὑπὸ φθόνου τινὸς ἢ ἀγνοίας, ἐχρήσατο τῇ μοναρχίᾳ πρὸς τὰ κάλλιστα καὶ μέγιστα τῶν πολιτευμάτων. πρῶτον μὲν γὰρ ἀνεπλήρωσε τὴν βουλὴν ὀλιγανδρούσαν· ἐτεθνήκεσαν γὰρ οἱ μὲν ὑπὸ Ταρ-
 2 κυνίου πρότερον, οἱ δὲ ἔναγχος ἐν τῇ μάχῃ. τοὺς δ' ἐγγραφέντας ὑπ' αὐτοῦ λέγουσιν ἑκατὸν καὶ ἐξήκοντα τέσσαρας γενέσθαι. μετὰ δὲ ταῦτα νόμους ἔγραψεν, ὧν μάλιστα μὲν ἰσχυροὺς ἐποίησε τοὺς πολλοὺς ὁ τὸν δῆμον ἀπὸ τῶν ὑπάτων τῷ φεύγοντι δίκην ἐπικαλεῖσθαι διδούς· δεύτερος ὁ 104
 3 ἀποθνήσκειν κελεύων· τρίτος δὲ μετὰ τούτους, ὃς ἐβοήθησε τοῖς πένησιν, ᾧ τὰ τέλη τῶν πολιτῶν ἀφείλε καὶ προθυμότερον ἀπτεσθαι τῶν ἐργασιῶν ἐποίησεν ἅπαντας. ὁ δὲ γραφεὶς κατὰ τῶν ἀπειθούντων τοῖς ὑπάτοις οὐχ ἦττον ἔδοξε δημο-
 4 βῶν πέντε καὶ δυεῖν προβάτων ἀξίαν. ἦν δὲ τιμὴ προβάτου μὲν ὀβολοὶ δέκα, βοῶς δὲ ἑκατόν, οὐπω νομίσματι χρωμένων πολλῷ τότε Ῥωμαίων, yoke willingly. They therefore called him Publicola,¹ a name which signifies people-cherisher. This name prevailed over the older names which he had borne, and it is the name which I shall use for him in the remainder of this Life.

PUBLICOLA

XI. For he permitted any who wished to enter the lists and sue for the consulship. But before the installation of his colleague, not knowing who he would be, but fearing an opposition due to some jealousy or ignorance, he used his sole authority for the enactment of his best and most important measures. In the first place, he filled up the senate, which was much reduced in numbers; for some had long before been put to death by Tarquin, and others had recently fallen in the battle with the Tuscans. Those who were enrolled in this body by him amounted, they say, to a hundred and sixty-four. After this he enacted several laws, one of which especially strengthened the position of the commons by allowing a defendant to appeal to the people from the judgement of the consuls. A second made it a capital offence to assume a magistracy which the people had not bestowed. A third, following these, came to the relief of the poor; it lifted the taxes from the citizens, so that all engaged more zealously in manufactures and commerce. And the one which was enacted against disobedience to the consuls was thought to be no less popular in its character, and to be in the interest of the many rather than of the powerful. For the fine which it imposed on disobedience was only the worth of five oxen and two sheep. Now the value of a sheep was ten obols, and that of an ox, a hundred, for the Romans at

¹ Cf. Livy, ii. 8, 1.

ἀλλὰ προβατείαις καὶ κτηνοτροφίαις εὐθηνούντων. διὸ καὶ τὰς οὐσίας ἄχρι νῦν ἀπὸ τῶν προβάτων πεκούλια καλοῦσι, καὶ τῶν νομισμάτων τοῖς παλαιοτάτοις βουῖν ἐπεχάραττον ἢ πρόβατον ἢ σὺν. ἐτίθεντο δὲ καὶ παισὶν αὐτῶν Συλλλους καὶ Βουβούλκους καὶ Καπράριους ὀνόματα καὶ Πορκίους· κάπρας μὲν τὰς αἰγας, πόρκους δὲ τοὺς χοίρους ὀνομάζοντες.

XII. Οὕτω δὲ περὶ ταῦτα δημοτικὸς γενόμενος νομοθέτης καὶ μέτριος, ἐν τῷ μὴ μετρίῳ¹ τὴν τιμωρίαν ὑπερέτεινε. ἔγραψε γὰρ νόμον ἄνευ κρίσεως κτεῖναι διδόντα τὸν βουλόμενον τυραννεῖν· κτείναντα δὲ φόνου καθαρὸν ἐποίησεν, εἰ παράσχοιτο τοῦ ἀδικήματος τοὺς ἐλέγχους. ἐπεὶ γὰρ οὐ δυνατὸν ἐπιχειροῦντα τηλικούτοις λαθεῖν ἅπαντας, οὐκ ἀδύνατον δὲ τὸ μὴ λαθόντα τοῦ κριθῆναι φθάσαι κρείττονα γενόμενον, ἦν ἀναιρεῖ τὸ ἀδίκημα κρίσιν, προλαβεῖν ἔδωκε τῷ δυναμένῳ κατὰ τοῦ ἀδικούντος.

- 2 Ἐπηνέθη δὲ καὶ διὰ τὸν ταμειυτικὸν νόμον. ἐπεὶ γὰρ ἔδει χρήματα πρὸς τὸν πόλεμον εἰσενεγκεῖν ἀπὸ τῶν οὐσιῶν τοὺς πολίτας, οὐτ' αὐτὸς ἄψασθαι τῆς οἰκονομίας οὔτε τοὺς φίλους ἐᾶσαι βουλόμενος οὔθ' ὄλως εἰς οἶκον ἰδιώτου παρελθεῖν δημόσια χρήματα, ταμειῖον μὲν ἀπέδειξε τὸν τοῦ Κρόνου ναόν, ᾧ μέχρι νῦν χρώμενοι διατελοῦσι, ταμίας δὲ τῷ δήμῳ δύο τῶν νέων ἔδωκεν ἀπο-
- 3 δεῖξαι· καὶ ἀπεδείχθησαν οἱ πρῶτοι Πούπλιος

¹ ἐν τῷ μὴ μετρίῳ with Coraës : ἐν τῷ μετρίῳ.

PUBLICOLA

that time did not use much coined money, but their wealth consisted in flocks and herds. Therefore to this day they call their substance "peculium," from "pecus," cattle; and their oldest coins are stamped with the figure of an ox, a sheep, or a hog. And they actually gave their own sons such surnames as Suillius, Bubulcus, Caprarius, and Porcius; the last two from "capra" and "porcus," their words for goat and pig.¹

XII. But although in these particulars he showed himself a popular and moderate lawgiver, in the case of an immoderate offence he made the penalty severe. For he enacted a law by which any one who sought to make himself tyrant might be slain without trial, and the slayer should be free from blood-guiltiness if he produced proofs of the crime. For although it is impossible for one who attempts so great a task to escape all notice, it is not impossible for him to do so long enough to make himself too powerful to be brought to trial, which trial his very crime precludes. He therefore gave any one who was able to do so the privilege of anticipating the culprit's trial.

He also received praise for his law concerning the public treasury. When it was necessary for the citizens to contribute from their substance means for carrying on the war, he was unwilling to assume the administration of it himself, or to allow his friends to do so, or, indeed, to have the public moneys brought into any private house. He therefore made the temple of Saturn a treasury, as it is to this day, and gave the people the privilege of appointing two young men as quaestors, or treasurers. The first to ¹ The first two from forms of "sus," swine, and "bos," ox.

Οὐετούριος καὶ Μινούκιος Μάρκος καὶ χρήματα
 συνήχθη πολλά. τρισκαίδεκα γὰρ ἀπεγράψαντο
 μυριάδες, ὀρφανοῖς παισὶ καὶ χήραις γυναιξὶν
 ἀνεθείσης τῆς εἰσφορᾶς.

- 4 Ταῦτα δὲ διοικήσας ἀπέδειξεν ἑαυτῷ συνάρ-χοντα τὸν Λουκρητίας πατέρα Λουκρήτιον, ᾧ τῆς
 ἡγεμονικωτέρας ἐξιστάμενος ὄντι πρεσβυτέρῳ
 τάξεως παρέδωκε τοὺς καλουμένους φάσκης· καὶ
 τοῦτο διέμεινεν εἰς ἡμᾶς τὸ πρεσβείον ἀπ' ἐκείνου
 τοῖς γεραιτέροις φυλαττόμενον. ἐπεὶ δ' ὀλίγαις
 ἡμέραις ὕστερον ἐτελεύτησεν ὁ Λουκρήτιος, πάλιν
 ἀρχαιρεσιῶν γενομένων ἠρέθη Μάρκος Ὀράτιος, καὶ συνῆρχε τῷ Ποπλικόλα τὸν ὑπολειπόμενον
 χρόνον τοῦ ἐνιαυτοῦ.

- XIII. Ταρκυνίου δὲ Ῥωμαίοις δεύτερον πόλεμον
 ἐν Τυρρηνίᾳ κινούντος μέγα σημεῖον λέγεται
 γενέσθαι· βασιλεύων γὰρ ἔτι καὶ τὸν νεῶν τοῦ Καπιτωλίου Διὸς ἔχων ὁ Ταρκύνιος ὅσον οὐπω συντετελεσμένον, εἴτε μαντείας γενομένης εἴτ' αὐτῷ δόξαν ἄλλως, ἄρμα κατὰ κορυφὴν ἐπιστήσαι
 κεραμεοῦν ἐξέδωκε Τυρρηνοῖς τισιν ἐξ Οὐητῶν
 δημιουργοῖς, εἴτ' ὀλίγον ὕστερον ἐξέπεσε τῆς
 2 ἀρχῆς. τῶν δὲ Τυρρηνῶν διαπεπλασμένον τὸ
 τέθριππον ἐμβαλόντων εἰς κάμινον, οὐκ ἔπαθεν
 ἂ προσήκει πάσχειν πηλὸν ἐν πυρί, πυκνοῦσθαι καὶ συνιζάνειν, ἐκτηκομένης τῆς ὑγρότητος, ἀλλ'
 ἐξέστη καὶ ᾤδησε καὶ μέγεθος ἔσχεν ἅμα ῥώμη
 καὶ σκληρότητι τοσοῦτον ὥστε μόλις ἐξαιρεθῆναι
 τὴν ὀροφὴν ἀποσκευασαμένων τῆς καμίνου καὶ
 3 τῶν τοίχων περιαιρεθέντων. ὥς οὖν ἐδόκει τοῖς μάντεσι θεῖον εἶναι σημεῖον εὐτυχίας καὶ δυνάμεως παρ' οἷς ἔσοιτο τὸ τέθριππον, ἔγνωσαν οἱ

PUBLICOLA

be thus appointed were Publius Veturius and Marcus Minucius, and large sums of money were collected. For one hundred and thirty thousand names were on the assessment lists, orphans and widows being excused from the contribution.¹

This matter regulated, he caused Lucretius, the father of Lucretia, to be appointed his colleague in the consulship.² To him he yielded the precedence, as the elder man, and committed to him the so-called "fasces," a privilege of seniority which has continued from that day to this. But Lucretius died a few days afterwards, and in a new election Marcus Horatius was chosen consul, and shared the office with Publicola for the remainder of the year.

XIII. While Tarquin was stirring up in Tuscany another war against the Romans, a thing of great portent is said to have happened. When Tarquin was still king, and had all but completed the temple of Jupiter Capitolinus, either in consequence of an oracle, or else of his own good pleasure, he commissioned certain Tuscan craftsmen of Veii to place upon its roof a chariot of terra cotta. Soon after this he was driven from his throne. The Tuscans, however, modelled the chariot and put it in a furnace for firing, but the clay did not contract and shrink in the fire, as it usually does, when its moisture evaporates. Instead of this, it expanded and swelled and took on such size, strength, and hardness, that it could with difficulty be removed, even after the roof of the furnace had been taken off and its sides torn away. To the seers, accordingly, this seemed a divine portent of prosperity and power for those who should possess the chariot, and the

¹ Cf. Camillus, ii. 2. ² Cf. Livy, ii. 8, 1-4.

Οὐήϊοι μὴ προέσθαι τοῖς Ῥωμαίοις ἀπαιτούσι, καὶ ἀπεκρίναντο τοῦτο Ταρκύνιοις, οὐ τοῖς Ταρκυνίοις ἐκβαλοῦσι προσήκειν. ὀλίγαις δ' ὕστερον 104 ἡμέραις ἦσαν ἵππων ἀγῶνες αὐτοῖς. καὶ τὰ μὲν ἄλλα θέαν καὶ σπουδὴν εἰωθυῖαν παρεῖχε, τὸ δὲ νικῆσαν τέθριππον ὁ μὲν ἠνίοχος ἐξήλαυνε τοῦ
 4 ἵπποδρόμου σχέδην ἐστεφανωμένος, οἱ δὲ ἵπποι πτοηθέντες ἀπ' οὐδεμιᾶς ἐμφανοῦς προφάσεως, ἀλλὰ κατὰ τι δαιμόνιον ἢ τύχην ἴεντο παντὶ τάχει πρὸς τὴν Ῥωμαίων πόλιν, ἔχοντες τὸν ἠνίοχον, ὡς οὐδὲν ἦν ἔργον αὐτοῦ κατατείνοντος οὐδὲ παρηγοροῦντος, ἀλλ' ἤρπαστο, δόντα τῇ ρύμῃ καὶ φερόμενον, ἄχρι οὐ τῷ Καπιτωλίῳ προσμίξαντες ἐξέβαλον αὐτὸν ἐνταῦθα παρὰ τὴν πύλιν ἣν νῦν Ῥατουμέναν καλοῦσι. γενομένου δὲ τούτου θαυμάσαντες οἱ Οὐήϊοι καὶ φοβηθέντες ἐπέτρεψαν ἀποδοῦναι τὸ ἄρμα τοῖς τεχνίταις.

XIV. Τὸν δὲ νεὼν τοῦ Καπιτωλίου Διὸς εὐξάτο μὲν ἀναθήσειν Ταρκύνιος ὁ Δημαράτου πολεμῶν Σαβίνοις, ὠκοδόμησε δὲ Ταρκύνιος ὁ Σούπερβος υἱὸς ὧν ἢ υἱωνὸς τοῦ εὐξαμένου καθιερῶσαι δὲ οὐκ ἔφθασεν, ἀλλὰ μικρὸν ἀπελείπετο τοῦ τέλους ἔχειν ὅτε Ταρκύνιος ἐξέπιπτεν. ὡς οὖν ἀπείργαστο τελέως καὶ τὸν προσήκοντα κόσμον ἀπέειχεν, ἦν τῷ Ποπλικόλῳ φιλοτιμία
 2 πρὸς τὴν καθιέρωσιν. ἐφθόνουν δὲ πολλοὶ τῶν δυνατῶν, καὶ ἤχθοντο ταῖς μὲν ἄλλαις τιμαῖς ἦττον, ἃς νομοθετῶν καὶ στρατηγῶν ἐκ προσηκόντων ἔσχε· ταύτην δ' οὐσαν ἀλλοτρίαν οὐκ ᾔφοντο δεῖν αὐτῷ προσγενέσθαι, καὶ τὸν Ὀράτιον

PUBLICOLA

people of Veii determined not to give it up. When the Romans asked for it, they were told that it belonged to the Tarquins, not to those who had expelled the Tarquins. But a few days afterwards there were chariot races at Veii. Here the usual exciting spectacles were witnessed, but when the charioteer, with his garland on his head, was quietly driving his victorious chariot out of the race-course, his horses took a sudden fright, upon no apparent occasion, but either by some divine ordering or by merest chance, and dashed off at the top of their speed towards Rome, charioteer and all. It was of no use for him to rein them in or try to calm them with his voice; he was whirled helplessly along until they reached the Capitol and threw him out there, at the gate now called Ratumena. The Veientes were amazed and terrified at this occurrence, and permitted the workmen to deliver their chariot.

XIV. The temple of Jupiter Capitolinus had been vowed by Tarquin, the son of Demaratus, when he was at war with the Sabines, but it was actually built by Tarquinius Superbus, the son, or grandson, of him who vowed it. He did not, however, get so far as to consecrate it, but was driven out before it was quite completed. Accordingly, now that it was completely finished and had received all the ornaments that belonged to it, Publicola was ambitious to consecrate it. But this excited the jealousy of many of the nobility. They could better brook his other honours, to which, as legislator and military commander, he had a rightful claim. But this one they thought he ought not to have, since it was more appropriate for others, and therefore they

PLUTARCH'S LIVES

προετρέποντο καὶ παρώξυνον ἀντιποιεῖσθαι τῆς καθιερώσεως. γενομένης οὖν τῷ Ποπλικόλα στρατείας ἀναγκαίας, ψηφισάμενοι τὸν Ὀράτιον καθιεροῦν ἀνήγον εἰς τὸ Καπιτώλιον, ὡς οὐκ
 3 ἂν ἐκείνου περιγεγόμενοι παρόντος. ἔνιοι δὲ φασὶ κλήρῳ τῶν ὑπάτων λαχεῖν ἐκείνου ἐπὶ τὴν στρατείαν ἄκοντα, τοῦτον δὲ ἐπὶ τὴν καθιέρωσιν. ἔξεστι δὲ περὶ τούτων ὡς ἔσχεν εἰκάξειν τοῖς πραχθεῖσι περὶ τὴν καθιέρωσιν. εἰδοῖς οὖν Σεπτεμβρίαις, ὃ συντυγχάνει περὶ τὴν πανσέληνον μάλιστα τοῦ Μεταγεινιῶνος, συνηθροισμένων ἀπάντων εἰς τὸ Καπιτώλιον, ὃ μὲν
 4 Ὀράτιος σιωπῆς γενομένης τά τ' ἄλλα δράσας καὶ τῶν θυρῶν ἀψάμενος, ὥσπερ ἔθος ἐστίν, ἐπεφθέγγετο τὰς νενομισμένας ἐπὶ τῇ καθιερώσει φωνάς· ὃ δ' ἀδελφὸς τοῦ Ποπλικόλα Μάρκος ἐκ πολλοῦ παρὰ τὰς θύρας ὑφεστῶς καὶ παραφυλάττων τὸν καιρὸν, “ὦ ὑπάτε,” εἶπεν, “ὁ υἱὸς
 5 σου τέθνηκεν ἐν τῷ στρατοπέδῳ νοσήσας.” τοῦτο πάντας ἠνίασε τοὺς ἀκούσαντας· ὃ δ' Ὀράτιος οὐδὲν διαταραχθεὶς, ἀλλ' ἢ τοσοῦτον μόνον εἰπὼν, “Ῥίψατε τοῖνον ὅποι βούλεσθε τὸν νεκρὸν, ἐγὼ γὰρ οὐ προσίεμαι τὸ πένθος,” ἐπέραινε τὴν λοιπὴν καθιέρωσιν. ἦν δὲ τὸ προσηγγελλόμενον οὐκ ἀληθές, ἀλλ' ὃ Μάρκος ὡς ἀποστήσων τὸν Ὀράτιον ἐψεύσατο. θαυμαστὸς οὖν ὁ ἀνὴρ τῆς εὐσταθείας, εἴτε τὴν ἀπάτην ἐν καιρῷ βραχεῖ συνεῖδεν εἴτε πιστευθεὶς ὁ λόγος οὐκ ἐκίνησεν αὐτόν.

XV. Ἔοικε δὲ καὶ περὶ τὸν δεύτερον ναὸν

PUBLICOLA

encouraged and incited Horatius to claim the privilege of consecrating the temple. At a time, then, when Publicola was necessarily absent on military service, they got a vote passed that Horatius should perform the consecration, and conducted him up to the Capitol, feeling that they could not have gained their point had Publicola been in the city. Some, however, say that Publicola was designated by lot, against his inclination, for the expedition, and Horatius for the consecration.¹ And it is possible to infer how the matter stood between them from what happened at the consecration. It was the Ides of September, a day which nearly coincides with the full moon of the Attic month Metageitnion ; the people were all assembled on the Capitol, silence had been proclaimed, and Horatius, after performing the other ceremonies and laying hold upon the door of the temple, as the custom is, was pronouncing the usual words of consecration. But just then Marcus, the brother of Publicola, who had long been standing by the door and was watching his opportunity, said : "O Consul, thy son lies dead of sickness in the camp." This distressed all who heard it ; But Horatius, not at all disturbed, merely said : "Cast forth the dead then whither ye please, for I take no mourning upon me," and finished his consecration. Now the announcement was not true, but Marcus thought by his falsehood to deter Horatius from his duty. Wonderful, therefore, was the firm poise of the man, whether he at once saw through the deceit, or believed the story without letting it overcome him.¹

XV. A similar fortune seems to have attended the

¹ Cf. Livy, ii. 8, 6-8.

PLUTARCH'S LIVES

- ὁμοία τύχη γενέσθαι τῆς καθιερώσεως. τὸν μὲν γὰρ πρῶτον, ὡς εἴρηται, Ταρκυνίου κατασκευάσαντος, Ὠρατίου δὲ καθιερώσαντος, ἐν τοῖς ἐμφυλίοις πολέμοις πῦρ ἀπώλεσε· τὸν δὲ δεύτερον ἀνέστησε μὲν Σύλλας, ἐπεγράφη δὲ τῇ καθιερώσει Κάτουλος Σύλλα προαποθανόντος.
- 2 τούτου δὲ πάλιν ἐν ταῖς κατὰ Οὐιτέλλιον στάσεσι διαφθαρέντος τὸν τρίτον τῇ πρὸς τὰλλα καὶ τοῦτο χρησάμενος εὐποτμία Οὐεσπεσιανὸς ἐξ ἀρχῆς ἄχρι τέλους ἀναγαγών, ἐπεῖδε γενόμενον καὶ φθειρόμενον μετ' ὀλίγον οὐκ ἐπέιδεν, ἀλλὰ τοσοῦτον εὐτυχία Σύλλαν παρήλθεν ὅσον ἐκείνου μὲν τῆς ἀφιερώσεως τοῦ ἔργου, τοῦτον δὲ τῆς ἀναιρέσεως προαποθανεῖν. ἅμα γὰρ τῷ τελευτήσαι Οὐεσπεσιανὸν ἐνεπρήσθη τὸ Καπιτώλιον.
- 3 Ὁ δὲ τέταρτος οὗτος ὑπὸ Δομετιανοῦ καὶ 105
 συνετελέσθη καὶ καθιερώθη. λέγεται δὲ Ταρκύνιον εἰς τοὺς θεμελίους ἀναλῶσαι λίτρας ἀργυρίου τετρακισμυρίας· τούτου δὲ τοῦ καθ' ἡμᾶς τὸν μέγιστον ἐν Ῥώμῃ τῶν ἰδιωτικῶν πλοῦτον ἐκλογισθέντα τὸ τῆς χρυσώσεως μὴ τελέσαι ἀν' ἀνάλωμα, πλέον ἢ δισχιλίων καὶ μυρίων τάλαντων γενόμενον.
- 4 οἱ δὲ κίονες ἐκ τοῦ Πεντελῆσιν ἐτμήθησαν λίθου, κάλλιστα τῷ πάχει πρὸς τὸ μῆκος ἔχοντες· εἶδομεν γὰρ αὐτοὺς Ἀθηνησιν. ἐν δὲ Ῥώμῃ πληγέντες αὐθις καὶ ἀναξυσθέντες οὐ τοσοῦτον ἔσχον γλαφυρίας ὅσον ἀπώλεσαν συμμετρίας καὶ¹ τοῦ καλοῦ, διάκενοι

¹ καὶ supplied by Bekker. after G. Hermann: συμμετρίας τοῦ καλοῦ (the symmetry of their beauty).

PUBLICOLA

dedication of the second temple. The first, as I have said, was built by Tarquin, but consecrated by Horatius; this was destroyed by fire during the civil wars.¹ The second temple was built by Sulla, but Catulus was commissioned to consecrate it,² after the death of Sulla. This temple, too was destroyed, during the troublous times of Vitellius,³ and Vespasian began and completely finished the third, with the good fortune that attended him in all his undertakings. He lived to see it completed, and did not live to see it destroyed, as it was soon after; and in dying before his work was destroyed he was just so much more fortunate than Sulla, who died before his was consecrated. For upon the death of Vespasian the Capitol was burned.⁴

The fourth temple, which is now standing on the same site as the others, was both completed and consecrated by Domitian. It is said that Tarquin expended upon its foundations forty thousand pounds of silver. But the greatest wealth now attributed to any private citizen of Rome would not pay the cost of the gilding alone of the present temple, which was more than twelve thousand talents.⁵ Its pillars are of Pentelic marble,⁶ and their thickness was once most happily proportioned to their length; for we saw them at Athens. But when they were recut and scraped at Rome, they did not gain as much in polish as they lost in symmetry and beauty,

¹ 83 B.C.

² 69 B.C.

³ 69 A.D.

⁴ 80 A.D.

⁵ For purposes of comparison a talent may be reckoned as worth £250, or $1200.

⁶ Pentelé was an Attic deme on the N.E. edge of the Athenian plain, near which excellent marble was quarried from the mountain. This was called Brilessus in earlier times than Pentelicus.

5 καὶ λαγαροὶ φανέντες. ὁ μέντοι θαυμάσας τοῦ Καπιτωλίου τὴν πολυτέλειαν, εἰ μίαν εἶδεν ἐν οἰκίᾳ Δομετιανοῦ στοὰν ἢ βασιλικὴν ἢ βαλανεῖον ἢ παλλακίδων δίαιταν, οἷόν ἐστι τὸ λεγόμενον Ἐπιχάρμου πρὸς τὸν ἄστων,

Οὐ φιλόανθρωπος τύ γ' ἐστ'. ἔχεις νόσον·
χαίρεις διδούς,

τοιούτου ἂν τι πρὸς Δομετιανὸν εἰπεῖν προήχθη·
“Οὐκ εὐσεβὴς οὐδὲ φιλότιμος τύ γ' ἐσσί· ἔχεις νόσον· χαίρεις κατοικοδομῶν, ὥσπερ ὁ Μίδας ἐκείνος, ἅπαντά σοι χρυσᾶ καὶ λίθινα βουλόμενος γίνεσθαι.” ταῦτα μὲν οὖν περὶ τούτων.

XVI. Ὁ δὲ Ταρκύνιος μετὰ τὴν μεγάλην μάχην ἐν ἣ καὶ τὸν υἱὸν ἀπώλεσε μονομαχήσαντα Βρούτῳ, καταφυγὼν εἰς τὸ Κλούσιον ἰκέτευσε Λάραν Πορσίναν, ἄνδρα καὶ δύναμιν μεγίστην ἔχοντα τῶν Ἰταλικῶν βασιλέων καὶ δοκοῦντα χρηστὸν εἶναι καὶ φιλότιμον· ὁ δ' ὑπέσχετο βοηθήσειν. καὶ πρῶτον μὲν ἔπεμψεν εἰς Ῥώμην κελεύων δέχεσθαι τὸν Ταρκύνιον· ὡς δ' οὐχ ὑπήκουσαν οἱ Ῥωμαῖοι, καταγγείλας αὐτοῖς πόλεμον καὶ χρόνον ἐν ᾧ καὶ τόπον εἰς ὃν ἔμελλεν
2 ἐμβαλεῖν, ἀφίκετο μετὰ πολλῆς δυνάμεως. Ποπλικόλας δ' ἠρέθη μὲν ἀπὼν ὑπατος τὸ δεύτερον, καὶ σὺν αὐτῷ Τίτος Λουκρήτιος· ἐπανελθὼν δὲ εἰς Ῥώμην καὶ βουλόμενος τῷ φρονήματι πρῶτον ὑπερβαλέσθαι τὸν Πορσίναν, ἐκτίξε πόλιν Σιγλιουρίαν ἤδη πλησίον ὄντος αὐτοῦ. καὶ τειχίσας μεγάλοις ἀναλώμασιν ἑπτακοσίους ἐποι-

PUBLICOLA

and they now look too slender and thin. However, if anyone who is amazed at the costliness of the Capitol had seen a single colonnade in the palace of Domitian, or a basilica, or a bath, or the apartments for his concubines, then, as Epicharmus says to the spendthrift, “ 'Tis not beneficent thou art ; thou art diseased ;

thy mania is to give ,”

so he would have been moved to say to Domitian :
“ 'Tis not pious, nor nobly ambitious that thou art ;
thou art diseased ; thy mania is to build ; like the famous Midas, thou desirest that every thing become gold and stone at thy touch.” So much, then, on this head.

XVI. But to return to Tarquin, after the great battle in which he lost his son in a duel with Brutus, he fled for refuge to Clusium, and became a suppliant of Lars Porsena, the most powerful king in Italy, who was thought also to be a man of worth and noble ambitions. He promised Tarquin his aid and assistance. So in the first place he sent to Rome and ordered them to receive Tarquin as their king. Then when the Romans refused, he declared war upon them, proclaimed the time and place of his attack, and marched thither with a great force.¹ Publicola was chosen consul for the second time, in his absence, and Titus Lucretius as his colleague. Returning, therefore, to Rome, and wishing, in the first place, to surpass Porsena in the loftiness of his spirit, he built the city of Sigliuria, although his adversary was already near at hand. After he had fortified it at great expense, he sent to it a colony of seven hundred

¹ Cf. Livy, ii. 9.

3 κούς ἀπέστειλεν, ὡς ῥαδίως φέρων καὶ ἀδεῶς τὸν πόλεμον. οὐ μὴν ἀλλὰ προσβολῆς ὀξείας τῷ τείχει γενομένης ἐξεώσθησαν οἱ φύλακες ὑπὸ τοῦ Πορσίνα, καὶ φεύγοντες ὀλίγου συνεπεσπασαντο τοὺς πολεμίους εἰς τὴν πόλιν. ἔφθη δὲ πρὸ τῶν πυλῶν ἐκβοηθήσας ὁ Ποπλικόλας, καὶ μάχην συνάψας παρὰ τὸν ποταμὸν ἀντείχε πλήθει βιαζομένοις τοῖς πολεμίοις, ἄχρι οὐ τραύμασι νεανικοῖς περιπεσῶν ἀπεκομίσθη φοράδην ἐκ τῆς
 4 μάχης. τὸ δ' αὐτὸ καὶ Λουκρητίου τοῦ συνάρχοντος αὐτῷ παθόντος ἀθυμία τοῖς Ῥωμαίοις ἐπέπεσε, καὶ φυγῇ πρὸς τὴν πόλιν ἔσωζον ἑαυτούς. ὠθουμένων δὲ τῶν πολεμίων διὰ τῆς ξυλίνης γεφύρας ἐκινδύνευσε ἡ Ῥώμη κατὰ κράτος ἀλῶναι. πρῶτος δὲ Κόκλιος Ὠράτιος καὶ σὺν αὐτῷ δύο τῶν ἐπιφανεστάτων ἀνδρῶν, Ἑρμίνιος καὶ Λάρκιος, ἀντέστησαν περὶ τὴν ξυλίην γέφυ
 5 ραν. ὁ δ' Ὠράτιος τὸν Κόκλιον ἐπωνύμιον ἔσχευ ἐν πολέμῳ τῶν ὀμμάτων θάτερον ἐκκοπεῖς· ὡς δ' ἔνιοι λέγουσι, διὰ σιμότητα τῆς ῥινὸς ἐνδεδυκυίας ὥστε μηδὲν εἶναι τὸ διορίζον τὰ ὄμματα καὶ τὰς ὀφρῦς συγκεχύσθαι, Κύκλωπα βουλόμενοι καλεῖν αὐτὸν οἱ πολλοὶ τῆς γλώττης ὀλισθαινούσης ἐκράτησεν ὑπὸ πλήθους Κόκλιον κα
 6 λείσθαι. οὗτος ἐστὼς πρὸ τῆς γεφύρας ἠμύνετο τοὺς πολεμίους, ἄχρι οὐ διέκοψαν οἱ σὺν αὐτῷ κατόπιν τὴν γέφυραν. οὕτω δὲ μετὰ τῶν ὄπλων ἀφείς ἑαυτὸν εἰς τὸν ποταμὸν ἀπενήξατο, καὶ προσέμιξε τῇ πέραν ὄχθῃ δόρατι Ὑρρηνικῷ
 7 βεβλημένος τὸν γλουτόν. ὁ δὲ Ποπλικόλας τὴν ἀρετὴν θαυμάσας αὐτίκα μὲν εἰσηγήσατο Ῥω- 106

PUBLICOLA

men, indicating that he had no concern or fear about the war. However, a sharp assault was made upon its wall by Porsena, and its garrison was driven out. They fled to Rome, where the pursuing enemy almost followed them into the city. But Publicola promptly sallied out to their aid in front of the gate, joined battle by the river side with the enemy, who pressed on in great numbers, and held out against them until he was desperately wounded and carried bodily out of the battle. The same fate overtook Lucretius, his colleague, also, so that dismay fell upon the Romans, and they fled for safety towards the city. But as the enemy were forcing their way onto the wooden bridge, Rome was in danger of being taken by storm. Horatius Cocles,¹ however, first, and with him two of the most illustrious men of the city, Herminius and Lartius, defended the wooden bridge against them. Horatius had been given his surname of Cocles because he had lost one of his eyes in the wars. Some, however, say that his nose was flat and sunken, so that there was nothing to separate his eyes, and his eye-brows ran together, and that for this reason the multitude wished to call him Cyclops, but by a slip of the tongue the name of Cocles became generally prevalent instead. This Cocles, standing at the head of the bridge, kept the enemy back until his companions had cut the bridge in two behind him. Then, all accoutred as he was, he plunged into the river and swam across to the other side, in spite of a wound in the buttocks from a Tuscan spear. Publicola, out of admiration for his valour, proposed that every Roman should at once

¹ The exploit of Horatius is much more dramatically narrated by Livy (ii. 10).

PLUTARCH'S LIVES

μαίους ἅπαντας, ὅσην ἕκαστος ἐν ἡμέρᾳ τροφήν ἀνήλισκε, δοῦναι συνεισενεγκόντας, ἔπειτα τῆς χώρας ἦν αὐτὸς περιαρόσειεν ἐν ἡμέρᾳ. πρὸς δὲ τούτοις εἰκόνα χαλκῆν ἔστησαν αὐτῷ¹ ἐν τῷ ἱερῷ τοῦ Ἡφαίστου, τὴν γενομένην ἐκ τοῦ τραύματος τῷ ἀνδρὶ χολότητα μετὰ τιμῆς παρηγοροῦντες.

XVII. Ἐπικειμένου δὲ Πορσίνα τῇ πόλει καὶ λιμὸς ἤπτετο τῶν Ῥωμαίων, καὶ Τυρρηνῶν ἕτερος στρατὸς αὐτὸς καθ' αὐτὸν εἰς τὴν χώραν ἐνέβαλε. Ποπλικόλας δὲ τὸ τρίτον ὑπατεύων Πορσίνα μὲν ἀτρεμῶν καὶ φυλάττων τὴν πόλιν ᾤετο δεῖν ἀντέχειν, τοῖς δὲ Τυρρηνοῖς ἐπεξήλθε καὶ συμβαλὼν ἐτρέψατο καὶ πεντακισχιλίους αὐτῶν ἀνείλε.

Τὸ δὲ περὶ Μούκιον εἴρηται μὲν ὑπὸ πολλῶν καὶ διαφόρως, λεκτέον δὲ ἡ μάλιστα πιστεύεται καὶ ἡμῖν.² ἦν ἀνὴρ εἰς πᾶσαν ἀρετὴν ἀγαθός, ἐν δὲ τοῖς πολεμικοῖς ἄριστος· ἐπιβουλεύων δὲ τὸν Πορσίναν ἀνελεῖν παρεισῆλθεν εἰς τὸ στρατόπεδον Τυρρηνίδα φορῶν ἐσθῆτα καὶ φωνῇ χρώμενος ὁμοία. περιελθὼν δὲ τὸ βῆμα τοῦ βασιλέως καθεζομένου, καὶ σαφῶς μὲν αὐτὸν οὐκ εἰδώς, ἐρέσθαι δὲ περὶ αὐτοῦ δεδιώς, ὃν ᾤηθη μάλιστα τῶν συγκαθεζομένων ἐκείνον εἶναι σπασάμενος τὸ ξίφος ἀπέκτεινεν.³ ἐπὶ τούτῳ δὲ συλληφθεὶς ἀνεκρίνετο· καὶ τινος ἐσχαρίδος πῦρ ἐχούσης μέλλοντι τῷ Πορσίνα θύειν κεκομισμένης, ὑπερσχῶν τὴν δεξιὰν χεῖρα καιομένης τῆς σαρκὸς εἰστήκει πρὸς τὸν Πορσίναν ἀποβλέπων ἰταμῷ καὶ ἀτρέπτῳ τῷ προσώπῳ, μέχρι οὐ θαν-

¹ αὐτῷ bracketed in Sintenis² because of the hiatus following.

PUBLICOLA

contribute for him as much provision as each consumed in a day, and that afterwards he should be given as much land as he could plough round in a day. Besides this, they set up a bronze statue of him in the temple of Vulcan, to console him with honour for the lameness consequent upon his wound.

XVII. While Porsena was closely investing the city, a famine afflicted the Romans,¹ and another Tuscan army on its own account invaded their territory. Publicola, who was now consul for the third time, thought that Porsena must be met by a quiet and watchful resistance within the city; but he sallied out upon the other Tuscan army, engaged it, routed it, and slew five thousand of them.

The story of Mucius has been often and variously told, but I must give it as it seems most credible to me.² He was a man endowed with every virtue, but most excellent in war. Designing to kill Porsena, he stole into his camp, wearing a Tuscan habit, and using a speech to correspond. After walking around the tribunal where the king was sitting with others, not knowing him certainly, and fearing to inquire about him, he drew his sword and slew that one of the group whom he thought most likely to be the king. Upon this he was seized, and was being questioned, when a sort of pan containing live coals was brought to Porsena, who was about to offer sacrifice. Mucius held his right hand over the flames and, while the flesh was burning, stood looking at Porsena with a bold and steadfast countenance, until the king was overcome with

¹ Cf. Livy, ii. 12, 1.

² Plutarch's version is far less coherent and dramatic than Livy's (ii. 12).

PLUTARCH'S LIVES

μάσας ἀφήκεν αὐτὸν καὶ τὸ ξίφος ἀποδιδούς ὤρεξεν ἀπὸ τοῦ βήματος· ὁ δὲ τὴν εὐώνυμον προτείνας ἐδέξατο. καὶ διὰ τοῦτό φασιν αὐτῷ γενέσθαι τὸν Σκαιόλαν ἐπίκλησιν, ὅπερ ἐστὶ

4 Λαιόν. ἔφη δὲ τὸν φόβον τοῦ Πορσίνα νενικηκῶς ἠττάσθαι τῆς ἀρετῆς, καὶ χάριτι μηνύειν ἅ πρὸς ἀνάγκην οὐκ ἂν ἐξηγόρευσε. “Τριακόσιοι γὰρ Ῥωμαίων,” ἔφη, “τὴν αὐτὴν ἐμοὶ γνώμην ἔχοντες ἐν τῷ στρατοπέδῳ σου πλανῶνται καιρὸν ἐπιτηροῦντες· ἐγὼ δὲ κλήρω λαχὼν καὶ προεπιχειρήσας οὐκ ἄχθομαι τῇ τύχῃ, διαμαρτῶν ἀνδρὸς ἀγαθοῦ καὶ φίλου μᾶλλον ἢ πολεμίου

5 Ῥωμαίοις εἶναι πρέποντος.” ταυτὴν ὁ Πορσίνας ἀκούσας ἐπίστευσε καὶ πρὸς τὰς διαλύσεις ἥδιον ἔσχεν, οὐ τοσοῦτό, μοι δοκεῖ, φόβῳ τῶν τριακοσίων, ὅσον ἀγασθεῖς καὶ θαυμάσας τὸ φρόνημα καὶ τὴν ἀρετὴν τῶν Ῥωμαίων.

Τοῦτον τὸν ἄνδρα Μούκιον ὁμοῦ τι πάντων καὶ Σκαιόλαν καλούντων Ἀθηνόδωρος ὁ Σάνδωνος ἐν τῷ πρὸς Ὀκταούταν τὴν Καίσαρος ἀδελφὴν καὶ Ὀψίγονον ὠνομάσθαι φησίν.

XVIII. Ὁ μέντοι Ποπλικόλας αὐτός, οὐχ οὕτω πολέμιον ὄντα τὸν Πορσίναν βαρὺν ἡγούμενος ὡς ἄξιον πολλοῦ τῇ πόλει φίλον γενέσθαι καὶ σύμμαχον, οὐκ ἔφευγεν ἐπ’ αὐτοῦ δίκη κριθῆναι πρὸς Ταρκύνιον, ἀλλ’ ἐθάρρει καὶ προῦκαλεῖτο admiration and released him, and handed him back his sword, reaching it down to him from the tribunal. Mucius stretched out his left hand and took it (on which account, they say, he received the surname of Scaevola, which means Left-handed). Then he said that although he had conquered the fear which Porsena inspired, he was vanquished by the nobility which he displayed, and would reveal out of gratitude what he would not have disclosed under compulsion. "Three hundred Romans, then," said he, "with the same resolution as mine, are now prowling about in thy camp and watching their opportunity. I was chosen by lot to make the first attempt upon thee, and I am not distressed at what has happened, so noble is the man whom I failed to kill, and so worthy to be a friend rather than an enemy of the Romans." On hearing this, Porsena believed it to be true, and felt more inclined to come to terms, not so much, I suppose, through fear of the three hundred, as out of wondering admiration for the lofty spirit and bravery of the Romans.¹

PUBLICOLA

All other writers agree in giving this Mucius the surname of Scaevola, but Athenodorus, the son of Sandon, in his book addressed to Octavia, the sister of Augustus Caesar, says that his surname was Postumus.

XVIII. Publicola himself, moreover, thinking that Porsena would be more valuable as a friend and ally of the city than he was dangerous as its enemy, did not shrink from making the king an arbitrator in his dispute with Tarquin,¹ but often boldly challenged

¹ According to Livy (ii. 13, 1-5), Porsena was so terrified by the disclosures of Mucius, that he made propositions of peace to the Romans.

πολλάκις ὡς ἐξελέγξων κάκιστον ἀνδρῶν καὶ
 δικαίως ἀφαιρεθέντα τὴν ἀρχήν. ἀποκριναμένου
 δὲ τοῦ Ταρκυνίου τραχύτερον, οὐδένα ποιεῖσθαι
 δικαστήν, ἤκιστα δὲ Πορσίναν, εἰ σύμμαχος
 2 ὦν μεταβάλλεται, δυσχεράνας καὶ καταγνοὺς ὁ Πορσίνας, ἅμα δὲ τοῦ παιδὸς Ἄρροντος δεομένου
 καὶ σπουδάζοντος ὑπὲρ τῶν Ῥωμαίων, κατελύσατο τὸν πόλεμον ἐξισταμένοις ἢς ἀπετέμοντο
 τῆς Τυρρηνίδος χώρας καὶ τοὺς αἰχμαλώτους
 ἀποπέμπουσι, κομιζομένοις δὲ τοὺς αὐτομόλους.
 ἐπὶ τούτοις ὁμήρους ἔδωκαν ἕξ εὐπατριδῶν περιπορφύρους δέκα καὶ παρθένους τοσαύτας, ὧν
 ἦν καὶ Ποπλικόλα θυγάτηρ Οὐαλλερία.

XIX. Πραττομένων δὲ τούτων τοῦ τε Πορσίνα
 πᾶσαν ἤδη τὴν πολεμικὴν ἀνεικότος παρασκευὴν
 διὰ πίστιν, αἱ παρθένοι τῶν Ῥωμαίων κατήλθον
 ἐπὶ λουτρὸν ἔνθα δὴ μνηοειδῆς τις ὄχθη περιβάλλουσα τὸν ποταμὸν ἠσυχίαν μάλιστα καὶ
 γαλήνην τοῦ κύματος παρέιχεν. ὡς δ' οὔτε 107
 τινὰ φυλακὴν ἐώρων οὔτε παριόντας ἄλλως ἢ
 διαπλέοντας, ὄρμην ἔσχον ἀπονήξασθαι πρὸς
 2 ῥεῦμα πολὺ καὶ δίνας βαθείας. ἔνιοι δὲ φασὶ
 μίαν αὐτῶν, ὄνομα Κλοιλίαν, ἵππῳ διεξελάσαι
 τὸν πόρον, ἐγκελευομένην ταῖς ἄλλαις νεούσαις
 καὶ παραθαρρύνουσαν. ἐπεὶ δὲ σωθεῖσαι πρὸς
 τὸν Ποπλικόλαν ἤκον, οὐκ ἐθαύμασεν οὐδ' ἠγάπησεν, ἀλλ' ἠνιάθη, ὅτι Πορσίνα κακίων ἐν
 πίστει φανεῖται, καὶ τὸ τόλμημα τῶν παρθένων

PUBLICOLA

Tarquin to do so, confident of proving that he was the basest of men and justly deprived of his kingdom. And when Tarquin gave him a rough answer, saying that he would make no man his judge, least of all Porsena, seeing that he was swerving from his alliance with him, Porsena was displeased and perceived the weakness of his cause. His son Aruns also pleaded earnestly with him in behalf of the Romans. Consequently, he put an end to his war against them, on condition that they gave up the territory of Tuscany which they had taken, sent back their prisoners of war, and received back their deserters. In confirmation of these conditions, the Romans gave as hostages ten young men from their noblest families, and as many maidens, of whom Valeria, a daughter of Publicola, was one.

XIX. After these stipulations had been carried out, and when Porsena had already remitted all his warlike preparations through his confidence in the treaty, these Roman maidens went down to the river to bathe, at a place where the curving bank formed a bay and kept the water especially still and free from waves. As they saw no guard near, nor any one else passing by or crossing the stream, they were seized with a desire to swim away, notwithstanding the depth and whirl of the strong current. And some say that one of them, named Cloelia, crossed the stream on horseback, exhorting and encouraging the rest as they swam. But when they were come in safety to Publicola, he bestowed no admiration or affection upon them, but was distressed because he would be thought less true to his word than Porsena, and because the daring exploit of the maidens would be called a base fraud on the part of

PLUTARCH'S LIVES

- αἰτίαν ἔξει κακούργημα Ῥωμαίων γεγονέναι. διὸ συλλαβὼν αὐτὰς πάλιν ἀπέστειλε πρὸς τὸν
- 3 Πορσίαν. ταῦτα δ' οἱ περὶ τὸν Ταρκύνιον προαισθόμενοι, καὶ καθίσαντες ἐνέδραν τοῖς ἄγουσι
τὰς παῖδας, ἐν τῷ περᾶν ἐπέθεντο πλείονες ὄντες.
ἐκείνων δὲ ὁμῶς ἀμυνομένων, ἡ Ποπλικόλα
θυγάτηρ Οὐαλλερία διὰ μέσων ὀρμήσασα τῶν
μαχομένων ἀπέφυγε, καὶ τρεῖς τινες οἰκέται
συνδιεκπεσόντες ἔσωζον αὐτήν. τῶν δ' ἄλλων
οὐκ ἀκινδύνως ἀναμεμιγμένων τοῖς μαχομένοις, αἰθόμενος Ἄρρων ὁ Πορσίνα υἱὸς ὀξέως προσεβοήθησε, καὶ φυγῆς γενομένης τῶν πολεμίων
περιποίησε τοὺς Ῥωμαίους.
- 4 Ὡς δὲ τὰς παρθένους κομισθείσας ὁ Πορσίνας
εἶδε, τὴν καταρξαμένην τῆς πράξεως καὶ παρακελευσαμένην ταῖς ἄλλαις ἐζήτει. ἀκούσας δὲ
τὸ ὄνομα τῆς Κλοιλίας προσέβλεψεν αὐτὴν ἴλεφ
καὶ φαιδρῷ τῷ προσώπῳ, καὶ κελεύσας ἵππον
ἀχθῆναι τῶν βασιλικῶν κεκοσμημένον εὐπρεπῶς
ἔδωρήσατο. τοῦτο ποιοῦνται μαρτύριον οἱ μόνην
τὴν Κλοιλίαν λέγοντες ἵππῳ διεξελάσαι τὸν
- 5 ποταμόν. οἱ δ' οὐ φασιν, ἀλλὰ τιμῆσαι τὸ
ἀνδρῶδες αὐτῆς τὸν Τυρρηνόν. ἀνάκειται δὲ τὴν
ἱερὰν ὁδὸν πορευομένοις εἰς Παλάτιον ἀνδρίας
αὐτῆς ἔφιππος, ὃν τινεῖς οὐ τῆς Κλοιλίας, ἀλλὰ
τῆς Οὐαλλερίας εἶναι λέγουσιν.
- Ὁ δὲ Πορσίνας διαλλαγεὶς τοῖς Ῥωμαίοις

PUBLICOLA

the Romans. He seized them, therefore, and sent them back again to Porsena. But Tarquin and his men got timely intelligence of this, set an ambush for the convoy of the maidens, and attacked them in superior numbers as they passed along. The party attacked defended themselves, nevertheless, and Valeria, the daughter of Publicola, darted through the combatants and fled, and with the help of three attendants who broke through the crowd with her, made good her escape. The rest of the maidens were mingled with the combatants and in peril of their lives. But Aruns, the son of Porsena, learning of the affair, came with all speed to their assistance, put their enemies to flight, and rescued the Romans.

When Porsena saw the maidens thus brought back, he asked for the one who had begun the enterprise and encouraged the rest in it. And when he heard Cloelia named as the one, he looked upon her with a gracious and beaming countenance, and ordering one of the royal horses to be brought, all fittingly caparisoned, he made her a present of it. Those who say that Cloelia, and Cloelia alone, crossed the river on horseback, produce this fact in evidence. Others dispute the inference, and say that the Tuscan merely honoured in this way the maiden's courage. But an equestrian statue of her stands by the Via Sacra, as you go to the Palatine, though some say it represents not Cloelia, but Valeria.¹

Porsena, thus reconciled with the Romans, gave

¹ According to Livy, who gives a very different version of the Cloelia episode (ii. 13, 6-11), the maidens were incited by the example of Mucius to their display of courage, in memory of which the Romans erected at the top of the Via Sacra an equestrian statue, "virgo insidens equo."

ἄλλην τε ἑαυτοῦ πολλὴν μεγαλοφροσύνην ἐπεδείξατο τῇ πόλει, καὶ τὰ ὄπλα τοὺς Τυρρηνοὺς 6 ἀναλαβεῖν κελεύσας, ἄλλο δὲ μηδέν, ἀλλ' ἐκλείπειν τὸν χάρακα σίτου τε πολλοῦ καὶ χρημάτων γέμοντα παντοδαπῶν, παρέδωκε τοῖς Ῥωμαίοις. διὸ καὶ καθ' ἡμᾶς ἔτι πωλοῦντες τὰ δημόσια πρῶτα κηρύττουσι τὰ Πορσίνα χρήματα, τιμὴν τῷ ἀνδρὶ τῆς χάριτος αἰδίων ἐν τῇ μνήμῃ διαφυλάττοντες. εἰστήκει δὲ καὶ χαλκοὺς ἀνδρίας αὐτοῦ παρὰ τὸ βουλευτήριον, ἀπλοῦς καὶ ἀρχαϊκὸς τῇ ἐργασίᾳ.

XX. Μετὰ δὲ ταῦτα Σαβίνων ἐμβαλόντων εἰς τὴν χώραν ὑπάτος μὲν ἀπεδείχθη Μάρκος Οὐαλλέριος, ἀδελφὸς Ποπλικόλα, καὶ Ποστούμιος Τούβερτος. Πραττομένων δὲ τῶν μεγίστων γνώμη καὶ παρουσία Ποπλικόλα δυσὶ μάχαις μεγάλαις ὁ Μάρκος ἐνίκησεν, ὧν ἐν τῇ δευτέρᾳ 2 μνηδίᾳ τῶν πολεμίων ἀνείλε. καὶ γέρας ἔσχεν ἐπὶ τοῖς θριάμβοις οἰκίαν αὐτῷ γενέσθαι δημοσίοις ἀναλώμασιν ἐν Παλατίῳ. τῶν δ' ἄλλων τότε θυρῶν εἴσω τῆς οἰκίας εἰς τὸ κλεισίον ἀνοιγομένων, ἐκείνης μόνης τῆς οἰκίας ἐποίησαν ἐκτὸς ἀπάγεσθαι τὴν αὐλειον, ὡς δὴ κατὰ τὸ συγχώρημα τῆς τιμῆς αἰεὶ τοῦ δημοσίου προσεπιλαμβάνοι.

Τὰς δ' Ἑλληνικὰς πρότερον οὕτως ἔχειν ἀπάσας λέγουσιν, ἀπὸ τῶν κωμωδιῶν λαμβάνοντες, ὅτι κόπτουσι καὶ ψοφοῦσι τὰς αὐτῶν θύρας ἐνδοθεν οἱ προϊέναι μέλλοντες, ὅπως αἰσθησις ἔξω γένοιτο τοῖς παρερχομένοις ἢ προεστῶσι καὶ μὴ κατα-

PUBLICOLA

the city many proofs of his magnanimity. In particular, he ordered his Tuscan soldiers, when they evacuated their camp, to take with them their arms only, and nothing else, leaving it full of abundant provisions and all sorts of valuables, which he turned over to the Romans. Therefore it is that down to this very day, when there is a sale of public property, Porsena's goods are cried first, and thus the man's kindness is honoured with perpetual remembrance. Moreover, a bronze statue of him used to stand near the senate-house, of simple and archaic workmanship.¹

XX. After this, when the Sabines invaded the Roman territory, Marcus Valerius, a brother of Publicola, was made consul, and with him Postumius Tubertus. Inasmuch as the most important steps were taken with the advice and assistance of Publicola, Marcus was victorious in two great battles, and in the second of them, without losing a single Roman, slew thirteen thousand of the enemy.² Besides his triumphs, he also obtained the honour of a house built for him at the public charge on the Palatine. And whereas the doors of other houses at that time opened inwards into the vestibule, they made the outer door of his house, and of his alone, to open outwards, in order that by this concession he might be constantly partaking of public honour.

They say that all Greek doors used to open outwards in this way, and the conclusion is drawn from their comedies, where those who are about to go out of a house beat noisily on the inside of their own doors, in order that persons passing by or standing in front of them may hear, and not be λαμβάνονται προϊούσαις ταῖς κλεισιάσιν εἰς τὸν στενωπόν.

¹ Cf. Livy, ii. 14, 1-4. ² Cf. Livy, ii. 16, 1.

XXI. Τῷ δ' ἐξῆς ἔτει πάλιν ὑπάτευε Ποπλικόλας τὸ τέταρτον· ἦν δὲ προσδοκία πολέμου Σαβίνων καὶ Λατίνων συνισταμένων. καὶ τις ἄμα δεισιδαιμονία τῆς πόλεως ἤψατο· πᾶσαι γὰρ αἱ κυοῦσαι τότε γυναῖκες ἐξέβαλλον ἀνάπηρα, καὶ τέλος οὐδεμία γένεσις ἔσχεν. ὅθεν ἐκ τῶν Σιβυλλείων ὁ Ποπλικόλας ἰλασάμενος τῷ "Αἰδῆ καὶ τινας ἀγῶνας πυθοχρήστους ἀναλαβὼν καὶ ταῖς ἐλπίσι πρὸς τὸ θεῖον ἠδίονα καταστήσας τὴν πόλιν, ἤδη τοῖς ἀπ' ἀνθρώπων φοβεροῖς προσεῖχε. μεγάλη γὰρ ἐφαίνετο κατασκευὴ τῶν πολεμίων καὶ σύστασις.

- 2 Ἦν οὖν Ἄππιος Κλαῦσος ἐν Σαβίνοις, ἀνὴρ χρήμασί τε δυνατὸς καὶ σώματος ῥώμῃ πρὸς ἀλκὴν ἐπιφανής, ἀρετῆς δὲ δόξη μάλιστα καὶ λόγου δεινότητι πρωτεύων. ὃ δὲ πᾶσι συμβαίνει τοῖς μεγάλοις οὐ διέφυγε παθεῖν, ἀλλ' ἐφθονεῖτο· καὶ τοῖς φθονοῦσιν αἰτίαν παρέσχε καταπαύων τὸν πόλεμον αὔξειν τὰ Ῥωμαίων, ἐπὶ τυραννίδι
- 3 καὶ δουλώσει τῆς πατρίδος. αἰσθόμενος δὲ τοὺς λόγους τούτους βουλομένῳ τῷ πλήθει λεγομένους, καὶ προσκρούοντα τοῖς πολεμοποιοῖς καὶ στρατιωτικοῖς ἑαυτὸν, ἐφοβεῖτο τὴν κρίσιν. ἑταιρείαν δὲ καὶ δύναμιν φίλων καὶ οἰκείων ἔχων ἀμύ-

PUBLICOLA

taken by surprise when the doors open out into the street.

XXI. In the following year Publicola was consul again, for the fourth time, when there was expectation of a war with the Sabines and Latins combined.¹ At the same time also a sort of superstitious terror seized upon the city because all the women who were pregnant were delivered of imperfect offspring, and all births were premature. Wherefore, by direction of the Sibylline books, Publicola made propitiatory sacrifices to Pluto, and renewed certain games that had been recommended by Apollo, and after he had thus made the city more cheerful in its hopes and expectations from the gods, he turned his attention to what it feared from men. For their enemies were plainly making great preparations and a powerful league against them.

Now there was among the Sabines one Appius Clausus,² a man whose wealth made him powerful, as his personal prowess made him illustrious, but who was most eminent for his lofty character and for his great eloquence. He could not, however, escape the fate of all great men, but was an object of jealous hate, and when he tried to stop the war, those who hated him charged him with trying to increase the power of Rome, with a view to making himself tyrant and master of his own country. Perceiving that the multitude gave a ready ear to these stories, and that he himself was obnoxious to the war party and the military, he feared the issue, but with a large and powerful coterie of friends and

¹ Livy gives a very brief account of this war (ii. 16, 2-6).

² Attius Clausus among the Sabines, Appius Claudius among the Romans, according to Livy, ii, 16, 4.

PLUTARCH'S LIVES

- νουσαν περι αὐτὸν ἐστασίαζε. καὶ τοῦτ' ἦν τοῦ
 πολέμου διατριβὴ καὶ μέλλησις τοῖς Σαβίνοις.
- 4 Ταῦτ' οὖν ὁ Ποπλικόλας οὐ μόνον εἰδέναί
 ποιούμενος ἔργον, ἀλλὰ καὶ κινεῖν καὶ συνεξορμῶν τὴν στάσιν, εἶχεν ἄνδρας ἐπιτηδεῖους οἱ
 τῷ Κλαύσῳ διελέγοντο παρ' αὐτοῦ τοιαῦτα, ὡς
 ὁ Ποπλικόλας ἄνδρα σε χρηστὸν ὄντα καὶ δίκαιον
 οὐδενὶ κακῷ δεῖν οἴεται τοὺς σεαυτοῦ πολίτας
 ἀμύνεσθαι, καίπερ ἀδικούμενον· εἰ δὲ βούλοιο
 σώζων ἑαυτὸν μεταστῆναι καὶ φυγεῖν τοὺς μισούντας, ὑποδέξεται σε δημοσίᾳ καὶ ἰδίᾳ τῆς τε
- 5 ταῦτα πολλάκις ἀνασκοποῦντι τῷ Κλαύσῳ βέλ-τιστα τῶν ἀναγκαίων ἐφαίνετο, καὶ τοὺς φίλους
 συμπαρακαλῶν, ἐκείνων τε πολλοὺς ὁμοίως συναναπειθύντων, πεντακισχιλίους οἴκους ἀνα-
 στήσας μετὰ παίδων καὶ γυναικῶν, ὅπερ ἦν ἐν Σαβίνοις ἀθόρυβον μάλιστα καὶ βίου πρᾶου καὶ καθεστῶτος οἰκεῖον, εἰς Ῥώμην ἦγε, προειδότης
 τοῦ Ποπλικόλα καὶ δεχομένου φιλοφρόνως καὶ
- 6 προθύμως ἐπὶ πᾶσι δικαίοις. τοὺς μὲν γὰρ
 οἴκους εὐθὺς ἀνέμιξε τῷ πολιτεύματι, καὶ χώραν
 ἀπένειμεν ἐκάστῳ δυνεῖν πλέθρων περὶ τὸν Ἀνί-ωνα ποταμόν, τῷ δὲ Κλαύσῳ πλέθρα πέντε καὶ
 εἴκοσι γῆς ἔδωκεν, αὐτὸν δὲ τῇ βουλῇ προσέγραψεν, ἀρχὴν πολιτείας λαμβάνοντα ταύτην,
 ὅτι χρώμενος ἐμφρόνως ἀνέδραμεν εἰς τὸ πρῶτον
 κράτος καὶ δύναμιν ἔσχε μεγάλην, καὶ γένος
 γένος ἀμαυρότερον ἐν Ῥώμῃ τὸ Κλαυδίον ἀφ' οὗ κατέλιπε.
- XII. Τὰ δὲ Σαβίνων οὕτω διακριθέντα τῷ

PUBLICOLA

kinsmen to defend him, continued his opposition. This made the Sabines put off and delay the war.

Publicola, accordingly, making it his business not only to know about these matters, but also to foment and promote the faction, kept some of his followers employed in bringing to Clausus from him such messages as this : " Publicola thinks thee too worthy and just a man to inflict any evil upon thy fellow citizens in self-defence, even though thou art wronged by them. But if thou wishest, for thine own safety, to change thine allegiance and flee from those who hate thee, he will receive thee with public and private honours which are worthy of thine own excellence and the splendour of Rome." On repeated consideration of the matter, this course seemed to Clausus the best that was open to him ; he therefore summoned his friends, who in like manner persuaded many more, to join him, and taking five thousand families from their homes, wives and children included, the most peaceful folk among the Sabines, of gentle and sedate lives, he led them to Rome. Publicola knew beforehand of their coming, and gave them an eager and a kindly welcome, admitting them to all rights and privileges. For he at once incorporated the families in the Roman state, and gave each one two acres of land on the river Anio. To Clausus, however, he gave twenty-five acres of land, and enrolled him among the senators. This was the beginning of a political power which he used so wisely that he mounted to the highest dignity and acquired great influence. The Claudian family, which is descended from him, is no less illustrious than any in Rome.

XXII. Though the schism among the Sabines was

PLUTARCH'S LIVES

μετοικισμῶ τῶν ἀνδρῶν, οὐκ εἶσαν οἱ δημαγωγοῦντες ἀτρεμῆσαι καὶ καταστήναι, σχετλιάζοντες εἰ Κλαῦσος ἂ παρῶν οὐκ ἔπεισε διαπράξεται φυγὰς γενόμενος καὶ πολέμιος, μὴ δοῦναι
 δίκην Ῥωμαίους ὧν ὑβρίζουσιν. ἄραντες οὖν
 στρατῶ μεγάλῳ περὶ Φιδήνας κατηυλίσαντο, καί
 τινα λόχον θέμενοι πρὸ τῆς Ῥώμης ἐν χωρίοις συνηρεφέσι καὶ κοίλοις δισχιλίους ὀπλίτας, ἔμελλον ἄμ' ἡμέρᾳ φανερώς ὀλίγοις ἰππεύσει λείαν ἐλαύ-
 *2 νειν. εἴρητο δ' αὐτοῖς, ὅταν τῇ πόλει προσελάσωσιν, ὑποφεύγειν ἕως ἐμβάλωσιν εἰς τὴν ἐνέδραν
 τοὺς πολεμίους· ταῦθ' ὁ Ποπλικόλας αὐθημερὸν
 πυθόμενος παρ' αὐτομόλων ταχὺ διηρμόσατο πρὸς
 πάντα καὶ διένειμε τὴν δύναμιν. Ποστούμιος
 μὲν γὰρ Βάλβος ὁ γαμβρὸς αὐτοῦ τρισχιλίους
 ὀπλίταις ἐσπέρας ἔτι προελθὼν καὶ κατα-
 λαβὼν τοὺς ἀκρολόφους, ὑφ' οἷς ἐνῆδρευον οἱ
 3 Σαβίνοι, παρεφύλαττεν· ὁ δὲ συνάρχων Λου-κρήτιος ἔχων τὸ κουφότατον ἐν τῇ πόλει καὶ
 γενναιότατον ἐτάχθη τοῖς ἐλαύνουσι τὴν λείαν ἰππεύσιν ἐπιχειρεῖν, αὐτὸς δὲ τὴν ἄλλην ἀναλαβὼν στρατιὰν κύκλῳ περιῆλθε τοὺς πολεμίους.
 καὶ κατὰ τύχην ὀμίχλης βαθείας ἐπιπεσούσης,
 περὶ ὄρθρον ἅμα Ποστούμιός τε τοὺς ἐνεδρεύοντας ἐμβοήσας ἔβαλεν ἀπὸ τῶν ἄκρων, καὶ τοῖς προῖππασαμένοις ἐφῆκε τοὺς περὶ αὐτὸν ὁ Λου-κρήτιος, καὶ Ποπλικόλας προσέβαλε τοῖς στρατο-4 πέδοις τῶν πολεμίῳν. πάντῃ μὲν οὖν ἐκακοῦτο
 τὰ Σαβίνων καὶ διεφθείρετο· τοὺς δ' ἐνταῦθα μηδ'
 ἀμυνομένους, ἀλλὰ φεύγοντας, εὐθὺς ἔκτεινον οἱ
 Ῥωμαῖοι, τῆς ἐλπίδος αὐτοῖς ὀλεθριωτάτης γενο-560

PUBLICOLA

thus removed by the emigration of these men, their popular leaders would not suffer them to settle down into quiet, but complained bitterly that Clausus, by becoming an exile and an enemy, should bring to pass what he could not effect by his persuasions at home, namely, that Rome pay no penalty for her outrages. Setting out, therefore, with a large army, they encamped near Fidenae, and placed two thousand men-at-arms in ambush just outside of Rome in wooded hollows. Their intention was that a few of their horsemen, as soon as it was day, should boldly ravage the country. But these had been ordered, whenever they approached the city and were attacked, to retire gradually until they had drawn the enemy into the ambuscade. That very day Publicola learned of this plan from deserters, and took measures accordingly, dividing up his forces. Postumius Balbus, his son-in-law, while it was yet evening, went out with three thousand men-at-arms, occupied the hills under which the Sabines were lying in ambush, and kept the enemy under observation; Lucretius, his colleague, retaining in the city the lightest armed and most impetuous troops, was ordered to attack the enemy's horsemen as they ravaged the country; he himself took the rest of the army and encircled the enemy in their camp. Favoured by a heavy fog, at break of day Postumius, with loud shouts, fell upon the ambuscade from the heights, while Lucretius hurled his troops upon the horsemen when they rode towards the city, and Publicola attacked the camp of the enemy. At all points, then, the Sabines were worsted and undone. Wherever they were, they made no defence, but fled, and the Romans straightway slew them. The

PLUTARCH'S LIVES

μένης. σώζεσθαι γὰρ οἰόμενοι τοὺς ἑτέρους οἱ ἕτεροι τῷ μάχεσθαι καὶ μένειν οὐ προσεῖχον, ἀλλ' οἱ μὲν ἐκ τῶν ἐρυμάτων πρὸς τοὺς ἐνεδρεύ-5 οντας, οἱ δὲ πάλιν ὡς ἐκείνους εἰς τὸ στρατόπεδον θέοντες ἐναντίοι φεύγουσιν ἐνέπιπτον πρὸς
 οὓς ἔφευγον καὶ βοηθείας δεόμενοι οὓς ἠλπίζον
 αὐτοῖς βοηθήσειν. τὸ δὲ μὴ πάντα ἀπολέσθαι
 τοὺς Σαβίνους, ἀλλὰ καὶ περιγενέσθαι τινὰς ἢ Φιδηνατῶν πόλις ἐγγὺς οὔσα παρέσχε, καὶ
 μάλιστα τοῖς ἐκ τῶν στρατοπέδων, ὅθ' ἠλίσκετο, διεκπίπτουσιν. ὅσοι δὲ Φιδηνῶν διήμαρτον διε-φθάρησαν ἢ ζῶντες ἀπήχθησαν ὑπὸ τῶν λαβόντων.

XXIII. Τοῦτο τὸ κατόρθωμα Ῥωμαῖοι, καίπερ
 εἰωθότες ἅπασιν τοῖς μεγάλοις ἐπιφημίζουσιν τὸ δαι-μόνιον, ἐνὸς ἔργου ἠγοῦντο τοῦ στρατηγοῦ γεγονέναι. καὶ τῶν μεμαχημένων πρῶτον ἦν ἀκούειν
 ὅτι χωλοὺς καὶ τυφλοὺς αὐτοῖς καὶ μόνον οὐ
 καθεύξας τοὺς πολεμίους Ποπλικόλας παρέδωκε
 χρῆσθαι τοῖς ξίφεσιν. ἐρρώσθη δὲ καὶ χρήμασιν
 ὁ δῆμος ἐκ τῶν λαφύρων καὶ τῶν αἰχμαλώτων.

2 Ὁ δὲ Ποπλικόλας τὸν τε θρίαμβον ἀγαγὼν
 καὶ τοῖς μετ' αὐτὸν ἀποδειχθεῖσιν ὑπάτοις παραδούς τὴν πόλιν εὐθύς ἐτελεύτησεν, ὡς ἐφικτόν
 ἐστὶν ἀνθρώποις μάλιστα τοῖς νενομισμένοις καλοῖς καὶ ἀγαθοῖς, τὸν ἑαυτοῦ βίον ἐκτελειώσας.
 ὁ δὲ δῆμος ὥσπερ οὐδὲν εἰς ζῶντα τῶν ἀξίων
 πεποιηκώς, ἀλλὰ πᾶσαν ὀφείλων χάριν, ἐψηφίσατο δημοσίᾳ ταφῆναι τὸ σῶμα, καὶ τεταρτη-
 3 μόριον ἕκαστον ἐπὶ τιμῇ συνεισενεγκεῖν. αἱ δὲ 562

PUBLICOLA

very hopes they placed in one another proved most fatal to them. For each party, supposing that the other was safe, had no thought of holding their ground and fighting, but those in the camp ran towards those in the ambuscade, while these, on their part, ran to those in the camp, so that fugitives encountered fugitives, and found those needing succour from whom they expected succour themselves. And all the Sabines would have perished, had not the neighbouring city of Fidenae afforded a refuge to some, especially to those who fled from the camp when it was captured. All who did not gain this city were either slain or brought back to Rome as prisoners.

XXIII. This success the Romans, although they were wont to attribute all such great events to the influence of the gods, considered to be the work of their general alone. And the first thing his soldiers were heard to say was that Publicola had delivered their enemies into their hands lame; blind, and all but imprisoned, to be dispatched by their swords. Great wealth also accrued to the people from the spoils and prisoners.

But Publicola, immediately after celebrating his triumph and handing the city over to the consuls appointed to succeed him, died. So far as it can possibly be achieved by men who are regarded as honourable and good, he had brought his life to perfection. The people, as if they had done nothing to show their esteem for him while he was alive, but owed him every homage, decreed that his body should be buried at the public charge, and that every man should contribute a quadrans towards the honour. The women also, by private agreement

PLUTARCH'S LIVES

γυναῖκες, ἰδίᾳ πρὸς αὐτὰς συμφρονήσασαι, διεπένθησαν ἐνιαυτὸν ὄλον ἐπὶ τῷ ἀνδρὶ πένθος ἔντιμον καὶ ζηλωτόν. ἐτάφη δὲ καὶ οὕτως τῶν πολιτῶν ψηφισαμένων ἐντὸς ἄστεος παρὰ τὴν καλουμένην Οὐελίαν, ὥστε καὶ γένει παντὶ τῆς ταφῆς μετεῖναι. νῦν δὲ θάπτεται μὲν οὐδεὶς τῶν ἀπὸ γένους, κομίσαντες δὲ τὸν νεκρὸν ἐκεῖ κατατίθενται καὶ δᾶδά τις ἡμμένην λαβὼν ὅσον ὑπήνεγκεν, εἶτα ἀναιρεῖται, μαρτυρόμενος ἔργῳ τὸ ἐξεῖναι, φείδεσθαι δὲ τῆς τιμῆς, καὶ τὸν νεκρὸν οὕτως ἀποκομίζουσιν.

ΣΟΛΩΝΟΣ ΚΑΙ ΠΟΠΛΙΚΟΛΑ ΣΥΓΚΡΙΣΙΣ

Ι. Ἄρ' οὖν ἰδιὸν τι περὶ ταύτην τὴν σύγκρισιν ὑπάρχει καὶ μὴ πάνυ συμβεβηκὸς ἑτέρα τῶν ἀναγεγραμμένων, τὸν ἕτερον γεγονέναι μιμητὴν τοῦ ἑτέρου, τὸν ἕτερον δὲ μάρτυν; ὄρα γὰρ ἦν ὁ Σόλων ἐξήνεγκε περὶ εὐδαιμονίας ἀπόφασιν πρὸς Κροῖσον, ὡς Ποπλικόλα μᾶλλον ἢ Τέλλῳ² προσήκει. Τέλλου μὲν γάρ, ὃν εἶπε γεγονέναι μακαριώτατον δι' εὐποτμίαν καὶ ἀρετὴν καὶ εὐτεκνίαν, οὐτ' αὐτὸς ἐν τοῖς ποιήμασιν ὡς ἀνδρὸς ἀγαθοῦ λόγον ἔσχεν οὔτε παῖδες οὔτ' ἀρχή τις εἰς δόξαν ἦλθεν. Ποπλικόλας δὲ καὶ ζῶν ἐπρώτευσεν δυνάμει καὶ δόξῃ δι' ἀρετὴν Ῥωμαίων, καὶ

¹ "In the following year, Agrippa Menemus and P. Postumius being consuls, P. Valerius, by universal consent the foremost Roman in the arts of war and peace, died, in the height of his glory, but so poor that means to defray his amongst themselves, mourned a whole year for him, with a mourning which was honourable and enviable.¹ He was buried, too, by express vote of the citizens, within the city, near the so-called Velia,² and all his family were to have privilege of burial there. Now, however, none of the family is actually buried there, but the body is carried thither and set down, and some one takes a burning torch and holds it under the bier for an instant, and then takes it away, attesting by this act that the deceased has the right of burial there, but relinquishes the honour. After this the body is borne away.

COMPARISON OF SOLON AND PUBLICOLA

COMPARISON OF SOLON AND PUBLICOLA

I. THERE is, then, something peculiar in this comparison, and something that has not been true of any other thus far, namely, that the second imitated the first, and the first bore witness for the second. For it must be plain that the verdict concerning happiness which Solon pronounced to Croesus, is more applicable to Publicola than to Tellus. Tellus, whom Solon pronounced the most blessed man he knew, because of his fortunate lot, his virtue, and his goodly offspring, was not celebrated in Solon's poems as a good man, nor did his children or any magistracy of his achieve a reputation ; whereas Publicola, while he lived, was foremost among the Romans in funeral expenses were lacking. He was therefore buried at the public charge, and the matrons mourned for him as they had done for Brutus" (Livy, ii. 16, 7).

² See chapter x. 2.

τεθνηκότος ἐν τοῖς ἐπιφανεστάτοις γένεσι καὶ
 στέμμασιν ἔτι καθ' ἡμᾶς Ποπλικόλαι καὶ Μεσ-σάλαι καὶ Οὐαλλέριοι δι' ἐτῶν ἑξακοσίων τῆς
 3 εὐγενείας τὴν δόξαν ἀναφέρουσι. καὶ Τέλλος μὲν
 ὑπὸ τῶν πολεμίων ὡς ἀνὴρ ἀγαθὸς ἐν τάξει
 μένων καὶ μαχόμενος κατέστρεψε. Ποπλικόλας
 δὲ τοὺς μὲν πολεμίους κτείννας, ὃ τοῦ πεσεῖν
 εὐτυχέστερόν ἐστι, τὴν δὲ πατρίδα νικῶσαν
 ἐπιδὼν δι' αὐτὸν ἄρχοντα καὶ στρατηγούντα, τιμηθεὶς δὲ καὶ θριαμβεύσας ἔτυχε τῆς ζηλου-
 μένης ὑπὸ Σόλωνος καὶ μακαριζομένης τελευτῆς.
 4 ἔτι τοίνυν οἷς πρὸς Μίμνερμον ἀντειπὼν περὶ
 χρόνου ζωῆς ἐπιπεφώνηκε,

Μηδέ μοι ἄκλαυστος θάνατος μόλοι, ἀλλὰ
 φίλοισι
 ποιήσαιμι θανὼν ἄλγεα καὶ στοναχάς,

εὐδαίμονα τὸν Ποπλικόλαν ἄνδρα ποιεῖ. τελευ- 110
 τήσας γὰρ οὐ φίλοις οὐδ' οἰκείοις μόνον, ἀλλὰ τῇ
 πόλει πάσῃ, μυριάσι πολλαῖς, δάκρυα καὶ πόθον
 καὶ κατήφειαν ἐφ' αὐτῷ παρέσχεν· αἱ γὰρ Ῥωμαίων γυναῖκες ἐπένησαν αὐτὸν ὥσπερ υἷον ἢ
 5 ἀδελφὸν ἢ πατέρα κοινὸν ἀποβαλοῦσαι. “Χρή-ματα δ' ἰμείρω μὲν ἔχειν,” φησὶν ὁ Σόλων, “ἀδίκως
 δὲ πεπᾶσθαι οὐκ ἐθέλω,” ὡς δίκης ἐπιούσης· Ποπλικόλα δ' ὑπῆρχεν οὐ μόνον μὴ κακῶς
 πλουτεῖν, ἀλλὰ καὶ καλῶς ἀναλίσκειν εὐ ποιοῦντι
 τοὺς δεομένους. ὥστ' εἰ σοφώτατος ἀπάντων ὁ Σόλων, εὐδαιμονέστατος ὁ Ποπλικόλας. ἃ γὰρ
 εὔξατο τῶν ἀγαθῶν ἐκεῖνος ὡς μέγιστα καὶ

COMPARISON OF SOLON AND PUBLICOLA

fluence and repute for virtue, and since his death the most illustrious family lines of our own day, like the Publicolae, the Messalae, and the Valerii, have for six hundred years ascribed the glory of their noble birth to him. Tellus, moreover, though he kept his post and fought like a brave man, died at the hands of his enemies; whereas Publicola slew his enemies, which is a better fortune than to be slain by them, saw his country victorious through his efforts as consul and general, and enjoyed honours and triumphs before he came to the end which Solon pronounced so enviable and blest. Still further, what Solon says to Mimmermus,¹ in arguing with him on the proper duration of human life,

“ May not an unlamented death be mine, but unto friends

Let me be cause, when dead, for sorrow and for sighing,” argues Publicola a happy man. For when he died, his loss filled not only friends and kindred, but the entire city, numbering many tens of thousands, with weeping and yearning and sorrow. For the women of Rome mourned for him as though they had lost a son, or a brother, or a common father. “Wealth I desire to have,” says Solon, “but wrongfully to get it, I do not wish,”² believing that punishment would follow. And Publicola’s wealth was not only not ill got, but also nobly spent in benefactions to the needy. So that if Solon was the wisest, Publicola was the most happy of men, since what Solon prayed for as the greatest and κάλλιστα, ταῦτα καὶ κτήσασθαι Ποπλικόλα καὶ φυλάξαι χρωμένω μέχρι τέλους ὑπῆρξεν.

¹ Fragment 21 (Bergk).

² See Solon, ii. 3.

PLUTARCH'S LIVES

II. Οὕτω μὲν ὁ Σόλων κεκόσμηκε τὸν Ποπλικόλαν, τὸν Σόλωνα δ' αὖ πάλιν ἐκείνος ἐν τῇ πολιτεῖα παραδειγμάτων κάλλιστον ἀνδρὶ κοσμοῦντι δημοκρατίαν θέμενος· τῆς μὲν γὰρ ἀρχῆς τὸν ὄγκον ἀφελὼν εὐμενῆ πᾶσι καὶ ἄλυπον κατέστησε, νόμοις δὲ πολλοῖς ἐχρήσατο τῶν ἐκείνου. καὶ γὰρ ἀρχόντων καταστάσεως κυρίους ἐποίησε τοὺς πολλούς, καὶ τοῖς φεύγουσι δίκην ἐπικαλεῖσθαι τὸν δῆμον, ὥσπερ ὁ Σόλων τοὺς δικαστάς, ἔδωκε. καὶ βουλὴν μὲν ἑτέραν οὐκ ἐποίησεν, ὥσπερ ὁ Σόλων, τὴν δ' οὖσαν ἠϋξησεν ἀριθμῶ

2 μικροῦ διπλασιάσας. ἣ τε τῶν ταμιῶν ἐπὶ τοῖς χρήμασι καταστάσις ἐκείθεν ἦλθεν, ὅπως ὁ ἀρχων μὴτ' εἰ χρηστός ἐστὶν ἀσχολίαν ἔχη πρὸς τὰ μείζω, μὴτ' εἰ φαῦλος ἀφορμὰς τοῦ ἀδικεῖν μάλλον, καὶ τῶν πράξεων καὶ τῶν χρημάτων κύριος γενόμενος. τὸ δὲ μισοτύραννον ἐν τῷ Ποπλικόλα σφοδρότερον. εἰ γὰρ τις ἐπιχειροῖη τυραννεῖν, ὁ μὲν ἀλόντι τὴν δίκην ἐπιτίθησιν, ὁ

3 δὲ καὶ πρὸ τῆς κρίσεως ἀνελεῖν δίδωσι. σεμνομένου δὲ τοῦ Σόλωνος ὀρθῶς καὶ δικαίως ὅτι καὶ τῶν πραγμάτων αὐτῷ διδόντων τυραννεῖν καὶ τῶν πολιτῶν οὐκ ἀκουσίως δεχομένων ἀπεῖπεν, οὐχ ἥττον ὑπάρχει καλὸν τῷ Ποπλικόλα τὸ λαβόντα τυραννικὴν ἀρχὴν ποιῆσαι δημοτικωτέραν καὶ μηδ' οἷς ἐξῆν ἔχοντα χρήσασθαι. καὶ τοῦτο δ'

COMPARISON OF SOLON AND PUBLICOLA

fairest of blessings, these Publicola was privileged to win and continue to enjoy until the end.

II. Thus did Solon enhance the fame of Publicola. And Publicola, too, in his political activities, enhanced the fame of Solon, by making him the fairest of examples for one who was arranging a democracy. For he took away the arrogant powers of the consulship and made it gracious and acceptable to all, and he adopted many of Solon's laws. For instance, he put the appointment of their rulers in the power of the people, and gave defendants the right of appealing to the people, as Solon to the jurors. He did not, indeed, create a new senate, as Solon did, but he increased the one already existing to almost double its numbers. And his appointment of quaestors over the public moneys had a like origin. Its purpose was that the consul, if a worthy officer, might not be without leisure for his more important duties, and, if unworthy, might not have greater opportunities for injustice by having both the administration and the treasury in his hands. Hatred of tyranny was more intense in Publicola than in Solon. For in case any one attempted to usurp the power, by Solon's law he could be punished only after conviction, whereas Publicola made it lawful to kill him before any trial. Moreover, though Solon rightly and justly plumes himself on rejecting absolute power even when circumstances offered it to him and his fellow-citizens were willing that he should take it, it redounds no less to the honour of Publicola that, when he had received a tyrannical power, he made it more democratic, and did not use even the prerogatives which were his by right of possession. And of the wisdom of such a course

PLUTARCH'S LIVES

ἔοικε συνιδεῖν πρότερος ὁ Σόλων, ὅτι δῆμος

ὡδ' ἂν ἄριστα σὺν ἡγεμόνεσσι ἐποίτο,
μήτε λήην ἀνεθείς μήτε πιεζόμενος.

III. Ἴδιον δὲ τοῦ Σόλωνος ἡ τῶν χρεῶν ἀνεσις, ἣ
μάλιστα τὴν ἐλευθερίαν ἐβεβαίωσε τοῖς πολίταις.
οὐδὲν γὰρ ὄφελος νόμων ἰσότητα παρεχόντων,
ἣν ἀφαιρεῖται τὰ χρέα τοὺς πένητας· ἀλλ' ὅπου
μάλιστα χρῆσθαι τῇ ἐλευθερίᾳ δοκοῦσι, δου-λεύουσι μάλιστα τοῖς πλουσίοις, ἐν τῷ δικάζειν
καὶ ἄρχειν καὶ λέγειν ἐπιταττόμενοι καὶ ὑπηρε-2 τούντες. τούτου δὲ μείζον, ὅτι πάση χρεῶν ἀπο-κοπῇ στάσεως ἐπομένης, ἐκείνη μόνῃ, καθάπερ
φαρμάκῳ παραβόλῳ μὲν, ἰσχυρῷ δὲ χρησάμενος
εὐκαίρως, καὶ τὴν οὔσαν στάσιν ἔλυσε, τῇ περι
αὐτὸν ἀρετῇ καὶ δόξῃ τῆς τοῦ πράγματος ἀδοξίας
καὶ διαβολῆς περιγενόμενος.

Τῆς δ' ὅλης πολιτείας τῇ μὲν ἀρχῇ λαμπρό-τερος ὁ Σόλων· ἠγήσατο γὰρ καὶ οὐκ ἠκολούθησε,
καὶ καθ' αὐτόν, οὐ μεθ' ἐτέρων, ἔπραξε τὰ πλείστα
καὶ μέγιστα τῶν κοινῶν· τῷ τέλει δὲ ἄτερος
3 εὐτυχῆς καὶ ζηλωτός. τὴν μὲν γὰρ Σόλωνος
πολιτείαν αὐτὸς ἐπέιδε Σόλων καταλυθεῖσαν, ἡ
δὲ Ποπλικόλα μέχρι τῶν ἐμφυλίων πολέμων
διεφύλαξεν ἐν κόσμῳ τὴν πόλιν· ὁ μὲν γὰρ ἅμα
τῷ θέσθαι τοὺς νόμους ἀπολιπὼν ἐν ξύλοις καὶ

COMPARISON OF SOLON AND PUBLICOLA

Solon seems to have been conscious even before Publicola, when he says¹ that a people

“then will yield the best obedience to its guides

When it is neither humoured nor oppressed too much.”

III. Peculiar to Solon was his remission of debts, and by this means especially he confirmed the liberties of the citizens. For equality under the laws is of no avail if the poor are robbed of it by their debts. Nay, in the very places where they are supposed to exercise their liberties most, there they are most in subjection to the rich, since in the courts of justice, the offices of state, and in public debates, they are under their orders and do them service. And what is of greater moment here, though sedition always follows an abolition of debts, in this case alone, by employing opportunely, as it were, a dangerous but powerful medicine, Solon actually put an end to the sedition that was already rife, for his own virtue and high repute prevailed over the ill-repute and odium of the measure.

As regards their political careers in general, Solon's was more brilliant in the beginning. For he led the way and followed no man, and it was alone and without colleagues that he effected the most and greatest of his public measures. But in the ending, the other was more fortunate and enviable. For Solon lived to see with his own eyes the dissolution of his polity, while that of Publicola preserved order in the city down to the civil wars. Solon, as soon as he had made his laws, left them

¹ Fragment 6 (Bergk); cf. Aristotle, Const. of Athens, xii. 2.

γράμμασιν ἐρήμους τοῦ βοηθοῦντος ὄχετ' ἀπιῶν
 ἐκ τῶν Ἀθηνῶν, ὁ δὲ μένων καὶ ἄρχων καὶ
 πολιτευόμενος ἴδρυσε καὶ κατέστησεν εἰς ἀσφαλές
 4 τὴν πολιτείαν. ἔτι δ' ἐκείνῳ μὲν οὐδὲ μέλλοντα
 κωλύσαι προαισθομένῳ Πεισίστρατον ὑπήρξεν,
 ἀλλ' ἠττήθη συνισταμένης τῆς τυραννίδος· οὗτος 111
 δὲ βασιλείαν ἰσχύουσαν ἐκ πολλῶν χρόνων ἤδη
 καὶ κρατοῦσαν ἐξέβαλε καὶ κατέλυσεν, ἀρετὴν
 μὲν ἴσῃν καὶ προαίρεσιν ὁμοίαν παρασχόμενος,
 τύχῃ δὲ καὶ δυνάμει τελεσιουργῶ πρὸς τὴν ἀρετὴν χρῆσάμενος.

IV. Τῶν μέντοι πολεμικῶν Σόλωνι μὲν οὐδὲ τὰ
 πρὸς Μεγαρεῖς Δαίμαχος ὁ Πλαταιεὺς μεμαρ-τύρηκεν, ὥσπερ ἡμεῖς διεληλύθαμεν· Ποπλικόλας
 δὲ τοὺς μεγίστους ἀγῶνας αὐτὸς καὶ μαχόμενος
 καὶ στρατηγῶν κατώρθωσε. καὶ μὴν ἔτι πρὸς
 τὰς πολιτικὰς πράξεις ὁ μὲν ἐν παιδιᾷ τινι
 τρόπῳ καὶ προσποίημα μανίας ἀναλαβών, ὑπὲρ
 2 Σαλαμῖνος ἐρῶν προῆλθεν· ὁ δ' αὐτόθεν ἀναρρίψας τὸν περὶ τῶν μεγίστων κίνδυνον ἐπανέστη
 τε Ταρκυνίοις καὶ τὴν προδοσίαν ἐφώρασε· καὶ
 τοῦ κολασθῆναι καὶ μὴ διαφυγεῖν τοὺς πονηροὺς
 αἰτιώτατος γενόμενος οὐ τὰ σώματα μόνον τῶν
 τυράννων ἐξέβαλε τῆς πόλεως, ἀλλὰ καὶ τὰς
 ἐλπίδας ἐξέκοψεν. οὕτω δὲ τοῖς δεχομένοις
 πράγμασιν ἀγῶνα καὶ θυμὸν καὶ ἀντίταξιν
 ἐρρωμένως καὶ ἀτενῶς ἀπαντήσας, ἔτι βέλτιον
 ἐχρήσατο τοῖς ὀμιλίαις ἀπολέμου καὶ πειθοῦς

COMPARISON OF SOLON AND PUBLICOLA

inscribed on wooden tables and destitute of a defender, and departed from Athens; whereas Publicola, by remaining in the city, serving as consul, and busying himself with public affairs, firmly and safely established his form of government. And further, though Solon knew beforehand of the designs of Peisistratus, he was not able to hinder them, but yielded to his tyranny in its incipiency; whereas Publicola subverted and drove out a kingly power which was strong with the might which many ages bring. Thus, while exhibiting virtues equal to Solon's, and a purpose identical with his, he enjoyed a good fortune and an efficacious power which supplemented his virtues.

IV. When we consider their military careers, moreover, Daimachus of Plataea does not allow Solon even the conduct of the war against the Megarians, as we have described it; ¹ but Publicola, fighting and commanding in person, brought the greatest struggles to a successful issue. And still further, comparing their political activities, Solon, in play, so to speak, and counterfeiting madness, went forth to plead for the recovery of Salamis; but Publicola, without any subterfuges, ran the greatest risks, set himself in opposition to the party of the Tarquins, and detected their treachery. Then, after being mainly instrumental in the capture and punishment of the traitors, he not only drove the tyrants themselves from the city, but extirpated their very hopes of return. And if he thus sturdily and resolutely confronted situations which called for active and spirited opposition, still better did he deal with those which required peaceable intercourse and gentle Solon, viii. ; cf. Aristotle, Const. of Athens, xiv. 1.

PLUTARCH'S LIVES

ὑπεικούσης δεομένοις, Πορσίαν ἄμαχον ἄνδρα καὶ φοβερὸν ἐμμελῶς προσαγαγόμενος καὶ μεταστήσας εἰς φιλίαν.

- 3 Καίτοι φήσει τις ἐνταῦθα τὸν μὲν Σόλωνα προεμένοις ἀναλαβεῖν Ἀθηναίοις Σαλαμίνα, τὸν δὲ Ποπλικόλαν ἧς ἐκέκτηντο Ῥωμαῖοι χώρας ἀποστήναι. δεῖ δὲ πρὸς τοὺς ὑποκειμένους καιροὺς τὰς πράξεις θεωρεῖν. ποικίλος γὰρ ὢν ὁ πολιτικὸς ᾧ τρόπῳ τῶν ὄντων ἕκαστον εὐληπτὸν ἐστι μεταχειρίζεται,¹ καὶ μέρους ἀφέσει πολλάκις ἔσωσε τὸ πᾶν καὶ μικρῶν ἀποστάς
- 4 μειζόνων ἔτυχεν, ὥσπερ ἐκεῖνος ὁ ἄνθρωπος τότε τῆς μὲν ἀλλοτρίας χώρας ἀποστάς ἔσωσε τὴν ἑαυτοῦ βεβαίως ἅπασαν, οἷς δ' ἦν μέγα τὴν πόλιν διαφυλάξαι προσεκτήσατο τὸ τῶν πολιορκούντων στρατόπεδον, ἐπιτρέψας δὲ τῷ πολεμῷ δικαστῆ γενέσθαι, καὶ περιγενόμενος τῇ δίκῃ, προσέλαβεν ὅσα δόντας ἀγαπητὸν ἦν νικῆσαι· καὶ γὰρ τὸν πόλεμον διέλυσε καὶ τὴν παρασκευὴν τοῦ πολέμου κατέλιπεν αὐτοῖς διὰ πίστιν ἀρετῆς καὶ καλοκαγαθίας, ἣν ὁ ἄρχων ὑπὲρ ἀπάντων ἐνεποίησεν αὐτῷ.

¹ μεταχειρίζεται with two Paris MSS., Coraë's, and Bekker: μεταχειρίσασθαι.

COMPARISON OF SOLON AND PUBLICOLA

persuasion, as when he tactfully won over Porsena, an invincible and formidable foe, and made him a friend of Rome.

But here, perhaps, some one will say that Solon won back Salamis for the Athenians when they had given it up, whereas Publicola relinquished territory which the Romans had acquired. But we must view men's actions in the light of the times which call them forth. The subtle statesman will handle each issue that arises in the most feasible manner, and often saves the whole by relinquishing a part, and by yielding small advantages secures greater ones. And so Publicola, in that instance, by yielding the territory which belonged to others, saved all that was assuredly his own, and procured besides, for those who were hard put to it to save their city, the camp of their besiegers with all its stores. He made his adversary judge in the controversy, won his case, and received besides what his people would gladly have given for the victory. For Porsena put a stop to the war, and left the Romans all his provisions for carrying it on, owing to the confidence in their virtue and nobility with which their consul had inspired him.

A PARTIAL DICTIONARY OF PROPER NAMES

A

- Abantes, 11, a people of Euboea in the Homeric period.
- Adrastus, 67, king of Argos, and leader of the "Seven against Thebes."
- Aclius, Calus, 159, interpreter in the Roman senate for the Athenian embassy of 155 B.C. (Cato Major, xxii. 4), author of a history of Rome from the earliest to his own time.
- Aeacus, 21, a mythical king of Aegina, after death one of the judges in Hades.
- Agnus, 27, an Attic township N.E. of Athens.
- Alba, 97, a very ancient town of Latium, on the Alban lake, some twelve miles S.E. of Rome.
- Alcman, 291, a Lydian of Sardis, who came in his youth to Sparta, and became the founder of Dorian lyric poetry. He flourished in the latter half of the seventh century B.C.
- Alcmene, 17, wife of Amphitryon of Thebes, and mother of Heracles by Zeus.
- Anacharsis, 415, a Scythian, who travelled extensively in pursuit of knowledge (Herod. iv. 76 f).
- Anaximenes, the orator, 527, of Lampsacus, a pupil of Diogenes the Cynic, active at Athens as rhetorician and historian in the latter half of the fourth century B.C.
- Androgeos, 29, son of Minos the king of Crete.
- Andron of Halicarnassus, 57, a genealogical writer of the fourth century B.C.
- Androtion, 443, active in the political life of Athens from 376 to 346 B.C. In old age and exile he wrote an Atthis, or History of Attica, which was much read.
- Antias, Valerius, 131, 381, a Roman historian who flourished in the earlier part of the first century B.C. His history extended from the earliest times down to those of Sulla, and was much used by both Livy and Plutarch.
- Antigonus, 141, probably the general of Alexander who was afterwards king of Asia, surnamed the One-eyed.
- Antigonus, 143, author of a History of Italy, in Greek, probably in the latter part of the third century B.C.
- Antimachus, of Teos, 121, an early epic poet. Two poems of the epic cycle, the Thebais, and the Epigoni, went under his name.
- Antisthenes the Socratic, 301, a pupil of Gorgias and friend of Socrates.
- Aphidnae, 75, an ancient Attic township, about fifteen miles N.W. of Athens.
- Apollodorus, 205, a learned grammarian of Athens in the latter part of the second century B.C. A treatise of his on mythology, the Bibliotheca, has come down to us.
- Apollothemis, 303, mentioned only here.
- Archilochus, 11, 319, of Paros, one of the earliest Ionian lyric poets, flourishing in 650 B.C.
- Ardetus, 63, a hill in the S.E. suburbs of Athens.
- Ariadne, 37, daughter of Minos and Pasiphaë, of Crete

DICTIONARY OF PROPER NAMES

Aristocrates, 217, 303, known only as the author of an antiquarian and historical work on Sparta, probably of the early Roman imperial period.

Aristomenes, 169, the Messenian hero of the second war between Messenia and Sparta (685-668 B.C.).

Aristoxenus, 303, of Tarentum, a Greek writer on philosophy and music, a pupil of Aristotle, flourishing in 330 B.C. Parts of his works on Harmony and Rhythm have come down to us.

Athenodorus, son of Sandon, 549, of Tarsus, a Stoic philosopher long resident at Rome, and much esteemed by Augustus.

B

Blon, 59, of Proconnesus, a compiler of mythical history, of uncertain date, not earlier than the fourth century B.C.

Boëdromion, the third month in the Attic calendar, corresponding nearly to our September.

Brasidas, 283, the greatest Spartan hero of the Peloponnesian war. His death at Amphipolis is described by Thucydides in v. 10.

Brauron, 429, an ancient city on the eastern coast of Attica.

Busiris, 23, a mythical Egyptian king, who sacrificed all foreigners that entered his country.

Butas, 159, probably the freedman of Cato the Younger (Plutarch, Cato Minor, lxx.), known as a writer only from this mention of his work.

C

Camera, 167, an ancient city of Latium, the site of which is unknown.

Cephalus, 23, a river flowing through the plain west of Athens.

Chaeroneia, 65, a town on the northern confines of Boeotia.

Chalcis, 63, the chief town of Euboea, on the straits of the Euripus.

Chrysa, 63, apparently a district of Athens at the foot of the Pnyx hill; but there are no other allusions to it.

Cirrha, 429, a town on the Corinthian gulf, serving as the seaport of Delphi.

Cleidemus, 39, 63, the oldest annalist of Athens, circa 420-350 B.C.

Clodius, 307, a Roman chronographer, otherwise unknown.

Codrus, 405, the last king of Athens, who, according to tradition, sacrificed himself for his country.

Colchis, 67, a district on the eastern shore of the Euxine sea.

Collas, Cape, 423, about three miles to the south-east of the ancient harbour of Phalerum.

Creophylus, 215, one of the earliest epic poets of Greece, said to have been a native of Chios, and a relative of Homer. The epic poem Oechalia was attributed to him.

Crommyon, Crommyonia, 19, a village and district on the Isthmus of Corinth.

Cythereus, 21, a mythical king of Salamis, receiving hero worship.

Cycnus, 23, a mythical son of Ares, slain by Heracles in Thessaly.

D

Daedalus, 39, the mythical "cunning artificer" of Athens, who took refuge with king Minos of Crete, for whom he built the Labyrinth. He was the father of Icarus.

Dalmachus of Plataea, 573, a Greek historian active in the latter part of the fourth century B.C., author of a work on India.

Deidameia, 69, wife of Peirithoüs, commonly called Hippodameia.

Deinon, 37, 51, one of the annalists of Athens, contemporary with Philochorus (306-260 B.C.).

DICTIONARY OF PROPER NAMES

Demades, 451, a prominent orator and statesman at Athens in the times of Phillip, Alexander, and Antipater; a member of the Macedonian party.

Demetrius the Phalerean, 277, 467, regent at Athens for Cassander 317-307 B.C., a voluminous writer on history, politics, poetry, and philosophy.

Dicaearchus, 45, a celebrated Peripatetic philosopher, a disciple of Aristotle and a friend of Theophrastus.

Didymus, 405, the celebrated Alexandrian grammarian, of the time of Augustus.

Dieutychidas, 207, perhaps Dieuchidas is meant, a Megarian chronicler, of the fourth century B.C.

Diocles of Peparethus, 97, 113, an otherwise almost unknown Greek writer, whom Plutarch regards as a source for Fabius Pictor.

Diodorus the Topographer (or Periegete), 85, was probably an Athenian, and flourished at and after the time of Alexander the Great (330-300 B.C.). He wrote a work on the townships of Attica, and one on its monuments.

Diogenes, 301, probably Diogenes the Babylonian is meant, the head of the Stoic school at Athens, and one of the Athenian embassy to Rome in 155 B.C. He wrote a treatise on Laws.

Dionysius, 459, the Elder, tyrant of Syracuse 405-367 B.C.

Dionysius, 139, of Halicarnassus, went to Rome about 29 B.C., where he remained for twenty-two years, collecting materials for his great work on the antiquities and history of Rome.

Dioscorides (or Dioscurides), 237, a pupil of Isocrates, writing in the latter part of the fourth century B.C.

Draco, 449, one of the "thesmothetai," or six legislative archons at Athens, in 621 B.C.

E

Eleusis, 21, a city some twelve miles west of Athens, the seat of the celebrated mysteries.

Eleutheræe, 69, a mountain fastness between Eleusis and Boeotia.

Epicharmus the comic poet, 335, 542, born on the island of Cos, about 540 B.C., but early taken to Megara in Sicily, and from 484 to 450 B.C. one of the ornaments of the court of Hiero of Syracuse.

Epidauria, 17, between Troezen, on the N.E. coast of Peloponnesus, and the Isthmus of Corinth.

Eratosthenes, 205, of Cyrene, 276-196 B.C., a learned geographer and mathematician, for many years librarian at Alexandria.

Erechtheus, 39, a mythical king of Athens.

Eurytus, 19, a mythical king of the Thessalian city of Oechalia.

Evander, 125, the reputed leader of a colony from Arcadia into Italy, some sixty years before the Trojan war.

G

Gabii, 103, one of the oldest cities of Latium, about twelve miles S.E. of Rome; probably an earlier colony from Alba than Rome.

Gargettus, 27, an Attic township N.E. of Athens.

Gymnosophists, 217, the naked philosophers of India. See Plutarch's Alexander, lxiv.

H

Hecataeus the Sophist, 267, of Abdera, a learned philosopher, critic, and grammarian, contemporary with the first Ptolemy (324-283 B.C.).

Hecatombæon, the first month of the Attic calendar, corresponding nearly to our July.

DICTIONARY OF PROPER NAMES

Hellanicus, 33, of Lesbos, the greatest of the Greek chroniclers, 480-395 (?) B.C.

Heracleides Ponticus, 405, 467, so called from his birth in Heracleia of Pontus, a pupil of Plato and Aristotle, and a learned and voluminous writer on almost all possible subjects. Cicero thought him superstitious and uncritical.

Heracleitus, 183, of Ephesus, a philosopher of the Ionian school, who flourished in the latter part of the sixth century B.C.

Hereas the Megarian, 41, 77, 429, known only through Plutarch's citations.

Hermippus, 279, 407, of Smyrna, a distinguished philosopher and biographer, active in the second half of the third century B.C.

Herodorus, 59, of Heracleia in Pontus, flourished in the latter half of the sixth century B.C., and was the author of an extended work on the mythology and worship of Heracles.

Hippias the Sophist, 277, 309, a native of Elis, and a contemporary of Socrates. Two dialogues of Plato bear his name.

Hippocrates, 409, of Chios, a Pythagorean philosopher, flourishing in the middle of the fifth century B.C., and chiefly famous as a mathematician.

Hippodameia, 17, daughter of Oenomaüs, and wife of Pelops.

I

Idas, 71, a Messenian hero, inseparable from his brother, the keen-eyed Lynceus, with whom he took part in the Argonautic expedition and the Calydonian boar hunt.

Ides, the fifteenth day of the Roman month (the thirteenth of March, May, July, and October).

Ion of Chios, 41, a popular poet at Athens between 452 and 421 B.C., also author of a prose work entitled "Sojourns," in which he recounted his experiences with famous men of the day.

Ister, 79, of Cyrene, a Greek historian flourishing between 250 and 230 B.C.

J

Juba, 131, 331, 353, Juba II., king of Mauritania. He lived from 50 B.C. to about 20 A.D., was educated at Rome, and became a learned and voluminous writer. Among his works was a History of Rome.

L

Lapithae, 67, a mountain tribe of Thessaly.

Laurentum, 165, the ancient capital of Latium, on the sea-coast, about sixteen miles S.W. of Rome.

Lavinium, 163, an ancient city of Latium, about seventeen miles S.W. of Rome.

Lyceum, 63, in historic times a gymnasium in the eastern suburbs of Athens.

Lynceus, 71, see Idas.

M

Mantineæ, 353, one of the most ancient and powerful towns in Arcadia.

Melicertes, 57, a legendary personage, son of Athamas and Ino and, after his death by drowning, a beneficent sea deity.

Melité, 429, a deme, or ward, of the city of Athens, comprising the hill-region west of the acropolis.

Menecrates, 59, otherwise unknown.

Metellus, Quintus, 117, probably the consul of 60 B.C. His father had been consul in 93 B.C.

Molpadia, 63, an Amazon who was said to have slain Antiope. She was herself slain by Theseus, and her tomb was shown at Athens (Pausanias, i. 2, 1).

DICTIONARY OF PROPER NAMES

Munychion, the tenth month of the Attic calendar, corresponding nearly to our April.

Museum, 63, one of three hills to the S.W. of the acropolis at Athens.

N

Naxos, 41, the largest of the Cyclades islands, half way between Attica and Asia Minor.

Nones, the ninth day of the Roman month (the seventh of March, May, July, and October).

O

Oechalia, 19, see Eurytus.

Omphalé, 15, a mythical queen of Lydia.

P

Paeon the Amathusian, 43, otherwise unknown.

Palladium, 63, a sacred precinct, evidently near Ardettus, in the S.E. suburbs of Athens. In historical times the "ephetai" sat here to try cases of involuntary homicide.

Pallené, 27, an Attic township N.E. of Athens.

Parrhasius, 11, a celebrated painter, a native of Ephesus, but resident at Athens, flourishing in 400 B.C.

Pasiphaë, 37, wife of Minos, and mother of Ariadne and the Minotaur.

Pataecus, 419, otherwise unknown.

Peirithoüs, 41, king of the Lapithae, a mountain tribe of Thessaly.

Pelsistratus, 41, became tyrant of Athens in 560 B.C.

Peleus, 21, mythical king of the Myrmidons of Thessaly, father of Achilles.

Pelops, 17, a mythical king of Elis in Peloponnesus, husband of Hippodamela.

Periander, 413, tyrant of Corinth 625-585 B.C., one of the Seven Wise Men.

Phalerum, 35, the ancient harbour of Athens, before Themistocles fortified Peiraeus.

Phanias the Lesbian, 437, of Eresos, the most distinguished pupil of Aristotle after Theophrastus, a prolific writer on philosophy and history, an historical romancer.

Pherecydes, 37, of Leros, one of the Greek logographers, who lived at Athens, and died about 400 B.C.

Philochorus, 29, 35, the most celebrated writer on the antiquities of Athens, 306-260 B.C.

Philostephanus, 277, of Cyrene, an Alexandrian historian and geographer, who was flourishing in 250 B.C.

Phlya, 433, a township in the eastern part of Attica.

Pictor, Fabius, 97, 113, the earliest Roman annalist, flourishing in the latter part of the third century B.C.

Plutus, 233, the god of wealth.

Pnyx, 61, that one of the three hills to the S.W. of the acropolis of Athens on which the people's assembly was held.

Polyzelus the Rhodian, 447, an historian of uncertain date.

Promathion, 97, otherwise unknown.

Pyanepsion, the fourth month of the Attic calendar, corresponding nearly to our October.

R

Rhadamanthus, 33, a brother of Minos king of Crete, and like him a judge in the under world.

S

Samothrace, 353, a large island in the northern Aegean sea, about forty miles south of the Thracian coast.

Scyros, 81, an island east of Euboea.

Selinus, 269, a Greek city on the southern coast of Sicily.

DICTIONARY OF PROPER NAMES

Silanio, 11, a famous Athenian statuary in bronze, flourishing in 320 B.C.
 Simonides, 21, 35, of Ceos, the greatest lyric poet of Greece, 556-467 B.C.
 Simylus the poet, 143, otherwise unknown.
 Sosibius, 281, a distinguished Lacedaemonian grammarian, flourishing about 250 B.C.
 Spendon the Spartan, 291, otherwise unknown.
 Sphaerus, 221, a Stoic philosopher who lived at Alexandria and Sparta, and flourished early in the third century B.C.
 Sphettus, 27, a township in the eastern part of Attica.
 Stratonicus, 299, probably the famous Athenian musician of the time of Alexander the Great.
 Sulla, Sextius, the Carthaginian, 133, otherwise unknown.

T

Tegea, 73, an ancient city in southern Arcadia.
 Telamon, 21, a mythical king of Salamis, son of Aeacus, father of Aias.
 Termerus, 23, a mythical highwayman slain by Heracles.
 Terpander, 291, of Lesbos, father of Greek music and lyric poetry, who taught at Sparta during the seventh century B.C.
 Thales, 409, 411, 417, of Miletus, the most celebrated Ionian philosopher, one of the Seven Wise Men, flourishing in the sixth century B.C.

Thales (or Thaletas), 213, a Cretan musician and poet, who was flourishing about 680 B.C.
 Timaeus, 205, 303, of Tauromenium, a famous historian of Sicily, 352-256 B.C.
 Timon the Phliasian, 333, a native of Phlius in N.E. Peloponnesus, composed satirical poems on earlier and current systems of philosophy (320-230 B.C.).
 Trachis, 71, a city of Malis, commanding the approach to Thermopylae.
 Troezen, 7, a city on the N.E. coast of Peloponnesus.
 Tyrtaeus, 225, a poet who flourished at Sparta during the second Messenian war (685-668 B.C.).

V

Valerias, 131, see Antias.
 Varro, 121, M. Terentius, "the most learned of the Romans," an intimate friend of Cicero, whose political principles he shared (116-28 B.C.).
 Veii, 169, an ancient and powerful city of Etruria, about twelve miles north of Rome.

Z

Zeno, 301, probably the Stoic philosopher is meant, who taught at Athens in the third century B.C., and wrote on law and government.
 Zenodotus of Troezen, 131, referred to by Dionysius Hal. (ii. 49) as author of a history of Umbria.

PLUTARCH'S LIVES

WITH AN ENGLISH TRANSLATION BY BERNADOTTE PERRIN

IN TEN VOLUMES

II

THEMISTOCLES AND CAMILLUS
ARISTIDES AND CATO MAJOR
CIMON AND LUCULLUS

LONDON : WILLIAM HEINEMANN
NEW YORK : THE MACMILLAN CO.

MCMXIV

571

307636

YR 1911 48.

PREFATORY NOTE

As in the first volume of this series, agreement between the Sintenis (Teubner, 1873-1875) and Bekker (Tauchnitz, 1855-1857) texts of the Parallel Lives has been taken as the basis for the text. Any preference of one to the other where they differ, and any departure from both, have been indicated. The more important ameliorations of the text which have been secured by collations of Codex Parisinus 1676 (F^a) and Codex Seitenstettensis (S), have been introduced. The relative importance of these MSS. is explained in the Introduction to the first volume. No attempt has been made, naturally, to furnish either a diplomatic text or a full critical apparatus. The reading which follows the colon in the critical notes is that of the Teubner Sintenis, and also, unless otherwise stated in the note, of the Tauchnitz Bekker.

Among editions of special Lives included in this volume should be noted that of Fuhr, Themistokles und Perikles, Berlin, 1880, in the Haupt-Sauppe series of annotated texts ; that of Blass, Themistokles und Perikles, Leipzig, 1883, in the Teubner series of annotated texts ; and the same editor's Aristides und Cato, Leipzig, 1898, in the same series. All these editions bring F^a and S into rightful prominence as a basis for the text. This has been done also by Holden, in his edition of the Themistocles (Macmillan, 1892).

PREFATORY NOTE

The translations of the Themistocles, Aristides, and Cimon have already appeared in my "Plutarch's Themistocles and Aristides" (New York, 1901), and "Plutarch's Cimon and Pericles" (New York, 1910), and are reproduced here (with only slight changes) by the generous consent of the publishers, the Messrs. Charles Scribner's Sons. The translations of the Camillus, Cato, and Lucullus appear here for the first time. All the standard translations of the Lives have been carefully compared and utilised, including that of the Lucullus by Professor Long.

B. PERRIN.

NEW HAVEN, CONNECTICUT, U.S.A.

February, 1914.

CONTENTS

	PAGE
PREFATORY NOTE	v
THEMISTOCLES	1
CAMILLUS	93
ARISTIDES	209
MARCUS CATO	301
COMPARISON OF ARISTIDES AND CATO	384
CIMON	403
LUCULLUS	469
COMPARISON OF CIMON AND LUCULLUS	610
DICTIONARY OF PROPER NAMES	623

ORDER OF THE PARALLEL LIVES IN THIS EDITION IN THE CHRONOLOGICAL SEQUENCE OF THE GREEK LIVES.

VOLUME I.

- (1) Theseus and Romulus.
Comparison.
- (2) Lycurgus and Numa.
Comparison.
- (3) Solon and Publicola.
Comparison.

VOLUME II.

- (4) Themistocles and
Camillus.
- (9) Aristides and Cato the
Elder.
Comparison.
- (13) Cimon and Lucullus.
Comparison.

VOLUME III.

- (5) Pericles and Fabius Max-
imus.
Comparison.
- (14) Nicias and Crassus.
Comparison.

VOLUME IV.

- (6) Alcibiades and Coriola-
nus.
Comparison.
- (12) Lysander and Sulla.
Comparison.

VOLUME V.

- (16) Agesilaus and Pompey.
Comparison.
- (8) Pelopidas and Marcellus.
Comparison.

VOLUME VI.

- (22) Dion and Brutus.
Comparison.
- (7) Timoleon and Aemilius
Paulus.
Comparison.
- (20) Demosthenes and Cicero.
Comparison.

VOLUME VII.

- (17) Alexander and Julius Caesar.
- (15) Sertorius and Eumenes.
Comparison.

VOLUME VIII.

- (18) Phocion and Cato the Younger.
- (21) Demetrius and Antony.
Comparison.

VOLUME IX.

- (11) Pyrrhus and Caius Marius.
- (19) Agis and Cleomenes, and
Tiberius and Caius
Gracchus.
Comparison.

VOLUME X.

- (10) Philopoemen and Flam-
inius.
Comparison.
- (23) Aratus.
- (24) Artaxerxes.
- (25) Galba.
- (26) Otho.

THE TRADITIONAL ORDER OF THE PARALLEL LIVES.

- (1) Theseus and Romulus.
- (2) Lycurgus and Numa.
- (3) Solon and Publicola.
- (4) Themistocles and Camillus.
- (5) Pericles and Fabius Maximus.
- (6) Alcibiades and Coriolanus.
- (7) Timoleon and Aemilius Paulus.
- (8) Pelopidas and Marcellus.
- (9) Aristides and Cato the Elder.
- (10) Philopoemen and Flamininus.
- (11) Pyrrhus and Caius Marius.
- (12) Lysander and Sulla.
- (13) Cimon and Lucullus.
- (14) Nicias and Crassus.
- (15) Sertorius and Eumenes.
- (16) Agesilaus and Pompey.
- (17) Alexander and Julius Caesar.
- (18) Phocion and Cato the Younger.
- (19) Agis and Cleomenes, and Tiberius and Caius
Gracchus.
- (20) Demosthenes and Cicero.
- (21) Demetrius and Antony.
- (22) Dion and Brutus.
.
- (23) Aratus.
- (24) Artaxerxes.
- (25) Galba.
- (26) Otho.

THEMISTOCLES

VOL. II.

B

ΘΕΜΙΣΤΟΚΛΗΣ

Ι. Θεμιστοκλεῖ δὲ τὰ μὲν ἐκ γένους ἀμαυρότερα πρὸς δόξαν ὑπήρχε· πατὴρ γὰρ ἦν Νεοκλέους οὐ τῶν ἄγαν ἐπιφανῶν Ἀθήνησι, Φρεαρρίου τῶν δῆμων ἐκ τῆς Λεοντίδος φυλῆς, νόθος δὲ πρὸς μητρός, ὡς λέγουσιν·

Ἀβρότονον Θρηῖσσα γυνὴ γένος· ἀλλὰ τεκέσθαι τὸν μέγαν Ἑλλησίν φημι Θεμιστοκλέα.

2 Φανίας μέντοι τὴν μητέρα τοῦ Θεμιστοκλέους οὐ Θραῦτταν, ἀλλὰ Καρίνην, οὐδ' Ἀβρότονον ὄνομα, ἀλλ' Εὐτέρπην ἀναγράφει. Νεάνθης δὲ καὶ πόλιν αὐτῇ τῆς Καρίας Ἀλικαρνασσὸν προστίθησι.

Διὸ καὶ τῶν νόθων εἰς Κυνόσαργες συντελούντων (τοῦτο δ' ἐστὶν ἔξω πυλῶν γυμνάσιον Ἡρακλέους, ἐπεὶ κακείνος οὐκ ἦν γνήσιος ἐν θεοῖς, ἀλλ' ἐνείχετο νοθεία διὰ τὴν μητέρα θνητὴν οὖσαν) ἔπειθέ τις ὁ Θεμιστοκλῆς τῶν εὐγεγονότων νεανίσκων καταβαίνοντας εἰς τὸ Κυνόσαργες ἀλείφεσθαι μετ' αὐτοῦ. καὶ τούτου γενομένου

THEMISTOCLES

I. In the case of Themistocles,¹ his family was too obscure to further his reputation. His father was Neocles,—no very conspicuous man at Athens,—a Phrearrhian by deme, of the tribe Leontis; and on his mother's side he was an alien, as her epitaph testifies :—

“ Abrotonon was I, and a woman of Thrace, yet I brought forth
That great light of the Greeks,—know ! 'twas Themistocles.”²

Phanias, however, writes that the mother of Themistocles was not a Thracian, but a Carian woman, and that her name was not Abrotonon, but Euterpe. And Neanthes actually adds the name of her city in Caria,—Halicarnassus.

It was for the reason given, and because the aliens were wont to frequent Cynosarges,—this is a place outside the gates, a gymnasium of Heracles; for he too was not a legitimate god, but had something alien about him, from the fact that his mother was a mortal,—that Themistocles sought to induce certain well-born youths to go out to Cynosarges and exercise with him; and by his success in this bit of cunning

¹ It is probable that one or more introductory paragraphs of this biography have been lost. ² Athenaeus, xiii. p. 576.

PLUTARCH'S LIVES

δοκεῖ πανούργως τὸν τῶν νόθων καὶ γνησίων διορισμὸν ἀνελεῖν.

- 3 "Ὅτι μέντοι τοῦ Λυκομιδῶν γένους μετεῖχε δῆλός ἐστι· τὸ γὰρ Φλυῆσι τελεστήριον, ὅπερ ἦν Λυκομιδῶν κοινόν, ἐμπρήσθην ὑπὸ τῶν βαρβάρων αὐτὸς ἐπεσκεύασε καὶ γραφαῖς ἐκόσμησεν, ὡς Σιμωνίδης ἰστορῆκεν.

II. Ἔτι δὲ παῖς ὢν ὁμολογεῖται φορᾶς μεστὸς εἶναι, καὶ τῇ μὲν φύσει συνετός, τῇ δὲ προαιρέσει μεγαλοπράγμων καὶ πολιτικός. ἐν γὰρ ταῖς ἀνέσεσι καὶ σχολαῖς ἀπὸ τῶν μαθημάτων γινόμενος οὐκ ἔπαιζεν οὐδ' ἐρραθύμει, καθάπερ οἱ λοιποὶ παῖδες, ἀλλ' εὐρίσκετο λόγους τινὰς μελετῶν καὶ συνταττόμενος πρὸς ἑαυτόν. ἦσαν δ' οἱ λόγοι κατηγορία τινὸς ἢ συνηγορία τῶν παίδων.

- 2 ὅθεν εἰώθει λέγειν πρὸς αὐτὸν ὁ διδάσκαλος ὡς "Οὐδὲν ἔση, παῖ, σὺ μικρόν, ἀλλὰ μέγα πάντως ἀγαθὸν ἢ κακόν." ἐπεὶ καὶ τῶν παιδεύσεων τὰς μὲν ἠθοποιούς ἢ πρὸς ἡδονὴν τινα καὶ χάριν ἐλευθέριον σπουδαζόμενας ὀκνηρῶς καὶ ἀπροθύμως ἐξεμάνθανε, τῶν δὲ εἰς σύνεσιν ἢ πρᾶξιν λεγομένων δῆλος ἦν ὑπερορῶν¹ παρ' ἡλικίαν, ὡς τῇ φύσει πιστεύων.

- 3 "Ὅθεν ὕστερον ἐν ταῖς ἐλευθερίοις καὶ ἀστείαις λεγομέναις διατριβαῖς ὑπὸ τῶν πεπαιδευσθαι δοκούντων χλευαζόμενος ἠναγκάζετο φορτικώτερον ἀμύνεσθαι, λέγων, ὅτι λύραν μὲν ἀρμόσα-

¹ ὑπερορῶν Sintenis² with the best MSS.; Sintenis¹ and Bekker have οὐχ ὑπερορῶν, showed attentiveness.

THEMISTOCLES

he is thought to have removed the distinction between aliens and legitimates.

However, it is clear that he was connected with the family of the Lycomidae, for he caused the chapel shrine at Phlya, which belonged to the Lycomidae, and had been burned by the Barbarians, to be restored at his own costs and adorned with frescoes, as Simonides has stated.

II. However lowly his birth, it is agreed on all hands that while yet a boy he was impetuous, by nature sagacious, and by election enterprising and prone to public life. In times of relaxation and leisure, when absolved from his lessons, he would not play nor indulge his ease, as the rest of the boys did, but would be found composing and rehearsing to himself mock speeches. These speeches would be in accusation or defence of some boy or other. Wherefore his teacher was wont to say to him: "My boy, thou wilt be nothing insignificant, but something great, of a surety, either for good or evil." Moreover, when he was set to study, those branches which aimed at the formation of character, or ministered to any gratification or grace of a liberal sort, he would learn reluctantly and sluggishly; and to all that was said for the cultivation of sagacity or practical efficiency, he clearly showed an indifference far beyond his years, as though he put his confidence in his natural gifts alone.

Thus it came about that, in after life, at entertainments of a so-called liberal and polite nature, when he was taunted by men of reputed culture, he was forced to defend himself rather rudely, saying that

PLUTARCH'S LIVES

σθαι καὶ μεταχειρίσασθαι ψαλτήριον οὐκ ἐπίσταται, πόλιν δὲ μικρὰν καὶ ἄδοξον παραλαβὼν ἔνδοξον καὶ μεγάλην ἀπεργάσασθαι. καίτοι Στησίμβροτος Ἀναξαγόρου τε διακοῦσαι τὸν Θεμιστοκλέα φησὶ καὶ περὶ Μέλισσου σπουδάσαι τὸν φυσικόν, οὐκ εὖ τῶν χρόνων ἀπτόμενος· Περικλεῖ γάρ, ὃς πολὺ νεώτερος ἦν Θεμιστοκλέους, Μέλισσος μὲν ἀντεστρατήγει πολιορκοῦντι Σαμίους, Ἀναξαγόρας δὲ συνδιέτριβε.

4 Μᾶλλον οὖν ἂν τις προσέχοι τοῖς Μνησιφίλου τὸν Θεμιστοκλέα τοῦ Φρεαρρίου ζηλωτὴν γενέσθαι λέγουσιν, οὔτε ῥήτορος ὄντος οὔτε τῶν φυσικῶν κληθέντων φιλοσόφων, ἀλλὰ τὴν τότε¹ καλουμένην σοφίαν, οὐσαν δὲ δεινότητα πολιτικὴν καὶ δραστήριον σύνεσιν, ἐπιτήδευμα πεποιημένου καὶ διασώζοντος ὥσπερ αἴρεσιν ἐκ διαδοχῆς ἀπὸ Σόλωνος· ἦν οἱ μετὰ ταῦτα δικανικαῖς μίξαντες τέχναις καὶ μεταγαγόντες ἀπὸ τῶν πράξεων τὴν ἀσκησιν ἐπὶ τοὺς λόγους, σοφισταὶ προσηγορεύθησαν. τούτῳ μὲν οὖν ἤδη πολιτευόμενος ἐπλησίαζεν.

5 Ἐν δὲ ταῖς πρώταις τῆς νεότητος ὄρμαῖς ἀνώμαλος ἦν καὶ ἀστάθμητος, ἅτε τῇ φύσει καθ' αὐτὴν χρώμενος ἄνευ λόγου καὶ παιδείας ἐπ' ἀμφοτέρα μεγάλας ποιουμένη μεταβολὰς τῶν ἐπιτηδευμάτων καὶ πολλάκις ἐξισταμένη πρὸς τὸ χεῖρον, ὡς ὕστερον αὐτὸς ὠμολόγει, καὶ τοὺς τραχυτάτους πῶλους ἀρίστους ἵππους γίνεσθαι φάσκων, ὅταν ἦς προσήκει τύχῳσι παιδείας καὶ tuning the lyre and handling the harp were no accomplishments of his, but rather taking in hand a city that was small and inglorious and making it glorious and great. And yet Stesimbrotus says that Themistocles was a pupil of Anaxagoras, and a disciple of Melissus the physicist; but he is careless in his chronology. It was Pericles, a much younger man than Themistocles, whom Melissus opposed at the siege of Samos,¹ and with whom Anaxagoras was intimate.

6 καταρτύσεως. ἃ δὲ τούτων ἐξαρτῶσιν ἔνιοι διηγήματα πλάττοντες, ἀποκήρυξιν μὲν ὑπὸ τοῦ

¹ τὴν τότε Fuhr and Blass with S: τὴν.

THEMISTOCLES

Rather, then, might one side with those who say that Themistocles was a disciple of Mnesiphilus the Phrearrhian, a man who was neither a rhetorician nor one of the so-called physical philosophers, but a cultivator of what was then called sophia, or wisdom, although it was really nothing more than cleverness in politics and practical sagacity. Mnesiphilus received this sophia, and handed it down, as though it were the doctrine of a sect, in unbroken tradition from Solon. His successors blended it with forensic arts, and shifted its application from public affairs to language, and were dubbed "sophists." It was this man, then, to whom Themistocles resorted at the very beginning of his public life.

But in the first essays of his youth he was uneven and unstable, since he gave his natural impulses free course, which, without due address and training, rush to violent extremes in the objects of their pursuit, and often degenerate; as he himself in later life confessed, when he said that even the wildest colts made very good horses, if only they got the proper breaking and training. What some story-makers add to this, however, to the effect that his father disinherited him, and his mother took her πατρὸς αὐτοῦ, θάνατον δὲ τῆς μητρὸς ἐκούσιον ἐπὶ τῇ τοῦ παιδὸς ἀτιμία περιλύπου γενομένης, δοκεῖ κατεψεῦσθαι· καὶ τούναντίον εἰσὶν οἱ λέγοντες, ὅτι τοῦ τὰ¹ κοινὰ πράττειν ἀποτρέπων αὐτὸν ὁ πατὴρ ἐπεδείκνυε πρὸς τῇ θαλάττῃ τὰς παλαιὰς τριήρεις ἐρριμμένας καὶ παρορωμένας, ὡς δὴ καὶ πρὸς τοὺς δημαγωγούς, ὅταν ἄχρηστοι φαίνωνται, τῶν πολλῶν ὁμοίως ἐχόντων.

¹ 440 B.C.

III. Ταχὺ μέντοι καὶ νεανικῶς ἔοικεν ἄψασθαι τοῦ Θεμιστοκλέους τὰ πολιτικὰ πράγματα καὶ σφόδρα ἢ πρὸς δόξαν ὀρμὴ κρατῆσαι. δι' ἣν εὐθύς ἐξ ἀρχῆς τοῦ πρωτεύειν ἐφιέμενος ἰταμῶς 113 ὑφίστατο τὰς πρὸς τοὺς δυναμένους ἐν τῇ πόλει καὶ πρωτεύοντας ἀπεχθείας, μάλιστα δὲ Ἀριστείδην τὸν Λυσιμάχου, τὴν ἐναντίαν αἰεὶ πορευόμενον² αὐτῷ. καίτοι δοκεῖ παντάπασιν ἢ πρὸς τοῦτον ἔχθρα μεираκιώδη λαβεῖν ἀρχήν· ἠράσθησαν γὰρ ἀμφότεροι τοῦ καλοῦ Στησίλεω, Κείου τὸ γένος ὄντος, ὡς Ἀρίστων ὁ φιλόσοφος ἰστό-
2 ρηκεν. ἐκ δὲ τούτου διετέλουν καὶ περὶ τὰ δημόσια στασιάζοντες. οὐ μὴν ἄλλ' ἢ τῶν βίων καὶ τῶν τρόπων ἀνομοιότης ἔοικεν αὐξῆσαι τὴν διαφορὰν. πρῶτος γὰρ ὦν φύσει καὶ καλοκαγαθικός τὸν τρόπον ὁ Ἀριστείδης, καὶ πολιτευόμενος οὐ πρὸς χάριν οὐδὲ πρὸς δόξαν, ἀλλ' ἀπὸ τοῦ βελτίστου μετὰ ἀσφαλείας καὶ δικαιοσύνης, ἠναγκάζετο τῷ Θεμιστοκλεῖ τὸν δῆμον ἐπὶ πολλὰ κινουῖντι καὶ μεγάλας ἐπιφέρουσι καινοτομίας ἐναντιοῦσθαι πολλάκις, ἐνιστάμενος αὐτοῦ πρὸς τὴν αὐξῆσιν.

¹ τοῦ τὰ Fuhr and Blass with F^aS: τὰ.

² πορευόμενον with Bekker and the MSS.: πορευόμενος.

THEMISTOCLES

own life for very grief at her son's ill-fame, this I think is false. And, in just the opposite vein, there are some who say that his father fondly tried to divert him from public life, pointing out to him old triremes on the sea-shore, all wrecked and neglected, and intimating that the people treated their leaders in like fashion when these were past service.

III. Speedily, however, as it seems, and while he was still in all the ardour of youth, public affairs laid their grasp upon Themistocles, and his impulse to win reputation got strong mastery over him. Wherefore, from the very beginning, in his desire to be first, he boldly encountered the enmity of men who had power and were already first in the city, especially that of Aristides the son of Lysimachus, who was always his opponent. And yet it is thought that his enmity with this man had an altogether puerile beginning. They were both lovers of the beautiful Stesilaüs, a native of Ceos, as Ariston the philosopher has recorded, and thenceforward they continued to be rivals in public life also. However, the dissimilarity in their lives and characters is likely to have increased their variance. Aristides was gentle by nature, and a conservative in character. He engaged in public life, not to win favour or reputation, but to secure the best results consistent with safety and righteousness, and so he was compelled, since Themistocles stirred the people up to many novel enterprises and introduced great innovations, to oppose him often, and to take a firm stand against his increasing influence.

PLUTARCH'S LIVES

- 3 Λέγεται γὰρ οὕτω παράφορος πρὸς δόξαν εἶναι καὶ πράξεων μεγάλων ὑπὸ φιλοτιμίας ἐραστής, ὥστε νέος ὢν ἔτι τῆς ἐν Μαραθῶνι μάχης πρὸς τοὺς βαρβάρους γενομένης καὶ τῆς Μιλτιάδου στρατηγίας διαβοηθείσης σύννους ὀράσθαι τὰ πολλὰ πρὸς ἑαυτῷ καὶ τὰς νύκτας ἀγρυπνεῖν
- 4 καὶ τοὺς πότους παραιτεῖσθαι τοὺς συνήθεις, καὶ λέγειν πρὸς τοὺς ἐρωτῶντας καὶ θαυμάζοντας τὴν περὶ τὸν βίον μεταβολήν, ὡς καθεύδειν αὐτὸν οὐκ ἔφη τὸ τοῦ Μιλτιάδου τρόπαιον. οἱ μὲν γὰρ ἄλλοι πέρας ᾤοντο τοῦ πολέμου τὴν ἐν Μαραθῶνι τῶν βαρβάρων ἦτταν εἶναι, Θεμιστοκλῆς δὲ ἀρχὴν μειζόνων ἀγώνων, ἐφ' οὓς ἑαυτὸν ὑπὲρ τῆς ὅλης Ἑλλάδος ἤλειφε καὶ τὴν πόλιν ἤσκει πρόρωθεν ἔτι¹ προσδοκῶν τὸ μέλλον.

IV. Καὶ πρῶτον μὲν τὴν Λαυρεωτικὴν πρόσοδον ἀπὸ τῶν ἀργυρείων μετάλλων ἔθος ἐχόντων Ἀθηναίων διανέμεσθαι, μόνος εἰπεῖν ἐτόλμησε παρελθὼν εἰς τὸν δῆμον, ὡς χρὴ τὴν διανομὴν εἰσάσαντας ἐκ τῶν χρημάτων τούτων κατασκευάσασθαι τριήρεις ἐπὶ τὸν πρὸς Αἰγινήτας πόλεμον. ἦκμαζε γὰρ οὗτος ἐν τῇ Ἑλλάδι μάλιστα καὶ κατεῖχον οἱ νησιῶται² πλήθει νεῶν τὴν θάλασσαν. ἦ καὶ ῥᾶον Θεμιστοκλῆς συνέπεισεν, οὐ Δαρεῖον οὐδὲ Πέρσας (μακρὰν γὰρ ἦσαν οὗτοι

¹ ἔτι Fuhr and Blass with F^{as}: ἤδη.

² νησιῶται Fuhr and Blass with F^{as}: Αἰγινήται.

THEMISTOCLES

It is said, indeed, that Themistocles was so carried away by his desire for reputation, and such an ambitious lover of great deeds, that though he was still a young man when the battle with the Barbarians at Marathon¹ was fought and the generalship of Miltiades was in everybody's mouth, he was seen thereafter to be wrapped in his own thoughts for the most part, and was sleepless o' nights, and refused invitations to his customary drinking parties, and said to those who put wondering questions to him concerning his change of life that the trophy of Miltiades would not suffer him to sleep. Now the rest of his countrymen thought that the defeat of the Barbarians at Marathon was the end of the war; but Themistocles thought it to be only the beginning of greater contests, and for these he anointed himself, as it were, to be the champion of all Hellas, and put his city into training, because, while it was yet afar off, he expected the evil that was to come.

IV. And so, in the first place, whereas the Athenians were wont to divide up among themselves the revenue coming from the silver mines at Laureium, he, and he alone, dared to come before the people with a motion that this division be given up, and that with these moneys triremes be constructed for the war against Aegina.² This was the fiercest war then troubling Hellas, and the islanders controlled the sea, owing to the number of their ships. Wherefore all the more easily did Themistocles carry his point, not by trying to terrify the citizens with dreadful pictures of Darius or the Persians—

¹ 490 B. C.

² 484-483 B. C.

PLUTARCH'S LIVES

- 3 Λέγεται γὰρ οὕτω παράφορος πρὸς δόξαν εἶναι καὶ πράξεων μεγάλων ὑπὸ φιλοτιμίας ἐραστής, ὥστε νέος ὦν ἔτι τῆς ἐν Μαραθῶνι μάχης πρὸς τοὺς βαρβάρους γενομένης καὶ τῆς Μιλτιάδου στρατηγίας διαβοηθείσης σύννους ὄρασθαι τὰ πολλὰ πρὸς ἑαυτῷ καὶ τὰς νύκτας ἀγρυπνεῖν
- 4 καὶ τοὺς πότους παραιτεῖσθαι τοὺς συνήθεις, καὶ λέγειν πρὸς τοὺς ἐρωτῶντας καὶ θαυμάζοντας τὴν περὶ τὸν βίον μεταβολήν, ὡς καθεύδειν αὐτὸν οὐκ ἔφη τὸ τοῦ Μιλτιάδου τρόπαιον. οἱ μὲν γὰρ ἄλλοι πέρας ᾤοντο τοῦ πολέμου τὴν ἐν Μαραθῶν βαρβάρων ἦτταν εἶναι, Θεμιστοκλῆ ἀρχὴν μειζόνων ἀγώνων, ἐφ' οὓς ἑαυτὸν ὑπὸ ὅλης Ἑλλάδος ἤλειφε καὶ τὴν πόλιν ἤσρωθεν ἔτι¹ προσδοκῶν τὸ μέλλον.

IV. Καὶ πρῶτον μὲν τὴν Λαυρεωτικὴν ἀπὸ τῶν ἀργυρείων μετάλλων Ἰωνοῦ καὶ Ἀθηναίων διανέμεσθαι, μόνος ἑκείνου παρελθὼν εἰς τὸν δῆμον, ὡς ἔειπεν, ἐάσαντας ἐκ τῶν χρημάτων ἑκάστην ἰσομετρεῖσθαι τριήρεις ἐπὶ τὸν πλοῦτον ἄνθρωπον ἠκμαζε γὰρ οὗτος ἐν τῇ πόλει καὶ τὴν ἀσπίδα κατεῖχον οἱ νησιῶται²

- 2 σαν. ἢ καὶ ῥᾶον Θεμιστοκλῆς ἔειπεν τὸν Δαρεῖον οὐδὲ Πέρσας

¹ ἔτι Fuhr and Blomfield

² νησιῶται Fuhr and Blomfield

PLUTARCH'S LIVES

καὶ δέος οὐ πάνυ βέβαιον ὡς ἀφιξόμενοι παρείχον) ἐπισείων, ἀλλὰ τῇ πρὸς Αἰγινήτας ὀργῇ καὶ φιλονεικίᾳ τῶν πολιτῶν ἀποχρησάμενος εὐκαίρως ἐπὶ τὴν παρασκευὴν. ἑκατὸν γὰρ ἀπὸ τῶν χρημάτων ἐκείνων ἐποιήθησαν τριήρεις, αἷς¹ καὶ πρὸς Ξέρξην ἐναυμάχησαν.

3 Ἐκ δὲ τούτου κατὰ μικρὸν ὑπάγων καὶ καταβιάζων τὴν πόλιν πρὸς τὴν θάλασσαν, ὡς τὰ πεζὰ μὲν οὐδὲ τοῖς ὁμόροις ἀξιωμαχοῦς ὄντας, τῇ δ' ἀπὸ τῶν νεῶν ἀλκῇ καὶ τοὺς βαρβάρους ἀμύνασθαι καὶ τῆς Ἑλλάδος ἄρχειν δυναμένους, ἀντὶ μονίμων ὀπλιτῶν, ὡς φησιν ὁ Πλάτων, ναυβάτας καὶ θαλαττίους ἐποίησε, καὶ διαβολὴν καθ' αὐτοῦ παρέσχευ, ὡς ἄρα Θεμιστοκλῆς τὸ δόρυ καὶ τὴν ἀσπίδα τῶν πολιτῶν παρελόμενος εἰς ὑπηρεσίον καὶ κώπην συνέστειλε τὸν Ἀθηναίων δῆμον. ἔπραξε δὲ ταῦτα Μιλτιάδου κρατήσας ἀντιλέγοντος, ὡς ἱστορεῖ Σησίμβροτος.

4 Εἰ μὲν δὴ τὴν ἀκρίβειαν καὶ τὸ καθαρὸν τοῦ πολιτεύματος ἔβλαψεν ἢ μὴ ταῦτα πράξας, ἔστω φιλοσοφώτερον ἐπισκοπεῖν· ὅτι δὲ ἢ τότε σωτηρία τοῖς Ἑλλησιν ἐκ τῆς θαλάσσης ὑπῆρξε καὶ τὴν Ἀθηναίων πόλιν αὐθις ἀνέστησαν αἱ τριήρεις ἐκεῖναι, τά τ' ἄλλα καὶ Ξέρξης αὐτὸς ἐμαρτύρησε. τῆς γὰρ πεζικῆς δυνάμεως ἀθραύστου διαμενούσης ἔφυγε μετὰ τὴν τῶν νεῶν ἤτταν, ὡς οὐκ ὦν ἀξιόμαχος, καὶ Μαρδόνιον ἐμποδὼν εἶναι τοῖς

¹ αἷς Fuhr and Blass with S: αἱ.

THEMISTOCLES

these were too far away and inspired no very serious fear of their coming, but by making opportune use of the bitter jealousy which they cherished toward Aegina in order to secure the armament he desired. The result was that with those moneys they built a hundred triremes, with which they actually fought at Salamis¹ against Xerxes.

And after this, by luring the city on gradually and turning its progress toward the sea, urging that with their infantry they were no match even for their nearest neighbours, but that with the power they would get from their ships they could not only repel the Barbarians but also take the lead in Hellas, he made them, instead of "steadfast hoplites"—to quote Plato's words,² sea-tossed mariners, and brought down upon himself this accusation: "Themistocles robbed his fellow-citizens of spear and shield, and degraded the people of Athens to the rowing-pad and the oar." And this he accomplished in triumph over the public opposition of Miltiades, as Stesimbrotus relates.

Now, whether by accomplishing this he did injury to the integrity and purity of public life or not, let the philosopher rather investigate. But that the salvation which the Hellenes achieved at that time came from the sea, and that it was those very triremes which restored again the fallen city of Athens, Xerxes himself bore witness, not to speak of other proofs. For though his infantry remained intact, he took to flight after the defeat of his ships, because he thought he was not a match for the Hellenes, and he left Mardonius behind, as it seems to me,

¹ 480 B.C.

² Laws, iv. p. 706.

PLUTARCH'S LIVES

Ἑλλησι τῆς διώξεως μᾶλλον ἢ δουλωσόμενον αὐτούς, ὡς ἐμοὶ δοκεῖ, κατέλιπεν.

V. Σύντονον δὲ αὐτὸν γεγονέναι χρηματιστὴν 114 οἱ μὲν τινές φασι δι' ἐλευθεριότητα· καὶ γὰρ φιλοθύτην ὄντα καὶ λαμπρὸν ἐν ταῖς περὶ τοὺς ξένους δαπάναις ἀφθόνου δεῖσθαι χορηγίας· οἱ δὲ τούναντίον γλισχρότητα πολλὴν καὶ μικρολογίαν κατηγοροῦσιν, ὡς καὶ τὰ πεμπόμενα τῶν ἐδωδί-
2 μων πωλοῦντος. ἐπεὶ δὲ Φιλίδης ὁ ἵπποτρόφος αἰτηθεὶς ὑπ' αὐτοῦ πῶλον οὐκ ἔδωκεν, ἠπείλησε τὴν οἰκίαν αὐτοῦ ταχὺ ποιήσειν δούρειον ἵππον, αἰνιξάμενος ἐγκλήματα συγγενικὰ καὶ δίκας τῷ ἀνθρώπῳ πρὸς οἰκείους τινὰς ταραξείν.

Τῇ δὲ φιλοτιμίᾳ πάντα ὑπερέβαλεν, ὥστ' ἔτι μὲν νέος ὦν καὶ ἀφανῆς Ἐπικλέα τὸν ἐξ Ἐρμιόνης κιθαριστὴν σπουδαζόμενον ὑπὸ τῶν Ἀθηναίων ἐκλιπαρῆσαι μελετᾶν παρ' αὐτῷ, φιλοτιμούμενος πολλοὺς τὴν οἰκίαν ζητεῖν καὶ φοιτᾶν πρὸς αὐτόν.
3 εἰς δ' Ὀλυμπίαν ἔλθων καὶ διαμιλλώμενος τῷ Κίμωνι περὶ δεῖπνα καὶ σκηναὺς καὶ τὴν ἄλλην λαμπρότητα καὶ παρασκευήν, οὐκ ἤρεσκε τοῖς Ἑλλησιν. ἐκείνῳ μὲν γὰρ ὄντι νέῳ καὶ ἀπ' οἰκίας μεγάλης ᾧοντο δεῖν τὰ τοιαῦτα συγχωρεῖν· ὁ δὲ μήπω γνῶριμος γεγονώς, ἀλλὰ δοκῶν ἐξ οὐχ ὑπαρχόντων καὶ παρ' ἀξίαν ἐπαίρεσθαι
4 προσωφλίσκανεν ἀλαζονείαν. ἐνίκησε δὲ καὶ χορηγῶν τραγωδοῖς, μεγάλην ἤδη τότε σπουδὴν καὶ φιλοτιμίαν τοῦ ἀγῶνος ἔχοντας, καὶ πίνακα

THEMISTOCLES

rather to obstruct their pursuit than to subdue them.

V. Some say that Themistocles was an eager money-maker because of his liberality; for since he was fond of entertaining, and lavished money splendidly on his guests, he required a generous budget. Others, on the contrary, denounce his great stinginess and parsimony, claiming that he used to sell the very food sent in to him as a gift. When Philides the horse-breeder was asked by him for a colt and would not give it, Themistocles threatened speedily to make his house a wooden horse; thereby darkly intimating that he would stir up accusations against him in his own family, and lawsuits between the man and those of his own household.

In his ambition he surpassed all men. For instance, while he was still young and obscure, he prevailed upon Epicles of Hermione, a harpist who was eagerly sought after by the Athenians, to practise at his house, because he was ambitious that many should seek out his dwelling and come often to see him. Again, on going to Olympia, he tried to rival Cimon in his banquets and booths and other brilliant appointments, so that he displeased the Hellenes. For Cimon was young and of a great house, and they thought they must allow him in such extravagances; but Themistocles had not yet become famous, and was thought to be seeking to elevate himself unduly without adequate means, and so was charged with ostentation. And still again, as choregus, or theatrical manager, he won a victory with tragedies, although even at that early time this contest was conducted with great eagerness and

PLUTARCH'S LIVES

τῆς νίκης ἀνέθηκε τοιαύτην ἐπιγραφὴν ἔχοντα· “Θεμιστοκλῆς Φρεάρριος ἐχορήγει, Φρύνιχος ἐδίδασκεν, Ἀδείμαντος ἤρχεν.”

Οὐ μὴν ἀλλὰ τοῖς πολλοῖς ἐνήρμοττε, τοῦτο
 μὲν ἐκάστου τῶν πολιτῶν τοῦνομα λέγων ἀπὸ
 στόματος, τοῦτο δὲ κριτὴν ἀσφαλῆ περὶ τὰ
 συμβόλαια παρέχων ἑαυτὸν, ὥστε πού καὶ πρὸς Σιμωνίδην τὸν Κεῖον εἰπεῖν, αἰτούμενόν τι τῶν
 οὐ μετρίων παρ’ αὐτοῦ στρατηγούντος, ὡς οὐτ’
 ἐκεῖνος ἂν γένοιτο ποιητῆς ἀγαθὸς ἄδων παρὰ
 μέλος οὐτ’ αὐτὸς ἀστεῖος ἄρχων παρὰ νόμον 5 χαριζόμενος. πάλιν δέ ποτε τὸν Σιμωνίδην ἐπι-σκώπτων ἔλεγε νουν οὐκ ἔχειν, Κορινθίους μὲν
 λαιδοροῦντα μεγάλην οἰκοῦντας πόλιν, αὐτοῦ δὲ
 ποιούμενον εἰκόνας οὕτως ὄντος αἰσχροῦ τὴν
 ὄψιν. αὐξόμενος δὲ καὶ τοῖς πολλοῖς ἀρέσκων
 τέλος κατεστασίασε καὶ μετέστησεν ἐξοστρα-κισθέντα τὸν Ἀριστείδην.

VI. Ἦδη δὲ τοῦ Μήδου καταβαίνοντος ἐπὶ τὴν
 Ἑλλάδα καὶ τῶν Ἀθηναίων βουλευομένων περὶ
 στρατηγοῦ, τοὺς μὲν ἄλλους ἐκόντας ἐκστήναι
 τῆς στρατηγίας λέγουσιν ἐκπεπληγμένους τὸν
 κίνδυνον, Ἐπικύδην δὲ τὸν Εὐφημίδου, δη-μαγωγὸν ὄντα δεινὸν μὲν εἰπεῖν, μαλακὸν δὲ
 τὴν ψυχὴν καὶ χρημάτων ἥττονα, τῆς ἀρχῆς ἐφίεσθαι καὶ κρατήσειν ἐπίδοξον εἶναι τῇ χειροτομίᾳ. τὸν οὖν Θεμιστοκλέα δείσαντα, μὴ τὰ
 πράγματα διαφθαρείη παντάπασι τῆς ἡγεμονίας
 εἰς ἐκεῖνον ἐμπεσοῦσης, χρήμασι τὴν φιλοτιμίαν
 ἐξωνήσασθαι παρὰ τοῦ Ἐπικύδους.

THEMISTOCLES

ambition, and set up a tablet commemorating his victory with the following inscription: "Themistocles the Phrearrhian was Choregus; Phrynichus was Poet; Adeimantus was Archon."¹

However, he was on good terms with the common folk, partly because he could call off-hand the name of every citizen, and partly because he rendered the service of a safe and impartial arbitrator in cases of private obligation and settlement out of court; and so he once said to Simonides of Ceos, who had made an improper request from him when he was magistrate: "You would not be a good poet if you should sing contrary to the measure; nor I a clever magistrate if I should show favour contrary to the law." And once again he banteringly said to Simonides that it was nonsense for him to abuse the Corinthians, who dwelt in a great and fair city, while he had portrait figures made of himself, who was of such an ugly countenance. And so he grew in power, and pleased the common folk, and finally headed a successful faction and got Aristides removed by ostracism.²

VI. At last, when the Mede was descending upon Hellas and the Athenians were deliberating who should be their general, all the rest, they say, voluntarily renounced their claims to the generalship, so panic-stricken were they at the danger; but Epicyles, the son of Euphemides, a popular leader who was powerful in speech but effeminate in spirit and open to bribes, set out to get the office, and was likely to prevail in the election; so Themistocles, fearing lest matters should go to utter ruin in case the leadership fell to such a man, bribed and bought off the ambition of Epicyles.

¹ 476 B.C.

² 483-482 B.C.

PLUTARCH'S LIVES

- 2 Ἐπαινείται δ' αὐτοῦ καὶ τὸ περὶ τὸν δίγλωττον ἔργον ἐν τοῖς πεμφθείσιν ὑπὸ βασιλέως ἐπὶ γῆς καὶ ὕδατος αἴτησιν. ἐρμηνέα γὰρ ὄντα συλλαβῶν διὰ ψηφίσματος ἀπέκτεινεν ὅτι φωνὴν Ἑλληνίδα βαρβάροις προστάγμασιν ἐτόλμησε
- 3 χρῆσαι. ἔτι δὲ καὶ τὸ περὶ Ἄρθμιον τὸν Ζελείτην· Θεμιστοκλέους γὰρ εἰπόντος καὶ τούτου εἰς τοὺς ἀτίμους καὶ παῖδας αὐτοῦ καὶ γένος ἐνέγραψαν, ὅτι τὸν ἐκ Μήδων χρυσὸν εἰς τοὺς Ἑλληνας ἐκόμισε. μέγιστον δὲ πάντων τὸ καταλύσαι τοὺς Ἑλληνικοὺς πολέμους καὶ διαλλάξαι τὰς πόλεις ἀλλήλαις, πείσαντα τὰς ἔχθρας διὰ τὸν πόλεμον ἀναβαλέσθαι· πρὸς δὲ καὶ Χείλεων τὸν Ἀρκάδα μάλιστα συναγωνίσασθαι λέγουσι.

VII. Παραλαβὼν δὲ τὴν ἀρχὴν εὐθύς μὲν ἐπεχείρει τοὺς πολίτας ἐμβιβάζειν εἰς τὰς τριήρεις, καὶ τὴν πόλιν ἔπειθεν ἐκλιπόντας ὡς προσωτάτω τῆς Ἑλλάδος ἀπαντᾶν τῷ βαρβάρῳ κατὰ θάλατταν. ἐνισταμένων δὲ πολλῶν ἐξήγαγε πολλὴν στρατιὰν εἰς τὰ Τέμπη μετὰ Λακεδαιμονίων, ὡς αὐτόθι προκινδυνεύοντων τῆς

2 Θετταλίας οὐπω τότε μηδίξειν δοκούσης· ἐπεὶ δ' ἀνεχώρησαν ἐκεῖθεν ἄπρακτοι καὶ Θετταλῶν βασιλεῖ προσγενομένων ἐμήδιζε τὰ μέχρι Βοιωτίας, μᾶλλον ἤδη τῷ Θεμιστοκλεῖ προσείχον οἱ Ἀθηναῖοι περὶ τῆς θαλάσσης, καὶ πέμπεται μετὰ νεῶν ἐπ' Ἀρτεμίσιον τὰ στενὰ φυλάξω.

Ἐνθα δὴ τῶν μὲν Ἑλλήνων Εὐρυβιάδην καὶ

THEMISTOCLES

Praise is given to his treatment of the linguist in the company of those who were sent by the King to demand earth and water as tokens of submission : this interpreter he caused to be arrested, and had him put to death by special decree, because he dared to prostitute the speech of Hellas to Barbarian stipulations. Also to his treatment of Arthmius of Zeleia : on motion of Themistocles this man was entered on the list of the disfranchised, with his children and his family, because he brought the gold of the Medes and offered it to the Hellenes. But the greatest of all his achievements was his putting a stop to Hellenic wars, and reconciling Hellenic cities with one another, persuading them to postpone their mutual hatreds because of the foreign war. To which end, they say, Cheileos the Arcadian most seconded his efforts.

VII. On assuming the command, he straightway went to work to embark the citizens on their triremes, and tried to persuade them to leave their city behind them and go as far as possible away from Hellas to meet the Barbarians by sea. But many opposed this plan, and so he led forth a large army to the vale of Tempe, along with the Lacedaemonians, in order to make a stand there in defence of Thessaly, which was not yet at that time supposed to be medising. But soon the army came back from this position without accomplishing anything, the Thessalians went over to the side of the King, and everything was medising as far as Boeotia, so that at last the Athenians were more kindly disposed to the naval policy of Themistocles, and he was sent with a fleet to Artemisium, to watch the narrows.

It was at this place that the Hellenes urged

PLUTARCH'S LIVES

Λακεδαιμονίους ἡγεῖσθαι κελεύοντων, τῶν δ' Ἀθηναίων, ὅτι πλήθει τῶν νεῶν σύμπαντας ὁμοῦ τι τοὺς ἄλλους ὑπερέβαλλον, οὐκ ἀξιούντων
 3 ἐτέροις ἔπασθαι, συνιδῶν τὸν κίνδυνον ὁ Θεμιστοκλῆς αὐτὸς τε τὴν ἀρχὴν τῷ Εὐρυβιάδῃ παρήκε καὶ κατεπράυνε τοὺς Ἀθηναίους, ὑπισχνούμενος, ἂν ἄνδρες ἀγαθοὶ γένωνται πρὸς τὸν πόλεμον, ἐκόντας αὐτοῖς παρέξειν εἰς τὰ λοιπὰ πειθόμενους τοὺς Ἕλληνας. διόπερ δοκεῖ τῆς σωτηρίας αἰτιώτατος γενέσθαι τῇ Ἑλλάδι καὶ μάλιστα τοὺς Ἀθηναίους προαγαγεῖν εἰς δόξαν, ὡς ἀνδρεία μὲν τῶν πολεμίων, εὐγνωμοσύνη δὲ τῶν συμμάχων περιγενομένους.

4 Ἐπεὶ δὲ ταῖς Ἀφεταιῖς τοῦ βαρβαρικοῦ στόλου προσμίξαντος ἐκπλαγεῖς ὁ Εὐρυβιάδης τῶν κατὰ στόμα νεῶν τὸ πλήθος, ἄλλας δὲ πυνθανόμενος διακοσίας ὑπὲρ Σκιάθου περιπλεῖν, ἐβούλετο τὴν ταχίστην εἶσω τῆς Ἑλλάδος κομισθεὶς ἄψασθαι Πελοποννήσου καὶ τὸν πεζὸν στρατὸν ταῖς ναυσὶ προσπεριβαλέσθαι, παντάπασιν ἀπρόσμαχον ἡγούμενος τὴν κατὰ θάλατταν ἀλκὴν βασιλέως, δείσαντες οἱ Εὐβοεῖς, μὴ σφᾶς οἱ Ἕλληνες πρό-
 5 γοντα μετὰ χρημάτων πολλῶν πέμψαντες. ἂ λαβὼν ἐκεῖνος, ὡς Ἡρόδοτος ἰστόρηκε, τοῖς περὶ τὸν Εὐρυβιάδην ἔδωκεν.

Ἐναντιουμένου δ' αὐτῷ μάλιστα τῶν πολιτῶν Ἀρχιτέλους, ὃς ἦν μὲν ἐπὶ τῆς ἱερᾶς νεῶς τριήραρχος, οὐκ ἔχων δὲ χρήματα τοῖς ναύταις χορηγεῖν ἔσπευδεν ἀποπλεῦσαι, παρῶξυνεν ἔτι μᾶλλον ὁ Θεμιστοκλῆς τοὺς τριηρίτας ἐπ' αὐτόν,

THEMISTOCLES

Eurybiades and the Lacedaemonians to take the lead, but the Athenians, since in the number of their ships they surpassed all the rest put together, disdained to follow others,—a peril which Themistocles at once comprehended. He surrendered his own command to Eurybiades, and tried to mollify the Athenians with the promise that if they would show themselves brave men in the war, he would induce the Hellenes to yield a willing obedience to them thereafter. Wherefore he is thought to have been the man most instrumental in achieving the salvation of Hellas, and foremost in leading the Athenians up to the high repute of surpassing their foes in valour and their allies in magnanimity.

Now Eurybiades, on the arrival of the Barbarian armament at Aphetæ, was terrified at the number of ships that faced him, and, learning that two hundred ships more were sailing around above Sciathus to cut off his retreat, desired to proceed by the shortest route down into Hellas, to get into touch with Peloponnesus and encompass his fleet with his infantry forces there, because he thought the power of the King altogether invincible by sea. Therefore the Euboeans, fearing lest the Hellenes abandon them to their fate, held secret conference with Themistocles, and sent Pelagon to him with large sums of money. This money he took, as Herodotus relates,¹ and gave to Eurybiades.

Meeting with most opposition among his fellow-citizens from Architeles, who was captain on the sacred state galley, and who, because he had no money to pay the wages of his sailors, was eager to sail off home, Themistocles incited his crew all the

¹ viii. 5.

PLUTARCH'S LIVES

6 ὥστε τὸ δεῖπνον ἀρπάσαι συνδραμόντας. τοῦ δ' Ἀρχιτέλους ἀθυμοῦντος ἐπὶ τούτῳ καὶ βαρέως φέροντος, εἰσέπεμψεν ὁ Θεμιστοκλῆς πρὸς αὐτὸν ἐν κίστῃ δεῖπνον ἄρτων καὶ κρεῶν, ὑποθεῖς κάτω τάλαντον ἀργυρίου καὶ κελεύσας αὐτὸν τε δειπνεῖν ἐν τῷ παρόντι καὶ μεθ' ἡμέραν ἐπιμεληθῆναι τῶν πριηριτῶν· εἰ δὲ μὴ, καταβοήσειν αὐτοῦ πρὸς τοὺς παρόντας¹ ὡς ἔχοντος ἀργύριον παρὰ τῶν πολεμίων. ταῦτα μὲν οὖν Φανίας ὁ Λέσβιος εἶρηκεν.

VIII. Αἱ δὲ γενόμεναι τότε πρὸς τὰς τῶν βαρβάρων ναῦς περὶ τὰ στενὰ μάχαι κρίσιν μὲν εἰς τὰ ὅλα μεγάλην οὐκ ἐποίησαν, τῇ δὲ πείρα μέγιστα τοὺς Ἕλληνας ὤνησαν, ὑπὸ τῶν ἔργων παρὰ τοὺς κινδύνους διδαχθέντας, ὡς οὔτε πλήθη νεῶν οὔτε κόσμοι καὶ λαμπρότητες ἐπισήμων οὔτε κραυγαὶ κομπῶδεις ἢ βάρβαροι παιᾶνες ἔχουσι τι δεινὸν ἀνδράσιν ἐπισταμένους εἰς χεῖρας ἵεναι καὶ μάχεσθαι τολμῶσιν, ἀλλὰ δεῖ τῶν τοιούτων καταφρονοῦντας ἐπ' αὐτὰ τὰ σώματα φέρεσθαι καὶ πρὸς ἐκεῖνα διαγωνίζεσθαι συμ-
2 πλακέντας. ὃ δὴ καὶ Πίνδαρος οὐ κακῶς ἔοικε συνιδῶν ἐπὶ τῆς ἐν Ἀρτεμισίῳ μάχης εἰπεῖν·

“Ὅθι παῖδες Ἀθηναίων ἐβάλοντο φαεννὰν κρηπίδ' ἔλευθερίας·

ἀρχὴ γὰρ ὄντως τοῦ νικᾶν τὸ θαρρεῖν.

Ἔστι δὲ τῆς Εὐβοίας τὸ Ἀρτεμισιον ὑπὲρ τὴν Ἐστίαϊαν αἰγιαλὸς εἰς βορέαν ἀναπεπταμένος, ἀντιτείνει δ' αὐτῷ μάλιστα τῆς ὑπὸ more against him, so that they made a rush upon him and snatched away his dinner. Then, while Architeles was feeling dejected and indignant over this, Themistocles sent him a dinner of bread and meat in a box at the bottom of which he had put a talent of silver, and bade him dine without delay, and on the morrow satisfy his crew; otherwise he said he would denounce him publicly as the receiver of money from the enemy. At any rate, such is the story of Phantias the Lesbian.

¹ παρόντας Fuhr and Blass with F²S: πολίτας.

THEMISTOCLES

VIII. The battles which were fought at that time with the ships of the Barbarians in the narrows were not decisive of the main issue, it is true, but they were of the greatest service to the Hellenes in giving them experience, since they were thus taught by actual achievements in the face of danger that neither multitudes of ships nor brilliantly decorated figure-heads nor boastful shouts or barbarous battle-hymns have any terror for men who know how to come to close quarters and dare to fight there; but that they must despise all such things, rush upon the very persons of their foes, grapple with them, and fight it out to the bitter end. Of this Pindar seems to have been well aware when he said of the battle of Artemisium:—

“Where Athenians’ valiant sons set in radiance eternal Liberty’s corner-stone.”¹

For verily the foundation of victory is courage.

Artemisium is a part of Euboea above Hestiaea, —a sea-beach stretching away to the north,—and just about opposite to it lies Olizon, in the territory

¹ Bergk, Frag. 77.

Φιλοκτήτη γενομένης χώρας Ὀλιζών. ἔχει δὲ ναὸν οὐ μέγαν Ἀρτέμιδος ἐπὶ κλησιν Προσηφάς, 116
καὶ δένδρα περὶ αὐτῷ πέφυκε καὶ στηλαὶ κύκλω λίθου λευκοῦ πεπήγασιν· ὁ δὲ λίθος τῇ χειρὶ τριβόμενος καὶ χροῶν καὶ ὄσμην κροκίζουσαν
3 ἀναδίδωσιν. ἐν μιᾷ δὲ τῶν στηλῶν ἐλεγείον ἦν τότε γεγραμμένον·

Παντοδαπῶν ἀνδρῶν γενεᾶς Ἀσίας ἀπὸ χώρας
παῖδες Ἀθηναίων τῷδέ ποτ' ἐν πελάγει
ναυμαχίῃ δαμάσαντες, ἐπεὶ στρατὸς ὄλετο Μήδων,

σήματα ταῦτ' ἔθεσαν παρθένῳ Ἀρτέμιδι.

δείκνυται δὲ τῆς ἀκτῆς τόπος ἐν πολλῇ τῇ περίξθινι κόνιν τεφρώδη καὶ μέλαιναν ἐκ βάθους ἀναδιδούς, ὥσπερ πυρίκαυστον, ἐν ᾧ τὰ ναύαγια καὶ νεκροὺς καῦσαι δοκοῦσι.

IX. Τῶν μέντοι περὶ Θερμοπύλας εἰς τὸ Ἀρτεμίσιον ἀπαγγελλόντων¹ πυθόμενοι Λεωνίδα τε κεῖσθαι καὶ κρατεῖν Ξέρξην τῶν κατὰ γῆν παρόδων, εἴσω τῆς Ἑλλάδος ἀνεκομίζοντο, τῶν Ἀθηναίων ἐπὶ πᾶσι τεταγμένων δι' ἀρετὴν καὶ μέγα τοῖς πεπραγμένοις φρονούντων. παραπλέων δὲ τὴν χώραν ὁ Θεμιστοκλῆς, ἦπερ κατάρσεις ἀναγκαίας καὶ καταφυγὰς ἐώρα τοῖς πολεμίοις, ἐνεχάραττε κατὰ τῶν λίθων ἐπιφανῆ
2 γράμματα, τοὺς μὲν εὐρίσκων ἀπὸ τύχης, τοὺς δ'

¹ ἀπαγγελλόντων Fuhr and Blass with F²S : ἀπαγγελλέντων.

THEMISTOCLES

once subject to Philoctetes. It has a small temple of Artemis surnamed Proseoea, which is surrounded by trees and enclosed by upright slabs of white marble. This stone, when you rub it with your hand, gives off the colour and the odour of saffron. On one of these slabs the following elegy was inscribed :—

“ Nations of all sorts of men from Asia’s boundaries coming,
Sons of the Athenians once, here on this arm of the sea,
Whelmed in a battle of ships, and the host of the Medes was destroyed ;
These are the tokens thereof, built for the Maid
Artemis.” ¹

And a place is pointed out on the shore, with sea sand all about it, which supplies from its depths a dark ashen powder, apparently the product of fire, and here they are thought to have burned their wrecks and dead bodies.

IX. However, when they learned by messengers from Thermopylae to Artemisium that Leonidas was slain and that Xerxes was master of the pass, they withdrew further down into Hellas, the Athenians bringing up the extreme rear because of their valour, and greatly elated by their achievements. As Themistocles sailed along the coasts, wherever he saw places at which the enemy must necessarily put in for shelter and supplies, he inscribed conspicuous writings on stones, some of which he found to his hand there by chance, and some he himself caused to be set near the inviting anchorages and

¹ Bergk, Poet. Lyr. Graeci, iii.⁴ p. 480.

PLUTARCH'S LIVES

αὐτὸς ἰστάς περὶ τὰ ναύλοχα καὶ τὰς ὑδρείας, ἐπισκῆπτων Ἴωσι διὰ τῶν γραμμάτων, εἰ μὲν οἶόν τε, μετατάξασθαι πρὸς αὐτοὺς πατέρας ὄντας καὶ προκινδυνεύοντας ὑπὲρ τῆς ἐκείνων ἐλευθερίας, εἰ δὲ μή, κακοῦν τὸ βαρβαρικὸν ἐν ταῖς μάχαις καὶ συνταράττειν. ταῦτα δ' ἤλπιζεν ἢ μεταστήσειν τοὺς Ἴωνας ἢ ταράξειν ὑποπτοτέρους τοῖς βαρβάροις γενομένους.

- 3 Ξέρξου δὲ διὰ τῆς Δωρίδος ἄνωθεν ἐμβαλόντος εἰς τὴν Φωκίδα καὶ τὰ τῶν Φωκέων ἄστη πυρπολοῦντος οὐ προσήμυναν οἱ Ἕλληνες, καίπερ τῶν Ἀθηναίων δεομένων εἰς τὴν Βοιωτίαν ἀπαντῆσαι πρὸ τῆς Ἀττικῆς, ὥσπερ αὐτοὶ κατὰ θάλατταν ἐπ' Ἀρτεμίσιον ἐβοήθησαν. μηδενὸς δ' ὑπακούοντος αὐτοῖς, ἀλλὰ τῆς Πελοποννήσου περιεχομένων καὶ πᾶσαν ἐντὸς Ἰσθμοῦ τὴν δύναμιν ὠρμημένων συνάγειν, καὶ διατειχιζόντων
- 4 τὸν Ἰσθμὸν εἰς θάλατταν ἐκ θαλάττης, ἅμα μὲν ὀργῇ τῆς προδοσίας εἶχε τοὺς Ἀθηναίους, ἅμα δὲ δυσθυμία καὶ κατήφεια μεμονωμένους. μάχεσθαι μὲν γὰρ οὐ διεννοοῦντο μυριάσι στρατοῦ τοσαύταις· ὃ δ' ἦν μόνον ἀναγκαῖον ἐν τῷ παρόντι, τὴν πόλιν ἀφέντας ἐμφύναι ταῖς ναυσίν, οἱ πολλοὶ χαλεπῶς ἤκουον, ὡς μήτε νίκης δεόμενοι μήτε σωτηρίαν ἐπιστάμενοι θεῶν τε ἱερὰ καὶ πατέρων ἡρία προἰεμένων.

X. Ἐνθα δὲ Θεμιστοκλῆς ἀπορῶν τοῖς ἀνθρωπίνοις λογισμοῖς προσάγεσθαι τὸ πλῆθος, ὥσπερ watering places. In these writings he solemnly enjoined upon the Ionians, if it were possible, to come over to the side of the Athenians, who were their ancestors, and who were risking all in behalf of their freedom; but if they could not do this, to damage the Barbarian cause in battle, and bring confusion among them. By this means he hoped either to fetch the Ionians over to his side, or to confound them by bringing the Barbarians into suspicion of them.

THEMISTOCLES

Although Xerxes had made a raid up through Doris into Phocis, and was burning the cities of the Phocians, the Hellenes gave them no succour. The Athenians, it is true, begged them to go up into Boeotia against the enemy, and make a stand there in defence of Attica, as they themselves had gone up by sea to Artemisium in defence of others. But no one listened to their appeals. All clung fast to the Peloponnesus, and were eager to collect all the forces inside the Isthmus, and went to running a wall through the Isthmus from sea to sea. Then the Athenians were seized alike with rage at this betrayal, and with sullen dejection at their utter isolation. Of fighting alone with an army of so many myriads they could not seriously think; and as for the only thing left them to do in their emergency, namely, to give up their city and stick to their ships, most of them were distressed at the thought, saying that they neither wanted victory nor understood what safety could mean if they abandoned to the enemy the shrines of their gods and the sepulchres of their fathers.

X. Then indeed it was that Themistocles, despairing of bringing the multitude over to his views by

PLUTARCH'S LIVES

ἐν τραγωδία μηχανὴν ἄρας, σημεῖα δαιμόνια καὶ
 χρησμούς ἐπῆγεν αὐτοῖς· σημεῖον μὲν λαμβάνων
 τὸ τοῦ δράκοντος, ὃς ἀφανὴς ἐκείναις ταῖς
 ἡμέραις ἐκ τοῦ σηκοῦ δοκεῖ γενέσθαι· καὶ τὰς
 καθ' ἡμέραν αὐτῷ προτιθεμένας ἀπαρχὰς εὐρί-σκουτες ἀψαύστους οἱ ἱερεῖς, ἐξήγγελλον εἰς
 τοὺς πολλούς, τοῦ Θεμιστοκλέους λόγον διδόντος,
 ὡς ἀπολέλοιπε τὴν πόλιν ἢ θεὸς ὑψηγομένη
 2 πρὸς τὴν θάλατταν αὐτοῖς. τῷ δὲ χρησμῷ
 πάλιν ἐδημαγώγει, λέγων μηδὲν ἄλλο δηλοῦσθαι
 ξύλινον τεῖχος ἢ τὰς ναῦς· διὸ καὶ τὴν Σαλαμίνα
 θείαν, οὐχὶ δεινὴν οὐδὲ σχετλίαν καλεῖν τὸν θεόν, ὡς εὐτυχήματος μεγάλου τοῖς Ἕλλησιν ἐπώ-νυμον ἔσομένην. κρατήσας δὲ τῇ γνώμῃ ψήφισμα γράφει, τὴν μὲν πόλιν παρακαταθέσθαι
 τῇ Ἀθηνᾷ τῇ Ἀθηναίων μεδεούσῃ, τοὺς δ' ἐν
 ἡλικίᾳ πάντα ἐμβαίνειν εἰς τὰς τριῆρεις, παῖδας
 δὲ καὶ γυναῖκας καὶ ἀνδράποδα σώζειν ἕκαστον
 3 ὡς δυνατόν. κυρωθέντος δὲ τοῦ ψηφίσματος οἱ πλείστοι τῶν Ἀθηναίων ὑπεξέβητο γενεὰς¹
 καὶ γυναῖκας εἰς Τροίξην, φιλοτίμως πάνυ τῶν Τροίξηνίων ὑποδεχομένων· καὶ γὰρ τρέφειν ἐψη- 117
 φίσαντο δημοσίᾳ, δύο ὀβολοὺς ἐκάστῳ διδόντες,
 καὶ τῆς ὀπώρας λαμβάνειν τοὺς παῖδας ἐξεῖναι

¹ γενεὰς Madvig's correction, adopted by Blass: γονεάς parents.

THEMISTOCLES

any human reasonings, set up machinery, as it were, to introduce the gods to them, as a theatrical manager would for a tragedy, and brought to bear upon them signs from heaven and oracles. As a sign from heaven he took the behaviour of the serpent, which is held to have disappeared about that time from the sacred enclosure on the Acropolis. When the priests found that the daily offerings made to it were left whole and untouched, they proclaimed to the multitude,—Themistocles putting the story into their mouths,—that the goddess had abandoned her city and was showing them their way to the sea. Moreover, with the well-known oracle¹ he tried again to win the people over to his views, saying that its “wooden wall” meant nothing else than their fleet; and that the god in this oracle called Salamis “divine,” not “dreadful” nor “cruel,” for the very reason that the island would sometime give its name to a great piece of good fortune for the Hellenes. At last his opinion prevailed, and so he introduced a bill providing that the city be entrusted for safe keeping “to Athena the patroness of Athens,” but that all the men of military age embark on the triremes, after finding for their children, wives, and servants, such safety as each best could. Upon the passage of this bill, most of the Athenians bestowed their children and wives in Troezen, where the Troezenians very eagerly welcomed them. They actually voted to support them at the public cost, allowing two obols daily to each family, and to permit the boys to pluck of the vintage fruit everywhere, and

¹ Herod., vii. 141.

- πανταχόθεν, ἔτι δ' ὑπὲρ αὐτῶν διδασκάλους τελείν
μισθοὺς. τὸ δὲ ψήφισμα Νικαγόρας ἔγραψεν.
- 4 Οὐκ ὄντων δὲ δημοσίων χρημάτων τοῖς Ἀθηναίοις, Ἀριστοτέλης μὲν φησι τὴν ἐξ Ἀρείου
πάγου βουλὴν πορίσασαν ὀκτὼ δραχμὰς ἐκάστῳ
τῶν στρατευομένων αἰτιωτάτην γενέσθαι τοῦ
πληρωθῆναι τὰς τριήρεις, Κλειδήμος δὲ καὶ
τοῦτο τοῦ Θεμιστοκλέους ποιεῖται στρατήγημα.
καταβαινόντων γὰρ εἰς Πειραιᾶ τῶν Ἀθηναίων,
φησὶν ἀπολέσθαι τὸ Γοργόνειον ἀπὸ τῆς θεοῦ
τοῦ ἀγάλματος· τὸν οὖν Θεμιστοκλέα προσ-ποιούμενον ζητεῖν καὶ διερευνώμενον ἅπαντα
χρημάτων ἀνευρίσκειν πλήθος ἐν ταῖς ἀποσκευαῖς ἀποκεκρυμμένον, ὧν εἰς μέσον κομισ-θέντων εὐπορήσαι τοὺς ἐμβαίνοντας εἰς τὰς ναῦς ἐφοδίων.
- 5 Ἐκπλεούσης δὲ τῆς πόλεως τοῖς μὲν οἶκτον
τὸ θέαμα, τοῖς δὲ θαῦμα τῆς τόλμης παρείχε, γενεὰς μὲν ἄλλη προπεμπόντων, αὐτῶν δ' ἀκάμπτων πρὸς οἰμωγὰς καὶ δάκρυα γονέων καὶ
περιβολὰς διαπερώντων εἰς τὴν νῆσον. καίτοι
πολλοὶ μὲν διὰ γῆρας ὑπολειπόμενοι τῶν πολιτῶν
ἔλεον εἶχον· ἦν δέ τις καὶ ἀπὸ τῶν ἡμέρων καὶ
συντρόφων ζώων ἐπικλῶσα γλυκυθυμία, μετ'
ὠρυγῆς καὶ πόθου συμπαραθεόντων ἐμβαίνουσι
- 6 τοῖς ἑαυτῶν τροφεῦσιν. ἐν οἷς ἱστορεῖται κύων
Ξανθίππου τοῦ Περικλέους πατρὸς οὐκ ἀνα-σχόμενος τὴν ἀπ' αὐτοῦ μόνωσιν ἐναλέσθαι τῇ
θαλάττῃ καὶ τῇ τριήρει παρανηχόμενος ἐκπεσεῖν

THEMISTOCLES

besides to hire teachers for them. The bill was introduced by a man whose name was Nicagoras.

Since the Athenians had no public moneys in hand, it was the Senate of Areiopagus, according to Aristotle, which provided each of the men who embarked with eight drachmas, and so was most instrumental in manning the triremes; but Cleidemus represents this too as the result of an artifice of Themistocles. He says that when the Athenians were going down to the Piraeus and abandoning their city, the Gorgon's head was lost from the image of the goddess; and then Themistocles, pretending to search for it, and ransacking everything, thereby discovered an abundance of money hidden away in the baggage, which had only to be confiscated, and the crews of the ships were well provided with rations and wages.

When the entire city was thus putting out to sea, the sight provoked pity in some, and in others astonishment at the hardihood of the step; for they were sending off their families in one direction, while they themselves, unmoved by the lamentations and tears and embraces of their loved ones, were crossing over to the island where the enemy was to be fought. Besides, many who were left behind on account of their great age invited pity also, and much affecting fondness was shown by the tame domestic animals, which ran along with yearning cries of distress by the side of their masters as they embarked. A story is told of one of these, the dog of Xanthippus the father of Pericles, how he could not endure to be abandoned by his master, and so sprang into the sea, swam across the strait by the side of his master's trireme, εἰς τὴν Σαλαμίνα καὶ λιποθυμήσας ἀποθανεῖν εὐθύς· οὐ καὶ τὸ δεικνύμενον ἄχρι νῦν καὶ καλούμενον Κυνὸς σῆμα τάφον εἶναι λέγουσι.

PLUTARCH'S LIVES

XI. Ταῦτά τε δὴ μεγάλα τοῦ Θεμιστοκλέους, καὶ τοὺς πολίτας αἰσθόμενος ποθοῦντας Ἀριστείδην καὶ δεδιότας, μὴ δι' ὄργην τῷ βαρβάρῳ προσθεὶς ἑαυτὸν ἀνατρέψῃ τὰ πράγματα τῆς Ἑλλάδος (ἐξωστράκιστο γὰρ πρὸ τοῦ πολέμου καταστασιασθεὶς ὑπὸ Θεμιστοκλέους), γράφει ψήφισμα, τοῖς ἐπὶ χρόνῳ μεθεστῶσιν ἐξεῖναι κατελθοῦσι πράττειν καὶ λέγειν τὰ βέλτιστα τῇ Ἑλλάδι μετὰ τῶν ἄλλων πολιτῶν.

- 2 Εὐρυβιάδου δὲ τὴν μὲν ἡγεμονίαν τῶν νεῶν ἔχοντας διὰ τὸ τῆς Σπάρτης ἀξίωμα, μαλακοῦ δὲ περὶ τὸν κίνδυνον ὄντος, αἶρειν δὲ βουλομένους καὶ πλεῖν ἐπὶ τὸν Ἴσθμόν, ὅπου καὶ τὸ πεζὸν ἤθροιστο τῶν Πελοποννησίων, ὁ Θεμιστοκλῆς ἀντέλεγεν· ὅτε καὶ τὰ μνημονευόμενα λεχθῆναί φασι. τοῦ γὰρ Εὐρυβιάδου πρὸς αὐτὸν εἰπόντος· “ὦ Θεμιστόκλεις, ἐν τοῖς ἀγῶσι τοὺς προεξανισταμένους ραπίζουσι,” “Ναί,” εἶπεν ὁ Θεμιστοκλῆς, “ἀλλὰ τοὺς ἀπολειφθέντας οὐ
- 3 στεφανοῦσιν.” ἐπαραμένου δὲ τὴν βακτηρίαν ὡς πατάξοντος, ὁ Θεμιστοκλῆς ἔφη· “Πάταξον μὲν, ἄκουσον δέ.” θαυμάσαντος δὲ τὴν πραότητα τοῦ Εὐρυβιάδου καὶ λέγειν κελεύσαντος, ὁ μὲν Θεμιστοκλῆς ἀνήγειν αὐτὸν ἐπὶ τὸν λόγον. εἰπόντος δὲ τινος, ὡς ἀνὴρ ἄπολις οὐκ ὀρθῶς διδάσκει τοὺς ἔχοντας ἐγκαταλιπεῖν καὶ προέσθαι and staggered out on Salamis, only to faint and die straightway. They say that the spot which is pointed out to this day as "Dog's Mound" is his tomb.

THEMISTOCLES

XI. These were surely great achievements of Themistocles, but there was a greater still to come. When he saw that the citizens yearned for Aristides, and feared lest out of wrath he might join himself to the Barbarian and so subvert the cause of Hellas,—he had been ostracized before the war in consequence of political defeat at the hands of Themistocles,¹—he introduced a bill providing that those who had been removed for a time be permitted to return home and devote their best powers to the service of Hellas along with the other citizens.

When Eurybiades, who had the command of the fleet on account of the superior claims of Sparta, but who was faint-hearted in time of danger, wished to hoist sail and make for the Isthmus, where the infantry also of the Peloponnesians had been assembled, it was Themistocles who spoke against it, and it was then, they say, that these memorable sayings of his were uttered. When Eurybiades said to him, "Themistocles, at the games those who start too soon get a caning," "Yes," said Themistocles, "but those who lag behind get no crown." And when Eurybiades lifted up his staff as though to smite him, Themistocles said: "Smite, but hear me." Then Eurybiades was struck with admiration at his calmness, and bade him speak, and Themistocles tried to bring him back to his own position. But on a certain one saying that a man without a city had no business to advise men who still had cities of their own

¹ Cf. chap. v. fn.

τὰς πατρίδας, ὁ Θεμιστοκλῆς ἐπιστρέψας τὸν
 4 λόγον “ Ἡμεῖς τοι,” εἶπεν, “ ὦ μοχθηρέ, τὰς μὲν
 οἰκίας καὶ τὰ τείχη καταλελοίπαμεν, οὐκ ἀξιούντες ἀψύχων ἔνεκα δουλεύειν, πόλις δ’ ἡμῖν
 ἔστι μεγίστη τῶν Ἑλληνίδων, αἱ διακόσμοι
 τριήρεις, αἱ νῦν μὲν ὑμῖν παρεστᾶσι βοηθοὶ
 σώζεσθαι δι’ αὐτῶν βουλομένοις, εἰ δ’ ἄπιτε
 δεύτερον ἡμᾶς προδόντες, αὐτίκα πεύσεται τις Ἑλ-λήνων Ἀθηναίους καὶ πόλιν ἐλευθέραν καὶ χώραν 5 οὐ χεῖρονα κεκτημένους ἢς ἀπέβαλον.” ταῦτα
 τοῦ Θεμιστοκλέους εἰπόντος ἔννοια καὶ δέος ἔσχε
 τὸν Εὐρυβιάδην τῶν Ἀθηναίων, μὴ σφᾶς ἀπο-λείποντες οἴχονται. τοῦ δ’ Ἐρετριέως πειρω- 118
 μένου τι λέγειν πρὸς αὐτόν, “ Ἡ γάρ,” ἔφη, “ καὶ
 ὑμῖν περὶ πολέμου τίς ἐστι λόγος, οἱ καθάπερ αἱ
 τευθίδες μάχαιραν μὲν ἔχετε, καρδίαν δὲ οὐκ
 ἔχετε;”

XII. Λέγεται δ’ ὑπὸ τινων τὸν μὲν Θεμιστο-κλέα περὶ τούτων ἀπὸ τοῦ καταστρώματος
 ἄνωθεν τῆς νεῶς διαλέγεσθαι, γλαῦκα δ’ ὀφθῆναι
 διαπετομένην ἀπὸ δεξιᾶς τῶν νεῶν καὶ τοῖς καρχησίοις ἐπικαθίζουσιν διὸ δὴ καὶ μάλιστα
 προσέθεντο τῇ γνώμῃ καὶ παρεσκευάζοντο ναυ-2 μαχήσοντες. ἀλλ’ ἐπεὶ τῶν πολεμίων ὁ τε στόλος τῇ Ἀττικῇ κατὰ τὸ Φαληρικὸν προσ-φερόμενος τοὺς περίξ ἀπέκρυσεν αἰγιαλούς,
 αὐτὸς τε βασιλεὺς μετὰ τοῦ πεζοῦ στρατοῦ
 καταβὰς ἐπὶ τὴν θάλατταν ἄθρους ὤφθη, τῶν
 δὲ δυνάμεων ὁμοῦ γενομένων, ἐξερρήσαν οἱ τοῦ Θεμιστοκλέους λόγοι τῶν Ἑλλήνων καὶ πάλιν ἐπάπταινον οἱ Πελοποννήσιοι πρὸς τὸν Ἴσθμόν,

THEMISTOCLES

to abandon and betray them, Themistocles addressed his speech with emphasis to him, saying: "It is true, thou wretch, that we have left behind us our houses and our city walls, not deeming it meet for the sake of such lifeless things to be in subjection; but we still have a city, the greatest in Hellas, our two hundred triremes, which now are ready to aid you if you choose to be saved by them; but if you go off and betray us for the second time, straightway many a Hellene will learn that the Athenians have won for themselves a city that is free and a territory that is far better than the one they cast aside." When Themistocles said this, Eurybiades began to reflect, and was seized with fear lest the Athenians go away and abandon him. And again, when the Eretrian tried to argue somewhat against him, "Aha!" said he, "what argument can ye make about war, who, like the cuttle-fish, have a long pouch in the place where your heart ought to be?"

XII. Some tell the story that while Themistocles was thus speaking from off the deck of his ship, an owl was seen to fly through the fleet from the right and alight in his rigging; wherefore his hearers espoused his opinion most eagerly and prepared to do battle with their ships. But soon the enemy's armament beset the coast of Attica down to the haven of Phalerum, so as to hide from view the neighbouring shores; then the King in person with his infantry came down to the sea, so that he could be seen with all his hosts; and presently, in view of this junction of hostile forces, the words of Themistocles ebbed out of the minds of the Hellenes, and the Peloponnesians again turned their eyes wistfully towards the Isthmus and were vexed if any one spake

PLUTARCH'S LIVES

εἴ τις ἄλλο τι λέγοι χαλεπαίνοντες, ἐδόκει δὲ τῆς
 νυκτὸς ἀποχωρεῖν καὶ παρηγγέλλετο πλοῦς τοῖς
 3 κυβερνήταις, ἔνθα δὴ βαρέως φέρων ὁ Θεμισστοκλῆς, εἰ τὴν ἀπὸ τοῦ τόπου καὶ τῶν στενωῶν προέμενοι βοήθειαν οἱ Ἕλληνες διαλυθήσονται
 κατὰ πόλεις, ἐβουλεύετο καὶ συνετίθει τὴν περὶ
 τὸν Σίκιννον παραγματείαν.

Ἦν δὲ τῷ μὲν γένει Πέρσης ὁ Σίκιννος, αἰχμάλλωτος, εὖνους δὲ τῷ Θεμιστοκλεῖ καὶ τῶν τέκνων
 4 αὐτοῦ παιδαγωγός. ὃν ἐκπέμπει πρὸς τὸν
 Ξέρξην κρύφα, κελεύσας λέγειν, ὅτι Θεμιστοκλῆς
 ὁ τῶν Ἀθηναίων στρατηγὸς αἰρούμενος τὰ βα-σιλέως ἐξαγγέλλει πρῶτος αὐτῷ τοὺς Ἕλληνας
 ἀποδιδράσκοντας, καὶ διακελεύεται μὴ παρεῖναι
 φυγεῖν αὐτοῖς, ἀλλ' ἐν ᾧ ταραττονται τῶν πεζῶν
 χωρὶς ὄντες ἐπιθέσθαι καὶ διαφθεῖραι τὴν ναυτι-5 κὴν δύναμιν. ταῦτα δ' ὁ Ξέρξης ὡς ἀπ' εὐνοίας
 λελεγμένα δεξάμενος ἤσθη, καὶ τέλος εὐθὺς
 ἐξέφερε πρὸς τοὺς ἡγεμόνας τῶν νεῶν, τὰς μὲν
 ἄλλας πληροῦν καθ' ἡσυχίαν, διακοσίαις δ' ἀναχθέντας ἤδη περιβαλέσθαι τὸν πόρον ἐν
 κύκλῳ πάντα καὶ διαζῶσαι τὰς νήσους, ὅπως
 ἐκφύγοι μηδεὶς τῶν πολεμίων.

6 Τούτων δὲ πραττομένων Ἀριστείδης ὁ Λύσι-μάχου πρῶτος αἰσθόμενος ἦκεν ἐπὶ τὴν σκηνὴν
 τοῦ Θεμιστοκλέους, οὐκ ὦν φίλος, ἀλλὰ καὶ δι'
 ἐκεῖνον ἐξωστρακισμένος, ὥσπερ εἴρηται· προελθόντι δὲ τῷ Θεμιστοκλεῖ φράζει τὴν κύκλωσιν.
 ὁ δὲ τὴν τε ἄλλην καλοκαγαθίαν τοῦ ἀνδρὸς 36

THEMISTOCLES

of any other course; nay, they actually decided to withdraw from their position in the night, and orders for the voyage were issued to the pilots. Such was the crisis when Themistocles, distressed to think that the Hellenes should abandon the advantages to be had from the narrowness of the straits where they lay united, and break up into detachments by cities, planned and concocted the famous affair of Sicinnus.

This Sicinnus was of Persian stock, a prisoner of war, but devoted to Themistocles, and the paedagogue of his children. This man was sent to Xerxes secretly with orders to say: "Themistocles the Athenian general elects the King's cause, and is the first one to announce to him that the Hellenes are trying to slip away, and urgently bids him not to suffer them to escape, but, while they are in confusion and separated from their infantry, to set upon them and destroy their naval power." Xerxes received this as the message of one who wished him well, and was delighted, and at once issued positive orders to the captains of his ships to man the main body of the fleet at their leisure, but with two hundred ships to put out to sea at once, and encompass the strait round about on every side, including the islands in their line of blockade, that not one of the enemy might escape.

While this was going on, Aristides the son of Lysimachus, who was the first to perceive it, came to the tent of Themistocles, who was no friend of his, nay, through whom he had even been ostracized, as I have said; and when Themistocles came forth from the tent, Aristides told him how the enemy surrounded them. Themistocles, knowing the tried nobility of the man, and filled with admiration for

PLUTARCH'S LIVES

εἰδὼς καὶ τῆς τότε παρουσίας ἀγάμενος λέγει τὰ περὶ τὸν Σίκιννον αὐτῷ καὶ παρεκάλει τῶν Ἑλλήνων συνεπιλαμβάνεσθαι καὶ συμπροθυμεῖσθαι πίστιν ἔχοντα μᾶλλον, ὅπως ἐν τοῖς στενοῖς
 7 ναυμαχίωσιν. ὁ μὲν οὖν Ἀριστείδης ἐπαινέσας τὸν Θεμιστοκλέα τοὺς ἄλλους ἐπήει στρατηγούς καὶ τριηράρχους ἐπὶ τὴν μάχην παροξύνων. ἔτι δ' ὅμως ἀπιστούντων ἐφάνη Τηνία τριήρης αὐτόμολος, ἧς ἐναυάρχει Παναίτιος, ἀπαγγέλλουσα τὴν κύκλωσιν, ὥστε καὶ θυμῷ τοὺς Ἕλληνας ὀρμῆσαι μετὰ τῆς ἀνάγκης πρὸς τὸν κίνδυνον.

XIII. Ἄμα δ' ἡμέρα Ξέρξης μὲν ἄνω καθῆστο τὸν στόλον ἐποπτεύων καὶ τὴν παράταξιν, ὡς μὲν Φανόδημός φησιν, ὑπὲρ τὸ Ἡράκλειον, ἢ βραχεῖ πόρῳ διείργεται τῆς Ἀττικῆς ἢ νῆσος, ὡς δ' Ἀκεστόδωρος, ἐν μεθορίῳ τῆς Μεγαρίδος ὑπὲρ τῶν καλουμένων Κεράτων, χρυσοῦν δίφρον θέμενος καὶ γραμματεῖς πολλοὺς παραστησάμενος, ὧν ἔργον ἦν ἀπογράφεσθαι τὰ κατὰ τὴν μάχην πραττόμενα.

2 Θεμιστοκλεῖ δὲ παρὰ τὴν ναυαρχίδα τριήρη σφαιγιαζομένῳ τρεῖς προσήχθησαν αἰχμάλωτοι, κάλλιστοι μὲν ιδέσθαι τὴν ὄψιν, ἐσθῆσι δὲ καὶ χρυσῷ κεκοσμημένοι διαπρεπῶς. ἐλέγοντο δὲ Σανδαύκης παῖδες εἶναι τῆς βασιλέως ἀδελφῆς καὶ Ἀρταύκτου. τούτους ἰδὼν Εὐφραντίδης ὁ μάντις, ὡς ἅμα μὲν ἀνέλαμψεν ἐκ τῶν ἱερῶν μέγα καὶ περιφανὲς πῦρ, ἅμα δὲ πταρμὸς ἐκ

THEMISTOCLES

his coming at that time, told him all about the Sicinnus matter, and besought him to join in this desperate attempt to keep the Hellenes where they were,—admitting that he had the greater credit with them,—in order that they might make their sea-fight in the narrows. Aristides, accordingly, after bestowing praise upon Themistocles for his stratagem, went round to the other generals and trierarchs inciting them on to battle. And while they were still incredulous in spite of all, a Tenian trireme appeared, a deserter from the enemy, in command of Panaetius, and told how the enemy surrounded them, so that with a courage born of necessity the Hellenes set out to confront the danger.

XIII. At break of day, Xerxes was seated on a high place and overlooking the disposition of his armament. This place was, according to Phanodemus, above the Heracleium, where only a narrow passage separates the island from Attica; but according to Acestorus, it was in the border-land of Megara, above the so-called "Horns." Here a gilded throne had been set for him at his command, and many secretaries stationed near at hand, whose task it was to make due record of all that was done in the battle.

But Themistocles was sacrificing alongside the admiral's trireme. There three prisoners of war were brought to him, of visage most beautiful to behold, conspicuously adorned with raiment and with gold. They were said to be the sons of Sandaucé, the King's sister, and Artayctus. When Euphrantides the seer caught sight of them, since at one and that same moment a great and glaring flame shot up from the sacrificial victims and a sneeze gave forth δεξιῶν ἐσήμηνε, τὸν Θεμιστοκλέα δεξιωσάμενος ἐκέλευσε τῶν νεανίσκων κατάρξασθαι καὶ καθιερεῦσαι πάντας ὠμηστῇ Διονύσῳ προσευξάμενον· οὕτω γὰρ ἅμα σωτηρίαν τε καὶ νίκην ἔσσεσθαι 3 τοῖς Ἕλλησιν. ἐκπλαγέντος δὲ τοῦ Θεμιστοκλέους ὡς μέγα τὸ μάντευμα καὶ δεινόν, οἶον εἶωθεν ἐν μεγάλοις ἀγῶσι καὶ πράγμασι χαλεποῖς, μᾶλλον ἐκ τῶν παραλόγων ἢ τῶν εὐλόγων τὴν σωτηρίαν ἐλπίζοντες οἱ πολλοὶ τὸν θεὸν ἅμα κοινῇ κατεκαλοῦντο φωνῇ καὶ τοὺς αἰχμαλώτους τῷ βωμῷ προσαγαγόντες ἠνάγκασαν, ὡς ὁ μάντις ἐκέλευσε, τὴν θυσίαν συντελεσθῆναι. ταῦτα μὲν οὖν ἀνὴρ φιλόσοφος καὶ γραμμάτων οὐκ ἄπειρος ἱστορικῶν Φανίας ὁ Λέσβιος εἴρηκε.

XIV. Περὶ δὲ τοῦ πλήθους τῶν βαρβαρικῶν νεῶν Αἰσχύλος ὁ ποιητῆς ὡς ἂν εἰδὼς καὶ διαβεβαιούμενος ἐν τραγωδίᾳ Πέρσαις λέγει ταῦτα·

Ξέρξη δέ, καὶ γὰρ οἶδα, χιλιάς μὲν ἦν
 ὧν ἦγε¹ πλήθος· αἱ δ' ὑπέρκομποι τάχει
 ἑκατὸν δις ἦσαν ἐπτά θ'· ὧδ' ἔχει λόγος.

τῶν δ' Ἀττικῶν ἑκατὸν ὀγδοήκοντα τὸ πλήθος οὐσῶν ἐκίστη τοὺς ἀπὸ τοῦ καταστρώματος μαχομένους ὀκτωκαίδεκα εἶχεν, ὧν τοξόται τέσσαρες ἦσαν, οἱ λοιποὶ δ' ὀπλίται.

2 Δοκεῖ δ' οὐκ ἦττον εὖ τὸν καιρὸν ὁ Θεμιστοκλῆς ἢ τὸν τόπον συνιδῶν καὶ φυλάξας μὴ πρότερον ἀντιπρώρους καταστήσαι ταῖς βαρβαρικαῖς τὰς τριήρεις, ἢ τὴν εἰωθυίαν

¹ ὧν ἦγε Fuhr and Blass with Aeschylus : νεῶν τὸ.

THEMISTOCLES

its good omen on the right, he clasped Themistocles by the hand and bade him consecrate the youths, and sacrifice them all to Dionysus Carnivorous, with prayers of supplication; for on this wise would the Hellenes have a saving victory. Themistocles was terrified, feeling that the word of the seer was monstrous and shocking; but the multitude, who, as it went to be the case in great struggles and severe crises, looked for safety rather from unreasonable than from reasonable measures, invoked the god with one voice, dragged the prisoners to the altar, and compelled the fulfilment of the sacrifice, as the seer commanded. At any rate, this is what Phnias the Lesbian says, and he was a philosopher, and well acquainted with historical literature.

XIV. As regards the number of the Barbarian ships, Aeschylus the poet, in his tragedy of "The Persians," as though from personal and positive knowledge, says this:—

"But Xerxes, and I surely know, had a thousand ships
In number under him; those of surpassing speed
Were twice five score beside and seven; so stands
the count."¹

The Attic ships were one hundred and eighty in number, and each had eighteen men to fight upon the decks, of whom four were archers and the rest men-at-arms.

Themistocles is thought to have divined the best time for fighting with no less success than the best place, inasmuch as he took care not to send his triremes bow on against the Barbarian vessels until the

¹ Verses 341-343 (Dindorf).

PLUTARCH'S LIVES

ὄραν παραγενέσθαι, τὸ πνεῦμα λαμπρὸν ἐκ πελάγους αἰεὶ καὶ κύμα διὰ τῶν στενῶν κατάγουσαν· ὁ τὰς μὲν Ἑλληνικὰς οὐκ ἔβλαπτε ναῦς ἀλιτενεῖς οὔσας καὶ ταπεινοτέρας, τὰς δὲ βαρβαρικὰς ταῖς τε πρύμναις ἀνεστῶσας καὶ τοῖς καταστρώμασιν ὑψορόφους καὶ βαρείας ἐπιφερομένας ἔσφαλλε προσπίπτου καὶ παρεδίδου πλαγίας τοῖς Ἑλλησιν ὀξέως προσφερομένοις καὶ τῷ Θεμιστοκλεῖ προσέχουσιν, ὡς ὀρῶντι μάλιστα
 3 τὸ συμφέρον, καὶ ὅτι κατ' ἐκείνου ὁ Ξέρξου ναύαρχος Ἀριαμένης ναῦν ἔχων μεγάλην ὥσπερ ἀπὸ τείχους ἐτόξευε καὶ ἠκόντιζεν, ἀνὴρ ἀγαθὸς ὢν καὶ τῶν βασιλέως ἀδελφῶν πολὺ κρᾶτιστός τε καὶ δικαιοτάτος. τούτου μὲν οὖν Ἀμεινίας ὁ Δεκελεύς καὶ Σωκλῆς ὁ Παιανιεύς¹ ὁμοῦ πλέοντες, ὡς αἱ νῆες ἀντίπρωροι προσπεσοῦσαι καὶ συνερεῖσασαι τοῖς χαλκώμασιν ἐνεσχέθησαν, ἐπιβαίνοντα τῆς αὐτῶν τριήρους ὑποστάντες καὶ τοῖς δόρασι τύπτοντες εἰς τὴν θάλασσαν ἐξέβαλον· καὶ τὸ σῶμα μετ' ἄλλων διαφερόμενον ναυαγίων Ἀρτεμισία γνωρίσασα πρὸς Ξέρξην ἀνήνεγκεν.

XV. Ἐν δὲ τούτῳ τοῦ ἀγῶνος ὄντος φῶς μὲν ἐκλάμψαι μέγα λέγουσιν Ἐλευσινόθεν, ἦχον δὲ καὶ φωνὴν τὸ Θριάσιον κατέχειν πεδίον ἄχρι θαλάττης, ὡς ἀνθρώπων ὁμοῦ πολλῶν τὸν μυστικὸν ἐξαγόντων Ἴακχον. ἐκ δὲ τοῦ πλήθους τῶν φθεγγομένων κατὰ μικρὸν ἀπὸ γῆς ἀναφερόμενον νέφος ἔδοξεν αὐθις ὑπονοστεῖν καὶ κατασκήπτειν εἰς τὰς τριήρεις. ἕτεροι δὲ φάσματα hour of the day had come which always brought the breeze fresh from the sea and a swell rolling through the strait. This breeze wrought no harm to the Hellenic ships, since they lay low in the water and were rather small ; but for the Barbarian ships, with their towering sterns and lofty decks and sluggish movements in getting under way, it was fatal, since it smote them and slewed them round broadside to the Hellenes, who set upon them sharply, keeping their eyes on Themistocles, because they thought he saw best what was to be done, and because confronting him was the admiral of Xerxes, Ariamenes, with a great ship, and just as if he were on a city-wall he kept shooting arrows and javelins, —brave man that he was, by far the strongest and justest of the King's brothers. It was upon him that Ameinias the Deceleian and Socles the Paeonian bore down,—they being together on one ship,—and as the two ships struck each other bow on, crashed together, and hung fast by their bronze beaks, he tried to board their trireme ; but they faced him, smote him with their spears, and hurled him into the sea. His body, as it drifted about with other wreckage, was recognised by Artemisia, who had it carried to Xerxes.

¹ Παιανιεύς correction of Blass : Πεδιεύς,

THEMISTOCLES

XV. At this stage of the struggle they say that a great light flamed out from Eleusis, and an echoing cry filled the Thriasian plain down to the sea, as of multitudes of men together conducting the mystic Iacchus in procession. Then out of the shouting throng a cloud seemed to lift itself slowly from the earth, pass out seawards, and settle down upon the triremes. Others fancied they saw apparitions and καὶ εἶδωλα καθορᾶν ἔδοξαν ἐνόπλων ἀνδρῶν ἀπ' Αἰγίνης τὰς χεῖρας ἀνεχόντων πρὸ τῶν Ἑλληνικῶν τριηρῶν· οὗς εἵκαζον Αἰακίδας εἶναι παρακεκλημένους εὐχαῖς πρὸ τῆς μάχης ἐπὶ τὴν βοήθειαν.

PLUTARCH'S LIVES

- 2 Πρῶτος μὲν οὖν λαμβάνει ναῦν Λυκομήδης, ἀνὴρ Ἀθηναῖος τριηραρχῶν, ἧς τὰ παράσημα περικόψας ἀνέθηκεν Ἀπόλλωνι δαφνηφόρῳ Φλυῆσιν. οἱ δ' ἄλλοι τοῖς βαρβάροις ἐξισούμενοι τὸ πλῆθος ἐν στενωπῷ κατὰ μέρος προσφερομένους καὶ περιπίπτοντας ἀλλήλοις ἐτρέψαντο, μέχρι δείλης ἀντισχόντας, ὡς εἶρηκε Σιμωνίδης, τὴν καλὴν ἐκείνην καὶ περιβόητον ἀράμενοι νίκην, ἧς οὐθ' Ἑλλησιν οὔτε βαρβάροις ἐνάλιον ἔργον εἴργασται λαμπρότερον, ἀνδρεία μὲν καὶ προθυμία κοινῇ τῶν ναυμαχησάντων, γνώμη δὲ καὶ δεινότητι τῇ¹ Θεμιστοκλέους.

XVI. Μετὰ δὲ τὴν ναυμαχίαν Ξέρξης μὲν ἔτι 120
θυμομαχῶν πρὸς τὴν ἀπότευξιν ἐπεχείρει διὰ
χωμάτων ἐπάγειν τὸ πεζὸν τοῖς Ἑλλησιν εἰς Σαλαμίνα, ἐμφράξας τὸν διὰ μέσου πόρον· Θεμιστοκλῆς δ' ἀποπειρώμενος Ἀριστείδου λόγῳ
γνώμην ἐποιεῖτο λύειν τὸ ζεύγμα ταῖς ναυσὶν ἐπιπλεύσαντας εἰς Ἑλλάσποντον, “Ὅπως,” ἔφη, “τὴν Ἀσίαν ἐν τῇ Εὐρώπῃ λάβωμεν.”

- 2 δυσχεραίνοντος δὲ τοῦ Ἀριστείδου καὶ λέγοντος
ὅτι, “Νῦν μὲν τρυφῶντι τῷ βαρβάρῳ πεπολεμήκαμεν, ἂν δὲ κατακλείσωμεν εἰς τὴν Ἑλλάδα
καὶ καταστήσωμεν εἰς ἀνάγκην ὑπὸ δέους ἀνδρα
τηλικούτων δυνάμεων κύριον, οὐκέτι καθήμενος

¹ δεινότητι τῇ Fuhr and Blass with S : δεινότητι.

THEMISTOCLES

shapes of armed men coming from Aegina with their hands stretched out to protect the Hellenic triremes. These, they conjectured, were the Aeacidæ, who had been prayerfully invoked before the battle to come to their aid.¹

Now the first man to capture an enemy's ship was Lycomedes, an Athenian captain, who cut off its figure-head and dedicated it to Apollo the Laurel-bearer at Phlya. Then the rest, put on an equality in numbers with their foes, because the Barbarians had to attack them by detachments in the narrow strait and so ran foul of one another, routed them, though they resisted till the evening drew on, and thus "bore away," as Simonides says,² "that fair and notorious victory, than which no more brilliant exploit was ever performed upon the sea, either by Hellenes or Barbarians, through the manly valour and common ardour of all who fought their ships, but through the clever judgment of Themistocles."

XVI. After the sea-fight, Xerxes, still furious at his failure, undertook to carry moles out into the sea on which he could lead his infantry across to Salamis against the Hellenes, damming up the intervening strait. But Themistocles, merely by way of sounding Aristides, proposed, as though he were in earnest, to sail with the fleet to the Hellespont and break the span of boats there, "in order," said he, "that we may capture Asia in Europe." Aristides, however, was displeased with the scheme and said: "Now indeed the Barbarian with whom we have fought consults his ease and pleasure, but should we shut up in Hellas and bring under fearful compulsion a man who is lord of such vast forces, he will

¹ Herod. viii. 64. ² Bergk, Poet. Lyr. Graeci, iii. 4 p. 423.

ὑπὸ σκιᾷδι χρυσῇ θεάσεται τὴν μάχην ἐφ' ἡσυχίας, ἀλλὰ πάντα τολμῶν καὶ πᾶσιν αὐτὸς παρῶν διὰ τὸν κίνδυνον ἐπανορθώσεται τὰ παρειμένα καὶ βουλευσεται βέλτιον ὑπὲρ τῶν ὄλων.

3 οὐ τὴν οὔσαν οὖν," ἔφη, "δεῖ γέφυραν, ὦ Θεμιστοκλεις, ἡμᾶς ἀναιρεῖν, ἀλλ' ἑτέραν, εἴπερ οἶόν τε, προσκατασκευάσαντας ἐκβαλεῖν διὰ τάχους τὸν ἄνθρωπον ἐκ τῆς Εὐρώπης." "Οὐκοῦν," εἶπεν ὁ Θεμιστοκλῆς, "εἰ δοκεῖ ταῦτα συμφέρειν, ὦρα σκοπεῖν καὶ μηχανᾶσθαι πάντας ἡμᾶς, ὅπως ἀπαλλαγῆσεται τὴν ταχίστην ἐκ τῆς Ἑλλάδος."

4 Ἐπεὶ δὲ ταῦτα ἔδοξε, πέμπει τινὰ τῶν βασιλικῶν εὐνούχων ἐν τοῖς αἰχμαλώτοις ἀνευρών, Ἄρνακην ὄνομα, φράζειν βασιλεῖ κελεύσας, ὅτι τοῖς μὲν Ἑλλησι δέδοκται τῷ ναυτικῷ κεκρατηκότας ἀναπλεῖν εἰς τὸν Ἑλλήσποντον ἐπὶ τὸ ζεύγμα καὶ λύειν τὴν γέφυραν, Θεμιστοκλῆς δὲ κηδομενος βασιλέως παραινεί σπεύδειν ἐπὶ τὴν ἑαυτοῦ θάλατταν καὶ περαιούσθαι, μέχρις αὐτὸς ἐμποιεῖ τινὰς διατριβὰς τοῖς συμμαχοῖς καὶ

5 μελλήσεις πρὸς τὴν δίωξιν. ταῦθ' ὁ βάρβαρος ἀκούσας καὶ γενόμενος περίφοβος διὰ τάχους ἐποιεῖτο τὴν ἀναχώρησιν. καὶ πείραν ἢ Θεμιστοκλέους καὶ Ἀριστείδου φρόνησις ἐν Μαρδονίῳ παρέσχεν, εἴγε πολλοστημορίῳ τῆς Ξέρξου δυνάμεως διαγωνισάμενοι Πλαταιᾶσιν εἰς τὸν περὶ τῶν ὄλων κίνδυνον κατέστησαν.

XVII. Πόλεων μὲν οὖν τὴν Αἰγινητῶν ἀριστεύσαι φησιν Ἡρόδοτος, Θεμιστοκλεῖ δέ, καίπερ

THEMISTOCLES

no longer sit under a golden parasol to view the spectacle of the battle at his ease, but he will dare all things, and, superintending everything in person, because of his peril, will rectify his previous remissness and take better counsel for the highest issues thus at stake. We must not, then," said he, "tear down the bridge that is already there, Themistocles, nay rather, we must build another alongside it, if that be possible, and cast the fellow out of Europe in a hurry." "Well, then," said Themistocles, "if that is what is thought for the best, it is high time for us all to be studying and inventing a way to get him out of Hellas by the speediest route."

As soon as this policy had been adopted, he sent a certain royal eunuch whom he discovered among the prisoners of war, by name Arnaces, with orders to tell the King that the Hellenes had decided, since their fleet now controlled the sea, to sail up into the Hellespont, where the strait was spanned, and destroy the bridge; but that Themistocles, out of regard for the King, urged him to hasten into home waters and fetch his forces across; he himself, he said, would cause the allies all sorts of delays and postponements in their pursuit. No sooner did the Barbarian hear this than he was seized with exceeding fear and speedily began his retreat. This thoughtful prudence on the part of Themistocles and Aristides was afterwards justified by the campaign with Mardonius, since, although they fought at Plataea with the merest fraction of the armies of Xerxes, they yet staked their all upon the issue. X

XVII. Among the cities, now, Herodotus¹ says that Aegina bore away the prize of valour; but

¹ viii. 93.

PLUTARCH'S LIVES

ἄκουτες ὑπὸ φθόνου, τὸ πρωτεῖον ἀπέδωσαν ἅπαντες. ἐπεὶ γὰρ ἀναχωρήσαντες εἰς τὸν Ἴσθμὸν ἀπὸ τοῦ βωμοῦ τὴν ψῆφον ἔφερον οἱ στρατηγοί, πρῶτον μὲν ἕκαστος ἑαυτὸν ἀπέφαινε ἀρετῇ, δεύτερον δὲ μεθ' ἑαυτὸν Θεμιστοκλέα. Λακεδαιμόνιοι δ' εἰς τὴν Σπάρτην αὐτὸν καταγαγόντες Εὐρυβιάδῃ μὲν ἀνδρείας, ἐκείνῳ δὲ σοφίας ἀριστεῖον ἔδωσαν θαλλοῦ στέφανον, καὶ τῶν κατὰ τὴν πόλιν ἀρμάτων τὸ πρωτεῦον ἔδωρήσαντο καὶ τριακοσίους τῶν νέων πομπούς² ἄχρι τῶν ὄρων συνεξέπεμψαν. λέγεται δ' Ὀλυμπίων τῶν ἐφεξῆς ἀγομένων καὶ παρελθόντος εἰς τὸ στάδιον τοῦ Θεμιστοκλέους, ἀμελήσαντας τῶν ἀγωνιστῶν τοὺς παρόντας ὄλην τὴν ἡμέραν ἐκείνον θεᾶσθαι καὶ τοῖς ξένοις ἐπιδεικνύειν ἅμα θαυμάζοντας καὶ κροτοῦντας, ὥστε καὶ αὐτὸν ἡσθέντα πρὸς τοὺς φίλους ὁμολογήσαι τὸν καρπὸν ἀπέχειν τῶν ὑπὲρ τῆς Ἑλλάδος αὐτῷ ποιηθέντων.

XVIII. Καὶ γὰρ ἦν τῇ φύσει φιλοτιμότατος, εἰ δεῖ τεκμαίρεσθαι διὰ τῶν ἀπομνημονευομένων. αἰρεθεὶς γὰρ ναύαρχος ὑπὸ τῆς πόλεως οὐδὲν οὔτε τῶν ἰδίων οὔτε τῶν κοινῶν κατὰ μέρος ἐχρημάτιζεν, ἀλλ' ἐπανεβάλλετο¹ τὸ προσπίπτου εἰς τὴν ἡμέραν ἐκείνην, καθ' ἣν ἐκπλεῖν ἔμελλεν, ἵν' ὁμοῦ πολλὰ πράττων πράγματα καὶ παντοδαποῖς ἀνθρώποις ὁμιλῶν μέγας εἶναι δοκῇ καὶ πλεῖστον δύνασθαι.

¹ ἀλλ' ἐπανεβάλλετο Fuhr and Blass with F^aS: ἀλλὰ πάντῃ ἀνεβάλλετο every duty.

THEMISTOCLES

among individuals, all virtually awarded the first place to Themistocles, though their envy made them unwilling to do this directly. For when the generals withdrew to the Isthmus and solemnly voted on this question, taking their ballots from the very altar of the god there, each one declared for himself as first in valour, but for Themistocles as second after himself. Then the Lacedaemonians brought him down to Sparta, and while they gave Eurybiades the prize for valour, to him they gave one for wisdom,—a crown of olive in each case,—and they presented him with the best chariot there was in the city, and sent three hundred picked youth along with him to serve as his escort to the boundary. And it is said that when the next Olympic festival was celebrated, and Themistocles entered the stadium, the audience neglected the contestants all day long to gaze on him, and pointed him out with admiring applause to visiting strangers, so that he too was delighted, and confessed to his friends that he was now reaping in full measure the harvest of his toils in behalf of Hellas.

XVIII. And indeed he was by nature very fond of honour, if we may judge from his memorable sayings and doings. When, for example, the city had chosen him to be admiral, he would not perform any public or private business at its proper time, but would postpone the immediate duty to the day on which he was to set sail, in order that then, because he did many things all at once and had meetings with all sorts of men, he might be thought to be some great personage and very powerful.

PLUTARCH'S LIVES

- 2 Τῶν δὲ νεκρῶν τοὺς ἐκπεσόντας ἐπισκοπῶν
 παρὰ τὴν θάλατταν, ὡς εἶδε περικειμένους
 ψέλια χρυσᾶ καὶ στρεπτούς, αὐτὸς μὲν
 παρήλθε, τῷ δ' ἐπομένῳ φίλῳ δείξας εἶπεν· 121 “Ἄνελοῦ σαυτῷ· σὺ γὰρ οὐκ εἶ Θεμιστοκλῆς.”
 πρὸς δέ τινα τῶν καλῶν γεγονότων, Ἀντιφάτην,
 ὑπερηφάνως αὐτῷ κεχρημένον πρότερον, ὕστερον
 δὲ θεραπεύοντα διὰ τὴν δόξαν, “ὦ μειράκιον,” εἶπεν, “ὄψέ μὲν, ἀμφοτέροι δ' ἅμα νῦν ἐσχή-3 καμεν.” ἔλεγε δὲ τοὺς Ἀθηναίους οὐ τιμᾶν αὐτὸν
 οὐδὲ θαυμάζειν, ἀλλ' ὥσπερ πλατάνῳ χειμαζο-μένους μὲν ὑποτρέχειν κινδυνεύοντας, εὐδίας δὲ
 περὶ αὐτοὺς γενομένης τίλλειν καὶ κολοῦειν. τοῦ
 δὲ Σεριφίου πρὸς αὐτὸν εἰπόντος, ὡς οὐ δι' αὐτὸν
 ἔσχηκε δόξαν, ἀλλὰ διὰ τὴν πόλιν, “Ἀληθῆ
 λέγεις,” εἶπεν, “ἀλλ' οὐτ' ἂν ἐγὼ Σεριφίος ὦν
 ἐγενόμην ἔνδοξος, οὔτε σὺ Ἀθηναῖος.”
- 4 Ἐτέρου δὲ τινος τῶν στρατηγῶν, ὡς ἔδοξέ τι
 χρήσιμον διαπεπρᾶχθαι τῇ πόλει, θρασυνομένου
 πρὸς τὸν Θεμιστοκλέα καὶ τὰς ἑαυτοῦ ταῖς
 ἐκείνου πράξεις ἀντιπαραβάλλοντος, ἔφη τῇ
 ἑορτῇ τὴν ὕστεραίαν ἐρίσαι λέγουσαν, ὡς ἐκείνη
 μὲν ἀσχολιῶν τε μεστή καὶ κοπώδης ἐστίν, ἐν
 αὐτῇ δὲ πάντες ἀπολαύουσι τῶν παρεσκευα-σμένων σχολάζοντες· τὴν δ' ἑορτὴν πρὸς ταῦτ'
 εἰπεῖν· “Ἀληθῆ λέγεις· ἀλλ' ἐμοῦ μὴ γενομένης
 σὺ οὐκ ἂν ἦσθα.” “κἀμοῦ τοίνυν,” ἔφη, “τότε
 5 μὴ γενομένου, ποῦ ἂν ἦτε νῦν ὑμεῖς;” τὸν δὲ υἷον

THEMISTOCLES

Surveying once the dead bodies of the Barbarians which had been cast up along the sea, he saw that they were decked with golden bracelets and collars, and yet passed on by them himself, while to a friend who followed he pointed them out and said: "Help thyself, thou art not Themistocles." Again, to one who had once been a beauty, Antiphates, and who had at that time treated him disdainfully, but afterwards courted him because of the reputation he had got, "Young man," said he, "'tis late, 'tis true, but both of us have come to our senses." Also he used to say of the Athenians that they did not really honour and admire him for himself, but treated him for all the world like a plane-tree, running under his branches for shelter when it stormed, but when they had fair weather all about them, plucking and docking him. And when he was told by the Seriphian that it was not due to himself that he had got reputation, but to his city, "True," said he, "but neither should I, had I been a Seriphian, have achieved reputation, nor wouldst thou, hadst thou been an Athenian."

Again, when one of his fellow-generals who thought he had done some vast service to the city, grew bold with Themistocles, and began to compare his own services with his, "With the Festival-day," said he, "the Day After once began a contention, saying: 'Thou art full of occupations and wearisome, but when I come, all enjoy at their leisure what has been richly provided beforehand'; to which the Festival-day replied: 'True, but had I not come first, thou hadst not come at all.' So now," said he, "had I not come at that day of Salamis, where would thou and thy colleagues be now?" Of his son, who ἐντρυφῶντα τῇ μητρὶ καὶ δι' ἐκείνην αὐτῷ σκώπτων ἔλεγε πλείστον τῶν Ἑλλήνων δύνασθαι τοῖς μὲν γὰρ Ἑλλησιν ἐπιτάττειν Ἀθηναίους, Ἀθηναίους δ' αὐτόν, αὐτῷ δὲ τὴν ἐκείνου μητέρα, τῇ μητρὶ δ' ἐκείνου· ἴδιος δὲ τις ἐν πᾶσι βουλόμενος εἶναι χωρίον μὲν πιπράσκων ἐκέλευε κηρύττειν, ὅτι καὶ γείτονα χρηστὸν ἔχει· τῶν δὲ μνωμένων αὐτοῦ τὴν θυγατέρα τὸν ἐπιεικῆ τοῦ πλουσίου προκρίνας ἔφη ζητεῖν ἄνδρα χρημάτων δεόμενον μᾶλλον ἢ χρήματα ἄνδρός. ἐν μὲν οὖν τοῖς ἀποφθέγμασι τοιοῦτός τις ἦν.

PLUTARCH'S LIVES

XIX. Γενόμενος δ' ἀπὸ τῶν πράξεων ἐκείνων εὐθύς ἐπεχείρει τὴν πόλιν ἀνοικοδομεῖν καὶ τειχίζειν, ὡς μὲν ἱστορεῖ Θεόπομπος, χρήμασι πείσας μὴ ἐναντιωθῆναι τοὺς ἐφόρους, ὡς δ' οἱ πλείστοι, παρακρουσάμενος. ἦκε μὲν γὰρ εἰς Σπάρτην ὄνομα πρεσβείας ἐπιγραφάμενος· ἐγκαλούντων δὲ τῶν Σπαρτιατῶν, ὅτι τειχίζουσι τὸ ἄστυ, καὶ Πολυάρχου κατηγοροῦντος ἐπίτηδες 2 ἐξ Αἰγίνης ἀποσταλέντος, ἠρνεῖτο καὶ πέμπειν ἐκέλευεν εἰς Ἀθήνας τοὺς κατοψομένους, ἅμα μὲν ἐμβάλλων τῷ τειχισμῷ χρόνον ἐκ τῆς διατριβῆς, ἅμα δὲ βουλόμενος ἀντ' αὐτοῦ τοὺς πεμπομένους ὑπάρχειν τοῖς Ἀθηναίοις. ὃ καὶ συνέβη· γινόντες γὰρ οἱ Λακεδαιμόνιοι τὸ ἀληθές οὐκ ἠδίκησαν αὐτόν, ἀλλ' ἀδήλως χαλεπαίνοντες ἀπέπεμψαν.

Ἐκ δὲ τούτου τὸν Πειραιᾶ κατεσκεύαζε, τὴν τῶν λιμένων εὐφυῖαν κατανοήσας καὶ τὴν πόλιν

THEMISTOCLES

lorded it over his mother, and through her over himself, he said, jestingly, that the boy was the most powerful of all the Hellenes; for the Hellenes were commanded by the Athenians, the Athenians by himself, himself by the boy's mother, and the mother by her boy. Again, with the desire to be somewhat peculiar in all that he did, when he offered a certain estate for sale, he bade proclamation to be made that it had an excellent neighbour into the bargain. Of two suitors for his daughter's hand, he chose the likely man in preference to the rich man, saying that he wanted a man without money rather than money without a man. Such were his striking sayings.

XIX. After the great achievements now described, he straightway undertook to rebuild and fortify the city, — as Theopompus relates, by bribing the Spartan Ephors not to oppose the project; but as the majority say, by hoodwinking them. He came with this object to Sparta, ostensibly on an embassy, and when the Spartans brought up the charge that the Athenians were fortifying their city, and Polyarchus was sent expressly from Aegina with the same accusation, he denied that it was so, and bade them send men to Athens to see for themselves, not only because this delay would secure time for the building of the wall, but also because he wished the Athenians to hold these envoys as hostages for his own person. And this was what actually happened. When the Lacedaemonians found out the truth they did him no harm, but concealed their displeasure and sent him away.

After this he equipped the Piraeus, because he had noticed the favourable shape of its harbours, and

PLUTARCH'S LIVES

ὄλην ἀρμοττόμενος πρὸς τὴν θάλατταν, καὶ
 τρόπον τινὰ τοῖς παλαιοῖς βασιλεῦσι τῶν Ἀθη-3 ναίων ἀντιπολιτευόμενος. ἐκεῖνοι μὲν γάρ, ὡς
 λέγεται, πραγματευόμενοι τοὺς πολίτας ἀπο-σπάσαι τῆς θαλάττης καὶ συνεθίσαι ζῆν μὴ
 πλέοντας, ἀλλὰ τὴν χώραν φυτεύοντας, τὸν περὶ
 τῆς Ἀθηνᾶς διέεδσαν λόγον, ὡς ἐρίσαντα περὶ
 τῆς χώρας τὸν Ποσειδῶ δείξασα τὴν μορίαν τοῖς
 δικασταῖς ἐνίκησε. Θεμιστοκλῆς δ' οὐχ, ὡς
 Ἀριστοφάνης ὁ κωμικὸς λέγει, τῇ πόλει τὸν
 Πειραιᾶ προσέμαξεν, ἀλλὰ τὴν πόλιν ἐξῆψε
 4 τοῦ Πειραιῶς καὶ τὴν γῆν τῆς θαλάττης· ὅθεν
 καὶ τὸν δῆμον ἠὔξησε κατὰ τῶν ἀρίστων καὶ
 θράσους ἐνέπλησεν, εἰς ναύτας καὶ κελευστὰς
 καὶ κυβερνήτας τῆς δυνάμεως ἀφικομένης. διὸ
 καὶ τὸ βῆμα τὸ ἐν Πυκλὶ πεποιημένον ὥστ'
 ἀποβλέπειν πρὸς τὴν θάλασσαν ὕστερον οἱ
 τριάκοντα πρὸς τὴν χώραν ἀπέστρεψαν, οἰόμενοι
 τὴν μὲν κατὰ θάλατταν ἀρχὴν γένεσιν εἶναι δημοκρατίας, ὀλιγαρχία δ' ἤττον δυσχεραίνειν
 τοὺς γεωργοῦντας.

XX. Θεμιστοκλῆς δὲ καὶ μείζον τι περὶ τῆς
 ναυτικῆς διανοήθη δυνάμεως. ἐπεὶ γὰρ ὁ τῶν 12:
 Ἑλλήνων στόλος ἀπηλλαγμένου Ξέρξου κατήρεν
 εἰς Παγασὰς καὶ διεχείμαζε, δημηγορῶν ἐν τοῖς Ἀθηναίοις ἔφη τινα πράξιον ἔχειν ὠφέλιμον μὲν
 αὐτοῖς καὶ σωτήριον, ἀπόρητον δὲ πρὸς τοὺς
 2 πολλούς. τῶν δ' Ἀθηναίων Ἀριστείδη φράσαι
 μόνῳ κελευόντων, κἂν ἐκεῖνος δοκιμάσῃ περαι-

THEMISTOCLES

wished to attach the whole city to the sea; thus in a certain manner counteracting the policies of the ancient Athenian kings. For they, as it is said, in their efforts to draw the citizens away from the sea and accustom them to live not by navigation but by agriculture, disseminated the story about Athena, how when Poseidon was contending with her for possession of the country, she displayed the sacred olive-tree of the Acropolis to the judges, and so won the day. But Themistocles did not, as Aristophanes¹ the comic poet says, "knead the Piraeus on to the city," nay, he fastened the city to the Piraeus, and the land to the sea. And so it was that he increased the privileges of the common people as against the nobles, and filled them with boldness, since the controlling power came now into the hands of skippers and boatswains and pilots. Therefore it was, too, that the bema in Pnyx, which had stood so as to look off toward the sea, was afterwards turned by the thirty tyrants so as to look inland, because they thought that maritime empire was the mother of democracy, and that oligarchy was less distasteful to tillers of the soil.

XX. But Themistocles cherished yet greater designs even for securing the naval supremacy. When the fleet of the Hellenes, after the departure of Xerxes, had put in at Pagasae and was wintering there, he made a harangue before the Athenians, in which he said that he had a certain scheme in mind which would be useful and salutary for them, but which could not be broached in public. So the Athenians bade him impart it to Aristides alone, and if he should approve of it, to put it into execution.

¹ Knights, 815.

PLUTARCH'S LIVES

νειν, ὁ μὲν Θεμιστοκλῆς ἔφρασε τῷ Ἀριστείδῃ, τὸ νεώριον ἐμπρῆσαι διανοεῖσθαι τῶν Ἑλλήνων· ὁ δ' Ἀριστείδης εἰς τὸν δῆμον παρελθὼν ἔφη τῆς πράξεως, ἣν διανοεῖται πράττειν ὁ Θεμιστοκλῆς, μηδεμίαν εἶναι μῆτε λυσιτελεστέραν μῆτ' ἀδικωτέραν. οἱ μὲν οὖν Ἀθηναῖοι διὰ ταῦτα παύσασθαι τῷ Θεμιστοκλεῖ προσέταξαν.

- 3 Ἐν δὲ τοῖς Ἀμφικτυονικοῖς συνεδρίοις τῶν Λακεδαιμονίων εἰσηγουμένων, ὅπως ἀπείργωνται τῆς Ἀμφικτυονίας αἱ μὴ συμμαχήσασαι κατὰ τοῦ Μήδου πόλεις, φοβηθεῖς, μὴ Θετταλοὺς καὶ Ἀργεῖους, ἔτι δὲ Θηβαίους ἐκβαλόντες τοῦ συνεδρίου παντελῶς ἐπικρατήσωσι τῶν ψήφων καὶ γένηται τὸ δοκοῦν ἐκείνοις, συνεῖπε ταῖς πόλεσι καὶ μετέθηκε τὰς γνώμας τῶν πυλαγόρων,
- 4 διδάξας, ὡς τριάκοντα καὶ μία μόναι πόλεις εἰσὶν αἱ μετασχούσαι τοῦ πολέμου, καὶ τούτων αἱ πλείους παντάπασι μικραί· δεινὸν οὖν, εἰ τῆς ἄλλης Ἑλλάδος ἐκσπόνδου γενομένης ἐπὶ ταῖς μεγίσταις δυσὶν ἢ τρισὶ πόλεσιν ἔσται τὸ συνέδριον. ἐκ τούτου μὲν οὖν μάλιστα τοῖς Λακεδαιμονίοις προσέκρουσε· διὸ καὶ τὸν Κίμωνα προῆγον ταῖς τιμαῖς, ἀντίπαλον ἐν τῇ πολιτείᾳ τῷ Θεμιστοκλεῖ καθιστάντες.

XXI. Ἦν δὲ καὶ τοῖς συμμάχοις ἐπαχθῆς περιπλέων τε τὰς νήσους καὶ χρηματιζόμενος ἀπ' αὐτῶν· οἶα καὶ πρὸς Ἀνδρίους ἀργύριον αἰτοῦντά φησιν αὐτὸν Ἡρόδοτος εἰπεῖν τε καὶ ἀκοῦσαι. δύο γὰρ ἦκειν ἔφη θεοὺς κομίζων, Πειθὴ καὶ Βίαν· οἱ δ' ἔφασαν εἶναι καὶ παρ'

THEMISTOCLES

Themistocles accordingly told Aristides that he purposed to burn the fleet of the Hellenes where it lay ; but Aristides addressed the people, and said of the scheme which Themistocles purposed to carry out, that none could be either more advantageous or more iniquitous. The Athenians therefore ordered Themistocles to give it up.

At the Amphictyonic or Holy Alliance conventions, the Lacedaemonians introduced motions that all cities be excluded from the Alliance which had not taken part in fighting against the Mede. So Themistocles, fearing lest, if they should succeed in excluding the Thessalians and the Argives and the Thebans too from the convention, they would control the votes completely and carry through their own wishes, spoke in behalf of the protesting cities, and changed the sentiments of the delegates by showing that only thirty-one cities had taken part in the war, and that the most of these were altogether small ; it would be intolerable, then, if the rest of Hellas should be excluded and the convention be at the mercy of the two or three largest cities. It was for this reason particularly that he became obnoxious to the Lacedaemonians, and they therefore tried to advance Cimon in public favour, making him the political rival of Themistocles.

XXI. He made himself hateful to the allies also, by sailing round to the islands and trying to exact money from them. When, for instance, he demanded money of the Andrians, Herodotus¹ says he made a speech to them and got reply as follows : he said he came escorting two gods, Persuasion and Compulsion ; and they replied that they already had two great

¹ viii. 111.

PLUTARCH'S LIVES

αὐτοῖς θεοὺς μεγάλους δύο, Πενίαν καὶ Ἀπορίαν,
2 ὑφ' ὧν κωλύεσθαι δοῦναι χρήματα ἐκείνῳ.

Τιμοκρέων δ' ὁ Ῥόδιος μελοποιὸς ἐν ᾄσματι
καθάπτεται πικρότερον τοῦ Θεμιστοκλέους, ὡς
ἄλλους μὲν ἐπὶ χρήμασι φυγάδας διαπραξαμένου κατελθεῖν, αὐτὸν δὲ ξένον ὄντα καὶ φίλον προε-μένου δι' ἀργύριον. λέγει δ' οὕτως·

Ἄλλ' εἰ τύγε Πausανίαν ἢ καὶ τύγε Ξάνθιππον αἰνεῖς

ἢ τύγε Λευτυχίδα, ἐγὼ δ' Ἀριστείδα ἐπαινέω
ἄνδρ' ἱερῶν ἀπ' Ἀθανῶν

ἔλθειν ἓνα λῶστον· ἐπεὶ Θεμιστοκλῆ' ἤχθαρε Λατώ,

3 ψεύσταν, ἄδικον, προδόταν, ὃς Τιμοκρέοντα
ξείνον ἔοντ'

ἀργυρίοις σκυβαλικτοῖσι πεισθεὶς οὐ κατᾶγεν
εἰς πάτραν Ἰαλυσόν,

λαβὼν δὲ τρι' ἀργυρίου τάλαντ' ἔβα πλέων εἰς
ὄλεθρον,

τοὺς μὲν κατάγων ἀδίκως, τοὺς δ' ἐκδιώκων,
τοὺς δὲ καίνων,

ἀργυρίων ὑπόπλεως, Ἴσθμοῖ δ' ἐπανδόκευε
γελοῖως ψυχρὰ κρέα παρέχων·

οἱ δ' ἤσθιον κηῦχοντο μὴ ὄραν Θεμιστοκλεῦς
γενέσθαι.

4 πολὺ δ' ἀσελγεστέρα καὶ ἀναπεπταμένη μᾶλλον
εἰς τὸν Θεμιστοκλέα βλασφημία κέχρηται μετὰ

THEMISTOCLES

gods, Penury and Powerlessness, who hindered them from giving him money.

Timocreon, the lyric poet of Rhodes, assailed Themistocles very bitterly in a song, to the effect that for bribes he had secured the restoration of other exiles, but had abandoned him, though a host and a friend, and all for money. The song runs thus¹:—

“Come, if thou praisest Pausanias, or if Xanthippus,

Or if Læotychidas, then I shall praise Aristides,
The one best man of all

Who came from sacred Athens; since Leto
loathes Themistocles,

“The liar, cheat, and traitor, who, though Timocreon
was his host,

By knavish moneys was induced not to bring him back

Into his native Ialysus,

But took three talents of silver and went cruising
off,— to perdition,

“Restoring some exiles unjustly, chasing some away,
and slaying some,

Gorged with moneys; yet at the Isthmus he played ridiculous host with the stale meats
set before his guests;

Who ate thereof and prayed Heaven ‘no happy
return of the day for Themistocles!’”

Much more wanton and extravagant was the raillery
which Timocreon indulged in against Themistocles

¹ No attempt is made in the translations of Timocreon to imitate the metre of the original.

PLUTARCH'S LIVES

τὴν φυγὴν αὐτοῦ καὶ τὴν καταδίκην ὁ Τιμοκρέων
ἄσμα ποιήσας, οὐ ἔστιν ἀρχή·

Μούσα τοῦδε τοῦ μέλεος
κλέος ἀν' Ἑλλανας τίθει,
ὡς εἰκὸς καὶ δίκαιον.

λέγεται δ' ὁ Τιμοκρέων ἐπὶ μηδισμῷ φυγεῖν
5 συγκαταψηφισαμένου τοῦ Θεμιστοκλέους. ὡς
οὖν ὁ Θεμιστοκλῆς αἰτίαν ἔσχε μηδίξειν, ταῦτ'
ἐποίησεν εἰς αὐτόν·

Οὐκ ἄρα Τιμοκρέων μούνος Μήδοισιν ὀρκιατομεί,
ἀλλ' ἐντὶ κάλλοι δὴ πονηροί· οὐκ ἐγὼ μόνα κόλουρις·
ἐντὶ καὶ ἄλλαι ἀλώπεκες.

XXII. Ἦδη δὲ καὶ τῶν πολιτῶν διὰ τὸ φθο- 123
νεῖν ἠδέως τὰς διαβολὰς προσιεμένων ἠναγκάζετο
λυπηρὸς εἶναι τῶν αὐτοῦ πράξεων πολλάκις ἐν
τῷ δήμῳ μνημονεύων· καὶ πρὸς τοὺς δυσχεραίνοντας “Τί κοπιᾶτε,” εἶπεν, “ὑπὸ τῶν αὐτῶν
πολλάκις εὖ πάσχοντες;” ἠνίασε δὲ τοὺς πολ-λοὺς καὶ τὸ τῆς Ἀρτέμιδος ἱερὸν εἰσάμενος, ἦν
Ἀριστοβούλην μὲν προσηγόρευσεν, ὡς ἄριστα
2 τῇ πόλει καὶ τοῖς Ἑλλησι βουλευσάμενος, πλησίον δὲ τῆς οἰκίας κατεσκεύασεν ἐν Μελίτῃ τὸ
ἱερὸν, οὐ νῦν τὰ σώματα τῶν θανατουμένων οἱ
δήμιοι προβάλλουσι καὶ τὰ ἱμάτια καὶ τοὺς
βρόχους τῶν ἀπαγχομένων καὶ καθαιρεθέντων
ἐκφέρουσιν. ἔκειτο δὲ καὶ τοῦ Θεμιστοκλέους 60

THEMISTOCLES

after the latter's own exile and condemnation. Then he composed the song beginning :—

“ O Muse, grant that this song
Be famed throughout all Hellas,
As it is meet and just.”

It is said that Timocreon was sent into exile on a charge of Medising, and that Themistocles concurred in the vote of condemnation. Accordingly, when Themistocles also was accused of Medising, Timocreon composed these lines upon him :—

“ Not Timocreon alone, then, made compacts with the Medes,
But there are other wretches too; not I alone am brushless,
There are other foxes too.”

XXII. And at last, when even his fellow-citizens were led by their jealousy of his greatness to welcome such slanders against him, he was forced to allude to his own achievements when he addressed the Assembly, till he became tiresome thereby, and he once said to the malcontents: “ Why are ye vexed that the same men should often benefit you?” He offended the multitude also by building the temple of Artemis, whom he surnamed Aristoboulé, or Best Counsellor, intimating thus that it was he who had given the best counsel to the city and to the Hellenes. This temple he established near his house in Melité, where now the public officers cast out the bodies of those who have been put to death, and carry forth the garments and the nooses of those who have dispatched themselves by hanging. A portrait-statue of Themistocles stood in this

PLUTARCH'S LIVES

εἰκόνιον ἐν τῷ ναῷ τῆς Ἀριστοβούλης ἔτι καθ' ἡμᾶς· καὶ φαίνεται τις οὐ τὴν ψυχὴν μόνον, ἀλλὰ καὶ τὴν ὄψιν ἡρωϊκὸς γενόμενος.

- 3 Τὸν μὲν οὖν ἐξοστρακισμὸν ἐποίησαντο κατ' αὐτοῦ κολούοντες τὸ ἄξιωμα καὶ τὴν ὑπεροχὴν, ὥσπερ εἰώθεσαν ἐπὶ πάντων, οὓς ᾤοντο τῇ δυνάμει βαρεῖς καὶ πρὸς ἰσότητα δημοκρατικὴν ἀσυμμέτρους εἶναι. κόλασις γὰρ οὐκ ἦν ὁ ἐξοστρακισμὸς, ἀλλὰ παραμυθία φθόνου καὶ κουφισμὸς ἡδομένου τῷ ταπεινοῦν τοὺς ὑπερέχοντας καὶ τὴν δυσμένειαν εἰς ταύτην τὴν ἀτιμίαν ὑποπνέοντος.

- XXIII. Ἐκπεσόντος δὲ τῆς πόλεως αὐτοῦ καὶ διατρίβοντος ἐν Ἀργεὶ τὰ περὶ Πausανίαν συμπεσόντα κατ' ἐκείνου παρέσχε τοῖς ἐχθροῖς ἀφορμὰς. ὁ δὲ γραψάμενος αὐτὸν προδοσίας Λεωβώτης ἦν ὁ Ἀλκμαίωνος Ἀγραυλῆθεν, ἅμα συνεπαιτιωμένων τῶν Σπαρτιατῶν. ὁ γὰρ Πausανίας πράττων ἐκεῖνα δὴ τὰ περὶ τὴν προδοσίαν πρότερον μὲν ἀπεκρύπτετο τὸν Θεμιστοκλέα,
- 2 καίπερ ὄντα φίλον· ὡς δ' εἶδεν ἐκπεπτωκότα τῆς πολιτείας καὶ φέροντα χαλεπῶς ἐθάρσησεν ἐπὶ τὴν κοινωνίαν τῶν πραττομένων παρακαλεῖν, γράμματα¹ τοῦ βασιλέως ἐπιδεικνύμενος αὐτῷ καὶ παροξύνων ἐπὶ τοὺς Ἕλληνας ὡς πονηροὺς καὶ ἀχαρίστους. ὁ δὲ τὴν μὲν δέησιν ἀπετρίψατο τοῦ Πausανίου καὶ τὴν κοινωνίαν ὄλως ἀπέπειτο, πρὸς οὐδένα δὲ τοὺς λόγους ἐξήνεγκεν οὐδὲ κατεμήνυσε τὴν πράξιν, εἴτε παύσεσθαι προσδοκῶν

¹ γράμματα Fuhr and Blass with F⁸S: τὰ γράμματα.

THEMISTOCLES

temple of Aristoboulé down to my time, from which he appears to have been a man not only of heroic spirit, but also of heroic presence.

Well then, they visited him with ostracism,¹ curtailing his dignity and pre-eminence, as they were wont to do in the case of all whom they thought to have oppressive power, and to be incommensurate with true democratic equality. For ostracism was not a penalty, but a way of pacifying and alleviating that jealousy which delights to humble the eminent, breathing out its malice into this disfranchisement.

XXIII. After he had been thus banished from the city, and while he was sojourning at Argos, circumstances connected with the death of Pausanias gave his enemies at Athens ground for proceeding against him. The one who actually brought in the indictment against him for treason was Leobotes the son of Alcmeon, of the deme Agraulé, but the Spartans supported him in the accusation. Pausanias, while engaged in his grand scheme of treachery, at first kept it concealed from Themistocles; but when he saw him thus banished from his state and in great bitterness of spirit, he made bold to invite him into partnership in his own undertakings, showing him a letter he had received from the King, and inciting him against the Hellenes as a base and thankless people. Themistocles rejected the solicitation of Pausanias, and utterly refused the proffered partnership; and yet he disclosed the propositions to no one, nor did he even give information of the treacherous scheme, because he expected either that Pausanias would give it up of his own

¹ About 472 B.C.

PLUTARCH'S LIVES

αὐτόν, εἴτ' ἄλλως καταφανῆ γενήσεσθαι σὺν οὐδενὶ λογισμῶ πραγμάτων ἀτόπων καὶ παραβόλων ὀρεγόμενον.

- 3 Οὕτω δὴ τοῦ Πausανίου θανατωθέντος ἐπιστολαί τινες ἀνευρεθεῖσαι καὶ γράμματα περὶ τούτων εἰς ὑποψίαν ἐνέβαλον τὸν Θεμιστοκλέα· καὶ κατεβόων μὲν αὐτοῦ Λακεδαιμόνιοι, κατηγοροῦν δ' οἱ φθονοῦντες τῶν πολιτῶν, οὐ παρόντος, ἀλλὰ διὰ γραμμάτων ἀπολογουμένου μάλιστα
- 4 ταῖς προτέραις κατηγορίαις. διαβαλλόμενος γὰρ ὑπὸ τῶν ἐχθρῶν πρὸς τοὺς πολίτας ἔγραφεν, ὡς ἄρχεῖν μὲν αἰεὶ ζητῶν, ἄρχεσθαι δὲ μὴ πεφυκῶς μηδὲ βουλόμενος, οὐκ ἂν ποτε βαρβάροις αὐτὸν οὐδὲ πολεμίοις¹ ἀποδόσθαι μετὰ τῆς Ἑλλάδος. οὐ μὴν ἀλλὰ συμπεισθεὶς ὑπὸ τῶν κατηγορούντων ὁ δῆμος ἔπεμψεν ἄνδρας, οἷς εἴρητο συλλαμβάνειν καὶ ἀνάγειν² αὐτὸν κριθησόμενον ἐν τοῖς Ἑλλησιν.

XXIV. Προαισθόμενος δ' ἐκείνος εἰς Κέρκυραν διεπέρασεν, οὔσης αὐτῷ πρὸς τὴν πόλιν εὐεργεσίας. Γενόμενος γὰρ αὐτῶν κριτῆς πρὸς Κορινθίους ἐχόντων διαφοράν, ἔλυσε τὴν ἐχθρὰν εἴκοσι τάλαντα κρίνας τοὺς Κορινθίους καταβαλεῖν καὶ Λευκάδα κοινῇ νέμειν ἀμφοτέρων ἀποικον. ἐκείθεν δ' εἰς Ἡπειρον ἔφυγε· καὶ διωκόμενος ὑπὸ τῶν Ἀθηναίων καὶ τῶν Λακεδαιμονίων ἔρριψεν αὐτὸν εἰς ἐλπίδας χαλεπὰς καὶ ἀπόρους καταφυγῶν πρὸς

2 Ἀδμητον, ὃς βασιλεὺς μὲν ἦν Μολοττῶν, δεηθεὶς δέ τι τῶν Ἀθηναίων καὶ προπηλακισθεὶς ὑπὸ τοῦ

¹ αὐτὸν οὐδὲ πολεμίοις Fuhr and Blass with F^{as}: καὶ πολεμίοις αὐτὸν. ² ἀνάγειν Fuhr and Blass with S: ἄγειν.

THEMISTOCLES

accord, or that in some other way he would be found out, since he was so irrationally grasping after such strange and desperate objects.

And so it was that, when Pausanias had been put to death, certain letters and documents regarding these matters were discovered which cast suspicion on Themistocles. The Lacedaemonians cried him down, and his envious fellow-citizens denounced him, though he was not present to plead his cause, but defended himself in writing, making particular use of earlier accusations brought against him. Since he was once slanderously accused by his enemies before his fellow-citizens—so he wrote, as one who ever sought to rule, but had no natural bent nor even the desire to be ruled, he could never have sold himself with Hellas to Barbarians, much less to foemen. The people, however, were overpersuaded by his accusers, and sent men with orders to arrest him and bring him up in custody to stand trial before a Congress of Hellenes.

XXIV. But he heard of this in advance, and crossed over to Corcyra, where he had been recognized as a public benefactor of the city. For he had served as arbiter in a dispute between them and the Corinthians, and settled the quarrel by deciding that the Corinthians should pay an indemnity of twenty talents, and administer Leucas as a common colony of both cities. Thence he fled to Epirus, and being pursued by the Athenians and Lacedaemonians, he threw himself upon grievous and desperate chances of escape by taking refuge with Admetus, who was king of the Molossians, and who, since he had once asked some favour of the Athenians and

PLUTARCH'S LIVES

- Θεμιστοκλέους, ὅτ' ἤκμαζεν ἐν τῇ πολιτείᾳ, δι' ὀργῆς εἶχεν αὐτὸν αἰεὶ καὶ δῆλος ἦν, εἰ λάβοι, 124 τιμωρησόμενος. ἐν δὲ τῇ τότε τύχῃ μᾶλλον ὁ Θεμιστοκλῆς φοβηθεὶς συγγενῇ καὶ πρόσφατον φθόνον ὀργῆς παλαιᾶς καὶ βασιλικῆς, ταύτην φέρων ὑπέθηκεν ἑαυτὸν, ἰκέτης τοῦ Ἀδμήτου καταστάς ἰδίῳ τινι καὶ παρηλλαγμένον τρόπον.
- 3 ἔχων γὰρ αὐτοῦ τὸν υἱὸν ὄντα παῖδα πρὸς τὴν ἐστίαν προσέπεσε, ταύτην μεγίστην καὶ μόνην σχεδὸν ἀναντίρρητον ἡγουμένων ἰκεσίαν τῶν Μολοσσῶν. ἔνιοι μὲν οὖν Φθίαν τὴν γυναῖκα τοῦ βασιλέως λέγουσιν ὑποθέσθαι τῷ Θεμιστοκλεῖ τὸ ἰκέτευμα τοῦτο καὶ τὸν υἱὸν ἐπὶ τὴν ἐστίαν καθίσει μετ' αὐτοῦ· τινὲς δ' αὐτὸν τὸν Ἀδμητον, ὡς ἀφοσιώσαιο πρὸς τοὺς διώκοντας τὴν ἀνάγκην, δι' ἣν οὐκ ἐκδίδωσι τὸν ἄνδρα, διαθεῖναι καὶ συντραγφῆσαι τὴν ἰκεσίαν.
- 4 Ἐκεῖ δ' αὐτῷ τὴν γυναῖκα καὶ τοὺς παῖδας ἐκκλέψας ἐκ τῶν Ἀθηνῶν Ἐπικράτης ὁ Ἀχαρνεὺς ἀπέστειλεν· ὃν ἐπὶ τούτῳ Κίμων ὕστερον κρίνας ἐθανάτωσεν, ὡς ἱστορεῖ Στησίμβροτος. εἴτ' οὐκ οἶδ' ὅπως ἐπιλαθόμενος τούτων ἢ τὸν Θεμιστοκλέα ποιῶν ἐπιλαθόμενον πλεῦσαί φησιν εἰς Σικελίαν καὶ παρ' Ἰέρωνος αἰτεῖν τοῦ τυράννου τὴν θυγατέρα πρὸς γάμον, ὑπισχνούμενον· αὐτῷ τοὺς Ἕλληνας ὑπηκόους ποιήσειν ἀποτριψαμένου¹ δὲ τοῦ Ἰέρωνος, οὕτως εἰς τὴν Ἀσίαν ἀπᾶραι.

¹ ἀποτριψαμένου Fuhr and Blass with S: ἀποστρεψαμένου.

THEMISTOCLES

had been insultingly refused it by Themistocles, then at the height of his political influence, was angry with him ever after, and made it plain that he would take vengeance on him if he caught him. But in the desperate fortune of that time Themistocles was more afraid of kindred and recent jealousy than of an anger that was of long standing and royal, and promptly cast himself upon the king's mercy, making himself the suppliant of Admetus in a way quite peculiar and extraordinary. That is to say, he took the young son of the king in his arms and threw himself down at the hearth; a form of supplication which the Molossians regarded as most sacred, and as almost the only one that might not be refused. Some, it is true, say that it was Phthia, the wife of the king, who suggested this form of supplication to Themistocles, and that she seated her son on the hearth with him; and certain others that Admetus himself, in order that he might give a religious sanction to the necessity that was upon him of not surrendering the man, arranged beforehand and solemnly rehearsed with him the supplication scene.

Thither his wife and children were privily removed from Athens and sent to him by Epicrates of the deme Acharnae, who, for this deed, was afterwards convicted by Cimon and put to death, as Stesimbrotus relates. Then, somehow or other, Stesimbrotus forgets this, or makes Themistocles forget it, and says he sailed to Sicily and demanded from Hiero the tyrant the hand of his daughter in marriage, promising as an incentive that he would make the Hellenes subject to his sway; but that Hiero repulsed him, and so he set sail for Asia.

PLUTARCH'S LIVES

XXV. Ταῦτα δ' οὐκ εἰκός ἐστιν οὕτω γενέσθαι. Θεόφραστος γὰρ ἐν τοῖς Περὶ βασιλείας ἱστορεῖ τὸν Θεμιστοκλέα πέμψαντος εἰς Ὀλυμπίαν Ἰέρωνος ἵππους ἀγωνιστὰς καὶ σκηνήν τινα κατεσκευασμένην πολυτελῶς στήσαντος, εἰπεῖν ἐν τοῖς Ἑλλησι λόγον, ὡς χρή τὴν σκηνήν διαρπάσαι τοῦ τυράννου καὶ κωλύσαι τοὺς ἵππους
 2 ἀγωνίσασθαι. Θουκυδίδης δέ φησι καὶ πλεῦσαι αὐτὸν ἐπὶ τὴν ἑτέραν καταβάντα θάλασσαν ἀπὸ Πύδνης, οὐδενὸς εἰδότος ὅστις εἴη τῶν πλεόντων, μέχρι οὗ πνεύματι τῆς ὀλκάδος εἰς Νάξον καταφερομένης ὑπὸ Ἀθηναίων πολιορκουμένην τότε φοβηθεὶς ἀναδείξειεν ἑαυτὸν τῷ τε ναυκλήρῳ καὶ τῷ κυβερνήτῃ, καὶ τὰ μὲν δεόμενος, τὰ δ' ἀπειλῶν καὶ λέγων, ὅτι κατηγορήσοι καὶ καταψεύσοιτο πρὸς τοὺς Ἀθηναίους, ὡς οὐκ ἀγνοοῦντες, ἀλλὰ χρήμασι πεισθέντες ἐξ ἀρχῆς, ἀναλάβοιεν αὐτόν, οὕτως ἀναγκάσειε παραπλεῦσαι καὶ
 3 λαβέσθαι τῆς Ἀσίας. τῶν δὲ χρημάτων αὐτῷ πολλὰ μὲν ὑπεκκλαπέντα διὰ τῶν φίλων εἰς Ἀσίαν. ἔπλει τῶν δὲ φανερῶν γενομένων καὶ συναχθέντων εἰς τὸ δημόσιον Θεόπομπος μὲν ἑκατὸν τάλαντα, Θεόφραστος δὲ ὀγδοήκοντά φησι γενέσθαι τὸ πλῆθος, οὐδὲ τριῶν ἄξια τάλαντων κεκτημένου τοῦ Θεμιστοκλέους πρὶν ἄπτεσθαι τῆς πολιτείας.

XXVI. Ἐπεὶ δὲ κατέπλευσεν εἰς Κύμην καὶ πολλοὺς ἦσθετο τῶν ἐπὶ θαλάττῃ παραφυλάττοντας αὐτὸν λαβεῖν, μάλιστα δὲ τοὺς περὶ Ἐργοτέλη καὶ Πυθόδωρον (ᾗν γὰρ ἡ θήρα λυσιτελής τοῖς τὸ κερδαίνειν ἀπὸ παντὸς ἀγαπῶσι,

THEMISTOCLES

XXV. But it is not likely that this was so. For Theophrastus, in his work "On Royalty," tells how, when Hiero sent horses to compete at Olympia, and set up a sort of booth there with very costly decorations, Themistocles made a speech among the assembled Hellenes, urging them to tear down the booth of the tyrant and prevent his horses from competing. And Thucydides¹ says that he made his way across the country to the sea, and set sail from Pydna, no one of the passengers knowing who he was until, when the vessel had been carried by a storm to Naxos, to which the Athenians at that time were laying siege,² he was terrified, and disclosed himself to the master and the captain of the ship, and partly by entreaties, partly by threats, actually declaring that he would denounce and vilify them to the Athenians as having taken him on board at the start in no ignorance but under bribes,—in this way compelled them to sail by and make the coast of Asia. Of his property, much was secretly abstracted for him by his friends and sent across the sea to Asia; but the sum total of that which was brought to light and confiscated amounted to one hundred talents, according to Theopompus,—Theophrastus says eighty,—and yet Themistocles did not possess the worth of three talents before he entered political life.

XXVI. After landing at Cymé, and learning that many people on the coast were watching to seize him, and especially Ergoteles and Pythodorus,—for the chase was a lucrative one to such as were fond of getting gain from any and every source, since

¹ i. 137.

² About 469 B.C.

PLUTARCH'S LIVES

διακοσίων ἐπικεκηρυγμένων αὐτῷ ταλάντων ὑπὸ τοῦ βασιλέως), ἔφυγεν εἰς Αἰγᾶς, Αἰολικὸν πολισμάτιον, ὑπὸ πάντων ἀγνοούμενος πλὴν τοῦ ξένου Νικογένους, ὃς Αἰολέων πλείστην οὐσίαν ἐκέκτητο καὶ τοῖς ἄνω δυνατοῖς γνώριμος ὑπῆρχε.
 2 παρὰ τούτῳ κρυπτόμενος ἡμέρας ὀλίγας διέτριψεν εἶτα μετὰ τὸ δεῖπνον ἐκ θυσίας τινὸς Ὀλβιος ὁ τῶν τέκνων τοῦ Νικογένους παιδαγωγὸς ἔκφρων γενόμενος καὶ θεοφόρητος ἀνεφώνησεν ἐν μέτρῳ¹ ταυτί·

Νυκτὶ φωνήν, νυκτὶ βουλήν, νυκτὶ τὴν νίκην δίδου.

Καὶ μετὰ ταῦτα κοιμηθεὶς ὁ Θεμιστοκλῆς ὄναρ ἔδοξεν ἰδεῖν δράκοντα κατὰ τῆς γαστρὸς αὐτοῦ περιελιττόμενον καὶ προσανέρποντα τῷ τραχήλῳ·
 3 γενόμενον δ' ἀετόν, ὡς ἦψατο τοῦ προσώπου, περιβαλόντα τὰς πτέρυγας ἐξᾶραι καὶ κομίζειν πολλὴν ὁδόν, εἶτα χρυσοῦ τινὸς κηρυκείου φανέντος, ἐπὶ τούτου στήσαι βεβαίως αὐτὸν ἀμηχάνου δείματος καὶ ταραχῆς ἀπαλλαγέντα.

Πέμπεται δ' οὖν ὑπὸ τοῦ Νικογένους μηχανη- 125
 σαμένου τι τοιόνδε.² τοῦ βαρβαρικοῦ γένους τὸ πολὺ καὶ μάλιστα τὸ Περσικὸν εἰς ζηλοτυπίαν τὴν περὶ τὰς γυναῖκας ἄγριον φύσει καὶ χαλεπὸν 4 ἔστιν. οὐ γὰρ μόνον τὰς γαμετάς, ἀλλὰ καὶ τὰς ἀργυρωνήτους καὶ παλλακευόμενας ἰσχυρῶς παραφυλάττουσιν, ὡς ὑπὸ μηδενὸς ὀράσθαι τῶν ἐκτός, ἀλλ' οἴκοι μὲν διαιτᾶσθαι κατακεκλεισ-
 μένας, ἐν δὲ ταῖς ὁδοιπορίαις ὑπὸ σκηνᾶς κύκλω

¹ ἀνεφώνησεν ἐν μέτρῳ Fuhr and Blass with S; ἀνεφώνησε μέτρῳ. ² τοιόνδε Fuhr and Blass with F²S; τοιοῦτον.

THEMISTOCLES

two hundred talents had been publicly set upon his head by the King,—he fled to Aegae, a little Aeolic citadel. Here no one knew him except his host Nicogenes, the wealthiest man in Aeolia, and well acquainted with the magnates of the interior. With him he remained in hiding for a few days. During this time, after the dinner which followed a certain sacrifice, Olbius, the paedagogue of the children of Nicogenes, becoming rapt and inspired, lifted up his voice and uttered the following verse:—

“Night shall speak, and night instruct thee, night shall give thee victory.”

And in the night that followed, Themistocles, as he lay in bed, thought he saw in a dream that a serpent wound itself along over his body and crept up to his neck, then became an eagle as soon as it touched his face, enveloped him with its wings and lifted him on high and bore him a long distance, when there appeared as it were a golden herald's wand, on which it set him securely down, freed from helpless terror and distress.

However that may be, he was sent on his way by Nicogenes, who devised the following scheme for his safety. Most barbarous nations, and the Persians in particular, are savage and harsh in their jealous watchfulness over their women. Not only their wedded wives, but also their boughten slaves and concubines are strictly guarded, so that they are seen by no outsiders, but live at home in complete seclusion, and even on their journeys are carried in tents closely hung round about with curtains and set περιπεφραγμένας ἐπὶ τῶν ἄρμαμαξῶν ὀχεῖσθαι. τοιαύτης τῷ Θεμιστοκλεῖ κατασκευασθείσης ἀπήνης καταδὺς ἐκομίζετο, τῶν περὶ αὐτὸν αἰ τοῖς ἐντυγχάνουσι καὶ πυνθανομένοις λεγόντων, ὅτι γύναιον Ἑλληνικὸν ἄγουσιν ἀπ' Ἰωνίας πρὸς τινα τῶν ἐπὶ θύραις βασιλέως.

PLUTARCH'S LIVES

XXVII. Θουκυδίδης μὲν οὖν καὶ Χάρων ὁ Λαμψακηνὸς ἱστοροῦσι τεθνηκότος Ξέρξου πρὸς τὸν υἱὸν αὐτοῦ τῷ Θεμιστοκλεῖ γενέσθαι τὴν ἐντευξιν· Ἐφορος δὲ καὶ Δείων καὶ Κλείταρχος καὶ Ἡρακλείδης, ἔτι δ' ἄλλοι πλείονες, πρὸς αὐτὸν ἀφικέσθαι τὸν Ξέρξην. τοῖς δὲ χρονικοῖς δοκεῖ μᾶλλον ὁ Θουκυδίδης συμφέρεσθαι, καίπερ 2 οὐδ' αὐτοῖς ἀτρέμα συνταπτομένοις. ὁ δ' οὖν Θεμιστοκλῆς γενόμενος παρ' αὐτὸ τὸ δεινὸν ἐντυγχάνει πρῶτον Ἀρταβάνῳ τῷ χιλιάρχῳ λέγων, Ἕλληνας μὲν εἶναι, βούλεσθαι δ' ἐντυχεῖν βασιλεῖ περὶ μεγίστων πραγμάτων καὶ πρὸς ἅ 3 τυγχάνει μάλιστα σπουδάζων ἐκείνος. ὁ δὲ φησιν· “ὦ ξένε, νόμοι διαφέρουσιν ἀνθρώπων· ἄλλα δ' ἄλλοις καλά· καλὸν δὲ πᾶσι τὰ οἰκεία 3 κοσμεῖν καὶ σώζειν. ὑμᾶς μὲν οὖν ἐλευθερίαν μάλιστα θαυμάζειν καὶ ἰσότητα λόγος· ἡμῖν δὲ πολλῶν νόμων καὶ καλῶν ὄντων κάλλιστος οὗτός ἐστι, τιμᾶν βασιλέα, καὶ προσκυνεῖν ὡς εἰκόνα θεοῦ τοῦ τὰ πάντα σώζοντος. εἰ μὲν οὖν ἐπαινῶν τὰ ἡμέτερα προσκυνήσεις, ἔστι σοι καὶ θεάσασθαι βασιλέα καὶ προσειπεῖν· εἰ δ' ἄλλο τι φρονεῖς, upon four-wheeled waggons. Such a vehicle was made ready for Themistocles, and safely ensconced in this he made his journey, while his attendants replied in every case to those who met them with enquiries, that they were conducting a Hellenic woman, fair but frail, to one of the King's courtiers.

THEMISTOCLES

XXVII. Now Thucydides¹ and Charon of Lampsacus relate that Xerxes was dead, and that it was his son Artaxerxes with whom Themistocles had his interview ; but Ephorus and Dinon and Clitarchus and Heracleides and yet more besides have it that it was Xerxes to whom he came. With the chronological data Thucydides seems to me more in accord, although these are by no means securely established. Be that as it may, Themistocles, thus at the threshold of the dreadful ordeal, had audience first with Artabanus the Chiliarch, or Grand Vizier, and said that he was a Hellene, and that he desired to have an audience with the King on matters which were of the highest importance and for which the monarch entertained the most lively concern. Whereupon the Chiliarch replied : " O Stranger, men's customs differ ; different people honour different practices ; but all honour the exaltation and maintenance of their own peculiar ways. Now you Hellenes are said to admire liberty and equality above all things ; but in our eyes, among many fair customs, this is the fairest of all, to honour the King, and to pay obeisance to him as the image of that god who is the preserver of all things. If, then, thou approvest our practice and wilt pay obeisance, it is in thy power to behold and address the King ; but if thou art otherwise minded, it will be needful

¹ i. 137.

PLUTARCH'S LIVES

ἀγγέλοις ἑτέροις χρήση πρὸς αὐτόν. βασιλεῖ γὰρ οὐ πάτριον ἀνδρὸς ἀκροᾶσθαι μὴ προσκυνή-
 4 σαντος.” ταῦτα ὁ Θεμιστοκλῆς ἀκούσας λέγει πρὸς αὐτόν· “Ἄλλ’ ἔγωγε τὴν βασιλέως, ὦ Ἀρτάβανε, φήμην καὶ δύναμιν αὐξήσων ἀφίγμαι, καὶ αὐτὸς τε πείσομαι τοῖς ὑμετέροις νόμοις, ἐπεὶ θεῶ τῷ μεγαλύνοντι Πέρσας οὕτω δοκεῖ, καὶ δι’ ἐμὲ πλείονες τῶν νῦν βασιλέα προσκυνήσουσιν. ὥστε τοῦτο μηδὲν ἐμποδῶν ἔστω τοῖς λόγοις, οὓς
 5 βούλομαι πρὸς ἐκείνον εἰπεῖν.” “Τίνα δ’,” εἶπεν ὁ Ἀρτάβανος, “Ἑλλήνων ἀφίχθαι σε φῶμεν; οὐ γὰρ ἰδιώτῃ τὴν γνώμην ἔοικας.” καὶ ὁ Θεμιστοκλῆς· “Τοῦτ’ οὐκέτ’ ἄν,” ἔφη, “πύθοιτό τις, Ἀρτάβανε, πρότερος βασιλέως.”

Οὕτω μὲν ὁ Φανίας φησίν. ὁ δ’ Ἐρατοσθένης ἐν τοῖς Περὶ πλούτου προσιστόρησε, διὰ γυναικὸς Ἐρετρικῆς, ἣν ὁ χιλιάρχος εἶχε, τῷ Θεμιστοκλεῖ τὴν πρὸς αὐτὸν ἔντευξιν γενέσθαι καὶ σύστασιν.

XXVIII. Ἐπεὶ δ’ οὖν εἰσήχθη πρὸς βασιλέα καὶ προσκυνήσας ἔστη σιωπῇ, προστάξαντος τῷ ἑρμηνεῖ τοῦ βασιλέως ἐρωτηῆσαι, τίς ἐστι, καὶ τοῦ ἑρμηνέως ἐρωτήσαντος, εἶπεν· “Ἦκω σοι, βασιλεῦ, Θεμιστοκλῆς ὁ Ἀθηναῖος ἐγὼ φυγὰς ὑφ’ Ἑλλήνων διωχθεὶς, ᾧ πολλὰ μὲν ὀφείλουσι Πέρσαι κακὰ, πλείω δὲ ἀγαθὰ κωλύσαντι τὴν δίωξιν, ὅτε τῆς Ἑλλάδος ἐν ἀσφαλεῖ γενομένης παρέσχε τὰ οἴκοι σωζόμενα χαρίσασθαι
 2 τι καὶ ὑμῖν. ἐμοὶ μὲν οὖν πάντα πρέποντα ταῖς

THEMISTOCLES

for thee to employ messengers to him in thy stead, for it is not a custom of this country that the King give ear to a man who has not paid him obeisance." When Themistocles heard this, he said to him: "Nay, but I am come, Artabanus, to augment the King's fame and power, and I will not only myself observe your customs, since such is the pleasure of the god who exalts the Persians, but I will induce more men than do so now to pay obeisance to the King. Therefore let this matter by no means stand in the way of the words I wish to speak to him." "And what Hellene," said Artabanus, "shall I say thou art who hast thus come? Verily, thou dost not seem to be a man of ordinary understanding." And Themistocles said: "This, Artabanus, no one may learn before the King."

So indeed Phantias says, and Eratosthenes, in his book "On Wealth," adds the statement that it was through a woman of Eretria, whom the Chiliarch had to wife, that Themistocles obtained interview and conference with him.

XXVIII. That may or may not be so. But when he was led into the presence of the King and had made him obeisance, and was standing in silence, the King ordered the interpreter to ask him who he was, and, on the interpreter's asking, he said: "I who thus come to thee, O King, am Themistocles the Athenian, an exile, pursued by the Hellenes; and to me the Persians are indebted for many ills, but for more blessings, since I hindered the pursuit of the Hellenes, at a time when Hellas was brought into safety, and the salvation of my own home gave me an opportunity for showing some favour also to you. Now, therefore, I may look for any sequel to παρούσαις συμφοραῖς ἐστὶ, καὶ παρεσκευασμένος ἀφίγμαι δέξασθαι τε χάριν εὐμενῶς διαλλαττομένου καὶ παραιτεῖσθαι μνησικακούντος ὀργῆν· σὺ δὲ τοὺς ἐμοὺς ἐχθροὺς μάρτυρας θέμενος ὦν εὐεργέτησα Πέρσας, νῦν ἀπόχρησαι ταῖς ἐμαῖς τύχαις πρὸς ἐπίδειξιν ἀρετῆς μᾶλλον ἢ πρὸς ἀποπλήρωσιν ὀργῆς. σώσεις μὲν γὰρ ἰκέτην σόν,

3 ἀπολείς δ' Ἑλλήνων πολέμιον γενόμενον." ταῦτ' 126 εἰπὼν ὁ Θεμιστοκλῆς ἐπεθείασε τῷ λόγῳ προσδιελθὼν τὴν ὄψιν, ἣν εἶδεν ἐν Νικογένους, καὶ τὸ μάντευμα τοῦ Δωδωναίου Διός, ὡς κελευσθεὶς πρὸς τὸν ὁμώνυμον τοῦ θεοῦ βαδίζειν συμφρονήσειε πρὸς ἐκεῖνον ἀναπέμπεσθαι· μεγάλους γὰρ ἀμφοτέρους εἶναί τε καὶ λέγεσθαι βασιλέας.

Ἄκουσας δ' ὁ Πέρσης, ἐκείνῳ μὲν οὐδὲν ἀπεκρίνατο, καίπερ θαυμάσας τὸ φρόνημα καὶ τὴν

4 τόλμαν αὐτοῦ· μακαρίσας δὲ πρὸς τοὺς φίλους ἑαυτόν, ὡς ἐπ' εὐτυχία μεγίστη, καὶ κατευξάμενος αἰεὶ τοῖς πολεμίοις τοιαύτας φρένας διδόναι τὸν Ἄριμάνιον, ὅπως ἐλαύνωσι τοὺς ἀρίστους ἐξ ἑαυτῶν, θῦσαί τε τοῖς θεοῖς λέγεται καὶ πρὸς πόσιν εὐθὺς τραπέσθαι καὶ νύκτωρ ὑπὸ χαρᾶς διὰ μέσων τῶν ὑπνῶν βοῆσαι τρίς· "Ἐχω Θεμιστοκλέα τὸν Ἀθηναῖον."

XXIX. "Ἄμα δ' ἡμέρα συγκαλέσας τοὺς φίλους εἰσήγεν αὐτὸν οὐδὲν¹ ἐλπίζοντα χρηστὸν ἐξ ὧν ἑώρα τοὺς ἐπὶ θύραις, ὡς ἐπύθοντο τοῦνομα παρόντος αὐτοῦ, χαλεπῶς διακειμένους καὶ κακῶς

¹ οὐδὲν Fuhr and Blass with F^{as}: μηδέν.

THEMISTOCLES

my present calamities, and I come prepared to receive the favour of one who benevolently offers reconciliation, or to deprecate the anger of one who cherishes the remembrance of injuries. But do thou take my foes to witness for the good I wrought the Persians, and now use my misfortunes for the display of thy virtue rather than for the satisfaction of thine anger. For it is a suppliant of thine whom thou wilt save, but an enemy of the Hellenes whom thou wilt destroy." After these words Themistocles spoke of divine portents in his favour, enlarging upon the vision which he saw at the house of Nicogenes, and the oracle of Dodonaean Zeus, how when he was bidden by it to proceed to the namesake of the god, he had concluded that he was thereby sent to him, since both were actually "Great Kings," and were so addressed.

On hearing this the Persian made no direct reply to him, although struck with admiration at the boldness of his spirit; but in converse with his friends it is said that he congratulated himself over what he called the greatest good fortune, and prayed Arimanius ever to give his enemies such minds as to drive their best men away from them; and then sacrificed to the gods, and straightway betook himself to his cups; and in the night, in the midst of his slumbers, for very joy called out thrice: "I have Themistocles the Athenian."

XXIX. At daybreak he called his friends together and bade Themistocles to be introduced, who expected no favourable outcome, because he saw that the guards at the gates, when they learned the name of him who was going in, were bitterly disposed and

PLUTARCH'S LIVES

- λέγοντας. ἔτι δὲ Ῥωξάνης ὁ χιλίαρχος, ὡς κατ' αὐτὸν ἦν ὁ Θεμιστοκλῆς προσιῶν, καθημένου βασιλέως καὶ τῶν ἄλλων σιωπῶντων, ἀτρέμα στενάξας εἶπεν. “Ὁφίς Ἕλλην ὁ ποικίλος, ὁ
- 2 βασιλέως σε δαίμων δεῦρο ἤγαγεν.” οὐ μὴν ἄλλ' εἰς ὄψιν ἐλθόντος αὐτοῦ καὶ πάλιν προσκυνήσαντος, ἀσπασάμενος καὶ προσειπὼν φιλοφρόνως ὁ βασιλεύς, ἤδη μὲν ἔφησεν αὐτῷ διακόσια τάλαντα ὀφείλειν· κομίσαντα γὰρ αὐτὸν ἀπολήψεσθαι δικαίως τὸ ἐπικηρυχθὲν τῷ ἀγαγόντι· πολλῷ δὲ πλείω τούτων ὑπισχυεῖτο καὶ παρεθάρρυνε καὶ λέγειν ἐδίδου περὶ τῶν Ἑλληνικῶν, ἃ βούλοιο, παρρησιαζόμενον.
- 3 Ὁ δὲ Θεμιστοκλῆς ἀπεκρίνατο, τὸν λόγον εἰκέναι τοῦ ἀνθρώπου τοῖς ποικίλοις στρώμασιν· ὡς γὰρ ἐκεῖνα καὶ τοῦτον ἐκτεινόμενον μὲν ἐπιδείκνυσθαι τὰ εἶδη, συστελλόμενον δὲ κρύπτειν καὶ διαφθεῖρειν· ὅθεν αὐτῷ χρόνου δεῖν. ἐπεὶ δέ, ἡσθέντος τοῦ βασιλέως τῇ εἰκασίᾳ καὶ λαμβάνειν κελεύσαντος, ἐνιαυτὸν αἰτησίμενος καὶ τὴν Περσίδα γλῶτταν ἀποχρώντως ἐκμαθὼν ἐνετύγχανε βα-
- 4 σιλεῖ δι' αὐτοῦ, τοῖς μὲν ἐκτὸς δόξαν παρέσχε περὶ τῶν Ἑλληνικῶν πραγμάτων διειλέχθαι, πολλῶν δὲ καινοτομουμένων περὶ τὴν αὐλὴν καὶ τοὺς φίλους ὑπὸ τοῦ βασιλέως ἐν ἐκείνῳ τῷ καιρῷ, φθόνον ἔσχε παρὰ τοῖς δυνατοῖς, ὡς καὶ κατ' ἐκείνων παρρησίᾳ χρήσασθαι πρὸς αὐτὸν ἀποτετολμηκῶς. οὐδὲν γὰρ ἦσαν αἱ τιμαὶ ταῖς τῶν ἄλλων εἰκυῖαι ξένων, ἀλλὰ καὶ κυνηγεσιῶν βασιλεῖ μετέσχε καὶ τῶν οἴκοι διατριβῶν, ὥστε

THEMISTOCLES

spoke insultingly to him. And besides, Roxanes the Chiliarch, when Themistocles came along opposite him,—the King being seated and the rest hushed in silence,—said in an angry undertone: “Thou subtle serpent of Hellas, the King’s good genius hath brought thee hither.” However, when he had come into the King’s presence, and had once more paid him obeisance, the King welcomed him and spake him kindly, and said he already owed him two hundred talents, for since he had delivered himself up it was only just that he himself should receive the reward proclaimed for his captor. And he promised him much more besides, and bade him take heart, and gave him leave to say whatever he wished concerning the affairs of Hellas, with all frankness of speech.

But Themistocles made answer that the speech of man was like embroidered tapestries, since like them this too had to be extended in order to display its patterns, but when it was rolled up it concealed and distorted them. Wherefore he had need of time. The King at once showed his pleasure at this comparison by bidding him take time, and so Themistocles asked for a year, and in that time he learned the Persian language sufficiently to have interviews with the King by himself without interpreters. Outsiders thought these conferences concerned Hellenic matters merely; but since about that time many innovations were introduced by the King at court and among his favourites, the magnates became jealous of Themistocles, on the ground that he had made bold to use his freedom of speech with the King to their harm. For the honours he enjoyed were far beyond those paid to other foreigners; nay, he actually took part in the King’s hunts and in his household diver-

PLUTARCH'S LIVES

καὶ μητρὶ τῇ βασιλέως εἰς ὄψιν ἔλθειν καὶ γενέσθαι συνήθης, διακοῦσαι δὲ καὶ τῶν μαγικῶν
 5 λόγων τοῦ βασιλέως κελεύσαντος. ἐπεὶ δὲ Δη-μάρατος ὁ Σπαρτιάτης αἰτήσασθαι δωρεὰν κελευσθεῖς ἠτήσατο τὴν κίταριν, ὥσπερ οἱ βασιλεῖς, ἐπαράμενος εἰσελάσαι διὰ Σάρδεων, Μιθροπαύστῆς μὲν ἀνεψιὸς ὢν βασιλέως εἶπε τοῦ Δημαράτου τῆς τιάρας ἀψάμενος. “ Αὕτη μὲν ἡ κίταρις
 οὐκ ἔχει ἐγκέφαλον, ὃν ἐπικαλύψει· σὺ δ’ οὐκ
 6 ἔσῃ Ζεὺς ἂν λάβῃς κεραυνόν.” ἀπωσαμένου δὲ
 τὸν Δημάρατον ὀργῇ διὰ τὸ αἴτημα τοῦ βασιλέως καὶ δοκοῦντος ἀπαραιτήτως ἔχειν πρὸς
 αὐτόν, ὁ Θεμιστοκλῆς δεηθεὶς ἔπεισε καὶ διήλλαξε.

Λέγεται δὲ καὶ τοὺς ὕστερον βασιλεῖς, ἐφ’ ὧν
 μᾶλλον αἱ Περσικαὶ πράξεις ταῖς Ἑλληνικαῖς
 ἀνεκράθησαν, ὅσάκις δεηθεῖεν ἀνδρὸς Ἑλληνοσ,
 ἐπαγγέλλεσθαι καὶ γράφειν ἕκαστον, ὡς μείζων
 7 ἔσοιτο παρ’ αὐτῷ Θεμιστοκλέους. αὐτὸν δὲ τὸν Θεμιστοκλέα φασὶν ἤδη μέγαν ὄντα καὶ θεραπευό-μενον ὑπὸ πολλῶν λαμπρᾶς ποτε τραπέζης αὐτῷ παρατεθείσης¹ πρὸς τοὺς παῖδας εἰπεῖν. “ ὦ παῖδες, ἀπωλόμεθα ἂν, εἰ μὴ ἀπωλόμεθα.” πόλεις 127
 δ’ αὐτῷ τρεῖς μὲν οἱ πλείστοι δοθῆναι λέγουσιν
 εἰς ἄρτον καὶ οἶνον καὶ ὄψον, Μαγνησίαν καὶ Λάμψακον καὶ Μυοῦντα· δύο δ’ ἄλλας προστί-θησιν ὁ Κυζικηνὸς Νεάνθης καὶ Φανίας, Περ-κώτην καὶ Παλαίσκηψιν εἰς στρωμνὴν καὶ
 ἀμπεχόνην.

XXX. Καταβαίνοντι δ’ αὐτῷ πρὸς τὰς Ἑλληνικὰς πράξεις ἐπὶ θάλατταν Πέρσης ἀνήρ

¹ αὐτῷ παρατεθείσης Bekker, Fuhr with F²S: παρατεθείσης.

THEMISTOCLES

sions, so far that he even had access to the queen-mother and became intimate with her, and at the King's bidding heard expositions also of the Magian lore. And when Demaratus the Spartan, being bidden to ask a gift, asked that he might ride in state through Sardis, wearing his tiara upright after the manner of the Persian kings, Mithropaustes the King's cousin said, touching the tiara of Demaratus : "This tiara of thine hath no brains to cover ; indeed thou wilt not be Zeus merely because thou graspest the thunderbolt." The King also repulsed Demaratus in anger at his request, and was minded to be inexorable towards him, and yet Themistocles begged and obtained a reconciliation with him.

And it is said that later kings also, in whose reigns Persia and Hellas came into closer relations, as often as they asked for a Hellene to advise them, promised him in writing, every one, that he should be more influential at court than Themistocles. And Themistocles himself, they say, now become great and courted by many, said to his children, when a splendid table was once set for him : "My children, we should now have been undone, had we not been undone before."¹ Three cities, as most writers say, were given him for bread, wine, and meat, namely : Magnesia, Lampsacus, and Myus ; and two others are added by Neanthes of Cyzicus and by Phanias, namely : Percoté and Palaescepsis ; these for his bedding and raiment.

XXX. Now as he was going down to the sea on his commission to deal with Hellenic affairs, a

¹ Thuc. i. 138.

Ἐπιζύης ὄνομα, σατραπεύων τῆς ἄνω Φρυγίας, ἐπεβούλευσε, παρσκευακῶς ἔκπαλαι Πισίδας τινὰς ἀποκτενοῦντας, ὅταν ἐν τῇ καλουμένῃ κώμῃ¹ Λεοντοκεφάλῳ γενόμενος καταυλισθῆ. τῷ δὲ λέγεται καθεύδοντι μεσημβρίας τὴν μητέρα τῶν θεῶν ὄναρ φανείσαν εἰπεῖν. “ὦ Θεμιστοκλείς, ὑστέρει κεφαλῆς λέοντων, ἵνα μὴ λέοντι περιπέσης. ἐγὼ δὲ ἀντὶ τούτου σε αἰτῶ θεράπαιναν Μνη-
 2 σιπτολέμαν.” διαταραχθεὶς οὖν ὁ Θεμιστοκλῆς προσευξάμενος τῇ θεῷ τὴν μὲν λεωφόρον ἀφήκεν, ἑτέρα δὲ περιελθὼν καὶ παραλλάξας τὸν τόπον ἐκεῖνον ἤδη νυκτὸς οὔσης κατηυλίσατο.

Τῶν δὲ τὴν σκηνὴν κομιζόντων ὑποζυγίων ἐνὸς εἰς τὸν ποταμὸν ἐμπεσόντος, οἱ τοῦ Θεμιστοκλέους οἰκέται τὰς αὐλαίας διαβρόχους γενομένας ἐκπετάσαντες ἀνέψυχον. οἱ δὲ Πισίδαι τὰ ξίφη λαβόντες ἐν τούτῳ προσεφέροντο, καὶ τὰ ψυχόμενα πρὸς τὴν σελήνην οὐκ ἀκριβῶς ἰδόντες φήθησαν εἶναι τὴν σκηνὴν τὴν Θεμιστοκλέους κἀκεῖνον 3 ἔνδον εὐρήσειν ἀναπαυόμενον. ὡς δ' ἐγγὺς γενομένοι τὴν αὐλαίαν ἀνέστελλον, ἐπιπίπτουσι αὐτοῖς οἱ παραφυλάσσοντες καὶ συλλαμβάνουσι. διαφυγῶν δὲ τὸν κίνδυνον οὕτω καὶ θαυμάσας τὴν ἐπιφάνειαν τῆς θεοῦ ναὸν κατεσκεύασεν ἐν Μαγνησίᾳ Δινδυμῆνης καὶ τὴν θυγατέρα Μνησιπτολέμαν ἰέρειαν ἀπέδειξεν.

XXXI. Ὡς δ' ἦλθεν εἰς Σάρδεις καὶ σχολὴν

¹ κώμη Fuhr and Blass with F²S: πόλις city.

THEMISTOCLES

Persian, Epixyes by name, satrap of Upper Phrygia, plotted against his life, having for a long time kept certain Pisidians in readiness to slay him whenever he should reach the village called Lion's Head, and take up his night's quarters there. But while Themistocles was asleep at midday before, it is said that the Mother of the Gods¹ appeared to him in a dream and said: "O Themistocles, shun a head of lions, that thou mayest not encounter a lion. And for this service to thee, I demand of thee Mnesiptolema to be my handmaid." Much disturbed, of course, Themistocles, with a prayer of acknowledgment to the goddess, forsook the highway, made a circuit by another route, and passing by that place, at last, as night came on, took up his quarters.

Now, since one of the beasts of burden which carried the equipage of his tent had fallen into the river, the servants of Themistocles hung up the curtains which had got wet, and were drying them out. The Pisidians, at this juncture, sword in hand, made their approach, and since they could not see distinctly by the light of the moon what it was that was being dried, they thought it was the tent of Themistocles, and that they would find him reposing inside. But when they drew near and lifted up the hanging, they were fallen upon by the guards and apprehended. Thus Themistocles escaped the peril, and because he was amazed at the epiphany of the goddess, he built a temple in Magnesia in honour of Dindymené, and made his daughter Mnesiptolema her priestess.

XXXI. When he had come to Sardis and was

¹ Rhea, or Cybele, Magna Mater, called also Dindymené, from Mount Dindymon, in Phrygia.

- ἄγων ἐθεάτο τῶν ἱερῶν τὴν κατασκευὴν καὶ τῶν ἀναθημάτων τὸ πλῆθος, εἶδε δὲ ἐν μητρὸς ἱερῷ τὴν καλουμένην ὑδροφόρον κόρην χαλκῆν, μέγεθος δίπηχυ, ἣν αὐτὸς ὅτε τῶν Ἀθήνησιν ὑδάτων ἐπιστάτης ἦν, ἐλὼν τοὺς ὑφαιρουμένους τὸ ὕδωρ καὶ παροχετεύοντας, ἀνέθηκεν ἐκ τῆς ζημίας ποιησάμενος, εἶτε δὴ παθῶν τι πρὸς τὴν αἰχμηλωσίαν τοῦ ἀναθήματος εἶτε βουλόμενος ἐνδείξασθαι τοῖς Ἀθηναίοις, ὅσῃν ἔχει τιμὴν καὶ δύναμιν ἐν τοῖς βασιλέως πράγμασι, λόγον τῷ Λυδίας σατράπῃ προσήνεγκεν αἰτούμενος ἀποστεῖλαι τὴν
- 2 κόρην εἰς τὰς Ἀθήνας. χαλεπαίνοντος δὲ τοῦ βαρβάρου καὶ βασιλεῖ γράψειν φήσαντος ἐπιστολήν, φοβηθεὶς ὁ Θεμιστοκλῆς εἰς τὴν γυναικωνῦτιν κατέφυγε καὶ τὰς παλλακίδας αὐτοῦ θεραπεύσας χρήμασι ἐκείνόν τε κατεπράυνε τῆς ὀργῆς καὶ πρὸς τὰ ἄλλα παρείχεν ἑαυτὸν εὐλαβέστερον, ἥδη καὶ τὸν φθόνον τῶν βαρβάρων δεδοικώς. οὐ γὰρ πλανώμενος περὶ τὴν Ἀσίαν, ὡς φησι Θεόπομπος, ἀλλ' ἐν Μαγνησίᾳ μὲν οἰκῶν, καρπούμενος δὲ δωρεὰς μεγάλας καὶ τιμώμενος ὅμοια Περσῶν τοῖς ἀρίστοις, ἐπὶ πολὺν χρόνον ἀδεῶς διῆγεν, οὐ πᾶν τι τοῖς Ἑλληνικοῖς πράγμασι βασιλέως προσέχοντος ὑπ' ἀσχολιῶν περὶ τὰς ἄνω πράξεις.
- 3 Ὡς δ' Αἴγυπτός τε ἀφισταμένη βοηθούντων Ἀθηναίων καὶ τριήρεις Ἑλληνικαὶ μέχρι Κύπρου καὶ Κιλικίας ἀναπλέουσai καὶ Κίμων θαλαττοκρατῶν ἐπέστρεψεν αὐτὸν ἀντεπιχειρεῖν τοῖς Ἑλλησι καὶ κωλύειν αὐξανομένους ἐπ' αὐτόν, ἥδη viewing at his leisure the temples built there and the multitude of their dedicatory offerings, and saw in the temple of the Mother the so-called Water-carrier,—a maid in bronze, two cubits high, which he himself, when he was water commissioner at Athens, had caused to be made and dedicated from the fines he exacted of those whom he convicted of stealing and tapping the public water,—whether it was because he felt some chagrin at the capture of the offering, or because he wished to show the Athenians what honour and power he had in the King's service, he addressed a proposition to the Lydian satrap and asked him to restore the maid to Athens. But the Barbarian was incensed and threatened to write a letter to the King about it; whereat Themistocles was afraid, and so had recourse to the women's chambers, and, by winning the favour of the satrap's concubines with money, succeeded in assuaging his anger. Thereafter he behaved more circumspectly, fearing now even the jealousy of the Barbarians. For he did not wander about over Asia, as Theopompus says, but had a house in Magnesia, and gathered in large gifts, and was honoured like the noblest Persians, and so lived on for a long time without concern, because the King paid no heed at all to Hellenic affairs, owing to his occupation with the state of the interior.

THEMISTOCLES

But when Egypt revolted with Athenian aid,¹ and Hellenic triremes sailed up as far as Cyprus and Cilicia, and Cimon's mastery of the sea forced the King to resist the efforts of the Hellenes and to hinder their hostile growth; and when at last forces began to be moved, and generals were

¹ 459 B.C.

PLUTARCH'S LIVES

δὲ καὶ δυνάμεις ἐκινούντο καὶ στρατηγοὶ διεπέμποντο καὶ κατέβαινον¹ ἀγγελίαι πρὸς Θεμιστο-κλέα, τῶν Ἑλληνικῶν ἐξάπτεσθαι κελεύοντας 4 βασιλέως καὶ βεβαιοῦν τὰς ὑποσχέσεις, οὔτε δι'
ὄργην τινα παροξυνθεὶς κατὰ τῶν πολιτῶν οὔτε
ἐπαρθεὶς τιμῇ τοσαύτῃ καὶ δυνάμει πρὸς τὸν
πόλεμον, ἀλλ' ἴσως μὲν οὐδ' ἐφικτὸν² ἡγούμενος τὸ ἔργον, ἄλλους τε μεγάλους τῆς Ἑλλάδος ἐχού-σης στρατηγούς τότε καὶ Κίμωνος ὑπερφυῶς 128
εὐημεροῦντος ἐν τοῖς πολεμικοῖς, τὸ δὲ πλείστον
αἰδοῖ τῆς τε δόξης τῶν πράξεων τῶν ἑαυτοῦ καὶ
τῶν τροπαίων ἐκείνων, ἄριστα βουλευσάμενος
5 ἐπιθεῖναι τῷ βίῳ τὴν τελευτήν πρέπουσαν, ἔθυσσε
τοῖς θεοῖς, καὶ τοὺς φίλους συναγαγὼν καὶ δεξιωσάμενος, ὡς μὲν ὁ πολὺς λόγος, αἷμα ταύρειον
πιῶν, ὡς δ' ἔνιοι, φάρμακον ἐφήμερον προσενεγ-κάμενος, ἐν Μαγνησίᾳ κατέστρεψε πέντε πρὸς
τοῖς ἐξήκοντα βεβιωκῶς ἔτη καὶ τὰ πλείστα τούτων ἐν πολιτείαις καὶ ἡγεμονίαις. τὴν δ' αἰτίαν
τοῦ θανάτου καὶ τὸν τρόπον πυθόμενον βασιλέα
λέγουσιν ἔτι μᾶλλον θαυμάσαι τὸν ἄνδρα καὶ
τοῖς φίλοις αὐτοῦ καὶ οἰκείοις χρώμενον διατελεῖν φιλανθρώπως.

XXXII. Ἀπέλιπε δὲ Θεμιστοκλῆς παῖδας ἐκ
μὲν Ἀρχίππης τῆς Λυσάνδρου τοῦ Ἀλωπεκῆθεν Ἀρχέπτολι καὶ Πολύευκτον καὶ Κλεόφαντον,
οὐ καὶ Πλάτων ὁ φιλόσοφος ὡς ἱππέως ἀρίστου,
τᾶλλα δ' οὐδενὸς ἀξίου γενομένου μνημονεύει.

¹ κατέβαινον Fuhr and Blass with F²S: κατέβαινον εἰς Μαγνησίαν.

² οὐδ' ἐφικτὸν Fuhr and Blass with F²S: οὐκ ἐφικτὸν.

THEMISTOCLES

despatched hither and thither, and messages came down to Themistocles saying that the King commanded him to make good his promises by applying himself to the Hellenic problem, then, neither embittered by anything like anger against his former fellow-citizens, nor lifted up by the great honour and power he was to have in the war, but possibly thinking his task not even approachable, both because Hellas had other great generals at the time, and especially because Cimon was so marvellously successful in his campaigns; yet most of all out of regard for the reputation of his own achievements and the trophies of those early days; having decided that his best course was to put a fitting end to his life, he made a sacrifice to the gods, then called his friends together, gave them a farewell clasp of his hand, and, as the current story goes, drank bull's blood, or as some say, took a quick poison, and so died in Magnesia, in the sixty-fifth year of his life,¹ most of which had been spent in political leadership. They say that the King, on learning the cause and the manner of his death, admired the man yet more, and continued to treat his friends and kindred with kindness.

XXXII. Themistocles left three sons by Archippé, the daughter of Lysander, of the deme Alopecé, namely: Archeptolis, Polyeuctus and Cleophantus, the last of whom Plato the philosopher mentions as a capital horseman, but good for nothing else.²

¹ Thuc. i. 138.

² Meno, p. 93.

PLUTARCH'S LIVES

- τῶν δὲ πρεσβυτάτων Νεοκλῆς μὲν ἔτι παῖς ὦν ὑφ' ἵππου δηχθεὶς ἀπέθανε, Διοκλέα δὲ Λύσανδρος ὁ πάππος υἱὸν ἐποίησατο. θυγατέρας δὲ πλείους ἔσχευ, ὦν Μνησιπτολέμαν μὲν ἐκ τῆς ἐπιγαμηθείσης γενομένην Ἀρχέπτολις ὁ ἀδελφὸς οὐκ ὦν ὁμομήτριος ἔγημεν, Ἰταλίαν δὲ Πανθοίδης ὁ Χίος, Σύβαριν δὲ Νικομήδης ὁ Ἀθηναῖος· Νικομάχην δὲ Φρασικλῆς ὁ ἀδελφιδοῦς Θεμιστοκλέους, ἥδη τετελευτηκότος ἐκείνου, πλεύσας εἰς Μαγνησίαν ἔλαβε παρὰ τῶν ἀδελφῶν, νεωτάτην δὲ πάντων τῶν τέκνων Ἀσίαν ἔθρεψε.
- 3 Καὶ τάφον μὲν αὐτοῦ λαμπρὸν ἐν τῇ ἀγορᾷ Μάγνητες ἔχουσι· περὶ δὲ τῶν λειψάνων οὐτ' Ἀνδοκίδη προσέχειν ἄξιον ἐν τῷ Πρὸς τοὺς ἐταίρους λέγουσι, φωράσαντας τὰ λείψανα διαρρῖψαι τοὺς Ἀθηναίους (ψεύδεται γὰρ ἐπὶ τὸν δῆμον παροξύνων τοὺς ὀλιγαρχικούς), ὃ τε Φύλαρχος, ὥσπερ ἐν τραγωδίᾳ τῇ ἱστορίᾳ μονοῦ μηχανὴν ἄρας καὶ προαγαγὼν Νεοκλέα τινὰ καὶ Δημόπολιν, υἱοὺς Θεμιστοκλέους, ἀγῶνα βούλεται κινεῖν καὶ πάθος, ὃ οὐδ' ἂν ὁ τυχὼν ἀγνοήσειεν ὅτι πέπλασται. Διόδωρος δ' ὁ περιηγητὴς ἐν τοῖς Περὶ μνημάτων εἴρηκεν ὡς ὑπονοῶν μᾶλλον ἢ γινώσκων, ὅτι περὶ τὸν μέγαν λιμένα τοῦ Πειραιῶς ἀπὸ τοῦ κατὰ τὸν Ἄλκιμον ἀκρωτηρίου πρόκειται τις οἶον ἀγκῶν, καὶ κάμψαντι τοῦτον ἐντός, ἧ τὸ ὑπεύδιον τῆς θαλάττης, κρηπὶς ἐστὶν εὐμεγέθης καὶ τὸ περὶ αὐτὴν βῶμοειδὲς
- 88

THEMISTOCLES

One of his two oldest sons, Neocles, died in boyhood from the bite of a horse, and Diocles was adopted by his grandfather Lysander. He had several daughters, of whom Mnesiptolema, born of his second wife, became the wife of Archeptolis her half-brother, Italia of Panthoides the Chian, and Sybaris of Nicomedes the Athenian. Nicomaché was given in marriage by her brothers to Phrasicles, the nephew of Themistocles, who sailed to Magnesia after his uncle's death, and who also took charge of Asia, the youngest of all the children.

The Magnesians have a splendid tomb of Themistocles in their market place; and with regard to his remains, Andocides is worthy of no attention when he says, in his Address to his Associates, that the Athenians stole away those remains and scattered them abroad, for he is trying by his lies to incite the oligarchs against the people; and Phylarchus, too, when, as if in a tragedy, he all but erects a theatrical machine for this story, and brings into the action a certain Neocles, forsooth, and Demopolis, sons of Themistocles, wishes merely to stir up tumultuous emotion; his tale even an ordinary person must know is fabricated. Diodorus the Topographer, in his work "On Tombs," says, by conjecture rather than from actual knowledge, that near the large harbour of the Piræus a sort of elbow juts out from the promontory opposite Alcimus, and that as you round this and come inside where the water of the sea is still, there is a basement of goodly size, and that the altar-like structure upon this is the

PLUTARCH'S LIVES

5 τάφος τοῦ Θεμισκοκλέους. οἶεται δε καὶ Πλάτωνα τὸν κωμικὸν αὐτῷ μαρτυρεῖν ἐν τούτοις·

Ὁ σὸς δὲ τύμβος ἐν καλῷ κεχωσμένος
τοῖς ἐμπόροις πρόσρησις ἔσται πανταχοῦ,
τούς τ' ¹ ἐκπλέοντας εἰσπλέοντάς τ' ὄψεται,
χῶπόταν ἄμιλλα ² τῶν νεῶν θεάσεται.

Τοῖς δ' ἀπὸ γένους τοῦ Θεμιστοκλέους καὶ
τιμαί τινες ἐν Μαγνησίᾳ φυλαττόμεναι μέχρι
τῶν ἡμετέρων χρόνων ἦσαν, ἃς ἐκαρπούτο Θεμι-στοκλῆς Ἀθηναῖος, ἡμέτερος συνήθης καὶ φίλος
παρ' Ἀμμωνίῳ τῷ φιλοσόφῳ γενόμενος.

¹ τοὺς τ' corrected by Bekker to οὖς.

² ἄμιλλα Bekker has ἀμιλλ' ᾗ after Porson.

THEMISTOCLES

tomb of Themistocles. And he thinks that the comic poet Plato is a witness in favour of his view when he says :—

“Thy tomb is mounded in a fair and sightly place ;
The merchantmen shall ever hail it with glad cry ;
It shall behold those outward, and those inward
bound,
And all the emulous rivalry of racing ships.”

For the lineal descendants of Themistocles there were also certain dignities maintained in Magnesia down to my time, and the revenues of these were enjoyed by a Themistocles of Athens, who was my intimate and friend in the school of Ammonius the philosopher.

CAMILLUS

ΚΑΜΙΛΛΟΣ

- Ι. Περὶ δὲ Φουρίου Καμίλλου πολλῶν καὶ 129
μεγάλων λεγομένων ἴδιον εἶναι δοκεῖ μάλιστα
καὶ παράδοξον, ὅτι πλείστα μὲν ἐν ἡγεμονίαις
καὶ μέγιστα κατορθώσας, δικτάτωρ δὲ πεντάκις
αἰρεθείς, θριαμβεύσας δὲ τετράκις, κτίστης δὲ
τῆς Ῥώμης ἀναγραφεὶς δεύτερος, οὐδὲ ἅπαξ
2 ὑπάτευσε. τούτου δ' αἷτιον ἢ τῆς τότε πολιτείας κατάστασις, ἐκ διαφορᾶς τοῦ δήμου πρὸς
τὴν σύγκλητον ὑπάτους μὲν ἐρίσαντος μὴ ἀπο-δείκνυσθαι, χιλιάρχους δὲ χειροτονούντος ἐπὶ
τὴν ἡγεμονίαν, ὧν, καίπερ ἀπ' ἐξουσίας καὶ
δυνάμεως ὑπατικῆς ἅπαντα πραττόντων, ἦττον
ἦν ἐπαχθῆς ἢ ἀρχὴ διὰ τὸ πλῆθος. τὸ γὰρ ἐξ
ἄνδρας, ἀλλὰ μὴ δύο, τοῖς πράγμασιν ἐφιστάναι,
παρεμυθεῖτο τοὺς βαρυνομένους τὴν ὀλιγαρχίαν.
- 3 Κατὰ τοῦτο δὴ καιροῦ μάλιστα τῇ δόξῃ καὶ τοῖς
πράγμασιν ἀκμάσας ὁ Κάμιλλος ὑπάτος μὲν οὐκ
ἠξίωσεν ἄκοντι τῷ δήμῳ γενέσθαι, καίπερ ἐν τῷ
διὰ μέσου δεξαμένης ὑπατικᾶς ἀρχαιρεσίας τῆς
πολιτείας πολλακίς, ἐν δὲ ταῖς ἄλλαις ἡγεμονίαις

CAMILLUS

I. TURNING now to Furius Camillus, among the many notable things that are told of him, this seems the most singular and strange, namely, that although in other offices of command he won many and great successes, and although he was five times chosen dictator, four times celebrated a triumph, and was styled a Second Founder of Rome, not even once was he consul. The reason for this lay in the political conditions of his time. The common people, being at variance with the Senate, strove against the appointment of consuls, and elected military tribunes to the command instead. These, although they always acted with consular authority and power, were less obnoxious in their sway because of their number. For the fact that six men instead of two stood at the head of affairs, was some comfort to those who were bitterly set against the rule of the few.

Now it was at this period that Camillus came to the height of his achievements and fame, and he would not consent to become consul over a reluctant people, although during his career the city tolerated consular elections many times. But in the many other and varied offices which he held, he so conducted himself that even when the authority rightly πολλαῖς καὶ παντοδαπαῖς γενομέναις τοιοῦτον αὐτὸν παρέσχεν, ὥστε τὴν μὲν ἔξουσίαν καὶ μοναρχοῦντος εἶναι κοινήν, τὴν δὲ δόξαν ἰδίαν καὶ μεθ' ἑτέρων στρατηγοῦντος· ὦν τοῦ μὲν ἢ μετριότης αἴτιον ἀνεπιφθόνως ἄρχοντος, τοῦ δ' ἢ φρόνησις, δι' ἣν ὁμολογουμένως ἐπρώτευσεν.

PLUTARCH'S LIVES

II. Οὐπω δὲ τότε περὶ τὸν τῶν Φουρίων οἶκον οὔσης μεγάλης ἐπιφανείας αὐτὸς ἀφ' ἑαυτοῦ πρῶτος εἰς δόξαν προήλθεν ἐν τῇ μεγάλῃ μάχῃ πρὸς Αἰκανοὺς καὶ Οὐολούσκους ὑπὸ δικτάτορι Ποστούμῳ Τουβέρτῳ στρατευόμενος. προῖππεύων γὰρ τοῦ στρατοῦ καὶ πληγῇ περιπεσὼν εἰς τὸν μηρὸν οὐκ ἀνῆκεν, ἀλλ' ἐγκείμενον τῷ τραύματι παρέλκων τὸ ἀκόντισμα καὶ συμπλεκόμενος τοῖς ἀρίστοις τῶν πολεμίων τροπὴν ἐποίησεν. ἐκ δὲ τούτου τῶν τ' ἄλλων γερῶν ἔτυχε καὶ τιμητῆς ἀπεδείχθη, μέγα τῆς ἀρχῆς ἀξίωμα ταύτης ἐπὶ τῶν τότε χρόνων ἐχούσης. μνημονεύεται δὲ αὐτοῦ τιμητεύοντος καλὸν μὲν ἔργον τὸ τοὺς ἀγάμους λόγοις τε πείθοντα καὶ ζημίαις ἀπειλοῦντα συγκαταζεύξαι ταῖς χηρευούσαις γυναῖξι (πολλαὶ δ' ἦσαν αὐταὶ διὰ τοὺς πολέμους), ἀναγκαῖον δὲ τὸ καὶ τοὺς ὄρφανοὺς ὑποτελεῖς ποιῆσαι πρότερον ἀνεισφόρους ὄντας. αἰτίαι δ' ἦσαν αἱ συνεχεῖς στρατεῖαι μεγάλων ἀναλωμάτων δεόμεναι, καὶ μάλιστα κατήπειγεν ἡ Οὐητίων πολιορκία. τούτους ἔτιμοι Οὐηίεντανοὺς καλοῦσιν.

Ἦν δὲ πρόσχημα τῆς Τυρρηνίας ἡ πόλις, ὅπλων μὲν ἀριθμῷ καὶ πλήθει τῶν στρατευσόμενων οὐκ ἀποδέουσα τῆς Ῥώμης, πλούτῳ δὲ καὶ βίων ἀβρότητι καὶ τρυφαῖς καὶ πολυτελείαις ἀγαλλομένη belonged to him alone, it was exercised in common with others; while the glory that followed such exercise was his alone, even when he shared the command. In the first case, it was his moderation that kept his rule from exciting envy; in the second, it was his ability that gave him the first place with none to dispute it.

CAMILLUS

II. At a time when the house of the Furii was not yet very conspicuous, he, by his own efforts, was the first of his clan to achieve fame. This he did in the great battle with the Aequians and Volscians, serving under Postumius Tubertus the dictator. Dashing out on his horse in front of the army, he did not abate his speed when he got a wound in the thigh, but dragging the missile along with him in its wound, he engaged the bravest of the enemy and put them to flight. For this exploit, among other honours bestowed upon him, he was appointed censor, in those days an office of great dignity. //There is on record a noble achievement of his censorship, that of bringing the unmarried men, partly by persuasion and partly by threatening them with fines, to join in wedlock with the women who were living in widowhood, and these were many because of the wars; //likewise a necessary achievement, that of making the orphans, who before this had contributed nothing to the support of the state, subject to taxation. The continuous campaigns, demanding great outlays of money, really required this. Especially burdensome was the siege of Veii (some call the people Veientani).

This city was the barrier and bulwark of Tuscan, in quantity of arms and multitude of soldiery no whit inferior to Rome. Indeed, pluming herself on her wealth, and on the refinement, luxury,

PLUTARCH'S LIVES

πολλοὺς καὶ καλοὺς ἀγῶνας ἠγωνίσαστο περὶ δόξης
 4 καὶ δυναστείας πολεμοῦσα Ῥωμαίοις. ἐν δὲ τῷ
 τότε χρόνῳ τῆς μὲν φιλοτιμίας ἀφειστήκει συντριβείσα μεγάλαις μάχαις· ἐπαράμενοι δὲ τείχη
 μεγάλα καὶ καρτερὰ καὶ τὴν πόλιν ὄπλων καὶ
 βελῶν καὶ σίτου καὶ παρασκευῆς ἀπάσης ἐμπλή-σαντες, ἀδεῶς ὑπέμενον τὴν πολιορκίαν, μακρὰν
 μὲν οὖσαν, οὐχ ἤττον δὲ τοῖς πολιορκούσιν ἐρ-
 5 γῶδη καὶ χαλεπὴν γενομένην. εἰθισμένοι γὰρ οὐ 130
 πολὺν χρόνον ἅμα ὄρα θέρους ἔξω στρατεύειν,
 οἴκοι δὲ διαχειμάζειν, τότε πρῶτον ἠναγκάσθησαν
 ὑπὸ τῶν χιλιάρχων φρούρια κατασκευάμενοι
 καὶ τὸ στρατόπεδον τειχίσαντες ἐν τῇ πολεμίᾳ
 χειμῶνα καὶ θέρος συνάπτειν, ἤδη σχεδὸν ἔτους
 ἐβδόμου τῷ πολέμῳ τελευτῶντος. ὥστε καὶ
 τοὺς ἄρχοντας ἐν αἰτία γενέσθαι καὶ μαλακῶς
 πολιορκεῖν δοκοῦντας ἀφαιρεθῆναι τὴν ἀρχήν,
 ἐτέρων αἰρεθέντων ἐπὶ τὸν πόλεμον· ὧν ἦν καὶ
 6 Κάμιλλος τότε χιλιάρχων τὸ δεύτερον. ἔπραξε
 δὲ περὶ τὴν πολιορκίαν οὐδὲν ἐν ἐκείνῳ τῷ χρόνῳ, λαχὼν Φαλερίοις καὶ Καπηνάταις πολεμεῖν, οἱ
 δι' ἀσχολίαν τότε πολλὰ τὴν χώραν καθυβρί-σαντες καὶ παρὰ πάντα τὸν Τυρρηνικὸν πόλεμον
 ἐνοχλήσαντες ἐπιέσθησαν ὑπὸ τοῦ Καμίλλου καὶ συνεστάλησαν εἰς τὰ τείχη πολλοὺς ἀποβαλόντες.

III. Ἐκ τούτου τὸ περὶ τὴν Ἀλβανίδα λίμνην
 πάθος ἀκμάζοντι τῷ πολέμῳ συνενεχθὲν οὐδενὸς
 ἤττον τῶν ἀπίστων πυθέσθαι θαυμάτων αἰτίας
 κοινῆς ἀποοία καὶ λόγου φυσικὴν ἔχοντος ἀρχὴν
 ἐφόβησεν. ἦν μὲν γὰρ ὄρα μετοπωρινή, καὶ τὸ

CAMILLUS

and sumptuousness in which her citizens lived she had waged many noble contests for glory and power in her wars with the Romans. At this time, however, she had been crushed in great battles, and had given up her former ambitious pretensions. But her people built their walls high and strong, filled the city full of armour, missiles, grain, and every possible provision, and confidently endured their siege, which, though long, was no less laborious and difficult for the besiegers. These had been accustomed to short campaigns abroad as the summer season opened, and to winters at home; but then for the first time they had been compelled by their tribunes to build forts and fortify their camp and spend both summer and winter in the enemy's country, the seventh year of the war being now nearly at an end. For this their rulers were held to blame, and finally deprived of their rule, because they were thought to conduct the siege without energy. Others were chosen to carry on the war, and one of these was Camillus, now tribune for the second time. But for the present he had nothing to do with the siege, since it fell to his lot to wage war with the Falerians and the Capenates, who, while the Romans had their hands full, had often harried their territory, and during all the Tuscan war had given them annoyance and trouble. These were overwhelmed by Camillus in battle and shut up in their fastnesses with great loss of life.

III. And now, when the war was at its climax, the calamity of the Alban lake added its terrors. It seemed a most incredible prodigy, without familiar cause or natural explanation. For the season was autumn, and the summer just ended had, to all

PLUTARCH'S LIVES

- θέρος ἔληγεν οὐτ' ἔπομβρον οὔτε πνεύμασι νοτίοις
 2 χαλεπὸν ἐπιδήλως γενόμενον· πολλὰς δὲ λίμνας
 καὶ ποταμοὺς καὶ νάματα παντοδαπὰ τῆς Ἰταλίας ἐχούσης τὰ μὲν ἐξέκιπε κομιδῇ, τὰ δ' ἀντ-ἔσχε γλίσχρως καὶ μόλις, οἱ δὲ ποταμοὶ πάντες
 ὥσπερ αἰεὶ κοῖλοι καὶ ταπεινοὶ διὰ θέρους ἐρρῦη-
 σαν. τὸ δὲ τῆς Ἀλβανίδος λίμνης ἀρχὴν ἔχον
 ἐν ἑαυτῷ καὶ τελευτῇ, ὄρεσιν εὐγείοις περιεχό-μενον, ἀπ' οὐδενὸς αἰτίου, πλὴν εἴ τι θεῖον, αὐξό-μενον ἐπιδήλως διωγκοῦτο καὶ προσίστατο ταῖς
 ὑπωρείαις καὶ τῶν ἀνωτάτω λόφων ὀμαλῶς ἐπέψαυεν, ἄνευ σάλου καὶ κλύδωνος ἐξανιστάμενον.
 3 καὶ πρῶτον μὲν ἦν ποιμένων θαῦμα καὶ βοτήρων
 ἐπεὶ δέ, τοῦ διείργοντος ἀπὸ τῆς κάτω χώρας
 οἶον ἰσθμοῦ τὴν λίμνην ὑπεκραγέοντος ὑπὸ τοῦ
 πλήθους καὶ βάρους, μέγα ρεῦμα κατέβαινε διὰ
 τῶν ἀρουμένων καὶ φυτευομένων ἐπὶ τὴν θάλατταν, οὐ μόνον αὐτοῖς παρείχε Ῥωμαίοις ἔκπληξιν, ἀλλὰ καὶ πᾶσιν ἐδόκει τοῖς τὴν Ἰταλίαν κατοι-κοῦσι μηδενὸς μικροῦ σημείου εἶναι. πλείστος
 δ' αὐτοῦ λόγος ἦν ἐν τῷ στρατοπέδῳ τῷ πολιορκούντι τοὺς Οὐηίους, ὥστε κἀκείνοις ἔκπυστον
 γενέσθαι τὸ περὶ τὴν λίμνην πάθος.

IV. Οἷα δ' ἐν πολιορκίᾳ διὰ χρόνου μῆκος
 ἐπιμιξίας τε πολλὰς ἐχούσῃ καὶ κοινολογίας
 πρὸς τοὺς πολεμίους, ἐγεγόνει τινὶ Ῥωμαίῳ
 συνήθεια καὶ παρρησία πρὸς ἓνα τῶν πολιτῶν, ἄνθρωπον ἔμπειρόν τε λογίων παλαιῶν καὶ τι
 καὶ πλέον εἰδέναι τῶν ἄλλων ἀπὸ μαντικῆς
 δοκούντα. τοῦτον οὖν ὁ Ῥωμαῖος, ὡς ἤκουσε
 τὴν ἐπίδοσιν τῆς λίμνης, ὄρων ὑπερηδόμενον
 τε καὶ καταγελῶντα τῆς πολιορκίας, οὐ ταῦτ'

CAMILLUS

observation, been neither rainy nor vexed by south winds. Of the lakes, rivers, and streams of all sizes with which Italy abounds, some had failed utterly, others barely managed to hold out, and all the rivers ran low, between high banks, as was always the case in summer. But the Alban lake, which had its source and outlet within itself, and was girt about with fertile mountains, for no reason, except it be that heaven willed it, was observed to increase and swell until it reached the skirts of the mountains and gradually touched their highest ridges. All this rise was without surge or billow. At first it was a prodigy for neighbouring shepherds and herdsmen. But when the volume and weight of water broke away the barrier which, like an isthmus, had kept the lake from the country lying below it, and a huge torrent poured down through the fields and vineyards and made its way to the sea, then not only were the Romans themselves dismayed, but all the inhabitants of Italy thought it a sign of no small evil to come. There was much talk about it in the army that was besieging Veii, so that even the besieged themselves heard of the calamity.

IV. As was to be expected in a long siege requiring many meetings for conference with the enemy, it fell out that a certain Roman became intimate and confidential with one of the citizens of Veii, a man versed in ancient oracles, and reputed wiser than the rest from his being a diviner. The Roman saw that this man, on hearing the story of the lake, was overjoyed and made mock of the siege. He therefore told

PLUTARCH'S LIVES

- ἔφη μόνον ἐνηνοχῆναι θαυμαστὰ τὸν παρόντα χρόνον, ἀλλ' ἕτερα τούτων ἀποπώτερα σημεῖα Ῥωμαίοις γεγονέναι, περὶ ὧν ἐθέλειν ἐκείνῳ κοινωσάμενος, εἴ τι δύναίτο, θέσθαι τῶν ἰδίων
- 2 ἄμεινον ἐν τοῖς κοινούσι νοσοῦσιν. ὑπακούσαντος δὲ τοῦ ἀνθρώπου προθύμως καὶ διδόντος ἑαυτὸν εἰς κοινολογίαν, ὡς ἀπορρήτων τινῶν ἀκροατὴν ἐσόμενον, κατὰ μικρὸν οὕτω διαλεγόμενος καὶ ὑπάγων αὐτόν, ὡς πορρωτέρω τῶν πυλῶν ἐγεγόνεισαν, αἶρει τε μετέωρον εὐρωστότερος ὧν καὶ τινῶν ἀπὸ στρατοπέδου προσδραμόντων χειρωσάμενος καὶ κρατήσας παρέδωκε τοῖς στρατηγοῖς.
- 3 ἐν τούτῳ δ' ἀνάγκης γεγονῶς ὁ ἄνθρωπος καὶ μαθὼν ἄρα τὸ πεπρωμένον ὡς ἄφυκτον εἶη, λόγια προῦφαινεν ἀπόρρητα περὶ τῆς ἑαυτοῦ πατρίδος, ὡς οὐκ οὔσης ἁλωσίμου πρότερον ἢ τὴν Ἀλβανίδα λίμνην ἐκχυθείσαν καὶ φερομένην ὁδοὺς ἑτέρας ὡσαντες ὀπίσω καὶ περισπάσαντες οἱ πολέμοιοι κωλύσουσι μίγνυσθαι τῇ θαλάττῃ.
- 4 Ταῦτα τῇ συγκλήτῳ πυθομένη καὶ διαπορούσῃ 131 καλῶς ἔχειν ἔδοξε πέμψαντας εἰς Δελφοὺς ἐρέσθαι τὸν θεόν. οἱ δὲ πεμφθέντες ἄνδρες ἔνδοξοι καὶ μεγάλοι, Κόσσος Λικίνιος καὶ Οὐαλλέριος Ποτίτος καὶ Φάβιος Ἀμβουστος, πλῆ τε χρησάμενοι καὶ τῶν παρὰ τοῦ θεοῦ τυχόντες ἤκουον ἄλλας τε μαντείας κομίζοντες, αἱ πατρίων τινῶν περὶ τὰς καλουμένας Λατίνας ἑορτὰς
- 5 ὀλιγωρίαν ἔφραζον αὐτοῖς, καὶ τὸ τῆς Ἀλβανίδος ὕδωρ ἐκέλευον εἶργοντας ὡς ἀνυστόν ἐστι τῆς θαλάσσης ἀνωθεὶν εἰς τὸν ἀρχαῖον πόρον, ἢ τοῦτο μὴ δυναμένους ὀρύγμασι καὶ τάφροις παράγειν εἰς τὸ πεδῖον καὶ καταναλίσκεν,

CAMILLUS

him this was not the only wonder which the passing days had brought, but that other and stranger signs than this had been given to the Romans, of which he was minded to tell him, in order that, if possible, he might better his own private case in the midst of the public distresses. The man gave eager hearing to all this, and consented to a conference, supposing that he was going to hear some deep secrets. But the Roman led him along little by little, conversing as he went, until they were some way beyond the city gate, when he seized him bodily, being a sturdier man than he, and with the help of comrades who came running up from the camp, mastered him completely and handed him over to the generals. Thus constrained, and perceiving that fate's decrees were not to be evaded, the man revealed secret oracles regarding his native city, to the effect that it could not be captured until the Alban lake, after leaving its bed and making new channels for itself, should be driven back by the enemy, deflected from its course, and prevented from mingling with the sea.

The Senate, on hearing this, was at great loss what to do, and thought it well to send an embassy to Delphi to consult the god. The envoys were men of great repute and influence, Cossus Licinius, Valerius Potitus, and Fabius Ambustus, who made their voyage and came back with the responses of the god. One of these told them that certain ancestral rites connected with the so-called Latin festivals had been unduly neglected; another bade them by all means to keep the water of the Alban lake away from the sea and force it back into its ancient bed, or, if they could not effect this, by means of canals and trenches to divert it into the ἀπαγγελθέντων δὲ τούτων οἱ μὲν ἱερεῖς τὰ περὶ τὰς θυσίας ἔπραττον, ὁ δὲ δῆμος ἐχώρει πρὸς τὰ ἔργα καὶ τὸ ὕδωρ ἐξέτρεπεν.

PLUTARCH'S LIVES

V. Ἡ δὲ σύγκλητος εἰς τὸ δέκατον ἔτος τοῦ πολέμου καταλύσασα τὰς ἄλλας ἀρχὰς δικτάτορα Κάμιλλον ἀπέδειξεν ἵππαρχον δ' ἐκεῖνος αὐτῷ προσελόμενος Κορνήλιον Σκηπίωνα, πρῶτον μὲν εὐχὰς ἐποιήσατο τοῖς θεοῖς ἐπὶ τῷ πολέμῳ τέλος εὐκλεὲς λαβόντι τὰς μεγάλας θεὰς ἄξειν καὶ νεῶν θεᾶς, ἣν μητέρα Ματούταν καλοῦσι Ῥωμαῖοι, καθιερώσειν.

- 2 Ταύτην ἂν τις ἀπὸ τῶν δρωμένων ἱερῶν μάλιστα Λευκοθέαν νομίσειεν εἶναι. καὶ γὰρ θεράπαιναν εἰς τὸν σηκὸν εἰσάγουσαι ραπίζουσιν, εἰτ' ἐξελαύνουσι καὶ τὰ τῶν ἀδελφῶν τέκνα πρὸ τῶν ἰδίων ἐναγκαλίζονται καὶ δρῶσι περὶ τὴν θυσίαν ἃ ταῖς Διονύσου τροφοῖς καὶ τοῖς διὰ τὴν παλλακὴν πάθεσι τῆς Ἰνούς προσέοικε.

- Μετὰ δὲ τὰς εὐχὰς ὁ Κάμιλλος εἰς τὴν Φαλίσκων ἐνέβαλε, καὶ μύχη μεγάλη τούτους τε καὶ Καπηνάτας προσβοηθήσαντας αὐτοῖς
3 ἐνίκησεν. ἔπειτα πρὸς τὴν πολιορκίαν τραπόμενος τῶν Οὐνίων καὶ τὸν ἐκ προσβολῆς ἀγῶνα χαλεπὸν καὶ δύσεργον ὁρῶν ὑπονόμεους ἔτεμνε, τῶν περὶ τὴν πόλιν χωρίων ἐνδιδόντων τοῖς ὀρύγμασι καὶ καταδεχομένων εἰς βάθος ἄγειν ἄδηλον τοῖς πολεμίοις τὰ ἔργα. διὸ καὶ προϊούσης ὁδῷ τῆς ἐλπίδος αὐτὸς μὲν ἔξωθεν προσέβαλλεν, ἐκκαλούμενος ἐπὶ τὰ τεῖχη τοὺς πολεμίους, plain and dissipate it. On receipt of these responses the priests performed the neglected sacrifices, and the people sallied out into the fields and diverted the course of the water.

CAMILLUS

V. In the tenth year of the war,¹ the Senate abolished the other magistracies and appointed Camillus dictator. After choosing Cornelius Scipio as his master of horse, in the first place he made solemn vows to the gods that, in case the war had a glorious ending, he would celebrate the great games in their honour, and dedicate a temple to a goddess whom the Romans call Mater Matuta.

From the sacred rites used in the worship of this goddess, she might be held to be almost identical with Leucothea. The women bring a serving-maid into the sanctuary and beat her with rods, then drive her forth again; they embrace their nephews and nieces in preference to their own children; and their conduct at the sacrifice resembles that of the nurses of Dionysus, or that of Ino under the afflictions put upon her by her husband's concubine.

After his vows, Camillus invaded the country of the Faliscans and conquered them in a great battle, together with the Capenates who came up to their aid. Then he turned to the siege of Veii, and seeing that direct assault upon the city was a grievous and difficult matter, he went to digging mines, since the region round the city favoured such works, and allowed their being carried to a great depth without the enemy's knowing about it. So then, when his hopes were well on their way to fulfilment, he himself assaulted the city from the outside, and thus called the enemy

¹ 396 B.C.

PLUTARCH'S LIVES

ἄλλοι δ' ἀδήλως ὑποπορευόμενοι διὰ τῶν ὑπονόμων ἔλαθον ἐντὸς γενόμενοι τῆς ἄκρας κατὰ τὸ τῆς Ἦρας¹ ἱερόν, ὃ μέγιστον ἦν ἐν τῇ πόλει καὶ μάλιστα τιμώμενον.

- 4 Ἐνταῦθα λέγεται τυχεῖν κατ' ἐκείνο καιροῦ τὸν ἡγεμόνα τῶν Τυρρηνῶν ἐφ' ἱεροῖς· τὸν δὲ μάντιν εἰς τὰ σπλάγχνα κατιδόντα καὶ μέγα φθεγξάμενον εἰπεῖν, ὅτι νίκην ὁ θεὸς δίδωσι τῷ κατακολουθήσαντι τοῖς ἱεροῖς ἐκείνοις· ταύτης δὲ τῆς φωνῆς τοὺς ἐν τοῖς ὑπονόμοις Ῥωμαίους ἐπακούσαντας ταχὺ διασπάσαι τὸ ἔδαφος, καὶ μετὰ βοῆς καὶ ψόφου τῶν ὄπλων ἀναδύντας, ἐκπλαγέντων τῶν πολεμίων καὶ φυγόντων, ἀρπάσαντας τὰ σπλάγχνα κομίσαι πρὸς τὸν Κάμιλλον.
- 5 ἄλλα ταῦτα μὲν ἴσως εἰκέναι δόξει μυθεύμασιν.

- Ἄλωσης δὲ τῆς πόλεως κατὰ κράτος καὶ τῶν Ῥωμαίων ἀγόντων καὶ φερόντων ἀπειρόν τινα πλοῦτον, ἐφορῶν ὁ Κάμιλλος ἀπὸ τῆς ἄκρας τὰ πραπτόμενα, πρῶτον μὲν ἐστῶς ἐδάκρυσεν, εἶτα μακαρισθεῖς ὑπὸ τῶν παρόντων ἀνέσχε τὰς
- 6 χεῖρας τοῖς θεοῖς καὶ προσευχόμενος εἶπε· “Ζεῦ μέγιστε καὶ θεοὶ χρηστῶν ἐπίσκοποι καὶ ποιηρῶν ἔργων, αὐτοὶ που σύνιστε Ῥωμαίοις, ὡς οὐ παρὰ δίκην, ἀλλὰ κατ' ἀνάγκην ἀμυνόμενοι μετερχόμεθα δυσμενῶν ἀνδρῶν καὶ παρανόμων πόλιν. εἰ δ' ἄρα τις,” ἔφη, “καὶ ἡμῖν ἀντίστροφος ὀφείλεται τῆς παρούσης νέμεσις εὐπραξίας, εὐχομαι ταύτην ὑπὲρ τε πόλεως καὶ στρατοῦ Ῥωμαίων εἰς ἔμαντὸν ἐλαχίστῳ κακῷ

¹ τῆς Ἦρας with C and S: “Hras.

CAMILLUS

away to man their walls; while others secretly made their way along the mines and reached unnoticed the interior of the citadel, where the temple of Juno stood, the largest temple in the city, and the one most held in honour.

There, it is said, at this very juncture, the commander of the Tuscans chanced to be sacrificing, and his seer, when he beheld the entrails of the victim, cried out with a loud voice and said that the god awarded victory to him who should fulfill that sacrifice. The Romans in the mines below, hearing this utterance, quickly tore away the pavement of the temple and issued forth with battle cries and clash of arms, whereat the enemy were terrified and fled away. The sacrificial entrails were then seized and carried to Camillus. But possibly this will seem like fable.

At any rate the city was taken by storm, and the Romans were pillaging and plundering its boundless wealth, when Camillus, seeing from the citadel what was going on, at first burst into tears as he stood, and then, on being congratulated by the bystanders, lifted up his hands to the gods and prayed, saying: "O greatest Jupiter, and ye gods who see and judge men's good and evil deeds, ye surely know that it is not unjustly, but of necessity and in self-defence that we Romans have visited its iniquity upon this city of hostile and lawless men. But if, as counterpoise to this our present success, some retribution is due to come upon us, spare, I beseech you, the city and the army of the Romans, and let it fall upon my own head, though with as little harm as may be."

7 τελευτήσαι.” ταῦτ' εἰπὼν, καθάπερ ἐστὶ Ῥωμαίοις ἔθος ἐπευξαμένοις καὶ προσκυνήσασιν ἐπὶ δεξιὰ ἐξελίττειν, ἐσφάλῃ περιστρεφόμενος. διαταραχθέντων δὲ τῶν παρόντων πάλιν ἀναλαβὼν
 ἑαυτὸν ἐκ τοῦ πτώματος εἶπεν, ὡς γέγονεν αὐτῷ
 κατ' εὐχὴν σφάλμα μικρὸν ἐπ' εὐτυχία μεγίστη.

VI. Διαπορθήσας δὲ τὴν πόλιν ἔγνω τὸ ἄγαλμα τῆς Ἥρας μεταφέρειν εἰς Ῥώμην, ὥσπερ εὐξάτο. καὶ συνελθόντων ἐπὶ τούτῳ τῶν τεχνι-
 τῶν, ὁ μὲν ἔθνε καὶ προσεύχετο τῇ θεῷ δέχεσθαι
 τὴν προθυμίαν αὐτῶν καὶ εὐμενῆ γενέσθαι σύνοι-κον τοῖς λαχοῦσι τὴν Ῥώμην θεοῖς, τὸ δ' ἄγαλμά
 φασιν ὑποφθεγξάμενον εἰπεῖν, ὅτι καὶ βούλεται
 2 καὶ συγκαταινεῖ. Διούϊος δὲ φησιν εὐχεσθαι
 μὲν τὸν Κάμιλλον ἀπτόμενον τῆς θεοῦ καὶ παρακαλεῖν, ἀποκρίνασθαι δὲ τινὰς τῶν παρόντων, ὅτι
 καὶ βούλεται καὶ συγκαταινεῖ καὶ συνακολουθεῖ προθύμως.

Οἱ δ' ἰσχυριζόμενοι καὶ τῷ παραδόξῳ βοηθοῦν-
 τες μεγίστην μὲν ἔχουσι συνήγορον τὴν τύχην
 τῆς πόλεως, ἣν ἀπὸ μικρᾶς καὶ καταφρονουμένης
 ἀρχῆς ἐπὶ τοσοῦτον δόξης καὶ δυνάμεως προελθεῖν δίχα θεοῦ πολλαῖς καὶ μεγάλαις ἐπιφανείαις
 3 ἐκάστοτε συμπάροντος ἀμήχανον· οὐ μὴν ἀλλὰ καὶ συνάγουσιν ὁμοειδῆ τινα, τοῦτο μὲν ἰδρώτας ἀγαλ-μάτων πολλάκις ἐκχυθέντας, τοῦτο δὲ στεναγμούς ἀκουσθέντας ἀποστροφάς τε δεικνύντες καὶ κατα-μύσεις ξοάνων, ἃς ἱστορήκασιν οὐκ ὀλίγοι τῶν πρότερον. πολλὰ δὲ καὶ τῶν καθ' ἡμᾶς ἀκηκόοτες ἀνθρώπων λέγειν ἔχομεν ἄξια θαύματος, ὧν

CAMILLUS

With these words, as the Romans' custom is after prayer and adoration, he wheeled himself about to the right, but stumbled and fell as he turned. The bystanders were confounded, but he picked himself up again from his fall and said: "My prayer is granted! a slight fall is my atonement for the greatest good fortune."

VI. After he had utterly sacked the city, he determined to transfer the image of Juno to Rome, in accordance with his vows. The workmen were assembled for the purpose, and Camillus was sacrificing and praying the goddess to accept of their zeal and to be a kindly co-dweller with the gods of Rome, when the image, they say, spoke in low tones and said she was ready and willing. But Livy¹ says that Camillus did indeed lay his hand upon the goddess and pray and beseech her, but that it was certain of the bystanders who gave answer that she was ready and willing and eager to go along with him.

Those who insist upon and defend the marvel have a most powerful advocate for their contention in the fortune of the city, which, from its small and despised beginning, could never have come to such a pinnacle of glory and power had God not dwelt with her and made many great manifestations of himself from time to time. Moreover, they adduce other occurrences of a kindred sort, such as statues often dripping with sweat, images uttering audible groans, turning away their faces, and closing their eyes, as not a few historians in the past have written. And we ourselves might make mention of many astonishing things which we

¹ v. 22.

PLUTARCH'S LIVES

4 οὐκ ἄν τις εἰκῆ καταφρονήσειεν. ἀλλὰ τοῖς τοιοῦτοις καὶ τὸ πιστεύειν σφόδρα καὶ τὸ λίαν ἀπιστεῖν ἐπισφαλές ἐστι διὰ τὴν ἀνθρωπίνην ἀσθένειαν ὅρον οὐκ ἔχουσιν οὐδὲ κρατοῦσαν αὐτῆς, ἀλλ' ἐκφερομένην ὅπου μὲν εἰς δεισιδαιμονίαν καὶ τῦφον, ὅπου δ' εἰς ὀλιγωρίαν τῶν θεῶν καὶ περιφρόνησιν· ἢ δ' εὐλάβεια καὶ τὸ μηδὲν ἄγαν ἄριστον.

VII. Ὁ δὲ Κάμιλλος εἴτε μεγέθει τοῦ ἔργου, πόλιν ἀντίπαλον τῆς Ῥώμης ἔτει δεκάτῳ τῆς πολιορκίας καθηρηκῶς, εἴτε ὑπὸ τῶν εὐδαιμονιζόντων αὐτὸν εἰς ὄγκον ἐξαρθεὶς καὶ φρόνημα νομίμου καὶ πολιτικῆς ἀρχῆς ἐπαχθέστερον, τὰ τε ἄλλα σοβαρῶς ἐθριάμβευσε καὶ τέθριππον ὑποζευξάμενος λευκόπωλον ἐπέβη καὶ διεξήλασε τῆς Ῥώμης, οὐδενὸς τοῦτο ποιήσαντος ἡγεμόνος πρότερον οὐδ' ὕστερον. ἱερὸν γὰρ ἡγούνται τὸ τοιοῦτον ὄχημα τῷ βασιλεῖ καὶ πατρὶ τῶν θεῶν ἐπιπε-

2 φημισμένον. ἔκ τε δὴ τούτου διεβλήθη πρὸς τοὺς πολίτας οὐκ εἰθισμένους ἐντροφᾶσθαι, καὶ δευτέραν ἔλαβεν αἰτίαν ἐνιστάμενος νόμῳ διοικίζοντι τὴν πόλιν. εἰσηγοῦντο γὰρ οἱ δήμαρχοι τὸν τε δῆμον καὶ τὴν σύγκλητον ἴσα μέρη δύο νεμηθῆναι, καὶ τοὺς μὲν αὐτόθι κατοικεῖν, τοὺς δὲ κλήρω λαχόντας εἰς τὴν αἰχμάλωτον μεταστῆναι πόλιν, ὡς εὐπορωτέρων ἐσομένων καὶ δυσὶ μεγάλοις καὶ καλοῖς ἄστεσι τὴν τε χώραν ὁμοῦ καὶ τὴν ἄλλην

3 εὐδαιμονίαν φυλαξόντων. ὁ μὲν οὖν δῆμος ἦδη πολὺς γεγωνὸς καὶ ἀχρήματος ἄσμενος ἐδέξατο, have heard from men of our own time,—things not lightly to be despised. But in such matters eager credulity and excessive incredulity are alike dangerous, because of the weakness of our human nature, which sets no limits and has no mastery over itself, but is carried away now into vain superstition, and now into contemptuous neglect of the gods. Caution is best, and to go to no extremes.

CAMILLUS

VII. Whether it was due to the magnitude of his exploit in taking a city which could vie with Rome and endure a siege of ten years, or to the congratulations showered upon him, Camillus was lifted up to vanity, cherished thoughts far from becoming to a civil magistrate subject to the law, and celebrated a triumph with great pomp: he actually had four white horses harnessed to a chariot on which he mounted and drove through Rome, a thing which no commander had ever done before or afterwards did. For they thought such a car sacred and devoted to the king and father of the gods. In this way he incurred the enmity of the citizens, who were not accustomed to wanton extravagance. They had also a second grievance against him in that he opposed himself to a law dividing the city. The tribunes introduced a measure dividing the people and the Senate into two parts, one to remain and dwell there, and the one on which the lot fell to remove into the city they had captured, on the ground that they would thus be more commodiously bestowed, and with two large and fair cities could better protect their territory as well as their prosperity in general. Accordingly the people, which was now become numerous and poor, welcomed the measure

PLUTARCH'S LIVES

καὶ συνεχῆς ἦν τοῖς περὶ τὸ βῆμα θορύβοις αἰτῶν τὴν ψῆφον· ἡ δὲ βουλή καὶ τῶν ἄλλων οἱ κράτιστοι πολιτῶν οὐ διαίρεσιν, ἀλλ' ἀναίρεσιν ἡγούμενοι τῆς Ῥώμης πολιτεύεσθαι τοὺς δημάρχους καὶ δυσανασχετοῦντες ἐπὶ τὸν Κάμιλλον 4 κατέφυγον. κακείνος ὀρρωδῶν τὸν ἀγῶνα προφάσεις ἐνέβαλλε τῷ δήμῳ καὶ ἀσχολίας, δι' ὧν αἰετὸν τὸν νόμον ἐξέκρουεν. ἦν μὲν οὖν διὰ ταῦτα λυπηρός.

Ἡ δὲ φανερωτάτη καὶ μεγίστη τῶν ἀπεχθειῶν αὐτῷ πρὸς τὸν δῆμον ἐκ τῆς δεκάτης τῶν λαφύρων ὑπῆρξεν, οὐκ ἄλογον, εἰ καὶ μὴ πάνυ δικαίαν ἀρχὴν τῶν πολλῶν λαβόντων.
 5 εὗξατο μὲν γὰρ ἐπὶ τοὺς Οὐητοὺς, ὡς ἔοικε, βαδίζων, εἰ τὴν πόλιν ἔλοι, τῷ θεῷ τούτων τὴν δεκάτην καθιερώσειν. ἀλούσης δὲ τῆς πόλεως καὶ διαρπασθείσης, εἴτ' ὀκνήσας ἐνοχλήσαι τοῖς πολίταις, εἴτε λήθη τις αὐτὸν ὑπὸ τῶν παρόντων πραγμάτων ἔλαβε τῆς εὐχῆς, περιεῖδεν ὠφεληθέντας. ὕστερον δὲ χρόνῳ τῆς ἀρχῆς ἐκείνης ἤδη πεπαυμένος ἀνήνεγκε περὶ τούτων εἰς¹ τὴν σύγκλητον, οἳ τε μάντεις ἠγγελλον ἐπὶ τοῖς ἱεροῖς 133 προφαίνεσθαι θεῶν μῆνιν ἰλασμοῦ καὶ χαριστηρίων δεομένην.

VIII. Ψηφισαμένης δὲ τῆς βουλῆς τὴν μὲν ὠφέλειαν (χαλεπὸν γὰρ ἦν) ἀνάδαστον μὴ γενέσθαι, τοὺς δὲ λαβόντας αὐτοὺς σὺν ὄρκῳ τὴν δεκάτην παραφέρειν εἰς μέσον, ἐγένετο πολλὰ with delight, and was for ever thronging tumultuously about the rostra with demands that it be put to vote. But the Senate and the most influential of the other citizens considered that the measure proposed by the tribunes meant not division but destruction for Rome, and in their aversion to it went to Camillus for aid and succour. He, dreading the struggle, always contrived to keep the people busy with other matters, and so staved off the passage of the bill. For this reason, then, they were vexed with him.

¹ εἰς Bekker and Sintenis¹, with most MSS.: πρὸς.

CAMILLUS

But the strongest and most apparent reason why the multitude hated him was based on the matter of the tenth of the spoil of Veii, and herein they had a plausible, though not a very just ground of complaint. He had vowed, as it seems, on setting out against Veii, that if he should take the city, he would consecrate the tenth of its booty to the Delphian god. But after the city had been taken and sacked, he allowed his soldiers full enjoyment of their plunder, either because he shrank from annoying them, or because, in the multitude of his activities, he as good as forgot his vow. At a later time, when he had laid down his command, he referred the matter to the Senate, and the seers announced tokens in their sacrifices that the gods were angry, and must be propitiated with due offerings.

VIII. The Senate voted, not that the booty should be redistributed, for that would have been a difficult matter, but that those who had got it should, in person and under oath, bring the tenth thereof to the public treasury. This subjected the soldiers to

PLUTARCH'S LIVES

- λυπήρὰ καὶ βίαια περὶ τοὺς στρατιώτας, ἀνθρώ-πους πένητας καὶ πολλὰ πεπονηκότας, ἀναγκαζομένους ὧν ἐκέκτηντο καὶ κατεκέχρητο μέρος
 2 εἰσφέρειν τοσοῦτον. θορυβουμένῳ δ' ὑπ' αὐτῶν
 τῷ Καμίλλῳ καὶ προφάσεως ἀποροῦντι βελτίονος
 εἰς τὸν ἀτοπώτατον τῶν λόγων συνέβαινε καταφεύγειν, ὁμολογοῦντι ἐπιλαθέσθαι τῆς εὐχῆς. οἱ
 δ' ἐχαλέπαινον, εἰ τὰ τῶν πολεμίων δεκατεύσειν
 εὐξάμενος τότε νῦν δεκατεύει τὰ τῶν πολιτῶν. οὐ
 μὴν ἀλλὰ πάντων ὅσον ἔδει μέρος εἰσενεγκόντων
 ἔδοξε κρατῆρα χρυσοῦν κατασκευάσαντας εἰς
 3 Δελφοὺς ἀποστεῖλαι. χρυσίου δ' ἦν σπάνις ἐν
 τῇ πόλει· καὶ τῶν ἀρχόντων ὅθεν ἂν πορισθεῖη σκοπούντων, αἱ γυναῖκες αὐταὶ καθ' αὐτὰς βουλευσάμεναι τὸν ὄντα χρυσοῦν ἐκάστη περὶ τὸ
 σῶμα κόσμον ἐπέδωκαν εἰς τὸ ἀνάθημα, σταθμῷ
 χρυσίου γενόμενον ὀκτῶ ταλάντων. καὶ ταύταις
 μὲν ἡ σύγκλητος ἀποδιδούσα τιμὴν πρέπουσαν
 ἐψηφίσατο μετὰ θάνατον ὥσπερ ἐπὶ τοῖς ἀνδράσι
 καὶ ταῖς γυναίξι λέγεσθαι τὸν ἄξιον ἔπαινον· οὐ
 γὰρ ἦν εἰθισμένον πρότερον ἐγκωμιάζεσθαι γυ-4 ναῖκα δημοσίᾳ τελευτήσασαν· ἐλόμενοι δὲ τρεῖς
 ἄνδρας ἐκ τῶν ἀρίστων θεωροὺς καὶ ναῦν μακρὰν
 εὐανδρῶντι πληρώματι καὶ κόσμῳ πανηγυρικῷ
 κατασκευάσαντες ἐξέπεμψαν.

Ἦν δ' ἄρα καὶ χειμῶν καὶ γαλήνη θαλάσσης
 ἀργαλέον, ὡς ἐκείνοις συνέτυχε τότε παρ' οὐδὲν
 ἐλθόντας ἀπολέσθαι διαφυγεῖν αὐθις ἀπροσ-δοκῆτως τὸν κίνδυνον. ἐπέπλευσαν γὰρ αὐτοῖς
 Λιπαρέων τριήρεις περὶ τὰς Αἰόλου νήσους τοῦ

CAMILLUS

many vexations and constraints. They were poor men, who had toiled hard, and yet were now forced to contribute a large share of what they had gained, yes, and spent already. Beset by their tumultuous complaints, and at loss for a better excuse, Camillus had recourse to the absurdest of all explanations, and admitted that he had forgotten his vow. The soldiers were filled with indignation at the thought that it was the goods of the enemy of which he had once vowed a tithe, but the goods of his fellow citizens from which he was now paying the tithe. However, all of them brought in the necessary portion, and it was decided to make a bowl of massive gold and send it to Delphi. Now there was a scarcity of gold in the city, and the magistrates knew not whence it could be had. So the women, of their own accord, determined to give the gold ornaments which they wore upon their persons for the offering, and these amounted to eight talents weight. The women were fittingly rewarded by the Senate, which voted that thereafter, when women died, a suitable eulogy should be spoken over them, as over men. For it was not customary before that time, when a woman died, that a public encomium should be pronounced. Then they chose three of the noblest citizens as envoys, manned with its full complement of their best sailors a ship of war decked out in festal array, and sent them on their way.

Calm at sea has its perils as well as storm, it would seem, at least so it proved in this case. Envoys and crew came within an ace of destruction, and found escape from their peril when they least expected it. Off the Aeolian isles, as the wind died down, some Liparian galleys put out against them, taking them

5 πνεύματος ἐκλιπόντος ὡς λησταῖς. δεομένων δὲ
καὶ προῖσχομένων χεῖρας ἐμβολῆς μὲν ἔσχοντο,
τὴν δὲ ναῦν ἀναψάμενοι καὶ καταγαγόντες
ἀπεκέρυττον, ἅμα καὶ τὰ χρήματα καὶ τὰ
σώματα, πειρατικὰ κρίναντες εἶναι. μόλις δ'
ἐνὸς ἀνδρὸς ἀρετῇ καὶ δυνάμει Τιμησιθέου τοῦ
στρατηγοῦ πεισθέντες μεθῆκαν. ὁ δὲ καὶ προσκαθελκύσας ἴδια πλοῖα παρέπεμψε καὶ συγκαθ-ιέρωσε τὸ ἀνάθημα· δι' ὃ καὶ τιμὰς ἔσχευ, ἅς εἰκὸς ἦν, ἐν Ῥώμῃ.

IX. Τῶν δὲ δημάρχων αὐθις ἐπεγειρόντων τὸν
περὶ τοῦ διοικισμοῦ νόμον, ὁ πρὸς Φαλίσκους
πόλεμος ἐν καιρῷ παραφανεῖς ἔδωκε τοῖς πρώτοις
ἀνδράσιν ἀρχαιρεσιάσαι κατὰ γνώμην καὶ Κά-μιλλον ἀποδειξαι μεθ' ἐτέρων πέντε χιλίαρχον,
ὡς τῶν πραγμάτων ἡγεμόνος δεομένων ἀξίωμα
2 καὶ δόξαν μετ' ἐμπειρίας ἔχοντος. ψηφισαμένου
δὲ τοῦ δήμου λαβὼν δύναμιν ὁ Κάμιλλος εἰς τὴν Φαλίσκων ἐνέβαλε· καὶ πόλιν ἐρυμνὴν κατεσκευασμένην πᾶσιν εἰς πόλεμον καλῶς Φαλερίους ἐπολιόρκει, τὸ μὲν ἐλεῖν οὐ μικρὸν ἔργον
οὐδὲ χρόνου τοῦ τυχόντος ἡγούμενος, ἄλλως δὲ
τρίβειν τοὺς πολίτας καὶ περισπᾶν βουλόμενος,
ὡς μὴ σχολάζοιεν οἴκοι καθήμενοι δημαγωγεῖσθαι
καὶ στασιάζειν. ἐπιεικῶς γὰρ ἀεὶ φαρμάκῳ
τούτῳ χρώμενοι διετέλουν, ὥσπερ ἰατροί, τὰ
ταρακτικὰ πάθη τῆς πολιτείας ἔξω τρέποντες.

X. Οὕτως δὲ τῆς πολιορκίας κατεφρόνουσι οἱ

CAMILLUS

for pirates. The enemy had sufficient regard to their prayers and supplications not to run their vessel down, but they took it in tow, brought it to land, and proclaimed their goods and persons for sale, adjudging them piratical. At last, and with much ado, through the brave intercession of a single man, Timesitheus, their general, the Liparians were persuaded to let the captives go. This man then launched boats of his own, convoyed the suppliants on their way, and assisted them in the dedication of their offering. For this he received suitable honours at Rome.

IX. Once more the tribunes of the people urged the passage of the law for the division of the city, but the war with the Faliscans came on opportunely and gave the leading men occasion to hold such elective assemblies as they wished, and to appoint Camillus military tribune, with five others. The emergency was thought to demand a leader with the dignity and reputation which experience alone could give. After the people had ratified the election, Camillus, at the head of his army, invaded the territory of the Faliscans and laid siege to Falerii, a strong city, and well equipped with all the munitions of war. It was not that he thought its capture would demand slight effort or short time, but he wished to turn the thoughts of the citizens to other matters and keep them busy therein, that they might not be able to stay at home and become the prey of seditious leaders. This was a fitting and sovereign remedy which the Romans used, like good physicians, thereby expelling from the body politic its troublesome distempers.

X. The Falerians, relying on the great strength of Φαλέριοι τῷ πανταχόθεν ἐξωχυρῶσθαι πιστεύοντες, ὥστε πλὴν τῶν τὰ τεῖχη φυλαττόντων τοὺς

 ἄλλους ἐν ἱματίοις κατὰ τὴν πόλιν ἀναστρέφεσθαι, τοὺς δὲ παῖδας αὐτῶν εἰς τε τὰ διδασκαλεῖα φοιτᾶν καὶ παρὰ τὰ τεῖχη περιπατήσοντας καὶ γυμνασομένους ὑπὸ τοῦ διδασκάλου
 καταβιβάζεσθαι. κοινῶ γὰρ ἐχρῶντο τῷ διδασκάλῳ, ὥσπερ Ἕλληνες, οἱ Φαλέριοι, βουλό- 134
 μενοι συντρέφεσθαι καὶ συναγελάζεσθαι μετ'
 2 ἀλλήλων εὐθύς ἐξ ἀρχῆς τοὺς παῖδας. οὗτος
 οὖν ὁ διδάσκαλος ἐπιβουλεύων τοῖς Φαλερίοις
 διὰ τῶν παίδων ἐξῆγεν αὐτοὺς ἡμέρας ἐκύστης
 ὑπὸ τὸ τεῖχος ἐγγὺς τὸ πρῶτον, εἴτ' ἀπήγεν
 αὐθις εἰσω γυμνασαμένους. ἐκ δὲ τούτου κατὰ
 μικρὸν ὑπάγων εἶθισε θαρρεῖν ὡς πολλῆς οὔσης ἀδείας, καὶ τέλος ἔχων ἅπαντας εἰς τοὺς προφύλακας τῶν Ῥωμαίων ἐνέβαλε καὶ παρέδωκεν,
 3 ἄγειν κελεύσας πρὸς τὸν Κάμιλλον. ἀχθεῖς δὲ
 καὶ καταστάς εἰς μέσον ἔλεγε παιδευτῆς μὲν εἶναι
 καὶ διδάσκαλος, τὴν δὲ πρὸς ἐκείνου χάριν ἀντὶ
 τούτων ἐλόμενος τῶν δικαίων, ἦκειν αὐτῷ τὴν
 πόλιν ἐν τοῖς παισὶ κομίζων. δεινὸν οὖν ἀκού-σαντι τὸ ἔργον ἐφάνη Καμίλλῳ· καὶ πρὸς τοὺς
 παρόντας εἰπὼν, ὡς χαλεπὸν μὲν ἐστὶ πόλεμος
 καὶ διὰ πολλῆς ἀδικίας καὶ βιαιῶν περαινόμενος
 4 ἔργων, εἰσὶ δὲ καὶ πολέμων ὁμῶς τινὲς νόμοι τοῖς
 ἀγαθοῖς ἀνδράσι, καὶ τὸ νικᾶν οὐχ οὕτω διω-κτέον, ὥστε μὴ φεύγειν τὰς ἐκ κακῶν καὶ ἀσεβῶν ἔργων χάριτας (ἀρετῇ γὰρ οἰκεία τὸν μέγαν
 στρατηγόν, οὐκ ἀλλοτρίᾳ θαρροῦντα κακία χρῆναι στρατεύειν), προσέταξε τοῖς ὑπηρέταις
 τοῦ μὲν ἀνθρώπου καταρρηγνύναι τὰ ἱμάτια καὶ

CAMILLUS

their city at all points, made so light of the siege that, with the exception of the defenders of the walls, the rest went up and down the city in their garb of peace. The boys went to school as usual, and were brought by their teacher along the walls outside to walk about and get their exercise. For the Falerians, like the Greeks, employed one teacher in common, wishing their boys, from the very start, to herd with one another and grow up together. This teacher, then, wishing to betray Falerii by means of its boys, led them out every day beyond the city walls, at first only a little way, and then brought them back inside when they had taken their exercise. Presently he led them, little by little, farther and farther out, accustomed them to feel confident that there was no danger at all, and finally pushed in among the Roman outposts with his whole company, handed them over to the enemy, and demanded to be led to Camillus. So led, and in that presence, he said he was a boys' school-teacher, but chose rather to win the general's favour than to fulfil the duties of his office, and so had come bringing to him the city in the persons of its boys. It seemed to Camillus, on hearing him, that the man had done a monstrous deed, and turning to the bystanders he said: "War is indeed a grievous thing, and is waged with much injustice and violence; but even war has certain laws which good and brave men will respect, and we must not so hotly pursue victory as not to flee the favours of base and impious doers. The great general will wage war relying on his own native valour, not on the baseness of other men." Then he ordered his attendants to tear the man's clothing from him, tie

PLUTARCH'S LIVES

τὰς χεῖρας ὀπίσω περιάγειν, τοῖς δὲ παισὶ διαδοῦναι ῥάβδους καὶ μάστιγας, ὅπως κολάζοντες τὸν προδότην ἐλαύνωσιν εἰς τὴν πόλιν.

- 5 Ἄρτι δὲ τῶν Φαλερίων ἠσθημένων τὴν τοῦ διδασκάλου προδοσίαν καὶ τὴν μὲν πόλιν, οἶον εἰκός, ἐπὶ συμφορᾷ τηλικαύτῃ θρήνου κατέχοντος, ἀνδρῶν δ' ὁμοῦ καὶ γυναικῶν ἐπὶ τὰ τείχη καὶ τὰς πύλας σὺν οὐδενὶ λογισμῷ φερομένων, προσήγον οἱ παῖδες τὸν διδάσκαλον γυμνὸν καὶ δεδεμένον προπηλακίζοντες, τὸν δὲ Κάμιλλον σωτήρα καὶ πατέρα καὶ θεὸν ἀνακα-
- 6 λούντες, ὥστε μὴ μόνον τοῖς γονεῦσι τῶν παιδῶν, ἀλλὰ καὶ τοῖς ἄλλοις πολίταις ταύτ' ὀρώσι θαυμά τε καὶ πόθον ἐμπεσεῖν τῆς τοῦ Καμίλλου δικαιοσύνης. καὶ συνδραμόντες εἰς ἐκκλησίαν πρέσβεις ἔπεμψαν ἐκείνῳ τὰ καθ' ἑαυτοὺς ἐπιτρέποντες, οὓς ὁ Κάμιλλος ἀπέστειλεν εἰς
- 7 Ῥώμην. ἐν δὲ τῇ βουλῇ καταστάντες εἶπον, ὅτι Ῥωμαῖοι τῆς νίκης τὴν δικαιοσύνην προτιμήσαντες ἐδίδαξαν αὐτοὺς τὴν ἠτταν ἀγαπήσαι πρὸ τῆς ἐλευθερίας, οὐ τοσοῦτον τῇ δυνάμει λείπεσθαι δοκούντας, ὅσον ἠττᾶσθαι τῆς ἀρετῆς ὁμολογούντας. ἀποδούσης δὲ τῆς βουλῆς πάλιν ἐκείνῳ τὸ κρίναι καὶ διαιτῆσαι ταῦτα, χρήματα λαβὼν παρὰ τῶν Φαλερίων καὶ φιλίαν πρὸς ἅπαντας Φαλίσκους θέμενος ἀνεχώρησεν.

XI. Οἱ δὲ στρατιῶται διαρπάσειν προσδοκῆσαντες τοὺς Φαλερίους, ὡς ἐπανήλθον εἰς Ῥώμην κεναῖς χερσί, κατηγοροῦν τοῦ Καμίλλου πρὸς τοὺς ἄλλους πολίτας ὡς μισοδήμου καὶ φθονήσαντος ὠφελῆθῆναι τοῖς πένησιν. ἐπεὶ δὲ τὸν περὶ τοῦ διοικισμοῦ νόμον οἱ δήμαρχοι προθέντες

CAMILLUS

his arms behind his back, and put rods and scourges in the hands of the boys, that they might chastise the traitor and drive him back into the city.

The Falerians had just become aware of the teacher's treachery, and the whole city, as was natural, was filled with lamentation over a calamity so great. Men and women alike rushed distractedly to the walls and gates, when lo! there came the boys, bringing their teacher back stripped, bound, and maltreated, while they called Camillus their saviour, their father, and their god. On this wise not only the parents of the boys, but the rest of the citizens as well, when they beheld the spectacle, were seized with admiration and longing for the righteousness of Camillus. In haste they held an assembly and sent envoys to him, entrusting him with their lives and fortunes. These envoys Camillus sent to Rome. Standing in the Senate, they declared that the Romans, by esteeming righteousness above victory, had taught them to love defeat above freedom; not so much because they thought themselves inferior in strength, as because they confessed themselves vanquished in virtue. On the Senate's remanding to Camillus the decision and disposition of the matter, he took a sum of money from the Falerians, established friendship with all the Faliscans, and withdrew.

XI. But the soldiers thought to have had the sacking of Falerii, and when they came back to Rome empty-handed, they denounced Camillus to the rest of the citizens as a hater of the common people, and as begrudging to the poor the enjoyment of their rightful booty. And when the tribunes once more put forward the law for the division of the city

PLUTARCH'S LIVES

αὐθις ἐπὶ τὴν ψήφον ἐκάλουν τὸν δῆμον, ὁ δὲ Κάμιλλος οὐδεμιᾶς ἀπεχθείας οὐδὲ παρρησίας
 φεισάμενος ἐφάνη μάλιστα πάντων ἐκβιαζό-
 -2 ἀπεψηφίσαντο, τὸν δὲ Κάμιλλον δι' ὀργῆς εἶχον,
 ὥστε καὶ δυστυχήσαντος αὐτοῦ περὶ τὰ οἰκεία (τῶν γὰρ υἱῶν ἀπέβαλε τὸν ἕτερον νοσήσαντα)
 μηδὲν οἰκτῶ τῆς ὀργῆς ὑφέσθαι. καίτοι τὸ
 πάθος οὐ μετρίως ἤνεγκεν ἀνὴρ ἡμερος φύσει καὶ
 χρηστός, ἀλλὰ τῆς δίκης προγεγραμμένης αὐτῷ
 διὰ πένθος οἰκούρει καθειργμένος μετὰ τῶν γυναικῶν.

XII. Ὁ μὲν οὖν κατήγορος ἦν Λεύκιος Ἀπου-
 λήσιος, ἔγκλημα δὲ κλοπῆς περὶ τὰ Τυρρηνικὰ
 χρήματα. καὶ δῆτα καὶ θύραι τινὲς ἐλέγοντο χαλκαὶ παρ' αὐτῷ φανῆναι τῶν αἰχμαλώτων. ὁ
 δὲ δῆμος ἐξηρέθιστο καὶ δῆλος ἦν ἐκ πάσης
 προφάσεως κατ' αὐτοῦ τῇ ψήφῳ χρησόμενος.
 2 οὕτως οὖν συναγαγὼν τοὺς τε φίλους καὶ τοὺς
 συστρατευσαμένους οὐκ ὀλίγους τὸ πλῆθος ὄντας, ἔδειτο μὴ περιιδεῖν αὐτὸν ἀδίκως ἐπ' αἰτίαις 135
 πονηραῖς ὀφλόντα καὶ καταγέλαστον ὑπὸ τῶν
 ἐχθρῶν γενόμενον. ἐπεὶ δ' οἱ φίλοι βουλευσά-μενοι καὶ διαλεχθέντες ἑαυτοῖς ἀπεκρίναντο, πρὸς
 μὲν τὴν κρίσιν αὐτῷ μηδὲν οἶσθαι βοηθήσειν, τὴν
 δὲ ζημίαν ὀφλόντι συνεκτίσειν, οὐκ ἀνασχόμενος
 ἔγνω μεταστῆναι καὶ φυγεῖν ἐκ τῆς πόλεως πρὸς
 3 ὀργήν. ἀσπασάμενος οὖν τὴν γυναῖκα καὶ τὸν
 υἱὸν ἐπὶ τῆς οἰκίας προῆει σιωπῇ μέχρι τῆς
 πύλης· ἐκεῖ δὲ ἐπέστη, καὶ μεταστραφεὶς ὀπίσω

CAMILLUS

and summoned the people to vote upon it, then Camillus, shunning no hatred nor any boldness of utterance, was manifestly the chief one in forcing the multitude away from its desires. Therefore, they did indeed reject the law, much against their will, but they were wroth with Camillus, so that even when he met with domestic affliction and lost one of his two sons by sickness, their wrath was in no wise softened by pity. And yet he set no bounds to his sorrow, being by nature a gentle and kindly man, but even after the indictment against him had been published, he suffered his grief to keep him at home, in close seclusion with the women of his household.

XII. Well, then, his accuser was Lucius Apuleius, and the charge was theft of Tuscan goods. It was said, forsooth, that certain bronze doors belonging to the booty had been seen at his house. But the people were exasperated, and would plainly lay hold of any pretext whatever for condemning him. So then he assembled his friends and comrades in arms, who were many in number, and begged them not to suffer him to be convicted on base charges and to be made a laughing-stock by his foes. When his friends had laid their heads together and discussed the case, they answered that, as regarded his trial, they thought they could be of no help to him; but if he were punished with a fine, they would help him pay it. This he could not endure, and in his wrath determined to depart the city and go into exile. Accordingly, after he had kissed his wife and son good-bye, he went from his house in silence as far as the gate of the city. There he stopped, turned himself about, and stretching his hands out towards καὶ τὰς χεῖρας ἀνατείνας πρὸς τὸ Καπιτώλιον ἐπεύξατο τοῖς θεοῖς, εἰ μὴ δικαίως, ἀλλ' ὕβρει δήμου καὶ φθόνῳ προπηλακιζόμενος ἐκπίπτει, ταχὺ Ῥωμαίους μετανοῆσαι καὶ πᾶσιν ἀνθρώποις φανεροὺς γενέσθαι δεομένους αὐτοῦ καὶ ποθοῦντας Κάμιλλον.

PLUTARCH'S LIVES

XIII. Ἐκεῖνος μὲν οὖν, ὥσπερ ὁ Ἀχιλλεύς, ἀρὰς θέμενος ἐπὶ τοὺς πολίτας καὶ μεταστὰς ὠφλε τὴν δίκην ἐρήμην, τίμημα μυρίων καὶ πεντακισχιλίων ἀσσαρίων ἔχουσαν.

Ὁ γίνεταί πρὸς ἀργυρίου λόγον χίλιαι δραχμαὶ καὶ πεντακόσiai· ἀσσάριον γὰρ ἦν τὸ ἀργύριον, καὶ τὸ δεκάχαλκον οὕτως ἐκαλεῖτο δηνάριον.

2 Οὐδεὶς δ' ἐστὶ Ῥωμαίων, ὃς οὐ νομίζει τὰς εὐχὰς τοῦ Καμίλλου ταχὺ τὴν Δίκην ὑπολαβεῖν, καὶ γενέσθαι τιμωρίαν αὐτῷ τῆς ἀδικίας οὐκ ἠδείαν, ἀλλ' ἀνιარάν, ὀνομαστὴν δὲ καὶ περιβόητον· τοσαύτη περιῆλθε τὴν Ῥώμην νέμεσις, καὶ τοσοῦτον ἄγων φθόρον καὶ κίνδυνον ἅμα μετ' αἰσχύνης ἐφάνη καιρὸς ἐπὶ τὴν πόλιν, εἴτε τῆς τύχης οὕτω συνελθούσης, εἴτε καὶ θεῶν τινος ἔργον ἐστὶ μὴ παραμελεῖν ἀρετῆς ἀχαριστουμένης.

XIV. Πρῶτον μὲν οὖν ἔδοξε σημεῖον γεγονέναι κακοῦ μεγάλου προσιόντος ἢ Ἰουλίου τοῦ τιμητοῦ τελευτή· μάλιστα γὰρ δὴ Ῥωμαῖοι σέβονται καὶ νομίζουσιν ἱεράν τὴν τῶν τιμητῶν ἀρχήν. δεύτερον δὲ πρὸ τῆς Καμίλλου φυγῆς ἀνὴρ οὐκ ἐπιφανῆς μὲν οὐδὲ ἐκ τῆς βουλῆς, ἐπιεικῆς δὲ καὶ χρηστὸς εἶναι δοκῶν, Μάρκος Καιδίκιος, ἀνήνεγκε πρὸς τοὺς χιλιάρχους πρᾶγμα φροντίδος ἄξιον.

CAMILLUS

the Capitol, prayed the gods that, if with no justice, but through the wantonness of the people and the abuse of the envious he was now being driven from his country, the Romans might speedily repent, and show to all men that they needed and longed for Camillus.

XIII. After he had thus, like Achilles,¹ invoked curses upon his fellow citizens, he removed from out the city. His case went by default, and he was fined fifteen thousand asses.

This sum, reduced to our money, is fifteen hundred drachmas. For the as was the current copper coin, and the silver coin worth ten of these pieces was for that reason called the denarius, which is equivalent to the drachma.

Now there is no Roman who does not believe that justice followed hard upon the imprecations of Camillus, and that he received a requital for his wrongs which was not pleasing to him, but painful; certainly it was notable and famous. For a great retribution encompassed Rome, and a season of dire destruction and peril not unmixed with disgrace assailed the city, whether fortune so brought things to pass, or whether it is the mission of some god not to neglect virtue that goes unrequited.

XIV. In the first place, then, it seemed to be a sign of great evil impending when Julius the censor died. For the Romans specially revere and hold sacred the office of censor. In the second place, before Camillus went into exile, a man who was not conspicuous, to be sure, but who was esteemed honest and kindly, Marcus Caedicius, informed the military tribunes of a matter well worth their atten-

¹ Iliad i. 407-412.

2 ἔφη γὰρ ἐν τῇ παρωχημένῃ νυκτὶ καθ' ὁδὸν βαδίζων, ἦν Καινὴν ὀνομάζουσι, κληθεὶς ὑπὸ τινος φθεγξαμένου μεταστραφῆναι, καὶ θεάσασθαι μὲν οὐδένα, φωιῆς δὲ μείζονος ἢ κατ' ἀνθρωπίνην ἀκούσαι τάδε λεγούσης· “Ἄγε, Μάρκε Καιδίκιε, λέγε πρὸς τοὺς ἄρχοντας ἕωθεν ἔλθων ὀλίγου χρόνου Γαλάτας προσδέχεσθαι.” ταῦτ' ἀκούσαντες οἱ χιλιάρχοι γέλωτα καὶ παιδιὰν ἐποιούνητο. καὶ μετ' ὀλίγον συνέβη τὰ περὶ Κάμλλον.

XV. Οἱ δὲ Γαλάται τοῦ Κελτικοῦ γένους ὄντες ὑπὸ πλήθους λέγονται τὴν αὐτῶν ἀπολιπόντες, οὐκ οὔσαν αὐτάρκη τρέφειν ἅπαντας, ἐπὶ γῆς ζήτησιν ἐτέρας ὀρμῆσαι· μυριάδες δὲ πολλαὶ γενόμενοι νέων ἀνδρῶν καὶ μαχίμων, ἔτι δὲ πλείους παίδων καὶ γυναικῶν ἄγοντες, οἱ μὲν ἐπὶ τὸν βόρειον Ὀκεανὸν ὑπερβαλόντες τὰ Ῥιπαῖα ὄρη ῥυῆναι καὶ τὰ ἔσχατα τῆς Εὐρώπης κατα-

2 σχεῖν, οἱ δὲ μεταξὺ Πυρρήνης ὄρους καὶ τῶν Ἄλπεων ἰδρυθέντες ἐγγὺς Σενώνων καὶ Κελτορίων κατοικεῖν χρόνον πολὺν· ὄψ' ἔδ' οἴνου γευσάμενοι τότε πρῶτον ἐξ Ἰταλίας διακομισθέντος οὕτως ἄρα θαυμάσαι τὸ πόμα καὶ πρὸς τὴν καινότητα τῆς ἡδονῆς ἔκφρονες γενέσθαι πάντες, ὥστε ἀράμενοι τὰ ὄπλα καὶ γενεὰς ἀναλαβόντες ἐπὶ τὰς Ἄλπεις φέρεσθαι καὶ ζητεῖν ἐκείνην τὴν γῆν, ἣ τοιοῦτον καρπὸν ἀναδίδωσι, τὴν δ' ἄλλην ἄκαρπον ἠγεῖσθαι καὶ ἀνήμερον.

3 Ὁ δ' εἰσαγαγὼν τὸν οἶνον πρὸς αὐτοὺς καὶ παροξύνας ἐπὶ τὴν Ἰταλίαν μάλιστα καὶ πρῶτος Ἄρρων λέγεται γενέσθαι Τυρρηνός, ἀνὴρ ἐπιφανὴς καὶ φύσει μὲν οὐ πονηρός, συμφορᾷ δὲ τοιαύτη χρησάμενος. ἦν ἐπίτροπος παιδὸς ὀρφανοῦ

CAMILLUS

tion. He said that during the night just passed, as he was going along the so-called New Street, he was hailed by someone in clear tones, and turned, and saw no man, but heard a voice louder than man's saying: "Hark thou! Marcus Caedicius, early in the morning go and tell the magistrates that within a little time they must expect the Gauls." At this story the tribunes mocked and jested. And a little while after, Camillus suffered his disgrace.

XV. The Gauls were of the Celtic stock, and their numbers were such, as it is said, that they abandoned their own country, which was not able to sustain them all, and set out in quest of another. They were many myriads of young warriors, and they took along with them a still greater number of women and children. Some of them crossed the Rhipaeen mountains, streamed off towards the northern ocean, and occupied the remotest parts of Europe; others settled between the Pyrenees and the Alps, near the Senones and the Celtorians, and dwelt there a long time. But at last they got a taste of wine, which was then for the first time brought to them from Italy. They admired the drink so much, and were all so beside themselves with the novel pleasure which it gave, that they seized their arms, took along their families, and made off to the Alps, in quest of the land which produced such fruit, considering the rest of the world barren and wild.

The man who introduced wine to them, and was first and foremost in sharpening their appetite for Italy, is said to have been Arron, a Tuscan. He was a man of prominence, and by nature not prone to evil, but had met with the following misfortune. He was guardian of an orphan boy who was heir to πλούτῳ τε πρώτου τῶν πολιτῶν καὶ θαυματομένου κατ' εἶδος, ὄνομα Λουκούμῳνος. οὗτος ἐκ 136

 νέου παρὰ τῷ Ἀρρωνί δίαιταν εἶχε, καὶ μειράκιον
 ὧν οὐκ ἀπέλιπε τὴν οἰκίαν, ἀλλὰ προσεποιεῖτο
 4 χαίρειν συνῶν ἐκείνῳ. καὶ πολὺν χρόνον ἐλάνθανε διεφθαρκῶς αὐτοῦ τὴν γυναῖκα καὶ διεφθαρμένους
 ὑπ' ἐκείνης· ἤδη δὲ πόρρω τοῦ πάθους ἀμφοτέρων
 γεγονότων καὶ μήτ' ἀφείναι τὴν ἐπιθυμίαν μήτε
 κρύπτειν ἔτι δυναμένων, ὁ μὲν νεανίσκος ἐπεχείρει
 φανερώς ἀποσπάσας ἔχειν τὴν ἄνθρωπον, ὁ δ'
 ἀνὴρ ἐπὶ δίκην ἐλθὼν καὶ κρατούμενος πλήθει
 φίλων καὶ χρημάτων δαπάναις ὑπὸ τοῦ Λουκού-μῳνος ἐξέλιπε τὴν ἑαυτοῦ· καὶ πυθόμενος τὰ τῶν Γαλατῶν ἤκεν εἰς αὐτοὺς καὶ καθηγήσατο τῆς εἰς
 τὴν Ἰταλίαν στρατείας.

XVI. Οἱ δ' ἐμβalόντες εὐθύς ἐκράτουν τῆς
 χώρας ὅσῃν τὸ παλαιὸν οἱ Τυρρηνοὶ κατεῖχον,
 ἀπὸ τῶν Ἄλπεων ἐπ' ἀμφοτέρας καθήκουσαν τὰς
 θαλάσσας, ὡς καὶ τοῦνομα μαρτυρεῖ τῷ λόγῳ.
 τὴν μὲν γὰρ βόρειον θάλατταν Ἀδρίαν καλοῦσιν
 ἀπὸ Τυρρηνικῆς πόλεως Ἀδρίας, τὴν δὲ πρὸς
 νότον κεκλιμένην ἄντικρυς Τυρρηνικὸν πέλαγος.
 2 πᾶσα δ' ἐστὶ δενδρόφυτος αὕτη καὶ θρέμμασιν
 εὐβοτος καὶ κατάρρυτος ποταμοῖς. καὶ πόλεις
 εἶχεν ὀκτωκαίδεκα καλὰς καὶ μεγάλας καὶ κατεσκευασμένας πρὸς τε χρηματισμὸν ἐργατικῶς καὶ
 πρὸς δίαιταν πανηγυρικῶς, ἃς οἱ Γαλάται τοὺς Τυρρηνοὺς ἐκβαλόντες αὐτοὶ κατέσχον. ἀλλὰ
 ταῦτα μὲν ἐπράχθη συχνῶ τινι χρόνῳ πρότερον.

XVII. Οἱ δὲ Γαλάται τότε πρὸς πόλιν Τυρρηνίδα Κλούσιον στρατεύσαντες ἐπολιόρκουν. οἱ
 δὲ Κλουσίνοι καταφυγόντες ἐπὶ τοὺς Ῥωμαίους

CAMILLUS

the greatest wealth in the city, and of amazing beauty, Lucumo by name. This Lucumo from his youth up had lived with Arron, and when he came to man's estate, did not leave his house, but pretended to take delight in his society. He had, however, corrupted Arron's wife, and been corrupted by her, and for a long time kept the thing a secret. But at last the passions of both culprits increased upon them so that they could neither put away their desires nor longer hide them, wherefore the young man made open attempt to remove the woman and have her to wife. Her husband brought the case to trial, but was defeated by Lucumo, owing to the multitude of his friends and his lavish outlays of money, and forsook the city. Learning about the Gauls, he betook himself to them, and led them on their expedition into Italy.

XVI. The Gauls burst in and straightway mastered all the country which the Tuscans occupied of old, namely, that stretching from the Alps down to both seas, the names of which bear witness to the story. For the northern sea is called Adria, from the Tuscan city of Adria; the southern is called outright the Tuscan Sea. This whole country is studded with trees, has excellent pasturage for flocks and herds, and an abundance of rivers. It had also eighteen cities, large and fair, well equipped for profitable commerce and for sumptuous living. These the Gauls took away from the Tuscans and occupied themselves. But this happened long before the time of which I speak.

XVII. At this time the Gauls had marched against the Tuscan city of Clusium and were laying siege to it. The Clusians applied for assistance to the

PLUTARCH'S LIVES

- ἤτήσαντο πρέσβεις παρ' αὐτῶν καὶ γράμματᾶ
 πρὸς τοὺς βαρβάρους. ἐπέμφθησαν δὲ τοῦ
 Φαβίων γένους τρεῖς ἄνδρες εὐδόκιμοι καὶ τιμὰς
 2 μεγάλας ἔχοντες ἐν τῇ πόλει. τούτους ἐδέξαντο
 μὲν οἱ Γαλάται φιλανθρώπως διὰ τὸ τῆς Ῥώμης
 ὄνομα, καὶ παυσάμενοι τῆς πρὸς τὰ τεῖχη μάχης
 εἰς λόγους συνῆλθον. πυνθανομένων δ' αὐτῶν, ὃ τι παθόντες ὑπὸ Κλουσίνων ἤκοιεν ἐπὶ τὴν
 πόλιν, γελάσας ὁ βασιλεὺς τῶν Γαλατῶν Βρέννος,
 "Ἄδικοῦσιν ἡμᾶς," ἔφη, "Κλουσίνοι γῆν καὶ
 χώραν ὀλίγην μὲν γεωργεῖν δυνάμενοι, πολλὴν δὲ
 κατέχειν ἀξιούντες καὶ μὴ μεταδιδόντες ἡμῖν
 3 ξένοις οὔσι καὶ πολλοῖς καὶ πένησι. ταῦτα δ'
 ἄρα καὶ ὑμᾶς ἠδίκουν, ὧ Ῥωμαῖοι, πρότερον μὲν
 Ἄλβανοὶ καὶ Φιδηναῖται καὶ Ἀρδεᾶται, νῦν δὲ
 Οὐήιοι καὶ Καπηναῖται καὶ πολλοὶ Φαλίσκων καὶ Οὐλοούσκων· ἐφ' οὓς ὑμεῖς στρατεύοντες, εἰ μὴ
 μεταδιδῶσιν ὑμῖν τῶν ἀγαθῶν, ἀνδραποδίζεσθε
 καὶ λεηλατεῖτε καὶ κατασκάπτετε τὰς πόλεις
 αὐτῶν, οὐδὲν οὐδὲ ὑμεῖς γε δεινὸν οὐδὲ ἄδικον
 4 ποιοῦντες, ἀλλὰ τῷ πρεσβυτάτῳ τῶν νόμων
 ἀκολουθοῦντες, ὃς τῷ κρείττονι τὰ τῶν ἡττόνων
 δίδωσιν ἀρχόμενος ἀπὸ τοῦ θεοῦ καὶ τελευτῶν
 εἰς τὰ θηρία. καὶ γὰρ τούτοις ἐκ φύσεως ἔνεστι
 τὸ ζητεῖν πλέον ἔχειν τὰ κρείττονα τῶν ὑποδεεστέρων. Κλουσίνοισι δὲ παύσασθε πολιορκουμένους οἰκτείροντες, ὡς μὴ καὶ Γαλάτας διδάξητε
 χρηστοὺς καὶ φιλοικτίρμονας γενέσθαι τοῖς ὑπὸ Ῥωμαίων ἀδικουμένοις."
- 5 Ἐκ τούτων τῶν λόγων ἔγνωσαν οἱ Ῥωμαῖοι
 τὸν Βρέννον ἀσυμβάτως ἔχοντα, καὶ παρελ-

CAMILLUS

Romans, and begged them to send ambassadors in their behalf with a letter to the Barbarians. So there were sent three men of the Fabian gens who were of great repute and honour in the city. The Gauls received them courteously, because of the name of Rome, ceased their attacks upon the city walls, and held conference with them. When they were asked what wrong they had suffered at the hands of the Clusians that they had come up against their city, Brennus, the king of the Gauls, burst into a laugh and said: "The Clusians wrong us in that, being able to till only a small parcel of earth, they yet are bent on holding a large one, and will not share it with us, who are strangers, many in number and poor. This is the wrong which ye too suffered, O Romans, formerly at the hands of the Albans, Fidenates, and Ardeates, and now lately at the hands of the Veientes, Capenates, and many of the Faliscans and Volscians. Ye march against these peoples, and if they will not share their goods with you, ye enslave them, despoil them, and raze their cities to the ground; not that in so doing ye are in any wise cruel or unjust, nay, ye are but obeying that most ancient of all laws which gives to the stronger the goods of his weaker neighbours, the world over, beginning with God himself and ending with the beasts that perish. For these too are so endowed by nature that the stronger seeks to have more than the weaker. Cease ye, therefore, to pity the Clusians when we besiege them, that ye may not teach the Gauls to be kind and full of pity towards those who are wronged by the Romans."

From this speech the Roman envoys saw that there was no coming to terms with Brennus, and so they

PLUTARCH'S LIVES

θύοντες εἰς τὸ Κλούσιον ἐθάρρουν καὶ παρώρ-μων τοὺς ἄνδρας ἐπέξελθεῖν τοῖς βαρβύροις
 μετ' αὐτῶν, εἴτε τὴν ἐκείνων ἀλκὴν καταμαθεῖν εἴτε τὴν ἑαυτῶν ἐπιδείξασθαι θέλοντες.
 ἐκδρομῆς δὲ τῶν Κλουσίων καὶ μάχης παρὰ τὰ
 τείχη γενομένης εἰς τῶν Φαβίων, Κόϊντος Ἄμ-βουστος, ἵππον ἔχων ἐλήλασεν ἀντίος ἀνδρὶ
 μεγάλῳ καὶ καλῷ Γαλάτῃ πολὺ προῖππεύοντι
 τῶν ἄλλων, ἀγνοηθεὶς ἐν ἀρχῇ διὰ τὸ τὴν σύνοδον
 ὀξεῖαν γενέσθαι καὶ τὰ ὄπλα περιλάμποντα τὴν
 6 ὄψιν ἀποκρύπτειν. ὡς δ' ἐπικρατήσας τῇ μάχῃ
 καὶ καταβαλὼν ἐσκύλευε τὸν ἄνθρωπον, γνωρίσας
 ὁ Βρέννος αὐτὸν ἐπεμαρτύρατο θεοῦς, ὡς παρὰ 137
 τὰ κοινὰ καὶ νενομισμένα πᾶσιν ἀνθρώποις ὅσια
 καὶ δίκαια πρεσβευτοῦ μὲν ἦκοντος, πολέμια δὲ
 εἰργασμένου. καταπαύσας δὲ τὴν μάχην αὐτίκα Κλουσίνοὺς μὲν εἶα χαίρειν, ἐπὶ δὲ τὴν Ῥώμην
 τὸν στρατὸν ἤγεεν. οὐ βουλόμενος δὲ δόξαι τὴν
 ἀδικίαν αὐτοῖς ὥσπερ ἰσμένοις γεγονέναι καὶ δεομένοις προφάσεως, ἔπεμψεν ἐξαιτῶν ἐπὶ τιμωρία τὸν ἄνδρα καὶ προῆγεν ἅμα σχολαίως.

XVIII. Ἐν δὲ Ῥώμῃ τῆς βουλῆς συναχθείσης ἄλλοι τε πολλοὶ τοῦ Φαβίου κατηγοροῦν, καὶ
 τῶν ἱερέων οἱ καλούμενοι Φητιαλεῖς ἐνήγον
 ἐπιθειάζοντες καὶ κελεύοντες τὸ τῶν πεπραγμένων ἄγος τὴν σύγκλητον εἰς ἓνα τὸν αἴτιον
 τρέψασαν ὑπὲρ τῶν ἄλλων ἀφοσιώσασθαι.

Τούτους τοὺς Φητιαλεῖς Πομπήλιος Νομάς, βασιλέων ἡμερώτατος γενόμενος καὶ δικαιοτάτος,
 κατέστησε φύλακας μὲν εἰρήνης, ἐπιγνώμονας δὲ
 καὶ βεβαιωτὰς αἰτιῶν, αἱ σὺν δίκῃ πόλεμον συνάπτουσι.

CAMILLUS

slipped into Clusium, and emboldened and incited its citizens to sally out against the Barbarians with them, either because they wished to discover the prowess of those warriors or to display their own. The Clusians made a sally, and in the fight which raged along the walls one of the Fabii, Quintus Ambustus, drove his horse straight at a stately and handsome Gaul who was riding far out in front of the rest. At first he was not recognized, because the conflict came swiftly to pass and his dazzling armour hid his face. But when he had conquered and unhorsed his foe and was stripping his arms from him, then Brennus recognized him, and called upon the gods to witness how, contrary to the general practice of all mankind, which was deemed just and holy, he had come as an ambassador, but had wrought as an enemy. Then, putting a stop to the battle, he straightway let the Clusians alone, and led his host against Rome. But not wishing to have it thought that his people were rejoiced at the outrage, and only wanted some pretext for war, he sent and demanded the offender for punishment, and in the meantime advanced but slowly.

XVIII. When the Senate convened in Rome, many denounced the Fabii, and especially the priests called Fetiales were instant in calling upon the Senate in the name of all the gods to turn the curse of what had been done upon the one guilty man, and so to make expiation for the rest.

These Fetiales were instituted by Numa Pompilius, gentlest and justest of kings, to be the guardians of peace, as well as judges and determiners of the grounds on which war could justly be made.

PLUTARCH'S LIVES

- 2 Τῆς δὲ βουλῆς ἐπὶ τὸν δῆμον ἀνενεγκαμένης τὸ πρᾶγμα καὶ τῶν ἱερέων ὅμοια τοῦ Φαβίου κατηγορούντων, οὕτω περιῦβρισαν οἱ πολλοὶ τὰ θεῖα καὶ κατεγέλασαν, ὥστε καὶ χιλιάρχον ἀποδείξαι τὸν Φάβιον μετὰ τῶν ἀδελφῶν. οἱ δὲ Κελτοὶ πυθόμενοι ταῦτα καὶ χαλεπῶς φέροντες οὐδὲν ἐμποδῶν ἐποιοῦντο τῆς σπουδῆς, ἀλλ'
- 3 ἐχώρουσαν παντὶ τάχει· καὶ πρὸς τὸ πλῆθος αὐτῶν καὶ τὴν λαμπρότητα τῆς παρασκευῆς καὶ βίαν καὶ θυμὸν ἐκπεπληγμένων τῶν διὰ μέσου, καὶ τὴν τε χώραν ἀπολωλέναι πᾶσαν ἤδη καὶ τὰς πόλεις εὐθύς ἀπολείσθαι δοκούντων, παρ' ἐλπίδας οὐδὲν ἠδίκουν οὐδ' ἐλάμβανον ἐκ τῶν ἀγρῶν, ἀλλὰ καὶ παρὰ τὰς πόλεις ἐγγύς παρεξιόντες ἐβόων ἐπὶ τὴν Ῥώμην πορευέσθαι καὶ μόνοις πολεμεῖν Ῥωμαίοις, τοὺς δ' ἄλλους φίλους ἐπίστασθαι.
- 4 Τοιαύτη δὲ χρωμένων ὀρμῇ τῶν βαρβάρων ἐξήγον οἱ χιλιάρχοι τοὺς Ῥωμαίους ἐπὶ τὸν ἀγῶνα, πλήθει μὲν οὐκ ἐνδεεῖς (ἐγένοντο γὰρ ὀπλίται τετρακισμυρίων οὐκ ἐλάσσους), ἀνασκήτους δὲ τοὺς πολλοὺς καὶ τότε πρῶτον ἀπτομένους ὄπλων. ἔτι δ' ἐξημέλητο τὰ τῶν θεῶν αὐτοῖς οὔτε καλλιερήσασιν οὔτε μάντις ἢ πρὸ κινδύνου καὶ μάχης εἰκὸς ἦν ἐρομένοις.
- 5 οὐδενὸς δὲ ἦττον ἐπετάραττεν ἢ πολυαρχία τὰ πραττόμενα. καίτοι πρότερόν γε καὶ πρὸς ἐλάττονας ἀγῶνας εἴλοντο πολλὰκις μονάρχους, οὓς Δικτάτορας καλοῦσιν, οὐκ ἀγνοοῦντες, ὅσον ἐστὶν εἰς ἐπισφαλῆ καιρὸν ὄφελος μᾶλλον χρωμένους γνώμῃ πρὸς ἀνυπεύθυνον ἀρχὴν ἐν χερσὶ τῆν
- 6 δίκην ἔχουσαν εὐτακτεῖν. οὐχ ἥκιστα δὲ καὶ

CAMILLUS

The Senate referred the matter to the people, and although the priests with one accord denounced Fabius, the multitude so scorned and mocked at religion as to appoint him military tribune, along with his brothers. The Gauls, on learning this, were wroth, and suffered nothing to impede their haste, but advanced with all speed. What with their numbers, the splendour of their equipment, and their furious violence, they struck terror wherever they came. Men thought the lands about their cities lost already, and their cities sure to follow at once. But contrary to all expectation the enemy did them no harm, nor took aught from their fields, but even as they passed close by their cities shouted out that they were marching on Rome and warred only on the Romans, but held the rest as friends.

Against this onset of the Barbarians the military tribunes led the Romans forth to battle. They were not inferior in numbers, being no fewer than forty thousand men-at-arms, but most of them were untrained, and had never handled weapons before. Besides, they had neglected all religious rites, having neither sacrificed with good omens, nor consulted the prophets as was meet before the perils of battle. But what most of all confounded their undertakings was the number of their commanders. And yet before this, and on the brink of lesser struggles, they had often chosen a single commander, with the title of Dictator, not unaware how great an advantage it is, when confronting a dangerous crisis, to be of one mind in paying obedience to an authority which is absolute, and holds the scales of justice in its own hands. Moreover, their unfair treatment of Camillus

PLUTARCH'S LIVES

Κάμιλλος ἀγνωμονηθεὶς ἔβλαψε τὰ πράγματα, τοῦ μὴ πρὸς χάριν μηδὲ κολακεύοντας ἄρχειν φοβεροῦ γενομένου.

Προελθόντες οὖν ἀπὸ τῆς πόλεως σταδίου ἐνενήκοντα παρὰ τὸν Ἄλιαν ποταμὸν ἠύλισθησαν, οὐ πόρρω τοῦ στρατοπέδου τῷ Θύμβριδι συμφερόμενον. ἐνταῦθα δὲ τῶν βαρβάρων ἐπιφανέντων αἰσχροῦς ἀγωνισάμενοι δι' ἀταξίαν 7 ἐτράποντο. καὶ τὸ μὲν ἀριστερὸν κέρας εὐθύς ἐμβαλόντες εἰς τὸν ποταμὸν οἱ Κελτοὶ διέφθειραν· τὸ δὲ δεξιὸν ὑπεκκλίναν τὴν ἐπιφορὰν ἐκ τοῦ πεδίου πρὸς τοὺς λόφους ἤττον ἐξεκόπη· καὶ διεξέπεσον ἀπὸ τούτων εἰς τὴν πόλιν οἱ πολλοί. τοῖς δ' ἄλλοις, ὅσοι τῶν πολεμίων ἀπειπόντων πρὸς τὸν φόνον ἐσώθησαν, εἰς Οὐήτους αἱ φυγαὶ διὰ νυκτὸς ἦσαν, ὡς τῆς Ῥώμης οἰχομένης καὶ τῶν ἐκεῖ πάντων ἀπολωλότων.

XIX. Ἐγένετο δ' ἡ μάχη μετὰ τροπὰς θερινὰς περὶ τὴν πανσέληνον, ἧ καὶ πρότερον ἡμέρα μέγα πάθος συνέβη τὸ περὶ τοὺς Φαβίους· τριακόσιοι γὰρ ἐκ τοῦ γένους ἄνδρες ὑπὸ Τυρρηνῶν ἀνηρέθησαν. ἐκράτησε δὲ τὴν ἡμέραν ἀπὸ τῆς δευτέρας ἡττης Ἀλιάδα μέχρι νῦν καλεῖσθαι διὰ τὸν ποταμὸν.

Περὶ δ' ἡμερῶν ἀποφράδων, εἴτε χρή τίθεσθαι 138 τινας, εἴτε ὀρθῶς Ἡράκλειτος ἐπέπληξεν Ἡσιόδῳ τὰς μὲν ἀγαθὰς ποιουμένῳ, τὰς δὲ φαύλας, ὡς ἀγνωοῦντι φύσιν ἡμέρας ἀπάσης μίαν οὖσαν, 2 ἐτέρωθι διηπόρηται. τῇ δ' ὑποκειμένη γραφῇ τὸ μνημονεῦσαι παραδειγμάτων ὀλίγων ἴσως ἂν

CAMILLUS

was in no slight degree fatal to discipline, since it was now dangerous to hold command without paying regard to the pleasure and caprice of the people.

They advanced from the city about eleven miles, and encamped along the river Allia, not far from its confluence with the Tiber. There the Barbarians came suddenly upon them, and after a disorderly and shameful struggle, they were routed. Their left wing was at once driven into the river by the Gauls and destroyed; their right wing was less cut up, because it withdrew before the enemy's onset from the plain to the hills, from which most of them made their way back to the city. The rest, as many as escaped the enemy's hands, which were weary with slaughter, fled by night to Veii. They thought that Rome was lost and all her people slain.

XIX. The battle¹ took place just after the summer solstice when the moon was near the full, on the very day of a former great disaster, when three hundred men of the Fabian gens had been cut to pieces by the Tuscans. But the second defeat was so much the worse that the day on which it fell is called down to the present time "dies Alliensis," from the river.

Now concerning "dies nefasti," or unlucky days, whether we must regard some as such, or whether Heracleitus was right in rebuking Hesiod for calling some days good and some bad, in his ignorance that the nature of every day is one and the same,—this question has been fully discussed elsewhere. Still, even in what I am now writing, the mention of a few

¹ 390 B.C.

PLUTARCH'S LIVES

- ἀρμόσειε. τούτο μὲν τοίνυν Βοιωτοῖς Ἴπποδρομίου μηνός, ὡς δ' Ἀθηναῖοι καλοῦσιν Ἑκατομβαιῶνος, ἰσταμένου πέμπτη δύο λαβεῖν συνέβη νίκας ἐπιφανεστάτας, αἷς τοὺς Ἕλληνας ἠλευθέρωσαν, τὴν τε περὶ Λεῦκτρα καὶ τὴν ἐπὶ Κερησσῶ ταύτης πρότερον ἔτεσι πλείοσιν ἢ διακοσίοις, ὅτε
- 3 Λατταμῦαν καὶ Θεσσαλοὺς ἐνίκησαν. τούτο δ' αὖ πάλιν Πέρσαι μηνός Βοηδρομιῶνος ἕκτη μὲν ἐν Μαραθῶνι, τρίτη δ' ἐν Πλαταιαῖς ἄμα καὶ περὶ Μυκάλην ἠττήθησαν ὑπὸ τῶν Ἑλλήνων, πέμπτη δὲ φθίνοντος ἐν Ἀρβήλοις. οἱ δ' Ἀθηναῖοι καὶ τὴν περὶ Νάξου ἐνίκων ναυμαχίαν, ἧς Χαβρίας ἐστρατήγει, τοῦ Βοηδρομιῶνος περὶ τὴν πανσέληνον, ἐν δὲ Σαλαμῖνι περὶ τὰς εἰκάδας,
- 4 ὡς ἡμῖν ἐν τῷ Περὶ ἡμερῶν ἀποδέδεικται. ἐνήνοχε δὲ καὶ ὁ Θαρρηλιῶν μὴν τοῖς βαρβάροις ἐπιδήλως ἀτυχίας· καὶ γὰρ Ἀλέξανδρος ἐπὶ Γρανικῷ τοὺς βασιλέως στρατηγούς Θαρρηλιῶνος ἐνίκησε, καὶ Καρχηδόνιοι περὶ Σικελίαν ὑπὸ Τιμολέοντος ἠττῶντο τῇ ἐβδόμῃ φθίνοντος, περὶ ἣν δοκεῖ καὶ τὸ Ἴλιον ἄλῶναι, Θαρρηλιῶνος,¹ ὡς Ἐφορος καὶ Καλλισθένης καὶ Δαμάστης καὶ
- 5 Φύλαρχος ἱστορήκασιν. ἀνάπαλιν δ' ὁ Μεταγειτιῶν, ὃν Βοιωτοὶ Πάνεμον καλοῦσιν, τοῖς Ἕλλησιν οὐκ εὐμενῆς γέγονε. τούτου γὰρ τοῦ μηνός ἐβδόμῃ καὶ τὴν ἐν Κρανῶνι μάχην ἠττηθέντες ὑπ' Ἀντιπάτρου τελέως ἀπώλοντο, καὶ πρότερον ἐν Χαιρωνείᾳ μαχόμενοι πρὸς Φίλιππον ἠτύχησαν. τῆς δ' αὐτῆς ἡμέρας ταύτης ἐν τῷ Μεταγειτιῶνι κατὰ τὸν αὐτὸν ἐνιαυτὸν οἱ μετ' Ἀρχιδάμου διαβάντες εἰς Ἰταλίαν ὑπὸ τῶν ἐκεῖ βαρβάρων

¹ Θαρρηλιῶνος deleted by Bekker, after Reiske.

CAMILLUS

examples may not be amiss. To begin with, then, it was on the fifth day of the month of Hippodromius (which the Athenians call Hecatombaeon) that the Boeotians won two illustrious victories which set the Greeks free: that at Leuctra, and that at Ceresus more than two hundred years earlier, when they conquered Lattamyas and the Thessalians. Again, on the sixth day of the month of Boedromion the Greeks defeated the Persians at Marathon, on the third day at Plataea and Mycale together, and on the twenty-sixth day at Arbela. Moreover, it was about full moon of the same month that the Athenians won their sea-fight off Naxos, under the command of Chabrias, and about the twentieth, that at Salamis, as has been set forth in my treatise "On days." Further, the month of Thargelion has clearly been a disastrous one for the Barbarians, for in that month the generals of the King were conquered by Alexander at the Granicus, and on the twenty-fourth of the month the Carthaginians were worsted by Timoleon off Sicily. On this day, too, of Thargelion, it appears that Ilium was taken, as Ephorus, Callisthenes, Damastes, and Phylarchus have stated. Contrary-wise, the month of Metageitnion (which the Boeotians call Panemus) has not been favourable to the Greeks. On the seventh of this month they were worsted by Antipater in the battle of Crannon, and utterly undone; before this they had fought Philip unsuccessfully at Chaeroneia on that day of the month; and in the same year, and on the same day of Metageitnion, Archidamus and his army, who had crossed into Italy, were cut to pieces by the Barbarians there.

6 διεφθάρσαν. Καρχηδόνιοι δὲ τὴν ἐνάτην φθίνοντος ὡς τὰ πλεῖστα καὶ μέγιστα τῶν ἀτυχημάτων αὐτοῖς ἀεὶ φέρουσιν παραφυλάττουσιν.

Οὐκ ἀγνοῶ δ' ὅτι περὶ τὸν τῶν μυστηρίων καιρὸν αὐθις Θῆβαί τε κατεσκάφησαν ὑπὸ Ἀλεξάνδρου, καὶ μετὰ ταῦτα φρουρὰν Ἀθηναῖοι Μακεδόνων ἐδέξαντο περὶ αὐτὴν τὴν εἰκάδα τοῦ Βοηδρομιῶνος, ἣ τὸν μυστικὸν Ἰακχὸν ἐξάγουσιν. ὁμοίως δὲ Ῥωμαῖοι τῆς αὐτῆς ἡμέρας πρότερον μὲν ὑπὸ Κίμβρων τὸ μετὰ Καιπίωνος ἀπέβαλον στρατόπεδον, ὕστερον δὲ Λουκούλλου στρατηγούντος Ἀρμενίους καὶ Τιγράνην ἐνίκησαν. Ἄτταλος δ' ὁ βασιλεὺς καὶ Πομπηῖος Μάγνος ἐν τοῖς ἑαυτῶν γενεθλίοις ἀπέθανον. καὶ ὅλως ἐστὶ πολλοὺς ἐπ' ἀμφοτέρα ταῖς αὐταῖς χρησαμένους ἀποδείξαι περιόδους.

8 Ἀλλὰ Ῥωμαίοις αὕτη μία τῶν μάλιστα ἀποφράδων ἐστὶ, καὶ δι' αὐτὴν ἐκάστου μηνὸς ἕτεραι δύο, τῆς πρὸς τὸ συμβᾶν εὐλαβείας καὶ δεισιδαιμονίας ἐπὶ πλείον, ὥσπερ εἶωθε, ρυείσης. ταῦτα μὲν οὖν ἐν τῷ Περὶ αἰτιῶν Ῥωμαϊκῶν ἐπιμελέστερον διήρηται.

XX. Μετὰ δὲ τὴν μάχην ἐκείνην εἰ μὲν εὐθὺς ἐπηκολούθησαν οἱ Γαλάται τοῖς φεύγουσιν, οὐδὲν ἂν ἐκώλυσε τὴν Ῥώμην ἄρδην ἀναιρεθῆναι καὶ πάντας ἀπολέσθαι τοὺς ἐν αὐτῇ καταλειφθέντας· τοσοῦτον οἱ φεύγοντες ἐνειργάζοντο δεῖμα τοῖς ὑποδεχομένοις, καὶ τοσαύτης πάλιν ἐνεπίμπλαντο
2 ταραχῆς καὶ παραφροσύνης. νυνὶ δ' ἀπιστία τοῦ μεγέθους οἱ βάρβαροι τῆς νίκης καὶ πρὸς εὐπάθει-

CAMILLUS

The Carthaginians also regard with fear the twenty-second of this month, because it has ever brought upon them the worst and greatest of their misfortunes.

I am not unaware that, at about the time when the mysteries are celebrated, Thebes was razed to the ground for the second time by Alexander, and that afterwards the Athenians were forced to receive a Macedonian garrison on the twentieth of Boedromion, the very day on which they escort the mystic Iacchus forth in procession. And likewise the Romans, on the self-same day, saw their army under Caepio destroyed by the Cimbri, and later, when Lucullus was their general, conquered Tigranes and the Armenians. Both King Attalus and Pompey the Great died on their own birth-days. In short, one can adduce many cases where the same times and seasons have brought opposite fortunes upon the same men.

But this day of the Allia is regarded by the Romans as one of the unluckiest, and its influence extends over two other days of each month throughout the year, since in the presence of calamity, timidity and superstition often overflow all bounds. However, this subject has been more carefully treated in my "Roman Questions."¹

XX. Now had the Gauls, after this battle, followed hard upon the fugitives, naught would have hindered Rome from being utterly destroyed and all those who remained in her from perishing, such was the terror which the fugitives infused into the occupants of the city, and with such confusion and delirium were they themselves once more filled. But as it was, the Barbarians could not realize the magnitude of their

¹ Morals, pp. 269 f.

αν ἐκ τοῦ περιχαροῦς ἅμα καὶ νεμήσεις τῶν
 ἐαλωκότων ἐν τῷ στρατοπέδῳ χρημάτων τραπόμενοι, τῷ μὲν ἐκπίπτουσι τῆς πόλεως ὄχλω
 ῥαστώνην φυγῆς παρέσχον, ἐλπίσαι δ' ἔτι καὶ
 παρασκευάσασθαι τοῖς ὑπομένουσι. τὴν γὰρ
 ἄλλην πόλιν προέμενοι τὸ Καπιτώλιον ἐφράξαντο
 3 βέλεσι καὶ διατειχίσμασιν. ἐν πρώτοις δὲ τῶν
 ἱερῶν ἃ μὲν εἰς τὸ Καπιτώλιον ἀνεσκευάσαντο,
 τὸ δὲ πῦρ τῆς Ἑστίας αἱ παρθένοι μετὰ τῶν
 ἱερῶν ἔφευγον ἀρπασάμεναι.

139

Καίτοι τινὲς οὐδὲν εἶναι τὸ φρουρούμενον ὑπ'
 αὐτῶν ἕτερον ἢ πῦρ ἀφθιτον ἱστοροῦσι, Νομᾶ
 τοῦ βασιλέως καταστήσαντος ὡς ἀρχὴν ἀπάντων
 4 σέβεσθαι. κινητικώτατον γὰρ ἐν τῇ φύσει τοῦτο· κινήσεις δὲ τις ἢ σύν τινι κινήσει πάντως ἢ γένε-
 σις· τὰ δ' ἄλλα τῆς ὕλης μόρια θερμότητος
 ἐπιλιπούσης ἀργὰ κείμενα καὶ νεκροῖς εἰκότα
 ποθεῖ τὴν τοῦ πυρὸς δύναμιν, ὡς ψυχὴν, καὶ
 προσελθούσης ἀμῶς γέ πως ἐπὶ τὸ δράν τι καὶ
 πάσχειν τρέπεται. τοῦτ' οὖν ἅτε δὴ περιττὸν
 ἄνδρα τὸν Νομᾶν καὶ λόγον ἔχοντα ταῖς Μούσαις
 συνεῖναι διὰ σοφίαν ἐξοσιῶσαι καὶ φρουρεῖν
 ἀκοίμητον ἐν εἰκόνι τῆς τὰ πάντα κοσμοῦσης
 5 αἰδίου δυνάμεως. οἱ δὲ τὸ μὲν πῦρ, ὥσπερ παρ'
 Ἑλλησι, πρὸ ἱερῶν αἰθεσθαι καθάρσιον, ἄλλα
 δὲ τὰ ἐντὸς ἀθέατα κρύπτεσθαι πᾶσι, πλὴν ταύ-ταις ταῖς παρθένοις, ἃς Ἑστιάδας ἐπονομάζουσι.

CAMILLUS

victory, and in the excess of their joy, turned to revelry and the distribution of the good things captured in their enemy's camp. For this reason the throngs who were for abandoning the city had ample time for flight, and those who were for remaining plucked up hope and prepared to defend themselves. Abandoning the rest of the city, they fenced the Capitol with ramparts and stocked it with missiles. But their first care was for their sacred things, most of which they carried away to the Capitol; the fire of Vesta, however, was snatched up and carried off by the vestal virgins in their flight, along with the other sacred things entrusted to their care.

However, some writers state that these virgins have watch and ward over nothing more than the ever-living fire, which Numa the King appointed to be worshipped as the first cause of all things. For fire produces more motion than anything else in nature, and all birth is a mode of motion, or is accompanied by motion. All other portions of matter, in the absence of heat, lie inert and dead, yearning for the force of fire to inform them, like a spirit, and on its accession in any manner soever, they become capable of acting and being acted upon. This principle of fire, then, Numa, who was an extraordinary man, and whose wisdom gave him the repute of holding converse with the Muses, is said to have hallowed and ordered to be kept sleepless, that it might image forth the ever-living force which orders the universe aright. Others say that this fire is kept burning before the sacred things by way of purification, as among the Greeks, and that other objects within the temple are kept hidden from the gaze of all except these virgins, whom they call

PLUTARCH'S LIVES

καὶ πλείστος μὲν λόγος κατείχε τὸ Τρωϊκὸν ἐκεῖνο Παλλάδιον ἀποκεῖσθαι δι' Αἰνείου κομισθὲν εἰς Ἰταλίαν. εἰσὶ δ' οἱ τὰ Σαμοθράκια μυθολογοῦντες Δάρδανον μὲν εἰς Τροίαν ἐξενεγκάμενον ὀργιάσαι καὶ καθιερώσαι κτίσαντα τὴν πόλιν, Αἰνείαν δὲ περὶ τὴν ἄλωσιν ἐκκλέψαντα 6 διασῶσαι μέχρι τῆς ἐν Ἰταλίᾳ κατοικήσεως. οἱ δὲ προσποιούμενοι πλέον ἐπίστασθαι τι περὶ τούτων δύο φασὶν οὐ μεγάλους ἀποκεῖσθαι πίθους, ὧν τὸν μὲν ἀνεφγότα καὶ κενόν, τὸν δὲ πλήρη καὶ κατασεσημασμένον, ἀμφοτέρους δὲ ταῖς παναγέσι μόναις παρθένοις ὄρατοὺς εἶναι. ἄλλοι δὲ τούτους διεψεῦσθαι νομίζουσι τῷ τὰ πλείστα τῶν ἱερῶν τότε τὰς κόρας ἐμβαλούσας εἰς πίθους δύο κρύψαι κατὰ γῆς ὑπὸ τὸν νεὼν τοῦ Κυρίνου, καὶ τὸν τόπον ἐκεῖνον ἔτι καὶ νῦν τῶν Πιθίσκων φέρεσθαι τὴν ἐπωνυμίαν.

XXI. Τὰ δὲ κυριώτατα καὶ μέγιστα τῶν ἱερῶν αὐταὶ λαβοῦσαι φυγῆ παρὰ τὸν ποταμὸν ἐποιούντο τὴν ἀποχώρησιν. ἐνταῦθα Λεύκιος Ἀλβίνιος¹ ἀνὴρ δημοτικὸς ἐν τοῖς φεύγουσιν ἔτυχε τέκνα νήπια καὶ γυναῖκα μετὰ χρημάτων ἀναγκαίων ἐφ' ἀμάξης ὑπεκκομίζων. ὡς δ' εἶδε τὰς παρθένας ἐν τοῖς κόλποις φερούσας τὰ τῶν θεῶν ἱερὰ θεραπείας ἐρήμους παραπορευομένας καὶ κακοπαθούσας, ταχὺ τὴν γυναῖκα μετὰ τῶν παίδων καὶ τῶν χρημάτων καθελὼν ἀπὸ τῆς ἀμάξης ἐκείναις παρέδωκεν ἐπιβῆναι καὶ δια-

¹ Ἀλβίνιος S and Livy, v. 40: Ἀλβίνος.

CAMILLUS

Vestals. And a very prevalent story had it that the famous Palladium of Troy was hidden away there, having been brought to Italy by Aeneas. There are some who say that it is the Samothracian images which are hidden there, and they tell the tale of Dardanus bringing these to Troy, after he had founded that city, and consecrating them there with celebration of their rites; and of Aeneas, at the capture of Troy, stealing them away and preserving them until he settled in Italy. Others still, pretending to have larger knowledge in these matters, say that two small jars are stored away there, of which one is open and empty, and the other full and sealed up, and that both are visible only to the holy virgins. But others think that these knowing ones have been led astray by the fact that the virgins, at the time of which I am now speaking, cast the most of their sacred treasures into two jars, and hid them underground in the temple of Quirinus, whence that place, down to the present time, has the name of "Doliola," or "Jars."

XXI. However that may be, these virgins took the choicest and most important of the sacred objects and fled away along the river. There it chanced that Lucius Albinus, a man of the common people, was among the fugitives, carrying off his wife and little children, with the most necessary household goods, upon a waggon. When he saw the virgins with the sacred symbols of the gods in their bosoms, making their way along unattended and in great distress, he speedily took his wife, with the children and the household goods, down from the waggon, and suffered the virgins to mount upon it and make

PLUTARCH'S LIVES

2 φυγεῖν εἰς τινα τῶν Ἑλληνίδων πόλεων. τὴν μὲν οὖν Ἀλβινίου πρὸς τὸ θεῖον εὐλάβειαν καὶ τιμὴν ἐν τοῖς ἐπισφαλεστάτοις καιροῖς ἐκφανῆ γενομένην οὐκ ἄξιον ἦν ἀμνημόνευτον παρελθεῖν.

Οἱ δὲ τῶν ἄλλων θεῶν ἱερεῖς οἳ τε γηραιοὶ τῶν ὑπατικῶν καὶ θριαμβικῶν ἀνδρῶν τὴν μὲν πόλιν ἐκλιπεῖν οὐχ ὑπέμειναν, ἱεράς δὲ καὶ λαμπρὰς ἀναλαβόντες ἐσθήτας, ἐξηγουμένου Φαβίου τοῦ ἀρχιερέως, ἐπευξάμενοι τοῖς θεοῖς, ὡς ἑαυτοὺς ὑπὲρ τῆς πατρίδος τῷ δαίμονι καθιερούντες, ἐπὶ τῶν ἐλεφαντίνων δίφρων ἐν ἀγορᾷ ἐκάθητο¹ κεκοσμημένοι, τὴν ἐπιούσαν τύχην ὑπομένοντες.

XXII. Τρίτῃ δ' ἀπὸ τῆς μάχης ἡμέρᾳ παρῆν ὁ Βρέννος ἄγων ἐπὶ τὴν πόλιν τὸ στράτευμα· καὶ τὰς τε πύλας εὐρῶν ἀνεωγμένας καὶ τὰ τεῖχη φυλάκων ἔρημα, πρῶτον μὲν ἔδεισεν ἐνέδραν καὶ δόλον, ἀπιστῶν οὕτω παντάπασιν ἀπειρηκέναι τοὺς Ῥωμαίους. ἐπεὶ δ' ἔγνω τὸ ἀληθές, εἰσελάσας διὰ τῆς Κολλίνης πύλης εἶλε τὴν Ῥώμην ἐξήκοντα καὶ τριακοσίων ἐτῶν πλείονα βραχὺ χρόνον ἀπὸ τῆς κτίσεως ἔχουσαν, εἴ τω πιστὸν ἀποσώζεσθαι τινα τῶν χρόνων ἀκρίβειαν, οἷς καὶ περὶ νεωτέρων ἄλλων ἀμφισβήτησιν ἢ 140
2 σύγχυσις ἐκείνη παρέσχε. τοῦ μέντοι πάθους αὐτοῦ καὶ τῆς ἀλώσεως ἔοικεν ἀμυδρά τις εὐθύς εἰς τὴν Ἑλλάδα φήμη διελθεῖν. Ἡρακλείδης γὰρ ὁ Ποντικὸς οὐ πολὺ τῶν χρόνων ἐκείνων ἀπολειπόμενος ἐν τῷ Περὶ ψυχῆς συγγράμματι φησιν ἀπὸ τῆς ἐσπέρας λόγον κατασχεῖν, ὡς στρατὸς ἐξ Ὑπερβορέων ἐλθὼν ἔξωθεν ἠρήκοι πόλιν Ἑλληνίδα Ῥώμην, ἐκεῖ που κατῳκημένην περὶ

¹ ἐκάθητο with all MSS. and editors: καθήντο.

CAMILLUS

their escape to a Greek city. This pious act of Albinus, and the conspicuous honour which he showed the gods in a season of the greatest danger, could not well be passed over in silence.

But the priests of the other gods, and the aged men who had been consuls and celebrated triumphs, could not endure to leave the city. So they put on their robes of state and ceremony, following the lead of Fabius, the pontifex maximus, and vowed the gods that they would devote themselves to death in their country's behalf. Then they sat themselves down, thus arrayed, on their ivory chairs in the forum, and awaited their fate.

XXII. On the third day after the battle, Brennus came up to the city with his army. Finding its gates open and its walls without defenders, at first he feared a treacherous ambush, being unable to believe that the Romans were in such utter despair. But when he realised the truth, he marched in by the Colline gate, and took Rome. This was a little more than three hundred and sixty years from her foundation, if one can believe that any accurate chronology has been preserved in this matter, when that of even later events is disputed, owing to the confusion caused by this very disaster. However, it would seem that some vague tidings of the calamity and capture of the city made their way at once to Greece. For Heracleides Ponticus, who lived not long after that time, in his treatise "On the soul," says that out of the West a story prevailed, how an army of Hyperboreans had come from afar and captured a Greek city called Rome, situated somewhere on the shores

PLUTARCH'S LIVES

- 3 τὴν μεγάλην θάλασσαν. οὐκ ἂν οὖν θαυμάσαιμι μυθώδη καὶ πλασματίαν ὄντα τὸν Ἡρακλείδην ἀληθεῖ λόγῳ τῷ περὶ τῆς ἀλώσεως ἐπικομπάσαι τοὺς Ὑπερβορέους καὶ τὴν μεγάλην θάλατταν. Ἀριστοτέλης δὲ ὁ φιλόσοφος τὸ μὲν ἀλῶναι τὴν πόλιν ὑπὸ Κελτῶν ἀκριβῶς δῆλός ἐστιν ἀκηκοώς, τὸν δὲ σώσαντα Λεύκιον εἰναί φησιν· ἦν δὲ Μάρκος, οὐ Λεύκιος, ὁ Κάμιλλος. ἀλλὰ ταῦτα μὲν εἰκασμῷ λέλεκται.
- 4 Κατασχῶν δὲ τὴν Ῥώμην ὁ Βρέννος τῷ μὲν Καπιτωλίῳ φρουρὰν περιέστησεν, αὐτὸς δὲ καταβαίνων δι' ἀγορᾶς ἐθαύμαζε τοὺς προκαθημένους ἄνδρας ἐν κόσμῳ καὶ σιωπῇ θεώμενος, ὡς οὐθ' ὑπεξανέστησαν ἐπιόντων πολεμίων οὐτ' ὄψιν ἢ χροᾶν ἔτρεψαν, ἀλλὰ ῥαθύμως καὶ ἀδεῶς ἐγκεκλιμένοι τοῖς σκίπτωσιν, οὓς ἐφόρου,¹ καὶ προσ-
- 5 βλέποντες ἀλλήλοις ἠσύχαζον. ἦν οὖν θαῦμα τοῖς Γαλάταις πρὸς τὴν ἀτοπίαν, καὶ πολὺν χρόνον ὀκνοῦντες ἄψασθαι καὶ προσελθεῖν ὡς κρείττοσι διηπόρου. ἐπεὶ δὲ τολμήσας τις ἐξ αὐτῶν ἐγγὺς παρέστη Παπειρίῳ Μάρκῳ καὶ προσαγαγὼν τὴν χεῖρα πρῶως ἤψατο τοῦ γενείου καὶ κατήγε τὴν ὑπὴνην βαθεῖαν οὔσαν, ὁ μὲν Παπεῖριος τῇ βακτηρίᾳ τὴν κεφαλὴν αὐτοῦ πατάξας συνέτριψεν, ὁ δὲ βάρβαρος σπασάμενος
- 6 τὴν μάχαιραν ἀπέκτεινεν ἐκείνου. ἐκ δὲ τούτου καὶ τοὺς λοιποὺς ἀνήρουν προσπεσόντες, καὶ τῶν ἄλλων ὅσοις ἐπιτύχοιεν διεχρῶντο, καὶ τὰς οἰκίας ἐπόρθουν ἐφ' ἡμέρας πολλὰς ἄγοντες καὶ φέροντες, εἶτα κατεπίμπρασαν καὶ κατέσκαπτον ὀργιζόμενοι τοῖς ἔχουσι τὸ Καπιτώλιον, ὅτι

¹ ἐφόρου with S: ἔφεροι.

CAMILLUS

of the Great Sea. Now I cannot wonder that so fabulous and fictitious a writer as Heracleides should deck out the true story of the capture of Rome with his "Hyperboreans" and his "Great Sea." But Aristotle the philosopher clearly had accurate tidings of the capture of the city by the Gauls, and yet he says that its saviour was Lucius, although the fore-name of Camillus was not Lucius, but Marcus. However, these details were matters of conjecture.

When he had occupied Rome, Brennus surrounded the Capitol with a guard. He himself went down through the forum, and was amazed to see the men sitting there in public state and perfect silence. They neither rose up to meet their enemies when they approached, nor did they change countenance or colour, but sat there quietly, at ease and without fear, leaning on their staves and gazing into one another's faces. The Gauls were amazed and perplexed at the unwonted sight, and for a long time hesitated to approach and touch them, regarding them as superior beings. But at last one of them, plucking up his courage, drew near Papirius Marcus, and stretching out his hand, gently grasped his chin and stroked his long beard, whereupon Papirius, with his staff, smote him a crushing blow on the head. Then the Barbarian drew his sword and killed him. After that, they fell upon the rest and slew them, made away with every one else they met, sacked and plundered the houses of the city for many days together, and finally burned them down and levelled them with the ground, in their wrath at the defenders of the Capitol. For these would not

PLUTARCH'S LIVES

καλούντων αὐτῶν οὐχ ὑπήκουον, ἀλλὰ καὶ προσβάλλουσι πληγὰς ἔδοσαν ἀπὸ τοῦ διατειχίσματος ἀμυνόμενοι. διὰ ταῦτα μὲν οὖν ἐλυμήναντο τὴν πόλιν καὶ προσδιέφθειραν τοὺς ἀλισκομένους, ὁμοίως μὲν ἄνδρας καὶ γυναῖκας, ὁμοίως δὲ πρεσβύτας καὶ παῖδας.

XXIII. Τῆς δὲ πολιορκίας μῆκος λαμβανούσης ἐπισιτισμοῦ τοῖς Γαλάταις ἔδει· καὶ διελόντες ἑαυτοὺς οἱ μὲν τῷ βασιλεῖ παραμένοντες ἐφρούρου τὸ Καπιτώλιον, οἱ δὲ τὴν χώραν περιιόντες ἐλεηλάτου καὶ τὰς κώμας ἐπόρθουν προσπίπτοντες, οὐχ ὁμοῦ πάντες, ἄλλοι δ' ἄλλη καθ' ἡγεμονίας καὶ συντάγματα, τῷ μέγα φρονεῖν ὑπὸ τῶν εὐτυχημάτων καὶ δεδιέναι μηδὲν ἀποσκιδνάμενοι. τὸ δὲ πλεῖστον αὐτῶν καὶ μάλιστα συντεταγμένον ἐχώρει πρὸς τὴν Ἀρδεατῶν πόλιν, ἐν ἣ διέτριβε Κάμιλλος ἀργῶν ταῖς πράξεσι μετὰ τὴν φυγὴν καὶ ιδιωτεύων, ἐλπίδας δὲ λαμβάνων καὶ διαλογισμοὺς οὐχὶ τὸ λαθεῖν καὶ διαφυγεῖν τοὺς πολεμίους ἀγαπῶντος ἀνδρός, ἀλλ' ὅπως, εἰ παραγένοιτο καιρὸς, ἀμυνεῖται σκοποῦντος. διὸ καὶ τοὺς Ἀρδεάτας ὁρῶν πλήθει μὲν ἱκανοὺς ὄντας, ἐνδεεῖς δὲ τόλμης δι' ἀπειρίαν καὶ μαλακίαν τῶν στρατηγῶν, ἐνέβαλε λόγον εἰς τοὺς νέους πρῶτον, ὡς οὐ χρὴ τὴν Ῥωμαίων ἀτυχίαν ἀνδρείαν Κελτῶν νομίζειν, οὐδ' ἂ κακῶς φρονήσασι συνέβη παθεῖν ἐκείνοις ἔργα τῶν οὐδὲν εἰς τὸ νικῆσαι παρασχόντων, ἀλλὰ τύχης ἐπίδειξιν ἡγεῖσθαι. καλὸν μὲν οὖν εἶναι καὶ διὰ κινδύνων ἀπώσασθαι πόλεμον ἀλλόφυλον καὶ βαρβαρικόν, ᾧ τοῦ κρατεῖν πέρας, ὥσπερ τῷ πυρί, διαφθαρῆναι τὸ νικώμενον· οὐ μὴν ἀλλὰ surrender at their summons, but when they were attacked, actually repulsed their foes from the ramparts with loss. Therefore the Gauls inflicted every outrage upon the city, and put to the sword all whom they captured, men and women, old and young alike.

CAMILLUS

XXIII. The siege lasted a long time, and the Gauls began to lack provisions. They therefore divided their forces. Some remained with their king and watched the Capitol, others ravaged the country round about, falling upon the villages and sacking them, not all together in one body, but scattered about by commands and companies, some here, some there, moved by their successes to great confidence and the fear of nothing. The largest and best disciplined body of them marched upon the city of Ardea, where Camillus was staying since his exile. He lived in complete retirement and privacy, it is true, but cherished the hopes and plans not of a man who eagerly desired to escape the notice and hands of the enemy, but of one who sought to avenge himself upon them if occasion offered. Wherefore, seeing that the Ardeans were of sufficient numbers, but lacked courage, through the inexperience and effeminacy of their generals, he began to reason with the young men first, to the effect that the mishap of the Romans ought not to be laid to the valour of the Gauls, nor the sufferings of that infatuated people to the prowess of men who did not deserve their victory, but rather to the dictates of fortune. It was a fine thing, he said, even at dangerous risks, to repel the attack of an alien and barbarous folk, whose only end in getting the mastery was, as in the work of fire, the utter destruction of what it conquered. But καὶ θαρροῦσι καὶ προθυμομένοις αὐτοῖς ἀκίνδυνον ἐν καιρῷ τὴν νίκην παρέξειν.

Τούτους τοὺς λόγους τῶν νέων δεξαμένων ἐπὶ τοὺς ἄρχοντας ἦει καὶ τοὺς προβούλους τῶν Ἀρδεατῶν ὁ Κάμιλλος. ὡς δὲ κάκεινους συνέπεισεν, ὥπλισε 141
τοὺς ἐν ἡλικίᾳ πάντας καὶ συνέειχε τοῦ τείχους ἐντός, ἀγνοεῖσθαι βουλόμενος ὑπὸ τῶν πολεμίων
5 ἐγγὺς ὄντων. ἐπεὶ δὲ τὴν χώραν ἵππασάμενοι καὶ βαρεῖς ὄντες ὑπὸ πλήθους τῶν ἀγομένων καὶ φερομένων ἀμελῶς καὶ ὀλιγώρως ἐν τῷ πεδίῳ κατεστρατοπέδευσαν, ἐκ δὲ τούτου νύξ ἐπήλθε μεθύουσιν αὐτοῖς καὶ σιωπῇ κατέσχε τὸ στρατόπεδον, πυθόμενος ταῦτα παρὰ τῶν κατασκόπων ὁ Κάμιλλος ἐξῆγε τοὺς Ἀρδεάτας· καὶ διελθὼν καθ' ἡσυχίαν τὸν μεταξὺ τόπον περὶ μέσας νύκτας προσέμιξε τῷ χάρακι κραυγῇ τε χρώμενος πολλῇ καὶ ταῖς σάλπιγξι πανταχόθεν ἑκταράτων ἀνθρώπους κακῶς ὑπὸ μέθης καὶ μόλις ἐκ τῶν ὑπνῶν ἀναφέροντας πρὸς τὸν θόρυβον.
6 ὀλίγοι μὲν οὖν ἀνανήψαντες ἐν τῷ φόβῳ καὶ διασκευασάμενοι τοὺς περὶ τὸν Κάμιλλον ὑπέστησαν, ὥστ' ἀμυνόμενοι πεσεῖν τοὺς δὲ πλείστους ἔτι κρατουμένους ὑπνῶ καὶ οἴνῳ καταλαμβάνοντες ἀνόπλους ἔκτεινον. ὅσοι δὲ νυκτὸς ἀπέδρασαν ἐκ τοῦ χάρακος οὐ πολλοί, τούτους μεθ' ἡμέραν σποράδας ἐν τῇ χώρᾳ διαφερομένους ἐπελαύνοντες ἵππεῖς διέφθειρον.

XXIV. Ἡ δὲ φήμη ταχὺ διαγγέλλουσα τὴν πρᾶξιν ἐπὶ τὰς πόλεις ἐξεκαλεῖτο πολλοὺς τῶν ἐν ἡλικίᾳ συνισταμένους, μάλιστα δὲ Ῥωμαίων ὅσοι διαφυγόντες ἐκ τῆς ἐπ' Ἀλία μάχης ἐν Οὐητοῖς ἦσαν· καὶ ᾠδύροντο κατὰ σφᾶς αὐτούς, in the present case, if they were bold and zealous, he would find occasion to give them a victory without any danger.

CAMILLUS

After gaining the support of the young men, Camillus went to the rulers and councillors of Ardea, and when he had won them over also, he armed all who were of age for service and kept them together within the walls, that they might not be perceived by the enemy, who were near. These had scoured the country round about, and encamped in the plain, without care or concern, and heavily encumbered with their abundant booty. When night had fallen upon them, putting an end to their carousals, and silence reigned throughout their camp, Camillus, acquainted with this by his scouts, led forth the Ardeans. Passing quietly over the intervening space, they reached the camp about midnight, and with shouts and trumpet blasts on every hand confounded the men, who were scarcely brought to their senses by the din, heavy as they were with drunkenness and sleep. A few of them were sobered by fear, armed themselves, and made resistance to Camillus and his men, so that they fell fighting; but most were still mastered by sleep and wine when they were fallen upon and slain without their arms. A few only ran from the camp, under cover of darkness, and when day came, were seen straggling about the fields, but horsemen pursued them and cut them to pieces.

XXIV. Rumour quickly carried news of this exploit to the neighbouring cities, and called to arms many of those who were of age for service, particularly the Romans who had made their escape from the battle on the Allia, and were in Veii. These

PLUTARCH'S LIVES

“Οἷον ἡγεμόνα τῆς Ῥώμης ὁ δαίμων ἀφελόμενος Ἄρδεάτας ἐκόσμησε τοῖς Καμίλλου κατορθώμασιν, ἡ δὲ γειναμένη καὶ θρέψασα τοιοῦτον
 2 ἄνδρα πόλις οἴχεται καὶ ἀπόλωλεν. ἡμεῖς δ’ ἀπορία στρατηγῶν ἀλλότρια τείχη περιβαλλόμενοι καθήμεθα προέμενοι τὴν Ἰταλίαν. φέρε, πέμψαντες Ἄρδεάτας ἀπαιτῶμεν τὸν ἑαυτῶν στρατηγόν, ἢ λαβόντες αὐτοὶ τὰ ὄπλα πρὸς ἐκείνον βαδίζωμεν· οὐκέτι γὰρ ἔστι φυγὰς οὐδ’ ἡμεῖς πολῖται πατρίδος οὐκ οὔσης, ἀλλὰ κρατουμένης ὑπὸ τῶν πολεμίων.” ταῦτ’ ἔδοξε καὶ πέμψαντες ἐδέοντο τοῦ Καμίλλου δέχεσθαι τὴν
 3 ἀρχήν. ὁ δὲ οὐκ ἔφη πρότερον ἢ τοὺς ἐν τῷ Καπιτωλίῳ πολίτας ἐπιψηφίσασθαι κατὰ τὸν νόμον. ἐκείνους γὰρ ἡγεῖσθαι πατρίδα σωζομένους, καὶ κελεύουσι μὲν ὑπακούειν προθύμως, ἀκόντων δὲ μηδὲν πολυπραγμονήσειν. τῆς μὲν οὖν εὐλαβείας καὶ καλοκαγαθίας τὸν Κάμιλλον ἐθαύμασαν. ἦν δ’ ἀπορία τοῦ ταῦτα διαγγελοῦντος εἰς τὸ Καπιτώλιον· μᾶλλον δ’ ὅλως ἀδύνατον ἐδόκει τῶν πολεμίων ἐχόντων τὴν πόλιν ἄγγελον εἰς τὴν ἀκρόπολιν παρελθεῖν.

XXV. Ἦν δέ τις ἐν τοῖς νέοις Πόντιος Κομίνιος, τῶν μέσων κατὰ γένος πολιτῶν, δόξης δὲ καὶ τιμῆς ἔραστής· οὗτος ὑπέστη τὸν ἄθλον ἐκούσιος. καὶ γράμματα μὲν οὐκ ἔλαβε πρὸς τοὺς ἐν τῷ Καπιτωλίῳ, μὴ ληφθέντος αὐτοῦ φωράσωσιν οἱ πολέμιοι δι’ αὐτῶν τοῦ Καμίλλου τὴν διάνοιαν, ἐσθῆτα δὲ φαύλην ἔχων καὶ φελλοὺς ὑπ’ αὐτῇ κομίζων τὴν μὲν ἄλλην ὁδὸν ἡμέρας ἀδεῶς διήλθεν, ἐγγὺς δὲ τῆς πόλεως lamented among themselves, saying: "Of what a leader has heaven robbed Rome in Camillus, only to adorn Ardea with his victories! The city which bore and reared such a hero is dead and gone, and we, for lack of generals, sit pent up within alien walls, and see Italy ruined before our very eyes. Come! let us send to Ardea and demand our own general, or take our arms and go ourselves to him! For he is no longer an exile, nor are we citizens, now that our country is no more, but is mastered by the enemy." So said, so done, and they sent and asked Camillus to take the command. But he refused to do so before the citizens on the Capitol had legally elected him. They were preserving the country, as he thought, and if they had commands for him, he would gladly obey, but against their wishes he would meddle with nothing whatsoever. This noble restraint on the part of Camillus was much admired, but it was hard to see how the matter could be referred to the Capitol. Nay rather, it seemed utterly impossible, while the enemy held the city, for a messenger to elude them and reach the acropolis.

CAMILLUS

XXV. But there was a certain young man, Pontius Cominius by name, who was, in spite of his ordinary birth, a lover of glory and honour. He volunteered to attempt the task. He took no letter with him to the defenders of the Capitol, lest this, in the event of his capture, should help the enemy to discover the purpose of Camillus; but under the coarse garments which he wore, he carried some pieces of cork. The greater part of his journey was made by daylight and without fear; but as night came on he found himself near the city.

PLUTARCH'S LIVES

γενόμενος ἤδη σκοταῖος, ἐπεὶ κατὰ γέφυραν οὐκ ἦν τὸν ποταμὸν περᾶσαι τῶν βαρβάρων παρα-2 φυλαπτόντων, τὴν μὲν ἐσθήτα τῇ κεφαλῇ περισπειράσας οὐ πολλὴν οὐδὲ βαρεῖαν, τοῖς δὲ
 φελλοῖς ἐφείς τὸ σῶμα καὶ συνεπικουφίζων τῷ¹
 περαιούσθαι πρὸς τὴν πόλιν ἐξέβη. καὶ παραλ-λάττων ἀεὶ τοὺς ἐγρηγορότας, τοῖς φέγγεσι καὶ
 τῷ θορύβῳ τεκμαιρόμενος, ἐβάδιζε πρὸς τὴν Καρμεντίδα πύλην, ἣ πλείστην εἶχεν ἡσυχίαν,
 καὶ μάλιστα κατ' αὐτὴν ὄρθιος ὁ τοῦ Καπιτωλίου
 λόφος ἀνέστηκε καὶ πέτρα κύκλῳ πολλὴ καὶ
 τραχεῖα περιπέφυκε· δι' ἧς ἀνέβη λαθῶν καὶ
 προσέμιξε τοῖς φυλάττουσι τὸ διατείχισμα
 χαλεπῶς καὶ μόλις κατὰ τὸ λαγαρώτατον.
 3 ἀσπάσαμενος δὲ τοὺς ἄνδρας καὶ φράσας ἑαυτὸν
 ἐξ ὀνόματος, ἀναληφθεὶς ἐχώρει πρὸς τοὺς ἐν τέλει
 τῶν Ῥωμαίων. ταχὺ δὲ συγκλήτου γενομένης 142
 παρελθὼν τὴν τε νίκην ἀπήγγειλε τοῦ Καμίλλου
 πρότερον οὐ πυθομένοις, καὶ τὰ δοκούντα τοῖς στρατιώταις διηγείτο· καὶ παρεκάλει τῷ Καμίλλῳ βεβαιῶσαι τὴν ἀρχήν, ὡς μόνῳ πεισο-4 μένων ἐκείνῳ τῶν ἔξω πολιτῶν. οἱ δ' ἀκού-σαντες καὶ βουλευσάμενοι τὸν τε Κάμιλλον ἀπο-δεικνύουσι δικτάτορα, καὶ τὸν Πόντιον αὐθις ἀποπέμπουσι τὴν αὐτὴν ὁδὸν ὁμοίως ἀγαθῇ τύχῃ
 χρησάμενον. ἔλαθε γὰρ τοὺς πολεμίους καὶ τὰ
 παρὰ τῆς βουλῆς ἀπήγγειλε τοῖς ἔξω Ῥωμαίοις.

XXVI. Ἐκείνων δὲ δεξαμένων προθύμως ἀφι-κόμενος ὁ Κάμιλλος ἤδη μὲν ἐν ὄπλοις δισμυρίους
 κατέλαβε, πλείονας δὲ συνήγεν ἀπὸ τῶν συμ-

¹ τῷ Bekker supplies ἐν with Bryan.

CAMILLUS

He could not cross the river by the bridge, since the Barbarians were guarding it, so he wrapped his light and scanty garments about his head, fastened the corks to his body, and thus supported, swam across, came out on the other side, and went on towards the city. Always giving a wide berth to those of the enemy who were watchful and wakeful, as he judged by their fires and noise, he made his way to the Carmental gate, where there was the most quiet, at which the Capitoline hill was most sheer and steep, and which was girt about by a huge and jagged cliff. Up this he mounted unperceived, and finally reached, with great pains and difficulty, the sentries posted where the wall was lowest. Hailing them, and telling them who he was, he was pulled up over the wall, and taken to the Roman magistrates. The Senate quickly convening, he appeared before it, announced the victory of Camillus, about which they had not heard, and explained to them the will and pleasure of his fellow-soldiers. He exhorted them to confirm Camillus in his command, since he was the only man whom the citizens outside would obey. When the Senate had heard his message and deliberated upon it, they appointed Camillus dictator, and sent Pontius back again by the way he had come, wherein he repeated his former good fortune. For he eluded the enemy's notice and brought the Senate's message to the Romans outside the city.

XXVI. These gave eager welcome to the tidings, so that when Camillus came, he found twenty thousand men already under arms. He collected

PLUTARCH'S LIVES

μάχων καὶ παρεσκευάζετο πρὸς τὴν ἐπίθεσιν. οὕτω μὲν ἠρέθη δικτάτωρ ὁ Κάμιλλος τὸ δεύτερον καὶ πορευθεὶς εἰς Οὐήτους ἐνέτυχε τοῖς στρατιώταις καὶ συνήγε πλείους ἀπὸ τῶν συμμάχων ὡς ἐπιθησόμενος τοῖς πολεμίοις.¹

Ἐν δὲ τῇ Ῥώμῃ τῶν βαρβάρων τινὲς ἐκείνη κατὰ τύχην παρεξιώντες, ἧ διὰ νυκτὸς ὁ Πόντιος προσέβη τῷ Καπιτωλίῳ, καταμαθόντες πολλαχῆ μὲν ἵχνη ποδῶν καὶ χειρῶν, ὡς ἀντελαμβάνετο καὶ περιεδράττετο, πολλαχῆ δὲ τῶν ἐπιπεφυκῶν τοῖς κρημνοῖς ἀποτριβὰς καὶ περιολισθήσεις τῶν
 2 γεωδῶν, φράζουσι τῷ βασιλεῖ. κάκεινος ἐπέλθων καὶ θεασάμενος τότε μὲν ἠσύχαζεν, ἐσπέρας δὲ τοὺς ἐλαφροτάτους τοῖς σώμασι καὶ πεφυκότας ὀρειβατεῖν μάλιστα τῶν Κελτῶν συναγαγών, “Τὴν μὲν ὁδόν,” εἶπεν, “ἡμῖν ἐφ’ ἑαυτοὺς ἀγνωσμένην οἱ πολέμοι δεικνύουσιν ὡς οὐτ’ ἀπόρευτος οὔτε ἄβατος ἀνθρώποις ἐστίν, αἰσχύνῃ δὲ πόλλῃ τὴν ἀρχὴν ἔχοντας ἐλλείπειν πρὸς τὸ τέλος καὶ προέσθαι τὸν τόπον ὡς ἀνάλωτον, αὐτῶν τῶν πολεμίων ἧ ληπτὸς ἐστὶ διδασκόντων. ἧ γὰρ ἐνὶ προσβῆναι ῥάδιον, οὐδὲ πολλοῖς καθ’ ἓνα δύσκολον, ἀλλὰ καὶ ῥώμη καὶ βοήθεια πολλὴ μετ’ ἀλλήλων ἐπιχειροῦσι. δωρεαὶ δὲ καὶ τιμαὶ πρέπουσαι τῆς ἀνδραγαθίας ἐκάστῳ δοθῆσονται.”

XXVII. Τοιαῦτα τοῦ βασιλέως διαλεχθέντος ὑπέστησαν οἱ Γαλάται προθύμως, καὶ περὶ μέσας νύκτας ἐπιβάντες ἅμα πολλοὶ τῆς πέτρας still more from the allies, and made preparations for his attack. Thus Camillus was chosen dictator for the second time, and proceeding to Veii, he put himself at the head of the soldiers there, and collected more from the allies, with the purpose of attacking the enemy.

¹ Οὕτω . . . πολεμίοις deleted by Bekker, after Reiske.

CAMILLUS

But in Rome, some of the Barbarians chanced to pass by the spot where Pontius had made his way by night up to the Capitol, and noticed in many places the marks made by his hands and feet in clambering up, and many places also where the plants that grew upon the rocks had been torn away, and the earth displaced. They advised their king of this, and he too came and made inspection. At the time he said nothing, but when evening came, he assembled the nimblest men and the best mountain-climbers of the Gauls and said to them: "The enemy have shown us that there is a way up to them of which we knew not, and one which men can traverse and tread. It would be a great shame for us, after such a beginning as we have made, to fail at the end, and to give the place up as impregnable, when the enemy themselves show us where it can be taken. For where it is easy for one man to approach it, there it will be no difficult matter for many to go one by one, nay, they will support and aid one another greatly in the undertaking. Gifts and honours befitting his valour shall be given to every man."

XXVII. So spake their king, and the Gauls eagerly undertook to do his will. About midnight a large band of them scaled the cliff and made

PLUTARCH'S LIVES

- ἐχώρου ἄνω μετὰ σιωπῆς, ἐμφυόμενοι τοῖς
 χωρίοις ἀποτόμοις οὔσι καὶ χαλεποῖς, οὐ μὴν
 ἀλλὰ μᾶλλον ἢ προσεδοκήθη πειρωμένων αὐτῶν
 2 προσιεμένοις καὶ παρείκουσιν, ὥστε τοὺς πρῶτούς ἀψαμένους τῶν ἄκρων καὶ διασκευασα-μένους ὅσον οὐκ ἤδη τοῦ προτειχίσματος ἀπτέσθαι καὶ τοῖς φύλαξιν ἐπιχειρεῖν κοιμωμένοις·
 ἦσθετο γὰρ οὐτ' ἄνθρωπος οὔτε κύων. ἀλλὰ
 χῆνες ἦσαν ἱεροὶ περὶ τὸν νεὼν τῆς Ἡρας τρεφό-μενοι τὸν ἄλλον χρόνον ἀφθόνως, τότε δὲ τῶν
 σιτίων ἤδη γλίσχως καὶ μόλις αὐτοῖς διαρ-3 κούντων ἀμελούμενοι κακῶς ἔπραττον. ἔστι μὲν
 οὖν καὶ φύσει πρὸς αἴσθησιν ὀξὺ καὶ ψοφοδεές
 τὸ ζῷον· ἐκείνοι δὲ καὶ διὰ λιμὸν ἀγρυπνητικοὶ
 καὶ θορυβώδεις γεγονότες ταχὺ τὴν ἔφοδον ἦ-σθοντο τῶν Γαλατῶν, καὶ μετὰ δρόμου καὶ
 κλαγγῆς φερόμενοι πρὸς αὐτοὺς ἐπήγειραν
 ἅπαντας, ἤδη καὶ τῶν βαρβάρων διὰ τὸ μὴ
 λανθάνειν ἀφειδούντων θορύβου καὶ βιαιότερον
 4 ἐπιτιθεμένων. ἀρπάσαντες οὖν ὑπὸ σπουδῆς
 ᾧ τις ἕκαστος ὄπλῳ προσετύγχανεν, ἐκ τοῦ
 παρόντος ἐβοήθουν. πάντων δὲ πρῶτος Μάλλιος,
 ἀνὴρ ὑπατικός, τό τε σῶμα ῥωμαλέος καὶ φρο-νήματι ψυχῆς ἐπιφανής, ἀπαντήσας δυσὶν ὁμοῦ
 τῶν πολεμίων τοῦ μὲν ἐφθασε διηρμένου κοπίδα
 τῷ ξίφει τὴν δεξιὰν ἀποκόψας, τὸν δὲ τῷ θυρεῷ
 πατάξας εἰς τὸ πρόσωπον ἔωσεν ὀπίσω κατὰ τῆς
 5 πέτρας. ἐπιστὰς δὲ τῷ τείχει μετὰ τῶν συνδραμόντων καὶ γενομένων περὶ αὐτὸν ἀπέστρεψε
 τοὺς ἄλλους, οὔτε πολλοὺς ἄνω γενομένους οὔτε
 πράξαντάς τι τῆς τόλμης ἄξιον. οὕτω δὲ τὸν
 κίνδυνον ἐκφυγόντες ἅμ' ἡμέρᾳ τὸν μὲν ἄρχοντα

CAMILLUS

their way upward in silence. They climbed on all fours over places which were precipitous and rough, but which yielded to their efforts better than they had expected, until the foremost of them reached the heights, put themselves in array, and had all but seized the outwork and fallen upon the sleeping watch. Neither man nor dog was aware of their approach. But there were some sacred geese near the temple of Juno, which were usually fed without stint, but at that time, since provisions barely sufficed for the garrison alone, they were neglected and in evil plight. The creature is naturally sharp of hearing and afraid of every noise, and these, being specially wakeful and restless by reason of their hunger, perceived the approach of the Gauls, dashed at them with loud cries, and so waked all the garrison. At once the Barbarians, now that they were detected, spared no noise, and came on more impetuously to the attack. The defenders, snatching up in haste whatever weapon came to hand, made the best shift they could. Manlius first of all, a man of consular dignity, mighty in body and exceeding stout of heart, confronting two of the enemy at once, cut off the right hand of one of them with his sword as he was lifting his battle-axe, and dashing his shield into the face of the other, tumbled him backwards down the cliff. Then taking his stand on the wall with those who ran to his aid and formed about him, he repulsed the rest of the enemy, who had reached the top in no great numbers, and showed no prowess to match their daring. So the Romans escaped out of their peril. At break of day, they east the

τῶν φυλάκων ἔρριψαν εἰς τοὺς πολεμίους κατὰ τῆς πέτρας, τῷ δὲ Μαλλίῳ τῆς νίκης ἀριστεΐα πρὸς τιμὴν μεγάλην¹ μᾶλλον ἢ χρεΐαν ψηφισάμενοι συνήνεγκαν ὅσον ἡμέρας ἕκαστος ἐλάμβανεν εἰς τροφήν, σίτου μὲν ἡμίλιτρον ἐπιχωρίου (οὕτω γὰρ καλοῦσιν αὐτό), οἴνου δὲ κοτύλης Ἑλληνικῆς τέταρτον.

- XXVIII. Ἐκ τούτου τὰ τῶν Κελτῶν ἦν ἀθυμότερα. καὶ γὰρ ἐπιτηδείων ἐσπᾶνίζον εἰργόμενοι προνομῆς φόβῳ τοῦ Καμίλλου, καὶ νόσος ὑποικούρησεν αὐτοὺς ἐν νεκρῶν πλήθει χύδην καταβεβλημένων σκηνοῦντας ἐν ἐρειπίοις, τό τε βάθος τῆς τέφρας ἀέρα ξηρότητι καὶ δριμύτητι φαῦλον ὑπὸ πνευμάτων καὶ καυμάτων ἀναθυμώσεως ἐλυμαίνετο τὰ σώματα διὰ τῆς ἀναπνοῆς.
- 2 μάλιστα δ' ἡ μεταβολὴ τῆς συντροφῆς διαίτης ἐκ τόπων σκιερῶν καὶ θέρους καταφυγὰς ἀλύπους ἐχόντων ἐμβαλόντας εἰς χώραν ταπεινὴν καὶ κεκραμένην ἀφυῶς πρὸς τὸ μετόπωρον ἐκίνησεν αὐτοὺς, ἧ τε πρὸς τῷ Καπιτωλίῳ καθέδρα καὶ σχολὴ γενομένη χρόνιος. ἔβδομον γὰρ ἐκείνων οἰκούρου μῆνα πολιορκοῦντες. ὥστε φθορὰν εἶναι πολλὴν ἐν τῷ στρατοπέδῳ καὶ μηδὲ θάπτεσθαι διὰ πλήθος ἔτι τοὺς ἀποθνήσκοντας.
- 3 Οὐ μὴν παρὰ² τοῦτο τὰ πράγματα βελτίω τοῖς πολιορκουμένοις ἦν. ἐπέτεινε γὰρ ὁ λιμός, ἧ τε τῶν περὶ Κάμιλλον ἄγνοια παρέιχε δυσθυμίαν· οὐδεὶς γὰρ ἐφοίτα παρ' αὐτῶν διὰ τὸ φρουρεῖσθαι

¹ μεγάλην deleted by Coraës and Bekker.

² παρὰ MSS. and edd., including Sintenis¹: περι.

CAMILLUS

captain of the watch down the cliff among the enemy, but voted to Manlius a meed of victory which did him more honour than service. They collected for him the rations which each man of them received for one day, namely, half a pound of native spelt, Roman weight, and an eighth of a pint of wine, Greek measure.

XXVIII. After this, the case of the Gauls was less hopeful. They lacked provisions, being shut off from foraging through fear of Camillus, and disease lurked among them. They were encamped amid ruins, where a multitude of corpses had been cast at random, and besides, an air made dry and acrid by vast quantities of ashes which wind and heat sent flying abroad, made breathing hurtful. But what most of all affected them was the complete change in their mode of life. They had come all at once from regions of shade, where easy refuge could be had from the heats of summer, into a land which was low lying and had an unnatural climate towards autumn. Then there was their long and idle sitting down before the Capitol,—they were now whiling away the seventh month in its siege. For all these reasons the mortality was great in their camp; so many were the dead that they could no longer be buried.

All this, however, brought no relief to the besieged, for famine increased upon them, and their ignorance of what Camillus was doing made them dejected. No messenger could come from him because the city was now closely watched

PLUTARCH'S LIVES

τὴν πόλιν ἀκριβῶς ὑπὸ τῶν βαρβάρων. ὅθεν οὕτω πράττουσιν ἀμφοτέροις ἐγίνοντο συμβατικοὶ λόγοι διὰ τῶν προφυλάκων τὸ πρῶτον ἀλλήλοις
 4 ἐντυγχανόντων· εἶτα, ὡς ἔδοξε τοῖς κρατίστοις, συνελθόντος εἰς λόγους Βρέννω Σουλπικίου τοῦ χιλιάρχου τῶν Ῥωμαίων, ὡμολογήθη τοὺς μὲν χιλίας λίτρας χρυσίου καταβαλεῖν, τοὺς δὲ λαβόντας ἐκ τῆς πόλεως αὐτίκα καὶ τῆς χώρας ἀναχωρεῖν. ἐπὶ τούτοις γενομένων ὄρκων καὶ τοῦ χρυσίου κομισθέντος, τῶν δὲ Κελτῶν περὶ τὸν σταθμὸν ἀγνωμονούντων κρύφα τὸ πρῶτον, εἶτα
 5 ῥοπήν, ἠγανάκτουσιν οἱ Ῥωμαῖοι πρὸς αὐτούς. ὁ δὲ Βρέννος οἶον ἐφυβρίζων καὶ καταγελῶν ἀποδυσάμενος¹ τὴν μάχαιραν ἅμα καὶ τὸν ζωστήρα προσέθηκε τοῖς σταθμοῖς. πυνθανομένου δὲ τοῦ Σουλπικίου, “Τί τοῦτο;” “Τί γὰρ ἄλλο,” εἶπεν, “ἢ τοῖς νενικημένοις ὀδύνη;” τοῦτο μὲν οὖν ἤδη παροιμιώδης λόγος γέγονε. τῶν δὲ Ῥωμαίων οἱ μὲν ἠγανάκτουσιν καὶ τὸ χρυσίον ᾤοντο δεῖν λαβόντας αὐθις ἀπιέναι καὶ τὴν πολιορκίαν ὑπομένειν· οἱ δὲ συγχωρεῖν ἐκέλευον ἀδικουμένους μέτρια, καὶ μὴ τῷ πλεόν διδόναι προσλογίζεσθαι τὸ αἰσχρὸν, αὐτὸ γὰρ τὸ δοῦναι διὰ τὸν καιρὸν οὐ καλῶς ἀλλ’ ἀναγκαίως ὑπομένοντας.

XXIX. Οὕσης δὲ περὶ τούτων πρὸς τε τοὺς Κελτοὺς καὶ πρὸς αὐτούς² διαφορᾶς ἄγων τὸν στρατὸν ὁ Κάμιλλος ἐν ταῖς πύλαις ἦν· καὶ πυνθόμενος τὰ γινόμενα τοὺς ἄλλους ἐκέλευσεν ἐν τάξει καὶ σχέδην ἐπακολουθεῖν, αὐτὸς δὲ μετὰ

¹ ἀποδυσάμενος with S : ἀπολυσάμενος unfastening.

² αὐτοὺς Sintenis² with C : αὐτοὺς Bekker and Sintenis¹.

CAMILLUS

by the Barbarians. Wherefore, both parties being in such a plight, a compromise was proposed, at first by the outposts as they encountered one another. Then, since those in authority thought it best, Sulpicius, the military tribune of the Romans, held a conference with Brennus, and it was agreed that on the delivery of a thousand pounds of gold by the Romans, the Gauls should straightway depart out of the city and the country. Oaths were sworn to these terms, and the gold was brought to be weighed. But the Gauls tampered with the scales, secretly at first, then they openly pulled the balance back out of its poise. The Romans were incensed at this, but Brennus, with a mocking laugh, stripped off his sword, and added it, belt and all, to the weights. When Sulpicius asked, "What means this?" "What else," said Brennus, "but woe to the vanquished?"¹ and the phrase passed at once into a proverb. Some of the Romans were incensed, and thought they ought to go back again with their gold, and endure the siege. Others urged acquiescence in the mild injustice. Their shame lay, they argued, not in giving more, but in giving at all. This they consented to do because of the emergency; it was not honourable, but it was necessary.

XXIX. While they were thus at odds in the matter, both with the Gauls and with themselves, Camillus led his army up to the gates of the city. On learning what was going on, he ordered the rest of his army to follow in battle array and deliberately,

¹ Vae victis!

PLUTARCH'S LIVES

- τῶν ἀρίστων ἐπειγόμενος εὐθύς ἐπορεύετο πρὸς
 2 τοὺς Ῥωμαίους. διαστάντων δὲ πάντων καὶ
 δεξαμένων αὐτὸν ὡς αὐτοκράτορα κόσμῳ καὶ
 σιωπῇ, τὸ μὲν χρυσίον ἄρας ἀπὸ τοῦ ζυγοῦ τοῖς
 ὑπηρέταις ἔδωκε, τὸν δὲ ζυγὸν καὶ τὰ σταθμὰ
 τοὺς Κελτοὺς λαβόντας ἀποχωρεῖν ἐκέλευσεν
 εἰπών, ὡς σιδήρῳ πάτριόν ἐστι Ῥωμαίοις, οὐ
 χρυσῷ τὴν πατρίδα σώζειν. ἀγανακτοῦντος δὲ
 τοῦ Βρέννου καὶ φάσκοντος ἀδικεῖσθαι λυομένης
 τῆς ὁμολογίας, ἀντεῖπε μὴ νομίμως γεγυῖναι
 3 μηδὲ κυρίας εἶναι τὰς συνθήκας· ἤδη γὰρ αὐτοῦ
 δικτάτορος ἡρημένου καὶ μηδενὸς ἄρχοντος ἑτέρου
 νόμῳ πρὸς οὐκ ἔχοντας ἐξουσίαν ὁμολογηθῆναι.
 νυνὶ δὲ χρῆναι λέγειν εἴ τι βούλονται· νόμῳ γὰρ
 ἦκειν κύριος γεγονὼς συγγνώμην τε δεομένοις
 δοῦναι καὶ δίκην, εἴ μὴ μετανοοῦσιν, ἐπιθεῖναι
 4 τοῖς αἰτίοις. πρὸς ταῦτα θορυβηθεὶς ὁ Βρέννος 14
 ἤψατο μὲν ἀψιμαχίας, καὶ προήλθον ἄχρι ξι-φουλκίας ἐκάτεροι καὶ διωθισμῶν ἀναμεμιγμένοι
 πρὸς ἀλλήλους, ὥσπερ εἰκός, ἐν οἰκίαις καὶ
 στενωποῖς ἀναστρεφόμενοι καὶ χωρίοις δέξασθαι
 παράταξιν οὐ δυναμένοις. ταχύ δὲ συμφρονήσας
 ὁ Βρέννος ἀπήγαγε τοὺς Κελτοὺς εἰς τὸ στρατόπεδον οὐ πολλῶν πεσόντων. καὶ νυκτὸς ἀναστήσας ἅπαντας ἐξέλιπε τὴν πόλιν, καὶ προελθὼν
 ἐξήκοντα σταδίους κατεστρατοπέδευσε παρὰ τὴν
 5 Γαβινίαν ὁδόν. ἅμα δ' ἡμέρα παρήν ὁ Κάμιλλος
 ἐπ' αὐτὸν ὀπλισμένος λαμπρῶς καὶ τεθαρρηκότας
 ἔχων τότε τοὺς Ῥωμαίους· καὶ γενομένης ἰσχυρᾶς
 μάχης ἐπὶ πολὺν χρόνον αὐτοὺς τε τρέπεται
 πολλῷ φόνῳ καὶ λαμβάνει τὸ στρατόπεδον. τῶν

CAMILLUS

while he himself, with the flower of his men, pressed on, and presently came to the Romans. These all made way for him, in decorous silence acknowledging him as their dictator. Thereupon he lifted the gold from the scales and gave it to his attendants, and then ordered the Gauls to take their scales and weights and be off, saying that it was the custom with the Romans to deliver their city with iron and not with gold. When Brennus in wrath declared that he was wronged by this breaking of the agreement, Camillus answered that the compact was not legally made nor binding, since he himself had already been chosen dictator and there was no other legal ruler; the agreement of the Gauls had therefore been made with men who had no power in the case. Now, however, they must say what they wanted, for he was come with legal authority to grant pardon to those who asked it, and to inflict punishment on the guilty, unless they showed repentance. At this, Brennus raised a clamour and began a skirmish, in which both sides got no further than drawing their swords and pushing one another confusedly about, since the action took place in the heart of the ruined city, where no battle array was possible. But Brennus soon came to his senses, and led his Gauls off to their camp, with the loss of a few only. During the ensuing night he broke camp and abandoned the city with his whole force, and after a march of about eight miles, encamped along the Gabinian way. At break of day Camillus was upon him, in glittering array, his Romans now full of confidence, and after a long and fierce battle, routed the enemy with great slaughter and took their camp. Of the fugitives, some were at once

PLUTARCH'S LIVES

δὲ φευγόντων οἱ μὲν εὐθὺς ἀνηρέθησαν καταδιωχθέντες, τοὺς δὲ πλείστους διασπαρέντας ἐπεκθέοντες ἐκ τῶν πέριξ κωμῶν καὶ πόλεων ἔκτεινον.

XXX. Οὕτω μὲν ἡ Ῥώμη παραλόγως ἦλω καὶ παραλογώτερον ἐσώθη, μῆνας ἑπτὰ τοὺς πάντας ὑπὸ τοῖς βαρβάροις γενομένη. παρελθόντες γὰρ εἰς αὐτὴν ὀλίγαις ἡμέραις ὕστερον τῶν Κυϊντιλίων εἰδῶν περὶ τὰς Φεβρουαρίας εἰδούς ἐξέπεσον. ὁ δὲ Κάμιλλος ἐθριάμβευσε μὲν, ὡς εἰκὸς ἦν, τὸν ἀπολωλυίας σωτήρα πατρίδος γενόμενον καὶ
 2 κατάγοντα τὴν πόλιν αὐτὴν εἰς ἑαυτήν· οἳ τε γὰρ ἕξωθεν ἅμα παισὶ καὶ γυναῖξιν εἰσελαύνουτος αὐτοῦ συγκατήεσαν, οἳ τε πολιορκηθέντες ἐν τῷ Καπιτωλίῳ, μικροῦ δεήσαντες ἀπολέσθαι διὰ λιμόν, ἀπῆντων περιβάλλοντες ἀλλήλους καὶ δακρύοντες ὑπὸ ¹ τῆς παρουσίας ἡδονῆς, ἱερεῖς τε καὶ ζάκοροι θεῶν, ὅσα φεύγοντες αὐτόθι τῶν ἀβεβήλων ἔκρυψαν ἢ σὺν αὐτοῖς ἐξέκλεψαν, ἀνασωζόμενα ² κομίζοντες ἐπεδείκνυντο ποθουμένας ὄψεις τοῖς πολίταις δεχομένοις μετὰ χαρᾶς, ὥσπερ αὐτῶν τῶν θεῶν αὐθις εἰς τὴν Ῥώμην
 3 συγκατερχομένων· θύσας δὲ τοῖς θεοῖς καὶ καθάραις τὴν πόλιν ἐξηγουμένων τῶν περὶ ταῦτα δεινῶν, τὰ μὲν ὄντα τῶν ἱερῶν κατέστησεν, αὐτὸς δὲ ἰδρύσατο νεῶν Φήμης καὶ Κληδόνος, ἀνευρῶν ἐκείνιον τὸν τόπον, ἐν ᾧ νύκτωρ ἢ καταγγέλλουσα τὴν τῶν βαρβάρων στρατιὰν ἐκ θεοῦ τῷ Καϊδικίῳ Μάρκῳ φωνὴ προσέπεσε.

¹ ὑπὸ with S: ἀπιστία for distrust of.

² ἀνασωζόμενα καὶ κεκοσμημένα S, and adorned.

CAMILLUS

pursued and cut down, but most of them scattered abroad, only to be fallen upon and slain by the people of the surrounding villages and cities.

XXX. So strangely was Rome taken, and more strangely still delivered, after the Barbarians had held it seven months in all. They entered it a few days after the Ides of July, and were driven out about the Ides of February. Camillus celebrated a triumph, as it was meet that a man should do who had saved a country that was lost, and who now brought the city back again to itself. For the citizens outside, with their wives and children, accompanied his triumphal chariot as it entered the city, and those who had been besieged on the Capitol, and had narrowly escaped death by starvation, came forth to meet them, all embracing one another, and weeping for the joy that was theirs. The priests and ministrants of the gods, bringing whatever sacred objects they had either buried on the spot or carried off with them when they took to flight, displayed them, thus preserved in safety, to the citizens, who caught the welcome sights with delight, believing in their hearts that the gods themselves were now coming back to Rome with them. After Camillus had made sacrifices to the gods and purified the city, in the manner prescribed by those who were versed in such rites, he restored the existing temples, and erected a new one to Rumour and Voice,¹ having sought out carefully the spot where by night the voice from Heaven, announcing the coming of the Barbarian host, had fallen upon the ears of Marcus Caedicius.

¹ Ara Aii Locutii.

PLUTARCH'S LIVES

- XXXI. Χαλεπῶς μὲν οὖν καὶ μόλις αἱ τῶν ἱερῶν ἀνεκαλύπτοντο χῶραι φιλοτιμία τοῦ Κάμιλλου καὶ πόνῳ πολλῷ τῶν ἱεροφαντῶν· ὡς δὲ καὶ τὴν πόλιν ἀνοικοδομεῖν ἔδει παντάπασι διεφθαρμένην, ἀθυμία πρὸς τὸ ἔργον ἐνέπιπτε τοῖς πολλοῖς καὶ μέλλησις ἦν ἐστερημένοις ἀπάντων καὶ τινος ἐν τῷ παρόντι ῥαστώνης καὶ ἀναπαύσεως ἐκ κακῶν δεομένοις μᾶλλον ἢ κάμνειν καὶ ἀποτρύχειν ἑαυτοὺς οὔτε χρήμασιν οὔτε
- 2 σώμασιν ἐρρωμένους. οὕτω δὲ ἡσυχῇ πρὸς τοὺς Οὐητοὺς αὐθις ἀποστρεφόμενοι, πόλιν ἅπασι κατεσκευασμένην καὶ διαμένουσαν, ἀρχὰς δημαγωγῶν ἐνέδοσαν τοῖς πρὸς χάριν εἰθισμένοις ὀμιλεῖν, καὶ λόγων ἠκροῶντο στασιαστικῶν πρὸς τὸν Κάμιλλον, ὡς ἐκείνου φιλοτιμίας ἔνεκα καὶ δόξης ἰδίας ἀποστεροῦντος αὐτοὺς πόλεως ἐτοίμης καὶ βιαζομένου σκηνοῦν ἐρείπια καὶ πυρκαϊὰν τοσαύτην ἐγείρειν, ὅπως μὴ μόνον ἡγεμῶν Ῥώμης καὶ στρατηγός, ἀλλὰ καὶ κτίστης λέγεται παρώσας Ῥωμύλον.
- 3 Ἐκ τούτου φοβηθεῖσα τὸν θόρυβον ἡ βουλή τὸν μὲν Κάμιλλον οὐκ εἶασε βουλόμενον ἀποθέσθαι τὴν ἀρχὴν ἐντὸς ἐνιαυτοῦ καίπερ ἕξ μῆνας οὐδενὸς ὑπερβαλόντος ἐτέρου δικτάτορος, αὐτὴ δὲ παρεμυθεῖτο καὶ κατεπράυνε πείθουσα καὶ δεξιουμένη τὸν δῆμον, ἐπιδεικνυμένη μὲν ἡρία καὶ τάφους πατέρων, ὑπομμησκουσα δὲ χωρίων ἱερῶν καὶ τόπων ἀγίων, οὓς Ῥωμύλος ἢ Νομάς ἢ τις ἄλλος αὐτοῖς τῶν

CAMILLUS

XXXI. Owing to the zeal of Camillus and the abundant labours of the priesthood, the sites of the temples were at last uncovered, but it proved a grievous undertaking. And since the city had also to be built up again from a state of utter destruction, the multitude were overwhelmed with despair of the task, and shrunk from it. They were bereft of all things, and for the present needed some rest and repose after their sufferings, instead of toiling and wearing themselves out on a task for which they had neither means nor strength. And so it was that insensibly their thoughts turned again to Veii, a city which remained intact and was equipped with all things needful. This gave opportunity for mischievous agitations to such as were wont to consult only the people's will and pleasure, and ready ear was given to seditious speeches against Camillus. He had an eye, it was said, only to his own ambition and fame, when he would deprive them of a city that stood ready to receive them, and force them to pitch their tents among a mass of ruins, while they rebuilt what had become a monstrous funeral pyre. He wished not merely to be a leader and general of Rome, but to thrust Romulus to one side and be styled its founder.

The Senate, therefore, fearful of this clamour, would not suffer Camillus, much as he wished it, to lay down his office within a year, although no other dictator had served more than six months. Meanwhile the Senators, by dint of kindly greetings and persuasive words, tried to soften and convert the people, pointing out the sepulchres and tombs of their fathers, and calling to their remembrance the shrines and holy places which Romulus, or Numa,

PLUTARCH'S LIVES

4 βασιλέων ἐπιθειάσας παρέδωκεν. ἐν πρώτοις δὲ τῶν θείων τήν τε νεοσφαγῆ κεφαλὴν προὔφερον 145 ἐν τῇ θεμελιώσει τοῦ Καπιτωλίου φανείσαν, ὡς τῷ τόπῳ πεπρωμένοι ἐκείνῃ τῆς Ἰταλίας κεφαλῇ γενέσθαι, καὶ τὸ τῆς Ἑστίας πῦρ, ὃ μετὰ τὸν πόλεμον ὑπὸ τῶν παρθένων ἀναπτόμενον αὖθις ἀφανίζειν καὶ σβεννύναι τοὺς προλιπόντας τὴν πόλιν, ὄνειδος αὐτοῖς ἐσόμενον, ἂν τε ὑπ' ἄλλων οἰκουμένην ὀρώσιν ἐπηλύδων καὶ ξένων ἂν τ' ἔρημον οὔσαν καὶ μηλόβοτον.

5 Τοιαῦτα καὶ πρὸς ἕκαστον ἰδίᾳ καὶ κοινῇ πολλάκις ἐν τῷ δήμῳ σχετλιάζοντες ἐπεκλῶντο πάλιν ὑπὸ τῶν πολλῶν τὴν παρούσαν ὀλοφυρομένων ἀμηχανίαν, καὶ δεομένων μὴ σφᾶς ὥσπερ ἐκ ναυαγίου γυμνοὺς καὶ ἀπόρους σωθέντας προσβιάζεσθαι τὰ λείψανα τῆς διεφθαρμένης συμπηγνύναι πόλεως, ἐτέρας ἐτοίμης παρουσίας.

XXXII. Ἐδοξεν οὖν βουλήν προθεῖναι τῷ Καμίλλῳ· καὶ πολλὰ μὲν αὐτὸς διεξῆλθε παρακαλῶν ὑπὲρ τῆς πατρίδος, πολλὰ δὲ καὶ τῶν ἄλλων ὁ βουλόμενος· τέλος δὲ τὸν πρῶτον εἰωθότα λέγειν γνώμην Λεύκιον Λουκρήτιον ἀναστήσας ἐκέλευσεν ἀποφῆνάσθαι πρῶτον, εἶτα

2 τοὺς ἄλλους ἐφεξῆς. γενομένης δὲ σιωπῆς καὶ τοῦ Λουκρητίου μέλλοντος ἐνάρχεσθαι, κατὰ τύχην ἔξωθεν ἑκατοντάρχης ἄγων τάγμα φυλακῆς ἡμερινῆς παρεπορεύετο, καὶ τὸν φέροντα πρῶτον τὸ σημεῖον μεγάλη φωνῇ προσαγορεύσας ἐκέλευσεν αὐτοῦ μένειν καὶ τὸ σημεῖον τίθεσθαι·

CAMILLUS

or some other king, had consecrated and left to their care. Among other signs from Heaven, they laid chief stress on the newly severed head that was found when the foundations of the Capitol were dug, showing, as it did, that the place where it was found was fated to be the head of Italy ; also on the sacred fire of Vesta, which had been kindled anew by her virgins after the war. If they should quench and extinguish this again by their abandonment of the city, it would be a disgrace to them, whether they saw that city occupied by immigrants and aliens, or abandoned to flocks and herds.

Thus did the Senators remonstrate with the people, both individually in private, and often in the public assemblies. They, in their turn, were moved to compassion by the wailing complaints of the multitude, who lamented the helplessness to which they were come, and begged, now that they had been saved alive as it were from a shipwreck, in nakedness and destitution, that they be not forced to piece together the fragments of their ruined city, when another stood all ready to receive them.

XXXII. Accordingly, Camillus decided that the question should be debated and settled in council. He himself spoke at great length, in exhortation to preserve their common country, and every one else who wished did likewise. Finally, he called upon Lucius Lucretius, to whom custom gave the first vote, and bade him declare his opinion first, and then the other senators in the order due. Silence fell, and Lucretius was on the point of beginning, when it chanced that a centurion with a squad of the day watch passed by outside, and calling with a loud voice on the man who led with the standard,

PLUTARCH'S LIVES

- κάλλιστα γὰρ ἐνταῦθα καθεδείσθαι καὶ μενεῖν. ἄμα δὲ τῷ καιρῷ καὶ τῇ περὶ τοῦ μέλλοντος ἐννοία καὶ ἀδηλόγητι τῆς φωνῆς γενομένης, ὃ τε Λουκρήτιος ἔφη προσκυνήσας τῷ θεῷ προστίθεσθαι τὴν ἑαυτοῦ γνώμην καὶ τῶν ἄλλων*
- 3 ἕκαστος ἐπηκολούθησε. θαυμαστὴ δὲ καὶ τὸ πλῆθος ἔσχε μεταβολὴ τῆς ὀρμῆς, ἀλλήλους παρακαλούντων καὶ προτρεπομένων¹ πρὸς τὸ ἔργον, οὐκ ἐκ διανομῆς τινος ἢ τάξεως, ἀλλ' ὡς ἕκαστος ἐτοιμότητος ἢ βουλήσεως εἶχε τῶν χωρίων καταλαμβανομένων. διὸ καὶ τεταραγμένην τοῖς στενωποῖς καὶ συμπεφυρμένην ταῖς οἰκήσεσιν ἀνήγαγον τὴν πόλιν ὑπὸ σπουδῆς καὶ τάχους. ἐντὸς γὰρ ἐνιαυτοῦ λέγεται καὶ τοῖς τείχεσι καινὴ καὶ ταῖς ἰδιωτικαῖς οἰκοδομαῖς ἀναστῆναι πάλιν.*
- 4 Οἱ δὲ τοὺς ἱεροὺς τόπους ἀναλαβεῖν καὶ ὀρίσαι ταχθέντες ὑπὸ τοῦ Καμίλλου, συγκεχυμένων ἀπάντων, ὡς ἦκου ἐπὶ τὴν καλιάδα τοῦ Ἄρεως περιοδεύοντες τὸ Παλάτιον, αὐτὴν μὲν, ὡς τὰ ἄλλα, διεφθαρμένην καὶ κατακεκαυμένην εὔρον ὑπὸ τῶν βαρβάρων, σκευωρούμενοι δὲ καὶ καθαίροντες τὸ χωρίον ἐντυγχάνουσι τῷ μαντικῷ ξύλῳ τοῦ Ῥωμύλου κατὰ τέφρας πολλῆς καὶ βαθείας*
- 5 καταδεδυκότι. τοῦτο δ' ἔστι μὲν ἐπικαμπὲς ἐκ θατέρου πέρατος, καλεῖται δὲ λίτυον· χρώνται δ' αὐτῷ πρὸς τὰς τῶν πλινθίων ὑπογραφὰς ὅταν ἐπ' ὄρνησι διαμαντευόμενοι καθέζωνται, ὡς κακείνος ἐχρήτο μαντικώτατος ὢν. ἐπειδὴ δ' ἐξ ἀνθρώπων ἠφανίσθη, παραλαβόντες οἱ ἱερεῖς τὸ ξύλον ὥσπερ ἄλλο τι τῶν ἱερῶν ἄψαυστον ἐφύλαττον.*

¹ προτρεπομένων with S : τρεπομένων.

CAMILLUS

bade him halt and plant his standard there, for that was the best place to settle down and stay in. The utterance fell at the crisis of their anxious thought for the uncertain future, and Lucretius said, with a devout obeisance, that he cast his vote with the god. The rest, one by one, followed his example. Then the inclinations of the multitude were marvellously changed. They exhorted and incited one another to the work, and pitched upon their several sites, not by any orderly assignment, but as each man found it convenient and desirable. Therefore the city was rebuilt with confused and narrow streets and a maze of houses, owing to their haste and speed. Within a year's time, it is said, a new city had arisen, with walls to guard it and homes in which to dwell.

Those who had been deputed by Camillus to recover and mark out anew the sacred places, found them all in utter confusion. When they came to the shrine of Mars, in their circuit of the Palatium, they found that it had been demolished and burnt by the Barbarians, like the rest, but as they were clearing away and renovating the place, they came upon the augural staff of Romulus, buried deep in a great heap of ashes. The augural staff is curved at one end, and is called lituus. It is used to mark off the different quarters of the heavens, in the ceremonies of divination by the flight of birds, and so Romulus had used this one, for he was a great diviner. But when he vanished from among men, the priests took this staff and kept it inviolate, like τοῦτο δὴ τότε τῶν ἄλλων ἀπολωλότων ἀνευρόντες διαπεφευγὸς τὴν φθορὰν ἡδίοις ἐγένοντο ταῖς ἐλπίσιν ὑπὲρ τῆς Ῥώμης, ὡς ἀίδιου αὐτῆ τὴν σωτηρίαν τοῦ σημείου βεβαιούντος.

PLUTARCH'S LIVES

XXXIII. Οὐπω δὲ τῆς περὶ ταῦτα πεπαυμένοις ἀσχολίας αὐτοῖς ἐπιπίπτει πόλεμος, Αἰκανῶν μὲν ἅμα καὶ Οὐλοδούσκων καὶ Λατίνων εἰς τὴν χώραν ἐμβαλλόντων, Τυρρηνῶν δὲ πολιορκούντων Σούτριν, συμμαχίδα Ῥωμαίων πόλιν. ἐπειδὴ δ' οἱ τὴν ἡγεμονίαν ἔχοντες χιλίαρχοι στρατοπεδευσάμενοι περὶ τὸ Μάρκιον ὄρος ὑπὸ τῶν Λατίνων ἐπολιορκούντο καὶ κινδυνεύοντες ἀποβαλεῖν τὸ στρατόπεδον εἰς Ῥώμην ἔπεμψαν 2 ἀποδείκνυται τὸ τρίτον Κάμλλος δικτάτωρ. περὶ τούτου τοῦ πολέμου διττοὶ λόγοι λέγονται· δίεμι δὲ τὸν μυθώδη πρότερον.

Φασὶ τοὺς Λατίνους, εἴτε προφάσει χρωμένους εἴτε βουλομένους ὡς ἀληθῶς ἀναμίξασθαι τὰ γένη πάλιν ἐξ ὑπαρχῆς, πέμψαντας αἰτεῖν παρὰ τῶν Ῥωμαίων παρθέρους ἐλευθέρας γυναῖκας. ἀπορούντων δὲ τῶν Ῥωμαίων, τί χρὴ ποιεῖν (καὶ γὰρ τὸν πόλεμον ὠρρώδουν οὐπω καθεστῶτες οὐδ' ἀνειληφότες αὐτούς, καὶ τὴν αἴτησιν τῶν γυναικῶν ὑπώπτεον ἐξομήρευσιν εἶναι, τοῦ δ' εὐπρεποῦς χάριν ἐπιγαμίαν καλεῖσθαι),
3 τοῦνομα Τουτούλαν, ὡς δ' ἐνιοι λέγουσι, Φιλωτίδα τοῖς ἄρχουσι παραινέσαι πέμπειν σὺν αὐτῇ τῶν δμωίδων τὰς ἐν ὥρᾳ μάλιστα καὶ ταῖς ὄψεσιν ἐλευθερίους, κοσμήσαντας ὡς νύμφας εὐγενεῖς, τὰ λοιπὰ δ' αὐτῇ μελήσειν. πεισθέντας δὲ τοὺς ἄρχοντας ἐπιλέξασθαι τῶν θεραπαινίδων ὅσας ἐκένη πρὸς τὴν χρεῖαν ἐδοκίμασε, καὶ κοσμήσαν-

CAMILLUS

any other sacred object. Their finding this at that time unscathed, when all the rest had perished, gave them more pleasing hopes for Rome. They thought it a token that assured her of everlasting safety.

XXXIII. They were not yet done with these pressing tasks when a fresh war broke upon them. The Aequians, Volscians, and Latins burst into their territory all at once, and the Tuscans laid siege to Sutrium, a city allied with Rome. The military tribunes in command of the army, having encamped near Mount Marcius, were besieged by the Latins, and were in danger of losing their camp. Wherefore they sent to Rome for aid, and Camillus was appointed dictator for the third time. Two stories are told about this war, and I will give the fabulous one first.

They say that the Latins, either as a pretext for war, or because they really wished to revive the ancient affinity between the two peoples, sent and demanded from the Romans free-born virgins in marriage. The Romans were in doubt what to do, for they dreaded war in their unsettled and un-restored condition, and yet they suspected that this demand for wives was really a call for hostages disguised under the specious name of intermarriage. In their perplexity, a serving-maid named Tutula, or, as some call her, Philotis, advised the magistrates to send her to the enemy with some maid-servants of the comeliest sort and most genteel appearance, all arrayed like free-born brides; she would attend to the rest. The magistrates yielded to her persuasions, chose out as many maid-servants as she thought meet

PLUTARCH'S LIVES

- τας ἐσθῆτι καὶ χρυσῷ παραδοῦναι τοῖς Λατίνοις οὐ πάνυ πόρρω τῆς πόλεως στρατοπεδεύουσι.
- 4 νύκτωρ δὲ τὰς μὲν ἄλλας ὑφελέσθαι τὰ ἐγχειρίδια τῶν πολεμίων, τὴν δ' εἶτε Τουτούλαν εἶτε Φιλωτίδα προσβᾶσαν ἐρινεῶ μεγάλῳ καὶ παρατείνασαν ὀπίσω τὸ ἱμάτιον ἄραι πυρσὸν εἰς τὴν Ῥώμην, ὥσπερ ἦν συγκείμενον αὐτῇ πρὸς τοὺς ἄρχοντας, οὐδενὸς ἄλλου τῶν πολιτῶν εἰδότης. δι' ὃ καὶ θορυβώδη γενέσθαι τὴν τῶν στρατιωτῶν ἔξοδον, ὡς κατήπειγον οἱ ἄρχοντες, ἀλλήλους ἀνακαλούντων καὶ μόλις εἰς τὴν τάξιν καθισταμένων. ἐπελθόντας δὲ τῷ χάρακι τῶν πολεμίων οὐ προσδεχομένων καὶ καθευδόντων ἐλεῖν τὸ στρατόπεδον καὶ
- 5 διαφθεῖραι τοὺς πλείστους. τοῦτο δὲ γενέσθαι ταῖς νῦν Ἰουλίαις, τότε δὲ Κυῖντιλίαις νῶναις, καὶ τὴν ἀγομένην ἑορτὴν ὑπόμνημα τῆς πράξεως ἐκείνης εἶναι. πρῶτον μὲν γὰρ ἐξιόντες ἀθρόοι διὰ τῆς πύλης πολλὰ τῶν ἐπιχωρίων καὶ κοινῶν ὀνομάτων βοῇ φθέγγονται, Γάϊον, Μάρκον, Δούκιον καὶ τὰ τούτοις ὅμοια, μιμούμενοι τὴν τότε γενομένην μετὰ σπουδῆς ἀλλήλων ἀνάκλησιν.
- 6 ἔπειτα κεκοσμημένοι λαμπρῶς αἱ θεραπευνίδες περιΐασι παίζουσαι διὰ σκωμμάτων εἰς τοὺς ἀπαντῶντας. γίνεται δὲ καὶ μάχη τις αὐταῖς πρὸς ἀλλήλας, ὡς καὶ τότε τοῦ πρὸς τοὺς Λατίνους ἀγῶνος συνεπιλαμβανομέναις. ἐστιώμεναι δὲ καθέζονται κλάδοις συκῆς σκιαζόμεναι· καὶ τὴν ἡμέραν νῶνας Καπρατίνας καλοῦσιν, ὡς οἶονται διὰ τὸν ἐρινεόν, ἀφ' οὗ τὴν παιδίσκην τὸν πυρσὸν ἄραι· τὸν γὰρ ἐρινεὸν καπρίφικον ὀνομάζουσιν.
- 7 Ἔτεροι δὲ τούτων τὰ πλείστα δρᾶσθαι καὶ λέγεσθαί φασιν ἐπὶ τῷ τοῦ Ῥωμύλου πάθει.

CAMILLUS

for her purpose, arrayed them in fine raiment and gold, and handed them over to the Latins, who were encamped near the city. In the night, the rest of the maidens stole away the enemy's swords, while Tutula, or Philotis, climbed a wild fig-tree of great height, and after spreading out her cloak behind her, held out a lighted torch towards Rome, this being the signal agreed upon between her and the magistrates, though no other citizen knew of it. Hence it was that the soldiers sallied out of the city tumultuously, as the magistrates urged them on, calling out one another's names, and with much ado getting into rank and file. They stormed the entrenchments of the enemy, who were fast asleep and expecting nothing of the sort, captured their camp, and slew most of them. This happened on the Nones of what was then called Quintilis, now July, and the festival since held on that day is in remembrance of the exploit. For, to begin with, they run out of the city gate in throngs, calling out loudly many local and common names, such as Gaius, Marcus, Lucius, and the like, in imitation of the way the soldiers once called aloud upon each other in their haste. Next, the maid-servants, in gay attire, run about jesting and joking with the men they meet. They have a mock battle, too, with one another, implying that they once took a hand in the struggle with the Latins. And as they feast, they sit in the shade of a fig-tree's branches. The day is called the "Capratine Nones," from the wild fig-tree, as they suppose, from which the maid held forth her torch; this goes by the name of caprificus.

But others say that most of what is said and done at this festival has reference to the fate of Romulus.

PLUTARCH'S LIVES

κατὰ ταύτην γὰρ ἀφανισθῆναι τὴν ἡμέραν αὐτὸν ἔξω πύλης, ζόφου καὶ θυέλλης ἄφνω περισχούσης, ὡς δ' ἔνιοι νομίζουσιν, ἐκλείψεως ἡλίου γενομένης, καὶ τὴν ἡμέραν ἀπὸ τοῦ τόπου νώνας Καπρατίνας κληθῆναι, τὴν γὰρ αἶγα κάπραν ὀνομάζουσιν· ὁ δὲ Ῥωμύλος ἠφανίσθη δημηγορῶν περὶ τὸ τῆς αἰγὸς ἔλος προσαγορευόμενον, ὡς ἐν τοῖς περὶ ἐκείνου γέγραπται.

- XXXIV. Τὸν δ' ἕτερον λόγον οἱ πλείστοι τῶν συγγραφέων δοκιμάζοντες οὕτω λέγουσιν. ἀποδειχθεὶς δικτάτωρ τὸ τρίτον ὁ Κάμιλλος καὶ πυθόμενος τὸ μετὰ τῶν χιλιάρχων στράτευμα πολιορκούμενον ὑπὸ τῶν Λατίνων καὶ τῶν Οὐολούσκων, ἠναγκάσθη καὶ τοὺς οὐκ ἐν ᾧρᾳ τῶν πολι-
 2 τῶν, ἀλλ' ἤδη παρηβηκότας καθοπλίσαι. περιελθὼν δὲ μακρὰν περίοδον περὶ τὸ Μάρκιον ὄρος καὶ λαθὼν τοὺς πολεμίους ἴδρυσε τὴν στρατιὰν κατόπιον αὐτῶν, καὶ πυρὰ πολλὰ καύσας διεσήμνηε τὴν ἑαυτοῦ παρουσίαν. οἱ μὲν οὖν πολιορκούμενοι θαρρήσαντες ἐπιέναι διανοοῦντο καὶ
 3 μάχην συνάπτειν· οἱ δὲ Λατίνοι καὶ Οὐολοῦσκοι συστείλαντες εἴσω τοῦ χάρακος ἑαυτοὺς ἀπεσταύρουρον ξύλοις πολλοῖς καὶ διεφράγγυντο πανταχόθεν τὸ στρατόπεδον, ἀμφίβολοι γεγονότες ὑπὸ τῶν πολεμίων καὶ περιμένειν ἐγνωκότες ἑτέραν οἴκοθεν δύναμιν, ἅμα δὲ καὶ Τυρρηνῶν προσδεχόμενοι βοήθειαν. τοῦτο δ' αἰσθόμενος ὁ Κάμιλλος καὶ δεδοικῶς παθεῖν ὅπερ ἐποίησεν αὐτὸς τοὺς πολε-
 4 καιρόν. ὄντος δὲ τοῦ περιφράγματος ξυλίνου καὶ πνεύματος μεγάλου κατιόντος ἀπὸ τῶν ὄρων ἅμα

CAMILLUS

For on this same day he vanished from sight, outside the city gates, in sudden darkness and tempest, and, as some think, during an eclipse of the sun. The day, they say, is called the "Capratine Nones" from the spot where he thus vanished. For the she-goat goes by the name of capra, and Romulus vanished from sight while haranguing an assembly of the people at the Goat's Marsh, as has been stated in his Life.¹

XXXIV. But most writers adopt the other account of this war, which runs thus. Camillus, having been appointed dictator for the third time, and learning that the army under the military tribunes was besieged by the Latins and Volscians, was forced to put under arms even those of the citizens who were exempt from military duty by reason of advancing years. Fetching a long circuit around Mount Marcius and thus eluding the enemy's notice, he planted his army securely in their rear, and then by lighting many fires made known his presence there. The besieged Romans at once took heart and purposed to sally out and join battle. But the Latins and Volscians retired within their trenches, fenced themselves in with a great wooden palisade, and barricaded their camp on all sides, for they now had a hostile force in front and rear, and were determined to await reinforcements from home. At the same time they expected aid from the Tuscans also. Camillus, perceiving their design, and fearful of being himself surrounded by the enemy as he had surrounded them, made haste to improve his opportunity. The enemy's barricades were of wood, and a strong wind

¹ Chap. xxvii.

PLUTARCH'S LIVES

φάει, πυροβόλα ¹ παρασκευασάμενος καὶ περὶ
 τὸν ὄρθρον ἐξαγαγὼν τὴν δύναμιν τοὺς μὲν ἄλλους
 ἐκέλευσε χρῆσθαι βέλεσι καὶ κραυγῇ καθ' ἕτερον
 μέρος, αὐτὸς δὲ τοὺς τὸ πῦρ ἀφήσειν μέλλοντας
 ἔχων ὄθεν εἰώθει μάλιστα προσπίπτειν ὁ ἄνεμος
 τῷ χάρακι τῶν πολεμίων ἀνέμενε τὴν ὥραν. ἐπεὶ
 δὲ συνεστώσης τῆς μάχης ὃ τε ἥλιος ἀνῆει καὶ τὸ
 πνεῦμα λαμπρὸν ἐξέπιπτε, σημήνας ἐπιδρομὴν
 κατέσπειρε τοῦ χάρακος ἄφθονα τῶν πυροβόλων.
 5 ταχὺ δὲ τῆς φλογὸς ἐν ὕλῃ πυκνῇ καὶ σταυρώ-μασι ξυλίνοις ἀνατραφείσης καὶ κύκλω περινεμο-μένης, οὐδὲν ἄκος οὐδὲ σβεστήριον ἔχοντες οἱ Λατίνοι παρεσκευασμένοι, ὡς πλήρες ἦν ἤδη τὸ
 στρατόπεδον πυρός, ἐπ' ὀλίγον συστελλόμενοι
 τόπον ἐξέπιπτον ὑπ' ἀνάγκης πρὸς ὀπλισμένους
 καὶ παρατεταγμένους πρὸ τοῦ χάρακος τοὺς
 πολεμίους. καὶ τούτων μὲν ὀλίγοι διέφυγον, τοὺς
 δὲ καταλειφθέντας ἐν τῷ στρατοπέδῳ πάντας
 διέφθειρε τὸ πῦρ, μέχρι οὗ κατασβέσαντες οἱ
 Ῥωμαῖοι τὰ χρήματα διήρπασαν.

XXXV. Γεγονότων δὲ τούτων ἀπολιπὼν ἐπὶ τοῦ
 στρατοπέδου τὸν υἱὸν Λεύκιον φύλακα τῶν ἠλωκότων ἀνθρώπων καὶ χρημάτων αὐτὸς εἰς τὴν τῶν
 πολεμίων ἐνέβαλε. καὶ τὴν Αἰκανῶν πόλιν ἐξελὼν
 καὶ προσαγαγόμενος τοὺς Οὐολούσκους εὐθύς ἤγε
 τὴν στρατιὰν πρὸς τὸ Σούτριον, οὐπω τὰ συμβε-βηκότα τοῖς Σουτρίνοις πεπυσμένος, ἀλλ' ὡς ἔτι
 κινδυνεύουσι καὶ πολιορκουμένοις ὑπὸ τῶν Τυρ-2 ρηνῶν βοηθῆσαι σπεύδων. οἱ δ' ἔτυχον ἤδη τὴν
 μὲν πόλιν τοῖς πολεμίους παραδεδωκότες, αὐτοὶ

¹ πυροβόλα conjecture of Sintenis²; πυρὰ πολλὰ MSS., Sintenis¹, and edd.

CAMILLUS

blew down from the mountains at sun-rise. Accordingly, he equipped himself with fiery darts, and leading his forces out towards day-break, ordered part of them to attack with missiles and loud cries at an opposite point, while he himself, with those appointed to hurl fire, took his post where the wind was wont to smite the enemy's trenches with the greatest force, and awaited the propitious moment. When battle had been joined and the sun rose and the wind burst forth with fury, he gave orders for an onset, and scattered no end of fiery darts along the trenches. The flames speedily found food in the crowded timbers of the wooden palisades and spread in all directions. The Latins had nothing at hand with which to ward off or quench them, and when at length their camp was full of fire, they were huddled together into a small space, and at last forced to dash out against an enemy who were drawn up in full battle array in front of the trenches. Few of them made their escape, and those who were left behind in the camp were all a prey to the fire until the Romans put it out and fell upon their booty.

XXXV. This business dispatched, he left his son Lucius in command of the camp to guard the captives and the booty, while he himself invaded the enemy's country. He captured the city of the Aequians, brought the Volscians to terms, and straightway led his army towards Sutrium. He was not yet apprised of the fate of the Sutrians, but thought they were still in peril of siege by the Tuscans, and so hastened to relieve them. But they had already surrendered their city to the enemy, and been sent off in utter

PLUTARCH'S LIVES

δὲ πάντων ἐνδεεῖς ἐν ἱματίοις μόνον ἀφειμένοι
 καὶ καθ' ὁδὸν ὄντι τῷ Καμίλλῳ μετὰ παίδων καὶ
 γυναικῶν ἀπήντων ὀδυρόμενοι τὰς ἑαυτῶν τύχας.
 ὁ δὲ Κάμιλλος αὐτὸς τε πρὸς τὴν ὄψιν ἐπικλα-σθεῖς καὶ τοὺς Ῥωμαίους ὀρῶν ἐμφυομένων αὐτοῖς
 τῶν Σουτρίνων δακρύνοντας καὶ δυσανασχετοῦντας
 ἐπὶ τοῖς γεγενημένοις, ἔγνω μὴ ποιεῖσθαι τῆς
 3 τιμωρίας ἀναβολήν, ἀλλ' εὐθύς ἄγειν ἐπὶ τὸ Σούτριον ἐκείνης τῆς ἡμέρας, λογιζόμενος ἀνθρώ-πους εὐδαίμονα καὶ πλουσίαν πόλιν ἄρτι κατειλη-φότας καὶ μηδένα τῶν πολεμίων ὑπολελοιπότας
 ἐν αὐτῇ μηδὲ προσδεχομένους ἔξωθεν, ἐκκελυμένους παντάπασι καὶ ἀφυλάκτους εὐρήσειν ὀρθῶς
 λογισάμενος. οὐ γὰρ μόνον τὴν χώραν ἔλαθε
 διελθών, ἀλλὰ καὶ πρὸς ταῖς πύλαις γενόμενος καὶ
 τὰ τείχη καταλαβών· ἐφύλαττε γὰρ οὐδεῖς, ἀλλ'
 ἐν οἴνῳ καὶ συνουσίαις ἦσαν ἐσκεδασμένοι κατὰ
 4 τὰς οἰκίας. ἐπεὶ δὲ ἦσθοντο τοὺς πολεμίους κρατοῦντας ἤδη, οὕτω διέκειντο μοχθηρῶς ὑπὸ
 πλησμονῆς καὶ μέθης, ὡς μηδὲ πρὸς φυγὴν
 ὀρμήσαι πολλούς, ἀλλ' ἐν ταῖς οἰκίαις αἰσχιστα
 πάντων ὑπομένοντας ἀποθνήσκειν ἢ παραδιδόναί
 σφᾶς αὐτοὺς τοῖς πολεμίοις. τὴν μὲν οὖν Σουτρίνων πόλιν ἡμέρα μᾶ δις ἀλοῦσαν οὕτω συνέβη
 καὶ τοὺς ἔχοντας ἀποβαλεῖν, καὶ τοὺς ἀφηρημέ-νους ἀπολαβεῖν διὰ Κάμιλλον.

XXXVI. Ὁ δ' ἀπὸ τούτων θρίαμβος αὐτῷ
 χάριν οὐκ ἐλάττονα καὶ κόσμον ἤνεγκε τῶν
 πρώτων δυεῖν. καὶ γὰρ τοὺς πάνυ βασκαίνοντας
 τῶν πολιτῶν καὶ πάντα βουλομένους εὐτυχία

CAMILLUS

destitution, with nothing but the clothes on their backs. As Camillus came marching along they met him, with their wives and children, all lamenting their misfortunes. Camillus himself was filled with compassion at the sight, and noticed that his Romans too, with the Sutrians hanging upon their necks in supplication, were moved to tears and anger at their lot. He therefore determined to make no postponement of his vengeance, but to march straight upon Sutrium that very day. He reasoned that men who had just taken a prosperous and opulent city, leaving none of their enemies in it, and expecting none from without, would be found wholly relaxed in discipline and off their guard; and he reasoned correctly. He not only passed unnoticed through the city's territory, but was actually at its gates and in command of its walls before the enemy knew it. For not a man of them was on guard, but they were all scattered among the houses of the city drinking and feasting. And even when they perceived that their enemies already had the mastery, they were so sluggishly disposed by reason of satiety and drunkenness that many did not so much as try to flee, but awaited there in the houses the most shameful of all deaths, or gave themselves up to their enemies. The city of Sutrium was thus twice captured in a single day, and it came to pass that those who had won it, lost it, and those who had first lost it, won it back, and all by reason of Camillus.

XXXVI. The triumph decreed him for these victories brought him no less favour and renown than his first two had done, and those citizens who had been most envious of him and preferred to ascribe all his successes to an unbounded good fortune rather

- τινὲ μᾶλλον ἢ δι' ἀρετὴν κατωρθῶσθαι, τὸτ' ἠνάγκαζον αἱ πράξεις τῇ δεινότητι καὶ τῷ δρα-
 2 στηρίῳ τοῦ ἀνδρὸς ἀποδιδόναι τὴν δόξαν. ἦν δὲ τῶν διαμαχομένων αὐτῷ καὶ προσφθονούντων ἐπιφανέστατος Μάρκος Μάλλιος, ὁ πρῶτος ὡσάμενος τοὺς Κελτοὺς ἀπὸ τῆς ἄκρας ὅτε τῷ Καπιτωλίῳ νυκτὸς¹ ἐπέθεντο καὶ διὰ τοῦτο Καπιτωλίνος ἐπικληθεῖς. οὗτος γὰρ ἀξιῶν πρῶ-
 3 παρελθεῖν, ὑπόθεσιν τυραννίδος ἐποιήσατο κοινήν 148 καὶ συνήθη, δημαγωγῶν τοὺς πολλοὺς, μάλιστα δὲ τῶν ὀφειλόντων χρέα τοῖς μὲν ἀμύνων καὶ συνδικῶν ἐπὶ τοὺς δανειστάς, τοὺς δ' ἀφαιρού-
 4 μενος βία καὶ κωλύων ἄγεσθαι πρὸς τὸν νόμον, ὥστε πολλοὺς τῶν ἀπόρων ταχὺ περὶ αὐτὸν γενέσθαι καὶ πολὺν φόβον παρασχεῖν τοῖς βελτίστοις τῶν πολιτῶν θρασυνομένους καὶ
 5 ταραττόντας τὴν ἀγοράν. ἐπεὶ δὲ κατασταθεῖς ἐπὶ ταῦτα δικτάτωρ Κούιντος Καπιτωλίνος εἰς τὴν εἰρκτὴν ἐνέβαλε τὸν Μάλλιον, ὁ δὲ δῆμος γενομένου τούτου μετέβαλε τὴν ἐσθῆτα, πρᾶγμα γινόμενον ἐπὶ συμφοραῖς μεγάλαις καὶ δημοσίαις, δείσασα τὸν θόρυβον ἢ σύγκλητος ἐκέλευσεν ἀφεθῆναι τὸν Μάλλιον. ὁ δ' οὐδὲν ἦν ἀφεθεῖς ἀμείνων, ἀλλὰ σοβαρώτερον ἐδημαγωγῆται καὶ διεστασίαζε τὴν πόλιν. αἰροῦνται δὴ πάλιν χιλίαρχον τὸν Κάμιλλον.
- 5 Εἰσαγομένων δὲ τῶν κατὰ τοῦ Μαλλίου δικῶν μεγάλα τοὺς κατηγοροὺς ἔβλαπτεν ἢ ὄψις. ὁ γὰρ τόπος, ἐφ' οὗ βεβηκῶς ὁ Μάλλιος

¹ νυκτὸς with S : διὰ νυκτὸς.

CAMILLUS

than to a native valour, were forced by these new exploits to set the man's glory to the credit of his ability and energy. Now of all those who fought him with hatred and envy, the most conspicuous was Marcus Manlius, the man who first thrust the Gauls down the cliff when they made their night attack upon the Capitol, and for this reason had been surnamed Capitolinus. This man aspired to be chief in the city, and since he could not in the fairest way outstrip Camillus in the race for glory, he had recourse to the wonted and usual arts of those that would found a tyranny. He courted, that is, the favour of the multitude, especially of the debtor class, defending some and pleading their causes against their creditors; snatching others from arrest and preventing their trial by process of law. In this way great numbers of indigent folk soon formed a party about him, and their bold and riotous conduct in the forum gave the best citizens much to fear. To quell their disorder, Quintus Capitolinus was made dictator, and he cast Manlius into prison. Thereupon the people put on the garb of mourners, a thing done only in times of great public calamity, and the Senate, cowed by the tumult, ordered that Manlius be released. He, however, when released, did not mend his ways, but grew more defiantly seditious, and filled the whole city with faction. Accordingly, Camillus was again made military tribune.

When Manlius was brought to trial, the view from the place was a great obstacle in the way of his accusers. For the spot where Manlius had stood ένυκτομάχησε πρὸς τοὺς Κελτούς, ὑπερεφαίνετο τῆς ἀγορᾶς ἀπὸ τοῦ Καπιτωλίου καὶ παρέιχεν οἶκτον τοῖς ὀρώσιν· αὐτός τε τὰς χεῖρας ὀρέγων ἐκείσε καὶ δακρύων ὑπεμίμνησκε τῶν ἀγώνων, ὥστε τοὺς κρίνοντας ἀπορεῖν καὶ πολλάκις ἀναβάλλεσθαι τὴν δίκην, μὴτ' ἀφείναι βουλομένους ἐπὶ τεκμηρίοις φανεροῖς τὸ ἀδίκημα μῆτε χρήσασθαι τῷ νόμῳ δυναμένους ἐν ὀφθαλμοῖς τῆς πράξεως οὔσης διὰ τὸν τόπον. ὁ δὲ 6 συμφρονήσας ὁ Κάμιλλος μετήγαγεν ἔξω πύλης τὸ δικαστήριον εἰς τὸ Πετηλίνου ἄλσος· ὅθεν οὐκ ὄντος τοῦ Καπιτωλίου καταφανούς ὃ τε διώκων ἐχρήσατο τῇ κατηγορίᾳ καὶ τοῖς κρίνουσι παρεχώρησεν ἢ μνήμη τῶν γεγονότων ἀξίαν ἀναλαβείν¹ ὀργὴν ἐπὶ τοῖς παρούσιν ἀδικήμασιν. ὁ 7 μὲν οὖν Μάλλιος ἀλούς εἰς τὸ Καπιτώλιον ἀπήχθη, καὶ κατὰ τῆς πέτρας ὡσθελὶς τὸν αὐτὸν τόπον ἔσχε καὶ τῶν εὐτυχεστάτων ἔργων καὶ τῶν μεγίστων ἀτυχημάτων μνημείον. οἱ δὲ Ῥωμαῖοι τὴν οἰκίαν αὐτοῦ κατασκάψαντες ἱερὸν ἰδρύσαντο θεᾶς, ἣν Μονῆταν καλοῦσι, καὶ τὸ λοιπὸν ἐψηφίσαντο μηδένα τῶν πατρικίων ἐπὶ τῆς ἄκρας κατοικεῖν.

PLUTARCH'S LIVES

XXXVII. Ὁ δὲ Κάμιλλος ἐπὶ χιλιαρχίαν ἔκτην καλούμενος παρητεῖτο, γεγονὼς μὲν ἡλικίας ἤδη πρόσω καὶ πού τινα καὶ φθόνον δεδιὼς καὶ νέμεσιν ἐπὶ δόξῃ τοσαύτῃ καὶ κατορθώμασιν ἢ δὲ φανερωτάτῃ τῶν αἰτιῶν ἦν ἀρρωστία σώματος· ἐτύγχανε γὰρ νοσῶν περὶ τὰς ἡμέρας ἐκείνας. 2 οὐ μὲν παρήκεν αὐτῷ τὴν ἀρχὴν ὁ δῆμος, ἀλλὰ

¹ ἀναλαβεῖν with S: λαβεῖν.

CAMILLUS

when he fought his night battle with the Gauls, overlooked the forum from the Capitol, and moved the hearts of the spectators to pity. Manlius himself, too, stretched out his hands toward the spot, and wept as he called to men's remembrance his famous struggle there, so that the judges knew not what to do, and once and again postponed the case. They were unwilling to acquit the prisoner of his crime when the proofs of it were so plain; and they were unable to execute the law upon him when, owing to the place of trial, his saving exploit was, so to speak, in every eye. So Camillus, sensible of all this, transferred the court outside the city to the Peteline Grove, whence there is no view of the Capitol. There the prosecutor made his indictment, and the judges were able to forget the man's past services in their righteous anger at his present crimes. So then Manlius was convicted, carried to the Capitol, and thrust down the rock, thus making one and the same spot a monument of his most fortunate actions and of his greatest misfortunes. The Romans, besides, razed his house to the ground, and built there a temple to the goddess they call Moneta. They decreed also that in future no patrician should ever have a house on the Capitoline hill.

XXXVII. Camillus, called now to be military tribune for the sixth time, declined the honour, being already well on in years, and fearful perhaps of the envy of men and the resentment of the gods which often follows upon such glorious successes as his. But the most manifest reason was his bodily weakness, for it chanced that in those days he was sick. The people, however, would not relieve him of the

PLUTARCH'S LIVES

βοῶν μήτε ἰππεύοντας αὐτοῦ μήτε ὄπλομαχοῦντος
 ἐν τοῖς ἀγῶσι δεῖσθαι, βουλευομένου δὲ μόνον καὶ προστάττοντος, ἠνάγκασεν ὑποστῆναι τὴν στρα-τηγίαν καὶ μεθ' ἐνὸς τῶν συναρχόντων Λευκίου Φουρίου τὸν στρατὸν ἄγειν εὐθύς ἐπὶ τοὺς
 πολεμίους. οὗτοι δ' ἦσαν Πραϊνεστῖνοι καὶ
 Οὐολοῦσκοι μετὰ πολλῆς δυνάμεως τὴν συμμα-
 3 χίδα τῶν Ῥωμαίων πορθοῦντες. ἐξελθὼν δὲ
 καὶ παραστρατοπεδεύσας τοῖς πολεμίοις αὐτὸς
 μὲν ἠξίου τρίβειν τὸν πόλεμον χρόνῳ, κὰν εἰ
 μάχης δεήσειε ῥώσας τὸ σῶμα διαγωνίσασθαι, Λευκίου δὲ τοῦ συνάρχοντος ἐπιθυμία δόξης
 φερομένου πρὸς τὸν κίνδυνον ἀκατασχέτως καὶ
 συνεξορμῶντος ἅμα ταξιάρχους καὶ λοχαγούς, φοβηθεὶς μὴ φθόνῳ δὴ τιμὴν δοκῆ κατόρθωμα καὶ
 φιλοτιμίαν ἀφαιρεῖσθαι νέων ἀνδρῶν συνεχώρησεν
 ἅκων ἐκείνῳ παρατάξαι τὴν δύναμιν, αὐτὸς δὲ
 διὰ τὴν ἀσθένειαν ὑπελείφθη μετ' ὀλίγων ἐν τῷ
 4 στρατοπέδῳ. τοῦ δὲ Λευκίου προπετῶς χρησαμένου τῇ μάχῃ καὶ σφαλέντος, αἰσθόμενος τὴν
 τροπὴν τῶν Ῥωμαίων οὐ κατέσχευεν αὐτόν, ἀλλ'
 ἀναθορῶν ἐκ τῆς στιβάδος ἀπήντα μετὰ τῶν
 ὀπαδῶν ἐπὶ τὰς πύλας τοῦ χάρακος, διὰ τῶν φευ-γόντων ὠθούμενος εἰς τοὺς διώκοντας, ὥστε τοὺς
 μὲν εὐθύς ἀναστρέφειν καὶ συνακολουθεῖν, τοὺς
 δὲ προσφερομένους ἐξωθεν ἴστασθαι πρὸ αὐτοῦ
 καὶ συνασπίζειν, παρεγγυῶντας ἀλλήλοις μὴ
 5 ἀπολείπεσθαι τοῦ στρατηγοῦ. τότε μὲν οὖν
 οὕτως ἀπετράποντο τῆς διώξεως οἱ πολέμοι· τῇ
 δ' ὑστεραία προαγαγὼν τὴν δύναμιν ὁ Κάμιλλος

CAMILLUS

office. He had no need, they cried, to fight in the ranks of the cavalry or the men-at-arms, but only to counsel and ordain; and so they forced him to undertake the command, and with one of his colleagues, Lucius Furius, to lead the army at once against the enemy. These were the Praenestines and Volscians, who, with a large force, were laying waste the lands of the Roman allies. Marching forth, therefore, and encamping near the enemy, he himself thought it best to protract the war, that so, in case a battle should at last be necessary, he might be strong of body for the decisive struggle. But Lucius, his colleague, carried away by his desire for glory, would not be checked in his ardour for battle, and incited the same feelings in the inferior officers of the army. So Camillus, fearing lest it be thought that out of petty jealousy he was trying to rob younger men of the successes to which they eagerly aspired, consented, with reluctance, that Lucius should lead the forces out to battle, while he himself, on account of his sickness, was left behind in the camp with a few followers. Lucius conducted the battle rashly and was discomfited, whereupon Camillus, perceiving the rout of the Romans, could not restrain himself, but sprang up from his couch and ran with his attendants to the gate of the camp. Through the fugitives he pushed his way to their pursuers. Those of his men who had passed him into the camp, wheeled about at once and followed him, and those who came bearing down on him from outside, halted and formed their lines about him, exhorting one another not to abandon their general. In this way, for that day, the enemy were turned back from their pursuit. On the next day, Camillus

PLUTARCH'S LIVES

καὶ συνάψας μάχην αὐτούς τε νικᾷ κατὰ κράτος καὶ τὸν χάρακα λαμβάνει συνεισπεσῶν τοῖς φεύγουσι καὶ διαφθείρας τοὺς πλείστους. ἐκ δὲ τούτου πυθόμενος πόλιν Σατρίαν ὑπὸ Τυρρηνῶν ἐαλωκέναι καὶ τοὺς οἰκήτορας ἀπεσφάχθαι Ῥωμαίους ἅπαντας ὄντας, τὴν μὲν πολλὴν καὶ βαρεῖαν τῆς δυνάμεως εἰς Ῥώμην ἀπέστειλεν, αὐτὸς δὲ τοὺς ἀκμάζοντας μάλιστα καὶ προθυμότητους ἀναλαβὼν ἐπέβαλε τοῖς τὴν πόλιν ἔχουσι Τυρρηνοῖς καὶ κρατήσας τοὺς μὲν - ἐξήλασεν αὐτῶν, τοὺς δὲ ἀπέκτεινεν.

XXXVIII. Ἐπανελθὼν δὲ μετὰ πολλῶν λαφύρων εἰς Ῥώμην ἐπέδειξε φρονιμωτάτους ἀπάντων τοὺς μὴ φοβηθέντας ἀσθένειαν καὶ γῆρας ἡγεμόνος ἐμπειρίαν καὶ τόλμαν ἔχοντας, ἀλλ' ἐλομένους ἐκείνους ἄκοντα καὶ νοσοῦντα μᾶλλον ἢ τῶν ἐν ἡλικίᾳ τοὺς δεομένους καὶ σπουδάζοντας ἄρχειν. διὸ καὶ Τουσκλανῶν ἀφεστάναι λεγομένων ἐκέλευον ἐξιέναι τὸν Κάμιλλον ἐπ' αὐτούς

2 ἕνα τῶν πέντε συστρατῆγων προσελόμενον. ὁ δέ, καίπερ ἀπάντων βουλομένων καὶ δεομένων, εἶσας τοὺς ἄλλους, προσεῖλετο Λεύκιον Φούριον οὐδενὸς ἂν προσδοκῆσαντος. ἐκεῖνος γὰρ ἦν ὁ παρὰ γνώμην τοῦ Καμίλλου διαγωνίσασθαι προθυμηθεὶς ἔναγχος καὶ δυστυχῆσας περὶ τὴν μάχην· ἀλλὰ βουλομενος, ὡς ἔοικεν, ἀποκρύψαι τὴν συμφορὰν καὶ τὴν αἰσχύνην ἀπαλλάξαι τοῦ

3 ἀνδρὸς ἀντὶ πάντων τούτου προῆγεν. οἱ δὲ Τουσκλανοὶ τὴν ἀμαρτίαν ἐπανορθούμενοι πανούργως, ἤδη βαδίζοντος ἐπ' αὐτούς τοῦ Καμίλλου τὸ μὲν πεδίου ἀνθρώπων ὡς ἐν εἰρήνῃ γεωργοῦντων καὶ νεμόντων ἐπέπλησαν, τὰς δὲ πύλας εἶχον led his forces out, joined battle with the enemy, defeated them utterly, and took their camp, actually bursting into it along with those who fled to it, and slaying most of them. After this, learning that the city of Satricum had been taken by the Tuscans, and its inhabitants, all Romans, put to the sword, he sent back to Rome the main body of his army, comprising the men-at-arms, while he himself, with the youngest and most ardent of his men, fell suddenly upon the Tuscans who held the city and mastered them, expelling some and slaying the rest.

CAMILLUS

XXXVIII. He returned with much spoil to Rome, having proved that those citizens were the most sensible of all who did not fear the bodily age and weakness of a leader possessed of experience and courage, but chose him out, though he was ill and did not wish it, rather than younger men who craved and solicited the command. They showed the same good sense, when the Tusculans were reported to be on the brink of a revolt, in ordering Camillus to select one of his five colleagues as an aid, and march out against them. Although all the five wished and begged to be taken, Camillus passed the rest by and selected Lucius Furius, to everyone's surprise. For he was the man who had just now been eager to hazard a struggle with the enemy against the judgment of Camillus, and had been worsted in the battle. But Camillus wished, as it would seem, to hide away the misfortune and wipe away the disgrace of the man, and so preferred him above all the rest. But the Tusculans, when once Camillus was on the march against them, set to rectifying their transgression as craftily as they could. Their fields were found full of men tilling the soil and pasturing flocks, as in

PLUTARCH'S LIVES

· ἀνεωγμένας καὶ τοὺς παῖδας ἐν τοῖς διδασκαλείοις μαθάνοντας, τοῦ δὲ δήμου τὸ μὲν βάνουσον ἐπὶ
 τῶν ἐργαστηρίων ἐωρᾶτο περὶ τὰς τέχνας, τὸ δ' ἀστεῖον ἐπὶ τῆς ἀγορᾶς ἐν ἱματίοις· οἱ δ' ἄρχοντες
 περιήεσαν σπουδῇ καταλύσεις τοῖς Ῥωμαίοις
 ἐπαγγέλλοντες, ὡς οὐδὲν κακὸν προσδοκῶντες
 4 οὐδὲ συνειδότες. τούτων δὲ πραττομένων ἀπιστεῖν μὲν οὐκ ἐπῆει τῷ Καμίλλῳ τὴν προδοσίαν, οἰκτείρας δὲ τὴν ἐπὶ τῇ προδοσίᾳ μετάνοιαν
 αὐτῶν ἐκέλευσε πρὸς τὴν σύγκλητον ἐλθόντας
 παραιτεῖσθαι τὴν ὀργήν· καὶ παραιτουμένοις
 συνέπραξεν αὐτὸς ἀφεθῆναι τε τὴν πόλιν αἰτίας
 ἀπάσης καὶ μεταλαβεῖν ἰσοπολιτείας. αὐταὶ μὲν
 οὖν ἐγένοντο τῆς ἕκτης χιλιαρχίας ἐπιφανέσταται πράξεις.

XXXIX. Μετὰ δὲ ταῦτα Λικινίου Στόλωνος
 ἐν τῇ πόλει τὴν μεγάλην στάσιν ἐγείροντος, ἦν ὁ δήμος ἐστασίαζε πρὸς τὴν σύγκλητον βιαζόμενος
 δυεῖν ὑπάτων καθισταμένων τὸν ἕτερον πάντως ἐκ
 δημοτῶν εἶναι καὶ μὴ συναμφοτέρους πατρικίους, δήμαρχοι μὲν ἠρέθησαν, τὰς δ' ὑπατικὰς ἀρ-
 χαιρεσίας ἐπιτελεσθῆναι διεκώλυσαν οἱ πολλοί.
 2 καὶ τῶν πραγμάτων δι' ἀναρχίας φερομένων ἐς
 μείζονα ταραχὰς ἀποδείκνυται δικτάτωρ ὁ Κά-μιλλος ὑπὸ τῆς βουλῆς ἄκοντι τῷ δήμῳ τὸ τέταρ-τον, οὐδ' αὐτὸς ὦν πρόθυμος οὐδὲ βουλόμενος
 ἐναντιοῦσθαι πρὸς ἀνθρώπους παρρησίαν ἔχοντας
 ἀπὸ πολλῶν καὶ μεγάλων ἀγώνων πρὸς αὐτόν, ὡς πλείονα μετ' αὐτῶν¹ διαπεπραγμένος ἐν στρατη-γίαις ἢ μετὰ τῶν πατρικίων ἐν πολιτείαις, καὶ

¹ μετ' αὐτῶν διαπεπραγμένος edd., including Sintenis¹, and S;
 ἐν στρατηγίαις μετ' αὐτῶν with C.

CAMILLUS

times of peace ; their gates lay wide open ; their boys were at school conning their lessons ; and of the people, the artizans were to be seen in their workshops plying their trades, the men of leisure sauntered over the forum clad in their usual garb, while the magistrates bustled about assigning quarters for the Romans, as though they expected and were conscious of no evil. Their performances did not bring Camillus into any doubt of their intended treachery, but out of pity for the repentance that followed so close upon their treachery, he ordered them to go to the Senate and beg for a remission of its wrath. He himself also helped to make their prayers effectual, so that their city was absolved from all charges and received the rights of Roman citizenship. Such were the most conspicuous achievements of his sixth tribuneship.

XXXIX. After this, Licinius Stolo stirred up the great dissension in the city which brought the people into collision with the Senate. The people insisted that, when two consuls were appointed, one of them must certainly be a plebeian, and not both patricians. Tribunes of the people were chosen, but the multitude prevented the consular elections from being duly held. Owing to this lack of magistrates, matters were getting more and more confused, and so Camillus was for the fourth time appointed dictator by the Senate, though much against the wishes of the people. He was not eager for the office himself, nor did he wish to oppose men whose many and great struggles gave them the right to say boldly to him : "Your achievements have been in the field with us, rather than in politics with the patricians ;

νῦν διὰ φθόνον ἐκείνων ἡρημένος ὑπ' αὐτῶν, ὅπως
 ἢ καταλύσειε τὸν δῆμον ἰσχύσας ἢ καταλυθείη
 3 μὴ κρατήσας. οὐ μὴν ἀλλὰ πειρώμενος ἀμύνειν
 τοῖς παροῦσι, τὴν ἡμέραν γνούς, ἐν ἧ νομοθετεῖν 150
 οἱ δῆμαρχοι διανοοῦντο, προέγραψε στρατιᾶς κα-τάλογον καὶ μετεκάλει τὸν δῆμον ἐκ τῆς ἀγορᾶς
 εἰς τὸ πεδίου μεγάλας ζημίας ἀπειλῶν κατὰ τοῦ 4 μὴ ὑπακούσαντος. τῶν δὲ δημάρχων ἐκείθεν αὐ-πάλιν ἀντανισταμένων ταῖς ἀπειλαῖς καὶ διομνυ-μένων πέντε μυριάσιν ἀργυρίου ζημιώσειν, εἰ μὴ παύσαιτο τοῦ δήμου τὸν νόμον ἀφαιρούμενοις καὶ
 τὴν ψήφον, εἴτε δείσας φυγὴν ἑτέραν καὶ κατα-δίκην, ὡς ἀνδρὶ πρεσβύτῃ καὶ κατειργασμένῳ
 μέγала μὴ πρέπουσαν, εἴτε τοῦ δήμου τὴν βίαν
 ἄμαχον οὔσαν καὶ δυσνίκητον ὑπερβαλέσθαι μὴ
 δυνάμενος μηδὲ βουλόμενος, τότε μὲν ὑπεχώρησεν
 οἴκαδε· ταῖς δ' ἐξῆς ἡμέραις σκηψάμενος ἀρ-ρωστεῖν ἐξωμόσατο τὴν ἀρχήν.

5 Ἡ δὲ σύγκλητος ἕτερον δικτάτορα κατέστησε·
 κακείνος ἀποδείξας ἵππαρχον αὐτὸν τὸν ἡγεμόνα
 τῆς στάσεως Στόλωνα παρήκεν ἐπικυρῶσαι τὸν
 νόμον τὸν μάλιστα λυποῦντα τοὺς πατρικίους.
 ἐκέλευσε δ' οὗτος μηδένα πλέθρων πεντακοσίων
 πλείονα χώραν κεκτῆσθαι. τότε μὲν οὖν λαμπρὸς
 ὁ Στόλων ἐγεγόνει τῇ ψήφῳ κρατήσας· ὀλίγῳ δ' ὕστερον αὐτὸς ἐάλω κεκτημένος ὅσῃν ἔχειν ἐκώ-λυνεν ἑτέρους, καὶ κατὰ τὸν αὐτοῦ νόμον δίκην ἔδωκεν.

XL. Ὑπολειπομένης δὲ τῆς περὶ τῶν ὑπατικῶν
 ἀρχαιρεσιῶν φιλονεικίας, ὃ δὴ χαλεπώτατον τῆς
 στάσεως ἦν καὶ πρῶτον ἤρξε καὶ πλείστα

CAMILLUS

it is through hate and envy that they have now made you dictator; they hope that you will crush the people if you prevail, or be crushed yourself if you fail." However, he tried to ward off the threatening evils. Having learned the day on which the tribunes intended to propose their law, he issued proclamation making it a day of general muster, and summoned the people from the forum into the Campus Martius, with threats of heavy fines upon the disobedient. The tribunes, on the contrary, for their part, opposed his threats with solemn oaths that they would fine him fifty thousand silver drachmas if he did not cease trying to rob the people of its vote and its law. Then, either because he feared a second condemnation to exile, a penalty unbecoming to a man of his years and achievements, or because he was not able, if he wished, to overcome the might of the people which was now become resistless and invincible, he withdrew to his house, and after alleging sickness for several days, resigned his office.

But the Senate appointed another dictator, and he, after making Stolo himself, the very leader of the sedition, his master of horse, suffered the law to be enacted. It was a most vexatious law for the patrician, for it prohibited anyone from owning more than five hundred acres of land. At that time, then, Stolo was a resplendent figure, owing to his victory at the polls; but a little while after, he himself was found to be possessed of what he forbade others to own, and so paid the penalty fixed by his own law.

XL. There remained, however, the strife over the consular elections, which was the main problem in the dissensions, as it was its first cause, and gave πράγματα τῇ βουλῇ παρέσχε διαφορομένη πρὸς τὸν δῆμον, ἀγγελίαι προσέπεσον σαφεῖς, Κελτοὺς αὖθις ἀπὸ τῆς Ἀδριατικῆς ἄραντας θαλάσσης μυριάσι πολλαῖς ἐπὶ τὴν Ῥώμην ἐλαύ-

 2 νειν. ἅμα δὲ τῷ λόγῳ καὶ τὰ ἔργα τοῦ πολέμου παρῆν πορθουμένης τῆς χώρας καὶ τῶν ἀνθρώπων, ὅσοις μὴ ῥάδιον ἦν εἰς τὴν Ῥώμην καταφυγεῖν, ἀνὰ τὰ ὄρη σκεδαννυμένων. οὗτος ὁ φόβος κατέπαυσε τὴν στάσιν, καὶ συνελθόντες εἰς ταῦτὸ τοῖς πολλοῖς οἱ κρᾶτιστοι καὶ τῇ βουλῇ
 3 κτάτορα τὸ πέμπτοιν Κάμιλλον. ὁ δ' ἦν μὲν σφόδρα γέρων καὶ μικρὸν ἀπέλειπεν ὄγδοῆκοντα ἔτη γεγονέναι· συνορῶν δὲ τὴν ἀνάγκην καὶ τὸν κίνδυνον, οὔτε ὑποτίμησιν εἰπὼν, ὡς πρότερον, οὔτε προφάσει χρησάμενος, ἀλλ' αὐτόθεν ὑποστάς τὴν στρατηγίαν κατέλεγε τοὺς μαχησομένους.

Εἰδὼς δὲ τῆς τῶν βαρβάρων ἀλκῆς τὴν βιαιοτάτην ἐν ταῖς μαχαίραις οὔσαν, ἃς βαρβαρικῶς καὶ σὺν οὐδεμιᾷ τέχνῃ καταφέροντες ὤμους 4 μάλιστα καὶ κεφαλὰς διέκοπτον, ἐχαλκεύσατο μὲν κράνη τοῖς πλείστοις ὀλοσίδηρα καὶ λεία ταῖς περιφερείαις, ὡς ἀπολισθαίνειν ἢ κατάγνυσθαι τὰς μαχαίρας, τοῖς δὲ θυρεοῖς κύκλῳ περιήρμωσε λεπίδα χαλκῆν, τοῦ ξύλου καθ' αὐτὸ τὰς πληγὰς μὴ στέγοντος· αὐτοὺς δὲ τοὺς στρατιώτας ἐδί-दाξε τοῖς ὕσσοις μακροῖς διὰ χειρὸς χρῆσθαι καὶ τοῖς ξίφεσι τῶν πολεμίων ὑποβάλλοντας ἐκδέχεσθαι τὰς καταφοράς.

XLI. Ἐπεὶ δὲ πλησίον ἦσαν οἱ Κελτοί, περὶ τὸν Ἀνίωνα ποταμὸν στρατόπεδον βαρὺ καὶ

CAMILLUS

the Senate most concern in its contention with the people. But suddenly clear tidings came that the Gauls had once more set out from the Adriatic Sea, many myriads strong, and were marching on Rome. With the word, the actual deeds of war kept pace. The country was ravaged, and its population, all who could not more easily fly to Rome for refuge, scattered among the mountains. This terror put an end to the dissension in the city, and brought together into conference both the rich and the poor, the Senate and the people. All with one mind chose Camillus dictator for the fifth time. He was now quite old, lacking little of eighty years; but recognizing the peril and the necessity which it laid upon him, he neither made excuse, as before, nor resorted to pretext, but instantly took upon him the command and went to levying his soldiers.

Knowing that the prowess of the Barbarians lay chiefly in their swords, which they plied in true barbaric fashion, and with no skill at all, in mere slashing blows at head and shoulders, he had helmets forged for most of his men which were all iron and smooth of surface, that the enemy's swords might slip off from them or be shattered by them. He also had the long shields of his men rimmed round with bronze, since their wood could not of itself ward off the enemy's blows. The soldiers themselves he trained to use their long javelins like spears,—to thrust them under the enemy's swords and catch the downward strokes upon them.

XLI. When the Gauls were near at hand, being encamped on the Anio and encumbered with untold

- μεστὸν ἀφθόνου λείας ἔχοντες, ἔξαγαγὼν τὴν δύναμιν ἴδρυσε κατὰ νάπης μαλακῆς καὶ συγκλίσεις πολλὰς ἐχούσης, ὥστε τὸ μὲν πλεῖστον ἀποκρύπτεσθαι, τὸ δ' ὀρώμενον δοκεῖν ὑπὸ δέους
- 2 εἰς χωρία προσάντη κατειλεῖσθαι. ταύτην δὲ τὴν δόξαν αὐτῶν ὁ Κάμιλλος αὖξιν βουλόμενος οὐ προσήμυνε τῶν ὑπὸ πόδας πορθουμένων, ἀλλὰ τὸν χάρακα φραζόμενος ἠρέμει, μέχρι οὐ τοὺς μὲν ἐν προνομαῖς ἐσκεδασμένους κατέϊδε, τοὺς δ' ἐν τῷ στρατοπέδῳ πᾶσαν ὥραν ἐμπιπλαμένους
- 3 ἀφειδῶς καὶ μεθύνοντας. τότε δὲ νυκτὸς ἔτι τοὺς ψιλοὺς προεκπέμψας ἐμποδὼν εἶναι τοῖς βαρβάροις εἰς τάξιν καθισταμένοις καὶ διαταράττειν εὐθὺς ἐπεξίοντας, κατεβίβαζεν ὄρθρου τοὺς ὀπλίτας καὶ παρέταττεν ἐν τοῖς ἐπιπέδοις, πολλοὺς 151 καὶ προθύμους, οὐχ ὥσπερ οἱ βάρβαροι προσεδόκων, ὀλίγους καὶ ἀτόλμους φανέντας. πρῶτον μὲν οὖν τοῦτο τῶν Κελτῶν ἀνέτρεψε τὰ φρονήματα παρ' ἀξίαν ἐπιχειρεῖσθαι δοκούντων. ἔπειτα προσπίπτοντες οἱ ψιλοὶ καὶ πρὶν ἢ τὸν συνήθη λαβεῖν κόσμον καὶ διακριθῆναι κατὰ λόχους κινοῦντες αὐτοὺς καὶ βιαζόμενοι πρὸς τὸ
- 4 συντυχὸν ἀτάκτους ἠνάγκασαν μάχεσθαι. τέλος δὲ τοῦ Καμίλλου τοὺς ὀπλίτας ἐπάγοντος, οἱ μὲν ἀνατεινόμενοι τὰς μαχαίρας συνδραμεῖν ἔσπευδον, οἱ δὲ τοῖς ὑσσοῖς ἀπαντῶντες καὶ τὰ σεσιδηρωμένα μέρη ταῖς πληγαῖς ὑποφέροντες ἀνέστρεφον τὸν ἐκείνων σίδηρον μαλακὸν ὄντα καὶ λεπτῶς ἐληλαμένον, ὥστε κίμπτεσθαι ταχὺ καὶ διπλοῦσθαι τὰς μαχαίρας, τοὺς δὲ θυρεοὺς
- 200

CAMILLUS

plunder, Camillus led his forces out and posted them in a gently sloping glade with many hollows, so that the largest part of them were concealed, and the part that could be seen had the look of shutting themselves up in hilly places out of fear. This opinion of them Camillus wished to strengthen, and therefore made no defence of those who were plundered even at his very feet, but fenced in his trenches and lay quiet, until he saw that some of the enemy were scattered abroad in foraging parties, while those in the camp did nothing but gorge themselves with meat and drink. Then, while it was yet night, he sent his light-armed troops forward to hinder the Barbarians from falling into battle-array and throw them into confusion as they issued from their camp. Just before dawn, he led his men-at-arms down into the plain and drew them up in battle-array, many in number and full of spirit, as the Barbarians now saw, not few and timid, as they had expected. To begin with, it was this which shattered the confidence of the Gauls, who thought it beneath them to be attacked first. Then again, the light-armed folk fell upon them, forced them into action before they had taken their usual order and been arrayed in companies, and so compelled them to fight at random and in utter disorder. Finally, when Camillus led his men-at-arms to the attack, the enemy raised their swords on high and rushed for close quarters. But the Romans thrust their javelins into their faces, received their strokes on the parts that were shielded by iron, and so turned the edge of their metal, which was soft and weakly tempered, so much so that their swords quickly bent up double, while their shields were pierced and συμπεπάρθαι καὶ βαρύνεσθαι τῶν ὑσῶν ἐφελ-

 5 κομένων. διὸ καὶ μεθιστάμενοι τῶν ἰδίων ὄπλων
 ἐπειρῶντο τοῖς ἐκείνων συστρέφεσθαι καὶ τοὺς
 ὑσσοὺς παραφέρειν ἐπιλαμβανόμενοι ταῖς χερσίν.
 οἱ δὲ Ῥωμαῖοι γυμνουμένους¹ ὀρῶντες ἤδη τοῖς
 ξίφεσιν ἐχρῶντο, καὶ φόνος μὲν ἦν πολὺς τῶν
 προτάκτων, φυγὴ δὲ τῶν ἄλλων πανταχόσε τοῦ
 πεδίου. τοὺς γὰρ λόφους καὶ τὰ ὑψηλὰ προκα-ειλίηφει Κάμιλλος, τὸ δὲ στρατόπεδον διὰ τὸ
 θαρσεῖν ἄφρακτον ἔχοντες ἤδεσαν οὐ χαλεπῶς ἄλωσόμενον.

6 Ταύτην τὴν μάχην ἔτεσιν ὕστερον τρισκαίδεκα
 γενέσθαι λέγουσι τῆς Ῥώμης ἀλώσεως, καὶ βέ-βαιον ἐξ αὐτῆς φρόνημα κατὰ τῶν Κελτῶν ἐγγε-νέσθαι Ῥωμαίοις σφόδρα δεδοικόσι τοὺς βαρβάρους, ὡς τὸ πρῶτον διὰ νόσους καὶ τύχας παραλόγους, οὐ κατὰ κράτος, ὑπ' αὐτῶν νενικη-μένους. οὕτω δ' οὖν ὁ φόβος ἦν ἰσχυρὸς, ὥστε
 θέσθαι νόμον ἀφείσθαι τοὺς ἱερεῖς στρατείας
 χωρὶς ἂν μὴ Γαλατικὸς ἦ πόλεμος.

XLII. Τῶν μὲν οὖν στρατιωτικῶν ἀγῶνων
 οὗτος ἠγωνίσθη τῷ Καμίλλῳ τελευταῖος. τὴν
 γὰρ Οὐελιτρανῶν πόλιν εἶλεν ἐν παρέργῳ ταύτης
 τῆς στρατείας ἀμαχεῖ προσχωρήσασαν αὐτῷ.
 τῶν δὲ πολιτικῶν ὁ μέγιστος ὑπελείπετο καὶ
 χαλεπώτερος² πρὸς τὸν δῆμον ἰσχυρὸν ἐπανήκοντα τῇ νίκῃ καὶ βιαζόμενον ἐκ δημοτῶν ὑπατον
 ἀποδείξαι παρὰ τὸν καθεστῶτα νόμον, ἀντιταπτομένης τῆς βουλῆς καὶ τὸν Κάμιλλον οὐκ ἐώσης

¹ γυμνουμένους with S: γυμνοὺς.

² καὶ χαλεπώτερος Sintenis¹, now supported by S: χαλεπώτερος.

CAMILLUS

weighed down by the javelins which stuck in them. Therefore they actually abandoned their own weapons and tried to possess themselves of those of their enemies, and to turn aside the javelins by grasping them in their hands. But the Romans, seeing them thus disarmed, at once took to using their swords, and there was a great slaughter of their foremost ranks, while the rest fled every whither over the plain; the hill tops and high places had been occupied beforehand by Camillus, and they knew that their camp could easily be taken, since, in their overweening confidence, they had neglected to fortify it.

This battle, they say, was fought thirteen years after the capture of Rome, and produced in the Romans a firm feeling of confidence regarding the Gauls. They had mightily feared these Barbarians, who had been conquered by them in the first instance, as they felt, in consequence of sickness and extraordinary misfortunes, rather than of any prowess in their conquerors. At any rate, so great had their terror been that they made a law exempting priests from military service, except in case of a Gallic war.

XLII. This was the last military exploit performed by Camillus, for the capture of Velitrae was a direct sequel of this campaign, and it yielded to him without a struggle. But the greatest of his civil contests yet remained and it was harder to wage it now against a people which had come back flushed with victory, and bent on electing a plebeian consul, contrary to the established law. But the Senate opposed their demands, and would not suffer Camillus to lay aside

- ἀποθέσθαι τὴν ἀρχήν, ὡς μετ' ἰσχυρᾶς καὶ
 2 μεγάλης ἐξουσίας τῆς ἐκείνου μαχησομένων ἀν
 βέλτιον ὑπὲρ τῆς ἀριστοκρατίας. ἐπεὶ δὲ
 προκαθημένου τοῦ Καμίλλου καὶ χρηματίζοντος
 ἐπὶ τῆς ἀγορᾶς ὑπηρέτης πεμφθεὶς παρὰ τῶν
 δημάρχων ἐκέλευσεν ἀκολουθεῖν καὶ τὴν χεῖρα
 τῷ σώματι προσήγεν ὡς ἀπάξων, κραυγὴ δὲ καὶ θόρυβος, οἷος οὐπω, κατέσχε τὴν ἀγοράν, τῶν
 μὲν περὶ τὸν Κάμιλλον ὠθούντων ἀπὸ τοῦ
 βήματος τὸν δημόσιον, τῶν δὲ πολλῶν κάτωθεν
 ἔλκειν ἐπικελευομένων, ἀπορούμενος τοῖς παροῦσι τὴν μὲν ἀρχὴν οὐ προήκατο, τοὺς δὲ βου-λευτὰς ἀναλαβὼν ἐβάδιζεν ἐπὶ τὴν σύγκλητον.
 3 καὶ πρὶν εἰσελθεῖν μεταστραφεὶς εἰς τὸ Καπιτώλιον εὐξάτο τοῖς θεοῖς κατευθῆναι τὰ παρόντα
 πρὸς τὸ κάλλιστον τέλος, ὑποσχόμενος ναὸν
 Ὀμοιοῖας ἰδρῦσασθαι τῆς ταραχῆς καταστάσης.
 Μεγάλου δ' ἀγῶνος ἐν τῇ συγκλήτῳ γενο-μένου πρὸς τὰς ἐναντίας γνώμας, ὅμως ἐνίκησεν
 ἢ μαλακωτέρα καὶ ὑπεῖκουσα τῷ δήμῳ καὶ
 διδοῦσα τῶν ὑπάτων τὸν ἕτερον ἀπὸ τοῦ πλή-4 θους ἀρχαιρεσιάζουσα. ταῦτα δ' ὡς τῇ βουλῇ
 δοκοῦντα τοῦ δικτάτορος ἀνειπόντος ἐν τῷ δήμῳ, παραχρῆμα μὲν, οἷον εἰκός, ἠδόμενοι τῇ βουλῇ
 διηλλάττοντο καὶ τὸν Κάμιλλον οἴκαδε κρότῳ
 καὶ βοῇ προέπεμπον. τῇ δ' ὑστεραία συνελθόντες ἐψηφίσαντο τῆς μὲν Ὀμοιοῖας ἱερὸν,
 ὥσπερ εὐξάτο Κάμιλλος, εἰς τὴν ἀγοράν καὶ τὴν
 5 ἐκκλησίαν ἀποπτον ἐπὶ τοῖς γεγενημένοις ἰδρῦσασθαι, ταῖς δὲ καλουμέναις Λατίναις μίαν ἡμέραν προσθέντας ἑορτάζειν τέτταρας, παραυ-

CAMILLUS

his office, thinking that, with the aid of his great power and authority, they could make a better fight in defence of their aristocracy. But once when Camillus was seated in state and despatching public business in the forum, an officer, sent by the tribunes of the people, ordered him to follow, actually laying hands upon him as though to hale him away. All at once such cries and tumult as had never been heard before filled the forum, the friends of Camillus thrusting the plebeian officer down from the tribunal, and the multitude below ordering him to drag the dictator away. Camillus, perplexed at the issue, did not renounce his office, but taking the senators with him, marched off to their place of meeting. Before he entered this, turning to the Capitol, he prayed the gods to bring the present tumults to their happiest end, solemnly vowing to build a temple to Concord when the confusion was over.

In the Senate there was a great conflict of opposing views, but nevertheless, the milder course prevailed, concession was made to the people, and permission given them to elect one of the consuls from their own body. When the dictator announced this to the people as the will and pleasure of the Senate, at once, as was to be expected, they were delighted to be reconciled with the Senate, and escorted Camillus to his home with loud applause. On the following day they held an assembly and voted to build a temple of Concord, as Camillus had vowed, and to have it face the forum and place of assembly, to commemorate what had now happened. They voted also to add a day to the so-called Latin festival, and thereafter to celebrate four days, and that all τίκα δὲ θύειν καὶ στεφανηφορεῖν Ῥωμαίους ἅπαντας. τῶν δ' ἀρχαιρεσίῳ βραβευθέντων ὑπὸ Καμίλλου κατεστάθησαν ὑπατοὶ Μάρκος μὲν Αἰμίλιος ἐκ πατρικίων, Λεύκιος δὲ Σέξτιος ἐκ δημοτῶν πρῶτος. καὶ τοῦτο πέρασ αἱ Καμίλλου πράξεις ἔσχον.

PLUTARCH'S LIVES

XLIII. Ἐν δὲ τῷ κατόπιν ἐνιαυτῷ λοιμῶδης νόσος ἐμπεσοῦσα τῇ Ῥώμῃ τὸν μὲν ἄλλον ὄχλον οὐ περιληπτὸν ἀριθμῷ διέφθειρε, τῶν δ' ἀρχόντων τοὺς πλείστους. Ἐτελεύτησε δὲ καὶ Κάμιλλος, ἡλικίας μὲν οὐνεκα καὶ βίου τελειότητος, ὡς εἴ τις ἄλλος ἀνθρώπων ὠραῖος, ἀνιάσας δὲ Ῥωμαίους ὡς οὐδὲ σύμπαντες οἱ τῇ νόσῳ κατ' ἐκείνου τὸν χρόνον ἀποθανόντες.

CAMILLUS

Romans at once perform sacrifices with garlands on their heads. At the elections held by Camillus, Marcus Aemilius was chosen consul from the patricians, and Lucius Sextus first consul from the plebeians. This was the last public act of Camillus.

XLIII. In the year following, a pestilential sickness visited Rome, carrying off an incalculable number of the common people, and most of the magistrates. Camillus also died at this time, and he was full ripe for death, if any man ever was, considering his years and the completeness of his life ; yet his loss grieved the Romans more than that of all those who perished of the plague at this time.

ARISTIDES

VOL. II.

P

ΑΡΙΣΤΕΙΔΗΣ

Ι. Ἀριστείδης ὁ Λυσιμάχου φυλῆς μὲν ἦν Ἀντιοχίδος, τῶν δὲ δήμων Ἀλωπεκῆθεν. περὶ δ' οὐσίας αὐτοῦ λόγοι διάφοροι γεγονόασιν, οἱ μὲν ὡς ἐν πενία συντόνῳ καταβιώσαντος καὶ μετὰ τὴν τελευταίην ἀπολιπόντος θυγατέρας δύο πολὺν
2 χρόνον ἀνεκδότους δι' ἀπορίαν γενομένας· πρὸς δὲ τοῦτον τὸν λόγον ὑπὸ πολλῶν εἰρημένον ἀντιτασσόμενος ὁ Φαληρεὺς Δημήτριος ἐν τῷ Σωκράτει χωρίου Φαληροῖ φησι γινώσκειν Ἀριστείδου
γενόμενον, ἐν ᾧ τέθραπται, καὶ τεκμήρια τῆς περὶ
τὸν οἶκον εὐπορίας ἐν μὲν ἡγεΐται τὴν ἐπώνυμον
ἀρχήν, ἣν ἤρχεν ὁ¹ τῷ κυάμφ λαχὼν ἐκ τῶν
γενῶν τῶν τὰ μέγιστα τιμήματα κεκτημένων, οὓς
3 πεντακοσιομεδίμνους προσηγόρευον, ἕτερον δὲ τὸν ἐξοστρακισμόν· οὐδενὶ γὰρ τῶν πενήτων, ἀλλὰ
τοῖς ἐξ οἴκων τε μεγάλων καὶ διὰ γένους ὄγκον
ἐπιφθόνων ὄστρακον ἐπιφέρεσθαι· τρίτον δὲ καὶ
τελευταῖον, ὅτι νίκης ἀναθήματα χορηγικούς
τρίποδας ἐν Διούσου καταλέλοιπεν, οἱ καὶ καθ'
ἡμᾶς ἐδείκνυντο τοιαύτην ἐπιγραφὴν διασώζοντες·

¹ ἤρχεν ὁ Blass, adopting Sintenis' conjecture: ἤρξε.

ARISTIDES

I. ARISTIDES, the son of Lysimachus, belonged to the tribe Antiochis, and to the deme Alopecé. As regards his substance, stories differ, some having it that he passed all the days of his life in severe poverty, and that at his death he left behind him two daughters who for a long time were not sought in marriage because of their indigence. But in contradiction of this story which so many writers give, Demetrius of Phalerum, in his "Socrates," says he knows of an estate in Phalerum which belonged to Aristides—the one in which he lies buried, and regards as proofs of his opulent circumstances, first, his office of Archon Eponymous, which only he could hold who obtained it by lot from among the families carrying the highest property-assessments (these were called Pentacosiedimni, or Five-hundred-bushellers); second, his banishment in ostracism, for no poor men, but only men from great houses which incurred envy because of their family prestige, were liable to ostracism; third, and last, the fact that he left in the precinct of Dionysus as offerings for victory some choregic tripods, which, even in our day, were pointed out as still bearing the inscription: "The tribe

PLUTARCH'S LIVES

“ Ἄντιοχὶς ἐνίκα, Ἀριστείδης ἐχορήγει, Ἀρχέστρατος ἐδίδασκε.”

- 4 Τοῦτὶ μὲν οὖν, καίπερ εἶναι δοκοῦν μέγιστον, ἀσθενέστατόν ἐστι. καὶ γὰρ Ἐπαμεινώνδας, ὃν πάντες ἄνθρωποι γινώσκουσιν ἐν πενία καὶ τραφέντα πολλῇ καὶ βιώσαντα, καὶ Πλάτων ὁ φιλόσοφος οὐκ ἀφιλοτίμους ἀνεδέξαντο χορηγίας, ὁ μὲν αὐληταῖς ἀνδράσιν, ὁ δὲ παισὶ κυκλίοις χορηγήσας, τούτῳ μὲν Δίωνος τοῦ Συρακουσίου τὴν δαπάνην παρέχοντος, Ἐπαμεινώνδα δὲ τῶν
- 5 περὶ Πελοπίδαν. οὐ γὰρ ἔστι τοῖς ἀγαθοῖς ἀκήρυκτος καὶ ἄσπονδος πρὸς τὰς παρὰ τῶν φίλων δωρεὰς πόλεμος, ἀλλὰ τὰς εἰς ἀπόθεσιν καὶ πλεονεξίαν ἀγενεῖς ἡγούμενοι καὶ ταπεινάς, 319 ὅσαι φιλοτιμίας τινὸς ἀκερδοῦς ἔχονται καὶ λαμπρότητος οὐκ ἀπωθοῦνται.

- Παναίτιος μέντοι περὶ τοῦ τρίποδος ἀποφαίνει
- 6 τὸν Δημήτριον ὁμωνυμία διεψευσμένον· ἀπὸ γὰρ τῶν Μηδικῶν εἰς τὴν τελευταίην τοῦ Πελοποννησιακοῦ πολέμου δύο μόνους Ἀριστείδας χορηγοὺς ἀναγράφεσθαι νικῶντας, ὧν οὐδέτερον εἶναι τῷ Λυσιμάχου τὸν αὐτόν, ἀλλὰ τὸν μὲν Ξενοφίλου πατρός, τὸν δὲ χρόνῳ πολλῷ νεώτερον, ὡς ἐλέγχει τὰ γράμματα τῆς μετ’ Εὐκλείδην ὄντα γραμματικῆς καὶ προσγεγραμμένος ὁ Ἀρχέστρατος, ὃν ἐν τοῖς Μηδικοῖς οὐδεὶς, ἐν δὲ τοῖς Πελοποννησιακοῖς συχνοὶ χορῶν διδάσκαλον ἀναγράφουσι.

- 7 Τὸ μὲν οὖν τοῦ Παναιτίου βέλτιον ἐπισκεπτέον Antiochis was victorious; Aristides was Choregus; Archestratus was Poet."

ARISTIDES

Now this last argument, though it seems very strong, is really very weak. For both Epaminondas, who, as all men know, was reared and always lived in great poverty, and Plato the philosopher, took it upon themselves to furnish munificent public performances, the first, of men trained to play the flute, the second, of boys trained to sing and dance; but Plato received the money that he spent thereon from Dion of Syracuse, and Epaminondas from Pelopidas. Good men wage no savage and relentless war against the gifts of friends, but while they look upon gifts taken to be stored away and increase the receiver's wealth as ignoble and mean, they refuse none which promote an unselfish and splendid munificence.

However, as regards the tripods, Panaetius tries to show that Demetrius was deceived by identity of name. From the Persian wars, he says, down to the end of the Peloponnesian war, only two Aristides are recorded as victorious choregi, and neither of them is identical with the son of Lysimachus. One was the son of Xenophilus, and the other lived long afterwards, as is proved by the inscription itself, which is written in the character used after Eucleides,¹ as well as by the last name, Archestratus, of whom there is no record during the Persian wars, while during the time of the Peloponnesian war his name often appears as that of a choral poet.

This argument of Panaetius should be more closely

¹ In 403-402 B.C., when Eucleides was Archon Eponymous, the Ionian alphabet was officially adopted at Athens.

PLUTARCH'S LIVES

ὅπως ἔχει. τῷ δ' ὀστράκῳ πᾶς ὁ διὰ δόξαν ἢ γένος ἢ λόγου δύναμιν ὑπὲρ τοὺς πολλοὺς νομιζόμενος ὑπέπιπτεν· ὅπου καὶ Δάμων ὁ Περικλέους διδάσκαλος, ὅτι τὸ φρονεῖν ἐδόκει τις
 8 εἶναι περιττός, ἐξωστρακίσθη. καὶ μὴν ἄρξαι γε τὸν Ἀριστείδην ὁ Ἰδομενεὺς οὐ κναμεντόν, ἀλλ' ἐλομένων Ἀθηναίων φησίν. εἰ δὲ καὶ μετὰ τὴν ἐν Πλαταιαῖς μάχην ἤρξεν, ὡς αὐτὸς ὁ Δημήτριος γέγραφε, καὶ πάνυ πιθανόν ἐστιν ἐπὶ δόξῃ τοσαύτῃ καὶ κατορθώμασι τηλικούτοις ἀξιωθῆναι δι' ἀρετὴν ἧς διὰ πλοῦτον ἐτύγχανον οἱ λαγχά-
 9 νοντες. ἀλλὰ γὰρ ὁ μὲν Δημήτριος οὐ μόνον Ἀριστείδην, ἀλλὰ καὶ Σωκράτην δῆλός ἐστι τῆς πενίας ἐξελέσθαι φιλοτιμούμενος ὡς μεγάλου κακοῦ· καὶ γὰρ ἐκείνῃ φησὶν οὐ μόνον τὴν οἰκίαν ὑπάρχειν, ἀλλὰ καὶ μνᾶς ἑβδομήκοντα τοκιζομένας ὑπὸ Κρίτωνος.

II. Ἀριστείδης δὲ Κλεισθένης μὲν τοῦ καταστησαμένου τὴν πολιτείαν μετὰ τοὺς τυράννους ἐταῖρος γενόμενος, ζηλώσας δὲ καὶ θαυμάσας μάλιστα τῶν πολιτικῶν ἀνδρῶν Λυκούργον τὸν Λακεδαιμόνιον, ἤψατο μὲν ἀριστοκρατικῆς πολιτείας, ἔσχε δ' ἀντιτασσόμενον ὑπὲρ τοῦ δήμου Θεμιστοκλέα τὸν Νεοκλέους. ἔνιοι μὲν οὖν φασὶν παῖδας ὄντας αὐτοὺς καὶ συντρεφομένους ἀπ' ἀρχῆς ἐν παντὶ καὶ σπουδῆς ἐχομένῳ καὶ παιδιᾷ πράγματι καὶ λόγῳ διαφέρεσθαι πρὸς ἀλλήλους,
 2 καὶ τὰς φύσεις εὐθύς ὑπὸ τῆς φιλονεικίας ἐκείνης

ARISTIDES

examined as to its validity; but to banishment in ostracism every one was liable who was superior to the common run of men in reputation, or lineage, or eloquence. And so it was that Damon, the teacher of Pericles, was ostracized because he was thought to be rather extraordinary in his wisdom.¹ Furthermore, Idomeneus says that Aristides obtained the office of archon, not by lot, but by the election of the Athenians.² And if he was made archon after the battle of Plataea, as Demetrius himself has written, it is certainly very credible that in view of such a reputation and such successes as he there won, he should be deemed worthy, for his valour, of an office which men who drew lots for it obtained for their wealth. In fact, Demetrius is clearly ambitious to rescue not only Aristides, but also Socrates from what he deems the great evil of poverty, for he says that Socrates owned not only his house, but also seventy minas out at interest with Crito.

II. Aristides was an intimate friend of that Cleisthenes who set the state in order after the expulsion of the tyrants. He also admired and emulated, above all other statesmen, Lycurgus the Lacedaemonian. He therefore favoured an aristocratic form of government, and ever had opposed to him, as champion of the people, Themistocles the son of Neocles. Some say that even as boys and fellow-pupils, from the outset, in every word and deed, whether serious or trivial, they were at variance with one another, and that by

¹ Pericles, iv. 2.

² From 508 B.C. to 487 B.C. the archons were elected by the Assembly; after 487, they were once more chosen by lot.

PLUTARCH'S LIVES

ἀνακαλύπτεσθαι, τὴν μὲν εὐχερῆ καὶ παράβολον καὶ πανοῦργον οὖσαν καὶ μετ' ὀξύτητος ἐπὶ πάντα ῥαδίως φερομένην, τὴν δ' ἰδρυμένην ἐν ἡθει βεβαίῳ καὶ πρὸς τὸ δίκαιον ἀτενῆ,¹ ψεύδος δὲ καὶ βωμολοχίαν καὶ ἀπάτην οὐδ' ἐν παιδιᾷς τινι τρόπῳ προσιεμένην.

Ἄριστων δ' ὁ Κεῖος ἐξ ἐρωτικῆς ἀρχῆς γενέσθαι φησὶ καὶ προελθεῖν ἐπὶ τοσοῦτον τὴν
 3 ἔχθραν αὐτῶν. Στησίλεω γάρ, ὃς ἦν γένει Κεῖος, ἰδέα τε καὶ μορφῇ σώματος πολὺ τῶν ἐν ᾧρα λαμπρότατος, ἀμφοτέρους ἐρασθέντας οὐ μετρίως ἐνεγκεῖν τὸ πάθος οὐδ' ἅμα λήγοντι τῷ κάλλει τοῦ παιδὸς ἀποθέσθαι τὴν φιλονεικίαν, ἀλλ' ὥσπερ ἐγγυμνασασμένους ἐκείνη πρὸς τὴν πολιτείαν εὐθύς ὀρμησαί διαπύρους ὄντας καὶ διαφόρως ἔχοντας.

4 Ὁ μὲν οὖν Θεμιστοκλῆς εἰς ἐταιρείαν ἐμβαλὼν ἑαυτὸν εἶχε πρόβλημα καὶ δύναμιν οὐκ εὐκαταφρόνητον, ὥστε καὶ πρὸς τὸν εἰπόντα καλῶς αὐτὸν ἄρξειν Ἀθηναίων, ἄνπερ ἴσος ἦ καὶ κοινὸς ἅπασι “Μηδέποτε,” εἰπεῖν, “εἰς τοῦτον ἐγὼ καθίσαιμι τὸν θρόνον, ἐν ᾧ πλέον οὐδὲν ἔξουσιν
 5 οἱ φίλοι παρ' ἐμοὶ τῶν ἀλλοτρίων.” Ἀριστείδης δὲ καθ' ἑαυτὸν ὥσπερ ὁδὸν ἰδίαν ἐβάδιζε διὰ τῆς πολιτείας, πρῶτον μὲν οὐ βουλόμενος συναδικεῖν τοῖς ἐταίροις ἢ λυπηρὸς εἶναι μὴ χαριζόμενος, ἔπειτα τὴν ἀπὸ τῶν φίλων δύναμιν οὐκ ὀλίγους ἰδῶν ἐπαίρουσαν ἀδικεῖν ἐφυλάττετο, μόνῳ τῷ χρηστᾷ

¹ ἀτενῆ MSS. and editors, including Sintenis¹: ἀτενεῖ after Classen.

· ARISTIDES

this very rivalry their natures were straightway made manifest, the one as dexterous, reckless, and unscrupulous, easily carried with impetuosity into any and every undertaking; the other as established on a firm character, intent on justice, and admitting no falsity or vulgarity or deceit, not even in any sport whatsoever.

But Ariston of Ceos says that this enmity of theirs, which came to be so intense, had its origin in a love affair. They were both enamoured of Stesilaüs, who was of Ceian birth, and in beauty of person the most brilliant of youths; and they cherished their passion so immoderately, that not even after the boy's beauty had faded did they lay aside their rivalry, but, as though they had merely taken preliminary practice and exercise in that, they presently engaged in matters of state also with passionate heat and opposing desires.

Themistocles joined a society of political friends, and so secured no inconsiderable support and power. Hence when some one told him that he would be a good ruler over the Athenians if he would only be fair and impartial to all, he replied: "Never may I sit on a tribunal where my friends are to get no more advantage from me than strangers." But Aristides walked the way of statesmanship by himself, on a private path of his own, as it were, because, in the first place, he was unwilling to join with any comrades in wrong-doing, or to vex them by withholding favours; and, in the second place, he saw that power derived from friends incited many to do wrong, and so was on his guard against it, deeming καὶ δίκαια πράττειν καὶ λέγειν ἀξιῶν θαρρεῖν τὸν ἀγαθὸν πολίτην.

- III. Οὐ μὴν ἀλλά, πολλὰ κινουμένου τοῦ Θεμιστοκλέους παραβόλως καὶ πρὸς πᾶσαν αὐτῷ πολιτείαν ἐνισταμένου καὶ διακόπτοντος, 320 ἠναγκάζετό που καὶ αὐτὸς τὰ μὲν ἀμυνόμενος, τὰ δὲ κολούων τὴν ἐκείνου δύναμιν χάριτι τῶν πολλῶν ἀξιομένην ὑπεναντιοῦσθαι οἷς ἔπραττεν ὁ Θεμιστοκλῆς, βέλτιον ἡγούμενος παρελθεῖν ἔνια τῶν συμφερόντων τὸν δῆμον ἢ τῷ κρατεῖν 2 ἐκείνου ἐν πᾶσιν ἰσχυρὸν γενέσθαι. τέλος δέ ποτε τοῦ Θεμιστοκλέους πράττοντός τι τῶν δεόντων ἀντικρούσας καὶ περιγεγόμενος οὐ κατέσχευ, ἀλλ' εἶπεν ἀπὸ τῆς ἐκκλησίας ἀπιῶν, ὡς οὐκ ἔστι σωτηρία τοῖς Ἀθηναίων πράγμασιν, εἰ μὴ καὶ Θεμιστοκλέα καὶ αὐτὸν εἰς τὸ βάραθρον ἐμβάλοισιν. πάλιν δὲ γράψας τινὰ γνώμην εἰς τὸν δῆμον, ἀντιλογίας οὔσης πρὸς αὐτὴν καὶ φιλονεικίας, ἐκράτει· μέλλοντος δὲ τοῦ προέδρου τὸν δῆμον ἐπερωτᾶν αἰσθόμενος ἐκ τῶν λόγων αὐτῶν τὸ ἀσύμφορον ἀπέστη τοῦ ψηφίσματος. 3 πολλάκις δὲ καὶ δι' ἐτέρων εἰσέφερε τὰς γνώμας, ὡς μὴ φιλονεικίᾳ τῇ πρὸς αὐτὸν ὁ Θεμιστοκλῆς ἐμπόδιος εἶη τῷ συμφέροντι.

Θαυμαστὴ δὲ τις ἐφαίνετο αὐτοῦ παρὰ τὰς ἐν τῇ πολιτείᾳ μεταβολὰς ἢ εὐστάθεια, μήτε ταῖς τιμαῖς ἐπαιρομένου πρὸς τε τὰς δυσημερίας ἀθορύβως καὶ πράως ἔχοντος, καὶ ὁμοίως ἡγου- 218

ARISTIDES

it right that the good citizen should base his confidence only on serviceable and just conduct.

III. However, since Themistocles was a reckless agitator, and opposed and thwarted him in every measure of state, Aristides himself also was almost compelled—partly in self-defence, and partly to curtail his adversary's power, which was increasing through the favour of the many—to set himself in opposition to what Themistocles was trying to do, thinking it better that some advantages should escape the people than that his adversary, by prevailing everywhere, should become too strong. Finally there came a time when he opposed and defeated Themistocles in an attempt to carry some really necessary measure. Then he could no longer hold his peace, but declared, as he left the Assembly, that there was no safety for the Athenian state unless they threw both Themistocles and himself into the death-pit. On another occasion he himself introduced a certain measure to the people, and was carrying it through successfully, in spite of the attacks of the opposition upon it, but just as the presiding officer was to put it to the final vote, perceiving, from the very speeches that had been made in opposition to it, the inexpediency of his measure, he withdrew it without a vote. And oftentimes he would introduce his measures through other men, that Themistocles might not be driven by the spirit of rivalry with him to oppose what was expedient for the state.

Altogether admirable was his steadfast constancy amid the revulsions of political feeling. He was not unduly lifted up by his honours, and faced adversity with a calm gentleness, while in all cases alike he

PLUTARCH'S LIVES

μένου χρήναι τῇ πατρίδι παρέχειν ἑαυτὸν οὐ
 χρημάτων μόνον, ἀλλὰ καὶ δόξης προῖκα καὶ
 4 ἀμισθὶ πολιτευόμενον. ὅθεν, ὡς ἔοικε, τῶν εἰς Ἄμφιáraον ὑπ' Αἰσχύλου πεπονημένων ἰαμβείων
 ἐν τῷ θεάτρῳ λεγομένων·

Οὐ γὰρ δοκεῖν δίκαιος, ἀλλ' εἶναι θέλει,
 βαθεῖαν ἄλοκα διὰ φρενὸς καρπούμενος,
 ἀφ' ἧς τὰ κεδνὰ βλαστάνει βουλευματα,

πάντες ἀπέβλεψαν εἰς Ἄριστείδην, ὡς ἐκείνῳ
 μάλιστα τῆς ἀρετῆς ταύτης προσηκούσης.

IV. Οὐ μόνον δὲ πρὸς εὖνοιαν καὶ χάριν, ἀλλὰ
 καὶ πρὸς ὀργὴν καὶ πρὸς ἔχθραν ἰσχυρότατος ἦν
 ὑπὲρ τῶν δικαίων ἀντιστῆναι. λέγεται γοῦν
 ποτε διώκων ἐχθρόν ἐν δικαστηρίῳ, μετὰ τὴν κατηγορίαν οὐ βουλομένων ἀκούειν τοῦ κινδυνεύοντος τῶν δικαστῶν, ἀλλὰ τὴν ψῆφον εὐθύς
 αἰτούντων ἐπ' αὐτόν, ἀναπηδήσας τῷ κρινομένῳ
 συνικετεύειν, ὅπως ἀκουσθεῖη καὶ τύχοι τῶν
 2 νομίμων· πάλιν δὲ κρίνων ἰδιώταις δυσί, τοῦ
 ἑτέρου λέγοντος, ὡς πολλὰ τυγχάνει τὸν Ἄρι-στείδην ὁ ἀντίδικος λελυπηκῶς “Λέγ', ὦ ἄγαθέ,” φάναι, “ μᾶλλον, εἴ τι σὲ κακὸν πεποίηκε· σοὶ
 γάρ, οὐκ ἔμαυτῷ, δικάζω.” τῶν δὲ δημοσίων
 προσόδων αἰρεθεὶς ἐπιμελητῆς οὐ μόνον τοὺς
 καθ' αὐτόν, ἀλλὰ καὶ τοὺς πρὸ αὐτοῦ γενομένους

ARISTIDES

considered it his duty to give his services to his country freely and without any reward, either in money, or, what meant far more, in reputation. And so it befell, as the story goes, that when the verses composed by Aeschylus upon Amphiaraus were recited in the theatre:—

“He wishes not to seem, but rather just to be,
And reap a harvest from deep furrows in a mind
From which there spring up honourable counsel-lings,”¹

all the spectators turned their eyes on Aristides, feeling that he, above all men, was possessed of such excellence.

IV. It was not only against the inclinations of his good-will and personal favour that he was a most strenuous champion of justice, but also against those of his anger and hatred. At any rate a story is told, how he was once prosecuting an enemy in court, and after he had made his accusation the judges were loath to hear the defendant at all, and demanded that their vote be taken against him straightway; but Aristides sprang to his feet and seconded the culprit's plea for a hearing and the usual legal procedure. And again, when he was serving as private arbitrator between two men, on one of them saying that his opponent had done Aristides much injury, “Tell me rather,” he said, “whether he has done thee any wrong; it is for thee, not for myself, that I am seeking justice.” When he was elected overseer of the public revenues, he proved clearly that large sums had been embezzled, not only by his fellow-officials, but also by

¹ Seven against Thebes, 592 ff. (Dindorf).

PLUTARCH'S LIVES

ἄρχοντας ἀπεδείκνυε πολλὰ νεοσφισμένους, καὶ μάλιστα τὸν Θεμιστοκλέα.

Σοφὸς γὰρ ἀνὴρ, τῆς δὲ χειρὸς οὐ κρατῶν.

- 3 Διὸ καὶ συναγαγὼν πολλοὺς ἐπὶ τὸν Ἀριστείδην ἐν ταῖς εὐθύναις διώκων κλοπῆς καταδίκη περιέβαλεν, ὡς φησιν Ἰδομενεύς. ἀγανακτούντων δὲ τῶν πρώτων ἐν τῇ πόλει καὶ βελτίστων, οὐ μόνον ἀφείθη τῆς ζημίας, ἀλλὰ καὶ πάλιν ἄρχων ἐπὶ τὴν αὐτὴν διοίκησιν ἀπεδείχθη. προσποιούμενος δὲ τῶν προτέρων μεταμέλειν αὐτῷ καὶ μαλακώτερον ἐνδιδούς ἑαυτόν, ἤρεσκε τοῖς τὰ κοινὰ κλέπτουσι οὐκ ἐξελέγχων οὐδ' ἀκριβολο-
- 4 γούμενος, ὥστε καταπιμπλαμένους τῶν δημοσίων ὑπερεπαινεῖν τὸν Ἀριστείδην καὶ δεξιούσθαι τὸν δῆμον ὑπὲρ αὐτοῦ, σπουδάζοντας ἄρχοντα πάλιν αἰρεθῆναι. μελλόντων δὲ χειροτονεῖν ἐπετίμησε τοῖς Ἀθηναίοις. “Ὅτε μὲν γάρ,” ἔφη, “πιστῶς καὶ καλῶς ὑμῖν ἤρξα, προὔπηλακίσθην· ἐπεὶ δὲ πολλὰ τῶν κοινῶν καταπροεῖμαι τοῖς κλέπτουσι
- 5 θαυμαστὸς εἶναι δοκῶ πολίτης. αὐτὸς μὲν οὖν αἰσχύνομαι τῇ νῦν τιμῇ μᾶλλον ἢ τῇ πρώην καταδίκη, συνάχθομαι δ' ὑμῖν, παρ' οἷς ἐνδοξότερόν ἐστι τοῦ σώζειν τὰ δημόσια τὸ χαρίζεσθαι τοῖς πονηροῖς.” ταῦτα δ' εἰπὼν καὶ τὰς κλοπὰς 321 ἐξελέγξας τοὺς μὲν τότε βοῶντας ὑπὲρ αὐτοῦ καὶ μαρτυροῦντας ἐπεστόμισε, τὸν δ' ἀληθινὸν καὶ δίκαιον ἀπὸ τῶν βελτίστων ἔπαινον εἶχεν.

ARISTIDES

those of former years, and particularly by Themistocles :—

“The man was clever, but of his hand had no control.”

For this cause, Themistocles banded many together against Aristides, prosecuted him for theft at the auditing of his accounts, and actually got a verdict against him, according to Idomeneus. But the first and best men of the city were incensed at this, and he was not only exempted from his fine, but even appointed to administer the same charge again. Then he pretended to repent him of his former course, and made himself more pliable, thus giving pleasure to those who were stealing the common funds by not examining them or holding them to strict account, so that they gorged themselves with the public moneys, and then lauded Aristides to the skies, and pleaded with the people in his behalf, eagerly desirous that he be once more elected to his office. But just as they were about to vote, Aristides rebuked the Athenians. “Verily,” said he, “when I served you in office with fidelity and honour, I was reviled and persecuted; but now that I am flinging away much of the common fund to thieves, I am thought to be an admirable citizen. For my part, I am more ashamed of my present honour than I was of my former condemnation, and I am sore distressed for you, because it is more honourable in your eyes to please base men than to guard the public moneys.” By these words, as well as by exposing their thefts, he did indeed stop the mouths of the men who were then testifying loudly in his favour, but he won genuine and just praise from the best citizens.

PLUTARCH'S LIVES

- V. Ἐπεὶ δὲ Δᾶτις ὑπὸ Δαρείου πεμφθεὶς λόγῳ μὲν ἐπιθεῖναι δίκην Ἀθηναίοις, ὅτι Σάρδεις ἐνέπρησαν, ἔργῳ δὲ καταστρέψασθαι τοὺς Ἕλληνας, εἰς Μαραθῶνα παντὶ τῷ στόλῳ κατέσχε καὶ τὴν χώραν ἐπόρθει, τῶν δέκα καθεστῶτων τοῖς Ἀθηναίοις ἐπὶ τὸν πόλεμον στρατηγῶν μέγιστον μὲν εἶχεν ἀξίωμα Μιλτιάδης, δόξη δὲ ² καὶ δυνάμει δεύτερος ἦν Ἀριστείδης. καὶ τότε περὶ τῆς μάχης γνώμη τῇ Μιλτιάδου προσθέμενος οὐ μικρὰν ἐποίησε ῥοπήν· καὶ παρ' ἡμέραν ἑκάστου στρατηγοῦ τὸ κράτος ἔχοντας, ὡς περιῆλθεν εἰς αὐτὸν ἢ ἀρχή, παρέδωκε Μιλτιάδῃ, διδάσκων τοὺς συνάρχοντας, ὅτι τὸ πείθεσθαι καὶ ἀκολουθεῖν τοῖς εὖ φρονούσιν οὐκ αἰσχρὸν, ἀλλὰ σεμνὸν ἐστὶ καὶ σωτήριον. οὕτω δὲ πραΰνας τὴν φιλονεικίαν καὶ προτρεψάμενος αὐτοὺς ἀγαπᾶν μᾶλλον τῇ κρατίστῃ χρωμένους, ἔρρωσε τὸν Μιλτιάδην τῷ ἀπερισπάστῳ τῆς ἐξουσίας ἰσχυρὸν γενόμενον. χαίρειν γὰρ ἔων ἕκαστος ἤδη τὸ παρ' ἡμέραν ἄρχειν ἐκείνῳ προσεῖχεν.
- ³ Ἐν δὲ τῇ μάχῃ μάλιστα τῶν Ἀθηναίων τοῦ μέσου πονήσαντος καὶ πλείστον ἐνταῦθα χρόνον τῶν βαρβάρων ἀντερεισάντων κατὰ τὴν Λεοντίδα καὶ τὴν Ἀντιοχίδα φυλήν, ἠγωνίσαντο λαμπρῶς τεταγμένοι παρ' ἀλλήλους ὁ τε Θεμιστοκλῆς καὶ ὁ Ἀριστείδης· ὁ μὲν γὰρ Λεοντίδος ἦν, ὁ δ' Ἀντιοχίδος· ἐπεὶ δὲ τρεψάμενοι τοὺς βαρβάρους ἐνέβαλον εἰς τὰς ναῦς καὶ πλέοντας οὐκ ἐπὶ νήσων ἑώρων, ἀλλ' ὑπὸ τοῦ πνεύματος καὶ τῆς θαλάσσης εἴσω πρὸς τὴν Ἀττικὴν

ARISTIDES

V. Now when Datis, on being sent by Darius ostensibly to punish the Athenians for burning Sardis, but really to subdue all the Hellenes, put in at Marathon with all his armament and went to ravaging the country, then, of the ten generals appointed by the Athenians for the conduct of the war, it was Miltiades who enjoyed the greatest consideration, but in reputation and influence Aristides was second. By adopting at that time the opinion of Miltiades about the battle to be fought, he did much to turn the scale in its favour. And since each general held the chief authority for a single day in turn, when the command came round to him, he handed it over to Miltiades, thereby teaching his fellow-officers that to obey and follow men of wisdom is not disgraceful, but dignified and salutary. By thus appeasing the jealousy of his colleagues and inducing them to be cheerfully contented in the adoption of a single opinion (and that the best), he confirmed Miltiades in the strength which comes from an unrestricted power. For each of the other generals at once relinquished his own right to command for a day in turn, and put himself under the orders of Miltiades.

In the battle, the Athenian centre was the hardest pressed, and it was there that the Barbarians held their ground the longest, over against the tribes Leontis and Antiochis. There, then, Themistocles and Aristides fought brilliantly, ranged side by side; for one was a Leontid, the other an Antiochid. When the Athenians had routed the Barbarians and driven them aboard their ships, and saw that they were sailing away, not toward the islands, but into the gulf toward Attica under compulsion of

PLUTARCH'S LIVES

- ἀποβιαζομένους, φοβηθέντες μὴ τὴν πόλιν ἔρημον λάβωσι τῶν ἀμυνομένων, ταῖς μὲν ἐννέα φυλαῖς ἠπείγοντο πρὸς τὸ ἄστυ καὶ κατήνυσαν αὐθημερόν·
- 5 ἐν δὲ Μαραθῶνι μετὰ τῆς ἑαυτοῦ φυλῆς Ἀριστείδης ἀπολειφθεὶς φύλαξ τῶν αἰχμαλώτων καὶ τῶν λαφύρων οὐκ ἐψεύσατο τὴν δόξαν, ἀλλὰ χύδην μὲν ἀργύρου καὶ χρυσοῦ παρόντος, ἐσθῆτος δὲ παντοδαπῆς καὶ χρημάτων ἄλλων ἀμυθῆτων ἐν ταῖς σκηναῖς καὶ τοῖς ἠλωκόσι σκάφεσιν ὑπαρχόντων, οὗτ' αὐτὸς ἐπεθύμησε θιγεῖν οὗτ' ἄλλον εἶασε, πλὴν εἴ τινες ἐκείνου λαθόντες ὠφελήθησαν ὧν ἦν καὶ Καλλίας ὁ δαδοῦχος.
- 6 Τούτῳ γάρ τις, ὡς ἔοικε, τῶν βαρβάρων προσέπεσεν οἰηθεὶς βασιλέα διὰ τὴν κόμην καὶ τὸ στρόφιον εἶναι· προσκυνήσας δὲ καὶ λαβόμενος τῆς δεξιᾶς ἔδειξε πολὺ χρυσίον ἐν λάκκῳ τινὶ κατορωρυγμένον. ὁ δὲ Καλλίας ὠμότατος ἀνθρώπων καὶ παρανομώτατος γενόμενος τὸν μὲν χρυσὸν ἀνείλετο, τὸν δ' ἀνθρώπον, ὡς μὴ κατείποι πρὸς ἑτέρους, ἀπέκτεινεν. ἐκ τούτου φασὶ καὶ λακκοπλοῦτους ὑπὸ τῶν κωμικῶν τοὺς ἀπὸ τῆς οἰκίας λέγεσθαι, σκωπτόντων εἰς τὸν τόπον, ἐν ᾧ τὸ χρυσίον ὁ Καλλίας εὔρεν.
- 7 Ἀριστείδης δὲ τὴν ἐπώνυμον εὐθύς ἀρχὴν ἤρξε. καίτοι φησὶν ὁ Φαληρεὺς Δημήτριος ἄρξαι τὸν ἄνδρα μικρὸν ἔμπροσθεν τοῦ θανάτου μετὰ τὴν ἐν Πλαταιαῖς μάχην. ἐν δὲ ταῖς ἀναγραφαῖς μετὰ μὲν Ξανθιππίδην, ἐφ' οὗ Μαρδόνιος ἠττήθη Πλαταιᾶσιν, οὐδ' ὁμώνυμον Ἀριστείδην ἐν πάνν

ARISTIDES

wind and wave, then they were afraid lest the enemy find Athens empty of defenders, and so they hastened homeward with nine tribes, and reached the city that very day. But Aristides was left behind at Marathon with his own tribe, to guard the captives and the booty. Nor did he belie his reputation, but though silver and gold lay about in heaps, and though there were all sorts of raiment and untold wealth besides in the tents and captured utensils, he neither desired to meddle with it himself, nor would he suffer any one else to do so, although certain ones helped themselves without his knowledge. Among these was Callias the Torch-bearer.¹

Some Barbarian, it seems, rushed up to this man, supposing him to be a king from his long hair and the headband that he wore, made obeisance to him, and taking him by the hand in suppliant fashion, showed him a great mass of gold buried up in a sort of pit. Callias, most savage and lawless of men, took up the gold; but the man, to prevent his betraying the matter to others, he slew. From this circumstance, they say, his descendants are called by the comic poets "Laccopluti," or "Pit-wealthies," in sly allusion to the place where Callias found his gold.

Aristides at once received the office of Archon Eponymous. And yet Demetrius of Phalerum says that it was a little while before his death, and after the battle of Plataea, that the man held this office.² But in the official records, after Xanthippides, in whose year of office Mardonius was defeated at Plataea, you cannot find, long as the list is, so much πολλοῖς λαβεῖν ἔστι, μετὰ δὲ Φαίνιππον,¹ ἐφ' οὗ τὴν ἐν Μαραθῶνι μάχην ἐνίκων, εὐθὺς Ἀριστείδης ἄρχων ἀναγέγραπται.

¹ One of the highest officers at the celebration of the Eleusinian mysteries.

² 479-478 B.C.

VI. Πασῶν δὲ τῶν περὶ αὐτὸν ἀρετῶν ἡ δικαιοσύνη μάλιστα τοῖς πολλοῖς αἰσθησιν παρεῖχε διὰ τὸ τὴν χρεῖαν ἐνδελεχυστάτην αὐτῆς καὶ κοινοτάτην ὑπάρχειν. ὅθεν ἀνὴρ πένης καὶ δημοτικὸς ἐκτέησατο τὴν βασιλικωτάτην καὶ θειοτάτην 322
²προσηγορίαν τὸν Δίκαιον· ὁ τῶν βασιλέων καὶ τυράννων οὐδεὶς ἐζήλωσεν, ἀλλὰ Πολιορκηταὶ καὶ Κεραυνοὶ καὶ Νικάτορες, ἔνιοι δ' Ἄετοὶ καὶ Ἰέρακες ἔχαιρον προσαγορευόμενοι, τὴν ἀπὸ τῆς βίας καὶ τῆς δυνάμεως, ὡς ἔοικε, μᾶλλον ἢ τὴν ἀπὸ τῆς ἀρετῆς δόξαν ἀγαπῶντες. καίτοι τὸ θεῖον, ᾧ γλίσχονται συνοικειοῦν καὶ συναφομοιοῦν αὐτούς, τρισὶ δοκεῖ διαφέρειν, ἀφθαρσία καὶ δυνάμει καὶ ἀρετῇ, ὧν καὶ ²σεμνότατον ἡ ἀρετὴ 3
³καὶ θειοτάτὸν ἔστιν. ἀφθάρτῳ μὲν γὰρ εἶναι καὶ τῷ κενῷ καὶ τοῖς στοιχείοις συμβέβηκε, δύναμιν δὲ καὶ σεισμοὶ καὶ κεραυνοὶ καὶ πνευμάτων ὄρμαι καὶ ρευμάτων ἐπιφοραὶ μεγάλην ἔχουσι, δίκης δὲ καὶ θέμιδος οὐδὲν ὅτι μὴ τῷ φρονεῖν καὶ λογίζεσθαι³ μεταλαγχάνει.

Διὸ καὶ τριῶν ὄντων, ἃ πεπόνθασιν οἱ πολλοὶ πρὸς τὸ θεῖον, ζήλου καὶ φόβου καὶ τιμῆς, ζηλοῦν μὲν αὐτούς καὶ μακαρίζειν εἰκόασι κατὰ τὸ ἀφθαρτον καὶ ἀίδιον, ἐκπλήττεσθαι δὲ καὶ δεδιέναι κατὰ τὸ κύριον καὶ δυνατὸν, ἀγαπᾶν δὲ καὶ τιμᾶν

¹ Φαίνιππον Bekker, Hercher, and Blass with F^aS: Φά-νιππον. ² ὧν καὶ Hercher and Blass with S: ὧν.

³ λογίζεσθαι Blass: λογίζεσθαι τὸ θεῖον reasoning about the deity.

ARISTIDES

as the name Aristides; whereas immediately after Phaenippus, in whose year of office the victory at Marathon was won, an Aristides is recorded as archon.¹

VI. Of all his virtues, it was his justice that most impressed the multitude, because of its most continual and most general exercise. Wherefore, though poor and a man of the people, he acquired that most kingly and godlike surname of "The Just." This no kings or tyrants ever coveted, nay, they rejoiced to be surnamed "Besiegers," or "Thunderbolts," or "Conquerors," and some "Eagles," or "Hawks,"² cultivating the reputation which is based on violence and power, as it seems, rather than on virtue. And yet divinity, to which such men are eager to adapt and conform themselves, is believed to have three elements of superiority,—incorruption, power, and virtue; and the most reverend, the divinest of these, is virtue. For vacuum and the ultimate elements partake of incorruption; and great power is exhibited by earthquakes and thunderbolts, and rushing tornadoes, and invading floods; but in fundamental justice nothing participates except through the exercise of intelligent reasoning powers.

Therefore, considering the three feelings which are generally entertained towards divinity,—envy, fear, and honourable regard, men seem to envy and felicitate the deities for their incorruption and perpetuity; to dread and fear them for their sovereignty and power; but to love and honour and revere them

¹ 490–489 B. C.

² Demetrius Poliorceles; Ptolemy Ceraunos; Seleucus Nicator; Pyrrhus Aëtos; Antiochus Hierax.

PLUTARCH'S LIVES

4 καὶ σέβεσθαι κατὰ τὴν δικαιοσύνην. ἀλλὰ, καίπερ οὕτω διακείμενοι, τῆς μὲν ἀθανασίας, ἣν ἡ φύσις ἡμῶν οὐ δέχεται, καὶ τῆς δυνάμεως, ἧς ἐν τῇ τύχῃ¹ κείται τὸ πλείστον, ἐπιθυμοῦσι, τὴν δ' ἀρετὴν, ἃ μόνον ἐστὶ τῶν θείων ἀγαθῶν ἐφ' ἡμῖν, ἐν ὑστέρω τίθενται, κακῶς φρονοῦντες, ὡς τὸν ἐν δυνάμει καὶ τύχῃ μεγάλη καὶ ἀρχῇ βίον ἢ μὲν δικαιοσύνη ποιεῖ θεῖον, ἢ δ' ἀδικία θηριώδη.

VII. Τῷ δ' οὖν Ἀριστείδῃ συνέβη τὸ πρῶτον ἀγαπωμένῳ διὰ τὴν ἐπωνυμίαν ὕστερον φθονεῖσθαι, μάλιστα μὲν τοῦ Θεμιστοκλέους λόγον εἰς τοὺς πολλοὺς διαδιδόντος,² ὡς Ἀριστείδης ἀνηρηκῶς τὰ δικαστήρια τῷ κρίνειν ἅπαντα καὶ δικάζειν, λέληθε μοναρχίαν ἀδορυφόρητον ἑαυτῷ κατεσκευασμένος· ἤδη δέ που καὶ ὁ δῆμος ἐπὶ τῇ νίκῃ μέγα φρονῶν καὶ τῶν μεγίστων ἀξιῶν αὐτὸν ἤχθετο τοῖς ὄνομα καὶ δόξαν ὑπὲρ τοὺς πολλοὺς² ἔχουσι. καὶ συνελθόντες εἰς ἄστῃ πανταχόθεν ἐξοστρακίζουσι τὸν Ἀριστείδην, ὄνομα τῷ φθόνῳ τῆς δόξης φόβον τυραννίδος θέμενοι.

Μοχθηρίας γὰρ οὐκ ἦν κόλασις ὁ ἐξοστρακισμός, ἀλλ' ἐκαλεῖτο μὲν δι' εὐπρέπειαν ὄγκου καὶ δυνάμεως βαρυτέρας ταπείνωσις καὶ κόλουσις, ἣν δὲ φθόνου παραμυθία φιλάνθρωπος, εἰς ἀνήκεστον οὐδέν, ἀλλ' εἰς μετὰστασιν ἐτῶν δέκα τὴν πρὸς

¹ τῇ τύχῃ Reiske, Hercher, and Blass with F^aS: τύχη.

² διαδιδόντος Hercher and Blass with F^aS: ἐκβαλόντος.

ARISTIDES

for their justice. And yet, although men are thus disposed, it is immortality, of which our nature is not capable, and power, the chief disposal of which is in the hands of fortune, that they eagerly desire ; while as for virtue, the only divine excellence within our reach, they put it at the bottom of the list, unwisely too, since a life passed in power and great fortune and authority needs justice to make it divine ; by injustice it is made bestial.

VII. Now, to resume, it befell Aristides to be loved at first because of this surname, but afterwards to be jealously hated, especially when Themistocles set the story going among the multitude that Aristides had done away with the public courts of justice by his determining and judging everything in private, and that, without any one perceiving it, he had established for himself a monarchy, saving only the armed body-guard. And besides, the people too must by this time have become greatly elated over their victory ; they thought nothing too good for themselves, and were therefore vexed with those who towered above the multitude in name and reputation. So they assembled in the city from all the country round, and ostracized Aristides, giving to their envious dislike of his reputation the name of fear of tyranny.

Now the sentence of ostracism was not a chastisement of base practices, nay, it was speciously called a humbling and docking of oppressive prestige and power ; but it was really a merciful exorcism of the spirit of jealous hate, which thus vented its malignant desire to injure, not in some irreparable evil,

PLUTARCH'S LIVES

- 3 τὸ λυποῦν ἀπειριδομένου δυσμένειαν. ἐπεὶ δ' ἤρξαντό τινες ἀνθρώπους ἀγενεῖς καὶ πονηροὺς ὑποβάλλειν τῷ πράγματι, τελευταῖον ἀπύτων Ἑπέρβολον ἐξοστρακίσαντες ἐπαύσαντο. λέγεται δὲ τὸν Ἑπέρβολον ἐξοστρακισθῆναι διὰ τοιαύτην αἰτίαν. Ἀλκιβιάδης καὶ Νικίας μέγιστον ἐν τῇ πόλει δυνάμενοι διεστασίαζον. ὡς οὖν ὁ δῆμος ἔμελλε φέρειν τὸ ὄστρακον καὶ δῆλος ἦν τὸν ἕτερον γράψων, διαλεχθέντες ἀλλήλοις καὶ τὰς στάσεις ἑκατέρας εἰς ταῦτ' συναγαγόντες τὸν
- 4 Ἑπέρβολον ἐξοστρακισθῆναι παρεσκεύασαν. ἐκ δὲ τούτου δυσχεράνας ὁ δῆμος ὡς καθυβρισμένον τὸ πρᾶγμα καὶ προπετηλακισμένον ἀφήκε παντελῶς καὶ κατέλυσεν.

Ἦν δὲ τοιοῦτον, ὡς τύπῳ φράσαι, τὸ γινόμενον. ὄστρακον λαβὼν ἕκαστος καὶ γράψας δν ἐβούλετο μεταστῆσαι τῶν πολιτῶν, ἔφερεν εἰς ἓνα τόπον τῆς ἀγορᾶς περιπεφραγμένον ἐν κύκλῳ

5 δρυφάκτοις. οἱ δ' ἄρχοντες πρῶτον μὲν διηρίθμουν τὸ σύμπαν ἐν ταύτῳ τῶν ὀστράκων πλήθος· εἰ γὰρ ἑξακισχιλίων ἐλύττονες οἱ φέροντες¹ εἶεν, ἀτελής ἦν ὁ ἐξοστρακισμός· ἔπειτα τῶν ὀνομάτων ἕκαστον ἰδίᾳ θέντες τὸν ὑπὸ τῶν πλείστων γεγραμμένον ἐξεκέρυττον εἰς ἔτη δέκα, καρπούμενον τὰ αὐτοῦ.

Γραφομένων οὖν τότε τῶν ὀστράκων λέγεται 323
τινα τῶν ἀγραμμάτων καὶ παντελῶς ἀγροίκων ἀναδόντα τῷ Ἀριστείδῃ τὸ ὄστρακον ὡς ἐνὶ τῶν τυχόντων παρακαλεῖν, ὅπως Ἀριστείδην ἐγγράψῃ.

¶ ψιε. τοῦ δὲ θαυμάσαντος καὶ πυθομένου, μή τι

¹ φέροντες Blass with F^aS: γράψαντες.

ARISTIDES

but in a mere change of residence for ten years. And when ignoble men of the baser sort came to be subjected to this penalty, it ceased to be inflicted at all, and Hyperbolus was the last to be thus ostracized.¹ It is said that Hyperbolus was ostracized for the following reason. Alcibiades and Nicias had the greatest power in the state, and were at odds. Accordingly, when the people were about to exercise the ostracism, and were clearly going to vote against one or the other of these two men, they came to terms with one another, united their opposing factions, and effected the ostracism of Hyperbolus. The people were incensed at this for they felt that the institution had been insulted and abused, and so they abandoned it utterly and put an end to it.

The method of procedure—to give a general outline—was as follows. Each voter took an ostrakon, or potsherd, wrote on it the name of that citizen whom he wished to remove from the city, and brought it to a place in the agora which was all fenced about with railings. The archons first counted the total number of ostraka cast. For if the voters were less than six thousand, the ostracism was void. Then they separated the names, and the man who had received the most votes they proclaimed banished for ten years, with the right to enjoy the income from his property.

Now at the time of which I was speaking, as the voters were inscribing their ostraka, it is said that an unlettered and utterly boorish fellow handed his ostrakon to Aristides, whom he took to be one of the ordinary crowd, and asked him to write Aristides on it. He, astonished, asked the man what possible

¹ About 417 B.C. Cf. Nicias, xi., Alcibiades, xiii.

PLUTARCH'S LIVES

κακὸν αὐτὸν Ἀριστείδης πεποίηκεν, “Οὐδέν,” εἶπεν, “οὐδὲ γιγνώσκω τὸν ἄνθρωπον, ἀλλ’ ἐνοχλοῦμαι πανταχοῦ τὸν Δίκαιον ἀκούων.” ταῦτα ἀκούσαντα τὸν Ἀριστείδην ἀποκρίνασθαι μὲν οὐδέν, ἐγγράψαι δὲ τοῦνομα τῷ ὀστράκῳ καὶ ἀποδοῦναι. τῆς δὲ πόλεως ἀπαλλαττόμενος ἤδη, τὰς χεῖρας ἀνατείνας πρὸς τὸν οὐρανὸν εὐξάτο τὴν ἐναντίαν, ὡς ἔοικεν, εὐχὴν τῷ Ἀχιλλεῖ, μηδένα καιρὸν Ἀθηναίους καταλαβεῖν, ὃς ἀναγκάσει τὸν δῆμον Ἀριστείδου μνησθῆναι.

VIII. Τρίτῳ δ’ ἔτει Ξέρξου διὰ Θετταλίας καὶ Βοιωτίας ἐλαύνοντος ἐπὶ τὴν Ἀττικὴν, λύσαντες τὸν νόμον ἐψηφίσαντο τοῖς μεθεστῶσι κάθοδον, μάλιστα φοβούμενοι τὸν Ἀριστείδην, μὴ προσθέμενος τοῖς πολεμίοις διαφθείρη καὶ μεταστήσῃ πολλοὺς τῶν πολιτῶν πρὸς τὸν βάρβαρον, οὐκ ὀρθῶς στοχαζόμενοι τοῦ ἀνδρός, ὃς γε καὶ πρὸ τοῦ δόγματος τούτου διετέλει προτρέπων καὶ παροξύνων τοὺς Ἕλληνας ἐπὶ τὴν ἐλευθερίαν, καὶ μετὰ τὸ δόγμα τοῦτο, Θεμιστοκλέους στρατηγούντος αὐτοκράτορος, πάντα συνέπραττε καὶ συνεβούλευεν, ἐνδοξότατον ἐπὶ σωτηρίᾳ κοινῇ ποιῶν τὸν ἔχθιστον.

- 2 Ὡς γὰρ ἀπολιπεῖν τὴν Σαλαμίνα βουλευομένων τῶν περὶ Εὐρυβιάδην αἱ βαρβαρικαὶ τριήρεις νύκτωρ ἀναχθεῖσαι καὶ περιβαλοῦσαι τὸν τε πόρον ἐν κύκλῳ καὶ τὰς νήσους κατεῖχον, οὐδενὸς προειδότος τὴν κύκλωσιν ἤκεν ὁ Ἀριστείδης ἀπ’ Αἰγίνης παραβόλως διὰ τῶν

ARISTIDES

wrong Aristides had done him. "None whatever," was the answer, "I don't even know the fellow, but I am tired of hearing him everywhere called 'The Just.'" On hearing this, Aristides made no answer, but wrote his name on the ostrakon and handed it back. Finally, as he was departing the city, he lifted up his hands to heaven and prayed—a prayer the opposite, as it seems, of that which Achilles made¹—that no crisis might overtake the Athenians which should compel the people to remember Aristides.

VIII. But in the third year thereafter,² when Xerxes was marching through Thessaly and Boeotia against Attica, they repealed their law of ostracism, and voted that those who had been sent away under it might return. The chief reason for this was their fear of Aristides, lest he attach himself to the enemy's cause, and corrupt and pervert many of his fellow-citizens to the side of the Barbarian. But they much misjudged the man. Even before this decree of theirs, he was ever inciting and urging the Hellenes to win their freedom; and after it was passed, when Themistocles was general with sole powers, he assisted him in every undertaking and counsel, although he thereby, for the sake of the general safety, made his chiefest foe the most famous of men.

Thus when Eurybiades wished to abandon Salamis, but the Barbarian triremes, putting out by night, had encompassed the strait where he lay round about, and had beset the islands therein, and no Hellene knew of this encompassment, Aristides came over to them from Aegina, venturously sailing through the

¹ Iliad i. 407-412.

² 480 B.C.

PLUTARCH'S LIVES

πολεμίων νεῶν διεκπλεύσας· καὶ νυκτὸς ἐλθὼν
ἐπὶ τὴν σκηνὴν τοῦ Θεμιστοκλέους καὶ καλέσας
3 αὐτὸν ἔξω μόνον “Ἡμεῖς,” εἶπεν, “ὦ Θεμισστόκλεις, εἰ σωφρονούμεν, ἤδη τὴν κενὴν καὶ
μειρακιώδη στάσιν ἀφέντες ἀρξώμεθα σωτηρίου
καὶ καλῆς φιλονεικίας πρὸς ἀλλήλους ἀμιλλώμενοι σῶσαι τὴν Ἑλλάδα, σὺ μὲν ἄρχων καὶ
στρατηγῶν, ἐγὼ δ’ ὑπουργῶν καὶ συμβουλευῶν, ἐπεὶ καὶ νῦν σε πυνθάνομαι μόνον ἄπτεσθαι τῶν
ἀρίστων λογισμῶν, κελεύοντα διαναυμαχεῖν ἐν 4 τοῖς στενοῖς τὴν ταχίστην. καὶ σοι τῶν συμ-μάχων ἀντιπραττόντων οἱ πολέμιοι συνεργεῖν
εἰκόσασιν· τὸ γὰρ ἐν κύκλῳ καὶ κατόπιν ἤδη
πέλαγος ἐμπέπλησται νεῶν πολεμίων, ὥστε καὶ
τοὺς μὴ θέλοντας ἀνάγκη κατεῖληφεν ἀγαθοὺς
ἄνδρας εἶναι καὶ μάχεσθαι· φυγῆς γὰρ ὁδὸς οὐ
5 λέλειπται.” πρὸς ταῦτα ὁ Θεμιστοκλῆς εἶπεν· “Οὐκ ἂν ἐβουλόμην, ὦ Ἀριστείδη, σὲ κατὰ
τοῦτό μου κρείττονα γενέσθαι, πειράσομαι δὲ
πρὸς καλὴν ἀρχὴν ἀμιλλώμενος ὑπερβάλλεσθαι
τοῖς ἔργοις.” ἅμα δ’ αὐτῷ φράσας τὴν ὑφ’
ἐαυτοῦ κατασκευασθεῖσαν ἀπάτην πρὸς τὸν βάρβαρον, παρεκάλει πείθειν τὸν Εὐρυβιάδην
καὶ διδάσκειν, ὡς ἀμήχανόν ἐστι σωθῆναι μὴ
ναυμαχήσαντας· εἶχε γὰρ αὐτοῦ μᾶλλον πίστιν.
6 ὅθεν ἐν τῷ συλλόγῳ τῶν στρατηγῶν εἰπόντος
Κλεοκρίτου τοῦ Κορινθίου πρὸς τὸν Θεμιστοκλέα, μηδ’ Ἀριστείδη τὴν γνώμην ἀρέσκειν αὐτοῦ,
παρόντα γὰρ σιωπᾶν, ἀντεῖπεν ὁ Ἀριστείδης, ὡς
οὐκ ἂν ἐσιώπα μὴ λέγοντος τὰ ἄριστα τοῦ Θεμιστοκλέους· νῦν δ’ ἡσυχίαν ἄγειν οὐ δι’
εὐνοίαν τοῦ ἀνδρός, ἀλλὰ τὴν γνώμην ἐπαινῶν.

ARISTIDES

enemy's ships. He went at once by night to the tent of Themistocles, and called him forth alone. "O Themistocles," said he, "if we are wise, we shall at last lay aside our vain and puerile contention, and begin a salutary and honourable rivalry with one another in emulous struggles to save Hellas, thou as commanding general, I as assistant counsellor, since at the very outset I learn that thou art the only one who has adopted the best policy, urging as thou dost to fight a decisive sea-fight here in the narrows as soon as may be. And though thine allies oppose thee, thy foes would seem to assist thee; for the sea round about and behind us is already filled with hostile ships, so that even our unwilling ones must now of necessity be brave men and fight. Indeed, no way of escape is left." To this Themistocles replied: "I should not have wished, O Aristides, to find thee superior to me here; but I shall try to emulate thy fair beginning, and to surpass thee in my actions." At the same time he told Aristides of the trick that he had contrived against the Barbarian, and entreated him to show Eurybiades convincingly, inasmuch as he had the greater credit with that commander, that there was no safety except in a sea-fight. So it happened in the council of generals that Cleocritus the Corinthian declared to Themistocles that Aristides also was opposed to his plan, since he, though present, held his peace. Aristides at once replied that he would not have held his peace had not Themistocles counselled for the best; but as it was, he kept quiet, not out of any goodwill to the man, but because he approved of his plan.

- IX. Οἱ μὲν οὖν ναύαρχοι τῶν Ἑλλήνων ταῦτ' ἔπραττον. Ἀριστείδης δ' ὄρων τὴν Ψυττάλειαν, ἢ πρὸ τῆς Σαλαμίνας ἐν τῷ πόρῳ κεῖται νῆσος οὐ μεγάλη, πολεμίων ἀνδρῶν μεστὴν οὔσαν, ἐμβιβάσας εἰς ὑπηρετικά τοὺς προθυμοτάτους καὶ μαχιμωτάτους τῶν πολιτῶν προσέμιξε τῇ Ψυτταλείᾳ, καὶ μάχην πρὸς τοὺς βαρβάρους συνάψας ἀπέκτεινε πάντας, πλὴν ὅσοι τῶν ἐπιφανῶν ζῶντες ἤλωσαν. ἐν δὲ τούτοις ἦσαν ἀδελφῆς βασιλέως ὄνομα Σανδαύκης τρεῖς παῖδες, οὓς εὐθύς ἀπέστειλε πρὸς τὸν Θεμιστοκλέα·
- 2 καὶ λέγονται κατὰ τι λόγιον, τοῦ μάντεως 324
 Εὐφραντίδου κελεύσαντος, ὠμηστῇ Διονύσῳ καθιερευθῆναι. τὴν δὲ νησίδα τοῖς ὅπλοις πανταχόθεν ὁ Ἀριστείδης περιστέψας ἐφήδρευε τοῖς ἐκφερομένοις πρὸς αὐτήν, ὡς μήτε τῶν φίλων τινὰ διαφθαρῆναι μήτε τῶν πολεμίων διαφυγεῖν. ὁ γὰρ πλείστος ὠθισμὸς τῶν νεῶν καὶ τῆς μάχης τὸ καρτερώτατον ἔοικε περὶ τὸν τόπον ἐκεῖνον γενέσθαι· διὸ καὶ τρόπαιον ἔστηκεν ἐν τῇ Ψυτταλείᾳ.
- 3 Μετὰ δὲ τὴν μάχην ὁ Θεμιστοκλῆς ἀποπειρώμενος τοῦ Ἀριστείδου καλὸν μὲν εἶναι καὶ τὸ πεπραγμένον αὐτοῖς ἔργον ἔλεγε, κρεῖττον δὲ λείπεσθαι τὸ λαβεῖν ἐν τῇ Εὐρώπῃ τὴν Ἀσίαν, ἀναπλεύσαντας εἰς Ἑλλάσποντον τὴν ταχίστην καὶ τὰ ζεύγματα¹ διακόψαντας. ἐπεὶ δ' Ἀριστείδης ἀνακραγὼν τοῦτον μὲν ἐκέλευε τὸν λόγον καταβαλεῖν, σκοπεῖν δὲ καὶ ζητεῖν, ὅπως τὴν ταχίστην ἐκβάλωσι τὸν Μῆδον ἐκ τῆς Ἑλλάδος,
- 4 μὴ κατακλεισθεῖς ἀπορίᾳ φυγῆς μετὰ τοσαύτης
¹ τὰ ζεύγματα Hercher and Blass with F²S : τὸ ζεύγμα.

ARISTIDES

IX. While the captains of the Hellenes were acting on this plan, Aristides noticed that Psyttaleia, a small island lying in the straits in front of Salamis, was full of the enemy. He therefore embarked in small boats the most ardent and the most warlike of the citizens, made a landing on Psyttaleia, joined battle with the Barbarians, and slew them all, save the few conspicuous men who were taken alive. Among these were three sons of the King's sister Sandaucé,¹ whom he straightway sent to Themistocles, and it is said that, in obedience to some oracle or other, and at the bidding of Euphrantides the seer, they were sacrificed to Dionysus Carnivorous. Then Aristides lined the islet all round with his hoplites, and lay in wait for any who should be cast up there, that no friend might perish, and no foe escape. For the greatest crowding of the ships, and the most strenuous part of the battle, seems to have been in this region. And for this reason a trophy was erected on Psyttaleia.

After the battle, Themistocles, by way of sounding Aristides, said that the deed they had now performed was a noble one, but a greater still remained, and that was to capture Asia in Europe, by sailing up to the Hellespont as fast as they could and cutting in twain the bridges there. But Aristides cried out with a loud voice and bade him abandon the proposal, and seek rather with all diligence how they might most speedily expel the Mede from Hellas, lest, being shut in and unable to make his escape, from sheer necessity

¹ Cf. Themistocles, xiii. 2.

PLUTARCH'S LIVES

δυνάμεως τραπήη πρὸς ἄμυναν ὑπ' ἀνάγκης, οὕτω πέμπει πάλιν Ἀρνάκην εὐνούχου ὁ Θεμιστοκλῆς ἐκ τῶν αἰχμαλώτων κρύφα, φράσαι τῷ βασιλεῖ κελεύσας, ὅτι πλεῖν ἐπὶ τὰς γεφύρας ὠρμημένους τοὺς Ἕλληνας αὐτὸς ἀποστρέψει σωζέσθαι βασιλέα βουλόμενος.

- Χ. Ἐκ τούτου Ξέρξης μὲν περίφοβος γενόμενος εὐθύς ἐπὶ τὸν Ἑλλήσποντον ἠπείγετο, Μαρδόνιος δὲ τοῦ στρατοῦ τὸ δοκιμώτατον¹ ἔχων περὶ τριάκοντα μυριάδας ὑπελείπετο, καὶ φοβερὸς ἦν ἀπ' ἰσχυρᾶς τῆς περὶ τὸ πεζὸν ἐλπίδος ἀπειλῶν τοῖς Ἕλλησι καὶ γράφων τοιαῦτα:
- 2 “Νευικήκατε θαλασσίους ξύλοις χερσαίους ἀνθρώπους οὐκ ἐπισταμένους κώπην ἐλαύνειν· ἀλλὰ νῦν πλατεῖα μὲν ἢ Θετταλῶν γῆ, καλὸν δὲ τὸ Βοιωτικὸν πεδίου ἀγαθοῖς ἵππευσι καὶ ὀπλίταις ἐναγωνίσασθαι.” πρὸς δὲ Ἀθηναίους ἔπεμψεν ἰδίᾳ γράμματα καὶ λόγους παρὰ βασιλέως, τήν τε πόλιν αὐτοῖς ἀναστήσειν ἐπαγγελιομένου καὶ χρήματα πολλὰ δώσειν καὶ τῶν Ἑλλήνων κυρίου καταστήσειν ἐκποδῶν τοῦ πολέμου γενομένου.
- 3 Οἱ δὲ Λακεδαιμόνιοι πυθόμενοι ταῦτα καὶ δείσαντες ἔπεμψαν Ἀθήναζε πρέσβεις, δεόμενοι τῶν Ἀθηναίων, ὅπως παῖδας μὲν καὶ γυναῖκας εἰς Σπάρτην ἀποστείλωσι, τοῖς δὲ πρεσβυτέροις τροφὰς παρ' αὐτῶν λαμβάνωσιν· ἰσχυρὰ γὰρ ἦν ἀπορία περὶ τὸν δῆμον ἀπολωλεκότα καὶ
- 4 τὴν² χώραν καὶ τὴν πόλιν. οὐ μὴν ἀλλὰ τῶν πρέσβεων ἀκούσαντες, Ἀριστείδου ψήφισμα

¹ δοκιμώτατον Blass with F²S : μαχιμώτατον.

² καὶ τὴν Hercher und Blass with F²S : τὴν.

ARISTIDES

he throw this vast force of his upon the defensive. So Themistocles sent once more the eunuch Arnaces,¹ a prisoner of war, bidding him tell the King that the Hellenes had actually set out on a voyage to attack the bridges, but that he, Themistocles, had succeeded in turning them back, wishing to save the King.

X. At this Xerxes grew exceeding fearful, and hurried straight to the Hellespont; but Mardonius, with the flower of the army, to the number of three hundred thousand men, was left behind. He was a formidable adversary, and because his confidence in his infantry was strong, he wrote threateningly to the Hellenes, saying: "Ye have conquered with your maritime timbers landsmen who know not how to ply the oar; but now, broad is the land of Thessaly and fair the plain of Boeotia for brave horsemen and men-at-arms to contend in." But to the Athenians he sent separate letters and proposals from the King, who promised to rebuild their city, give them much money, and make them lords of the Hellenes, if only they would cease fighting against him.

When the Lacedaemonians learned this, they took fright, and sent an embassy to Athens, begging the Athenians to despatch their wives and children to Sparta, and to accept from her a support for their aged and infirm; for great was the distress among the people, since it had so recently lost both land and city. However, after listening to the embassy, on motion of Aristides, they answered

¹ Cf. Themistocles, xvi. 2 f.

PLUTARCH'S LIVES

γράφαντος, ἀπεκρίναντο θαυμαστὴν ἀπόκρισιν, τοῖς μὲν πολεμίοις συγγνώμην ἔχειν φάσκοντες, εἰ πάντα πλούτου καὶ χρημάτων ὧνια νομίζοιεν, ὧν κρεῖττον οὐδὲν ἴσασιν, ὀργίζεσθαι δὲ Λακεδαιμονίοις, ὅτι τὴν πενίαν καὶ τὴν ἀπορίαν τὴν νῦν παρούσαν Ἀθηναίοις μόνον ὀρώσι, τῆς δ' ἀρετῆς καὶ τῆς φιλοτιμίας ἀμνημονοῦσιν ἐπὶ σιτίοις ὑπὲρ τῆς Ἑλλάδος ἀγωνίζεσθαι παρακαλοῦντες.

5 ταῦτα γράψας Ἀριστείδης καὶ τοὺς πρέσβεις εἰς τὴν ἐκκλησίαν παραγαγὼν, Λακεδαιμονίοις μὲν ἐκέλευσε φράζειν, ὡς οὐκ ἔστι χρυσοῦ τοσοῦτον πλῆθος οὔθ' ὑπὲρ γῆν οὔθ' ὑπὸ γῆν, ὅσον Ἀθηναῖοι δέξαιτο ἂν πρὸ τῆς τῶν Ἑλλήνων ἐλευθερίας. τοῖς δὲ παρὰ Μαρδονίου τὸν ἥλιον δείξας, “Ἀχρι ἂν οὗτος,” ἔφη, “ταύτην πορεύηται τὴν πορείαν, Ἀθηναῖοι πολεμήσουσι Πέρσαις ὑπὲρ τῆς δεδηωμένης χώρας καὶ τῶν

6 ἡσεβημένων καὶ κατακεκαυμένων ἱερῶν.” ἔτι δὲ ἀρὰς θέσθαι τοὺς ἱερεῖς ἔγραψεν, εἴ τις ἐπικηρυκεύσαιτο Μήδοις ἢ τὴν συμμαχίαν ἀπολίποι τῶν Ἑλλήνων.

Ἐμβαλόντος δὲ Μαρδονίου τὸ δεύτερον εἰς τὴν Ἀττικὴν, αὐθις εἰς Σαλαμίνα διεπέρασαν. Ἀριστείδης δὲ πεμφθεὶς εἰς Λακεδαίμονα τῆς μὲν βραδυτῆτος αὐτοῖς ἐνεκάλει καὶ τῆς ὀλιγωρίας, προεμένοις αὐθις τῷ βαρβάρῳ τὰς Ἀθήνας, ἡξίου δὲ πρὸς τὰ ἔτι σωζόμενα τῆς Ἑλλάδος

7 βοηθεῖν. ταῦτα ἀκούσαντες οἱ Ἐφοροὶ μεθ' 321

ARISTIDES

with an admirable answer, declaring that they could be tolerant with their foes for supposing that everthing was to be bought for wealth and money, since their foes could conceive of nothing higher than these things; but they were indignant at the Lacedaemonians for having an eye only to the penury and indigence that now reigned at Athens, and for being so unmindful of the valour and ambition of the Athenians as to exhort them to contend for Hellas merely to win their rations. When Aristides had made this motion and had introduced the waiting embassies into the Assembly, he bade the Lacedaemonians tell their people that there was not bulk of gold above or below ground so large that the Athenians would take it in payment for the freedom of the Hellenes; and to the messengers of Mardonius he said, pointing to the sun: "As long as yonder sun journeys his appointed journey, so long will the Athenians wage war against the Persians in behalf of the land which has been ravaged by them and of the temples which they have defiled and consumed with fire." Still further, he made a motion that the priests should solemnly curse all who came to a parley with the Medes or forsook the alliance of the Hellenes.

When Mardonius for the second time invaded Attica, again the people crossed over to Salamis. Then Aristides, who had been sent as envoy to Lacedaemon, inveighed against their sluggishness and indifference, in that they had once more abandoned Athens to the Barbarian, and demanded that they go to the aid of what was still left of Hellas. On hearing this, the Ephors, as long as

PLUTARCH'S LIVES

κακὸν αὐτὸν Ἀριστείδης πεποίηκεν, “Οὐδέν,” εἶπεν, “οὐδὲ γινώσκω τὸν ἄνθρωπον, ἀλλ’ ἐνοχλοῦμαι πανταχοῦ τὸν Δίκαιον ἀκούων.” ταῦτα ἀκούσαντα τὸν Ἀριστείδην ἀποκρίνασθαι μὲν οὐδέν, ἐγγράψαι δὲ τὸννομα τῷ ὀστράκῳ καὶ ἀποδοῦναι. τῆς δὲ πόλεως ἀπαλλαττόμενος ἤδη, τὰς χεῖρας ἀνατείνας πρὸς τὸν οὐρανὸν εὐξάτο τὴν ἐναντίαν, ὡς ἔοικεν, εὐχὴν τῷ Ἀχιλλεῖ, μηδένα καιρὸν Ἀθηναίους καταλαβεῖν, ὃς ἀναγκάσει τὸν δῆμον Ἀριστείδου μνησθῆναι.

VIII. Τρίτῳ δ’ ἔτει Ξέρξου διὰ Θετταλίας καὶ Βοιωτίας ἐλαύνοντος ἐπὶ τὴν Ἀττικὴν, λύσαντες τὸν νόμον ἐψηφίσαντο τοῖς μεθεστῶσι κάθοδον, μάλιστα φοβούμενοι τὸν Ἀριστείδην, μὴ προσθέμενος τοῖς πολεμίοις διαφθείρη καὶ μεταστήσῃ πολλοὺς τῶν πολιτῶν πρὸς τὸν βάρβαρον, οὐκ ὀρθῶς στοχαζόμενοι τοῦ ἀνδρός, ὃς γε καὶ πρὸ τοῦ δόγματος τούτου διετέλει προτρέπων καὶ παροξύνων τοὺς Ἕλληνας ἐπὶ τὴν ἐλευθερίαν, καὶ μετὰ τὸ δόγμα τοῦτο, Θεμιστοκλέους στρατηγούντος αὐτοκράτορος, πάντα συνέπραττε καὶ συνεβούλευεν, ἐνδοξότατον ἐπὶ σωτηρίᾳ κοινῇ ποιῶν τὸν ἔχθιστον.

- 2 Ὡς γὰρ ἀπολιπεῖν τὴν Σαλαμίνα βουλευομένων τῶν περὶ Εὐρυβιάδην αἱ βαρβαρικαὶ τριήρεις νύκτωρ ἀναχθεῖσαι καὶ περιβαλοῦσαι τὸν τε πόρον ἐν κύκλῳ καὶ τὰς νήσους κατεῖχον, οὐδενὸς προειδότης τὴν κύκλωσιν ἤκεν ὁ Ἀριστείδης ἀπ’ Αἰγίνης παραβόλως διὰ τῶν

ARISTIDES

wrong Aristides had done him. "None whatever," was the answer, "I don't even know the fellow, but I am tired of hearing him everywhere called 'The Just.'" On hearing this, Aristides made no answer, but wrote his name on the ostrakon and handed it back. Finally, as he was departing the city, he lifted up his hands to heaven and prayed—a prayer the opposite, as it seems, of that which Achilles made¹—that no crisis might overtake the Athenians which should compel the people to remember Aristides.

VIII. But in the third year thereafter,² when Xerxes was marching through Thessaly and Boeotia against Attica, they repealed their law of ostracism, and voted that those who had been sent away under it might return. The chief reason for this was their fear of Aristides, lest he attach himself to the enemy's cause, and corrupt and pervert many of his fellow-citizens to the side of the Barbarian. But they much misjudged the man. Even before this decree of theirs, he was ever inciting and urging the Hellenes to win their freedom; and after it was passed, when Themistocles was general with sole powers, he assisted him in every undertaking and counsel, although he thereby, for the sake of the general safety, made his chiefest foe the most famous of men.

Thus when Eurybiades wished to abandon Salamis, but the Barbarian triremes, putting out by night, had encompassed the strait where he lay round about, and had beset the islands therein, and no Hellene knew of this encompassment, Aristides came over to them from Aegina, venturously sailing through the

¹ Iliad i. 407-412.

² 480 B. C.

PLUTARCH'S LIVES

πολεμίων νεῶν διεκπλεύσας· καὶ νυκτὸς ἐλθὼν ἐπὶ τὴν σκηνὴν τοῦ Θεμιστοκλέους καὶ καλέσας
 3 αὐτὸν ἔξω μόνον “Ἡμεῖς,” εἶπεν, “ὦ Θεμιστόκλεις, εἰ σωφρονούμεν, ἤδη τὴν κενὴν καὶ μειρακιώδη στάσιν ἀφέντες ἀρξώμεθα σωτηρίου καὶ καλῆς φιλουικίας πρὸς ἀλλήλους ἀμιλλώμενοι σῶσαι τὴν Ἑλλάδα, σὺ μὲν ἀρχῶν καὶ στρατηγῶν, ἐγὼ δ’ ὑπουργῶν καὶ συμβουλευῶν, ἐπεὶ καὶ νῦν σε πυνθάνομαι μόνον ἄπτεσθαι τῶν ἀρίστων λογισμῶν, κελεύοντα διαναυμαχεῖν ἐν
 4 τοῖς στενοῖς τὴν ταχίστην. καὶ σοι τῶν συμμάχων ἀντιπραττόντων οἱ πολέμοι συνεργεῖν εἰκόασι· τὸ γὰρ ἐν κύκλῳ καὶ κατόπιν ἤδη πέλαγος ἐμπέπλησται νεῶν πολεμίων, ὥστε καὶ τοὺς μὴ θέλοντας ἀνάγκη κατείληφεν ἀγαθοὺς ἀνδρας εἶναι καὶ μάχεσθαι· φυγῆς γὰρ ὁδὸς οὐ
 5 λέλειπται.” πρὸς ταῦτα ὁ Θεμιστοκλῆς εἶπεν· “Οὐκ ἂν ἐβουλόμην, ὦ Ἀριστείδη, σὲ κατὰ τοῦτό μου κρείττονα γενέσθαι, πειράσομαι δὲ πρὸς καλὴν ἀρχὴν ἀμιλλώμενος ὑπερβάλλεσθαι τοῖς ἔργοις.” ἅμα δ’ αὐτῷ φράσας τὴν ὑφ’ ἑαυτοῦ κατασκευασθεῖσαν ἀπάτην πρὸς τὸν βάρβαρον, παρεκάλει πείθειν τὸν Εὐρυβιάδην καὶ διδάσκειν, ὡς ἀμήχανόν ἐστι σωθῆναι μὴ ναυμαχήσαντας· εἶχε γὰρ αὐτοῦ μᾶλλον πίστιν.
 6 ὅθεν ἐν τῷ συλλόγῳ τῶν στρατηγῶν εἰπόντος Κλεοκρίτου τοῦ Κορινθίου πρὸς τὸν Θεμιστοκλέα, μὴδ’ Ἀριστείδη τὴν γνώμην ἀρέσκειν αὐτοῦ, παρόντα γὰρ σιωπᾶν, ἀντεῖπεν ὁ Ἀριστείδης, ὡς οὐκ ἂν ἐσιώπα μὴ λέγοντος τὰ ἄριστα τοῦ Θεμιστοκλέους· νῦν δ’ ἡσυχίαν ἄγειν οὐ δι’ εὐνοίαν τοῦ ἀνδρός, ἀλλὰ τὴν γνώμην ἐπαινῶν.

ARISTIDES

enemy's ships. He went at once by night to the tent of Themistocles, and called him forth alone. "O Themistocles," said he, "if we are wise, we shall at last lay aside our vain and puerile contention, and begin a salutary and honourable rivalry with one another in emulous struggles to save Hellas, thou as commanding general, I as assistant counsellor, since at the very outset I learn that thou art the only one who has adopted the best policy, urging as thou dost to fight a decisive sea-fight here in the narrows as soon as may be. And though thine allies oppose thee, thy foes would seem to assist thee; for the sea round about and behind us is already filled with hostile ships, so that even our unwilling ones must now of necessity be brave men and fight. Indeed, no way of escape is left." To this Themistocles replied: "I should not have wished, O Aristides, to find thee superior to me here; but I shall try to emulate thy fair beginning, and to surpass thee in my actions." At the same time he told Aristides of the trick that he had contrived against the Barbarian, and entreated him to show Eurybiades convincingly, inasmuch as he had the greater credit with that commander, that there was no safety except in a sea-fight. So it happened in the council of generals that Cleocritus the Corinthian declared to Themistocles that Aristides also was opposed to his plan, since he, though present, held his peace. Aristides at once replied that he would not have held his peace had not Themistocles counselled for the best; but as it was, he kept quiet, not out of any goodwill to the man, but because he approved of his plan.

- IX. Οἱ μὲν οὖν ναύαρχοι τῶν Ἑλλήνων ταῦτ' ἔπραττον. Ἀριστείδης δ' ὄρων τὴν Ψυττάλειαν, ἢ πρὸ τῆς Σαλαμίως ἐν τῷ πόρῳ κείται νῆσος οὐ μεγάλη, πολεμίων ἀνδρῶν μεστὴν οὔσαν, ἐμβιβάσας εἰς ὑπηρετικὰ τοὺς προθυμοτάτους καὶ μαχιμωτάτους τῶν πολιτῶν προσέμιξε τῇ Ψυτταλείᾳ, καὶ μάχην πρὸς τοὺς βαρβάρους συνάψας ἀπέκτεινε πάντας, πλὴν ὅσοι τῶν ἐπιφανῶν ζῶντες ἤλωσαν. ἐν δὲ τούτοις ἦσαν ἀδελφῆς βασιλέως ὄνομα Σανδαύκης τρεῖς παῖδες, οὓς εὐθύς ἀπέστειλε πρὸς τὸν Θεμιστοκλέα·
- 2 καὶ λέγονται κατὰ τι λόγιον, τοῦ μάντεως 324
 Εὐφραντίδου κελεύσαντος, ὠμηστῇ Διονύσῳ καθιερευθῆναι. τὴν δὲ νησίδα τοῖς ὄπλοις πανταχόθεν ὁ Ἀριστείδης περιστέψας ἐφήδρευε τοῖς ἐκφερομένοις πρὸς αὐτήν, ὡς μήτε τῶν φίλων τινὰ διαφθαρῆναι μήτε τῶν πολεμίων διαφυγεῖν. ὁ γὰρ πλείστος ὠθισμὸς τῶν νεῶν καὶ τῆς μάχης τὸ καρτερώτατον ἔοικε περὶ τὸν τόπον ἐκείνον γενέσθαι· διὸ καὶ τρόπαιον ἔστηκεν ἐν τῇ Ψυτταλείᾳ.
- 3 Μετὰ δὲ τὴν μάχην ὁ Θεμιστοκλῆς ἀποπειρώμενος τοῦ Ἀριστείδου καλὸν μὲν εἶναι καὶ τὸ πεπραγμένον αὐτοῖς ἔργον ἔλεγε, κρεῖττον δὲ λείπεσθαι τὸ λαβεῖν ἐν τῇ Εὐρώπῃ τὴν Ἀσίαν, ἀναπλεύσαντας εἰς Ἑλλάσποντον τὴν ταχίστην καὶ τὰ ζεύγματα¹ διακόψαντας. ἐπεὶ δ' Ἀριστείδης ἀνακραγὼν τούτου μὲν ἐκέλευε τὸν λόγον καταβαλεῖν, σκοπεῖν δὲ καὶ ζητεῖν, ὅπως τὴν ταχίστην ἐκβάλωσι τὸν Μῆδον ἐκ τῆς Ἑλλάδος,
- 4 μὴ κατακλεισθεῖς ἀπορίᾳ φυγῆς μετὰ τοσαύτης

¹ τὰ ζεύγματα Hercher and Blass with F²S : τὸ ζεύγμα.

ARISTIDES

IX. While the captains of the Hellenes were acting on this plan, Aristides noticed that Psyttaleia, a small island lying in the straits in front of Salamis, was full of the enemy. He therefore embarked in small boats the most ardent and the most warlike of the citizens, made a landing on Psyttaleia, joined battle with the Barbarians, and slew them all, save the few conspicuous men who were taken alive. Among these were three sons of the King's sister Sandaucé,¹ whom he straightway sent to Themistocles, and it is said that, in obedience to some oracle or other, and at the bidding of Euphrantides the seer, they were sacrificed to Dionysus Carnivorous. Then Aristides lined the islet all round with his hoplites, and lay in wait for any who should be cast up there, that no friend might perish, and no foe escape. For the greatest crowding of the ships, and the most strenuous part of the battle, seems to have been in this region. And for this reason a trophy was erected on Psyttaleia.

After the battle, Themistocles, by way of sounding Aristides, said that the deed they had now performed was a noble one, but a greater still remained, and that was to capture Asia in Europe, by sailing up to the Hellespont as fast as they could and cutting in twain the bridges there. But Aristides cried out with a loud voice and bade him abandon the proposal, and seek rather with all diligence how they might most speedily expel the Mede from Hellas, lest, being shut in and unable to make his escape, from sheer necessity

¹ Cf. Themistocles, xiii. 2.

PLUTARCH'S LIVES

δυνάμεως τραπήη πρὸς ἄμυναν ὑπ' ἀνάγκης, οὕτω πέμπει πάλιν Ἀρνάκην εὐνούχον ὁ Θεμιστοκλῆς ἐκ τῶν αἰχμαλώτων κρύφα, φράσαι τῷ βασιλεῖ κελεύσας, ὅτι πλεῖν ἐπὶ τὰς γεφύρας ὠρμημένους τοὺς Ἕλληνας αὐτὸς ἀποστρέψειε σῶζεσθαι βασιλέα βουλόμενος.

- Χ. Ἐκ τούτου Ξέρξης μὲν περίφοβος γενόμενος εὐθὺς ἐπὶ τὸν Ἑλλήσποντον ἠπείγετο, Μαρδόνιος δὲ τοῦ στρατοῦ τὸ δοκιμώτατον¹ ἔχων περὶ τριάκοντα μυριάδας ὑπελείπετο, καὶ φοβερὸς ἦν ἀπ' ἰσχυρᾶς τῆς περὶ τὸ πεζὸν ἐλπίδος ἀπειλῶν τοῖς Ἕλλησι καὶ γράφων τοιαῦτα·
- 2 “Νενικήκατε θαλασσίους ξύλοις χερσαίους ἀνθρώπους οὐκ ἐπισταμένους κώπην ἐλαύνειν· ἀλλὰ νῦν πλατεῖα μὲν ἡ Θετταλῶν γῆ, καλὸν δὲ τὸ Βοιωτικὸν πεδίου ἀγαθοῖς ἵππευσι καὶ ὀπλίταις ἐναγωνίσασθαι.” πρὸς δὲ Ἀθηναίους ἔπεμψεν ἰδίᾳ γράμματα καὶ λόγους παρὰ βασιλέως, τήν τε πόλιν αὐτοῖς ἀναστήσειν ἐπαγγελλομένου καὶ χρήματα πολλὰ δώσειν καὶ τῶν Ἑλλήνων κυρίου καταστήσειν ἐκποδῶν τοῦ πολέμου γενομένου.
- 3 Οἱ δὲ Λακεδαιμόνιοι πυθόμενοι ταῦτα καὶ δέισαντες ἔπεμψαν Ἀθήναζε πρέσβεις, δεόμενοι τῶν Ἀθηναίων, ὅπως παῖδας μὲν καὶ γυναῖκας εἰς Σπάρτην ἀποστείλωσι, τοῖς δὲ πρεσβυτέροις τροφᾶς παρ' αὐτῶν λαμβάνωσιν· ἰσχυρὰ γὰρ ἦν ἀπορία περὶ τὸν δῆμον ἀπολωλεκότα καὶ
- 4 τὴν² χώραν καὶ τὴν πόλιν. οὐ μὴν ἀλλὰ τῶν πρέσβεων ἀκούσαντες, Ἀριστείδου ψήφισμα

¹ δοκιμώτατον Blass with F^aS : μαχιμώτατον.

² καὶ τὴν Hercher und Blass with F^aS : τὴν.

ARISTIDES

he throw this vast force of his upon the defensive. So Themistocles sent once more the eunuch Arnaces,¹ a prisoner of war, bidding him tell the King that the Hellenes had actually set out on a voyage to attack the bridges, but that he, Themistocles, had succeeded in turning them back, wishing to save the King.

X. At this Xerxes grew exceeding fearful, and hurried straight to the Hellespont; but Mardonius, with the flower of the army, to the number of three hundred thousand men, was left behind. He was a formidable adversary, and because his confidence in his infantry was strong, he wrote threateningly to the Hellenes, saying: "Ye have conquered with your maritime timbers landsmen who know not how to ply the oar; but now, broad is the land of Thessaly and fair the plain of Boeotia for brave horsemen and men-at-arms to contend in." But to the Athenians he sent separate letters and proposals from the King, who promised to rebuild their city, give them much money, and make them lords of the Hellenes, if only they would cease fighting against him.

When the Lacedaemonians learned this, they took fright, and sent an embassy to Athens, begging the Athenians to despatch their wives and children to Sparta, and to accept from her a support for their aged and infirm; for great was the distress among the people, since it had so recently lost both land and city. However, after listening to the embassy, on motion of Aristides, they answered

¹ Cf. Themistocles, xvi. 2 f.

PLUTARCH'S LIVES

γράφαντος, ἀπεκρίναντο θαυμαστὴν ἀπόκρισιν, τοῖς μὲν πολεμίοις συγγνώμην ἔχειν φάσκοντες, εἰ πάντα πλούτου καὶ χρημάτων ὄνια νομίζοιεν, ὧν κρεῖττον οὐδὲν ἴσασι, ὀργίζεσθαι δὲ Λακεδαιμονίοις, ὅτι τὴν πενίαν καὶ τὴν ἀπορίαν τὴν νῦν παροῦσαν Ἀθηναίοις μόνον ὀρώσι, τῆς δ' ἀρετῆς καὶ τῆς φιλοτιμίας ἀμνημονοῦσιν ἐπὶ σιτίοις ὑπὲρ τῆς Ἑλλάδος ἀγωνίζεσθαι παρακαλοῦντες.

5 ταῦτα γράψας Ἀριστείδης καὶ τοὺς πρέσβεις εἰς τὴν ἐκκλησίαν παραγαγών, Λακεδαιμονίοις μὲν ἐκέλευσε φράζειν, ὡς οὐκ ἔστι χρυσοῦ τοσοῦτον πλῆθος οὔθ' ὑπὲρ γῆν οὔθ' ὑπὸ γῆν, ὅσον Ἀθηναῖοι δέξαιτο ἂν πρὸ τῆς τῶν Ἑλλήνων ἐλευθερίας. τοῖς δὲ παρὰ Μαρδονίου τὸν ἥλιον δείξας, “Ἀχρι ἂν οὗτος,” ἔφη, “ταύτην πορεύηται τὴν πορείαν, Ἀθηναῖοι πολεμήσουσι Πέρσαις ὑπὲρ τῆς δεδηωμένης χώρας καὶ τῶν

6 ἡσεβημένων καὶ κατακεκαυμένων ἱερῶν.” ἔτι δὲ ἀρὰς θέσθαι τοὺς ἱερεῖς ἔγραψεν, εἴ τις ἐπικηρυκεύσαιο Μήδοις ἢ τὴν συμμαχίαν ἀπολίποι τῶν Ἑλλήνων.

Ἐμβαλόντος δὲ Μαρδονίου τὸ δεύτερον εἰς τὴν Ἀττικὴν, αὐθις εἰς Σαλαμίνα διεπέρασαν. Ἀριστείδης δὲ πεμφθεὶς εἰς Λακεδαίμονα τῆς μὲν βραδυτῆτος αὐτοῖς ἐνεκάλει καὶ τῆς ὀλιγωρίας, προεμένοις αὐθις τῷ βαρβάρῳ τὰς Ἀθήνας, ἡξίου δὲ πρὸς τὰ ἔτι σωζόμενα τῆς Ἑλλάδος

7 βοηθεῖν. ταῦτα ἀκούσαντες οἱ Ἐφοροὶ μεθ' 3:

ARISTIDES

with an admirable answer, declaring that they could be tolerant with their foes for supposing that everthing was to be bought for wealth and money, since their foes could conceive of nothing higher than these things; but they were indignant at the Lacedaemonians for having an eye only to the penury and indigence that now reigned at Athens, and for being so unmindful of the valour and ambition of the Athenians as to exhort them to contend for Hellas merely to win their rations. When Aristides had made this motion and had introduced the waiting embassies into the Assembly, he bade the Lacedaemonians tell their people that there was not bulk of gold above or below ground so large that the Athenians would take it in payment for the freedom of the Hellenes; and to the messengers of Mardonius he said, pointing to the sun: "As long as yonder sun journeys his appointed journey, so long will the Athenians wage war against the Persians in behalf of the land which has been ravaged by them and of the temples which they have defiled and consumed with fire." Still further, he made a motion that the priests should solemnly curse all who came to a parley with the Medes or forsook the alliance of the Hellenes.

When Mardonius for the second time invaded Attica, again the people crossed over to Salamis. Then Aristides, who had been sent as envoy to Lacedaemon, inveighed against their sluggishness and indifference, in that they had once more abandoned Athens to the Barbarian, and demanded that they go to the aid of what was still left of Hellas. On hearing this, the Ephors, as long as

PLUTARCH'S LIVES

ἡμέραν μὲν ἐδόκουν παίζειν καὶ ῥαθυμεῖν ἑορτάζοντες· ἦν γὰρ αὐτοῖς Ἑτακίνθια· νυκτὸς δὲ πεντακισχιλίους Σπαρτιατῶν ἐπιλέξαντες, ὧν ἕκαστος ἐπὶ αὐτὸν εἴλωτας εἶχεν, ἐξέπεμψαν οὐκ εἰδότες τῶν Ἀθηναίων. ἐπεὶ δὲ πάλιν ἐγκαλῶν ὁ Ἀριστείδης προσῆλθεν, οἱ δὲ σὺν γέλῳτι ληρεῖν αὐτὸν ἔφασκον καὶ καθεύδειν, ἤδη γὰρ ἐν Ὀρεστείῳ τὸν στρατὸν εἶναι πορευόμενον ἐπὶ τοὺς ξένους (ξένους γὰρ ἐκάλουσαν τοὺς Πέρσας), 8 οὐ κατὰ καιρὸν ἔφη παίζειν αὐτοὺς ὁ Ἀριστείδης, ἀντὶ τῶν πολεμίων τοὺς φίλους ἐξαπατῶντας. ταῦθ' οἱ περὶ τὸν Ἰδομενέα λέγουσιν. ἐν δὲ τῷ ψηφίσματι τοῦ Ἀριστείδου πρεσβευτῆς οὐκ αὐτός, ἀλλὰ Κίμων καὶ Ξάνθιππος καὶ Μυρωνίδης φέρονται.

XI. Χειροτονηθεὶς δὲ στρατηγὸς αὐτοκράτωρ ἐπὶ τὴν μάχην, καὶ τῶν Ἀθηναίων ὀκτακισχιλίους ὀπλίτας ἀναλαβὼν, ἦκεν εἰς Πλαταιάς. ἐκεῖ δὲ καὶ Πausanίας ὁ τοῦ σύμπαντος ἡγούμενος Ἑλληνικοῦ συνέμιξεν ἔχων τοὺς Σπαρτιάτας, καὶ τῶν ἄλλων Ἑλλήνων ἐπέρρει τὸ πλῆθος.
 2 τῶν δὲ βαρβάρων τὸ μὲν ὄλον τῆς στρατοπεδείας παρὰ τὸν Ἀσωπὸν ποταμὸν παρεκτεταμένης οὐδεὶς ἦν ὄρος διὰ τὸ μέγεθος, περὶ δὲ τὰς ἀποσκευὰς καὶ τὰ κυριώτατα τείχος περιεφράξαντο τετράγωνον, οὗ τῶν πλευρῶν ἑκάστη μῆκος ἦν δέκα σταδίων.

Πausanία μὲν οὖν καὶ τοῖς Ἑλλησι κοινῇ Τισαμενὸς ὁ Ἡλείος ἐμαντεύσατο, καὶ προεῖπε νίκην ἀμυνομένοις καὶ μὴ προεπιχειροῦσιν·

ARISTIDES

it was day, publicly disported themselves in easy-going festival fashion ; for it was their festival of the Hyacinthia. But in the night they selected five thousand Spartans, each of whom had seven Helots to attend upon him, and sent them forth without the knowledge of the Athenians. So when Aristides came before them with renewed invectives, they laughed and said he was but a sleepy babbler, for that their army was already in Arcadia on its march against the "strangers" (they called the Persians strangers). But Aristides declared they were jesting out of all season, forasmuch as they were deceiving their friends instead of their enemies. This is the way Idomeneus tell the story. But in the decree which Aristides caused to be passed, he himself is not named as envoy, but Cimon, Xanthippus, and Myronides.

XI. Having been elected general with sole powers in view of the expected battle, he came to Plataea¹ at the head of eight thousand Athenian hoplites. There Pausanias also, the commander in chief of the whole Hellenic army, joined him with his Spartans, and the forces of the rest of the Hellenes kept streaming up. Now, generally speaking, there was no limit to the encampment of the Barbarians as it lay stretched out along the river Asopus, so vast was it ; but round their baggage trains and chief headquarters they built a quadrangular wall, whereof each side was ten stadia in length.

To Pausanias and all the Hellenes under him Tisamenus the Eleian made prophecy, and foretold victory for them if they acted on the defensive and

¹ Spring of 479 B.C.

PLUTARCH'S LIVES

- 3 Ἀριστείδου δὲ πέμψαντος εἰς Δελφοὺς ἀνεῖλεν ὁ θεὸς Ἀθηναίους καθυπερτέρους ἔσεσθαι τῶν ἐναντίων εὐχομένους τῷ Διὶ καὶ τῇ Ἥρᾳ τῇ Κιθαιρωνίᾳ καὶ Πανὶ καὶ νύμφαις Σφραγιτίσι, καὶ θύοντας ἥρωσιν Ἀνδροκράτει, Λεύκωνι, Πεισάνδρῳ, Δαμοκράτει, Ὑψίῳ, Ἀκταίῳ, Πολυτίδῳ, καὶ τὸν κίνδυνον ἐν γὰρ ἰδίᾳ ποιουμένους ἐν τῷ πεδίῳ τᾶς Δάματρος τᾶς Ἐλευσινίας καὶ
- 4 τᾶς Κόρας. οὗτος ὁ χρησμός ἀνενεχθεὶς ἀπορίαν τῷ Ἀριστείδῃ παρείχεν. οἱ μὲν γὰρ ἥρωες, οἷς ἐκέλευε θύειν, ἀρχηγέται Πλαταιέων ἦσαν, καὶ τὸ τῶν Σφραγιτίδων νυμφῶν ἄντρον ἐν μιᾷ κορυφῇ τοῦ Κιθαιρώνος ἐστίν, εἰς δυσμὰς ἡλίου θεριναὸς τετραμμένον, ἐν ᾧ καὶ μαντεῖον ἦν πρότερον, ὡς φασι, καὶ πολλοὶ κατείχοντο τῶν ἐπιχωρίων, οὓς νυμφολήπτους προσηγόρευον.
- 5 τὸ δὲ τῆς Ἐλευσινίας Δήμητρος πεδίον, καὶ τὸ τὴν μάχην ἐν ἰδίᾳ χώρᾳ ποιούμενοις τοῖς Ἀθηναίοις νίκην δίδοσθαι, πάλιν εἰς τὴν Ἀττικὴν ἀνεκαλεῖτο καὶ μεθίστη τὸν πόλεμον.

Ἐνθα τῶν Πλαταιέων ὁ στρατηγὸς Ἀρίμνηστος ἔδοξε κατὰ τοὺς ὕπνους ὑπὸ τοῦ Διὸς τοῦ Σωτήρος ἐπερωτώμενον αὐτόν, ὃ τι δὴ πράττειν δέδοκται τοῖς Ἑλλησιν, εἰπεῖν, “Ἀὔριον εἰς Ἐλευσίνα τὴν στρατιὰν ἀπάξομεν, ὧ δέσποτα, καὶ διαμαχούμεθα τοῖς βαρβάροις ἐκεῖ κατὰ τὸ πυθόχρηστον.”

- 6 τὸν οὖν θεὸν φάναι διαμαρτάνειν αὐτοὺς τοῦ παντός· αὐτόθι γὰρ εἶναι περὶ τὴν Πλαταικὴν τὰ πυθόχρηστα καὶ ζητοῦντας ἀνευρήσειν. τούτων ἐναργῶς τῷ Ἀριμνήστῳ φανέντων ἐξεργό-

ARISTIDES

did not advance to the attack. But Aristides sent to Delphi and received from the god response that the Athenians would be superior to their foes if they made vows to Zeus, Cithaeronian Hera, Pan, and the Sphragitic nymphs; paid sacrifices to the heroes Androcrates, Leucon, Pisandrus, Damocrates, Hypsion, Actaeon, and Polyidus; and if they sustained the peril of battle on their own soil, in the plain of Eleusinian Demeter and Cora. When this oracle was reported to Aristides, it perplexed him greatly. The heroes to whom he was to sacrifice were, it was true, ancient dignitaries of the Plataeans; and the cave of the Sphragitic nymphs was on one of the peaks of Cithaeron, facing the summer sunsets, and in it there was also an oracle in former days, as they say, and many of the natives were possessed of the oracular power, and these were called nympholepti, or "nymph-possessed." But the plain of Eleusinian Demeter, and the promise of victory to the Athenians if they fought the battle in their own territory, called them back, as it were, to Attica, and changed the seat of war.

At this time the general of the Plataeans, Arimnestus, had a dream in which he thought he was accosted by Zeus the Saviour and asked what the Hellenes had decided to do, and replied: "On the morrow, my Lord, we are going to lead our army back to Eleusis, and fight out our issue with the Barbarians there, in accordance with the Pythian oracle." Then the god said they were entirely in error, for the Pythian oracle's places were there in the neighbourhood of Plataea, and if they sought them they would surely find them. All this was made so vivid to Arimnestus that as soon as he awoke

- μενος τάχιστα μετεπέμψατο τοὺς ἐμπειροτάτους καὶ πρεσβυτάτους τῶν πολιτῶν, μεθ' ὧν διαλεγόμενος καὶ συνδιαπορῶν εὗρεν, ὅτι τῶν Ὑσιῶν πλησίον ὑπὸ τὸν Κιθαιρῶνα ναός ἐστιν ἀρχαίος πάνυ¹ Διήμητρος Ἐλευσινίας καὶ Κόρης προσαγορευόμενος. εὐθὺς οὖν παραλαβὼν τὸν Ἀριστείδην ἤγεεν ἐπὶ τὸν τόπον, εὐφρέστατον ὄντα παρατάξαι φάλαγγα πεζικὴν ἵπποκρατουμένοις, διὰ τὰς ὑπωρείας τοῦ Κιθαιρῶνος ἀφιππα ποιούσας τὰ καταλήγοντα καὶ συγκυροῦντα τοῦ πεδίου πρὸς τὸ ἱερόν. αὐτοῦ δ' ἦν καὶ τὸ τοῦ Ἀνδροκράτους ἠρῶον ἐγγύς, ἄλσει πυκνῶν καὶ συσκίων δένδρων περιεχόμενον. ὅπως δὲ μηδὲν ἑλλιπὲς ἔχη πρὸς τὴν ἐλπίδα τῆς νίκης ὁ χρησμός, ἔδοξε τοῖς Πλαταιεῦσιν, Ἀριμνήστου γνώμην εἰπόντος, ἀνελεῖν τὰ πρὸς τὴν Ἀττικὴν ὄρια τῆς Πλαταιίδος καὶ τὴν χώραν ἐπιδοῦναι τοῖς Ἀθηναίοις ὑπὲρ τῆς Ἑλλάδος ἐν οἰκείᾳ κατὰ τὸν χρησμόν ἐναγωνίσασθαι.
- 9 Ταύτην μὲν οὖν τὴν φιλοτιμίαν τῶν Πλαταιέων οὕτῳ συνέβη περιβόητον γενέσθαι, ὥστε καὶ Ἀλέξανδρον ἤδη βασιλεύοντα τῆς Ἀσίας ὕστερον πολλοῖς ἔτεσι τειχίζοντα τὰς Πλαταιὰς ἀνειπεῖν Ὀλυμπιάσιν ὑπὸ κήρυκος, ὅτι ταύτην ὁ βασιλεὺς ἀποδίδωσι Πλαταιεῦσι τῆς ἀνδραγαθίας καὶ τῆς μεγαλοψυχίας χάριν, ἐπειδὴ τοῖς Ἑλλησιν ἐν τῷ Μηδικῷ πολέμῳ τὴν χώραν ἐπέδωκαν καὶ παρέσχον αὐτοὺς προθυμοτάτους.
- XII. Ἀθηναίοις δὲ Τεγεᾶται περὶ τύξεως ἐρίσαντες ἠξίου, ὥσπερ αἰεὶ, Λακεδαιμονίῳ τὸ δεξιὸν ἐχόντων κέρας, αὐτοὶ τὸ εὐώνυμον ἔχειν,

¹ πάνυ omitted by Bekker, now found in S.

ARISTIDES

he summoned the oldest and most experienced of his fellow-citizens. By conference and investigation with these he discovered that near Hysiae, at the foot of mount Cithaeron, there was a very ancient temple bearing the names of Eleusinian Demeter and Cora. Straightway then he took Aristides and led him to the spot. They found that it was naturally very well suited to the array of infantry against a force that was superior in cavalry, since the spurs of Cithaeron made the edges of the plain adjoining the temple unfit for horsemen. There, too, was the shrine of the hero Androcrates hard by, enveloped in a grove of dense and shady trees. And besides, that the oracle might leave no rift in the hope of victory, the Plataeans voted, on motion of Arimnestus, to remove the boundaries of Plataea on the side toward Attica, and to give this territory to the Athenians, that so they might contend in defence of Hellas on their own soil, in accordance with the oracle.

This munificence of the Plataeans became so celebrated that Alexander, many years afterwards, when he was now King of Asia,¹ built the walls of Plataea, and had proclamation made by herald at the Olympic games that the King bestowed this grace upon the Plataeans in return for their bravery and magnanimity in freely bestowing their territory upon the Hellenes in the Median war, and so showing themselves most zealous of all.

XII. Now with the Athenians the men of Tegea came to strife regarding their position in the line. They claimed that, as had always been the case, since the Lacedaemonians held the right wing, they

¹ 331-330 B.C.

PLUTARCH'S LIVES

πολλὰ τοὺς αὐτῶν προγόνους ἐγκωμιάζοντες. ἀγανακτούντων δὲ τῶν Ἀθηναίων παρελθὼν ὁ Ἀριστείδης εἶπε· “Τεγεάταις μὲν ἀντειπεῖν περὶ εὐγενείας καὶ ἀνδραγαθίας ὁ παρῶν καιρὸς οὐ δίδωσι, πρὸς δ' ὑμᾶς, ὦ Σπαρτιᾶται, καὶ τοὺς ἄλλους Ἕλληνας λέγομεν, ὅτι τὴν ἀρετὴν οὐκ ἀφαιρεῖται τόπος οὐδὲ δίδωσιν· ἦν δ' ἂν ὑμεῖς ἡμῖν τάξιν ἀποδῶτε πειρασόμεθα κοσμοῦντες καὶ φυλάττοντες μὴ καταισχύνειν τοὺς προηγωνι-
 2 σμένους ἀγῶνας. ἤκομεν γὰρ οὐ τοῖς συμμαχοῖς στασιάσοντες, ἀλλὰ μαχοῦμενοι τοῖς πολεμίοις, οὐδ' ἐπαινεσόμενοι τοὺς πατέρας, ἀλλ' αὐτοὺς ἄνδρας ἀγαθοὺς τῇ Ἑλλάδι παρέξοντες· ὡς οὗτος ὁ ἀγὼν δείξει καὶ πόλιν καὶ ἄρχοντα καὶ ἰδιώτην ὀπόσου τοῖς Ἕλλησιν ἀξιὸς ἐστί.” ταῦτ' ἀκούσαντες οἱ σύνεδροι καὶ ἡγεμόνες ἀπεδέξαντο τοὺς Ἀθηναίους καὶ θάτερον αὐτοῖς κέρας ἀπέδωσαν.

XIII. Οὕσης δὲ μετεώρου τῆς Ἑλλάδος καὶ μάλιστα τοῖς Ἀθηναίοις τῶν πραγμάτων ἐπισηφαλῶς ἐχόντων, ἄνδρες ἐξ οἴκων ἐπιφανῶν καὶ χρημάτων μεγάλων πένητες ὑπὸ τοῦ πολέμου γεγονότες καὶ πᾶσαν ἅμα τῷ πλούτῳ τὴν ἐν τῇ πόλει δύναμιν αὐτῶν καὶ δόξαν οἰχομένην ὀρώντες, ἐτέρων τιμωμένων καὶ ἄρχόντων, συνῆλθον εἰς οἰκίαν τινὰ τῶν ἐν Πλαταιαῖς κρύφα καὶ συνωμόσαντο καταλύσειν τὸν δῆμον· εἰ δὲ μὴ προχωροῖη, λυμανεῖσθαι τὰ πράγματα καὶ τοῖς βαρβάροις προδώσειν.

2 Πραττομένων δὲ τούτων ἐν τῷ στρατοπέδῳ καὶ συχνῶν ἤδη διεφθαρμένων, αἰσθόμενος ὁ Ἀριστείδης καὶ φοβηθεὶς τὸν καιρὸν, ἔγνω μῆτ' εἶαν themselves should hold the left, and in support of their claim they sounded loudly the praises of their ancestors. The Athenians were incensed, and Aristides came forward and made this speech : " To argue with the men of Tegea about noble birth and bravery, there is surely no time now ; but we declare to you, O Spartans, and to the rest of the Hellenes, that valour is not taken away from a man, nor is it given him, by his position in the line. Whatsoever post ye shall assign to us, we will endeavour to maintain and adorn it, and so bring no disgrace upon the contests we have made before. We are come, not to quarrel with our allies, but to do battle with our foes ; not to heap praises on our fathers, but to show ourselves brave men in the service of Hellas. It is this contest which will show how much any city or captain or, private soldier is worth to Hellas." On hearing this, the councillors and leaders declared for the Athenians, and assigned to them the other wing.

ARISTIDES

XIII. While Hellas was thus in suspense and Athens especially in danger, certain men of that city who were of prominent families and large wealth, but had been impoverished by the war, saw that with their riches all their influence in the city and their reputation had departed, while other men now had the honours and offices. They therefore met together secretly at a certain house in Plataea, and conspired to overthrow the democracy ; or, if their plans did not succeed, to injure the general cause and betray it to the Barbarians.

Such was the agitation in the camp, and many had already been corrupted, when Aristides got wind of the matter, and, fearful of the crisis that favoured the plot, determined not to leave the ἀμελούμενον τὸ πρᾶγμα μήθ' ἄπαν ἐκκαλύπτειν, ἀγνοούμενον εἰς ὅσον ἐκβήσεται πλῆθος ὁ ἔλεγχος τὸν τοῦ δικαίου ζητῶν ὄρον ἀντὶ τοῦ συμφέροντος.

PLUTARCH'S LIVES

3 ὀκτῶ δὴ τινὰς ἐκ πολλῶν συνέλαβε· καὶ τούτων δύο μὲν, οἷς πρώτοις ἡ κρίσις προεγράφη, οἱ καὶ πλείστην αἰτίαν εἶχον, Αἰσχίνης Λαμπτρέυς καὶ Ἀγησίας Ἀχαρνεύς, ὧχοντο φεύγοντες ἐκ τοῦ στρατοπέδου, τοὺς δ' ἄλλους ἀφῆκε, θαρσῆσαι διδούς καὶ μεταγνῶναι τοῖς ἔτι λανθάνειν οἰομένοις, ὑπειπὼν ὡς μέγα δικαστήριον ἔχουσι τὸν πόλεμον ἀπολύσασθαι τὰς αἰτίας ὀρθῶς καὶ δικαίως τῇ πατρίδι βουλευόμενοι.

XIV. Μετὰ ταῦτα Μαρδόνιος, ᾧ πλείστον ἐδόκει διαφέρειν, τῶν Ἑλλήνων ἀπεπειρᾶτο, τὴν ἵππον ἀθρόαν αὐτοῖς ἐφείδς καθεζομένοις ὑπὸ τὸν πρόποδα τοῦ Κιθαιρῶνος ἐν χωρίοις ὄχυροῖς καὶ πετρώδεσι πλὴν Μεγαρέων. οὗτοι δὲ τρισχίλιοι τὸ πλῆθος ὄντες ἐν τοῖς ἐπιπέδοις μᾶλλον ἐστρατοπεδεύοντο. διὸ καὶ κακῶς ἔπασχον ὑπὸ τῆς ἵππου ρυείσης ἐπ' αὐτοὺς καὶ προσβολὰς

2 ἐχούσης πανταχόθεν. ἐπεμπον οὖν ἄγγελον κατὰ τάχος πρὸς Πausανίαν βοηθεῖν κελεύοντες, ὡς οὐ δυνάμενοι καθ' αὐτοὺς ὑποστῆναι τὸ τῶν βαρβάρων πλῆθος. ταῦτα Πausανίας ἀκούων, ἤδη δὲ καὶ καθορῶν ἀποκεκρυμμένον ἀκοντισμάτων καὶ τοξευμάτων πλήθει τὸ στρατόπεδον τῶν Μεγαρέων καὶ συνεσταλμένους αὐτοὺς εἰς ὀλίγον, αὐτὸς μὲν ἀμήχανος ἦν πρὸς ἱππότηας ἀμύνειν 321

ARISTIDES

matter in neglect, nor yet to bring it wholly to the light, since it could not be known how many would be implicated by a test which was based on justice rather than expediency. Accordingly, he arrested some eight or so of the many conspirators. Two of these, against whom the charge was first formally brought, and who were really the most guilty ones, Aeschines of Lamptrae and Agesias of Acharnae, fled the camp. The rest he released, affording thus an opportunity for encouragement and repentance to those who still thought they had escaped detection, and suggested to them that the war was a great tribunal for their acquittal from the charges made against them, provided they took sincere and righteous counsel in behalf of their country.

XIV. After this, Mardonius made trial of the Hellenes with that arm of his service in which he thought himself most superior. He despatched all his cavalry against them as they lay encamped at the foot of Cithaeron, in positions that were rugged and rocky—all except the Megarians. These, to the number of three thousand, were encamped the rather in open plain. For this reason they suffered severely at the hands of the cavalry, which poured in tides against them, and found access to them on every side. Accordingly, they sent a messenger in haste to Pausanias, bidding him come to their aid, since they were unable of themselves to withstand the host of the Barbarians. Pausanias, on hearing this, and seeing at once that the camp of the Megarians was as good as hidden from view by the multitude of the enemy's javelins and arrows, and that its defenders were huddled together in narrow quarters, on his own part had no way of rendering

PLUTARCH'S LIVES

3 ὀπλιτικῇ φάλαγγι καὶ βαρεῖα τῇ Σπαρτιατῶν, τοῖς δ' ἄλλοις στρατηγοῖς καὶ λοχαγοῖς τῶν Ἑλ-
 λήνων περὶ αὐτὸν οὖσι προὔθετο ζῆλον ἀρετῆς
 καὶ φιλοτιμίας, εἰ δὴ τινες ἐκόντες ἀναδέξαιτο
 προαγωνίσασθαι καὶ βοηθῆσαι τοῖς Μεγαρεῦσι.
 τῶν δ' ἄλλων ὀκνοῦντων Ἀριστείδης ἀναδεξάμενος
 ὑπὲρ τῶν Ἀθηναίων τὸ ἔργον ἀποστέλλει τὸν
 προθυμότατον τῶν λοχαγῶν Ὀλυμπιόδωρον, ἔχοντα τοὺς ὑπ' αὐτῷ τεταγμένους λογάδας
 τριακοσίους καὶ τοξότας ἀναμεμιγμένους σὺν αὐτοῖς.

4 Τούτων δὲ¹ ὀξέως διασκευασμένων καὶ προσφερομένων δρόμῳ, Μασίστιος ὁ τῶν βαρβάρων ἵππαρχος, ἀνὴρ ἀλκῇ τε θαυμαστός μεγέθει τε
 καὶ κάλλει σώματος περιττός, ὡς κατείδεν,
 ἐναντίον ἐπιστρέψας τὸν ἵππον εἰς αὐτοὺς ἤλαυνε.
 τῶν δ' ἀνασχομένων καὶ συμβαλόντων ἦν ἀγὼν
 καρτερός, ὡς πείραν ἐν τούτῳ τοῦ παντός λαμ-5 βανόντων. ἐπεὶ δὲ τοξευθεὶς ὁ ἵππος τὸν Μασίστιον ἀπέρριψε καὶ πεσὼν ὑπὸ βάρους τῶν
 ὄπλων αὐτός τε δυσκίνητος ἦν ἀναφέρειν καὶ τοῖς Ἀθηναίοις ἐπικειμένοις καὶ παίουσι δυσμεταχείρι-στος, οὐ μόνον στέρνα καὶ κεφαλὴν, ἀλλὰ καὶ τὰ
 γυῖα χρυσῷ καὶ χαλκῷ καὶ σιδήρῳ καταπεφραγ-μένος, τοῦτον μὲν ἢ τὸ κράνος ὑπέβαινε τὸν
 ὀφθαλμὸν ἀκοντίου στύρακι παίων τις ἀνεῖλεν, οἱ
 δ' ἄλλοι Πέρσαι προέμενοι τὸν νεκρὸν ἔφευγον.
 6 ἐγνώσθη δὲ τοῦ κατορθώματος τὸ μέγεθος τοῖς
 Ἕλλησιν οὐκ ἀπὸ τῶν νεκρῶν τοῦ πλήθους,
 ὀλίγοι γὰρ οἱ πεσόντες ἦσαν, ἀλλὰ τῷ πένθει τῶν

¹ τούτων δὲ Hercher and Blass with F²S : τούτων.

ARISTIDES

them aid against horsemen, since his phalanx of Spartans was full-armoured and slow of movement ; but to the rest of the generals and captains of the Hellenes who were about him he proposed, in order to stir up their valour and ambition, that some of them should volunteer to make contention for the succour of the Megarians. The rest all hesitated, but Aristides, in behalf of the Athenians, undertook the task, and despatched his most zealous captain, Olympiodorus, with the three hundred picked men of his command, and archers mingled with them.

These quickly arrayed themselves and advanced to the attack on the run. Masistius, the commander of the Barbarian cavalry, a man of wonderful prowess and of surpassing stature and beauty of person, saw them coming, and at once wheeled his horse to face them and charged down upon them. Then there was a mighty struggle between those who withstood and those who made the charge, since both regarded this as a test of the whole issue between them. Presently the horse of Masistius was hit with an arrow, and threw his rider, who lay where he fell, unable to raise himself, so heavy was his armour ; and yet he was no easy prey to the Athenians, though they pressed upon him and smote him. For not only his chest and head, but also his limbs were encased in gold and bronze and iron. But at last, with the spike of a javelin, through the eye-hole of his helmet, he was smitten to the death, and the rest of the Persians abandoned his body and fled. The magnitude of their success was known to the Hellenes, not from the multitude of those they slew, for few βαρβάρων. καὶ γὰρ ἑαυτοὺς ἔκειραν ἐπὶ τῷ Μασιστίῳ καὶ ἵππους καὶ ἡμίονους, οἰμωγῆς τε καὶ κλαυθμοῦ τὸ πεδίον ἐνεπίμπλασαν, ὡς ἄνδρα πολὺ πρῶτον ἀρετῇ καὶ δυνάμει μετὰ γε Μαρδόνιον αὐτὸν ἀποβαλόντες.

PLUTARCH'S LIVES

XV. Μετὰ δὲ τὴν ἵππομαχίαν ἀμφότεροι μάχης ἔσχοντο χρόνον πολὺν· ἀμυνομένοις γὰρ οἱ μάντις νίκην προῦφαινον ἐκ τῶν ἱερῶν ὁμοίως καὶ τοῖς Πέρσiais καὶ τοῖς Ἑλλησιν, εἰ δ' ἐπιχειροῖεν, ἦτταν. ἔπειτα Μαρδόνιος, ὡς αὐτῷ μὲν ἡμερῶν ὀλίγων τὰ ἐπιτήδεια περιῆν, οἱ δ' Ἕλληνες αἰετινων ἐπιρρεόντων πλείονες ἐγίνοντο, δυσανασχέτων ἔγνω μηκέτι μένειν, ἀλλὰ διαβὰς ἅμα φάει τὸν Ἀσωπὸν ἐπιθέσθαι τοῖς Ἑλλησιν ἀπροσδοκῆτως· καὶ παράγγελμα τοῖς ἡγεμόσιν ἐσπέρας ἔδωκε.

- 2 Μεσοῦσης δὲ μάλιστα τῆς νυκτὸς ἀνὴρ ἵππον ἔχων ἀτρέμα προσεμίγνυε τῷ στρατοπέδῳ τῶν Ἑλλήνων· ἐντυχὼν δὲ ταῖς φυλακαῖς ἐκέλευεν αὐτῷ προσελθεῖν Ἀριστείδην τὸν Ἀθηναῖον. ὑπακούσαντος δὲ ταχέως ἔφησεν· “Εἰμὶ μὲν Ἀλέξανδρος ὁ Μακεδῶν, ἦκω δὲ κινδύνων τὸν μέγιστον εὐνοία τῇ πρὸς ὑμᾶς αἰρόμενος, ὡς μὴ τὸ αἰφνίδιον ἐκπλήξειεν ὑμᾶς χεῖρον ἀγωνίσασθαι.
- 3 μαχεῖται γὰρ ὑμῖν Μαρδόνιος αὔριον, οὐχ ὑπ' ἐλπίδος χρηστῆς οὐδὲ θάρσους, ἀλλ' ἀπορίας τῶν παρόντων, ἐπεὶ καὶ μάντις ἐκείνον ἀπαισίους ἱεροῖς καὶ λογίοις χρησμῶν εἴργουσι μάχης, καὶ τὸν στρατὸν ἔχει δυσθυμία πολλή καὶ κατάπληξις. ἀλλ' ἀνάγκη τολμῶντα πειρᾶσθαι τῆς τύχης

ARISTIDES

had fallen, but from the grief of the Barbarians. For they shorn their own hair in tribute to Masistius, and that of their horses and mules, and filled the plain with their wailing cries. They felt that they had lost a man who, after Mardonius himself, was by far the first in valour and authority.

XV. After this cavalry battle, both sides refrained from further fighting for a long time, since only as they acted on the defensive would victory be theirs—so the soothsayers interpreted the sacrifices alike for Persians and Hellenes,—but if they attacked, defeat. At last Mardonius, since he had supplies remaining for only a few days, and since the Hellenes were ever increasing in number as fresh bodies joined them, impatiently determined to wait no longer, but to cross the Asopus at day-break and attack the Athenians unexpectedly. During the evening he gave the watchword to his commanders.

But about midnight a solitary horseman quietly approached the camp of the Hellenes, and falling in with the outposts, ordered that Aristides the Athenian come to him. He was speedily obeyed, and then said: “I am Alexander the Macedonian, and I am come at the greatest peril to myself, out of my good-will toward you, that no suddenness of attack may frighten you into inferior fighting. Mardonius will surely give battle on the morrow, not because he has substantial hope or even courage, but because he is destitute of provisions. His soothsayers, indeed, are trying to keep him from battle by unpropitious sacrifices and oracular utterances, while his army is full of dejection and consternation; but he must needs boldly try his fortune, or sit

ἢ τὴν ἐσχάτην ὑπομένειν ἀπορίαν καθεζόμενον.
 4 ταῦτα φράσας ὁ Ἀλέξανδρος ἐδεῖτο τὸν Ἀριστείδην αὐτὸν εἰδέναι καὶ μνημονεύειν, ἐτέρῳ δὲ μὴ κατειπεῖν. ὁ δ' οὐ καλῶς ἔχειν ἔφη ταῦτα Πausανίαν ἀποκρύψασθαι, ἐκείνῳ γὰρ ἀνακείσθαι τὴν ἡγεμονίαν, πρὸς δὲ τοὺς ἄλλους ἄρρητα πρὸ τῆς μάχης ἔδοξεν¹ ἔσεσθαι, νικώσης δὲ τῆς Ἑλλάδος οὐδένα τὴν Ἀλεξάνδρου προθυμίαν καὶ
 5 ἀρετὴν ἀγνοήσειν. λεχθέντων δὲ τούτων ὁ τε βασιλεὺς τῶν Μακεδόνων ἀπήλαυεν ὀπίσω πάλιν, ὁ τε Ἀριστείδης ἀφικόμενος ἐπὶ τὴν σκηνὴν τοῦ Πausανίου διηγείτο τοὺς λόγους· καὶ μετεπέμποντο τοὺς ἄλλους ἡγεμόνας καὶ παρήγγελλον ἐν κόσμῳ τὸν στρατὸν ἔχειν, ὡς μάχης ἐσομένης. 328

XVI. Ἐν τούτῳ δ', ὡς Ἡρόδοτος ἱστορεῖ, Πausανίας Ἀριστείδῃ προσέφερε λόγον, ἀξιῶν τοὺς Ἀθηναίους ἐπὶ τὸ δεξιὸν μετατάξαι καὶ² κατὰ τοὺς Πέρσας ἀντιταχθῆναι, βέλτιον γὰρ ἀγωνιεῖσθαι τῆς τε μάχης ἐμπείρους γεγονότας καὶ τῷ προνεικηκέναι θαρροῦντας, αὐτῷ δὲ παραδοῦναι τὸ εὐώνυμον, ὅπου τῶν Ἑλλήνων οἱ μηδίζοντες ἐπιβάλλειν ἔμελλον.

2 Οἱ μὲν οὖν ἄλλοι στρατηγοὶ τῶν Ἀθηναίων ἀγνώμονα καὶ φορτικὸν ἡγοῦντο τὸν Πausανίαν, εἰ τὴν ἄλλην ἑὼν τάξιν ἐν χώρᾳ μόνους ἄνω καὶ κάτω μεταφέρει σφᾶς ὥσπερ εἴλωτας, κατὰ τὸ

¹ ἔδοξεν bracketed by Bekker, omitted by Blass.

² μετατάξαι καὶ MSS., Sintenis¹, Coraës, Bekker: μεταγαγόντα.

ARISTIDES

still and endure extremest destitution." When he had told him this, Alexander begged Aristides to keep the knowledge to himself and bear it well in mind, but to tell it to none other. Aristides replied that it was not honourable to conceal this knowledge from Pausanias, since it was on him that the supreme command devolved, but that it should not be told the other leaders before the battle; though in case Hellas were victorious, no man should remain ignorant of Alexander's zeal and valour. After this conversation, the king of the Macedonians rode off back again, and Aristides went to the tent of Pausanias and told him all that had been said. Then they summoned the other leaders and gave them orders to keep the army in array, since there was to be a battle.

XVI. At this juncture, as Herodotus relates,¹ Pausanias sent word to Aristides, demanding that the Athenians change their position and array themselves on the right wing, over against the Persians, where they would contend better, he said, since they were versed already in the Persian style of fighting, and emboldened by a previous victory over them; the left wing, where the Medising Hellenes were going to attack, should be intrusted to himself and his Spartans.

The rest of the Athenian generals thought it inconsiderate and annoying in Pausanias to leave the rest of his line in the position assigned, while he moved them, and them only, back and forth like Helots, and put them forward where the

¹ ix. 46.

PLUTARCH'S LIVES

- μαχιμώτατον προβαλλόμενος· ὁ δ' Ἀριστείδης διαμαρτάνειν αὐτοὺς ἔφασκε τοῦ παντός, εἰ πρῶν μὲν ὑπὲρ τοῦ τὸ εὐώνυμον κέρας ἔχειν διεφιλοτιμοῦντο Τεγεάταις καὶ προκριθέντες ἐσε-
 3 μνύνοντο, νῦν δέ, Λακεδαιμονίων ἐκουσίως αὐτοῖς ἐξισταμένων τοῦ δεξιοῦ καὶ τρόπον τινὰ τὴν ἡγεμονίαν παραδιδόντων, οὔτε τὴν δόξαν ἀγαπῶ-σιν οὔτε κέρδος ἡγούνται τὸ μὴ πρὸς ὁμοφύλους καὶ συγγενεῖς, ἀλλὰ βαρβάρους καὶ φύσει πολεμίους ἀγωνίσασθαι. ἐκ τούτου πάνυ προθύμως οἱ Ἀθηναῖοι διημείβοντο τοῖς Σπαρτιαταῖς τὴν 4 τάξιν· καὶ λόγος ἐχώρει δι' αὐτῶν πολὺς ἀλ-
 λήλοις παρεγγυώντων, ὡς οὔτε ὄπλα βελτίω λαβόντες οὔτε ψυχὰς ἀμείνους οἱ πολέμοι τῶν ἐν Μαραθῶνι προσίασιν, ἀλλὰ ταῦτά μὲν ἐκείνοις τόξα, ταῦτά δ' ἐσθήτος ποικίλματα καὶ χρυσὸς ἐπὶ σώμασι μαλακοῖς καὶ ψυχαῖς ἀνάνδροις· ἡμῖν δ' ὅμοια μὲν ὄπλα καὶ σώματα, μείζον δὲ ταῖς νίκαις τὸ θάρσος, ὁ δ' ἀγὼν οὐχ ὑπὲρ χώρας καὶ πόλεως μόνον, ὡς ἐκείνοις, ἀλλ' ὑπὲρ τῶν ἐν Μαραθῶνι καὶ Σαλαμῖνι τροπαίων, ὡς μὴδ' ἐκεῖνα Μιλτιάδου δοκῆ καὶ τύχης, ἀλλὰ Ἀθηναίων.
 5 Οὗτοι μὲν οὖν σπεύδοντες ἐν ἀμείψει τῶν τάξεων ἦσαν· αἰσθόμενοι δὲ Θηβαῖοι παρ' αὐτομόλων Μαρδονίῳ φράζουσι. κἀκείνος εὐθύς, εἴτε δεδιὼς τοὺς Ἀθηναίους, εἴτε τοῖς Λακεδαιμονίοις
 260

ARISTIDES

fighting was to be hottest. But Aristides declared that they were utterly wrong; they had contended emulously with the Tegeans, but a little while back, for the occupation of the left wing, and plumed themselves on being preferred before those rivals; but now, when the Lacedaemonians of their own accord vacated the right wing for them, and after a fashion proffered them the leadership among the Hellenes, they neither welcomed the reputation thus to be won, nor counted it gain that their contention would thus be, not with men of the same tribes and kindreds, but rather with Barbarians and natural enemies. Upon this the Athenians very willingly exchanged posts with the Spartans, and the word passed from lip to lip far through their ranks that their enemies would attack them with no better arms and with no braver spirits than at Marathon, nay, with the same kind of archery as then, and with the same variegated vesture and gold adornments to cover soft bodies and unmanly spirits; "while we have not only like arms and bodies with our brethren of that day, but that greater courage which is born of our victories; and our contest is not alone for land and city, as theirs was, but also for the trophies which they set up at Marathon and Salamis, in order that the world may think that not even those were due to Miltiades only, or to fortune, but to the Athenians."

The Spartans and Athenians, then, were busily engaged in exchanging posts; but the Thebans heard of it from deserters and told Mardonius. He, at once, whether through fear of the Athenians or out of ambition to engage with the Lacedaemonians,

PLUTARCH'S LIVES

συμπεσεῖν φιλοτιμούμενος, ἀντιπαρεξήγε τοὺς Πέρσας ἐπὶ τὸ δεξιόν, τοὺς δὲ Ἕλληνας ἐκέλευε τοὺς σὺν αὐτῷ κατὰ τοὺς Ἀθηναίους ἴστασθαι. 6
γενομένης δὲ τῆς μετακοσμήσεως καταφανοὺς ὅ τε Πausανίας ἀποτραπείς αὐθις ἐπὶ τοῦ δεξιοῦ κατέστη, καὶ Μαρδόνιος, ὥσπερ εἶχεν ἐξ ἀρχῆς, ἀνέλαβε τὸ εὐώνυμον κατὰ τοὺς Λακεδαιμονίους γενόμενος, ἢ τε ἡμέρα διεξῆλθεν ἀργή. καὶ τοῖς Ἕλλησι βουλευομένοις ἔδοξε πορρωτέρω μεταστρατοπεδεῦσαι καὶ καταλαβεῖν εὐνδρον χωρίον, ἐπεὶ τὰ πλησίον νάματα καθύβριστο καὶ διέφθαρτο τῶν βαρβάρων ἵπποκρατούνων.

XVII. Ἐπελθούσης δὲ νυκτὸς καὶ τῶν στρατηγῶν ἀγόντων ἐπὶ τὴν ἀποδεδειγμένην στρατοπεδείαν οὐ πάνυ πρόθυμον ἦν ἔπεσθαι καὶ συμμένειν τὸ πλῆθος, ἀλλ' ὡς ἀνέστησαν ἐκ τῶν πρώτων ἐρυμάτων ἐφέροντο πρὸς τὴν πόλιν τῶν Πλαταιέων οἱ πολλοί, καὶ θόρυβος ἦν ἐκεῖ διασκιδνάμενων καὶ κατασκηνούντων ἀτάκτως. Λακεδαιμονίοις δὲ συνέβαινεν¹ ἄκουσι μόνοις ἀπολείπεσθαι τῶν ἄλλων. Ἄμομφάρετος γάρ, ἀνὴρ 2 θυμοειδῆς καὶ φιλοκίνδυνος, ἔκπαλαι πρὸς τὴν μάχην σπαργῶν καὶ βαρυνόμενος τὰς πολλὰς ἀναβολὰς καὶ μελλήσεις, τότε δὴ παντάπασι τὴν μετανάστασιν φυγὴν ἀποκαλῶν καὶ ἀπόδρασιν, οὐκ ἔφη λείψειν τὴν τάξιν, ἀλλ' αὐτόθι μένων μετὰ τῶν ἑαυτοῦ λοχιτῶν ὑποστήσασθαι Μαρδό- 3
νιον. ὡς δὲ Πausανίας ἐπελθὼν ἔλεγε ταῦτα πράττειν ἐψηφισμένα καὶ δεδογμένα τοῖς Ἕλλησιν, ἀράμενος ταῖν χεροῖν πέτρον μέγαν ὁ

¹ συνέβαινεν Blass, adopting the conjecture of Sintenis¹; συνέβη [μὲν].

ARISTIDES

counterchanged his Persians to the right wing, and ordered the Hellenes with him to set themselves against the Athenians. When this change in his enemy's order of battle was manifest, Pausanias returned and occupied the right wing again, whereupon Mardonius also resumed his own left wing, just as he stood at the beginning, facing the Lacedaemonians. And thus the day came to an end without action. The Hellenes, on deliberation, decided to change their camp to a position farther on, and to secure a spot where there was plenty of good water, since the neighbouring springs were defiled and ruined by the Barbarians' superior force of cavalry.

XVII. Night came on, and the generals set out to lead their forces to the appointed encampment. The soldiers, however, showed no great eagerness to follow in close order, but when they had once abandoned their first defences, most of them hurried on toward the city of Plataea, and there tumult reigned as they scattered about and encamped in no order whatsoever. But it chanced that the Lacedaemonians were left alone behind the others, and that too against their will. For Amompharetus, a man of a fierce and venturesome spirit, who had long been mad for battle and distressed by the many postponements and delays, now at last lost all control of himself, denounced the change of position as a runaway flight, and declared that he would not abandon his post, but stay there with his company and await the onset of Mardonius. And when Pausanias came up and told him that their action had been formally voted by the Hellenes in council, Ἄμομφάρετος καὶ καταβαλὼν πρὸ τῶν ποδῶν τοῦ Πausανίου ταύτην ἔφη ψῆφον αὐτὸς περὶ τῆς μάχης τίθεσθαι, τὰ δὲ τῶν ἄλλων δειλὰ βουλευματα καὶ δόγματα χαίρειν ἔαν. ἄπορούμενος δὲ Πausανίας τῷ παρόντι πρὸς μὲν τοὺς Ἀθηναίους ἔπεμψεν ἀπιόντας ἤδη, περιμεῖναι δεόμενος καὶ κοινῇ βαδίζειν, αὐτὸς δὲ τὴν ἄλλην δύναμιν ἤγε πρὸς τὰς Πλαταιὰς ὡς ἀναστήσων τὸν Ἄμομφάρετον.

- 4 Ἐν τούτῳ δὲ κατελάμβανεν ἡμέρα, καὶ Μαρδόνιος (οὐ γὰρ ἔλαθον τὴν στρατοπεδείαν ἐκλελοιπότες οἱ Ἕλληνες) ἔχων συντεταγμένην τὴν δύναμιν ἐπεφέρετο τοῖς Λακεδαιμονίοις βοῆ πολλῇ καὶ πατάγῳ τῶν βαρβάρων, ὡς οὐ μάχης ἐσομένης, ἀλλὰ φεύγοντας ἀναρπασομένων τοὺς Ἕλληνας. ὁ μικρᾶς ῥοπῆς ἐδέησε γενέσθαι.
- 5 κατιδὼν γὰρ τὸ γινόμενον ὁ Πausανίας ἔσχετο μὲν τῆς πορείας καὶ τὴν ἐπὶ μάχῃ τάξιν ἐκέλευσε λαμβάνειν ἕκαστον, ἔλαθε δ' αὐτόν, εἴθ' ὑπὸ τῆς πρὸς τὸν Ἄμομφάρετον ὀργῆς εἶτε τῷ τάχει θορυβηθέντα τῶν πολεμίων, σύνθημα μὴ δοῦναι τοῖς Ἕλλησιν. ὅθεν οὐτ' εὐθὺς οὐτ' ἀθρόοι, κατ' ὀλίγους δὲ καὶ σποράδην, ἤδη τῆς μάχης ἐν χερσὶν οὐσης, προσεβοήθουν.
- 6 Ὡς δὲ θυόμενος οὐκ ἐκαλλιέρι, προσέταξε τοῖς Λακεδαιμονίοις τὰς ἀσπίδας πρὸ τῶν ποδῶν θεμένους ἰτρέμα καθέζεσθαι καὶ προσέχειν αὐτῷ, μηδένα τῶν πολεμίων ἀμυνομένους, αὐτὸς δὲ πάλιν ἐσφαγιάζετο. καὶ προσέπιπτον οἱ ἰππεῖς· ἤδη δὲ καὶ βέλος ἐξικνεῖτο καὶ τις ἐπέπληκτο
- 7 τῶν Σπαρτιατῶν. ἐν τούτῳ δὲ καὶ Καλλικράτης,

ARISTIDES

Amompharetus picked up a great stone and threw it down at the feet of Pausanias, saying that was his personal ballot for battle, and he cared not a whit for the cowardly counsels and votes of the rest. Pausanias, perplexed at the case, sent to the Athenians, who were already moving off, begging them to wait and make the march in company with him, and then began to lead the rest of his troops toward Plataea, with the idea that he would thus force Amompharetus from his position.

At this point day overtook them, and Mardonius, who did not fail to notice that the Hellenes had abandoned their encampment, with his force in full array, bore down upon the Lacedaemonians, with great shouting and clamour on the part of the Barbarians, who felt that there would be no real battle, but that the Hellenes had only to be snatched off as they fled. And this lacked but little of coming to pass. For Pausanias, on seeing the situation, though he did check his march and order every man to take post for battle, forgot, either in his rage at Amompharetus or his confusion at the speed of the enemy, to give the signal for battle to the confederate Hellenes. For this reason they did not come to his aid at once, nor in a body, but in small detachments and straggling, after the battle was already joined.

When Pausanias got no favourable omens from his sacrifices, he ordered his Lacedaemonians to sit quiet with their shields planted in front of them, and to await his orders, making no attempt to repulse their enemies, while he himself went to sacrificing again. By this time the horsemen were charging upon them; presently their missiles actually reached them, and many a Spartan was smitten. And then it was

PLUTARCH'S LIVES

ὄν ἰδέα τε κάλλιστον Ἑλλήνων καὶ σώματι μέγιστον ἐν ἐκείνῳ τῷ στρατῷ γενέσθαι λέγουσι, τοξευθεὶς καὶ θνήσκων οὐκ ἔφη τὸν θάνατον ὀδύρεσθαι, καὶ γὰρ ἐλθεῖν οἴκοθεν ὑπὲρ τῆς Ἑλλάδος ἀποθανούμενος, ἀλλ' ὅτι θνήσκει τῇ χειρὶ μὴ χρησάμενος. ἦν οὖν τὸ μὲν πάθος δεινόν, ἢ δ' ἐγκράτεια θαυμαστὴ τῶν ἀνδρῶν. οὐ γὰρ ἠμύνοντο τοὺς πολεμίους ἐπιβαίνοντας, ἀλλὰ τὸν παρὰ τοῦ θεοῦ καὶ τοῦ στρατηγοῦ καιρὸν ἀναμένοντες ἠνείχοντο βαλλόμενοι καὶ πίπτοντες ἐν ταῖς τάξεσιν.

- 8 *Ἐνιοὶ δέ φασι τῷ Πausανία μικρὸν ἔξω τῆς παρατάξεως θύοντι καὶ κατευχομένῳ τῶν Λυδῶν τινὰς ἄφνω προσπεσόντας ἀρπάζειν καὶ διαρρίπτειν τὰ περὶ τὴν θυσίαν, τὸν δὲ Πausανίαν καὶ τοὺς περὶ αὐτὸν οὐκ ἔχοντας ὄπλα ῥάβδοις καὶ μάστιξι παίειν· διὸ καὶ νῦν ἐκείνης τῆς ἐπιδρομῆς μμήματα τὰς περὶ τὸν βωμὸν ἐν Σπάρτῃ πληγὰς τῶν ἐφήβων καὶ τὴν μετὰ ταῦτα τῶν Λυδῶν πομπὴν συντελεῖσθαι.

XVIII. Δυσφορῶν οὖν ὁ Πausανίας τοῖς παροῦσιν, ἄλλα τοῦ μάντεως ἐπ' ἄλλοις ἱερεῖα καταβάλλοντος, τρέπεται πρὸς τὸ Ἑραῖον τῇ ὄψει δεδακρυμένος, καὶ τὰς χεῖρας ἀνασχὼν εὐξάτο Κιθαιρωνία "Ἡρα καὶ θεοῖς ἄλλοις, οἳ Πλαταιίδα γῆν ἔχουσιν, εἰ μὴ πέπρωται τοῖς Ἑλλησι νικᾶν, ἀλλὰ δρᾶσαντάς γέ τι παθεῖν καὶ δείξαντας ἔργῳ τοῖς πολεμίοις, ὡς ἐπ' ἀνδρας ἀγαθοὺς καὶ μάχε-

2 σθαι μεμαθηκότας ἐστράτευσαν. ταῦτα τοῦ Πausανίου θεοκλυτοῦντος ἅμα ταῖς εὐχαῖς ἐφάνη τὰ ἱερὰ καὶ νίκην ὁ μάντις ἔφραζε. καὶ δοθέντος that Callicrates, said to be the fairest of the Hellenes to look upon, and the tallest man in their whole army, was shot, and, dying, said he did not grieve at death, since he had left his home to die for Hellas, but at dying without striking a single blow. Their experience was indeed a terrible one, but the restraint of the men was wonderful. They did not try to repel the enemy who were attacking them, but awaited from their god and their general the favourable instant, while they endured wounds and death at their posts.

ARISTIDES

Some say that as Pausanias was sacrificing and praying, a little to one side of his line of battle, some Lydians suddenly fell upon him and rudely hurled away the sacrificial offerings; and that Pausanias and his attendants, being without weapons, smote the intruders with the sacrificial staves and goads; wherefore, to this day, in imitation of this onslaught, the ceremonies of beating the young warriors round the altar at Sparta, and of the procession of the Lydians which follows this, are duly celebrated as rites.

XVIII. Then, in distress at this state of affairs, while the seer slew victim after victim, Pausanias turned his face, all tears, toward the Heraeum, and with hands uplifted prayed Cithaeronian Hera and the other gods of the Plataean land that, if it was not the lot of the Hellenes to be victorious, they might at least do great deeds before they fell, and show to a certainty that their enemies had marched out against men who were brave and who knew how to fight. While Pausanias was thus calling on the gods, right in the midst of his prayers, the sacrifices showed themselves propitious and the seer announced

- εἰς ἅπαντας τοῦ παραγγέλματος καθίστασθαι πρὸς τοὺς πολεμίους, ἢ τε φάλαγξ ὄψιν ἔσχεν αἰφνιδίως ἐνὸς ζώου θυμοειδοῦς πρὸς ἀλκὴν τρεπομένου καὶ φρίξαντος, τοῖς τε βαρβάροις τότε παρέστη λογισμός, ὡς πρὸς ἄνδρας ὁ ἀγὼν
- 3 ἔσοιτο μάχουμένους ἄχρι θανάτου. διὸ καὶ προθέμενοι πολλὰ τῶν γέρρων ἐτόξευον εἰς τοὺς¹ Λακεδαιμονίους. οἱ δὲ τηροῦντες ἅμα τὸν συνασπισμὸν ἐπέβαινον, καὶ προσπεσόντες ἐξεώθουν τὰ γέρρα, καὶ τοῖς δόρασι τύπτουντες πρόσωπα καὶ στέρνα τῶν Περσῶν πολλοὺς κατέβαλλον, οὐκ ἀπράκτως οὐδὲ ἀθύμως πίπτοντας. καὶ γὰρ ἀντιλαμβανόμενοι τῶν δοράτων ταῖς χερσὶ γυμναῖς συνέθραυον τὰ πλεῖστα, καὶ πρὸς τὰς 330 ξιφουλκίας ἐχώρουν οὐκ ἀργῶς, ἀλλὰ ταῖς τε κοπίσι καὶ τοῖς ἀκινάκαις χρώμενοι καὶ τὰς ἀσπίδας παρασπῶντες καὶ συμπλεκόμενοι χρόνον πολὺν ἀντεῖχον.
- 4 Οἱ δ' Ἀθηναῖοι τέως μὲν ἠτρέμουσαν ἀναμένοντες τοὺς Λακεδαιμονίους, ἐπεὶ δὲ κραυγὴ τε προσέπιπτε πολλὴ μαχομένων καὶ παρῆν, ὡς φασιν, ἄγγελος παρὰ Πανσανίου τὰ γινόμενα φράζων, ὤρμησαν κατὰ τάχος βοηθεῖν. καὶ προχωροῦσιν αὐτοῖς διὰ τοῦ πεδίου πρὸς τὴν βοήν ἐπεφέ-
- 5 ροντο τῶν Ἑλλήνων οἱ μηδίζοντες, Ἀριστείδης δὲ πρῶτον μὲν, ὡς εἶδε, πολὺ προελθὼν ἐβόα, μαρτυρόμενος Ἑλληνίους θεοὺς, ἀπέχεσθαι μάχης καὶ μὴ σφίσις ἐμποδῶν εἶναι μηδὲ κωλύειν ἐπαμύνοντας τοῖς προκινδυνεύουσιν ὑπὲρ τῆς Ἑλλάδος, ἐπεὶ δ' ἑώρα μὴ προσέχοντας αὐτῷ καὶ συντεταγμένους ἐπὶ τὴν μάχην, οὕτω τῆς

¹ eis τοὺς Hercher and Blass with S: τοὺς.

ARISTIDES

victory. Word was at once passed all along the line to set themselves in motion against the enemy, and the phalanx suddenly had the look of a fierce beast bristling up to defend itself. The Barbarians then got assurance that their contest was to be with men who would fight to the death. Therefore they made a rampart of their wicker targets and shot their arrows into the ranks of the Lacedaemonians. These, however, kept their shields closely locked together as they advanced, fell upon their foemen, tore away their wicker targets, and then, smiting the Persians in face and breast with their long spears, they slew many, who nevertheless did great deeds of courage before they fell. For they grasped the long spears with their naked hands, fractured them for the most part, and then took to short-range fighting with a will, plying their daggers and scimitars, tearing away their enemies' shields, and locking them in close embrace ; and so they held out a long time.

The Athenians, meanwhile, were quietly awaiting the Lacedaemonians. But when the shouts of those engaged in battle fell loud upon their ears, and there came, as they say, a messenger from Pausanias telling them what was happening, they set out with speed to aid him. However, as they were advancing through the plain to his aid, the Medising Hellenes bore down upon them. Then Aristides, to begin with, when he saw them, went far forward and shouted to them, invoking the gods of Hellas, that they refrain from battle, and oppose not nor hinder those who were bearing aid to men standing in the van of danger for the sake of Hellas. But as soon as he saw that they paid no heed to him, and were

PLUTARCH'S LIVES

ἐκεῖ βοηθείας ἀποτραπόμενος συνέβαλε τούτοις
 6 περὶ πεντακισμυρίους οὖσιν. ἀλλὰ τὸ μὲν
 πλείστον εὐθύς ἐνέδωκε καὶ ἀπεχώρησεν, ἅτε
 δὴ καὶ τῶν βαρβάρων ἀπηλλαγμένων, ἡ δὲ
 μάχη λέγεται μάλιστα κατὰ Θηβαίους γενέσθαι, προθυμώτατα τῶν πρώτων καὶ δυνατωτάτων τότε
 παρ' αὐτοῖς μηδίζοντων καὶ τὸ πλῆθος οὐ κατὰ
 γνώμην, ἀλλ' ὀλιγαρχούμενον ἀγόντων.

XIX. Οὕτω δὲ τοῦ ἀγῶνος δίχα συνεστῶτος
 πρώτοι μὲν ἑώσαντο τοὺς Πέρσας οἱ Λακεδαι-μόνιοι· καὶ τὸν Μαρδόνιον ἀνὴρ Σπαρτιάτης
 ὄνομα Ἀρίμνηστος ἀποκτίννυσι, λίθῳ τὴν κε-φαλὴν πατάξας, ὥσπερ αὐτῷ προσήμανε τὸ
 ἐν Ἀμφιάρεω μαντεῖον. ἔπεμψε γὰρ ἄνδρα Λυδὸν ἐνταῦθα, Κᾶρα δὲ ἕτερον εἰς Τροφωνίου
 ὁ¹ Μαρδόνιος· καὶ τοῦτον μὲν ὁ προφήτης Καρικῆ
 2 γλῶσση προσεῖπεν, ὁ δὲ Λυδὸς ἐν τῷ σηκῷ τοῦ
 Ἀμφιάρεω κατευνασθεὶς ἔδοξεν ὑπηρέτην τινὰ
 τοῦ θεοῦ παραστήναι καὶ κελεύειν αὐτὸν ἀπιέναι,
 μὴ βουλομένου δὲ λίθον εἰς τὴν κεφαλὴν ἐμβαλεῖν
 μέγαν, ὥστε δόξαι πληγέντα τεθνάναι τὸν ἄνθρω-πον· καὶ ταῦτα μὲν οὕτω γενέσθαι λέγεται. τοὺς
 δὲ φεύγοντας εἰς τὰ ξύλινα τεῖχη καθεῖρξαν.

Ὀλίγῳ δ' ὕστερον Ἀθηναῖοι τοὺς Θηβαίους
 3 τρέπονται, τριακοσίους τοὺς ἐπιφανεστάτους καὶ
 πρώτους διαφθείραντες ἐν αὐτῇ τῇ μάχῃ. γε-γεννημένης δὲ τῆς τροπῆς ἤκεν αὐτοῖς ἄγγελος πολιορκεῖσθαι τὸ βαρβαρικὸν εἰς τὰ τεῖχη κατα-

¹ ὁ bracketed in Sintenis²; Blass reads εἰς τὸ Πύθον ὁ with S, after Hercher, thus agreeing with Herodotus viii. 135.

ARISTIDES

arrayed for battle, then he turned aside from rendering aid where he had proposed, and engaged with these, though they were about fifty thousand in number. But the greater part of them at once gave way and withdrew, especially as the Barbarians had also retired, and the battle is said to have been fought chiefly with the Thebans, whose foremost and most influential men were at that time very eagerly Medising, and carried with them the multitude, not of choice, but at the bidding of the few.

XIX. The contest thus begun in two places, the Lacedaemonians were first to repulse the Persians. Mardonius was slain by a man of Sparta named Arimnestus, who crushed his head with a stone, even as was foretold him by the oracle in the shrine of Amphiaraüs. Thither he had sent a Lydian man, and a Carian besides to the oracle of Trophonius.¹ This latter the prophet actually addressed in the Carian tongue; but the Lydian, on lying down in the precinct of Amphiaraüs, dreamed that an attendant of the god stood by his side and bade him be gone, and on his refusal, hurled a great stone upon his head, insomuch that he died from the blow (so ran the man's dream). These things are so reported. Furthermore, the Lacedaemonians shut the flying Persians up in their wooden stockade.

Shortly after this it was that the Athenians routed the Thebans, after slaying three hundred, their most eminent leaders, in the actual battle. After the rout was effected, and more might have been slain, there came a messenger to the Athenians, telling them that the Barbarian force was shut up and besieged

¹ According to Herodotus, viii. 135, Mys the Carian visited the shrine of the Ptoan Apollo, overlooking Lake Copais.

κεκλεισμένοι. οὕτω δὴ σώζεσθαι τοὺς Ἕλληνας
 εὔσαντες ἐβοήθουν πρὸς τὰ τεῖχη· καὶ τοῖς Λακεδαιμονίοις παντάπασιν ἀργῶς πρὸς τειχο-μαχίαν καὶ ἀπείρως ἔχουσιν ἐπιφανέντες αἰρούσι
 τὸ στρατόπεδον φόνῳ πολλῷ τῶν πολεμίων.

- 4 λέγονται γὰρ ἀπὸ τῶν τριάκοντα μυριάδων
 τετρακισμῦριοι φυγεῖν σὺν Ἀρταβάξῳ, τῶν δ'
 ὑπὲρ τῆς Ἑλλάδος ἀγωνισαμένων ἔπεσον οἱ
 πάντες ἐπὶ χιλίοις ἑξήκοντα καὶ τριακόσιοι.
 τούτων Ἀθηναῖοι μὲν ἦσαν δύο καὶ πενήκοντα, πάντες ἐκ τῆς Αἰαντίδος φυλῆς, ὡς φησι Κλεί-
 5 δημοσ, ἀγωνισαμένης ἄριστα· διὸ καὶ ταῖς
 Σφραγίτισι νύμφαις ἔθνον Αἰαντίδαι τὴν πυθό-χρηστον θυσίαν ὑπὲρ τῆς νίκης, ἐκ δημοσίου τὸ
 ἀνάλωμα λαμβάνοντες· Λακεδαιμόνιοι δ' ἐνὶ
 πλείους τῶν ἐνεθήκοντα, Τεγεᾶται δ' ἑκκαίδεκα.

- Θαυμαστὸν οὖν τὸ Ἡροδότου, πῶς μόνους
 τούτους φησὶν εἰς χεῖρας ἐλθεῖν τοῖς πολεμίοις, τῶν δ' ἄλλων Ἑλλήνων μηδένα. καὶ γὰρ τὸ
 πλῆθος τῶν πεσόντων μαρτυρεῖ καὶ τὰ μνήματα
 6 κοινὸν γενέσθαι τὸ κατόρθωμα· καὶ τὸν βωμὸν
 οὐκ ἂν ἐπέγραψαν οὕτως, εἰ μόναι τρεῖς πόλεις
 ἠγωνίσαντο, τῶν ἄλλων ἀτρέμα καθεζομένων·

Τόνδε ποθ' Ἕλληνας νίκας κράτει, ἔργῳ Ἄρηος,¹ Πέρσας ἐξελάσαντες ἐλευθέρα Ἑλλάδι κοινὸν ἰδρύσαντο Διὸς βωμὸν ἐλευθερίου.

¹ Coraës and Bekker insert after this verse the pentameter :
 εὐτόλμῳ ψυχᾶς λήματι πειθόμενοι, following the bold impulse of their spirit, found in the Palatine Anthology, vi. 50.

ARISTIDES

in their stockade. So they suffered the Hellenes in front of them to make good their escape, while they themselves marched to the stockade. They brought welcome aid to the Lacedaemonians, who were altogether inexperienced and helpless in storming walled places, and captured the camp with great slaughter of the enemy. Out of three hundred thousand, only forty thousand, it is said, made their escape with Artabazus. Of those who contended in behalf of Hellas, there fell in all one thousand three hundred and sixty. Of these, fifty-two were Athenians, all of the Aeantid tribe, according to Cleidemus, which made the bravest contest (for which reason the Aeantids used to sacrifice regularly to the Sphragitic nymphs the sacrifice ordained by the Pythian oracle for the victory, receiving the expenses therefor from the public funds); ninety-one were Lacedaemonians, and sixteen were men of Tegea.

Astonishing, therefore, is the statement of Herodotus,¹ where he says that these one hundred and fifty-nine represented the only Hellenes who engaged the enemy, and that not one of the rest did so. Surely the total number of those who fell, as well as the monuments erected over them, testifies that the success was a common one. Besides, had the men of three cities only made the contest, while the rest sat idly by, the altar would not have been inscribed as it was:—

“ Here did the Hellenes, flushed with a victory
granted by Ares
Over the routed Persians, together, for Hellas
delivered,
Build them an altar of Zeus, Zeus as Deliverer known.”

¹ ix. 85.

7 Ταύτην τὴν μάχην ἐμαχέσαντο τῇ τετράδι τοῦ Βοηδρομῶνος ἰσταμένου κατ' Ἀθηναίους, κατὰ δὲ Βοιωτοὺς τετράδι τοῦ Πανέμου φθίνοντος, ἧ 331
καὶ νῦν ἔτι τὸ Ἑλληνικὸν ἐν Πλαταιαῖς ἀθροίζεται συνέδριον καὶ θύουσι τῷ ἐλευθερίῳ Διὶ Πλαταιεῖς ὑπὲρ τῆς νίκης. τὴν δὲ τῶν ἡμερῶν ἀνωμαλίαν οὐ θαυμαστόν, ὅπου καὶ νῦν διηκριβωμένων τῶν ἐν ἀστρολογίᾳ μᾶλλον ἄλλην ἄλλοι μηνὸς ἀρχὴν καὶ τελευτὴν ἀγοῦσιν.

XX. Ἐκ τούτου τῶν Ἀθηναίων τὸ ἀριστεῖον
οὐ παραδιδόντων τοῖς Σπαρτιάταις οὐδὲ τρό-παιον ἰσθάναι συγχωρούντων ἐκείνοις, παρ'
οὐδὲν ἂν ἦλθεν εὐθύς ἀπολέσθαι τὰ πράγματα
τῶν Ἑλλήνων ἐν τοῖς ὅπλοις διαστάντων,
εἰ μὴ πολλὰ παρηγορῶν καὶ διδάσκων τοὺς
συστρατήγους ὁ Ἀριστείδης, μάλιστα δὲ Λεωκράτη καὶ Μυρωνίδην, ἔσχε καὶ συνέπεισε τὴν
2 κρίσιν ἐφείναι τοῖς Ἑλλησιν. ἐνταῦθα βουλευο-μένων τῶν Ἑλλήνων Θεογείτων μὲν ὁ Μεγαρεὺς εἶπεν, ὡς ἑτέρα¹ πόλει δοτέον εἴη τὸ ἀριστεῖον, εἰ μὴ βούλονται συνταράξαι πόλεμον ἐμφύλιον·
ἐπὶ τούτῳ δ' ἀναστὰς Κλεόκριτος ὁ Κορινθίος
δόξαν μὲν παρέσχεν ὡς Κορινθίοις αἰτήσων τὸ
ἀριστεῖον· ἦν γὰρ ἐν ἀξιώματι μεγίστῳ μετὰ τὴν Σπάρτην καὶ τὰς Ἀθήνας ἢ Κόρινθος· εἶπε δὲ
πᾶσιν ἀρέσαντα καὶ θαυμαστὸν λόγον ὑπὲρ Πλαταιέων, καὶ συνεβούλευσε τὴν φιλονεικίαν
ἀνελεῖν ἐκείνοις τὸ ἀριστεῖον ἀποδόντας, οἷς
3 οὐδετέρους τιμωμένους ἄχθεσθαι. ῥηθέντων δὲ
τούτων πρῶτος μὲν Ἀριστείδης συνεχώρησεν

¹ ἑτέρα Bekker has οὐδετέρα neither city, adopting a conjecture of Muretus.

ARISTIDES

This battle was fought on the fourth of the month Boëdromion, as the Athenians reckon time; but according to the Boeotian calendar, on the twenty-seventh of the month Panemus,¹ the day when, down to the present time, the Hellenic council assembles in Plataea, and the Plataeans sacrifice to Zeus the Deliverer for the victory. We must not wonder at the apparent discrepancy between these dates, since, even now that astronomy is a more exact science, different peoples have different beginnings and endings for their months.

XX. After this, the Athenians would not grant the Spartans the highest meed of valour, nor allow them to erect a general trophy, and the cause of the Hellenes had certainly gone at once to destruction from their armed contention, had not Aristides, by abundant exhortation and admonition, checked his fellow-generals, especially Leocrates and Myronides, and persuaded them to submit the case to the Hellenes for decision. Thereupon, in the council of the Hellenes, Theogeiton the Megarian said that the meed of valour must be given to some third city, unless they desired the confusion of a civil war. At this point Cleocritus the Corinthian rose to speak. Every one thought he would demand the meed of valour for the Corinthians, since Corinth was held in greatest estimation after Sparta and Athens. But to the astonishment and delight of all, he made a proposition in behalf of the Plataeans, and counselled to take away contention by giving them the meed of valour, since at their honour neither claimant could take offence. To this proposal Aristides was first to ὑπὲρ τῶν Ἀθηναίων, ἔπειτα Πausanίας ὑπὲρ τῶν Λακεδαιμονίων. οὕτω δὲ διαλλαγέντες ἐξεΐλον ὀγδοήκοντα τάλαντα τοῖς Πλαταιεῦσιν, ἀφ' ὧν τὸ τῆς Ἀθηνᾶς ἀνφοδόμησαν¹ ἱερὸν καὶ τὸ ἔδος ἔστησαν καὶ γραφαῖς τὸν νεῶν διεκόσμησαν, αἱ μέχρι νῦν ἀκμάζουσαι διαμένουσιν, ἔστησαν δὲ τρόπαιον ἰδία μὲν Λακεδαιμόνιοι, χωρὶς δ' Ἀθηναῖοι.

¹ About August 1, 479 B.C.

PLUTARCH'S LIVES

- 4 Περὶ δὲ θυσίας ἐρομένοις αὐτοῖς ἀνείλεν ὁ Πύθιος Διὸς ἐλευθερίου βωμὸν ἰδρύσασθαι, θῦσαι δὲ μὴ πρότερον ἢ τὸ κατὰ τὴν χώραν πῦρ ἀποσβέσαντας ὡς ὑπὸ τῶν βαρβάρων μεμιασμένον ἐναύσασθαι καθαρὸν ἐκ Δελφῶν ἀπὸ τῆς κοινῆς ἐστίας. οἱ μὲν οὖν ἄρχοντες τῶν Ἑλλήνων περιιόντες εὐθύς ἠνάγκαζον ἀποσβεννύναι τὰ πυρὰ πάντα τοὺς χρωμένους, ἐκ δὲ Πλαταιέων Εὐχίδας ὑποσχόμενος ὡς ἐνδέχεται τάχιστα κρμιεῖν
- 5 τὸ παρὰ τοῦ θεοῦ πῦρ ἦκεν εἰς Δελφούς. ἀγνίσας δὲ τὸ σῶμα καὶ περιρρανάμενος ἐστεφανώσατο δάφνη· καὶ λαβὼν ἀπὸ τοῦ βωμοῦ τὸ πῦρ δρόμφῳ πάλιν εἰς τὰς Πλαταιὰς ἐχώρει καὶ πρὸ ἡλίου² δυσμῶν ἐπανῆλθε, τῆς—αὐτῆς ἡμέρας χιλίους σταδίους κατανόσας. ἀσπασάμενος δὲ τοὺς πολίτας καὶ τὸ πῦρ παραδοὺς εὐθύς ἔπεσε καὶ μετὰ μικρὸν ἐξέπνευσεν. ἀγάμενοι δ' αὐτὸν οἱ Πλαταιεῖς ἔθαψαν ἐν τῷ ἱερῷ τῆς Εὐκλείας Ἀρτέμιδος, ἐπιγράψαντες τὸδε τὸ τετράμετρον·

Εὐχίδας Πυθῶδε θρέξας ἦλθε τᾶδ' αὐθημερόν.

¹ ἀνφοδόμησαν Hercher and Blass, following Stephanus, and favoured by F^aS: ἀκοδόμησαν built.

ARISTIDES

agree on behalf of the Athenians, then Pausanias on behalf of the Lacedaemonians. Thus reconciled, they chose out eighty talents of the booty for the Plataeans, with which they rebuilt the sanctuary of Athena, and set up the shrine, and adorned the temple with frescoes, which continue in perfect condition to the present day; then the Lacedaemonians set up a trophy on their own account, and the Athenians also for themselves.

When they consulted the oracle regarding the sacrifice to be made, the Pythian god made answer that they were to erect an altar of Zeus the Deliverer, but were not to sacrifice upon it until they had extinguished the fire throughout the land, which he said had been polluted by the Barbarians, and kindled it fresh and pure from the public hearth at Delphi. Accordingly the commanders of the Hellenes went about straightway and compelled all who were using fire to extinguish it, while Euchidas, who promised to bring the sacred fire with all conceivable speed, went from Plataea to Delphi. There he purified his person by sprinkling himself with the holy water, and crowned himself with laurel. Then he took from the altar the sacred fire and started to run back to Plataea. He reached the place before the sun had set, accomplishing thus a thousand furlongs in one and the same day. He greeted his countrymen, handed them the sacred fire, and straightway fell down, and after a little expired. In admiration of him the Plataeans gave him burial in the sanctuary of Artemis Eucleia, and inscribed upon his tomb this tetrameter verse:—

“Euchidas, to Pytho running, came back here
the selfsame day.”

PLUTARCH'S LIVES

6 Τὴν δ' Εὐκλείαν οἱ μὲν πολλοὶ καὶ καλοῦσι καὶ νομίζουσιν Ἄρτεμιν, ἔτιοι δέ φασιν Ἑρακλέους μὲν θυγατέρα καὶ Μυρτοῦς γενέσθαι, τῆς Μεινοιτίου μὲν θυγατρὸς, Πατρόκλου δ' ἀδελφῆς, τελευτήσασαν δὲ παρθένον ἔχειν παρά τε Βοιωτοῖς καὶ Λοκροῖς τιμάς. βωμὸς γὰρ αὐτῇ καὶ ἄγαλμα κατὰ πᾶσαν ἀγορὰν ἴδρυται, καὶ προθύουσι αἱ τε γαμούμεναι καὶ οἱ γαμοῦντες.

XXI Ἐκ τούτου γενομένης ἐκκλησίας κοινῆς τῶν Ἑλλήνων ἔγραψεν Ἀριστείδης ψήφισμα συνιέναι μὲν εἰς Πλαταιὰς καθ' ἕκαστον ἐνιαυτὸν ἀπὸ τῆς Ἑλλάδος προβούλους καὶ θεωροὺς, ἄγεσθαι δὲ πενταετηρικὸν ἀγῶνα τῶν Ἑλευθερίων. εἶναι δὲ σύνταξιν Ἑλληνικὴν μυρίας μὲν ἄσπιδας, χιλίους δὲ ἵππους, ναῦς δ' ἑκατὸν ἐπὶ τὸν πρὸς βαρβάρους πόλεμον, Πλαταιεῖς δ' ἄσύλους καὶ ἱεροὺς ἀφείσθαι τῷ θεῷ θύοντας ὑπὲρ τῆς Ἑλλάδος.

2 Κυρωθέντων δὲ τούτων οἱ Πλαταιεῖς ὑπεδέξαντο τοῖς πεσοῦσι καὶ κειμένοις αὐτόθι τῶν Ἑλλήνων ἐναγίζειν καθ' ἕκαστον ἐνιαυτὸν. καὶ τοῦτο μέχρι νῦν δρῶσι τόνδε¹ τὸν τρόπον τοῦ Μαιμακτηριῶνος μηνός, ὃς ἐστὶ παρὰ Βοιωτοῖς Ἄλαλκομένος, τῇ ἕκτῃ ἐπὶ δέκα πέμπουσι πομπῇ, ἧς προηγείται μὲν ἅμ' ἡμέρα σαλπιγκτῆς ἐγκελευόμενος τὸ πολεμικόν, ἔπονται δ' ἅμαξαι μυρρίνης μεσταὶ καὶ στεφανωμάτων καὶ μέλας ταῦρος καὶ χοὰς οἴνου καὶ γάλακτος ἐν ἀμφορεῦσιν ἐλαίου τε καὶ μύρου κρωσσοὺς νεανίσκοι κομίζοντες ἐλεύθεροι· δούλω γὰρ οὐδενὸς ἔξεστι τῶν

¹ τόνδε Hercher and Blass with F²S : τοῦτον.

ARISTIDES

Now Eucleia is regarded by most as Artemis, and is so addressed; but some say she was a daughter of Heracles and of that Myrto who was daughter of Menoetius and sister of Patroclus, and that, dying in virginity, she received divine honours among the Boeotians and Locrians. For she has an altar and an image built in every market place, and receives preliminary sacrifices from would-be brides and bridegrooms.

XXI. After this, there was a general assembly of the Hellenes, at which Aristides proposed a decree to the effect that deputies and delegates from all Hellas convene at Plataea every year, and that every fourth year festival games of deliverance be celebrated — the Eleutheria; also that a confederate Hellenic force be levied, consisting of ten thousand shield, one thousand horse, and one hundred ships, to prosecute the war against the Barbarian; also that the Plataeans be set apart as inviolable and consecrate, that they might sacrifice to Zeus the Deliverer in behalf of Hellas.

These propositions were ratified, and the Plataeans undertook to make funeral offerings annually for the Hellenes who had fallen in battle and lay buried there. And this they do yet unto this day, after the following manner. On the sixteenth of the month Maimacterion (which is the Boeotian Alalcomenius), they celebrate a procession. This is led forth at break of day by a trumpeter sounding the signal for battle; waggons follow filled with myrtle-wreaths, then comes a black bull, then free-born youths carrying libations of wine and milk in jars, and pitchers of oil and myrrh (no slave may put hand to

PLUTARCH'S LIVES

περὶ τὴν διακονίαν ἐκείνην προσάψασθαι διὰ τὸ
 4 τοὺς ἄνδρας ἀποθανεῖν ὑπὲρ ἐλευθερίας· ἐπὶ πᾶσι
 δὲ τῶν Πλαταιέων ὁ ἄρχων, ᾧ τὸν ἄλλον χρόνον
 οὔτε σιδήρου θιγεῖν ἔξεστιν οὔθ' ἑτέραν ἐσθῆτα
 πλὴν λευκῆς ἀναλαβεῖν, τότε χιτῶνα φοινικοῦν
 ἐνδεδυκὼς ἀράμενός τε ὑδρίαν ἀπὸ τοῦ γραμματοφυλακίου ξιφῆρης ἐπὶ τοὺς τάφους προάγει διὰ
 5 μέσης τῆς πόλεως. εἶτα λαβὼν ὕδωρ ἀπὸ τῆς
 κρήνης αὐτὸς ἀπολούει τε τὰς στήλας καὶ μύρω
 χρίει, καὶ τὸν ταῦρον εἰς τὴν πυρὰν σφάξας καὶ
 κατευξάμενος Διὶ καὶ Ἑρμῇ χθονίῳ παρακαλεῖ
 τοὺς ἀγαθοὺς ἄνδρας τοὺς ὑπὲρ τῆς Ἑλλάδος
 ἀποθανόντας ἐπὶ τὸ δεῖπνον καὶ τὴν αἰμοκουρίαν.
 ἔπειτα κρατῆρα κεράσας οἴνου καὶ χεάμενος ἐπιλέγει· “ Προπίνω τοῖς ἀνδράσι τοῖς ὑπὲρ τῆς
 ἐλευθερίας τῶν Ἑλλήνων ἀποθανούσι.” ταῦτα
 μὲν οὖν ἔτι καὶ νῦν διαφυλάττουσιν οἱ Πλαταιεῖς.

XXII. Ἐπεὶ δ' ἀναχωρήσαντας εἰς τὸ ἄστυ
 τοὺς Ἀθηναίους ὁ Ἀριστείδης ἑώρα ζητοῦντας
 τὴν δημοκρατίαν ἀπολαβεῖν, ἅμα μὲν ἄξιον ἡγούμενος διὰ τὴν ἀνδραγαθίαν ἐπιμελείας τὸν δῆμον,
 ἅμα δ' οὐκ ἔτι ῥάδιον ἰσχύοντα τοῖς ὄπλοις καὶ
 μέγα φρονούντα ταῖς νίκαις ἐκβιασθῆναι, γράφει
 ψήφισμα κοινὴν εἶναι τὴν πολιτείαν καὶ τοὺς
 ἄρχοντας ἐξ Ἀθηναίων πάντων αἰρεῖσθαι.

2 Θεμιστοκλέους δὲ πρὸς τὸν δῆμον εἰπόντος, ὡς
 ἔχει τι βούλευμα καὶ γνώμην ἀπόρρητον, ὠφέ-λιμον δὲ τῇ πόλει καὶ σωτήριον, ἐκέλευσαν
 Ἀριστείδην μόνον ἀκούσαι καὶ συνδοκιμάσαι.

ARISTIDES

any part of that ministration, because the men thus honoured died for freedom); and following all, the chief magistrate of Plataea, who may not at other times touch iron or put on any other raiment than white, at this time is robed in a purple tunic, carries on high a water-jar from the city's archive chamber, and proceeds, sword in hand, through the midst of the city to the graves; there he takes water from the sacred spring, washes off with his own hands the gravestones, and anoints them with myrrh; then he slaughters the bull at the funeral pyre, and, with prayers to Zeus and Hermes Terrestrial, summons the brave men who died for Hellas to come to the banquet and its copious draughts of blood; next he mixes a mixer of wine, drinks, and then pours a libation from it, saying these words: "I drink to the men who died for the freedom of the Hellenes." These rites, I say, are observed by the Plataeans down to this very day.

XXII. After the Athenians had returned to their own city, Aristides saw that they desired to receive the more popular form of government. He thought the people worthy of consideration because of its sturdy valour, and he saw also that it was no longer easy to be forced out of its desires, since it was powerful in arms, and greatly elated by its victories. So he introduced a decree that the administration of the city be the privilege of all classes, and that the archons be chosen from all the Athenians.

Themistocles once declared to the people that he had devised a certain measure which could not be revealed to them, though it would be helpful and salutary for the city, and they ordered that Aristides alone should hear what it was and pass judgment on

PLUTARCH'S LIVES

φράσαντος δὲ τῷ Ἀριστείδῃ τοῦ Θεμιστοκλέους, ὡς διανοεῖται τὸν ναύσταθμον ἐμπρῆσαι τῶν Ἑλλήνων, οὕτω γὰρ ἔσεσθαι μεγίστους καὶ κυρίουσ ἀπάντων τοὺς Ἀθηναίους, παρελθὼν εἰς τὸν δῆμον ὁ Ἀριστείδης ἔφη τῆς πράξεως, ἦν Θεμιστοκλῆς πράττειν διανοεῖται, μήτε λυσιτελεστέραν ἄλλην μήτ' ἀδικωτέραν εἶναι. ταῦτ' ἀκούσαντες οἱ Ἀθηναῖοι παύσασθαι τὸν Θεμιστοκλέα προσέταξαν. οὕτω μὲν ὁ δῆμος ἦν φιλοδίκαιος, οὕτω δὲ τῷ δήμῳ πιστὸς ὁ ἀνὴρ καὶ βέβαιος.

XXIII. Ἐπεὶ δὲ στρατηγὸς ἐκπεμφθεὶς μετὰ Κίμωνος ἐπὶ τὸν πόλεμον ἑώρα τὸν τε Πausανίαν καὶ τοὺς ἄλλους ἄρχοντας τῶν Σπαρτιατῶν ἐπαχθεῖς καὶ χαλεπούς τοῖς συμμαχοῖς ὄντας, αὐτὸς τε πρῶτος καὶ φιλανθρώπως ὁμιλῶν καὶ τὸν Κίμωνα παρέχων εὐάρμοστον αὐτοῖς καὶ κοινὸν ἐν ταῖς στρατείαις ἔλαθε τῶν Λακεδαιμονίων οὐχ ὄπλοις οὐδὲ ναυσίν οὐδ' ἵπποις, εὐγνωμοσύνη δὲ καὶ πολιτεία τὴν ἡγεμονίαν

2 παρελόμενος. προσφιλεῖς γὰρ ὄντας τοὺς Ἀθηναίους τοῖς Ἑλλησι διὰ τὴν Ἀριστείδου δικαιοσύνην καὶ τὴν Κίμωνος ἐπιείκειαν ἔτι μᾶλλον ἢ τοῦ Πausανίου πλεονεξία καὶ βαρύτης ποθεινοὺς ἐποίει. τοῖς τε γὰρ ἄρχουσι τῶν συμμαχῶν αἰεὶ μετ' ὀργῆς ἐνετύγχανε καὶ τραχέως, τοὺς τε πολλοὺς ἐκόλαζε πληγαῖς ἢ σιδηρᾶν ἄγκυραν ἐπιτιθεὶς ἠνάγκαζεν ἐστάναι δι' ὅλης τῆς ἡμέρας.

3 στιβάδα δ' οὐκ ἦν λαβεῖν οὐδὲ χόρτον οὐδὲ κρήνη προσελθεῖν ὑδρευόμενον οὐδένα πρὸ τῶν Σπαρτιατῶν, ἀλλὰ μᾶστιγας ἔχοντες ὑπηρέται

ARISTIDES

it. So Themistocles told Aristides that his purpose was to burn the naval station of the confederate Hellenes, for that in this way the Athenians would be greatest, and lords of all. Then Aristides came before the people and said of the deed which Themistocles purposed to do, that none other could be more advantageous, and none more unjust. On hearing this, the Athenians ordained that Themistocles cease from his purpose.¹ So fond of justice was the people, and so loyal and true to the people was Aristides.

XXIII. When he was sent out as general along with Cimon to prosecute the war,² and saw that Pausanias and the other Spartan commanders were offensive and severe to the allies, he made his own intercourse with them gentle and humane, and induced Cimon to be on easy terms with them and to take an actual part in their campaigns, so that, before the Lacedaemonians were aware, not by means of hoplites or ships or horsemen, but by tact and diplomacy he had stripped them of the leadership. For, well disposed as the Hellenes were toward the Athenians on account of the justice of Aristides and the reasonableness of Cimon, they were made to long for their supremacy still more by the rapacity of Pausanias and his severity. The commanders of the allies ever met with angry harshness at the hands of Pausanias, and the common men he punished with stripes, or by compelling them to stand all day long with an iron anchor on their shoulders. No one could get bedding or fodder or go down to a spring for water before the Spartans, nay, their servants

¹ Cf. Themistocles, xx. 1-2.

² 478 B.C.

PLUTARCH'S LIVES

τοὺς προσιόντας ἀπήλαυνον. ὑπὲρ ὧν τοῦ Ἀριστείδου ποτὲ βουλευθέντος ἐγκαλέσαι καὶ διδάξαι,¹ συναγαγὼν τὸ πρόσωπον ὁ Πausanίας οὐκ ἔφη σχολάζειν οὐδ' ἤκουσεν.

- 4 Ἐκ τούτου προσιόντες οἱ ναύαρχοι καὶ στρα- 333
τηγοὶ τῶν Ἑλλήνων, μάλιστα δὲ Χίιοι καὶ Σάμιοι
καὶ Λέσβιοι, τὸν Ἀριστείδην ἔπειθον ἀναδέξασθαι
τὴν ἡγεμονίαν καὶ προσαγαγέσθαι τοὺς συμμάχους
πάσαις δεομένους ἀπαλλαγῆναι τῶν Σπαρτιατῶν
καὶ μετατάξασθαι πρὸς τοὺς Ἀθηναίους.
ἀποκριναμένου δ' ἐκείνου τοῖς μὲν λόγοις αὐτῶν
τό τε ἀναγκαῖον ἐνορᾶν καὶ τὸ δίκαιον, ἔργου
δὲ δεῖσθαι τὴν πίστιν, ὃ πραχθὲν οὐκ ἔασει
- 5 πάλιν μεταβαλέσθαι τοὺς πολλούς, οὕτως οἱ
περὶ τὸν Σάμιον Οὐλιάδην καὶ τὸν Χίιον Ἀνταγόραν συνομοσάμενοι περὶ Βυζάντιον ἐμβάλλουσι
εἰς τὴν τριήρη τοῦ Πausanίου, προεκπέουσαν
ἐν μέσῳ λαβόντες. ὡς δὲ κατιδὼν ἐκείνος
ἐξανέστη καὶ μετ' ὀργῆς ἠπέιλησεν ὀλίγῳ χρόνῳ
τοὺς ἄνδρας ἐπιδείξειν οὐκ εἰς τὴν αὐτοῦ ναῦν
ἐμβεβληκότας, ἀλλ' εἰς τὰς ἰδίας πατρίδας, ἐκέλευον αὐτὸν ἀπιέναι καὶ ἀγαπᾶν τὴν συναγωγί-σασμένην τύχην ἐν Πλαταιαῖς· ἐκείνην γὰρ ἔτι
τοὺς Ἕλληνας αἰσχυνομένους μὴ λαμβάνειν
ἀξίαν δίκην παρ' αὐτοῦ· τέλος δ' ἀποστάντες
ᾤχοντο πρὸς τοὺς Ἀθηναίους.

- 6 Ἐνθα δὴ καὶ τὸ φρόνημα τῆς Σπάρτης διεφάνη

¹ ποτὲ . . . διδάξαι Hercher and Blass with F²S: ποτ' ἐγκαλέσαι καὶ διδάξαι βουλομένου.

ARISTIDES

armed with goads would drive away such as approached. On these grounds Aristides once had it in mind to chide and admonish him, but Pausanias scowled, said he was busy, and would not listen.

Subsequently the captains and generals of the Hellenes, and especially the Chians, Samians, and Lesbians, came to Aristides and tried to persuade him to assume the leadership and bring over to his support the allies, who had long wanted to be rid of the Spartans and to range themselves anew on the side of the Athenians. He replied that he saw the urgency and the justice of what they proposed, but that to establish Athenian confidence in them some overt act was needed, the doing of which would make it impossible for the multitude to change their allegiance back again. So Uliades the Samian and Antagoras the Chian conspired together, and ran down the trireme of Pausanias off Byzantium, closing in on both sides of it as it was putting out before the line. When Pausanias saw what they had done, he sprang up and wrathfully threatened to show the world in a little while that these men had run down not so much his ship as their own native cities; but they bade him be gone, and be grateful to that fortune which fought in his favour at Plataea; it was because the Hellenes still stood in awe of this, they said, that they did not punish him as he deserved. And finally they went off and joined the Athenians.

Then indeed was the lofty wisdom of the

PLUTARCH'S LIVES

θαυμαστόν. ὡς γὰρ ἦσθοντο τῷ μεγέθει τῆς ἐξουσίας διαφθειρομένους αὐτῶν τοὺς ἄρχοντας, ἀφήκαν ἐκουσίως τὴν ἡγεμονίαν καὶ πέμποντες ἐπὶ τὸν πόλεμον ἐπαύσαντο στρατηγούς, μᾶλλον αἰρούμενοι σωφρονούντας ἔχειν καὶ τοῖς ἔθεσιν ἐμμένοντας τοὺς πολίτας ἢ τῆς Ἑλλάδος ἄρχειν ἀπάσης.

- XXIV. Οἱ δ' Ἕλληνες ἐτέλουν μὲν τινα καὶ Λακεδαιμονίων ἡγουμένων ἀποφορὰν εἰς τὸν πόλεμον, ταχθῆναι δὲ βουλόμενοι κατὰ πόλιν ἐκάστοις τὸ μέτριον ἠτήσαντο παρὰ τῶν Ἀθηναίων Ἀριστείδην, καὶ προσέταξαν αὐτῷ χώραν τε καὶ προσόδους ἐπισκεψάμενον ὀρίσαι τὸ κατ' 2 ἀξίαν ἐκάστῳ καὶ δύναμιν. ὁ δὲ τηλικαύτης ἐξουσίας κύριος γενόμενος καὶ τρόπον τινα τῆς Ἑλλάδος ἐπ' αὐτῷ μόνῳ τὰ πράγματα πάντα θεμένης, πένης μὲν ἐξῆλθεν, ἐπανῆλθε δὲ πενέστερος, οὐ μόνον καθαρῶς καὶ δικαίως, ἀλλὰ καὶ προσφιλῶς πᾶσι καὶ ἀρμοδίως τὴν ἐπιγραφὴν τῶν χρημάτων ποιησάμενος. ὡς γὰρ οἱ παλαιοὶ τὸν ἐπὶ Κρόνου βίον, οὕτως οἱ σύμμαχοι τῶν Ἀθηναίων τὸν ἐπ' Ἀριστείδου φόρον εὐπομίαν τινα τῆς Ἑλλάδος ὀνομάζοντες ὕμνου, καὶ 3 μάλιστα μετ' οὐ πολὺν χρόνον διπλασιασθέντος, εἴτ' αὖθις τριπλασιασθέντος. ἔν μὲν γὰρ Ἀριστείδης ἔταξεν, ἦν εἰς ἐξήκοντα καὶ τετρακοσίων ταλάντων λόγον· τούτῳ δὲ Περικλῆς μὲν ἐπέθηκεν ὀλίγου δεῖν τὸ τρίτον μέρος· ἑξακόσια γὰρ τάλαντα Θουκυδίδης φησὶν ἀρχομένου τοῦ πολέμου προσιέναι τοῖς Ἀθηναίοις ἀπὸ τῶν συμμάχων· Περικλέους δ' ἀποθανόντος ἐπιτείνοντες

ARISTIDES

Spartans made manifest in a wonderful way. When they saw that their commanders were corrupted by the great powers entrusted to them, they voluntarily abandoned the leadership and ceased sending out generals for the war, choosing rather to have their citizens discreet and true to their ancestral customs than to have the sway over all Hellas.

XXIV. The Hellenes used to pay a sort of contribution for the war even while the Lacedaemonians had the leadership, but now they wished to be assessed equably city by city. So they asked the Athenians for Aristides, and commissioned him to inspect their several territories and revenues,¹ and then to fix the assessments according to each member's worth and ability to pay. And yet, though he became master of such power, and though after a fashion Hellas put all her property in his sole hands, poor as he was when he went forth on this mission, he came back from it poorer still, and he made his assessments of money not only with purity and justice, but also to the grateful satisfaction and convenience of all concerned. Indeed, as men of old hymned the praises of the age of Cronus—the golden age, so did the allies of the Athenians praise the tariff of Aristides, calling it a kind of blessed happening for Hellas, especially as, after a short time, it was doubled and then again trebled. For the tax which Aristides laid amounted to four hundred and sixty talents only; but Pericles must have added almost a third to this, since Thucydides² says that when the war began the Athenians had a revenue of six hundred talents from their allies. And after

¹ 478-477 B.C.

² ii. 13.

οί δημαγωγοὶ κατὰ μικρὸν εἰς χιλίων καὶ τριακοσίων ταλάντων κεφάλαιον ἀνήγαγον, οὐχ οὗτω τοῦ πολέμου διὰ μῆκος καὶ τύχας δαπανηροῦ γενομένου καὶ πολυτελοῦς, ὡς τὸν δῆμον εἰς διανομὰς καὶ θεωρικὰ καὶ κατασκευὰς ἀγαλμάτων καὶ ἱερῶν προαγαγόντες.

- 4 Μέγα δ' οὖν ὄνομα τοῦ Ἀριστείδου καὶ θαυμαστὸν ἔχοντας ἐπὶ τῇ διατάξει τῶν φόρων ὁ Θεμιστοκλῆς λέγεται καταγελᾶν, ὡς οὐκ ἄνδρὸς ὄντα τὸν ἔπαινον, ἀλλὰ θυλάκου χρυσοφύλακος ἀνομοίως ἀμυνόμενος τὴν Ἀριστείδου παρρησίαν ἐκείνῳ γὰρ¹ εἰπόντος ποτὲ τοῦ Θεμιστοκλέους ἀρετὴν ἠγεῖσθαι μεγίστην στρατηγοῦ τὸ γινώσκειν καὶ προαισθάνεσθαι τὰ βουλευόμενα τῶν πολεμίων, “Τοῦτο μὲν,” εἰπεῖν, “ἀναγκαῖόν ἐστιν, ὦ Θεμιστόκλεις, καλὸν δὲ καὶ στρατηγικὸν ἀληθῶς ἢ περὶ τὰς χεῖρας ἐγκράτεια.”

- XXV. Ὁ δ' Ἀριστείδης ὄρκισε μὲν τοὺς Ἕλληνας καὶ ὤμοσεν ὑπὲρ τῶν Ἀθηναίων, μύ- 334
δρους ἐμβαλὼν ἐπὶ ταῖς ἀραις εἰς τὴν θάλατταν, ὕστερον δὲ τῶν πραγμάτων ἄρχειν ἐγκρατέστερον, ὡς ἔοικεν, ἐκβιαζομένων ἐκέλευε τοὺς Ἀθηναίους τὴν ἐπιορκίαν τρέψαντας εἰς ἑαυτὸν²
- 2 ἢ συμφέρει χρῆσθαι τοῖς πράγμασι. καθ' ὅλου δ' ὁ Θεόφραστός φησι τὸν ἄνδρα τοῦτον περὶ τὰ οἰκεῖα καὶ τοὺς πολίτας ἄκρως ὄντα δίκαιον ἐν

¹ ἐκείνῳ γὰρ Hercher and Blass with F^aS: ἐκεῖνος γάρ.

² ἑαυτὸν Hercher and Blass with F^aS: αὐτὸν.

ARISTIDES •

the death of Pericles the demagogues enlarged it little by little, and at last brought the sum total up to thirteen hundred talents, not so much because the war, by reason of its length and vicissitudes, became extravagantly expensive, as because they themselves led the people off into the distribution of public moneys for spectacular entertainments, and for the erection of images and sanctuaries.

So then Aristides had a great and admirable name for his adjustment of the revenues. But Themistocles is said to have ridiculed him, claiming that the praise he got therefor was not fit for a man, but rather for a mere money-wallet. He came off second best, however, in this retort upon the plain speech of Aristides, who had remarked, when Themistocles once declared to him the opinion that the greatest excellence in a general was the anticipation of the plans of his enemies: "That is indeed needful, Themistocles, but the honourable thing, and that which makes the real general, is his mastery over his fingers."

XXV. Aristides did, indeed, bind the Hellenes by an oath, and took oath himself for the Athenians, solemnly casting iron ingots from the very altars into the sea; but afterwards, when circumstances, forsooth, compelled a more strenuous sway, he bade the Athenians lay the perjury to his own charge, and turn events to their own advantage. And in general, as Theophrastus tells us, while the man was strictly just in his private relations to his fellow-citizens, in public matters he often

PLUTARCH'S LIVES

τοῖς κοινοῖς πολλὰ πράξει πρὸς τὴν ὑπόθεσιν τῆς πατρίδος, ὡς συχνῆς καὶ ἀδικίας δεομένην.¹ καὶ γὰρ τὰ χρήματά φησιν ἐκ Δήλου βουλευομένων Ἀθήναζε κομίσαι παρὰ τὰς συνθήκας, καὶ² Σαμίων εἰσηγουμένων, εἰπεῖν ἐκείνου, ὡς οὐ

3 δίκαιον μὲν, συμφέρον δὲ τοῦτ' ἐστί. καὶ τέλος εἰς τὸ ἄρχειν ἀνθρώπων τοσοῦτων καταστήσας τὴν πόλιν αὐτὸς ἐνέμεινε τῇ πενία καὶ τὴν ἀπὸ τοῦ πένης εἶναι δόξαν οὐδὲν ἤττον ἀγαπῶν τῆς ἀπὸ τῶν τροπαίων διετελέσει. δῆλον δ' ἐκείθεν. Καλλίας ὁ δαδούχος ἦν αὐτῷ γένει προσήκων· τοῦτον οἱ ἐχθροὶ θανάτου διώκοντες, ἐπεὶ περὶ ὧν ἐγράψαντο μετρίως κατηγορήσαν, εἰπόν τινα λόγον ἔξωθεν τοιοῦτον πρὸς τοὺς δικαστάς·

4 “ Ἀριστείδην,” ἔφησαν, “ ἴστε τὸν Λυσιμάχου θαυμαζόμενον ἐν τοῖς Ἑλλησι· τούτῳ πῶς οἴεσθε τὰ κατ' οἶκον ἔχειν ὀρώντες αὐτὸν ἐν τρίβωνι τοιοῦτῳ προερχόμενον εἰς τὸ δημόσιον; ἄρ' οὐκ εἰκὸς ἐστί τὸν ῥιγούντα φανερώως καὶ πεινᾶν οἶκοι καὶ τῶν ἄλλων ἐπιτηδείων σπανίζειν; τοῦτον μέντοι Καλλίας, ἀνεψιὸν ὄντα, πλουσιώτατος ὧν Ἀθηναίων περιορᾷ μετὰ τέκνων καὶ γυναικὸς ἐνδεόμενον, πολλὰ κεχρημένος τῷ ἀνδρὶ καὶ πολλάκις αὐτοῦ τῆς παρ' ὑμῖν δυνάμεως ἀπολε-

5 λαυκῶς.” ὁ δὲ Καλλίας ὀρῶν ἐπὶ τούτῳ μάλιστα

¹ καὶ ἀδικίας δεομένην Blass, favoured by F²S: ἀδικίας δεομένης. ² καὶ bracketed by Sintenis².

ARISTIDES

acted in accordance with the policy which his country had adopted, feeling that this required much actual injustice. For instance, he says that when the question of removing the moneys of the confederacy from Delos to Athens,¹ contrary to the compacts, was being debated, and even the Samians proposed it, Aristides declared that it was unjust, but advantageous. And yet, although he at last established his city in its sway over so many men, he himself abode by his poverty, and continued to be no less content with the reputation he got from being a poor man, than with that based on his trophies of victory. This is clear from the following story.

Callias the Torch-bearer was a kinsman of his. This man was prosecuted by his enemies on a capital charge, and after they had brought only moderate accusations against him within the scope of their indictment, they went outside of it and appealed to the judges as follows: "You know Aristides the son of Lysimachus," they said, "how he is admired in Hellas; what do you suppose his domestic circumstances are when you see him entering the public assembly in such a scanty cloak as that? Is it not likely that a man who shivers in public goes hungry at home, and is straitened for the other necessaries of life? Callias, however, who is the richest man of Athens (and his cousin at that), allows him to suffer want with his wife and children, though he has often had service of the man, and many times reaped advantage from his influence with you." But Callias, seeing

¹ 454 B.C.

PLUTARCH'S LIVES

θορυβούντας τοὺς δικαστὰς καὶ χαλεπῶς πρὸς αὐτὸν ἔχοντας ἐκάλει τὸν Ἀριστείδην, ἀξιῶν μαρτυρῆσαι πρὸς τοὺς δικαστὰς, ὅτι πολλάκις αὐτοῦ πολλὰ καὶ δίδοντας καὶ δεομένου λαβεῖν οὐκ ἠθέλησεν ἀποκρινόμενος, ὡς μᾶλλον αὐτῷ διὰ πεινίαν μέγα φρονεῖν ἢ Καλλία διὰ πλοῦτον προσήκει· πλούτῳ μὲν γὰρ ἔστι πολλοὺς ἰδεῖν εὐ τε καὶ κακῶς χρωμένους, πεινίαν δὲ φέρουσι γενναίως οὐ ῥάδιον ἐντυχεῖν· αἰσχύνεσθαι δὲ

6 πεινίαν τοὺς ἀκουσίως πενομένους. ταῦτα δὲ τοῦ Ἀριστείδου τῷ Καλλία προσμαρτυρήσαντος οὐδείς ἦν τῶν ἀκούοντων, ὃς οὐκ ἀπῆει πένης μᾶλλον ὡς Ἀριστείδης εἶναι βουλόμενος ἢ πλουτεῖν ὡς Καλλίας. ταῦτα μὲν οὖν¹ Αἰσχίνης ὁ Σωκρατικὸς ἀναγέγραφε. Πλάτων δὲ τῶν μεγάλων δοκούντων καὶ ὀνομαστῶν Ἀθήνησι μόνον ἄξιον λόγου τοῦτον ἀποφαίνει τὸν ἄνδρα· Θεμιστοκλέα μὲν γὰρ καὶ Κίμωνα καὶ Περικλέα στοῶν καὶ χρημάτων καὶ φλυαρίας πολλῆς ἐμπλήσαι τὴν πόλιν, Ἀριστείδην δὲ πολιτεύσασθαι πρὸς ἀρετήν.

7 Μεγάλα δ' αὐτοῦ καὶ τὰ πρὸς Θεμιστοκλέα τῆς ἐπιεικείας σημεῖα. χρησάμενος γὰρ αὐτῷ παρὰ πᾶσαν ὁμοῦ τὴν πολιτείαν ἐχθρῷ καὶ δι' ἐκεῖνον ἐξοστρακισθεῖς, ἐπεὶ τὴν αὐτὴν λαβὴν παρέσχεν ὁ ἀνὴρ ἐν αἰτία γενόμενος πρὸς τὴν πόλιν, οὐκ ἐμνησικάκησεν, ἀλλ' Ἀλκμαίωνος καὶ Κίμωνος καὶ πολλῶν ἄλλων ἐλαυνόντων καὶ κατηγορούντων μόνος Ἀριστείδης οὔτ' ἔπραξεν οὔτ' εἶπέ τι φαῦλον, οὐδ' ἀπέλαυσεν ἐχθροῦ

¹ μὲν οὖν Heroher and Blass with F²S : μὲν.

ARISTIDES

that his judges were very turbulent at this charge, and bitterly disposed toward him, summoned Aristides and demanded his testimony before the judges that though often proffered aid from him and importuned to accept it, he had refused it, with the answer that it more became him to be proud of his poverty than Callias of his wealth; for many were to be seen who use wealth well or ill, but it was not easy to find a man who endured poverty with a noble spirit; and those only should be ashamed of poverty who could not be otherwise than poor. When Aristides had borne this witness for Callias, there was no one of his hearers who did not go home preferring to be poor with Aristides rather than to be rich with Callias. This, at any rate, is the story told by Aeschines the Socratic. And Plato¹ maintains that of all those who had great names and reputations at Athens, this man alone was worthy of regard. Themistocles, he says, and Cimon, and Pericles, filled the city with porches and moneys and no end of nonsense; but Aristides squared his politics with virtue.

There are also strong proofs of his reasonableness to be seen in his treatment of Themistocles. This man he had found to be his foe during almost all his public service, and it was through this man that he was ostracized; but when Themistocles was in the same plight, and was under accusation before the city, Aristides remembered no evil; nay, though Alcmeon and Cimon and many others denounced and persecuted the man, Aristides alone did and said no meanness, nor did he take any advantage of δυστυχοῦντος, ὥσπερ οὐδ' εὐημεροῦντι πρότερον ἐφθόνησε.

¹ Gorgias, pp. 518 f., 526.

PLUTARCH'S LIVES

- XXVI. Τελευτήσαι δὲ Ἀριστείδην οἱ μὲν ἐν Πόντῳ φασὶν ἐκπλεύσαντα πράξεων ἕνεκα δημοσίων, οἱ δ' Ἀθήνησι γήρα, τιμώμενον καὶ θαυμαζόμενον ὑπὸ τῶν πολιτῶν. Κρατερὸς δ' ὁ Μακεδῶν τοιαῦτά τινα περὶ τῆς τελευτῆς τοῦ ἀνδρὸς εἶρηκε. μετὰ γὰρ τὴν Θεμιστοκλέους φυγὴν φησὶν ὥσπερ ἐξυβρίσαντα τὸν δῆμον ἀναφῦσαι πλῆθος συκοφαντῶν, οἱ τοὺς ἀρίστους καὶ δυνατωτάτους ἀνδρας διώκοντες ὑπέβαλλον τῷ φθόνῳ τῶν πολ- 335
- 2 λῶν ἐπαιρομένων ὑπ' εὐτυχίας καὶ δυνάμεως. ἐν τούτοις καὶ Ἀριστείδην ἀλῶναι δωροδοκίας, Διοφάντου τοῦ Ἀμφιτροπῆθεν κατηγοροῦντος, ὡς, ὅτε τοὺς φόρους ἔταπτε, παρὰ τῶν Ἰώνων χρηματα λαβόντος· ἐκτίσαι δ' οὐκ ἔχοντα τὴν καταδίκην πεντήκοντα μνῶν οὖσαν ἐκπλεύσαι καὶ περὶ τὴν Ἰωνίαν ἀποθανεῖν. τούτων δὲ οὐδὲν ἔγγραφον ὁ Κρατερὸς τεκμήριον παρέσχηκεν, οὔτε δίκην οὔτε ψήφισμα, καίπερ εἰθῶς ἐπιεικῶς γράφειν τὰ τοιαῦτα καὶ παρατίθεσθαι τοὺς ἱστοροῦντας.
- 3 Οἱ δ' ἄλλοι πάντες, ὡς ἔπος εἰπεῖν, ὅσοι τὰ πλημμεληθέντα τῷ δήμῳ περὶ τοὺς στρατηγούς διεξίασι, τὴν μὲν Θεμιστοκλέους φυγὴν καὶ τὰ Μιλτιάδου δεσμὰ καὶ τὴν Περικλέους ζημίαν καὶ τὸν Πάχητος ἐν τῷ δικαστηρίῳ θάνατον, ἀνελόντος αὐτὸν ἐπὶ τοῦ βήματος ὡς ἠλίσκετο, καὶ πολλὰ τοιαῦτα συνάγουσι καὶ θρυλοῦσιν, Ἀριστείδου δὲ τὸν μὲν ἐξοστρακισμόν παρατίθενται, καταδίκης δὲ τοιαύτης οὐδαμοῦ μνημονεύουσι.

ARISTIDES

his enemy's misfortune, just as formerly he did not grudge him his prosperity.

XXVI. As touching the death of Aristides, some say he died in Pontus, on an expedition in the public service ; others at Athens, of old age, honoured and admired by his countrymen. But Craterus the Macedonian tells something like this about the death of the man. After the exile of Themistocles, he says, the people waxed wanton, as it were, and produced a great crop of sycophants, who hounded down the noblest and most influential men, and subjected them to the malice of the multitude, now exalted with its prosperity and power. Among these he says that Aristides also was convicted of bribery, on prosecution of Diophantus of the deme Amphitropé, for having taken money from the Ionians when he was regulating the tributes ; and, further, that being unable to pay the judgment, which was fifty minas, he sailed away and died somewhere in Ionia. But Craterus furnishes no documentary proof of this,—no judgment of the court, no degree of indictment,—although he is wont to record such things with all due fulness, and to adduce his authorities.

All the rest, as I may venture to say,—all who rehearse the shortcomings of the people in dealing with their leaders,—compile and descant upon the exile of Themistocles, the imprisonment of Miltiades, the fine of Pericles, the death of Paches in the court room,—he slew himself on the rostrum when he saw that he was convicted,—and marty such a case, and they put into the list the ostracism of Aristides, but of such a condemnation as this for bribery they make no mention whatsoever.

XXVII. Καὶ μέντοι καὶ τάφος ἐστὶν αὐτοῦ Φαληροῖ δεικνύμενος, ὃν φασὶ κατασκευάσαι τὴν πόλιν αὐτῷ μὴδ' ἐντάφια καταλιπόντι. καὶ τὰς μὲν θυγατέρας ἱστοροῦσιν ἐκ τοῦ πρυτανείου τοῖς νυμφίοις ἐκδοθῆναι δημοσίᾳ, τῆς πόλεως τὸν γάμον ἐγγνώσης καὶ προῖκα τρισχιλίας δραχμὰς ἑκατέρᾳ ψηφισαμένης, Λυσιμάχῳ δὲ τῷ υἱῷ μνᾶς μὲν ἑκατὸν ἀργυρίου καὶ γῆς τοσαῦτα πλέθρα πεφυτευμένης ἔδωκεν ὁ δῆμος, ἄλλας δὲ δραχμὰς

2 τέσσαρας εἰς ἡμέραν ἑκάστην ἀπέταξεν, Ἄλκιβιάδου τὸ ψήφισμα γράψαντος. ἔτι δὲ Λυσιμάχου θυγατέρα Πολυκρίτην ἀπολιπόντος, ὡς Καλλισθένης φησί, καὶ ταύτῃ σίτησιν ὄσσην καὶ τοῖς Ὀλυμπιονίκαις ὁ δῆμος ἐψηφίσατο. Δημήτριος δ' ὁ Φαληρεὺς καὶ Ἰερώνυμος ὁ Ῥόδιος καὶ Ἀριστόξενος ὁ μουσικὸς καὶ Ἀριστοτέλης (εἰ δὴ τό γε¹ Περὶ εὐγενείας βιβλίον ἐν τοῖς γνησίοις Ἀριστοτέλους θετέον) ἱστοροῦσι Μυρτῶ θυγατριδὴν Ἀριστείδου Σωκράτει τῷ σοφῷ συνοικῆσαι, γυναῖκα μὲν ἑτέραν ἔχοντι, ταύτην δ' ἀναλαβόντι χηρέουσαν διὰ πενίαν καὶ τῶν ἀναγκαίων ἐνδεομένην.

3 πρὸς μὲν οὖν τούτους ἰκανῶς ὁ Παναίτιος ἐν τοῖς περὶ Σωκράτους ἀντεΐρηκεν· ὁ δὲ Φαληρεὺς ἐν τῷ Σωκράτει φησὶ μνημονεύειν Ἀριστείδου θυγατριδοῦν εὖ μάλα πένητα Λυσίμαχον, ὃς ἑαυτὸν μὲν² ἐκ πινακίου τινὸς ὄνειροκριτικοῦ παρὰ τὸ Ἰακχεῖον λεγόμενον καθεζόμενος ἔβωσκε. τῇ δὲ μητρὶ καὶ τῇ ταύτης ἀδελφῇ ψήφισμα γράψας ἔπεισε τὸν δῆμον τροφὴν διδόναι τριῶβολον ἑκάστης ἡμέρας. αὐτὸς μέντοι φησὶν ὁ Δημήτριος

¹ τό γε Hercher and Blass with F²S : τδ.

² ἑαυτὸν μὲν Hercher and Blass with F²S : ἑαυτὸν.

ARISTIDES

XXVII. Moreover, his tomb is pointed out at Phalerum, and they say the city constructed it for him, since he did not leave even enough to pay for his funeral. And they tell how his daughters were married from the prytaneium at the public cost, the city bestowing the dowry for the marriage and voting outright three thousand drachmas to each daughter, while to Lysimachus his son, the people gave one hundred minas in silver, as many acres of vineyard land, and besides this a pension of four drachmas per diem,—all in a bill which was brought in by Alcibiades. And further, Lysimachus left a daughter, Polycrité, according to Callisthenes, and the people voted for her a public maintenance, in the style of their Olympic victors. Again, Demetrius the Phalerean, Hieronymus the Rhodian, Aristoxenus the Musician, and Aristotle (provided the book "On Nobility of Birth" is to be ranked among the genuine works of Aristotle) relate that Myrto, the granddaughter of Aristides, lived in wedlock with Socrates the Sage. He had another woman to wife, but took this one up because her poverty kept her a widow, and she lacked the necessaries of life. To these, however, Panaetius, in his work on Socrates, has made sufficient reply.

And the Phalerean says, in his "Socrates," that he remembers a grandson of Aristides, Lysimachus, a very poor man, who made his own living by means of a sort of dream-interpreting tablet, his seat being near the so-called Iaccheium. To this man's mother and to her sister, Demetrius persuaded the people to give, by formal decree, a pension of three obols per νομοθετῶν ἀντὶ τριωβόλου δραχμὴν ἑκατέρα τάξαι τῶν γυναικῶν.

PLUTARCH'S LIVES

- 4 Καὶ οὐδέν ἐστι θαυμαστὸν οὕτω φροντίσαι τῶν ἐν ἄστει τὸν δῆμον, ὅπου θυγατριδὴν Ἀριστογείτονος ἐν Δήμῳ πυθόμενοι ταπεινὰ πράττειν ἀνδρὸς ἀποροῦσαν διὰ πενίαν κατήγαγον Ἀθήναζε, καὶ συνοικίσαντες ἀνδρὶ τῶν εὐγεγονότων τὸ Ποταμοῖ χωρίον εἰς φερνὴν ἐπέδωκαν. ἥς φιλάνθρωπίας καὶ χρηστότητος ἔτι πολλὰ καὶ καθ' ἡμᾶς ἡ πόλις ἐκφέρουσα δείγματα θαυμάζεται καὶ ζηλοῦται δικαίως.

ARISTIDES

diem; though afterwards, in his capacity of sole legislator, he himself, as he says, assigned a drachma instead of three obols to each of the women.

It is not to be wondered at that the people took such thought for families in the city, since on learning that the granddaughter of Aristogeiton was living humbly in Lemnos, unmarried because of her poverty, they brought her back to Athens, consorted her with a well-born man, and gave her the estate in Potamus for her dowry. For such humanity and benevolence, of which the city still gives illustrious examples even in my own day, she is justly admired and lauded.

MARCUS CATO

ΜΑΡΚΟΣ ΚΑΤΩΝ

I. Μάρκῳ δὲ Κάτωνί φασι ἀπὸ Τούσκλου τὸ γένος εἶναι, δίαιταν δὲ καὶ βίον ἔχειν πρὸ τῶν ³³⁶ στρατειῶν καὶ τῆς πολιτείας ἐν χωρίοις πατρώοις περὶ Σαβίνους. τῶν δὲ προγόνων παντάπασι ἀγνώστων γεγονέναι δοκούντων αὐτὸς ὁ Κάτων καὶ τὸν πατέρα Μάρκον ὡς ἀγαθὸν ἄνδρα καὶ στρατιωτικὸν ἐπαινεί, καὶ Κάτωνα τὸν πρόπαππον ἀριστείων πολλάκις τυχεῖν φησι καὶ πέντε πολεμιστὰς ἵππους ἐν μάχαις ἀποβαλόντα τὴν τιμὴν ἀπολαβεῖν ἐκ τοῦ δημοσίου δι' ἄνδρα ² ἀγαθίαν. εἰωθότων δὲ τῶν Ῥωμαίων τοὺς ἀπὸ γένους μὲν δόξαν οὐκ ἔχοντας, ἀρχομένους δὲ γνωρίζεσθαι δι' αὐτῶν καινοὺς προσαγορεύειν ἀνθρώπους, ὥσπερ καὶ τὸν Κάτωνα προσηγόρευον, αὐτὸς ἔλεγε καινὸς εἶναι πρὸς ἀρχὴν καὶ δόξαν, ἔργοις δὲ προγόνων καὶ ἀρεταῖς παμπάλαιος. ἐκαλεῖτο δὲ τῷ τρίτῳ τῶν ὀνομάτων πρότερον οὐ Κάτων, ἀλλὰ Πρίσκος, ὕστερον δὲ τὸν Κάτωνα τῆς δυνάμεως ἐπώνυμον ἔσχε· Ῥωμαῖοι γὰρ τὸν ἔμπειρον κάτον ὀνομάζουσιν.

³ Ἦν δὲ τὸ μὲν εἶδος ὑπόπυρρος καὶ γλαυκός,

MARCUS CATO

I. THE family of Marcus Cato, it is said, was of Tusculan origin, though he lived, previous to his career as soldier and statesman, on an inherited estate in the country of the Sabines. His ancestors commonly passed for men of no note whatever, but Cato himself extols his father, Marcus, as a brave man and good soldier. He also says that his grandfather, Cato, often won prizes for soldierly valour, and received from the state treasury, because of his bravery, the price of five horses which had been killed under him in battle. The Romans used to call men who had no family distinction, but were coming into public notice through their own achievements, "new men," and such they called Cato. But he himself used to say that as far as office and distinction went, he was indeed new, but having regard to ancestral deeds of valour, he was oldest of the old. His third name was not Cato at first, but Priscus. Afterwards he got the surname of Cato for his great abilities. The Romans call a man who is wise and prudent, catus.

As for his outward appearance, he had reddish hair, and keen grey eyes, as the author of the well-

PLUTARCH'S LIVES

ὡς ὁ ποιήσας τὸ ἐπιγραμμάτιον οὐκ εὐμενῶς
παρεμφαίνει·

Πυρρόν, πανδακέτην, γλαυκόμματος, οὐδὲ
θανόντα

Πόρκιον εἰς αἰδὴν Φερσεφόνη δέχεται.

Τὴν δὲ τοῦ σώματος ἔξιν αὐτουργία καὶ διαίτη
σώφροσι καὶ στρατείαις ἀπ' ἀρχῆς συντρόφου
γεγονότος πάνυ χρηστικὴν εἶχε, καὶ πρὸς ἰσχύν
4 καὶ πρὸς ὑγίειαν ὁμαλῶς συνέστῶσαν. τὸν δὲ
λόγον, ὥσπερ δεύτερον σῶμα καὶ τῶν καλῶν,
οὐ μόνον τῶν ἀναγκαίων¹ ὄργανον ἀνδρὶ μὴ
ταπεινῶς βιωσομένῳ μηδ' ἀπράκτως, ἐξηρτύετο
καὶ παρεσκεύαζεν ἐν ταῖς περιοικίσι κώμαις καὶ
τοῖς πολιχνίοις ἐκάστοτε συνδικῶν τοῖς δεομένοις
καὶ πρῶτον μὲν ἀγωνιστῆς εἶναι δοκῶν πρόθυμος,
εἶτα καὶ ῥήτωρ ἰκανός. ἐκ δὲ τούτου μᾶλλον
τοῖς χρωμένοις κατεφαίνετο βᾶρος τι καὶ φρό-
νημα περὶ αὐτὸν ἦθος πραγμάτων μεγάλων καὶ
5 πολιτείας δεόμενον ἡγεμονικῆς. οὐ γὰρ μόνον, ὡς ἔοικε, μισθαρίας καθαρὸν ἑαυτὸν ἐπὶ τὰς
δίκας καὶ τοὺς ἀγῶνας παρεῖχεν, ἀλλ' οὐδὲ τὴν
δόξαν ὡς μέγιστον ἀγαπῶν ἐφαίνετο τὴν ἀπὸ τῶν
τοιούτων ἀγῶνων, πολὺ δὲ μᾶλλον ἐν ταῖς μάχαις
ταῖς πρὸς τοὺς πολεμίους καὶ ταῖς στρατείαις
βουλόμενος εὐδοκιμεῖν ἔτι μειρίκιον ὢν τραυμά-6 των τὸ σῶμα μεστὸν ἐναντίων εἶχε. φησὶ γὰρ
αὐτὸς ἑπτακαίδεκα γεγονῶς ἔτη τὴν πρώτην
στρατεύσασθαι στρατείαν περὶ δὴν Ἀννίβας
χρόνον εὐτυχῶν ἐπέφλεγε τὴν Ἰταλίαν.

¹ τῶν ἀναγκαίων Hercher and Blass, with Bekker : ἀναγκαῖον.

MARCUS CATO

known epigram ill-naturedly gives us to understand :—

Red-haired, snapper and biter, his grey eyes
flashing defiance,
Porcius, come to the shades, back will be thrust by their Queen.

His bodily habit, since he was addicted from the very first to labour with his own hands, a temperate mode of life, and military duties, was very serviceable, and disposed alike to vigour and health. His discourse,—a second body, as it were, and, for the use of a man who would live neither obscurely nor idly, an instrument with which to perform not only necessary, but also high and noble services,—this he developed and perfected in the villages and towns about Rome, where he served as advocate for all who needed him, and got the reputation of being, first a zealous pleader, and then a capable orator. Thenceforth the weight and dignity of his character revealed themselves more and more to those who had dealings with him; they saw that he was bound to be a man of great affairs, and have a leading place in the state. For he not only gave his services in legal contests without fee of any sort, as it would seem, but did not appear to cherish even the repute won in such contests as his chief ambition. Nay, he was far more desirous of high repute in battles and campaigns against the enemy, and while he was yet a mere stripling, had his breast covered with honourable wounds. He says himself that he made his first campaign when he was seventeen years old, at the time when Hannibal was consuming Italy with the flames of his successes.¹

¹ 217 B.C.

Παρείχε δ' αὐτὸν ἐν ταῖς μάχαις τῇ μὲν χειρὶ πλήκτην, τῷ δὲ ποδὶ μόνιμον καὶ βέβαιον, γαῦρον δὲ τῷ προσώπῳ· λόγου δ' ἀπειλῆ καὶ τραχύτητι φωνῆς πρὸς τοὺς πολεμίους ἐχρήτο, ὀρθῶς καὶ διανοούμενος καὶ διδάσκων, ὅτι πολλάκις τὰ τοιαῦτα τοῦ ξίφους μᾶλλον καταπλήττεται τοὺς
 7 ἐναντίους. ἐν δὲ ταῖς πορείαις αὐτὸς ἐβάδιζε φέρων τὰ ὄπλα, καὶ θεράπων εἰς εἶπετο τὰ πρὸς δίαιταν αὐτῷ κομίζων, ᾧ λέγεται μηδέποτε δυσκολᾶναι μηδὲ μέμψασθαι παραθέντι ἄριστον ἢ δεῖπνον, ἀλλὰ καὶ συλλαμβάνειν αὐτὸς τὰ πλείστα καὶ συμπαρασκευάζειν ἀπὸ τῶν στρατιωτικῶν γενόμενος ἔργων. ὕδωρ δ' ἔπινεν ἐπὶ στρατείας, πλὴν εἶποτε διψήσας περίφλεγῶς ὄξος αἰτήσειεν¹ ἢ τῆς ἰσχύος ἐνδιδούσης ἐπιλάβοι 337 μικρὸν οἰνᾶριον.

II. Ἦν δὲ πλησίον αὐτοῦ τῶν ἀγρῶν ἡ γενομένη Μανίου Κουρίου τοῦ τρις θριαμβεύσαντος ἔπαυλις. ἐπὶ ταύτην συνεχῶς βαδίζων καὶ θεώμενος τοῦ τε χωρίου τὴν μικρότητα καὶ τῆς οἰκῆσεως τὸ λιτόν, ἔννοϊαν ἐλάμβανε τοῦ ἀνδρός, ὅτι Ῥωμαίων μέγιστος γενόμενος καὶ τὰ μαχιμώτατα τῶν ἐθνῶν ὑπαγαγόμενος καὶ Πύρρον ἐξελάσας τῆς Ἰταλίας τοῦτο τὸ χωρίδιον αὐτὸς ἔσκαπτε καὶ ταύτην τὴν ἔπαυλιν ᾠκει μετὰ τρεῖς
 2 θριάμβους. ἐνταῦθα πρὸς ἐσχάρα καθήμενον αὐτὸν ἔψοντα γογγυλίδας εὐρόντες οἱ Σαυνιτῶν πρέσβεις ἐδίδοσαν πολὺ χρυσίον· ὁ δ' ἀπεπέμψατο φήσας οὐδὲν χρυσίου δεῖν ᾧ δεῖπνον ἀρκεῖ τοιοῦτον, αὐτῷ μέντοι τοῦ χρυσίου ἔχειν κάλλιον εἶναι τὸ νικᾶν τοὺς ἔχοντας. ταῦθ' ὁ Κάτων

¹ αἰτήσειεν Blass, with Bekker : ἤτησεν.

MARCUS CATO

In battle, he showed himself effective of hand, sure and steadfast of foot, and of a fierce countenance. With threatening speech and harsh cries he would advance upon the foe, for he rightly thought, and tried to show others, that often-times such action terrifies the enemy more than the sword. On the march, he carried his own armour on foot, while a single attendant followed in charge of his camp utensils. With this man, it is said, he was never wroth, and never scolded him when he served up a meal, nay, he actually took hold himself and assisted in most of such preparations, provided he was free from his military duties. Water was what he drank on his campaigns, except that once in a while, in a raging thirst, he would call for vinegar, or, when his strength was failing, would add a little wine.

II. Near his fields was the cottage which had once belonged to Manius Curius, a hero of three triumphs. To this he would often go, and the sight of the small farm and the mean dwelling led him to think of their former owner, who, though he had become the greatest of the Romans, had subdued the most warlike nations, and driven Pyrrhus out of Italy, nevertheless tilled this little patch of ground with his own hands and occupied this cottage, after three triumphs. Here it was that the ambassadors of the Samnites once found him seated at his hearth cooking turnips, and offered him much gold; but he dismissed them, saying that a man whom such a meal satisfied had no need of gold, and for his part he thought that a more honourable thing than the possession of gold was the conquest of its possessors. Cato would go away with his mind full of these ἐνθυμούμενος ἀπήει, καὶ τὸν αὐτοῦ πάλιν οἶκον ἐφορῶν καὶ χωρία καὶ θεράποντας καὶ δίαιταν ἐπέτεινε τὴν αὐτουργίαν καὶ περιέκοπτε τὴν πολυτέλειαν.

PLUTARCH'S LIVES

- 3 Φαβίου δὲ Μαξίμου τὴν Ταραντίνων πόλιν ἐλόντος ἔτυχε μὲν ὁ Κάτων στρατευόμενος ὑπ' αὐτῷ κομιδῇ μειράκιον ὄν, Νεάρχῳ δὲ τινι τῶν Πυθαγορικῶν ξένῳ χρησάμενος ἐσπούδασε τῶν λόγων μεταλαβεῖν. ἀκούσας δὲ ταῦτα διαλεγόμενου τοῦ ἀνδρός, οἷς κέχρηται καὶ Πλάτων, τὴν μὲν ἡδονὴν ἀποκαλῶν μέγιστον κακοῦ δέλεαρ, συμφορὰν δὲ τῇ ψυχῇ τὸ σῶμα πρώτην, λύσιν δὲ καὶ καθαρμὸν οἷς μάλιστα χωρίζει καὶ ἀφίστησιν αὐτὴν τῶν περὶ τὸ σῶμα παθημάτων λογισμοῖς, ἔτι μᾶλλον ἠγάπησε τὸ λιτὸν καὶ τὴν ἐγκράτειαν.
- 4 ἄλλως δὲ παιδείας Ἑλληνικῆς ὀφειμαθῆς γενέσθαι λέγεται, καὶ πόρρω παντάπασιν ἡλικίας ἐλληλακῶς¹ Ἑλληνικὰ βιβλία λαβὼν εἰς χεῖρας βραχέα μὲν ἀπὸ Θουκυδίδου, πλείονα δ' ἀπὸ Δημοσθένους εἰς τὸ ῥητορικὸν ὠφεληθῆναι. τὰ μέντοι συγγράμματα καὶ δόγμασιν Ἑλληνικοῖς καὶ ἱστορίαις ἐπιεικῶς διαπεποίκιλται· καὶ μεθρημνηυμένα πολλὰ κατὰ λέξιν ἐν τοῖς ἀποφθέγμασι καὶ ταῖς γνωμολογίαις τέτακται.

III. Ἦν δέ τις ἀνὴρ εὐπατρίδης μὲν ἐν τοῖς μάλιστα Ῥωμαίων καὶ δυνατός, ἀρετὴν δὲ φυομένην μὲν αἰσθάνεσθαι δεινός, εὐμενῆς δὲ καὶ θρέψαι καὶ προαγαγεῖν εἰς δόξαν, Οὐαλλέριος Φλάκκος. οὗτος εἶχεν ὁμορῶντα χωρία τοῖς Κάτωνος, πυθόμενος δὲ τὴν αὐτουργίαν καὶ δίαιταν αὐτοῦ παρὰ τῶν οἰκετῶν καὶ θαυμάσας ἐξηγουμένων, ὅτι things, and on viewing again his own house and lands and servants and mode of life, would increase the labours of his hands and lop off his extravagancies.

¹ ἡλικίας ἐλληλακῶς Hercher and Blass with S: ἡλικίας.

MARCUS CATO

When Fabius Maximus took the city of Tarentum,¹ it chanced that Cato, who was then a mere stripling, served under him, and being lodged with a certain Nearchus, of the sect of the Pythagoreans, he was eager to know of his doctrines. When he heard this man holding forth as follows, in language which Plato also uses, condemning pleasure as "the greatest incentive to evil," and the body as "the chief detriment to the soul, from which she can release and purify herself only by such reasonings as most do wean and divorce her from bodily sensations," he fell still more in love with simplicity and restraint. Further than this, it is said, he did not learn Greek till late in life, and was quite well on in years when he took to reading Greek books; then he profited in oratory somewhat from Thucydides, but more from Demosthenes. However, his writings are moderately embellished with Greek sentiments and stories, and many literal translations from the Greek have found a place among his maxims and proverbs.

III. There was at Rome a certain man of the highest birth and greatest influence, who had the power to discern excellence in the bud, and the grace to cultivate it and bring it into general esteem. This man was Valerius Flaccus. He had a farm next to that of Cato, and learned from Cato's servants of their master's laborious and frugal way of living. He was amazed to hear them tell how Cato, early in

¹ 209 B. C.

PLUTARCH'S LIVES

2 *πρωτὸ μὲν εἰς ἀγορὰν βαδίζει καὶ παρίσταται τοῖς δεομένοις, ἐπανελθὼν δ' εἰς τὸ χωρίον, ἂν μὲν ἦ χειμῶν, ἐξωμίδα λαβὼν, θέρους δὲ γυμνὸς ἐργασάμενος μετὰ τῶν οἰκετῶν ἐσθίει τὸν αὐτὸν ἄρτον
 ὁμοῦ καθήμενος καὶ πίνει τὸν αὐτὸν οἶνον, ἄλλην
 τε πολλὴν ἐπιείκειαν αὐτοῦ καὶ μετριότητα καὶ
 3 τινὰς καὶ λόγους ἀποφθεγματικούς διαμνημονεύοντων, ἐκέλευσε κληθῆναι πρὸς τὸ δεῖπνον. ἐκ δὲ
 τούτου χρώμενος καὶ κατανοῶν ἡμερον καὶ
 ἀστείου ἦθος, ὥσπερ φυτὸν ἀσκήσεως καὶ χώρας
 ἐπιφανοῦς δεόμενον, προετρέψατο καὶ συνέπεισεν
 ἄψασθαι τῆς ἐν Ῥώμῃ πολιτείας. κατελθὼν
 οὖν εὐθύς τοὺς μὲν αὐτὸς ἐκτᾶτο θαυμαστάς
 καὶ φίλους διὰ τῶν συνηγοριῶν, πολλὴν δὲ
 τοῦ Οὐαλλερίου τιμὴν καὶ δύναμιν αὐτῷ προστιθέντος χιλιαρχίας ἔτυχε πρῶτον, εἶτα ἐταμίευ-4 σεν. ἐκ τούτου δὲ λαμπρὸς ὢν ἤδη καὶ περιφανὴς
 αὐτῷ τῷ Οὐαλλερίῳ περὶ τὰς μεγίστας συνεξέδραμεν ἀρχάς, ὑπατός τε μετ' ἐκείνου καὶ πάλιν τιμητῆς γενόμενος.*

Τῶν δὲ πρεσβυτέρων πολιτῶν Μαξίμῳ Φαβίῳ
 προσέειπεν ἑαυτὸν, ἐνδοξοτάτῳ μὲν ὄντι καὶ
 μεγίστην ἔχοντι δύναμιν, μᾶλλον δὲ τὸν τρόπον
 αὐτοῦ καὶ τὸν βίον ὡς κάλλιστα παραδείγματα
 5 προθέμενος. διὸ καὶ Σκηπίωνι τῷ μεγάλῳ, νέῳ 338
 μὲν ὄντι τότε, πρὸς δὲ τὴν Φαβίου δύναμιν ἀνταίρουσι καὶ φθονεῖσθαι δοκοῦντι, παρ' οὐδὲν ἐποιή-σατο γενέσθαι διάφορος, ἀλλὰ καὶ ταμίας αὐτῷ
 πρὸς τὸν ἐν Λιβύῃ πόλεμον συνεκπεμφθεὶς, ὡς

MARCUS CATO

the morning, went on foot to the market-place and pleaded the cases of all who wished his aid; then came back to his farm, where, clad in a working blouse if it was winter, and stripped to the waist if it was summer, he wrought with his servants, then sat down with them to eat of the same bread and drink of the same wine. They told Valerius many other instances of Cato's fairness and moderation, quoting also sundry pithy sayings of his, until at last Valerius gave command that Cato be invited to dine with him. After this, discovering by converse with him that his nature was gentle and polite, and needed, like a growing tree, only cultivation and room to expand, Valerius urged and at last persuaded him to engage in public life at Rome. Accordingly, taking up his abode in the city, his own efforts as an advocate at once won him admiring friends, and the favour of Valerius brought him great honour and influence, so that he was made military tribune first, and then quaestor. After this, being now launched on an eminent and brilliant career, he shared the highest honours with Valerius, becoming consul with him, and afterwards censor.

Of the elder statesmen, he attached himself most closely to Fabius Maximus, who was of the highest reputation and had the greatest influence, but this was more by way of setting before himself the character and life of the man as the fairest examples he could follow. In the same spirit he did not hesitate to oppose the great Scipio, a youthful rival of Fabius, and thought to be envious of him. When he was sent out with Scipio as quaestor for the war in Africa,¹ he saw that the man indulged in

¹ 204 B. C.

ἑώρα τῇ συνήθει πολυτελείᾳ χρώμενον τὸν ἄνδρα
 καὶ καταχορηγοῦντα τοῖς στρατεύμασιν ἀφειδῶς
 6 τῶν χρημάτων, ἐπαρρησιάζετο πρὸς αὐτόν, οὐ τὸ
 τῆς δαπάνης μέγιστον εἶναι φάμενος, ἀλλ' ὅτι
 διαφθείρει τὴν πάτριον εὐτέλειαν τῶν στρατιωτῶν
 ἐφ' ἡδονὰς καὶ τρυφὰς τῷ περιόντι τῆς χρείας τρεπομένων. εἰπόντος δὲ τοῦ Σκηπίωνος, ὡς οὐδὲν δέοιτο ταμίου λίαν ἀκριβοῦς πλησίστιος ἐπὶ 7 τὸν πόλεμον φερόμενος, πράξεων γάρ, οὐ χρημάτων, τῇ πόλει λόγον ὀφείλειν, ἀπῆλθεν ὁ Κάτων
 ἐκ Σικελίας, καὶ μετὰ τοῦ Φαβίου καταβοῶν ἐν τῷ
 συνεδρίῳ φθοράν τε χρημάτων ἀμυθήτων ὑπὸ τοῦ Σκηπίωνος καὶ διατριβὰς αὐτοῦ μερακιώδεις ἐν παλαίστραις καὶ θεάτροις, ὥσπερ οὐ στρατηγούν-τος, ἀλλὰ πανηγυρίζοντος, ἐξεργάσατο πεμφθῆναι δημάρχους ἐπ' αὐτόν ἄξοντας εἰς Ῥώμην,
 8 ἄνπερ ἀληθεῖς αἱ κατηγορίαι φανῶσιν. ὁ μὲν οὖν
 Σκηπίων ἐν τῇ παρασκευῇ τοῦ πολέμου τὴν
 νίκην ἐπιδειξάμενος, καὶ φανείς ἡδὺς μὲν ἐπὶ
 σχολῆς συνεῖναι φίλοις, οὐδαμοῦ δὲ τῷ φιλανθρώπῳ τῆς διαίτης εἰς τὰ σπουδαῖα καὶ μεγάλα
 ῥάθυμος, ἐξέπλευσεν ἐπὶ τὸν πόλεμον.

IV. Τῷ δὲ Κάτωνι πολλὴ μὲν ἀπὸ τοῦ λόγου
 δύναμις ἤϋξητο, καὶ Ῥωμαῖον αὐτόν οἱ πολλοὶ Δημοσθένην προσηγόρευον, ὁ δὲ βίος μᾶλλον
 ὀνομαστός ἦν αὐτοῦ καὶ περιβόητος. ἡ μὲν γὰρ
 ἐν τῷ λέγειν δεινότης προὔκειτο τοῖς νέοις ἀγώ-νισμα κοινὸν ἤδη καὶ περισπούδαστον, ὁ δὲ τὴν
 πάτριον αὐτουργίαν ὑπομένων καὶ δεῖπνον ἀφελές
 καὶ ἄριστον ἄπυρον καὶ λιτὴν ἐσθῆτα καὶ δημοτικὴν ἀσπαζόμενος οἴκησιν καὶ τὸ μὴ δεῖσθαι τῶν

MARCUS CATO

his wonted extravagance, and lavished money without stint upon his soldiery. He therefore made bold to tell him that the matter of expense was not the greatest evil to be complained of, but the fact that he was corrupting the native simplicity of his soldiers, who resorted to wanton pleasures when their pay exceeded their actual needs. Scipio replied that he had no use for a parsimonious quaestor when the winds were bearing him under full sail to the war; he owed the city an account of his achievements, not of its moneys. Cato therefore left Sicily, and joined Fabius in denouncing before the Senate Scipio's waste of enormous moneys, and his boyish addiction to palaestras and theatres, as though he were not commander of an army, but master of a festival. As a result of these attacks, tribunes were sent to bring Scipio back to Rome, if the charges against him should turn out to be true. Well then, Scipio convinced the tribunes that victory in war depended on the preparations made for it; showed that he could be agreeable in his intercourse with his friends when he had leisure for it, but was never led by his sociability to neglect matters of large and serious import; and sailed off for his war in Africa.

IV. The influence which Cato's oratory won for him waxed great, and men called him a Roman Demosthenes; but his manner of life was even more talked about and noised abroad. For his oratorical ability only set before young men a goal which many already were striving eagerly to attain; but a man who wrought with his own hands, as his fathers did, and was contented with a cold breakfast, a frugal dinner, simple raiment, and a humble dwelling,—one who thought more of not

PLUTARCH'S LIVES

περιττῶν μᾶλλον ἢ τὸ κεκτῆσθαι θαυμάζων
 2 σπάνιος ἦν, ἥδη τότε τῆς πολιτείας τὸ καθαρὸν
 ὑπὸ μεγέθους οὐ φυλαττούσης, ἀλλὰ τῷ κρατεῖν πραγμάτων πολλῶν καὶ ἀνθρώπων πρὸς πολλὰ μιγνυμένης ἔθη καὶ βίων παραδείγματα παντοδαπῶν ὑποδεχομένης. εἰκότως οὖν ἐθαύμαζον τὸν Κάτωνα, τοὺς μὲν ἄλλους ὑπὸ τῶν πόνων θραυο-μένους καὶ μαλασσομένους ὑπὸ ¹ τῶν ἡδονῶν
 3 ὀρῶντες, ἐκείνους δὲ ὑπ' ἀμφοῖν ἀήττητον, οὐ μόνον
 ἕως ἔτι νέος καὶ φιλότιμος ἦν, ἀλλὰ καὶ γέροντα
 καὶ πολὺν ἥδη μεθ' ὑπατείας καὶ θρίαμβον, ὥσπερ
 ἀθλητὴν νικηφόρον, ἐγκαρτεροῦντα τῇ τάξει τῆς
 ἀσκήσεως καὶ διομαλίζοντα μέχρι τῆς τελευτῆς.

Ἐσθῆτα μὲν γὰρ οὐδέποτε φησι φορέσαι πολυτελεστέραν ἑκατὸν δραχμῶν, πιεῖν δὲ καὶ στρα-τηγῶν καὶ ὑπατεύων τὸν αὐτὸν οἶνον τοῖς ἐργάταις, ὄψον δὲ παρασκευάζεσθαι πρὸς τὸ δεῖπνον
 ἐξ ἀγορᾶς ἀσσαρίων τριάκοντα, καὶ τοῦτο διὰ
 τὴν πόλιν, ὅπως ἰσχύοι τὸ σῶμα πρὸς τὰς
 4 στρατείας. ἐπίβλημα δὲ τῶν ποικίλων Βαβυ-λώνιον ἐκ κληρονομίας κτησάμενος εὐθύς ἀποδόσθαι, τῶν δὲ ἐπαύλεων αὐτοῦ μηδεμίαν εἶναι κεκονιαμένην, οὐδένα δὲ πώποτε πρίασθαι δοῦλον ὑπὲρ τὰς χιλίας δραχμὰς καὶ πεντακοσίας, ὡς
 ἂν οὐ τρυφερῶν οὐδ' ὠραίων, ἀλλ' ἐργατικῶν καὶ
 στερεῶν, οἷον ἵπποκόμων καὶ βοηλατῶν, δεόμενος· καὶ τούτους δὲ πρεσβυτέρους γενομένους
 ὤετο δεῖν ἀποδίδοσθαι καὶ μὴ βόσκειν ἀχρήστους.
 ὅλως δὲ μηδὲν εὖνων εἶναι τῶν περιττῶν, ἀλλ'
 οὐ τις οὐ δεῖται, κἂν ἀσσαρίῳ πιπράσκηται,

¹ ὑπὸ Hercher and Blass with S: καὶ ὑπὸ.

MARCUS CATO

wanting the superfluities of life than of possessing them,—such a man was rare. The commonwealth had now grown too large to keep its primitive integrity; the sway over many realms and peoples had brought a large admixture of customs, and the adoption of examples set in modes of life of every sort. It was natural, therefore, that men should admire Cato, when they saw that, whereas other men were broken down by toils and enervated by pleasures, he was victor over both, and this too, not only while he was still young and ambitious, but even in his hoary age, after consulship and triumph. Then, like some victorious athlete, he persisted in the regimen of his training, and kept his mind unaltered to the last.

He tells us that he never wore clothing worth more than a hundred drachmas; that he drank, even when he was praetor or consul, the same wine as his slaves; that as for fish and meats, he would buy thirty asses' worth¹ for his dinner from the public stalls, and even this for the city's sake, that he might not live on bread alone, but strengthen his body for military service; that he once fell heir to an embroidered Babylonian robe, but sold it at once; that not a single one of his cottages had plastered walls; that he never paid more than fifteen hundred drachmas for a slave, since he did not want them to be delicately beautiful, but sturdy workers, such as grooms and herdsmen, and these he thought it his duty to sell when they got oldish, instead of feeding them when they were useless; and that in general, he thought nothing cheap that one could do without, but that what one did not need, even if it cost but a

¹ The as corresponded nearly to the English penny.

PLUTARCH'S LIVES

πολλοῦ νομίζειν κτᾶσθαι δὲ τὰ σπειρόμενα καὶ νεμόμενα μᾶλλον ἢ τὰ ραινόμενα καὶ σαιρόμενα.

- V. Ταῦτα δ' οἱ μὲν εἰς μικρολογίαὶν ἐτίθεντο τοῦ ἀνδρός, οἱ δ' ὡς ἐπὶ διορθώσει καὶ σωφρονισμῷ τῶν ἄλλων ἐνδοτέρω συστέλλοντος ἑαυτὸν ἀπεδέχοντο. πλὴν τὸ τοῖς οἰκέταις ὡς ὑποζυγίοις ἀποχρησάμενον ἐπὶ γήρως ἐλαύνειν καὶ πιπράσκειν ἀτενοῦς ἄγαν ἤθους ἔγωγε τίθεμαι, καὶ 339
 2 μὴδὲν ἀνθρώπῳ πρὸς ἄνθρωπον οἰομένου κοινῶ-
 νημα τῆς χρείας πλέον ὑπάρχειν. καίτοι τὴν χρηστότητα τῆς δικαιοσύνης πλατύτερον τόπον ὀρώμεν ἐπιλαμβάνουσιν· νόμῳ μὲν γὰρ καὶ τῷ δικαίῳ πρὸς ἀνθρώπους μόνον χρῆσθαι πεφύκαμεν, πρὸς εὐεργεσίας δὲ καὶ χάριτας ἔστιν ὅτε καὶ μέχρι τῶν ἀλόγων ζῴων ὥσπερ ἐκ πηγῆς πλουσίας ἀπόρρεῖ τῆς ἡμερότητος. καὶ γὰρ ἵππων ἀπειρηκότων ὑπὸ χρόνου τροφαὶ καὶ κυνῶν οὐ σκυλακεῖται μόνον, ἀλλὰ καὶ γηροκομία τῷ χρηστῷ προσήκουσιν.
- 3 Ὁ δὲ τῶν Ἀθηναίων δῆμος οἰκοδομῶν τὸν Ἑκατόμπεδον, ὅσας κατενόησεν ἡμίονους μάλιστα τοῖς πόνοις ἐγκαρτερούσας, ἀπέλυσεν ἐλευθέρας νέμεσθαι καὶ ἀφέτους, ὧν μίαν φασὶ καταβαίνουσιν ἀφ' ἑαυτῆς πρὸς τὰ ἔργα τοῖς ἀνάγουσι τὰς ἀμάξας ὑποζυγίοις εἰς ἀκρόπολιν συμπαρατρέχειν καὶ προηγείσθαι καθάπερ ἐγκελευομένην καὶ συνεξορμῶσαν, ἣν καὶ τρέφεσθαι δημοσία
 4 μέχρι τελευτῆς ἐψηφίσαντο. τῶν δὲ Κίμωνος ἵππων, αἷς Ὀλύμπια τρεῖς ἐνίκησε, καὶ ταφαὶ

MARCUS CATO

penny, was dear; also that he bought lands where crops were raised and cattle herded, not those where lawns were sprinkled and paths swept.

V. These things were ascribed by some to the man's parsimony; but others condoned them in the belief that he lived in this contracted way only to correct and moderate the extravagance of others. However, for my part, I regard his treatment of his slaves like beasts of burden, using them to the uttermost, and then, when they were old, driving them off and selling them, as the mark of a very mean nature, which recognizes no tie between man and man but that of necessity. And yet we know that kindness has a wider scope than justice. Law and justice we naturally apply to men alone; but when it comes to beneficence and charity, these often flow in streams from the gentle heart, like water from a copious spring, even down to dumb beasts. A kindly man will take good care of his horses even when they are worn out with age, and of his dogs, too, not only in their puppyhood, but when their old age needs nursing.

While the Athenians were building the Parthenon, they turned loose for free and unrestricted pasturage such mules as were seen to be most persistently laborious. One of these, they say, came back to the works of its own accord, trotted along by the side of its fellows under the yoke, which were dragging the waggons up to the Acropolis, and even led the way for them, as though exhorting and inciting them on. The Athenians passed a decree that the animal be maintained at the public cost as long as it lived. Then there were the mares of Cimon, with which he won three victories at Olympia; their graves are πλησίον εἰσὶ τῶν ἐκείνου μνημάτων. κύνας δὲ συντρόφους γενομένους καὶ συνήθεις ἄλλοι τε πολλοὶ καὶ Ξάνθιππος ὁ παλαιὸς τὸν εἰς Σαλαμίνα τῇ τριήρει παρανηξάμενον, ὅτε τὴν πόλιν ὁ δῆμος ἐξέλειπεν, ἐπὶ τῆς ἄκρας ἐκήδευσεν, ἦν Κυνὸς σῆμα μέχρι νῦν καλοῦσιν.

- 5 Οὐ γὰρ ὡς ὑποδήμασιν ἢ σκεύεσι τοῖς ψυχὴν ἔχουσι χρηστέον, κοπέντα καὶ κατατριβέντα ταῖς ὑπηρεσίαις ἀπορριπτοῦντας, ἀλλ' εἰ διὰ μηδὲν ἄλλο, μελέτης ἕνεκα τοῦ φιλανθρώπου προεθιστέον ἑαυτὸν ἐν τούτοις πρῶον εἶναι καὶ μείλιχον. ἐγὼ μὲν οὖν οὐδὲ βούην ἂν ἐργάτην διὰ γῆρας ἀποδοίμην, μή τί γε πρεσβύτερον ἄνθρωπον, ἐκ χώρας συντρόφου καὶ διαίτης συνήθους ὥσπερ ἐκ πατρίδος μεθιστάμενον ἀντὶ κερμάτων μικρῶν, ἄχρηστόν γε τοῖς ὠνουμένοις ὥσπερ τοῖς πιπρά-
- 6 σκουσι γενησόμενον. ὁ δὲ Κάτων ὥσπερ νεανειούμενος ἐπὶ τούτοις καὶ τὸν ἵππον, ᾧ παρὰ τὰς στρατείας ὑπατεύων ἐχρήτο, φησὶν ἐν Ἰβηρίᾳ καταλιπεῖν, ἵνα μὴ τῇ πόλει τὸ ναῦλον αὐτοῦ λογίσηται. ταῦτα μὲν οὖν εἴτε μεγαλοψυχίας εἴτε μικρολογίας θετέον, ἕξεστι τῷ πείθοντι χρῆσθαι λογισμῷ.

- VI. Τῆς δ' ἄλλης ἐγκρατείας ὑπερφυῶς θαυμαστός ὁ ἀνὴρ οἶον ὅτι στρατηγῶν ἐλάμβανεν ἑαυτῷ καὶ τοῖς περὶ αὐτὸν οὐ πλέον εἰς τὸν μῆνα πυρῶν ἢ τρεῖς Ἀττικοὺς μεδίμνους, εἰς δὲ τὴν ἡμέραν κριθῶν τοῖς ὑποζυγίοις ἔλαττον
- 2 τριῶν ἡμιμεδίμνων. ἐπαρχίαν δὲ λαβὼν Σαρδόνα, τῶν πρὸ αὐτοῦ στρατηγῶν εἰωθότων χρῆσθαι

MARCUS CATO

near the tombs of his family. Dogs also that have been close and constant companions of men, have often been buried with honour. Xanthippus, of olden time, gave the dog which swam along by the side of his trireme to Salamis, when the people were abandoning their city, honourable burial on the promontory which is called to this day Cynossema, or Dog's Mound.¹

We should not treat living creatures like shoes or pots and pans, casting them aside when they are bruised and worn out with service, but, if for no other reason, for the sake of practice in kindness to our fellow men, we should accustom ourselves to mildness and gentleness in our dealings with other creatures. I certainly would not sell even an ox that had worked for me, just because he was old, much less an elderly man, removing him from his habitual place and customary life, as it were from his native land, for a paltry price, useless as he is to those who sell him and as he will be to those who buy him. But Cato, exulting as it were in such things, says that he left in Spain even the horse which had carried him through his consular campaign, that he might not tax the city with the cost of its transportation. Whether, now, these things should be set down to greatness of spirit or littleness of mind, is an open question.

VI. But in other matters, his self-restraint was beyond measure admirable. For instance, when he was in command of an army, he took for himself and his retinue not more than three Attic bushels of wheat a month, and for his beasts of burden, less than a bushel and a half of barley a day. He received Sardinia as his province,² and whereas his predecessors

¹ Cf. Themistocles x. 6.

² 198 B.C.

καὶ σκηνώμασι δημοσίοις καὶ κλίναις καὶ ἱματίοις, πολλῇ δὲ θεραπείᾳ καὶ φίλων πλήθει καὶ
 περὶ δεῖπνα δαπάναις καὶ παρασκευαῖς βαρυνόντων, ἐκείνος ἄπιστον ἐποίησε τὴν διαφορὰν
 τῆς εὐτελείας. δαπάνης μὲν γὰρ εἰς οὐδὲν οὐδε-μιᾶς προσεδεήθη δημοσίας, ἐπεφοίτα δὲ ταῖς
 πόλεσιν αὐτὸς μὲν ἄνευ ζεύγους πορευόμενος,
 εἰς δὲ ἠκολούθει δημόσιος ἐσθήτα καὶ σπονδεῖον
 3 αὐτῷ πρὸς ἱεουργίαν κομίζων. ἐν δὲ τούτοις
 οὕτως εὐκόλος καὶ ἀφελὴς τοῖς ὑπὸ χεῖρα φαινό-μενος, αὐθις ἀνταπεδίδου τὴν σεμνότητα καὶ
 τὸ βᾶρος ἀπαραίτητος ὦν ἐν τῷ δικαίῳ καὶ
 τοῖς ὑπὲρ τῆς ἡγεμονίας προστάγμασιν ὄρθιος
 καὶ αὐθέκαστος, ὥστε μηδέποτε τὴν Ῥωμαίων ἀρχὴν ἐκείνοις μήτε φοβερωτέραν μήτε προσφιλειότεραν γενέσθαι.

VII. Τοιαύτην δὲ τινα φαίνεται καὶ ὁ λόγος
 τοῦ ἀνδρὸς ἰδέαν ἔχειν· εὐχαρις γὰρ ἅμα καὶ
 δεινὸς ἦν, ἠδύς καὶ καταπληκτικός, φιλοσκώμων
 καὶ αὐστηρὸς, ἀποφθεγματικὸς καὶ ἀγωνιστικός,
 ὥσπερ ὁ Πλάτων τὸν Σωκράτην φησὶν ἔξωθεν
 ἰδιώτην καὶ σατυρικὸν καὶ ὑβριστὴν τοῖς ἐντυγ-χάνουσι φαινόμενον ἔνδοθεν σπουδῆς καὶ πραγμάτων μεστὸν εἶναι δάκρυα κινούντων τοῖς 341
 2 ἀκρωμένοις καὶ τὴν καρδίαν στρεφόντων. ὅθεν
 οὐκ οἶδ' ὅτι πεπόνθασιν οἱ τῷ Λυσίου λόγῳ
 μάλιστα φάμενοι προσοικένας τὸν Κάτωνος.
 οὐ μὴν ἀλλὰ ταῦτα μὲν οἷς μᾶλλον ἰδέας λόγων Ῥωμαϊκῶν¹ αἰσθάνεσθαι προσήκει διακρινούσιν,
 ἡμεῖς δὲ τῶν ἀπομνημονευομένων βραχέα γρά-
 ψομεν, οἱ τῷ λόγῳ πολὺ μᾶλλον ἢ τῷ προσώπῳ,

¹ Ῥωμαϊκῶν Blass with S: ῥητορικῶν.

MARCUS CATO

were wont to charge the public treasury with their pavilions, couches, and apparel, while they oppressed the province with the cost of their large retinues of servants and friends, and of their lavish and elaborate banquets, his simple economy stood out in an incredible contrast. He made no demands whatever upon the public treasury, and made his circuit of the cities on foot, followed by a single public officer, who carried his robe and chalice for sacrifices. And yet, though in such matters he showed himself mild and sparing to those under his authority, in other ways he displayed a dignity and severity which fully corresponded, for in the administration of justice he was inexorable, and in carrying out the edicts of the government was direct and masterful, so that the Roman power never inspired its subjects with greater fear or affection.

VII. Much the same traits are revealed in the man's oratory. It was at once graceful and powerful, pleasant and compelling, facetious and severe, sententious and belligerent. So Plato says of Socrates¹ that from the outside he impressed his associates as rude, uncouth, and wanton; but within he was full of earnestness, and of matters that moved his hearers to tears and wrung their hearts. Wherefore I know not what they can mean who say that Cato's oratory most resembled that of Lysias. However, such questions must be decided by those who are more capable than I am of discerning the traits of Roman oratory, and I shall now record a few of his famous sayings, believing that men's characters are revealed

¹ Symposium, p. 215.

PLUTARCH'S LIVES

καθάπερ ἔνιοι νομίζουσι, τῶν ἀνθρώπων φαμέν
ἐμφαίνεσθαι τὸ ἦθος.

- VIII. Μέλλων ποτὲ τὸν Ῥωμαίων δῆμον ὠρμη-μένον ἀκαίρως ἐπὶ σιτομετρίας καὶ διανομᾶς
ἀποτρέπειν, ἤρξατο τῶν λόγων οὕτως· “Χαλεπὸν
μέν ἐστίν, ὦ πολῖται, πρὸς γαστέρα λέγειν ὧτα
οὐκ ἔχουσιν.” κατηγορῶν δὲ τῆς πολυτελείας
ἔφη χαλεπὸν εἶναι σωθῆναι πόλιν, ἐν ἣ πωλεῖται
2 πλείονος ἰχθὺς ἢ βοῦς. εἰκέναι δὲ προβάτοις
ἔφη τοὺς Ῥωμαίους· ὡς γὰρ ἐκεῖνα καθ’ ἕκαστον
μέν οὐ πείθεται, σύμπαντα δ’ ἔπεται μετ’ ἀλλήλων τοῖς ἄγουσιν, “Οὕτω καὶ ὑμεῖς,” εἶπεν, “οἷς οὐκ ἂν ἀξιῶσαιτε συμβούλοις χρήσασθαι κατ’
ἰδίαν, ὑπὸ τούτων εἰς ἓν συνελθόντες ἄγεσθε.”
περὶ δὲ τῆς γυναικοκρατίας διαλεγόμενος “Πάντες,” εἶπεν, “ἄνθρωποι τῶν γυναικῶν ἄρχουσιν,
ἡμεῖς δὲ πάντων ἀνθρώπων, ἡμῶν δὲ αἱ γυναῖκες.”
3 τοῦτο μὲν οὖν ἐστίν ἐκ τῶν Θεμιστοκλέους
μετενηγεμένον ἀποφθεγμάτων. ἐκεῖνος γὰρ ἐπι-τάττοντος αὐτῷ πολλὰ τοῦ υἱοῦ διὰ τῆς μητρός “ὦ γυναῖ,” εἶπεν, “Ἀθηναῖοι μὲν ἄρχουσι
τῶν Ἑλλήνων, ἐγὼ δὲ Ἀθηναίων, ἐμοῦ δὲ σύ,
σοῦ δὲ ὁ υἱός, ὥστε φειδέσθω τῆς ἐξουσίας,
δι’ ἣν ἀνόητος ὢν πλείστον Ἑλλήνων δύναται.” 4 Τὸν δὲ δῆμον ὁ Κάτων ἔφη τῶν Ῥωμαίων οὐ μόνον ταῖς πορφύραις, ἀλλὰ καὶ τοῖς ἐπιτηδεύμασι τὰς τιμὰς ἐπιγράφειν. “Ὡς γὰρ οἱ βαφεῖς,” ἔφη, “ταύτην μάλιστα βάπτουσιν, ἣ χαίροντας
ὀρώσιν, οὕτως οἱ νέοι ταῦτα μανθάνουσι καὶ
ζηλοῦσιν, οἷς ἂν ὁ παρ’ ὑμῶν ἔπαινος ἔπηται.” 5 παρεκάλει δ’ αὐτούς, εἰμὲν ἀρετῇ καὶ σωφρο-

MARCUS CATO

much more by their speech than, as some think, by their looks.

VIII. He once wished to dissuade the Roman people from insisting unseasonably upon a distribution of corn, and began his speech with these words: "It is a hard matter, my fellow citizens, to argue with the belly, since it has no ears." Again, inveighing against the prevalent extravagance, he said: "It is a hard matter to save a city in which a fish sells for more than an ox." Again, he said the Romans were like sheep; for as these are not to be persuaded one by one, but all in a body blindly follow their leaders, "so ye," he said, "though as individuals ye would not deign to follow the counsels of certain men, when ye are got together ye suffer yourselves to be led by them." Discoursing on the power of women, he said: "All other men rule their wives; we rule all other men, and our wives rule us." This, however, is a translation from the sayings of Themistocles.¹ He, finding himself much under his son's orders through the lad's mother, said: "Wife, the Athenians rule the Hellenes, I rule the Athenians, thou rulest me, and thy son thee. Therefore let him make sparing use of that authority which makes him, child though he is, the most powerful of the Hellenes."

The Roman people, Cato said, fixed the market value not only of dyes, but also of behaviour. "For," said he, "as dyers most affect that dye which they see pleases you, so your young men learn and practice that which wins your praise." And he exhorted them, in case it was through virtue and temperance that they had become great, to σύνη γεγόνασι μεγάλοι, μηδὲν¹ μεταβάλλεσθαι πρὸς τὸ χεῖρον, εἰ δ' ἀκρασία καὶ κακία, μεταβάλλεσθαι πρὸς τὸ βέλτιον· ἰκανῶς γὰρ ἤδη μεγάλους ἀπ' ἐκείνων γεγονέναι. τοὺς δὲ πολλάκις ἄρχειν σπουδάζοντας ἔφη καθάπερ ἀγνοοῦντας τὴν ὁδὸν αἰεὶ μετὰ ῥαβδούχων ζητεῖν πορεύεσθαι, 6 μὴ πλανηθῶσιν. ἐπετίμα δὲ τοῖς πολίταις τοὺς αὐτοὺς αἰρουμένους πολλάκις ἄρχοντας. “Δόξετε γάρ,” ἔφη, “μὴ² πολλοῦ τὸ ἄρχειν ἄξιον ἢ μὴ πολλοῦς τοῦ ἄρχειν ἀξίους ἡγεῖσθαι.” περὶ δὲ τῶν ἐχθρῶν τινος αἰσχυρῶς καὶ ἀδόξως βιοῦν δοκούντος “Ἡ τούτου μήτηρ,” ἔφη, “κατάραν, οὐκ εὐχὴν, ἡγεῖται τὸ τοῦτον ὑπὲρ γῆς ἀπο- 7 λιπεῖν.” τὸν δὲ πεπρακότα τοὺς πατρώους ἀγροὺς παραλίους ὄντας ἐπιδεικνύμενος προσεποιεῖτο θαυμάζειν ὡς ἰσχυρότερον τῆς θαλάττης· “Ἄ γὰρ ἐκείνη μόλις ἐκλυζεν, οὗτος,” ἔφη, “ῥαδίως καταπέπωκεν.”

¹ Themistocles, xviii. 4.

PLUTARCH'S LIVES

Ἐπεὶ δὲ Εὐμενοῦς τοῦ βασιλέως ἐπιδημήσαντος εἰς Ῥώμην ἢ τε σύγκλητος ὑπερφυῶς ἀπεδέξατο καὶ τῶν πρώτων ἄμιλλα καὶ σπουδὴ περὶ αὐτὸν ἐγίνετο, δῆλος ἦν ὁ Κάτων ὑφορώμενος καὶ 8 φυλαττόμενος αὐτόν. εἰπόντος δὲ τινος “Ἀλλὰ μὴν χρηστός ἐστί καὶ φιλορρώμαιος,” “Ἔστω,” εἶπεν, “ἀλλὰ φύσει τοῦτο τὸ ζῶον ὁ βασιλεὺς σαρκοφάγον ἐστίν.” οὐδένα δὲ τῶν εὐδαιμονιζομένων ἔφη βασιλέων³ ἄξιον εἶναι παραβάλλειν πρὸς Ἐπαμεινώνδαν ἢ Περικλέα ἢ Θεμιστοκλέα ἢ Μάνιον Κούριον ἢ Ἀμίλκαν τὸν ἐπικληθέντα

¹ μηδὲν Hercher and Blass with F^aS : μὴ.

² μὴ Blass with F^aS : ἢ μὴ.

³ ἔφη βασιλέων Hercher and Blass with F^aS : βασιλέων.

MARCUS CATO

make no change for the worse ; but if it was through intemperance and vice, to change for the better ; these had already made them great enough. Of those who were eager to hold high office frequently, he said that like men who did not know the road, they sought to be ever attended on their way by lictors, lest they go astray. He censured his fellow citizens for choosing the same men over and over again to high office. "You will be thought," said he, "not to deem your offices worth much, or else not to deem many men worthy of your offices." Of one of his enemies who had the name of leading a disgraceful and disreputable life, he said : "This man's mother holds the wish that he may survive her to be no pious prayer, but a malignant curse." Pointing to a man who had sold his ancestral fields lying near the sea, he pretended to admire him, as stronger than the sea. "This man," said he, "has drunk down with ease what the sea found it hard to wash away."

When King Eumenes paid a visit to Rome, the Senate received him with extravagant honours, and the chief men of the city strove who should be most about him. But Cato clearly looked upon him with suspicion and alarm. "Surely," some one said to him, "he is an excellent man, and a friend of Rome." "Granted," said Cato, "but the animal known as king is by nature carnivorous." He said further that not one of the kings whom men so lauded was worthy of comparison with Epaminondas, or Pericles, or Themistocles, or Manius Curius, or with Hamilcar, surnamed Barcas. His 9 Βάρκαν. αὐτῷ δ' ἔλεγε τοὺς ἐχθροὺς φθονεῖν, ὅτι καθ' ἡμέραν ἐκ νυκτὸς¹ ἀνίσταται καὶ τῶν ἰδίων ἀμελῶν τοῖς δημοσίοις σχολάζει. βούλεσθαι δ' ἔλεγε μᾶλλον εὖ πράξας ἀποστερηθῆναι χάριν ἢ κακῶς μὴ τυχεῖν κολάσεως, καὶ συγγνώμην ἔφη διδόναι πᾶσι τοῖς ἀμαρτάνουσι πλὴν αὐτοῦ.

IX. Τῶν δὲ Ῥωμαίων εἰς Βιθυνίαν τρεῖς ἐλο- 341
 μένων πρέσβεις, ὧν ὁ μὲν ποδαγρικός ἦν, ὁ δὲ τὴν κεφαλὴν ἐξ ἀνατρήσεως καὶ περικοπῆς κοίλην εἶχεν, ὁ δὲ τρίτος ἐδόκει μωρὸς εἶναι, καταγελῶν ὁ Κάτων εἶπε πρεσβείαν ὑπὸ Ῥωμαίων ἀποστέλλεσθαι μῆτε πόδας μῆτε κεφαλὴν μῆτε καρδίαν
 2 ἔχουσαν. ὑπὲρ δὲ τῶν ἐξ Ἀχαΐας φυγάδων ἐντευχθεῖς διὰ Πολύβιον ὑπὸ Σκηπίωνος, ὡς πολὺς ἐν τῇ συγκλήτῳ λόγος ἐγίνετο, τῶν μὲν διδόντων κάθοδον αὐτοῖς, τῶν δ' ἐνισταμένων, ἀναστὰς ὁ Κάτων “Ὡσπερ οὐκ ἔχοντες,” εἶπεν, “ὃ πράττωμεν καθήμεθα τὴν ἡμέραν ὄλην περὶ γεροντίων Γραικῶν ζητοῦντες, πότερον ὑπὸ τῶν παρ' ἡμῖν ἢ
 3 τῶν ἐν Ἀχαΐα νεκροφόρων ἐκκομισθῶσι.” ψηφισθείσης δὲ τῆς καθόδου τοῖς ἀνδράσιν, ἡμέρας ὀλίγας οἱ περὶ τὸν Πολύβιον διαλιπόντες αὐθις ἐπεχείρουν εἰς τὴν σύγκλητον εἰσελθεῖν, ὅπως ἂς προτερον εἶχον ἐν Ἀχαΐα τιμὰς οἱ φυγάδες ἀναλάβοιεν, καὶ τοῦ Κάτωνος ἀπεπειρῶντο τῆς γνώμης. ὁ δὲ μειδιάσας ἔφη τὸν Πολύβιον, ὥσπερ τὸν Ὀδυσσεά, βούλεσθαι πάλιν εἰς τὸ τοῦ Κύκλωπος σπήλαιον εἰσελθεῖν, τὸ πιλίον ἐκεῖ καὶ τὴν ζώνην ἐπιλελησμένον.

4 Τοὺς δὲ φρονίμους ἔλεγε μᾶλλον ὑπὸ τῶν ἀφρόνων ἢ τοὺς ἄφρονας ὑπὸ τῶν φρονίμων

¹ ἐκ νυκτὸς Hercher and Blass with F³SD: νυκτὸς.

MARCUS CATO

enemies hated him, he used to say, because he rose every day before it was light and, neglecting his own private matters, devoted his time to the public interests. He also used to say that he preferred to do right and get no thanks, rather than to do ill and get no punishment; and that he had pardon for everybody's mistakes except his own.

IX. The Romans once chose three ambassadors to Bithynia, of whom one was gouty, another had had his head trepanned, and the third was deemed a fool. Cato made merry over this, and said that the Romans were sending out an embassy which had neither feet, nor head, nor heart. His aid was once solicited by Scipio, at the instance of Polybius, in behalf of the exiles from Achaia, and after a long debate upon the question in the Senate, where some favoured and some opposed their return home, Cato rose and said: "Here we sit all day, as if we had naught else to do, debating whether some poor old Greeks shall be buried here or in Achaia." The Senate voted that the men be allowed to return, and a few days afterwards Polybius tried to get admission to that body again, with a proposal that the exiles be restored to their former honours in Achaia, and asked Cato's opinion on the matter. Cato smiled and said that Polybius, as if he were another Odysseus, wanted to go back into the cave of the Cyclops for a cap and belt which he had left there.

Wise men, he said, profited more from fools than fools from wise men; for the wise shun the

ὠφελείσθαι· τούτους μὲν γὰρ φυλάττεσθαι τὰς ἐκείνων ἀμαρτίας, ἐκείνους δὲ τὰς τούτων μὴ μιμείσθαι κατορθώσεις. τῶν δὲ νέων ἔφη χαίρειν τοῖς
 ἐρυθριῶσι μᾶλλον ἢ τοῖς ὠχριῶσι. στρατιώτου δὲ
 μὴ δεῖσθαι τὰς μὲν χεῖρας ἐν τῷ βαδίζειν, τοὺς δὲ
 5 πόδας ἐν τῷ μάχεσθαι κινούντος, μείζον δὲ ῥέγγον-τος ἢ ἀλαλάζοντος. τὸν δὲ ὑπέρπαχυν κακίζων “Ποῦ δ’ ἄν,” ἔφη, “σῶμα τοιοῦτον τῇ πόλει
 γένοιτο χρήσιμον, οὐ τὸ μεταξὺ λαιμοῦ καὶ βου-βῶνων πᾶν ὑπὸ τῆς γαστρὸς κατέχεται;” τῶν
 δὲ φιληδόνων τινὰ βουλόμενον αὐτῷ συνεῖναι παραιτούμενος, ἔφη μὴ δύνασθαι ζῆν μετ’ ἀνθρώπου τῆς καρδίας τὴν ὑπερώαν εὐαισθητοτέραν
 ἔχοντος. τοῦ δ’ ἐρώωντος ἔλεγε τὴν ψυχὴν ἐν
 6 ἀλλοτρίῳ σώματι ζῆν. μεταμεληθῆναι δ’ αὐτὸς
 ἐν παντὶ τῷ βίῳ τρεῖς μεταμελείας· μίαν μὲν
 ἐπὶ τῷ γυναικί πιστεῦσαι λόγον ἀπόρρητον, ἑτέραν δὲ πλεύσας ὅπου δυνατὸν ἦν πεζεῦσαι, τὴν
 δὲ τρίτην, ὅτι μίαν ἡμέραν ἀδιάθετος ἔμεινε. πρὸς
 δὲ πρεσβύτην πονηρευόμενον “Ἀνθρωπε,” εἶπε, “πολλὰ ἔχοντι τῷ γήρῳ τὰ αἰσχρὰ μὴ προστίθει
 7 τὴν ἀπὸ τῆς κακίας αἰσχύνην.” πρὸς δὲ δήμαρχον
 ἐν διαβολῇ μὲν φαρμακείας γενόμενον, φαῦλον δὲ
 νόμον εἰσφέροντα καὶ βιαζόμενον “ὦ μειράκιον,” εἶπεν, “οὐκ οἶδα, πότερον χεῖρόν ἐστιν ὁ κίρνης πιεῖν ἢ ὁ γράφεις κυρώσαι.” βλασφημούμενος
 δ’ ὑπ’ ἀνθρώπου βεβιωκότος ἀσελγῶς καὶ κακῶς “Ἄνισος,” εἶπεν, “ἢ πρὸς σέ μοι μάχη ἐστί· καὶ
 γὰρ ἀκούεις τὰ κακὰ ῥαδίως καὶ λέγεις εὐχερῶς, ἐμοὶ δὲ καὶ λέγειν ἀηδὲς καὶ ἀκούειν ἀηθές.” τὸ
 μὲν οὖν τῶν ἀπομνημονευμάτων γένος τοιοῦτόν ἐστιν.

MARCUS CATO

mistakes of fools, but fools do not imitate the successes of the wise. He said he liked to see blushes on a young man's face rather than pallor, and that he had no use for a soldier who plied his hands on the march, and his feet in battle, and whose snore was louder than his war-cry. Railing at the fat knight, he said, "Where can such a body be of service to the state, when everything between its gullet and its groins is devoted to belly?" A certain epicure wished to enjoy his society, but he excused himself, saying that he could not live with a man whose palate was more sensitive than his heart. As for the lover, he said his soul dwelt in the body of another. And as for repentance, he said he had indulged in it himself but thrice in his whole life: once when he entrusted a secret to his wife; once when he paid ship's fare to a place instead of walking thither; and once when he remained intestate a whole day. To an old man who was steeped in iniquity he said: "Man, old age has disgraces enough of its own; do not add to them the shame of vice." To a tribune of the people who had been accused of using poison, and who was trying to force the passage of a useless bill, he said: "Young man, I know not which is worse, to drink your mixtures, or to enact your bills." And when he was reviled by a man who led a life of shameless debauchery, he said: "I fight an unequal battle with you: you listen to abuse calmly, and utter it glibly; while for me it is unpleasant to utter it, and unusual to hear it."

Such, then, is the nature of his famous sayings.

- X. Ὑπατος δὲ μετὰ Φλάκκου Οὐαλλερίου τοῦ φίλου καὶ συνήθους ἀποδειχθεὶς ἔλαχε τῶν ἐπαρχιῶν ἣν Ἐντὸς Ἰσπανίαν Ῥωμαῖοι καλοῦσιν. ἐνταῦθα δ' αὐτῷ τὰ μὲν καταστρεφόμενῳ τῶν ἐθνῶν, τὰ δ' οἰκειουμένῳ διὰ λόγων πολλή στρατιὰ τῶν βαρβάρων ἐπέπεσε, καὶ κίνδυνος ἦν αἰσχροῶς ἐκβιασθῆναι. διὸ τῶν ἐγ-
 2 γὺς Κελτιβήρων ἐπεκαλεῖτο συμμαχίαν. αἰτούντων δ' ἐκείνων τῆς βοηθείας διακόσια τάλαντα μισθόν, οἱ μὲν ἄλλοι πάντες οὐκ ἀνασχετὸν ἐποιοῦντο Ῥωμαίους βαρβάρους ἐπικουρίας ὁμολογῆσαι μισθόν, ὁ δὲ Κάτων οὐδὲν ἔφη δεινὸν εἶναι, νικῶντας μὲν γὰρ ἀποδώσειν παρὰ¹ τῶν πολεμίων, οὐ παρ' αὐτῶν, ἡττωμένων δὲ μήτε τοὺς ἀπαιτούμενους ἔσεσθαι μήτε τοὺς ἀπαιτού-
 3 καὶ τὰλλα προὔχῳρει λαμπρῶς. Πολύβιος μὲν γέ φησι τῶν ἐντὸς Βαίτιος ποταμοῦ πόλεων ἡμέρα μιᾷ τὰ τεῖχη κελεύσαντος αὐτοῦ περικαιρηθῆναι. πάμπολλαι δ' ἦσαν αὐταὶ καὶ γέμουσαι μαχίμων ἀνδρῶν. αὐτὸς δὲ φησιν ὁ Κάτων πλείονας εἰληφέναι πόλεις ὢν διήγαγεν ἡμερῶν ἐν Ἰβηρίᾳ· καὶ τοῦτο κόμπος οὐκ ἔστιν, εἴπερ ὡς ἀληθῶς τετρακόσiai τὸ πλῆθος ἦσαν.
- 4 Τοῖς μὲν οὖν στρατιώταις πολλὰ παρὰ τὴν στρατείαν ὠφελθηθεῖσιν ἔτι καὶ λίτραν ἀργυρίου κατ' ἄνδρα προσδιένειμεν, εἰπὼν ὡς κρεῖττον εἶη πολλοὺς Ῥωμαίων ἀργύριον ἢ χρυσίον ὀλίγους ἔχοντας ἐπανελθεῖν. εἰς δ' αὐτὸν ἐκ τῶν ἀλισκομένων οὐδὲν ἐλθεῖν λέγει πλὴν ὅσα πέπωκεν ἢ βέβρωκε. “Καὶ οὐκ αἰτιῶμαι,” φησί, “τοὺς

¹ παρὰ Hercher and Blass with F^{as}: ἀπὸ.

MARCUS CATO

X. Having been elected consul¹ with Valerius Flaccus, his intimate friend, the province which the Romans call Hither Spain was allotted to his charge. Here, while he was subduing some of the tribes, and winning over others by diplomacy, a great host of Barbarians fell upon him, and threatened to drive him disgracefully out of the province. He therefore begged the neighbouring Celtiberians to become his allies. On their demanding two hundred talents pay for such assistance, all his officers thought it intolerable that Romans should agree to pay Barbarians for assistance. But Cato said there was nothing terrible in it; should they be victorious, they could pay the price with the spoils taken from the enemy, and not out of their own purse; whereas, should they be vanquished, there would be nobody left either to pay or to ask the price. In this battle he was completely victorious, and the rest of his campaign was a brilliant success. Polybius indeed says that in a single day the walls of all the cities on this side the river Baetis—and they were very many, and full of warlike men—were torn down at his command. And Cato himself says that he took more cities than he spent days in Spain, nor is this a mere boast, since, in fact, there were four hundred of them.

His soldiers got large booty in this campaign, and he gave each one of them a pound of silver besides, saying that it was better to have many Romans go home with silver in their pockets than a few with gold. But in his own case, he says that no part of the booty fell to him, except what he ate and drank. "Not that I find fault," he says, "with those who

¹ 195 B.C.

ὠφελείσθαι ζητοῦντας ἐκ τούτων, ἀλλὰ βούλομαι μᾶλλον περὶ ἀρετῆς τοῖς ἀρίστοις ἢ περὶ χρημά-
 των τοῖς πλουσιωτάτοις ἀμιλλᾶσθαι καὶ τοῖς
 5 φιλαργυρωτάτοις περὶ φιλαργυρίας." οὐ μόνον
 δ' αὐτόν, ἀλλὰ καὶ τοὺς περὶ αὐτὸν ἐφύλαττε
 καθαρὸς παντὸς λήμματος. ἦσαν δὲ πέντε
 θεράποντες ἐπὶ στρατείας σὺν αὐτῷ. τούτων εἰς
 ὄνομα Πάκκιος ἠγόρασε τῶν αἰχμαλώτων τρία
 παιδάρια· τοῦ δὲ Κάτωνος αἰσθομένου, πρὶν εἰς
 ὄψιν ἐλθεῖν, ἀπήγγξατο. τοὺς δὲ παῖδας ὁ Κάτων
 ἀποδόμενος εἰς τὸ δημόσιον ἀνήνεγκε τὴν τιμὴν.

XI. Ἐτι δ' αὐτοῦ διατρίβοντος ἐν Ἰβηρίᾳ
 Σκηπίων ὁ μέγας, ἐχθρὸς ὢν καὶ βουλόμενος
 ἐνστήναι κατορθοῦντι καὶ τὰς Ἰβηρικὰς πράξεις
 ὑπολαβεῖν, διεπράξατο τῆς ἐπαρχίας ἐκείνης
 ἀποδειχθῆναι διάδοχος. σπεύσας δ' ὡς ἐνῆν
 τάχιστα κατέπαυσε τὴν ἀρχὴν τοῦ Κάτωνος. ὁ δὲ λαβὼν σπείρας ὀπλιτῶν πέντε καὶ πεντακο-
 σίους ἵππεῖς προπομποὺς κατεστρέψατο μὲν τὸ
 Λακεταῶν ἔθνος, ἑξακοσίους δὲ τῶν ἠῦτομοληκό-
 2 των κομισάμενος ἀπέκτεινεν. ἐφ' οἷς σχετλιάζοντα
 τὸν Σκηπίωνα κατειρωνευόμενος οὕτως ἔφη τὴν Ῥώμην ἔσεσθαι μεγίστην, τῶν μὲν ἐνδόξων καὶ
 μεγάλων τὰ τῆς ἀρετῆς πρωτεῖα μὴ μεθιέντων
 τοῖς ἀσημοτέροις, τῶν δ' ὥσπερ αὐτὸς ἐστὶ
 δημοτικῶν ἀμιλλωμένων ἀρετῇ πρὸς τοὺς τῷ γένει
 καὶ τῇ δόξῃ προήκοντας. οὐ μὴν ἀλλὰ τῆς
 συγκλήτου ψηφισαμένης μηδὲν ἀλλάττειν μηδὲ
 κινεῖν τῶν διωκημένων ὑπὸ Κάτωνος, ἢ μὲν ἀρχὴ
 τῷ Σκηπίωνι τῆς αὐτοῦ μᾶλλον ἢ τῆς Κάτωνος
 ἀφελούσα δόξης ἐν ἀπραξίᾳ καὶ σχολῇ μάτην

MARCUS CATO

seek to profit by such a case, but I prefer to strive in bravery with the bravest, rather than in wealth with the richest, and in greed for money with the greediest." And he strove to keep not only himself, but also his associates, free from all taint of gain. He had five attendants with him in the field. One of these, whose name was Paccus, bought three boys for his own account from among the public prisoners, but finding that Cato was aware of the transaction, or ever he had come into his presence, went and hanged himself. Cato sold the boys, and restored the money to the public treasury.

XI. While Cato still tarried in Spain, Scipio the Great, who was his enemy, and wished to obstruct the current of his successes and take away from him the administration of affairs in Spain, got himself appointed his successor in command of that province. Then he set out with all the speed possible, and brought Cato's command to an end. But Cato took five cohorts of men-at-arms and five hundred horsemen as escort on his way home, and on the march subdued the tribe of the Lacetanians, and put to death six hundred deserters whom they delivered up to him. Scipio was enraged at this proceeding, but Cato, treating him with mock humility, said that only then would Rome be at her greatest, when her men of high birth refused to yield the palm of virtue to men of lower rank, and when plebeians like himself contended in virtue with their superiors in birth and reputation. However, in spite of Scipio's displeasure, the Senate voted that no change whatever be made in what Cato had ordered and arranged, and so the administration of Scipio was marked by inactivity and idleness, and detracted from his own,

3 διήλθεν, ὁ δὲ Κάτων θριαμβεύσας οὐχ, ὥσπερ οἱ πλείστοι τῶν μὴ πρὸς ἀρετὴν, ἀλλὰ πρὸς δόξαν ἡμιλλωμένων, ὅταν εἰς τὰς ἄκρας τιμὰς ἐξίκωνται καὶ τύχῳσιν ὑπατείας καὶ θριάμβων, ἤδη τὸ λοιπὸν εἰς ἡδονὴν καὶ σχολὴν συσκευασάμενοι τὸν βίον ἐκ τῶν κοινῶν ἀπίασιν, οὕτω καὶ αὐτὸς ἐξανῆκε καὶ κατέλυσε τὴν ἀρετὴν, ἀλλ' ὅμοια τοῖς πρῶτον ἀπτομένοις πολιτείας καὶ διψῶσι τιμῆς καὶ δόξης ἀφ' ἑτέρας ἀρχῆς συντείνας ἑαυτὸν ἐν μέσῳ παρεῖχε καὶ φίλοις χρῆσθαι καὶ πολίταις, οὔτε τὰς συνηγορίας οὔτε τὰς στρατείας ἀπειπάμενος.

XII. Τιβερίῳ μὲν οὖν Σεμπρωνίῳ τὰ περὶ Θράκην καὶ Ἰστρον ὑπατεύοντι πρεσβεύων συγκατειργάσατο, Μανίῳ δ' Ἀκίλιῳ χιλιαρχῶν ἐπ' Ἀντίοχον τὸν μέγαν συνεξῆλθεν εἰς τὴν Ἑλλάδα, φοβήσαντα Ῥωμαίους ὡς οὐδένα ἕτερον μετ' Ἀννίβαν. τὴν γὰρ Ἀσίαν, ὅσῃν ὁ Νικάτωρ Σέλευκος εἶχεν, ὀλίγου δεῖν ἅπασαν ἐξ ὑπαρχῆς ἀνειληφώς, ἔθνη τε πάμπολλα καὶ μάχιμα βαρβύρων ὑπήκοα πεπονημένος, ἐπῆρτο συμπεσεῖν Ῥωμαίοις ὡς μόνοις ἔτι πρὸς αὐτὸν ἀξιωμαχοῖς 343
 2 οὔσιν. εὐπρεπῆ δὲ τοῦ πολέμου ποιησάμενος αἰτίαν τοὺς Ἕλληνας ἐλευθεροῦν, οὐδὲν δεομένους, ἀλλὰ καὶ ἐλευθέρους καὶ αὐτονόμους χάριτι τῆ Ῥωμαίων ἀπὸ Φιλίππου καὶ Μακεδόνων νεωστὶ γεγονότας, διέβη μετὰ δυνάμεως. καὶ σάλον εὐθύς ἢ Ἑλλάς εἶχε καὶ μετέωρος ἦν ἐλπίσι διαφθειρο-
 3 μένη βασιλικαῖς ὑπὸ τῶν δημαγωγῶν. ἔπεμπεν οὖν πρέσβεις ὁ Μάνιος ἐπὶ τὰς πόλεις. Καὶ τὰ μὲν πλείστα τῶν νεωτεριζόντων Τίτος Φλαμνῖνος rather than from Cato's reputation. Cato, on the other hand, celebrated a triumph.¹ Most men who strive more for reputation than for virtue, when once they have attained the highest honours of consulship and triumphs, straightway adjust their future lives to the enjoyment of a pleasurable ease, and give up their public careers. But Cato did not thus remit and dismiss his virtue, nay, rather, like men first taking up the public service and all athirst for honour and reputation, he girt his loins anew, and held himself ever ready to serve his friends and fellow-citizens, either in the forum or in the field.

MARCUS CATO

XII. And so it was that he assisted Tiberius Sempronius the consul in subduing the regions in Thrace and on the Danube, acting as his ambassador; and as legionary tribune under Manius Acilius, he marched into Greece against Antiochus the Great, who gave the Romans more to fear than any man after Hannibal. For he won back almost all of Seleucus Nicator's former dominions in Asia, reduced to subjection many warlike nations of Barbarians, and was eager to engage the Romans, whom he deemed the only worthy foemen left for him. So he crossed into Greece with an army, making the freeing of the Greeks a specious ground for war. This they did not need at all, since they had recently been made free and independent of Philip and the Macedonians by grace of the Romans. Greece was at once a stormy sea of hopes and fears, being corrupted by her demagogues with expectations of royal bounty. Accordingly, Manius sent envoys to the several cities. Most of those which were unsettled in their allegiance Titus Flamininus restrained

¹ 194 B.C.

PLUTARCH'S LIVES

ἔσχεν ἄνευ ταραχῆς καὶ κατεπραῦνε, ὡς ἐν τοῖς περὶ ἐκείνου γέγραπται, Κάτων δὲ Κορινθίους καὶ Πατρέεις, ἔτι δ' Αἰγυεῖς παρεστήσατο.

- 4 Πλείστον δὲ χρόνον ἐν Ἀθήναις διέτριψε. καὶ λέγεται μὲν τις αὐτοῦ φέρεσθαι λόγος, ὃν Ἑλληνιστὶ πρὸς τὸν δῆμον εἶπεν, ὡς ζηλῶν τε τὴν ἀρετὴν τῶν παλαιῶν Ἀθηναίων τῆς τε πόλεως διὰ τὸ κάλλος καὶ τὸ μέγεθος ἠδέως γεγονῶς θεατῆς· τὸ δ' οὐκ ἀληθές ἐστιν, ἀλλὰ δι' ἑρμηνέως ἐνέτυχε τοῖς Ἀθηναίοις, δυνηθεὶς ἂν αὐτὸς εἰπεῖν, ἐμμένον δὲ τοῖς πατρίοις καὶ καταγελῶν τῶν τὰ Ἑλ-
- 5 ληνικὰ τεθραυμακότων. Ποστούμιον γοῦν Ἀλβίνον ἱστορίαν Ἑλληνιστὶ γράψαντα καὶ συγγνώμην αἰτούμενον ἐπέσκωψεν εἰπὼν, δοτέον εἶναι τὴν συγγνώμην, εἰ τῶν Ἀμφικτυόνων ψηφισμένων ἀναγκασθεὶς ὑπέμεινε τὸ ἔργον. θαυμάσαι δὲ φησι τοὺς Ἀθηναίους τὸ τάχος αὐτοῦ καὶ τὴν ὀξύτητα τῆς φράσεως· ἃ γὰρ αὐτὸς ἐξέφερε βραχέως, τὸν ἑρμηνέα μακρῶς καὶ διὰ πολλῶν ἀπαγγέλλειν· τὸ δ' ὅλον οἶέσθαι τὰ ῥήματα τοῖς μὲν Ἑλλησιν ἀπὸ χειλέων, τοῖς δὲ Ῥωμαίοις ἀπὸ καρδίας φέρεσθαι.

XIII. Ἐπεὶ δ' Ἀντίοχος ἐμφράξας τὰ περὶ Θερμοπύλας στενὰ τῷ στρατοπέδῳ, καὶ τοῖς αὐτοφυέσι τῶν τόπων ἐρύμασι προσβαλὼν χαρακώματα καὶ διατειχίσματα, καθῆστο τὸν πόλεμον ἐκκεκλεικέναι νομίζων, τὸ μὲν κατὰ στόμα βιάζεσθαι παντάπασιν ἀπεγίνωσκον οἱ Ῥωμαῖοι, τὴν δὲ Περσικὴν ἐκείνην περιήλυσιν καὶ κύκλωσιν ὁ without ado, and quieted down, as I have written in his Life;¹ but Corinth, Patrae, and Aegium were brought over to Rome by Cato.

MARCUS CATO

He also spent much time at Athens. And we are told that a certain speech of his is extant, which he addressed to the Athenian people in Greek, declaring that he admired the virtues of the ancient Athenians, and was glad to behold a city so beautiful and grand as theirs. But this is not true. On the contrary, he dealt with the Athenians through an interpreter. He could have spoken to them directly, but he always clung to his native ways, and mocked at those who were lost in admiration of anything that was Greek. For instance, he poked fun at Postumius Albinus, who wrote a history in Greek, and asked the indulgence of his readers. Cato said they might have shown him indulgence had he undertaken his task in consequence of a compulsory vote of the Amphictyonic Assembly. Moreover, he says the Athenians were astonished at the speed and pungency of his discourse. For what he himself set forth with brevity, the interpreter would repeat to them at great length and with many words; and on the whole he thought the words of the Greeks were born on their lips, but those of the Romans in their hearts.

XIII. Now Antiochus had blocked up the narrow pass of Thermopylae with his army,² adding trenches and walls to the natural defences of the place, and sat there, thinking that he had locked the war out of Greece. And the Romans did indeed despair utterly of forcing a direct passage. But Cato, calling to mind the famous compass and circuit of the pass

¹ Chapters xv-xvii.

² 191 B.C.

PLUTARCH'S LIVES

- Κάτων εἰς νοῦν βαλόμενος ἐξώδευσε νύκτωρ,
 2 ἀναλαβὼν μέρος τι τῆς στρατιᾶς. ἐπεὶ δ' ἄνω
 προελθόντων ὁ καθοδηγῶν αἰχμάλωτος ἐξέπεσε
 τῆς ὁδοῦ καὶ πλανώμενος ἐν τόποις ἀπόροις καὶ
 κρημνώδεσι δεινὴν ἀθυμίαν καὶ φόβον ἐνειργάσατο
 τοῖς στρατιώταις, ὁρῶν ὁ Κάτων τὸν κίνδυνον
 ἐκέλευσε τοὺς ἄλλους ἅπαντας ἀτρεμεῖν καὶ περι-3 μένειν, αὐτὸς δὲ Λεύκιόν τινα Μάλλιον, ἄνδρα
 δεινὸν ὀρειβατεῖν, παραλαβὼν ἐχώρει πολυπόνως
 καὶ παραβόλως ἐν ἀσελήνῳ νυκτὶ καὶ βαθείᾳ, κοτίνοις¹ καὶ πάγοις ἀνατεταμένοις διασπάσματα
 πολλὰ τῆς ὄψεως καὶ ἀσάφειαν ἐχούσης, ἕως ἐμβαλόντες εἰς ἀτραπὸν, ὡς ᾤοντο, κάτω περαινουσαν ἐπὶ τὸ στρατόπεδον τῶν πολεμίων ἔθεντο
 σημεῖα πρὸς τινὰς εὐσκόπους κεραιὰς ὑπὲρ τὸ
 4 Καλλίδρομον ἀνεχούσας. οὕτω δὲ πάλιν ἐπανελθόντες ὀπίσω τὴν στρατιὰν ἀνέλαβον, καὶ
 πρὸς τὰ σημεῖα προάγοντες ἤψαντο μὲν ἐκείνης
 τῆς ἀτραποῦ καὶ κατεστήσαντο τὴν πορείαν, μικρὸν δὲ προελθοῦσιν αὐτοῖς ἐπέλιπε φάραγος
 ὑπολαμβανούσης. καὶ πάλιν ἦν ἀπορία καὶ δέος
 οὐκ ἐπισταμένων οὐδὲ συνορώντων ὅτι πλησίον
 ἐτύγχανον τῶν πολεμίων γεγονότες. ἤδη δὲ διέ-λαμπεν ἡμέρα, καὶ φθογγῆς τις ἔδοξεν ἐπακοῦσαι,
 τάχα δὲ καὶ καθορᾶν Ἑλληνικὸν χάρακα καὶ
 5 προφυλακὴν ὑπὸ τὸ κρημνώδες. οὕτως οὖν ἐπιστήσας ἐνταῦθα τὴν στρατιὰν ὁ Κάτων ἐκέλευσεν
 αὐτῷ προσελθεῖν ἄνευ τῶν ἄλλων τοὺς Φιρμανούς, οἷς αἰεὶ πιστοῖς ἐχρήτο καὶ προθύμοις.
 συνδραμόντων δὲ καὶ περιστάντων αὐτὸν ἀθρόων

¹ κοτίνοις MSS.; κολωνοῖς (hills) Bekker, adopting the correction of Coraës.

MARCUS CATO

which the Persians had once made, took a considerable force and set out under cover of darkness. They climbed the heights, but their guide, who was a prisoner of war, lost the way, and wandered about in impracticable and precipitous places until he had filled the soldiers with dreadful dejection and fear. Cato, seeing their peril, bade the rest remain quietly where they were, while he himself, with a certain Lucius Manlius, an expert mountain-climber, made his way along, with great toil and hazard, in the dense darkness of a moonless night, his vision much impeded and obscured by wild olive trees and rocky peaks, until at last they came upon a path. This, they thought, led down to the enemy's camp. So they put marks and signs on some conspicuous cliffs which towered over Mount Callidromus, and then made their way back again to the main body. This too they conducted to the marks and signs, struck into the path indicated by these, and started forward. But when they had gone on a little way, the path failed them, and a ravine yawned to receive them. Once more dejection and fear were rife. They did not know and could not see that they were right upon the enemy whom they sought. But presently gleams of daylight came, here and there a man thought he heard voices, and soon they actually saw a Greek outpost entrenched at the foot of the cliffs. So then Cato halted his forces there, and summoned the men of Firmum to a private conference. These soldiers he had always found trusty and zealous in his service. When they had run up and stood grouped about him,

εἶπεν· “Ἄνδρα χρήζω λαβεῖν τῶν πολεμίων ζῶντα
καὶ πυθέσθαι, τίνες οἱ προφυλάττοντες οὗτοι, πόσον πλήθος αὐτῶν, τίς ὁ τῶν ἄλλων διάκοσμος ἢ
τάξις καὶ παρασκευή, μεθ’ ἧς ὑπομένουσαν ἡμᾶς.
6 τὸ δ’ ἔργον ἄρπαγμα δεῖ τάχους γενέσθαι καὶ τόλμης, ἢ καὶ λέοντες ἄνοπλοι θαρροῦντες ἐπὶ τὰ
δειλὰ τῶν θηρίων βαδίζουσι.” ταῦτα εἰπόντος τοῦ
Κάτωνος αὐτόθεν ὀρούσαντες, ὥσπερ εἶχον, οἱ Φιρμανοὶ κατὰ τῶν ὀρῶν ἔθειον ἐπὶ τὰς προφυλακάς· καὶ προσπεσόντες ἀπροσδόκητοι πάντας μὲν
διετύραξαν καὶ διεσκέδασαν, ἓνα δ’ αὐτοῖς ὄπλοις 344
7 ἄρπάσαντες ἐνεχείρισαν τῷ Κάτῳ. παρὰ τού-του μαθῶν, ὡς ἢ μὲν ἄλλη δύναμις ἐν τοῖς στενοῖς
κάθηται μετ’ αὐτοῦ¹ τοῦ βασιλέως, οἱ δὲ φρου-ροῦντες οὗτοι τὰς ὑπερβολὰς Αἰτωλῶν εἰσιν
ἕξακόσιοι λογάδες, καταφρονήσας τῆς ὀλιγότητος
ἅμα καὶ τῆς ὀλιγωρίας εὐθύς ἐπήγεν ἅμα σάλ-πιξι καὶ ἀλαλαγμῷ, πρῶτος σπασάμενος τὴν μάχαιραν. οἱ δ’ ὡς εἶδον ἀπὸ τῶν κρημνῶν ἐπιφερομένους, φεύγοντες εἰς τὸ μέγα στρατόπεδον
κατεπίμπλασαν ταραχῆς ἅπαντας.²

XIV. Ἐν τούτῳ δὲ καὶ τοῦ Μανίου κάτωθεν
πρὸς τὰ διατειχίσματα βιαζομένου καὶ τοῖς στενοῖς προσβάλλοντος ἀθρόαν τὴν δύναμιν, ὁ
μὲν Ἀντίοχος εἰς τὸ στόμα λίθῳ πληγείς ἐκτιναχθέντων αὐτοῦ τῶν ὀδόντων ἀπέστρεψε τὸν ἵπ-πον ὀπίσω, περιαλγῆς γινόμενος, τοῦ δὲ στρατοῦ
2 μέρος οὐδὲν ὑπέμεινε τοὺς Ῥωμαίους, ἀλλὰ καίπερ ἀπόρους καὶ ἀμηχάνους τῆς φυγῆς ὁδοὺς καὶ
πλάνας ἐχούσης, ἐλῶν βαθέων καὶ πετρῶν ἀπο-

¹ μετ’ αὐτοῦ Blass with S : μετὰ.

² ἅπαντας Sintenis²
with C ; Bekker reads ἅπαντα, with Sintenis¹ and Coraës.

MARCUS CATO

he said: "I must take one of the enemy's men alive, and learn from him who they are that form this advance guard, what their number is, and with what disposition and array their main body awaits us. But the task demands the swift and bold leap of lions fearlessly rushing all unarmed upon the timorous beasts on which they prey." So spake Cato, and the Firmians instantly started, just as they were, rushed down the mountain-side, and ran upon the enemy's sentinels. Falling upon them unexpectedly, they threw them all into confusion and scattered them in flight; one of them they seized, arms and all, and delivered him over to Cato. From the captive Cato learned that the main force of the enemy was encamped in the pass with the king himself, and that the detachment guarding the pass over the mountains was composed of six hundred picked Aetolians. Despising their small numbers and their carelessness, he led his troops against them at once, with bray of trumpet and battle-cry, being himself first to draw his sword. But when the enemy saw his men pouring down upon them from the cliffs, they fled to the main army, and filled them all with confusion.

XIV. Meanwhile Manius also, down below, threw his whole force forward into the pass and stormed the enemy's fortifications. Antiochus, being hit in the mouth with a stone which knocked his teeth out, wheeled his horse about for very anguish. Then his army gave way everywhere before the Roman onset. Although flight for them meant impracticable roads and helpless wanderings, while deep marshes and steep cliffs threatened those who

PLUTARCH'S LIVES

τόμων τὰ πτώματα καὶ τὰς ὀλισθήσεις ὑποδεχομένων, εἰς ταῦτα διὰ τῶν στενῶν ὑπερχέμενοι καὶ συνωθούμενοι ἀλλήλους φόβῳ πληγῆς καὶ σιδήρου πολεμίων αὐτοὺς διέφθειρον.

Ὁ δὲ Κάτων αἰεὶ μὲν τις ἦν, ὡς ἔοικε, τῶν ἰδίων ἐγκωμίων ἀφειδῆς καὶ τὴν ἀντικρυς μεγαλαυχίαν ὡς ἐπακολούθημα τῆς μεγαλουργίας οὐκ ἔφευγε, πλείστον δὲ ταῖς πράξεσι ταύταις ὄγκον
 3 περιτέθεικε, καὶ φησι τοῖς ἰδοῦσιν αὐτὸν τότε διώκοντα καὶ παίοντα τοὺς πολεμίους παραστήναι μηδὲν ὀφείλειν Κάτωνα τῷ δήμῳ τοσοῦτον, ὅσον Κάτωνι τὸν δῆμον, αὐτὸν τε Μάνιον τὸν ὑπατον θερμὸν ἀπὸ τῆς νίκης ἔτι θερμῷ περιπλακέντα πολὺν χρόνον ἀσπάζεσθαι καὶ βοᾶν ὑπὸ χαρᾶς, ὡς οὐτ' ἂν αὐτὸς οὐθ' ὁ σύμπας δῆμος ἐξισώσεται τὰς ἀμοιβὰς ταῖς Κά-
 4 τωνος εὐεργεσίαις. μετὰ δὲ τὴν μάχην εὐθύς εἰς Ῥώμην ἐπέμπετο τῶν ἠγωνισμένων αὐτάγγελος· καὶ διέπλευσε μὲν εἰς Βρεντέσιον εὐτυχῶς, μιᾷ δ' ἡμέρᾳ διελάσας ἐκεῖθεν εἰς Τάραντα καὶ τέσσαρας ἄλλας ὀδεύσας πεμπταῖος εἰς Ῥώμην ἀπὸ θαλάσσης ἀφίκετο καὶ πρῶτος ἀπήγγειλε τὴν νίκην. καὶ τὴν μὲν πόλιν ἐνέπλησεν εὐφροσύνης καὶ θυσιῶν, φρονήματος δὲ τὸν δῆμον ὡς πάσης γῆς καὶ θαλάσσης κρατεῖν δυνάμενον.

XV. Τῶν μὲν οὖν πολεμικῶν πράξεων τοῦ Κάτωνος αὐταὶ σχεδὸν εἰσιν ἔλλογιμώταται· τῆς δὲ πολιτείας φαίνεται τὸ περὶ τὰς κατηγορίας καὶ τοὺς ἐλέγχους τῶν πονηρῶν μόνιον οὐ μικρᾶς ἄξιον σπουδῆς ἠγησάμενος. αὐτὸς τε γὰρ ἐδίωξε πολλοὺς καὶ διώκουσιν ἑτέροις συνηγωνίσαστο καὶ παρεσκεύασεν ὄλωσ διώκοντας, slipped and fell, still, they poured along through the pass into these, crowding one another on in their fear of the enemy's deadly weapons, and so destroyed themselves.

MARCUS CATO

Cato, who was ever rather generous, it would seem, in his own praises, and did not hesitate to follow up his great achievements with boastings equally great, is very pompous in his account of this exploit. He says that those who saw him at that time pursuing the enemy and hewing them down, felt convinced that Cato owed less to Rome than Rome to Cato; also that the consul Manius himself, flushed with victory, threw his arms about him, still flushed with his own victory, and embraced him a long time, crying out for joy that neither he himself nor the whole Roman people could fittingly requite Cato for his benefactions. Immediately after the battle he was sent to Rome as the messenger of his own triumphs. He had a fair passage to Brundisium, crossed the peninsula from there to Tarentum in a single day, travelled thence four days more, and on the fifth day after landing reached Rome, where he was the first to announce the victory. He filled the city full of joy and sacrifices, and the people with the proud feeling that it was able to master every land and sea.

XV. These are perhaps the most remarkable features of Cato's military career. In political life, he seems to have regarded the impeachment and conviction of malefactors as a department worthy of his most zealous efforts. For he brought many prosecutions himself, assisted others in bringing theirs, and even instigated some to begin prosecutions, as

PLUTARCH'S LIVES

- 2 ὡς ἐπὶ Σκηπίωνα τοὺς περὶ Πετίλλιον. τοῦτον μὲν οὖν ἀπ' οἴκου τε μεγάλου καὶ φρονήματος ἀληθινοῦ ποιησάμενον ὑπὸ πόδας τὰς διαβολὰς μὴ ἀποκτεῖναι δυνηθεὶς ἀφῆκε· Λεύκιον δὲ τὸν ἀδελφὸν αὐτοῦ μετὰ τῶν κατηγορῶν συστάς καταδίκη περιέβαλε χρημάτων πολλῶν, πρὸς τὸ δημόσιον, ἣν οὐκ ἔχων ἐκεῖνος ἀπολύσασθαι καὶ κινδυνεύων δεθῆναι μόλις ἐπικλήσει τῶν δημάρχων ἀφείθη.
- 3 Λέγεται δὲ καὶ νεανίσκῳ τινὶ τεθνηκότος πατρὸς ἐχθρὸν ἠτιμωκότι καὶ πορευομένῳ δι' ἀγορᾶς μετὰ τὴν δίκην ἀπαντήσας ὁ Κάτων δεξιώσασθαι καὶ εἰπεῖν, ὅτι ταῦτα χρὴ τοῖς γουεῦσιν ἐναγίζειν, οὐκ ἄρνας οὐδ' ἐρίφους, ἀλλ' ἐχθρῶν δάκρυα καὶ καταδίκας. οὐ μὴν οὐδ' αὐτὸς ἐν τῇ πολιτείᾳ περιῆν ἀθῶος, ἀλλ' ὅπου τινὰ λαβὴν παράσχοι τοῖς ἐχθροῖς, κρινόμενος καὶ
- 4 κινδυνεύων διετέλει. λέγεται γὰρ ὀλίγον ἀπολιπούσας τῶν πεντήκοντα φυγεῖν δίκας, μίαν δὲ τὴν τελευταίαν¹ ἕξ ἔτη καὶ ὀγδοήκοντα γεγονώς· ἐν ἧ καὶ τὸ μνημονευόμενον εἶπεν, ὡς χαλεπὸν ἐστὶν ἐν ἄλλοις βεβιωκότα ἀνθρώποις ἐν ἄλλοις 345 ἀπολογεῖσθαι. καὶ τοῦτο πέρασ οὐκ ἐποίησατο τῶν ἀγώνων, τεσσάρων δ' ἄλλων ἐνιαυτῶν διελθόντων Σερουίου Γάλβα κατηγορήσεν ἐνενήκοντα
- 5 γεγονώς ἔτη. κινδυνεύει γὰρ ὡς ὁ Νέστωρ εἰς
- ¹ τὴν τελευταίαν Hercher and Blass with F¹S : τελευταίαν.

MARCUS CATO

for instance Petillius against Scipio. That great man, however, trampled the accusations against him under foot, as the splendour of his house and his own inherent loftiness of spirit prompted him to do, and Cato, unable to secure his capital conviction, dropped the case. But he so co-operated with the accusers of Lucius, Scipio's brother, as to have him condemned to pay a large fine to the state. This debt Lucius was unable to meet, and was therefore liable to imprisonment. Indeed, it was only at the intercession of the tribunes that he was at last set free.

We are also told that a certain young man, who had got a verdict of civil outlawry against an enemy of his dead father, was passing through the forum on the conclusion of the case, and met Cato, who greeted him and said: "These are the sacrifices we must bring to the spirits of our parents; not lambs and kids, but the condemnations and tears of their enemies." However, he himself did not go unscathed, but wherever in his political career he gave his enemies the slightest handle, he was all the while suffering prosecutions and running risk of condemnation. It is said that he was defendant in nearly fifty cases, and in the last one when he was eighty-six years of age. It was in the course of this that he uttered the memorable saying: "It is hard for one who has lived among men of one generation, to make his defence before those of another." And even with this case he did not put an end to his forensic contests, but four years later, at the age of ninety, he impeached Servius Galba. Indeed, he may be said, like Nestor, τριγωνίαν τῷ βίῳ καὶ ταῖς πράξεσι κατελθεῖν. Σκηπίωνι γάρ, ὡς λέλεκται, τῷ μεγάλῳ πολλὰ διερισάμενος ἐν τῇ πολιτείᾳ διέτεινεν εἰς Σκηπίωνα τὸν νέον, ὃς ἦν ἐκείνου κατὰ ποίησιν υἱωνός, υἱὸς δὲ Παύλου τοῦ Περσέα καὶ Μακεδόνας καταπολεμήσαντος.

PLUTARCH'S LIVES

- XVI. Τῆς δ' ὑπατείας κατόπιν ἔτεσι δέκα τιμητείαν ὁ Κάτων παρήγγειλε. κορυφή δὲ τίς ἐστὶ τιμῆς ἀπάσης ἢ ἀρχῆ καὶ τρόπον τινα τῆς πολιτείας ἐπιτελείωσις, ἄλλην τε πολλὴν ἐξουσίαν ἔχουσα καὶ τὴν περὶ τὰ ἦθη καὶ τοὺς βίους ἐξέτασιν. οὔτε γὰρ γάμον οὔτε παιδοποιεῖταιν τινὸς οὔτε δίαιταν οὔτε συμπόσιον ᾠοντο δεῖν ἄκριτον καὶ ἀνεξέταστον, ὡς ἕκαστος ἐπιθυμίας
- 2 ἔχοι καὶ προαιρέσεως, ἀφείσθαι. πολὺ δὲ μᾶλλον ἐν τούτοις νομίζοντες ἢ ταῖς ὑπαίθροις καὶ πολιτικαῖς πράξεσι τρόπον ἀνδρὸς ἐνοραῖσθαι, φύλακα καὶ σωφρονιστὴν καὶ κολαστὴν τοῦ μηδένα καθ' ἡδονὰς ἐκτρέπεσθαι καὶ παρεκβαίνειν τὸν ἐπιχώριον καὶ συνήθη βίον ἠροῦντο τῶν καλουμένων πατρικίων ἕνα καὶ τῶν δημοτικῶν ἕνα. τιμητὰς δὲ τούτους προσηγόρευον, ἐξουσίαν ἔχοντας ἀφέλῃσθαι μὲν ἵππον, ἐκβαλεῖν δὲ συγκλήτου τὸν
- 3 ἀκολάστως βιοῦντα καὶ ἀτάκτως. οὗτοι δὲ καὶ τὰ τιμήματα τῶν οὐσιῶν λαμβάνοντες ἐπεσκόπουν, καὶ ταῖς ἀπογραφαῖς τὰ γένη καὶ τὰς πολιτείας διέκρινον· ἄλλας τε μεγάλας ἔχει δυνάμεις ἢ ἀρχή.

Διὸ καὶ τῷ Κάτωνι πρὸς τὴν παραγγελίαν

MARCUS CATO

to have been vigorous and active among three generations. For after many political struggles with Scipio the Great, as told above, he lived to be contemporary with Scipio the Younger, who was the Elder's grandson by adoption, and the son of that Paulus Aemilius who subdued Perseus and the Macedonians.¹

XVI. Ten years after his consulship,² Cato stood for the ensorship. This office towered, as it were, above every other civic honour, and was, in a way, the culmination of a political career. The variety of its powers was great, including that of examining into the lives and manners of the citizens. Its creators thought that no one should be left to his own devices and desires, without inspection and review, either in his marrying, or in the begetting of his children, or in the ordering of his daily life, or in the entertainment of his friends. Nay, rather, thinking that these things revealed a man's real character more than did his public and political career, they set men in office to watch, admonish, and chastise, that no one should turn aside to wantonness and forsake his native and customary mode of life. They chose to this office one of the so-called patricians, and one of the plebeians. These officers were called censors, and they had authority to degrade a knight, or to expel a senator who led an unbridled and disorderly life. They also revised the assessments of property, and arranged the citizens in lists according to their social and political classes. There were other great powers also connected with the office.

Therefore, when Cato stood for it, nearly all

¹ In the battle of Pydna, 168 B.C. ² 184 B.C.

PLUTARCH'S LIVES

ἀπήντησαν ἐνιστάμενοι σχεδὸν οἱ γνωριμώτατοι
 καὶ πρῶτοι τῶν συγκλητικῶν. τοὺς μὲν γὰρ εὐπατρίδας ὁ φθόνος ἐλύπει, παντάπασιν οἰομέν-ους προπηλακίζεσθαι τὴν εὐγένειαν ἀνθρώπων
 ἀπ' ἀρχῆς ἀδόξων εἰς τὴν ἄκραν τιμὴν καὶ δύνα-4 μιν ἀναβιβαζομένων, οἱ δὲ μοχθηρὰ συνειδότες
 αὐτοῖς ἐπιτηδεύματα καὶ τῶν πατρίων ἐκδιαίτησιν
 ἐθῶν ἐφοβοῦντο τὴν αὐστηρίαν τοῦ ἀνδρός, ἀπαραίτητον ἐν ἐξουσίᾳ καὶ χαλεπὴν ἐσομένην.
 διὸ συμφρονήσαντες καὶ παρασκευάσαντες ἑπτὰ
 κατῆγον ἐπὶ τὴν παραγγελίαν ἀντιπάλους τῷ Κάτωνι, θεραπεύοντας ἐλπίσι χρησταῖς τὸ πλῆ-
 θος, ὡς δὴ μαλακῶς καὶ πρὸς ἡδονὴν ἄρχεσθαι
 5 δεόμενον. τούναντίον δ' ὁ Κάτων οὐδεμίαν ἐνδιδούς ἐπιείκειαν, ἀλλ' ἀντικρυς ἀπειλῶν τε τοῖς
 πονηροῖς ἀπὸ τοῦ βήματος καὶ κεκραγῶς μεγάλου
 καθαρμοῦ χρήζειν τὴν πόλιν, ἡξίου τοὺς πολλούς,
 εἰ σωφρονουῖσι, μὴ τὸν ἡδιστον, ἀλλὰ τὸν σφο-δρότατον αἰρεῖσθαι τῶν ἰατρῶν· τοῦτον δὲ αὐτὸν
 εἶναι καὶ τῶν πατρικίων ἓνα Φλάκκον Οὐαλλέριον· μετ' ἐκείνου γὰρ οἶεσθαι μόνου τὴν τρυφὴν
 καὶ τὴν μαλακίαν ὥσπερ ὕδραν τέμνων καὶ ἀποκαίων προὔργου τι ποιήσῃ, τῶν δ' ἄλλων ὁρᾶν
 ἕκαστον ἄρξαι κακῶς βιαζόμενον, ὅτι τοὺς καλῶς
 6 ἄρξοντας δέδοικεν. οὕτω δ' ἄρα μέγας ἦν ὡς ἀληθῶς
 καὶ μεγάλων ἄξιος δημαγωγῶν ὁ Ῥωμαίων δῆμος, ὥστε μὴ φοβηθῆναι τὴν ἀνάτασιν καὶ τὸν ὄγκον
 τοῦ ἀνδρός, ἀλλὰ τοὺς ἡδεῖς ἐκείνους καὶ πρὸς

MARCUS CATO

the best known and most influential men of the senatorial party united to oppose him. The men of noble parentage among them were moved by jealousy, thinking that nobility of birth would be trampled in the mire if men of ignoble origin forced their way up to the summits of honour and power; while those who were conscious of base practices and of a departure from ancestral customs, feared the severity of the man, which was sure to be harsh and inexorable in the exercise of power. Therefore, after due consultation and preparation, they put up in opposition to Cato seven candidates for the office, who sought the favour of the multitude with promises of mild conduct in office, supposing, forsooth, that it wanted to be ruled with a lax and indulgent hand. Cato, on the contrary, showed no complaisance whatever, but plainly threatened wrong-doers in his speeches, and loudly cried that the city had need of a great purification. He adjured the people, if they were wise, not to choose the most agreeable physician, but the one who was most in earnest. He himself, he said, was such a physician, and so was Valerius Flaccus, of the patricians. With him as colleague, and him alone, he thought he could cut and sear to some purpose the hydra-like luxury and effeminacy of the time. As for the rest of the candidates, he saw that they were all trying to force their way into the office in order to administer it badly, since they feared those who would administer it well. And so truly great was the Roman people, and so worthy of great leaders, that they did not fear Cato's rigour and haughty independence, but rejected rather those agreeable candidates who,

χάριν ἅπαντα ποιήσειν δοκοῦντας ἀπορρίψας ἐλέσθαι μετὰ τοῦ Κάτωνος τὸν Φλάκκον, ὥσπερ οὐκ αἰτοῦντος ἀρχήν, ἀλλ' ἄρχοντος ἤδη καὶ προστάττοντος ἀκροώμενος.

XVII. Προέγραψε μὲν οὖν ὁ Κάτων τῆς συγκλήτου τὸν συνάρχοντα καὶ φίλον Λεύκιον Οὐαλλέριον Φλάκκον, ἐξέβαλε δὲ τῆς βουλῆς ἄλλους τε συχνούς καὶ Λεύκιον Κοϊντίον, ὑπατου μὲν ἑπτὰ πρότερον ἐνιαυτοῖς γεγενημένον, ὃ δ' ἦν αὐτῷ πρὸς δόξαν ὑπατείας μείζον, ἀδελφὸν Τίτου Φλαμινίου τοῦ καταπολεμήσαντος Φίλιππον.

2 αἰτίαν δὲ τῆς ἐκβολῆς ἔσχε τοιαύτην. μειράκιον 346 ἐκ τῆς παιδικῆς ὥρας ἔταιροῦν ἀνειληφῶς ὁ Λεύκιος αἰεὶ περὶ αὐτὸν εἶχε καὶ συνεπήγετο στρατηγῶν ἐπὶ τιμῆς καὶ δυνάμεως τοσαύτης, ὅσην οὐδεὶς εἶχε τῶν πρώτων παρ' αὐτῷ φίλων καὶ οἰκείων. ἐτύγχανε μὲν οὖν ἠγούμενος ὑπατικῆς ἐπαρχίας· ἐν δὲ συμποσίῳ τιμὴ τὸ μειράκιον, ὥσπερ εἰώθει, συγκατακείμενον ἄλλην τε κολακείαν ἐκίνει πρὸς ἄνθρωπον¹ ἐν οἴνῳ ῥαδίως ἀγόμενον, καὶ φιλεῖν αὐτὸν οὕτως ἔλεγεν “ὥστ’,” ἔφη, “θέας οὔσης οἴκοι μονομάχων οὐ τεθραμένος πρότερον ἐξώρμησα πρὸς σέ, καίπερ ἐπιθυμῶν ἰδεῖν ἄνθρωπον 3 σφαττόμενον.” ὁ δὲ Λεύκιος ἀντιφιλοφρονούμενος “Ἄλλὰ τούτου γε χάριν,” εἶπε, “μή μοι κατάκεισο λυπούμενος, ἐγὼ γὰρ ἰάσομαι.” καὶ κελεύσας ἓνα τῶν ἐπὶ θανάτῳ κατακρίτων εἰς τὸ συμπόσιον ἀχθῆναι καὶ τὸν ὑπηρέτην ἔχοντα

¹ πρὸς ἄνθρωπον Blass with F^aSC : πρὸς τὸν ἄνθρωπον.

MARCUS CATO

it was believed, would do every thing to please them, and elected Flaccus to the office along with Cato.¹ To Cato they gave ear, not as to one soliciting office, but as to one already in office and issuing his decrees.

XVII. As censor, then, Cato made Lucius Valerius Flaccus, his colleague and friend, chief senator. He also expelled many members of the Senate, including Lucius Quintius. This man had been consul seven years before, and, a thing which gave him more reputation than the consulship even, was brother of the Titus Flamininus who conquered King Philip.² The reason for his expulsion was the following: There was a youth who, ever since his boyhood, had been the favourite of Lucius. This youth Lucius kept ever about him, and took with him on his campaigns in greater honour and power than any one of his nearest friends and kinsmen had. He was once administering the affairs of his consular province, and at a certain banquet this youth, as was his wont, reclined at his side, and began to pay his flatteries to a man who, in his cups, was too easily led about. "I love you so much," he said, "that once, when there was a gladiatorial show at home, a thing which I had never seen, I rushed away from it to join you, although my heart was set on seeing a man slaughtered." "Well, for that matter," said Lucius, "don't lie there with any grudge against me, for I will cure it." Thereupon he commanded that one of the men who were lying under sentence of death be brought to the banquet, and that a lictor with an axe stand by his side. Then he

¹ 184 B.C.

² At Cynoscephalae, 198 B.C.

PLUTARCH'S LIVES

πέλεκυν παραστήναι, πάλιν ἠρώτησε τὸν ἐρώμενον, εἰ βούλεται τυπτόμενον θεάσασθαι. φήσαντος δὲ βούλεσθαι, προσέταξεν ἀποκόψαι τοῦ ἀνθρώπου τὸν τράχηλον.

- 4 Οἱ μὲν οὖν πλείστοι ταῦτα ἱστοροῦσι, καὶ ὁ γε Κικέρων αὐτὸν τὸν Κάτωνα διηγούμενον ἐν τῷ περὶ γήρωσ διαλόγῳ πεποίηκεν· ὁ δὲ Λίβιος αὐτόμολον εἶναι φησι Γαλάτην τὸν ἀναιρεθέντα, τὸν δὲ Λεύκιον οὐ δι' ὑπηρέτου κτεῖναι τὸν ἀνθρώπου, ἀλλ' αὐτὸν ἰδία χειρί, καὶ ταῦτα ἐν λόγῳ¹ γεγράφθαι Κάτωνος.
- 5 Ἐκβληθέντος οὖν τοῦ Λευκίου τῆς βουλῆς ὑπὸ τοῦ Κάτωνος, ὁ ἀδελφὸς αὐτοῦ βαρέως φέρων ἐπὶ τὸν δῆμον κατέφυγε καὶ τὴν αἰτίαν ἐκέλευεν εἰπεῖν τὸν Κάτωνα τῆς ἐκβολῆς. εἰπόντος δὲ καὶ διηγησαμένου τὸ συμπόσιον ἐπεχείρει μὲν ὁ Λεύκιος ἀρνεῖσθαι, προκαλουμένου δὲ τοῦ Κάτωνος εἰς ὀρισμὸν ἀνεδύετο. καὶ τότε μὲν ἄξια παθεῖν κατεγνώσθη· θέας δ' οὔσης ἐν θεάτρῳ τὴν ὑπατικὴν χώραν παρελθὼν καὶ πορρωτάτω που καθεσθεις οἶκτον ἔσχε παρὰ τῷ δήμῳ, καὶ βοῶντες ἠνάγκασαν αὐτὸν μετελθεῖν, ὡς ἦν δυνατὸν ἐπανορθούμενοι καὶ θεραπεύοντες τὸ γεγενημένον.
- 7 Ἄλλον δὲ βουλῆς ἐξέβαλεν ὑπατεύσειν ἐπίδοξον ὄντα, Μανίλλιον, ὅτι τὴν αὐτοῦ γυναῖκα μεθ' ἡμέραν ὀρώσης τῆς θυγατρὸς κατεφίλησεν. αὐτῷ δ' ἔφη τὴν γυναῖκα μηδέποτε πλὴν βροντῆς μεγάλης γενομένης περιπλακῆναι, καὶ μετὰ παιδιᾶς εἰπεῖν αὐτὸν ὡς μακάριός ἐστι τοῦ Διὸς βροντῶντος.

¹ ἐν λόγῳ Hercher and Blass with F^aSC: ἐν τῷ λόγῳ.

MARCUS CATO

asked his beloved if he wished to see the man smitten. The youth said he did, and Lucius ordered the man's head to be cut off.

This is the version which most writers give of the affair, and so Cicero has represented Cato himself as telling the story in his dialogue "On Old Age."¹ But Livy² says the victim was a Gallic deserter, and that Lucius did not have the man slain by a lictor, but smote him with his own hand, and that this is the version of the story in a speech of Cato's.

On the expulsion of Lucius from the Senate by Cato, his brother was greatly indignant, and appealed to the people, urging that Cato state his reasons for the expulsion. Cato did so, narrating the incident of the banquet. Lucius attempted to make denial, but when Cato challenged him to a formal trial of the case with a wager of money upon it, he declined. Then the justice of his punishment was recognized. But once when a spectacle was given in the theatre, he passed along by the senatorial seats, and took his place as far away from them as he could. Then the people took pity upon him and shouted till they had forced him to change his seat, thus rectifying, as far as was possible, and alleviating the situation.

Cato expelled another senator who was thought to have good prospects for the consulship, namely, Manilius, because he embraced his wife in open day before the eyes of his daughter. For his own part, he said, he never embraced his wife unless it thundered loudly; and it was a pleasantry of his to remark that he was a happy man when it thundered.

¹ Cato Maior, 12, 42.

² xxxix, 42.

PLUTARCH'S LIVES

XVIII. Ἦνεγκε δέ τινα τῷ Κάτωνι καὶ Λεύκιος ὁ Σκηπίωνος ἀδελφὸς ἐπίφθονον αἰτίαν, θριαμβικὸς ἀνὴρ ἀφαιρεθεὶς ὑπ' αὐτοῦ τὸν ἵππον ἔδοξε γὰρ οἶον ἐφυβρίζων Ἀφρικανῷ Σκηπίωνι τεθνηκότι τοῦτο ποιῆσαι. τοὺς δὲ πλείστους ἠνίασε μάλιστα τῇ περικοπῇ τῆς πολυτελείας, ἦν ἀντικρυς μὲν ἀφελέσθαι, νενοσηκότων ἤδη καὶ διεφθαρμένων ὑπ' αὐτῆς τῶν πολλῶν, ἀδύ-
 2 νατον ἦν, κύκλω δὲ περιῶν ἠνάγκαζεν ἐσθῆτος, ὀχήματος, κόσμου γυναικείου, σκευῶν τῶν περὶ δίαιταν, ὧν ἐκάστου τὸ τίμημα δραχμὰς χιλίας καὶ πεντακοσίας ὑπερέβαλλεν, ἀποτιμᾶσθαι τὴν ἀξίαν εἰς τὸ δεκαπλάσιον, βουλόμενος ἀπὸ μείζονων τιμημάτων αὐτοῖς μείζονας καὶ τὰς εἰσφορὰς εἶναι. καὶ προσετίμησε τρεῖς χαλκοὺς πρὸς τοῖς χιλίοις, ὅπως βαρυνόμενοι ταῖς ἐπιβολαῖς καὶ τοὺς εὐσταλεῖς καὶ λιτοὺς ὀρώντες ἀπὸ τῶν ἴσων ἐλάττονα τελούντας εἰς τὸ δημόσιον ἀπα-
 3 γορεύουσιν. ἦσαν οὖν αὐτῷ χαλεποὶ μὲν οἱ τὰς εἰσφορὰς διὰ τὴν τρυφήν ὑπομένοντες, χαλεποὶ δ' αὖ πάλιν οἱ τὴν τρυφήν ἀποτιθέμενοι διὰ τὰς εἰσφορὰς. πλούτου γὰρ ἀφαίρεσιν οἱ πολλοὶ νομίζουσι τὴν κώλυσιν αὐτοῦ τῆς ἐπιδείξεως, ἐπιδείκνυσθαι δὲ τοῖς περιττοῖς, οὐ τοῖς ἀναγκαίοις. ὃ δὴ καὶ μάλιστα φασὶ τὸν φιλόσοφον Ἀρίστωνα θαυμάζειν, ὅτι τοὺς τὰ περιττὰ κεκτημένους μᾶλλον ἠγοῦνται μακαρίους ἢ τοὺς
 4 τῶν ἀναγκαίων καὶ χρησίμων εὐποροῦντας. Σκόπας δὲ ὁ Θετταλὸς αἰτουμένου τινὸς τῶν φίλων

MARCUS CATO

XVIII. Cato was rather bitterly censured for his treatment of Lucius, the brother of Scipio, whom, though he had achieved the honour of a triumph, he expelled from the equestrian order. He was thought to have done this as an insult to the memory of Scipio Africanus. But he was most obnoxious to the majority of his enemies because he lopped off extravagance in living. This could not be done away with outright, since most of the people were already infected and corrupted by it, and so he took a roundabout way. He had all apparel, equipages, jewellery, furniture and plate, the value of which in any case exceeded fifteen hundred drachmas, assessed at ten times its worth, wishing by means of larger assessments to make the owners' taxes also larger. Then he laid a tax of three on every thousand asses thus assessed, in order that such property holders, burdened by their charges, and seeing that people of equal wealth who led modest and simple lives paid less into the public treasury, might desist from their extravagance. As a result, both classes were incensed against him, both those who endured the taxes for the sake of their luxury, and those no less who put away their luxury because of the taxes. For most men think themselves robbed of their wealth if they are prevented from displaying it, and that display of it is made in the superfluities, not in the necessities of life. This, we are told, is what most astonished Ariston the philosopher, namely, that those possessed of the superfluities of life should be counted happy, rather than those well provided with life's necessary and useful things. Scopas the Thessalian, when one of his friends asked for something of his which

παρ' αὐτοῦ τι τοιοῦτον, ὃ μὴ σφόδρα ἦν χρήσιμον 347
 ἐκείνῳ, καὶ λέγοντος, ὡς οὐδὲν αἰτεῖ τῶν ἀναγ-καίων καὶ χρησίμῳ "Καὶ μὴν ἐγὼ τούτοις," εἶπεν, "εὐδαίμων καὶ πλούσιός εἰμι, τοῖς ἀχρήστοῖς καὶ περιττοῖς." οὕτως ὁ τοῦ πλούτου ζήλος οὐδενὶ πάθει φυσικῶ συνημμένος ἐκ τῆς
 ὀχλώδους καὶ θυραίου δόξης ἐπεισῳδός ἐστιν.

XIX. Οὐ μὴν ἀλλὰ τῶν ἐγκαλούντων ἐλάχιστα
 φροντίζων ὁ Κάτων ἔτι μᾶλλον ἐπέτεινε, ἀποκόπτων μὲν ὀχετούς, οἷς τὸ παραρρέον δημόσιον
 ὕδωρ ὑπολαμβάνοντες ἀπήγον εἰς οἰκίας ἰδίας
 καὶ κήπους, ἀνατρέπων δὲ καὶ καταβάλλων
 ὅσα προὔβαινε εἰς τὸ δημόσιον οἰκοδομήματα, συστέλλων δὲ τοῖς μισθοῖς τὰς ἐργολαβίας, τὰ
 δὲ τέλη ταῖς πράσεσιν ἐπὶ τὰς ἐσχάτας ἐλαύνων
 2 τιμάς. ἀφ' ὧν αὐτῷ πολὺ συνήχθη μῖσος. οἱ
 δὲ περὶ τὸν Τίτον συστάντες ἐπ' αὐτὸν ἐν τε
 τῇ βουλῇ τὰς γεγενημένας ἐκδόσεις καὶ μισθώσεις
 τῶν ἱερῶν καὶ δημοσίων ἔργων ἔλυσαν ὡς γεγενημένας ἀλυσιτελῶς, καὶ τῶν δημάρχων τοὺς θρασυτάτους παρώξυναν ἐν δήμῳ προσκαλέσασθαι τὸν Κάτωνα καὶ ζημιῶσαι δυσι ταλάν-τοις. πολλὰ δὲ καὶ πρὸς τὴν τῆς βασιλικῆς
 κατασκευὴν ἠναντιώθησαν, ἣν ἐκεῖνος ἐκ χρημάτων κοινῶν ὑπὸ τὸ βουλευτήριον τῇ ἀγορᾷ
 παρέβαλε καὶ Πορκία βασιλικὴ προσηγορεύθη.¹ 3 Φαίνεται δὲ θαυμαστῶς ἀποδεξάμενος αὐτοῦ
 τὴν τιμητείαν ὁ δῆμος. ἀνδριάντα γοῦν ἀναθεὶς
 ἐν τῷ ναῷ τῆς Ἑγείας ἐπέγραψεν οὐ τὰς

¹ Πορκία βασιλικὴ προσηγορεύθη Sintenis with the better MSS., and now S. Cf. Livy 39, 44. Πορκίαν βασιλικὴν προσηγόρευσεν Bekker (and called).

MARCUS CATO

was of no great service to him, with the remark that he asked for nothing that was necessary and useful, replied: "And yet my wealth and happiness are based on just such useless and superfluous things." Thus the desire for wealth is no natural adjunct of the soul, but is imposed upon it by the false opinions of the outside world.

XIX. However, Cato paid not the slightest heed to his accusers, but grew still more strict. He cut off the pipes by which people conveyed part of the public water supply into their private houses and gardens; he upset and demolished all buildings that enroached on public land; he reduced the cost of public works to the lowest, and forced the rent of public lands to the highest possible figure. All these things brought much odium upon him. Titus Flamininus headed a party against him which induced the Senate to annul as useless the outlays and payments which he had authorised for temples and public works, and incited the boldest of the tribunes to call him to account before the people and fine him two talents. The Senate also strongly opposed the erection of the basilica which he built at the public cost below the council-house in the Forum, and which was called the Basilica Porcia.

Still, it appears that the people approved of his censorship to an amazing extent. At any rate, after erecting a statue to his honour in the temple of Health, they commemorated in the inscription στρατηγίας οὐδὲ τὸν θρίαμβον τοῦ Κάτωνος, ἀλλ', ὡς ἂν τις μεταφράσειε τὴν ἐπιγραφὴν, "Ὅτι τὴν Ῥωμαίων πολιτείαν ἐγκεκλιμένην καὶ ῥέπουσαν ἐπὶ τὸ χεῖρον τιμητῆς γενόμενος χρησταῖς ἀγωγαῖς καὶ σώφροσιν ἐθισμοῖς καὶ διδασκαλίαις εἰς ὀρθὸν αὐθις ἀποκατέστησε."

4 καίτοι πρότερον αὐτὸς κατεγέλα τῶν ἀγαπώντων τὰ τοιαῦτα, καὶ λανθάνειν αὐτοὺς ἔλεγεν ἐπὶ χαλκῶν καὶ ζωγράφων ἔργοις μέγα φρονούντας, αὐτοῦ δὲ καλλίστας εἰκόνας ἐν ταῖς ψυχαῖς περιφέρειν τοὺς πολίτας· πρὸς δὲ τοὺς θαυμάζοντας, ὅτι πολλῶν ἀδόξων ἀνδριάντας ἔχόντων ἐκεῖνος οὐκ ἔχει "Μᾶλλον γάρ," ἔφη, "βούλομαι ζητεῖσθαι, διὰ τί μου ἀνδριάς οὐ κείται ἢ διὰ

5 τί κείται;" τὸ δ' ὅλον οὐδ' ἐπαινούμενον ἤξιον τὸν ἀγαθὸν πολίτην ὑπομένειν, εἰ μὴ τοῦτο χρησίμως γίνοιτο τῷ κοινῷ.

Καίτοι¹ πλείστα πάντων ἑαυτὸν ἐγκεκωμίακεν, ὅς γε καὶ τοὺς ἀμαρτίνοντάς τι περὶ τὸν βίον, εἴτ' ἐλεγχομένους λέγειν φησίν, ὡς οὐκ ἄξιον ἐγκαλεῖν αὐτοῖς· οὐ γὰρ Κάτωνές εἰσι· καὶ τοὺς ἔνια μιμῆσθαι τῶν ὑπ' αὐτοῦ πραττομένων οὐκ ἐμμελῶς ἐπιχειροῦντας ἐπαριστέρους καλεῖσθαι

6 Κάτωνας· ἀφορᾶν δὲ τὴν βουλὴν πρὸς αὐτὸν ἐν τοῖς ἐπισφαλεστάτοις καιροῖς ὥσπερ ἐν πλῆθι πρὸς κυβερνήτην, καὶ πολλάκις μὴ παρόντος ὑπερτίθεσθαι τὰ πλείστης ἄξια σπουδῆς. ἂ δὲ παρὰ τῶν ἄλλων αὐτῷ μαρτυρεῖται· μέγα γὰρ ἔσχεν ἐν τῇ πόλει καὶ διὰ τὸν βίον καὶ διὰ τὸν λόγον καὶ διὰ τὸ γῆρας ἀξίωμα.

XX. Γέγονε δὲ καὶ πατὴρ ἀγαθὸς καὶ περι

¹ καίτοι conjecture of Blass : καί.

MARCUS CATO

upon it, not the military commands nor the triumph of Cato, but, as the inscription may be translated, the fact "that when the Roman state was tottering to its fall, he was made censor, and by helpful guidance, wise restraints, and sound teachings, restored it again." And yet, before this time he used to laugh at those who delighted in such honours, saying that, although they knew it not, their pride was based simply on the work of statuaries and painters, whereas his own images, of the most exquisite workmanship, were borne about in the hearts of his fellow citizens. And to those who expressed their amazement that many men of no fame had statues, while he had none, he used to say: "I would much rather have men ask why I have no statue, than why I have one." In short, he thought a good citizen should not even allow himself to be praised, unless such praise was beneficial to the commonwealth.

And yet of all men he has heaped most praises upon himself. He tells us that men of self-indulgent lives, when rebuked for it, used to say: "We ought not to be blamed; we are no Catos." Also that those who imitated some of his practices and did it clumsily, were called "left-handed Catos." Also that the Senate looked to him in the most dangerous crises as seafarers to their helmsman, and often, if he was not present, postponed its most serious business. These boasts of his are confirmed, it is true, by other witnesses, for he had great authority in the city, alike for his life, his eloquence, and his age.

XX. He was also a good father, a considerate

PLUTARCH'S LIVES

- γυναῖκα χρηστὸς ἀνὴρ καὶ χρηματιστῆς οὐκ
 εὐκαταφρόνητος οὐδ' ὡς τι μικρὸν ἢ φαῦλον ἐν παρέργῳ μεταχειρισάμενος τὴν τοιαύτην ἐπι-μέλειαν. ὄθεν οἶομαι δεῖν καὶ περὶ τούτων ὅσα
 καλῶς ἔχει διελθεῖν· γυναῖκα μὲν εὐγενεστέραν
 ἢ πλουσιωτέραν ἔγημεν, ἡγούμενος ὁμοίως μὲν
 ἀμφοτέρας ἔχειν βάρος καὶ φρόνημα, τὰς δὲ
 γενναίας αἰδουμένας τὰ αἰσχρὰ μᾶλλον ὑπηκόους
- 2 εἶναι πρὸς τὰ καλὰ τοῖς γεγαμηκόσι. τὸν δὲ
 τύπτοντα γαμέτην ἢ παιδα τοῖς ἀγιωτάτοις ἔλεγεν
 ἱεροῖς προσφέρειν τὰς χεῖρας. ἐν ἐπαίνῳ δὲ
 μείζονι τίθεσθαι τὸ γαμέτην ἀγαθὸν ἢ τὸ μέγαν
 εἶναι συγκλητικόν· ἐπεὶ καὶ Σωκράτους οὐδὲν
 ἄλλο θαυμάζειν τοῦ παλαιοῦ πλὴν ὅτι γυναικὶ
 χαλεπῇ καὶ παισὶν ὑποπλήκτοις χρώμενος ἐπι-εικῶς καὶ πρῶως διετέλεσε. γενομένου δὲ τοῦ
 παιδὸς οὐδὲν ἦν ἔργον οὕτως ἀναγκαῖον, εἰ μὴ τι
- 3 βρέφος καὶ σπαργανούσῃ. αὐτὴ γὰρ ἔτρεφεν
 ἰδίῳ γάλακτι· πολλάκις δὲ καὶ τὰ τῶν δούλων
 παιδάρια τῷ μαστῷ προσιεμένη κατεσκεύαζεν
 εὐνοίαν ἐκ τῆς συντροφίας πρὸς τὸν υἱόν. ἐπεὶ
 δὲ ἤρξατο συιέναι, παραλαβὼν αὐτὸς ἐδίδασκε
 γράμματα, καίτοι χαρίεντα δούλον εἶχε γραμματιστὴν ὄνομα Χίλωνα, πολλοὺς διδάσκοντα
- 4 παιδας. οὐκ ἠξίου δὲ τὸν υἱόν, ὡς φησιν αὐτός,
 ὑπὸ δούλου κακῶς ἀκούειν ἢ τοῦ ὠτὸς ἀνατείνεσθαι μανθάνοντα βράδιον, οὐδέ γε μαθήματος
 τηλικούτου τῷ δούλῳ χάριν ὀφείλειν, ἀλλ'
 αὐτὸς μὲν ἦν γραμματιστής, αὐτὸς δὲ νομοδι-

MARCUS CATO

husband, and a household manager of no mean talent, nor did he give only a fitful attention to this, as a matter of little or no importance. Therefore I think I ought to give suitable instances of his conduct in these relations. He married a wife who was of gentler birth than she was rich, thinking that, although the rich and the high-born may be alike given to pride, still, women of high birth have such a horror of what is disgraceful that they are more obedient to their husbands in all that is honourable. He used to say that the man who struck his wife or child, laid violent hands on the holiest of holy things. Also that he thought it more praiseworthy to be a good husband than a great senator, nay, there was nothing else to admire in Socrates of old except that he was always kind and gentle in his intercourse with a shrewish wife and stupid sons. After the birth of his son, no business could be so urgent, unless it had a public character, as to prevent him from being present when his wife bathed and swaddled the babe. For the mother nursed it herself, and often gave suck also to the infants of her slaves, that so they might come to cherish a brotherly affection for her son. As soon as the boy showed signs of understanding, his father took him under his own charge and taught him to read, although he had an accomplished slave, Chilo by name, who was a school-teacher, and taught many boys. Still, Cato thought it not right, as he tells us himself, that his son should be scolded by a slave, or have his ears tweaked when he was slow to learn, still less that he should be indebted to his slave for such a priceless thing as education. He was therefore

PLUTARCH'S LIVES

δίακτης, αὐτὸς δὲ γυμναστής, οὐ μόνον ἰκοντίζειν οὐδ' ὄπλομαχεῖν οὐδ' ἵππεύειν διδάσκων τὸν υἱόν, ἀλλὰ καὶ τῇ χειρὶ πύξ παίειν καὶ καῦμα καὶ ψύχος ἀνέχεσθαι καὶ τὰ δινώδη καὶ τραχύνοντα
 5 τοῦ ποταμοῦ διανηχόμενον ἀποβιάζεσθαι. καὶ τὰς ἱστορίας δὲ συγγράψαι φησὶν αὐτὸς ἰδίᾳ χειρὶ καὶ μεγάλοις γράμμασιν, ὅπως οἴκοθεν ὑπάρχουσι τῷ παιδί πρὸς ἐμπειρίαν τῶν παλαιῶν καὶ πατρίων ὠφελείσθαι· τὰ δ' αἰσχροῦ τῶν ῥημάτων οὐχ ἦττον εὐλαβεῖσθαι τοῦ παιδὸς παρόντος ἢ τῶν ἱερῶν παρθένων, ἃς Ἑστιάδας καλοῦσι· συλλούσασθαι δὲ μηδέποτε. καὶ τοῦτο κοινὸν ἔοικε Ῥωμαίων ἔθος εἶναι· καὶ γὰρ πενθεροὶ γαμβροῖς¹ ἐφυλάττοντο συλλούεσθαι, δυσωπούμενοι τὴν
 15 ἀποκάλυψιν καὶ γύμνωσιν. εἶτα μέντοι παρ' Ἑλλήνων τὸ γυμνοῦσθαι μαθόντες, αὐτοὶ πάλιν τοῦ καὶ μετὰ γυναικῶν τοῦτο πρᾶσσειν ἀναπεπλήκασιν τοὺς Ἕλληνας.

Οὕτω δὲ καλὸν ἔργον εἰς ἀρετὴν τῷ Κάτωνι πλάττοντι καὶ δημιουργοῦντι τὸν υἱόν, ἐπεὶ τὰ τῆς προθυμίας ἦν ἀμεμπτα καὶ δι' εὐφυΐαν ὑπήκουεν ἢ ψυχῇ, τὸ δὲ σῶμα μαλακώτερον
 7 ἄγαν καὶ κεκολασμένον τῆς διαίτης. ὁ δέ, καίπερ οὕτως ἔχων, ἀνὴρ ἀγαθὸς ἦν ἐν ταῖς στρατείαις, καὶ τὴν πρὸς Περσέα μάχην ἠγωνίσαστο λαμπρῶς Παύλου στρατηγούντος. εἶτα μέντοι τοῦ ξίφους ἐκκρουσθέντος ὑπὸ πληγῆς ἢ δι' ὑγρότητα τῆς

¹ πενθεροὶ γαμβροῖς Hercher and Blass, adopting the conjecture of Sintenis : πενθεροῖς γαμβροί.

MARCUS CATO

himself not only the boy's reading-teacher, but his tutor in law, and his athletic trainer, and he taught his son not merely to hurl the javelin and fight in armour and ride the horse, but also to box, to endure heat and cold, and to swim lustily through the eddies and billows of the Tiber. His History of Rome, as he tells us himself, he wrote out with his own hand and in large characters, that his son might have in his own home an aid to acquaintance with his country's ancient traditions. He declares that his son's presence put him on his guard against indecencies of speech as much as that of the so-called Vestal Virgins, and that he never bathed with him. This, indeed, would seem to have been a general custom with the Romans, for even fathers-in-law avoided bathing with their sons-in-law, because they were ashamed to uncover their nakedness. Afterwards, however, when they had learned from the Greeks their freedom in going naked, they in their turn infected the Greeks with the practice even when women were present.

So Cato wrought at the fair task of moulding and fashioning his son to virtue, finding his zeal blameless, and his spirit answering to his good natural parts. But since his body was rather too delicate to endure much hardship, he relaxed somewhat in his favour the excessive rigidity and austerity of his own mode of life. But his son, although thus delicate, made a sturdy soldier, and fought brilliantly under Paulus Aemilius in the battle against Perseus.¹ On that occasion his sword either was smitten from his hand or slipped from his

¹ Pydna, 168 B.C.

PLUTARCH'S LIVES

χειρὸς ἐξολισθόντος ἀχθεσθεῖς τρέπεται πρὸς
 τινας τῶν συνήθων, καὶ παραλαβὼν ἐκείνους
 αὐθις εἰς τοὺς πολεμίους ἐνέβαλε. πολλῶ δ'
 ἀγῶνι καὶ βία μεγάλη διαφωτίσας τὸν τόπον
 ἀνεύρε μόγις ἐν πολλοῖς σάγμασιν ὄπλων καὶ
 8 κατασσεσωρευμένων. ἐφ' ᾧ καὶ Παῦλος ὁ στρα-τηγὸς ἠγάσθη τὸ μειράκιον, καὶ Κάτωνος αὐτοῦ
 φέρεται τις ἐπιστολὴ πρὸς τὸν υἱὸν ὑπερφυῶς
 ἐπαινοῦντος τὴν περὶ τὸ ξίφος φιλοτιμίαν αὐτοῦ
 καὶ σπουδὴν. ὕστερον δὲ καὶ Παύλου θυγατέρα Τερτίαν ἐγγημεν ὁ νεανίας, ἀδελφὴν Σκηπίωνος, οὐχ ἦττον ἤδη δι' αὐτὸν ἢ τὸν πατέρα καταμιγνύμενος εἰς γένος τηλικούτου. ἡ μὲν οὖν περὶ τὸν
 υἱὸν ἐπιμέλεια τοῦ Κάτωνος ἄξιον ἔσχεν τέλος.

XXI. Οἰκέτας δὲ πολλοὺς ἐκτάτο, τῶν αἰχ-μαλώτων ὠνούμενος μάλιστα τοὺς μικροὺς καὶ δυναμένους ἔτι τροφὴν καὶ παιδευσιν ὡς σκύ-λακας ἢ πῶλους ἐνεγκεῖν. τούτων οὐδεὶς εἰσῆλ-θεν εἰς οἰκίαν ἑτέραν, εἰ μὴ πέμψαντος αὐτοῦ Κάτωνος ἢ τῆς γυναικός. ὁ δ' ἐρωτηθεὶς, τί
 πράττοι Κάτων, οὐδὲν ἀπεκρίνετο πλὴν ἀγνοεῖν.
 2 ἔδει δὲ ἢ πράττειν τι τῶν ἀναγκαίων οἰκοὶ τὸν
 δούλον ἢ καθεύδειν· καὶ σφόδρα τοῖς κοιμωμένοις
 ὁ Κάτων ἔχαιρε, πραστέρους τε τῶν ἐγγρηγορῶτων
 νομίζων καὶ πρὸς οτιοῦν βελτίονας χρῆσθαι τῶν
 δεομένων ὕπνου τοὺς ἀπολελαυκότας. οἰόμενος
 δὲ τὰ μέγιστα ραδιουργεῖν ἀφροδισίων ἔνεκα τοὺς
 δούλους ἔταξεν ὠρισμένου νομίσματος ὀμιλεῖν 349
 ταῖς θεραπαινίσιν, ἑτέρα δὲ γυναικὶ μηδένα πλη-σιάζειν.

MARCUS CATO

moist grasp. Distressed at this mishap, he turned to some of his companions for aid, and supported by them rushed again into the thick of the enemy. After a long and furious struggle, he succeeded in clearing the place, and found the sword at last among the many heaps of arms and dead bodies where friends and foes alike lay piled upon one another. Paulus, his commander, admired the young man's exploit, and there is still extant a letter written by Cato himself to his son, in which he heaps extravagant praise upon him for this honourable zeal in recovering his sword. The young man afterwards married Tertia, a daughter of Paulus and a sister of the younger Scipio, and his admission into such a family was due no less to himself than to his father. Thus Cato's careful attention to the education of his son bore worthy fruit.

XXI. He owned many domestics, and usually bought those prisoners of war who were young and still capable of being reared and trained like whelps or colts. Not one of his slaves ever entered another man's house unless sent thither by Cato or his wife, and when such an one was asked what Cato was doing, he always answered that he did not know. A slave of his was expected either to be busy about the house, or to be asleep, and he was very partial to the sleepy ones. He thought these gentler than the wakeful ones, and that those who had enjoyed the gift of sleep were better for any kind of service than those who lacked it. In the belief that his slaves were led into most mischief by their sexual passions, he stipulated that the males should consort with the females at a fixed price, but should never approach any other woman.

PLUTARCH'S LIVES

- 3 Ἐν ἀρχῇ μὲν οὖν ἔτι πένης ὦν καὶ στρατευόμενος πρὸς οὐδὲν ἔδυσκόλαινε τῶν περὶ δίαιταν, ἀλλ' αἰσχιστον ἀπέφαινε διὰ γαστέρα πρὸς οἰκέτην ζυγομαχεῖν. ὕστερον δὲ τῶν πραγμάτων ἐπιδιδόντων ποιούμενος ἐστίασεις φίλων καὶ συναρχόντων ἐκόλαζεν εὐθύς μετὰ τὸ δεῖπνον ἰμάντι τοὺς ἀμελέστερον ὑπουργήσαντας ὅτι οὖν ἢ
- 4 σκευάσαντας. αἰεὶ δέ τινα στάσιν ἔχειν τοὺς δούλους ἐμνηχανᾶτο καὶ διαφορὰν πρὸς ἀλλήλους, ὑπονοῶν τὴν ὁμόνοιαν αὐτῶν καὶ δεδοικώς. τοὺς δ' ἄξιον εἰργάσθαι τι θανάτου δόξαντες ἐδικαίου κριθέντας ἐν τοῖς οἰκέταις πᾶσιν ἀποθνήσκειν, εἰ καταγνωσθεῖεν.
- 5 Ἀπτόμενος δὲ συντονώτερον πορισμοῦ τὴν μὲν γεωργίαν μᾶλλον ἠγάετο διαγωγὴν ἢ πρόσοδον, εἰς δ' ἀσφαλῆ πράγματα καὶ βέβαια κατατιθέμενος τὰς ἀφορμὰς ἐκτάτο λίμνας, ὕδατα θερμά, τόπους κναφεύσιν ἀνειμένους, ἔργα πίσσια, χώραν¹ ἔχουσαν αὐτοφυεῖς νομὰς καὶ ὕλας, ἀφ' ὧν αὐτῷ χρήματα προσήει πολλὰ μὴδ' ὑπὸ τοῦ Διός, ὡς φησιν αὐτός, βλαβῆναι δυνα-
- 6 μένων. ἐχρήσατο δὲ καὶ τῷ διαβεβλημένῳ μάλιστα τῶν δανεισμῶν ἐπὶ ναυτικοῖς τὸν τρόπον τούτον. ἐκέλευε τοὺς δανειζομένους ἐπὶ κοινωνία πολλοὺς παρακαλεῖν, γενομένων δὲ πεντήκοντα καὶ πλοίων τοσοῦτων αὐτὸς εἶχε μίαν μερίδα διὰ Κουϊντίωνος ἀπελευθέρου τοῖς δανειζομένοις συμπραγματευομένου καὶ συμπλέοντος. ἦν δ' οὖν οὐκ εἰς ἅπαν ὁ κίνδυνος, ἀλλ' εἰς μέρος μικρὸν
- 7 ἐπὶ κέρδεσι μεγάλοις. ἐδίδου δὲ καὶ τῶν οἰκετῶν

¹ ἔργα πίσσια, χώραν Blass with S: ἐργατησίαν χώραν, productive land.

MARCUS CATO

At the outset, when he was still poor and in military service, he found no fault at all with what was served up to him, declaring that it was shameful for a man to quarrel with a domestic over food and drink. But afterwards, when his circumstances were improved and he used to entertain his friends and colleagues at table, no sooner was the dinner over than he would flog those slaves who had been remiss at all in preparing or serving it. He was always contriving that his slaves should have feuds and dissensions among themselves; harmony among them made him suspicious and fearful of them. He had those who were suspected of some capital offence brought to trial before all their fellow servants, and, if convicted, put to death.

However, as he applied himself more strenuously to money-getting, he came to regard agriculture as more entertaining than profitable, and invested his capital in business that was safe and sure. He bought ponds, hot springs, districts given over to fullers, pitch factories, land with natural pasture and forest, all of which brought him in large profits, and "could not," to use his own phrase, "be ruined by Jupiter." He used to loan money also in the most disreputable of all ways, namely, on ships, and his method was as follows. He required his borrowers to form a large company, and when there were fifty partners and as many ships for his security, he took one share in the company himself, and was represented by Quintio, a freedman of his, who accompanied his clients in all their ventures. In this way his entire security was not imperilled, but only a small part of it, and his profits were large.

PLUTARCH'S LIVES

τοῖς βουλομένοις ἀργύριον· οἱ δ' ἐωνοῦντο
 παῖδας, εἶτα τούτους ἀσκήσαντες καὶ διδάξαντες
 ἀναλώμασι τοῦ Κάτωνος μετ' ἐνιαυτὸν ἀπεδίδοντο. πολλοὺς δὲ καὶ κατεῖχεν ὁ Κάτων, ὅσην
 ὁ πλείστην διδοὺς ἐωνεῖτο τιμὴν ὑπολογιζόμενος.
 8 προτρέπων δὲ τὸν υἱὸν ἐπὶ ταῦτά φησιν οὐκ
 ἀνδρός, ἀλλὰ χήρας γυναικὸς εἶναι τὸ μειῶσαί τι
 τῶν ὑπαρχόντων. ἐκεῖνο δ' ἤδη σφοδρότερον
 τοῦ Κάτωνος, ὅτι θαυμαστὸν ἄνδρα καὶ θεῖον
 εἶπεῖν ἐτόλμησε πρὸς δόξαν, ὃς ἀπολείπει πλέον
 ἐν τοῖς λόγοις ὃ προσέθηκεν οὐ παρέλαβεν.

XXII. Ἦδη δὲ αὐτοῦ γέροντος γεγονότος
 πρέσβεις Ἀθήνηθεν ἦλθον εἰς Ῥώμην οἱ περὶ
 Καρνεάδην τὸν Ἀκαδημαῖκὸν καὶ Διογένη τὸν Στωϊκὸν φιλόσοφον, καταδίκην τινὰ παραιτησόμενοι τοῦ δήμου τῶν Ἀθηναίων, ἣν ἐρήμην
 ὄφλον Ὠρωπίων μὲν διωξάντων, Σικυωνίων δὲ
 καταψηφισαμένων, τίμημα ταλάντων πεντα-2 κοσίων ἔχουσαν. εὐθύς οὖν οἱ φιλολογώτατοι
 τῶν νεανίσκων ἐπὶ τοὺς ἄνδρας ἴεντο, καὶ συνη-σαν ἀκροώμενοι καὶ θαυμάζοντες αὐτούς. μί-λιστα δ' ἡ Καρνεάδου χάρις, ἧς δυνάμεις τε
 πλείστη καὶ δόξα τῆς δυνάμεως οὐκ ἀποδέουσα,
 μεγάλων ἐπιλαβομένη καὶ φιλανθρώπων ἀκροα-
 τηρίων ὡς πνεῦμα τὴν πόλιν ἠχῆς ἐνέπλησε.
 3 καὶ λόγος κατεῖχεν, ὡς ἀνὴρ Ἕλληνας εἰς ἑκπληξίαν
 ὑπερφυῆς πάντα κηλῶν καὶ χειρούμενος ἔρωτα

MARCUS CATO

He used to lend money also to those of his slaves who wished it, and they would buy boys with it, and after training and teaching them for a year, at Cato's expense, would sell them again. Many of these boys Cato would retain for himself, reckoning to the credit of the slave the highest price bid for his boy. He tried to incite his son also to such economies, by saying that it was not the part of a man, but of a widow woman, to lessen his substance. But that surely was too vehement a speech of Cato's, when he went so far as to say that a man was to be admired and glorified like a god if the final inventory of his property showed that he had added to it more than he had inherited.

XXII. When he was now well on in years, there came as ambassadors from Athens to Rome,¹ Carneades the Academic, and Diogenes the Stoic philosopher, to beg the reversal of a certain decision against the Athenian people, which imposed upon them a fine of five hundred talents. The people of Oropus had brought the suit, the Athenians had let the case go by default, and the Sicyonians had pronounced judgment against them. Upon the arrival of these philosophers, the most studious of the city's youth hastened to wait upon them, and became their devoted and admiring listeners. The charm of Carneades especially, which had boundless power, and a fame not inferior to its power, won large and sympathetic audiences, and filled the city, like a rushing mighty wind, with the noise of his praises. Report spread far and wide that a Greek of amazing talent, who disarmed all opposition by the magic of his eloquence, had infused a tremen-

¹ 155 B.C.

δεινὸν ἐμβέβληκε τοῖς νέοις, ὑφ' οὗ τῶν ἄλλων ἡδονῶν καὶ διατριβῶν ἐκπεσόντες ἐνθουσιῶσι περὶ φιλοσοφίαν. ταῦτα τοῖς μὲν ἄλλοις ἤρεσκε Ῥωμαίοις γινόμενα, καὶ τὰ μεράκια παιδείας Ἑλληνικῆς μεταλαμβάνοντα καὶ συνόντα θαυμα-4 ζόμενοις ἀνδράσιν ἡδέως ἐώρων· ὁ δὲ Κάτων ἐξ ἀρχῆς τε τοῦ ζήλου τῶν λόγων παραρρέοντας εἰς τὴν πόλιν ἤχθετο φοβούμενος, μὴ τὸ φιλό-τιμον ἐνταῦθα τρέψαντες οἱ νέοι τὴν ἐπὶ τῷ λέγειν δόξαν ἀγαπήσωσι μᾶλλον τῆς ἀπὸ τῶν ἔργων καὶ τῶν στρατειῶν, ἐπεὶ δὲ προὔβαινεν ἢ δόξα τῶν φιλοσόφων ἐν τῇ πόλει καὶ τοὺς πρῶτους λόγους αὐτῶν πρὸς τὴν σύγκλητον ἀνὴρ ἐπιφανῆς σπουδάσας αὐτὸς καὶ δεηθεὶς ἡρμήνευσε, Γάϊος Ἀκίλιος, ἔγνω μετ' εὐπρεπείας ἀποδιοπομπήσασθαι τοὺς φιλοσόφους ἅπαντας
 5 ἐκ τῆς πόλεως. καὶ παρελθὼν εἰς τὴν σύγκλη- 350
 τον ἐμέμψατο τοῖς ἄρχουσιν, ὅτι πρεσβεία κάθηται πολὺν χρόνον ἀπρακτος ἀνδρῶν, οἱ περὶ παντὸς οὐ βούλονται ῥαδίως πείθειν δύνανται· δεῖν οὖν τὴν ταχίστην γνῶναί τι καὶ ψηφίσασθαι περὶ τῆς πρεσβείας, ὅπως οὗτοι μὲν ἐπὶ τὰς σχολὰς τραπόμενοι διαλέγονται παισὶν Ἑλλήνων, οἱ δὲ Ῥωμαίων νέοι τῶν νόμων καὶ τῶν ἀρχόντων ὡς προτέρον ἀκούωσι.

XXIII. Ταῦτα δ' οὐχ, ὡς ἔνιοι νομίζουσι, Καρνεάδῃ δυσχεράνας ἔπραξεν, ἀλλ' ὅλως φιλοσοφία προσκεκρουκῶς καὶ πᾶσαν Ἑλληνικὴν μούσαν καὶ παιδείαν ὑπὸ φιλοτιμίας προπηλακίζων, ὅς γε καὶ Σωκράτη φησὶ λάλον καὶ βίαιον γενόμενον ἐπιχειρεῖν, ᾧ τρόπῳ δυνατὸς ἦν, τυραννεῖν τῆς πατρίδος, καταλύοντα τὰ ἔθνη καὶ πρὸς

MARCUS CATO

dous passion into the youth of the city, in consequence of which they forsook their other pleasures and pursuits and were "possessed" about philosophy. The other Romans were pleased at this, and glad to see their young men lay hold of Greek culture and consort with such admirable men. But Cato, at the very outset, when this zeal for discussion came pouring into the city, was distressed, fearing lest the young men, by giving this direction to their ambition, should come to love a reputation based on mere words more than one achieved by martial deeds. And when the fame of the visiting philosophers rose yet higher in the city, and their first speeches before the Senate were interpreted, at his own instance and request, by so conspicuous a man as Gaius Acilius, Cato determined, on some decent pretext or other, to rid and purge the city of them all. So he rose in the Senate and censured the magistrates for keeping in such long suspense an embassy composed of men who could easily secure anything they wished, so persuasive were they. "We ought," he said, "to make up our minds one way or another, and vote on what the embassy proposes, in order that these men may return to their schools and lecture to the sons of Greece, while the youth of Rome give ear to their laws and magistrates, as heretofore."

XXIII. This he did, not, as some think, out of personal hostility to Carneades, but because he was wholly averse to philosophy, and made mock of all Greek culture and training, out of patriotic zeal. He says, for instance, that Socrates was a mighty prattler, who attempted, as best he could, to be his country's tyrant, by abolishing its customs,

PLUTARCH'S LIVES

ἐναντίας τοῖς νόμοις δόξας ἔλκοντα καὶ μεθιστάντα
 2 τοὺς πολίτας. τὴν δ' Ἴσοκράτους διατριβὴν ἐπισκώπτων γηρᾶν φησι παρ' αὐτῷ τοὺς μαθητὰς
 ὡς ἐν "Αἰδου παρὰ Μίνφ χρησομένους ταῖς
 τέχναις καὶ δίκας ἐρούντας. τὸν δὲ παῖδα διαβάλλων πρὸς τὰ Ἑλληνικὰ φωνῇ κέχρηται
 θρασυτέρα τοῦ γήρωσ, οἶον ἀποθεσπίζων καὶ
 προμαντεύων, ὡς ἀπολοῦσι Ῥωμαῖοι τὰ πράγματα
 3 γραμμάτων Ἑλληνικῶν ἀναπλησθέντες. ἀλλὰ
 ταύτην μὲν αὐτοῦ τὴν δυσφημίαν ὁ χρόνος
 ἀποδείκνυσι κενήν, ἐν ᾧ τοῖς τε πράγμασιν
 ἢ πόλις ἤρθη μεγίστη καὶ πρὸς Ἑλληνικὰ μαθήματα καὶ παιδείαν ἅπασαν ἔσχεν οἰκείως.

Ὁ δ' οὐ μόνον ἀπηχθάνετο τοῖς φιλοσοφοῦσιν
 Ἑλλήνων, ἀλλὰ καὶ τοὺς ἰατρούοντας ἐν Ῥώμῃ
 δι' ὑποψίας εἶχε. καὶ τὸν Ἴπποκράτους, ὡς
 ἔοικεν, ἀκηκοὼς λόγον, ὃν εἶπε τοῦ μεγάλου
 βασιλέως καλοῦντος αὐτὸν ἐπὶ πολλοῖς τισι
 ταλάντοις, οὐκ ἂν ποτε βαρβάρους Ἑλλήνων
 πολεμίους ἑαυτὸν παρασχεῖν, ἔλεγε κοινὸν ὄρκον
 4 εἶναι τοῦτον ἰατρῶν ἀπάντων, καὶ παρεκελεύετο φυλάττεσθαι τῷ παιδί πάντας· αὐτῷ δὲ γεγραμ-μένον ὑπόμνημα εἶναι, καὶ πρὸς τοῦτο θεραπεύειν
 καὶ διαιτᾶν τοὺς νοσοῦντας οἴκοι, νῆστιν μὲν οὐδέποτε διατηρῶν οὐδένα, τρέφων δὲ λαχάνοις ἢ σαρκιδίοις νήσσης ἢ φάσσης ἢ λαγῷ· καὶ γὰρ
 τοῦτο κούφον εἶναι καὶ πρόσφορον ἀσθενοῦσι,
 πλὴν ὅτι πολλὰ συμβαίνει τοῖς φαγοῦσιν ἐνυπνιαζεσθαι· τοιαύτη δὲ θεραπεία καὶ διαίτη χρώμενος ὑγιαίνειν μὲν αὐτός, ὑγιαίνοντας δὲ τοὺς ἑαυτοῦ διαφυλάττειν.

MARCUS CATO

and by enticing his fellow citizens into opinions contrary to the laws. He made fun of the school of Isocrates, declaring that his pupils kept on studying with him till they were old men, as if they were to practise their arts and plead their cases before Minos in Hades. And seeking to prejudice his son against Greek culture, he indulges in an utterance all too rash for his years, declaring, in the tone of a prophet or a seer, that Rome would lose her empire when she had become infected with Greek letters. But time has certainly shown the emptiness of this ill-boding speech of his, for while the city was at the zenith of its empire, she made every form of Greek learning and culture her own.

It was not only Greek philosophers that he hated, but he was also suspicious of Greeks who practised medicine at Rome. He had heard, it would seem, of Hippocrates' reply when the Great King of Persia consulted him, with the promise of a fee of many talents, namely, that he would never put his skill at the service of Barbarians, who were enemies of Greece. He said all Greek physicians had taken a similar oath, and urged his son to beware of them all. He himself, he said, had written a book of recipes, which he followed in the treatment and regimen of any who were sick in his family. He never required his patients to fast, but fed them on greens, or bits of duck, pigeon, or hare. Such a diet, he said, was light and good for sick people, except that it often causes dreams. By following such treatment and regimen he said he had good health himself, and kept his family in good health.

PLUTARCH'S LIVES

XXIV. Καὶ περὶ γε τοῦτο φαίνεται γεγρονῶς οὐκ ἀνεμέσητος· καὶ γὰρ τὴν γυναῖκα καὶ τὸν υἱὸν ἀπέβαλεν. αὐτὸς δὲ τῷ σώματι πρὸς εὐεξίαν καὶ ῥώμην ἀσφαλῶς πεπηγῶς ἐπὶ πλεῖστον ἀντείχεν, ὥστε καὶ γυναικὶ πρεσβύτης ὦν σφόδρα πλησιάζειν καὶ γῆμαι γάμον οὐ καθ' ἡλικίαν ἐκ τοιαύτης προφάσεως. ἀποβαλὼν τὴν γυναῖκα τῷ μὲν υἱῷ Παύλου θυγατέρα, Σκηπίωνος δὲ ἀδελφὴν ἠγάγετο πρὸς γάμον, αὐτὸς δὲ χηρεύων ἐχρήτο παιδίσκη
 2 κρύφα φοιτώσῃ πρὸς αὐτόν. ἦν οὖν ἐν οἰκίᾳ μικρᾷ νύμφην ἐχούσῃ τοῦ πράγματος αἴσθησις· καί ποτε τοῦ γυναιίου θρασύτερον παρασοβῆσαι παρὰ τὸ δωμάτιον δόξαντος ὁ νεανίας εἶπε μὲν οὐδέν, ἐμβλέψας δὲ πῶς πικρότερον καὶ διατραπείς οὐκ ἔλαθε τὸν πρεσβύτην. ὡς οὖν ἔγνω τὸ πρᾶγμα δυσχεραίνόμενον ὑπ' αὐτῶν, οὐδὲν ἐγκαλέσας οὐδὲ μεμψάμενος, ἀλλὰ καταβαίνων, ὥσπερ εἰώθει, μετὰ φίλων εἰς ἀγορὰν Σαλώνιον τινα τῶν ὑπογεγραμματοτευκότων αὐτῷ παρόντα καὶ συμπροπέμποντα μεγάλη φωνῇ προσαγορεύσας ἠρώτησεν,
 3 εἰ τὸ θυγάτριον συνήρμοκε νυμφίῳ. τοῦ δ' ἀνθρώπου φήσαντος, ὡς οὐδὲ μέλλει μὴ πρότερον ἐκείνῳ κοινωσάμενος “Καὶ μὴν ἐγὼ σοι,” φησὶν, 351
 “εὖρηκα κηδεστὴν ἐπιτήδειον, εἰ μὴ νῆ Δία τὰ τῆς ἡλικίας δυσχεραίνοιτο· τᾶλλα γὰρ οὐ μεμπτός ἐστι, σφόδρα δὲ πρεσβύτης.” ὡς οὖν ὁ Σαλώνιος ἐκέλευε ταῦτα φροντίζειν καὶ διδόναι τὴν κόρην ᾧ προαιρεῖται, πελάτιν οὖσαν αὐτοῦ καὶ δεομένην τῆς ἐκείνου κηδεμονίας, οὐδεμίαν ὁ

MARCUS CATO

XXIV. Such presumption on his part seems not to have gone unpunished, for he lost his wife and his son. He himself was well confirmed in bodily health and vigour, and long withstood the assaults of age. Even when an old man he was prone to indulge his sexual appetite, and at last married a wife when he was long past the marrying age. This was the way it came about. After the death of his wife, he married his son to the daughter of Aemilius Paulus, the sister of Scipio, but he himself, in his widowhood, took solace with a slave girl who secretly visited his bed. Of course, in a small house with a young married woman in it, the matter was discovered, and once, when the girl seemed to flaunt her way rather too boldly to his chamber, the old man could not help noticing that his son, although he said nothing, looked very sour, and turned away. Perceiving that the thing displeased his children, Cato did not upbraid or blame them at all, but as he was going down in his usual way to the forum with his clients, called out with a loud voice to a certain Salonius, who had been one of his under-secretaries, and was now in his train, asking him if he had found a good husband for his young daughter. The man said he had not, and would not do so without first consulting his patron. "Well then," said Cato, "I have found a suitable son-in-law for you, unless indeed his age should be displeasing; in other ways no fault can be found with him, but he is a very old man." Salonius at once bade him take the matter in charge and give the maid to the man of his choice, since she was a dependant of his and in need of his kind services. Then Cato, without any more

PLUTARCH'S LIVES

Κάτων ἀναβολὴν ποιησάμενος αὐτὸς ἔφη τὴν
 4 παρθένον αἰτεῖν ἑαυτῷ. καὶ τὸ μὲν πρῶτον, ὡς
 εἰκός, ὁ λόγος ἐξέπληξε τὸν ἄνθρωπον, πόρρω μὲν
 γάμου τὸν Κάτωνα, πόρρω δ' αὐτὸν οἰκίας
 ὑπατικῆς καὶ θριαμβικῶν κηδευμάτων τιθέμενον·
 σπουδῇ δὲ χρώμενον ὁρῶν ἄσμενος ἐδέξατο, καὶ
 καταβάντες εὐθύς εἰς ἀγορὰν ἐποιοῦντο τὴν ἐγγύην.

Πραττομένου δὲ τοῦ γάμου παραλαβὼν τοὺς
 ἐπιτηδεῖους ὁ υἱὸς τοῦ Κάτωνος ἠρώτησε τὸν
 πατέρα, μή τι μεμφόμενος ἢ λελυπημένος ὑπ'
 5 αὐτοῦ μητριαν ἐπάγεται. ὁ δὲ Κάτων ἀνα-βοήσας “Εὐφήμησον,” εἶπεν, “ὦ παῖ· πάντα
 γὰρ ἀγαστά μοι τὰ παρὰ σοῦ καὶ μεμπτὸν οὐδέν·
 ἐπιθυμῶ δὲ πλείονας ἑμαυτῷ τε παῖδας καὶ
 πολίτας τῇ πατρίδι τοιούτους ἀπολιπεῖν.” ταύτην
 δὲ τὴν γνώμην πρότερον εἰπεῖν φασὶ Πεισίστρατον τὸν Ἀθηναίων τύραννον ἐπιγήμεντα
 τοῖς ἐηλίκους παισὶ τὴν Ἀργολίδα Τιμόνασσαν,
 ἐξ ἧς Ἰοφῶντα καὶ Θεσσαλὸν αὐτῷ λέγουσι
 6 γενέσθαι. γήμεντι δὲ τῷ Κάτωνι γίνεται παῖς,
 ᾧ παρωνύμιον ἀπὸ τῆς μητρὸς ἔθετο Σαλώνιον.
 ὁ δὲ πρεσβύτερος υἱὸς ἐτελεύτησε στρατηγῶν.
 καὶ μέμνηται μὲν αὐτοῦ πολλῆς ἐν τοῖς βιβλίοις ὁ Κάτων ὡς ἄνδρὸς ἀγαθοῦ γεγονότος,
 πράως δὲ καὶ φιλοσόφως λέγεται τὴν συμφορὰν
 ἐνεγκεῖν καὶ μηδὲν ἀμβλύτερος δι' αὐτὴν εἰς
 7 τὰ πολιτικὰ γενέσθαι. οὐ γάρ, ὡς Λεύκιος Δούκουλλος ὕστερον καὶ Μέτελλος ὁ Πίος, ἐξέκαμιν ὑπὸ γῆρας πρὸς τὰ δημόσια, λειτουρ-
 γίαν τὴν πολιτείαν ἠγούμενος, οὐδ' ὡς πρότερον
 Σκηπίων ὁ Ἀφρικανὸς διὰ τὸν ἀντικρούσαντα

MARCUS CATO

ado, said that he asked the damsel to wife for himself. At first, as was natural, the proposal amazed the man, who counted Cato far past marriage, and himself far beneath alliance with a house of consular dignity and triumphal honours; but when he saw that Cato was in earnest, he gladly accepted his proposal, and as soon as they reached the forum the banns were published.

While the marriage was in hand, Cato's son, accompanied by his friends, asked his father if it was because he had any complaint to make against him that he was now foisting a step-mother upon him. "Heaven forbid! my son," cried Cato, "all your conduct towards me has been admirable, and I have no fault to find with you; but I desire to bless myself and my country with more such sons." However, they say that this sentiment was uttered long before by Peisistratus, the tyrant of Athens, who gave his grown up sons a step-mother in the person of Timonassa of Argolis, by whom he is said to have had Iophon and Thessalus. Of this second marriage a son was born to Cato, who was named Salonius, after his mother's father. But his elder son died in the praetorship. Cato often speaks of him in his books as a brave and worthy man, and is said to have borne his loss with all the equanimity of a philosopher, remitting not a whit because of it his ardour in the public service. For he was not, like Lucius Lucullus and Metellus Pius in after times, too enfeebled by old age to serve the people, regarding the service of the state as a burdensome duty; nor did he, like Scipio Africanus before him, because of envious attacks

PLUTARCH'S LIVES

πρὸς τὴν δόξαν αὐτοῦ φθόνου ἀποστραφεῖς τὸν δῆμον ἐκ μεταβολῆς ἐποιήσατο τοῦ λοιποῦ βίου 8 τέλος ἀπραγμοσύνην, ἀλλ', ὥσπερ Διονυσίου τις ἔπεισε κάλλιστον ἐντάφιον ἡγεῖσθαι τὴν τυραννίδα, κάλλιστον αὐτὸς ἐγγήραμα τὴν πολιτείαν ποιησάμενος ἀναπαύσεσιν ἐχρήτο καὶ παιδιαῖς, ὁπότε σχολάζοι, τῷ συντάττεσθαι βιβλία καὶ τῷ γεωργεῖν.

XXV. Συνετάττετο μὲν οὖν λόγους τε παντοδαπούς καὶ ἱστορίας· γεωργία δὲ προσεῖχε νέος μὲν ὧν ἔτι καὶ διὰ τὴν χρείαν (φησὶ γὰρ δυσὶ κεχρησθαι μόνοις πορισμοῖς γεωργία καὶ φειδοῖ), τότε δὲ διαγωγὴν καὶ θεωρίαν αὐτῷ τὰ γινόμενα κατ' ἀγρὸν παρέιχε. καὶ συντέτακται γε βιβλίον γεωργικόν, ἐν ᾧ καὶ περὶ πλακούντων σκευασίας καὶ τηρήσεως ὁπώρας γέγραφεν, ἐν παντὶ φι-
 2 λотиμούμενος περιττὸς εἶναι καὶ ἴδιος. ἦν δὲ καὶ τὸ δεῖπνον ἐν ἀγρῷ δαψιλέστερον· ἐκάλει γὰρ ἐκάστοτε τῶν ἀγρογειτόνων καὶ περιχώρων τοὺς συνήθεις καὶ συνδιήγεν ἰλαρῶς, οὐ τοῖς καθ' ἡλικίαν μόνοις ἠδὺς ὧν συγγενέσθαι καὶ ποθεινός, ἀλλὰ καὶ τοῖς νέοις, ἅτε δὴ πολλῶν μὲν ἔμπειρος πραγμάτων γεγονώς, πολλοῖς δὲ γράμμασι καὶ λόγοις ἀξίοις ἀκοῆς ἐντετυχηκώς.
 3 τὴν δὲ τράπεζαν ἐν τοῖς μάλιστα φιλοποιὸν ἡγεῖτο· καὶ πολλὴ μὲν εὐφημία τῶν καλῶν καὶ ἀγαθῶν πολιτῶν ἐπεισῆγετο, πολλὴ δ' ἦν ἀμνηστία τῶν ἀχρήστων καὶ πονηρῶν, μήτε ψόγῳ μήτ' ἐπαίνῳ πάροδοι ὑπὲρ αὐτῶν τοῦ Κάτωνος εἰς τὸ συμπόσιον δίδόντος.

XXVI. Ἐσχατον δὲ τῶν πολιτευμάτων αὐτοῦ

MARCUS CATO

upon his reputation, turn his back upon the people and make leisure his end and aim for the rest of his life; but rather, as someone persuaded Dionysius to regard his sovereignty as his fairest winding-sheet, so he held public service to be the fairest privilege of old age. For recreation and amusement, when he had leisure therefor, he resorted to the writing of books and to farming.

XXV. He composed speeches, then, on all sorts of subjects, and histories, and as for farming, he followed it in earnest when he was young and poor,—indeed, he says he then had only two ways of getting money, farming and frugality,—but in later life he was only a theoretical and fancy farmer. He also composed a book on farming,¹ in which he actually gave recipes for making cakes and preserving fruit, so ambitious was he to be superior and peculiar in everything. The dinners, too, which he gave in the country, were quite plentiful. He always asked in congenial country neighbours, and made merry with them, and not only did those of his own age find in him an agreeable and much desired companion, but also the young. For he was a man of large experience, who had read and heard much that was well worth repeating. He held the table to be the very best promoter of friendship, and at his own, the conversation turned much to the praise of honourable and worthy citizens, greatly to the neglect of those who were worthless and base. About such Cato suffered no table-talk, either by way of praise or blame.

XXVI. The last of his public services is supposed

¹ De re rustica.

τὴν Καρχηδόνος ἀνάστασιν οἴονται γεγονέναι, τῷ
 μὲν ἔργῳ τέλος ἐπιθέντος τοῦ νέου Σκηπίωνος, 352
 βουλῇ δὲ καὶ γνώμῃ μάλιστα τῇ Κάτωνος ἀρα-μένων τὸν πόλεμον ἐξ αἰτίας τοιαύσδε. Κάτων
 ἐπέμφθη πρὸς Καρχηδονίους καὶ Μασσανάσσην
 τὸν Νομάδα πολεμοῦντας ἀλλήλοις, ἐπισκεψό-μενος τὰς τῆς διαφορᾶς προφάσεις. ὁ μὲν γὰρ ἦν
 τοῦ δήμου φίλος ἀπ' ἀρχῆς, οἱ δ' ἐγεγόνεισαν ἔν-σπονδοι μετὰ τὴν ὑπὸ Σκηπίωνος ἦτταν, ἀφαι-
 ρέσει τε τῆς ἀρχῆς καὶ βαρεῖ δασμῶ χρημάτων
 2 κολουθέντες. εὐρῶν δὲ τὴν πόλιν οὐχ, ὡς ᾤοντο
 Ῥωμαῖοι, κεκακωμένην καὶ ταπεινὰ πράττουσαν,
 ἀλλὰ πολλῇ μὲν εὐανδρούσαν ἡλικία, μεγάλων
 δὲ πλούτων γέμουσαν, ὅπλων δὲ παντοδαπῶν
 καὶ παρασκευῆς πολεμιστηρίου μεστὴν καὶ μικρὸν
 οὐδὲν ἐπὶ τούτοις φρονούσαν, οὐ τὰ Νομάδων
 ᾤετο καὶ Μασσανάσσου πράγματα Ῥωμαῖους
 ᾧραν ἔχειν τίθεσθαι καὶ διαιτᾶν, ἀλλ' εἰ μὴ καταλήψονται πόλιν ἄνωθεν ἐχθρὰν καὶ βαρύθυμον ἠὲ ξημένην ἀπίστως, πάλιν ἐν τοῖς ἴσοις
 3 κινδύνοις ἔσεσθαι. ταχέως οὖν ὑποστρέψας ἐδί-δασκε τὴν βουλήν, ὡς αἰ πρότερον ἦτται καὶ
 συμφοραὶ Καρχηδονίων οὐ τοσοῦτον τῆς δυνάμεως
 ὅσον τῆς ἀνοίας ἀπαρύσασαι, κινδυνεύουσιν αὐτοὺς οὐκ ἀσθενεστέρους, ἐμπειροτέρους δὲ
 πολεμεῖν ἀπεργάσασθαι, ἤδη δὲ καὶ προανα-κινεῖσθαι τοῖς Νομαδικοῖς τοὺς πρὸς Ῥωμαῖους
 ἀγῶνας, εἰρήνην δὲ καὶ σπονδὰς ὄνομα τοῦ

MARCUS CATO

to have been the destruction of Carthage. It was Scipio the Younger who actually brought the task to completion,¹ but it was largely in consequence of the advice and counsel of Cato that the Romans undertook the war. It was on this wise. Cato was sent² on an embassy to the Carthaginians and Masinissa the Numidian, who were at war with one another, to inquire into the grounds of their quarrel. Masinissa had been a friend of the Roman people from the first, and the Carthaginians had entered into treaty relations with Rome after the defeat which the elder Scipio had given them. The treaty deprived them of their empire, and imposed a grievous money tribute upon them. Cato, however, found the city by no means in a poor and lowly state, as the Romans supposed, but rather teeming with vigorous fighting men, overflowing with enormous wealth, filled with arms of every sort and with military supplies, and not a little puffed up by all this. He therefore thought it no time for the Romans to be ordering and arranging the affairs of Masinissa and the Numidians, but that unless they should repress a city which had always been their malignant foe, now that its power was so incredibly grown, they would be involved again in dangers as great as before. Accordingly, he returned with speed to Rome, and advised the Senate that the former calamitous defeats of the Carthaginians had diminished not so much their power as their foolhardiness, and were likely to render them in the end not weaker, but more expert in war; their present contest with Numidia was but a prelude to a contest with Rome, while peace and treaty were mere names wherewith to

¹ 146 B.C.

² 150 B.C.

PLUTARCH'S LIVES

πολέμου τῇ μελλήσει κείσθαι καιρὸν περιμέ-νοντος.

- XXVII. Πρὸς τούτοις φασὶ τὸν Κάτωνα καὶ
σῦκα τῶν Λιβυκῶν ἐπίτηδες ἐκβαλεῖν ἐν τῇ
βουλῇ, τὴν τήβεννον ἀναβαλόμενον· εἶτα θαυμα-σάντων τὸ μέγεθος καὶ τὸ κάλλος εἰπεῖν, ὡς
ἢ ταῦτα φέρουσα χώρα τριῶν ἡμερῶν πλοῦν
ἀπέχει τῆς Ῥώμης. ἐκείνο δ' ἤδη καὶ βιαιότερον,
τὸ περὶ παντὸς οὐδὲν δῆποτε πράγματος γνώμην
ἀποφαινόμενον προσεπιφωνεῖν οὕτως· “Δοκεῖ δέ
μοι καὶ Καρχηδόνα μὴ εἶναι.” τούναντίον δὲ Πόπλιος Σκηπίων ὁ Νασικᾶς ἐπικαλούμενος
ἀεὶ διετέλει λέγων καὶ ἀποφαινόμενος· “Δοκεῖ
2 μοι Καρχηδόνα εἶναι.” πολλὰ γάρ, ὡς ἔοικεν, ἔβρει τὸν δῆμον ὀρώων ἤδη πλημμυλοῦντα καὶ
δι' εὐτυχίαν καὶ φρόνημα τῇ βουλῇ δυσκάθεκτον
ὄντα καὶ τὴν πόλιν ὄλην ὑπὸ δυνάμεως ὅπη ρέψειε ταῖς ὀρμαῖς βία συνεφελκόμενον, ἐβούλετο
τοῦτον γοῦν τὸν φόβον ὥσπερ χαλινὸν ἐπικεῖσθαι
σωφρονιστῆρα τῇ θρασύτητι τῶν πολλῶν, ἔλαττον
μὲν ἡγούμενος ἰσχύειν Καρχηδονίους τοῦ περιγενέσθαι Ῥωμαίων, μείζον δὲ τοῦ καταφρονεῖσθαι.
3 τῷ δὲ Κάτωνα τοῦτ' αὐτὸ δεινὸν ἐφαίνετο,
βακχεύοντι τῷ δήμῳ καὶ σφαλλομένῳ τὰ πολλὰ
δι' ἐξουσίαν πόλιν ἀεὶ μεγάλην, νῦν δὲ καὶ
νήφουσαν ὑπὸ συμφορῶν καὶ κεκολασμένην
ἐπικρέμασθαι καὶ μὴ παντάπασιν τοὺς ἔξωθεν
ἀνελεῖν τῆς ἡγεμονίας φόβους, ἀναφορὰς αὐτοῖς
πρὸς τὰς οἰκοθεν ἀμαρτίας ἀπολιπόντας.
4 Οὕτω μὲν ἐξεργάσασθαι λέγεται τὸν τρίτον
καὶ τελευταῖον ὁ Κάτων ἐπὶ Καρχηδονίους πόλε-

•MARCUS CATO

cover their postponement of war till a fit occasion offered.

XXVII. In addition to this, it is said that Cato contrived to drop a Libyan fig in the Senate, as he shook out the folds of his toga, and then, as the senators admired its size and beauty, said that the country where it grew was only three days' sail from Rome. And in one thing he was even more savage, namely, in adding to his vote on any question whatsoever these words: "In my opinion, Carthage must be destroyed." Publius Scipio Nasica, on the contrary, when called upon for his vote, always ended his speech with this declaration: "In my opinion, Carthage must be spared." He saw, probably, that the Roman people, in its wantonness, was already guilty of many excesses, and in the pride of its prosperity, spurned the control of the Senate, and forcibly dragged the whole state with it, whithersoever its mad desires inclined it. He wished, therefore, that the fear of Carthage should abide, to curb the boldness of the multitude like a bridle, believing her not strong enough to conquer Rome, nor yet weak enough to be despised. But this was precisely what Cato dreaded, when the Roman people was inebriated and staggering with its power, to have a city which had always been great, and was now but sobered and chastened by its calamities, for ever threatening them. Such external threats to their sovereignty ought to be done away with altogether, he thought, that they might be free to devise a cure for their domestic failings.

In this way Cato is said to have brought to pass the third and last war against Carthage,¹ but it had

¹ 151-146 B.C.

PLUTARCH'S LIVES

μον, ἀρξαμένων δὲ πολεμῆν ἐτελεύτησεν, ἀπο-θεσπίσας περὶ τοῦ μέλλοντος ἐπιθήσειν τῷ
 πολέμῳ τέλος ἀνδρός, ὃς ἦν τότε μὲν νεανίας, χιλιάρχος δὲ στρατευόμενος ἀπεδείκνυτο καὶ
 γνώμης ἔργα καὶ τόλμης πρὸς τοὺς ἀγῶνας.
 ἀπαγγελιομένων δὲ τούτων εἰς Ῥώμην πυνθανόμενον τὸν Κάτωνά φασιν εἰπεῖν·

οἶος πέπνυται, τοὶ δὲ σκιαὶ ἀΐσσουσι.

5 ταύτην μὲν οὖν τὴν ἀπόφασιν ταχὺ δι' ἔργων ἐβεβαίωσε ὁ Σκηπίων· ὁ δὲ Κάτων ἀπέλιπε
 γενεὰν ἓνα μὲν υἱὸν ἐκ τῆς ἐπιγαμηθείσης, ᾧ παρωνύμιον ἔφαμεν γενέσθαι Σαλώνιον, ἓνα δὲ
 υἱῶνδ' ἐκ τοῦ τελευτήσαντος υἱοῦ. καὶ Σαλώνιος
 μὲν ἐτελεύτησε στρατηγῶν, ὁ δ' ἐξ αὐτοῦ γενόμενος Μάρκος ὑπάτευσεν. ἦν δὲ πάππος οὗτος
 τοῦ φιλοσόφου Κάτωνος, ἀνδρὸς ἀρετῆ καὶ δόξης
 τῶν κατ' αὐτὸν ἐπιφανεστάτου γενομένου.

[ΑΡΙΣΤΕΙΔΟΥ ΚΑΙ ΚΑΤΩΝΟΣ ΣΥΓΚΡΙΣΙΣ]

I. Γεγραμμένων δὲ καὶ περὶ τούτων τῶν ἀξίων 353
 μνήμης, ὅλος ὁ τούτου βίος ὅλῳ τῷ θατέρῳ
 παρατεθεὶς οὐκ εὐθεώρητον ἔχει τὴν διαφορὰν
 ἐναφανίζομένην πολλαῖς καὶ μεγάλαις ὁμοίότησιν.
 εἰ δὲ δεῖ κατὰ μέρος τῇ συγκρίσει διαλαβεῖν
 ὥσπερ ἔπος ἢ γραφὴν ἐκάτερον, τὸ μὲν ἐξ οὐχ
 ὑπαρχούσης ἀφορμῆς εἰς πολιτείαν καὶ δόξαν

MARCUS CATO

no sooner begun than he died,¹ having first prophesied of the man who was destined to end it. This man was then young, but as tribune in the army, he was giving proofs of judgment and daring in his engagements with the enemy. Tidings of this came to Rome, and Cato is said to have cried on hearing them:—

“Only he has wits, but the rest are fluttering shadows.”²

This utterance of Cato's, Scipio speedily confirmed by his deeds. Cato left one son by his second wife, whose surname, as we have already remarked, was Salonius; and one grandson by the son who died before him. Salonius died in the praetorship, but the son whom he left, Marcus, came to be consul. This Marcus was the grandfather of Cato the philosopher, who was the best and most illustrious man of his time.

COMPARISON OF ARISTIDES WITH MARCUS CATO

Now that I have recorded the most noteworthy things in the careers of these men also, if one compare the entire life of the one with that of the other, it will not be easy to mark the difference between them, obscured as it is by many great resemblances. And even if, in our comparison, we analyse each life, as we would a poem or a picture, we shall find that the rise to political power and repute in consequence

¹ 149 B.C.

² Odyssey, x. 495.

PLUTARCH'S LIVES

ἀρετῇ καὶ δυνάμει προελθεῖν ἀμφοτέροις κοινόν
 2 ἔστι. φαίνεται δ' ὁ μὲν Ἀριστείδης οὐπω τότε
 μεγάλων οὐσῶν τῶν Ἀθηνῶν καὶ ταῖς οὐσίαις
 ἔτι συμμέτροις καὶ ὀμαλοῖς ἐπιβαλὼν δημαγω-γοῖς καὶ στρατηγοῖς ἐπιφανῆς γενέσθαι· τὸ γὰρ
 μέγιστον ἦν τίμημα τότε πεντακοσίων μεδίμνων,
 τὸ δὲ δεύτερον τριακοσίων, ἔσχατον δὲ καὶ τρίτον
 3 διακοσίων· ὁ δὲ Κάτων ἐκ πολίχνης τε μικρᾶς καὶ
 διαίτης ἀγροῖκου δοκούσης φέρων ἀφήκεν ἑαυτὸν
 ὥσπερ εἰς πέλαγος ἀχανὲς τὴν ἐν Ῥώμῃ πολιτείαν, οὐκέτι Κουρίων καὶ Φαβρικίων καὶ Ἀτιλιῶν
 ἔργον οὐσαν ἡγεμόνων, οὐδ' ἀπ' ἀρότρου καὶ
 σκαφείου πένητας καὶ αὐτουργοὺς ἀναβαίνοντας
 ἐπὶ τὸ βῆμα προσιεμένην ἄρχοντας καὶ δημαγωγοὺς, ἀλλὰ πρὸς γένη μεγάλα καὶ πλοῦτους καὶ
 νομὰς καὶ σπουδαρχίας ἀποβλέπειν εἰθισμένην,
 καὶ δι' ὄγκον ἤδη καὶ δύναμιν ἐντροφώσαν τοῖς
 4 ἄρχειν ἀξιοῦσιν. οὐκ ἦν δ' ὅμοιον ἀντιπάλῳ
 χρῆσθαι Θεμιστοκλεῖ μῆτ' ἀπὸ γένους λαμπρῷ
 καὶ κεκτημένῳ μέτρια (πέντε γὰρ ἢ τριῶν ταλάντων οὐσίαν αὐτῷ γενέσθαι λέγουσιν ὅτε πρῶτον ἤπτετο τῆς πολιτείας) καὶ πρὸς Σκηπίωνας
 Ἀφρικανοὺς καὶ Σερούιους Γάλβας καὶ Κοϊντίους Φλαμινίους ἀμιλλᾶσθαι περὶ πρωτείων, μηδὲν
 ὀρμητήριον ἔχοντα πλὴν φωνὴν παρρησιαζομένην
 ὑπὲρ τῶν δικαίων.

II. Ἐτι δ' Ἀριστείδης μὲν ἐν Μαραθῶνι καὶ
 πάλιν ἐν Πλαταιαῖς δέκατος ἦν στρατηγός, Κάτων δὲ δεύτερος μὲν ὑπάτος ἡρέθη πολλῶν
 ἀντιμετιόντων, δεύτερος δὲ τιμητῆς ἑπτὰ τοὺς
 ἐπιφανεστάτους καὶ πρῶτους ἀμιλλωμένους ὑπερβαλόμενος· καὶ μὴν Ἀριστείδης μὲν ἐν

COMPARISON OF ARISTIDES AND CATO

of innate excellence and strength, rather than of inherited advantages, is common to both. But in the case of Aristides, Athens was not yet great when he rose to eminence, and the leaders and generals with whom he dealt were men of moderate and uniform fortunes. The highest assessment of property in those days was five hundred bushels of grain, the second three hundred, the third and last two hundred. Whereas Cato, coming from a little town and from ways of life deemed rustic, plunged headlong into the boundless sea of Roman politics when they were no longer conducted by such men as Curius, Fabricius, and Atilius, nor welcomed as magistrates and leaders poor men who had mounted the rostrum after working with their own hands at the plough and the mattock, but were wont to have regard rather for great families and their wealth, largesses, and solicitations, while those who sought office, such was now the power and arrogance of the people, were wantonly handled. It was not the same thing to have Themistocles for a rival, who was of no illustrious family and had only moderate possessions (he is said to have been worth three, or, at most, five talents when he entered public life), as it was to compete for pre-eminence with such men as Scipio Africanus, Servius Galba, and Quintus Flaminius, having no other advantage than a tongue which spoke boldly for the right.

II. Besides, at Marathon, and again at Plataea, Aristides was only one of ten generals, while Cato was elected one of two consuls out of many competitors, and one of two censors over the heads of seven of the foremost and most illustrious Romans, who stood for the office with him. Furthermore,

- οὐδενὶ τῶν κατορθωμάτων γέγονε πρῶτος, ἀλλὰ Μιλτιάδης ἔχει τοῦ Μαραθῶνος τὸ πρωτεῖον, Θεμιστοκλῆς δὲ τῆς Σαλαμῖνος, ἐν δὲ Πλαταιαῖς φησιν Ἡρόδοτος ἀνελέσθαι καλλίστην νίκην
- 2 Πausανίαν, Ἀριστείδην δὲ καὶ τῶν δευτερείων ἀμφισβητοῦσι Σωφάναι καὶ Ἀμεινίαι καὶ Καλλίμαχοι καὶ Κυναίγειροι διαπρεπῶς ἀριστεύσαντες ἐν ἐκείνοις τοῖς ἀγῶσι· Κάτων δ' οὐ μόνον αὐτὸς ὑπατεύων ἐπρώτευσε καὶ χειρὶ καὶ γνώμῃ κατὰ τὸν Ἰβηρικὸν πόλεμον, ἀλλὰ καὶ χιλιάρχων περὶ Θερμοπύλας ὑπατεύοντος ἐτέρου τὴν δόξαν ἔσχε τῆς νίκης, μεγάλας ἐπ' Ἀντίοχον Ῥωμαίοις ἀναπετάσας κλεισιάδας καὶ πρόσω μόνον ὄρωντι τῷ βασιλεῖ περιστήσας κατὰ νότου τὸν πόλεμον.
- 3 ἐκείνη γὰρ ἡ νίκη περιφανῶς ἔργον οὔσα Κάτωνος ἐξήλασε τῆς Ἑλλάδος τὴν Ἀσίαν καὶ παρέσχευ ἐπιβατὴν αὐθις Σκηπίωνι.
- Πολεμοῦντες μὲν οὖν ἀήττητοι γέγονασιν ἀμφοτέρω, περὶ δὲ τὴν πολιτείαν Ἀριστείδης μὲν ἔπταισεν ἐξοστρακισθεὶς καὶ καταστασιασθεὶς ὑπὸ Θεμιστοκλέους, Κάτων δ', οἵπερ ἦσαν ἐν Ῥώμῃ δυνατώτατοι καὶ μέγιστοι, πᾶσιν, ὡς ἔπος εἰπεῖν, ἀντιπάλους χρώμενος καὶ μέχρι γήρως ὥσπερ ἀθλητῆς ἀγωνιζόμενος ἀπτῶτα διετήρησεν
- 4 ἑαυτὸν. πλείστας δὲ καὶ φυγῶν δημοσίας δίκας καὶ διώξας πολλὰς μὲν εἴλε, πάσας δ' ἀπέφυγε, πρόβλημα τοῦ βίου καὶ δραστήριον ὄργανον ἔχων τὸν λόγον, ᾧ δικαιότερον ἂν τις ἢ τύχη καὶ δαίμονι τοῦ ἀνδρὸς τὸ μηδὲν παθεῖν παρ' ἀξίαν ἀνατιθείη. μέγα γὰρ καὶ Ἀριστοτέλει τῷ 354

COMPARISON OF ARISTIDES AND CATO

Aristides was not the foremost man in any one of his victories, but Miltiades has the chief honour of Marathon, Themistocles of Salamis, and at Plataea, Herodotus¹ says it was Pausanias who won that fairest of all victories, while even for second honours Aristides has such rivals as Sophanes, Ameinias, Callimachus, and Cynaegeirus, who displayed the greatest valour in those actions. Cato, on the other hand, was not only chief in the plans and actions of the Spanish war during his own consulate, but also at Thermopylae, when he was but a tribune in the army and another was consul, he got the glory of the victory, opening up great mountain passes for the Romans to rush through upon Antiochus, and swinging the war round into the king's rear, when he had eyes only for what was in front of him. That victory was manifestly the work of Cato, and it not only drove Asia out of Hellas, but made it afterwards accessible to Scipio.

It is true that both were always victorious in war, but in politics Aristides got a fall, being driven into a minority and ostracised by Themistocles. Cato, on the contrary, though he had for his antagonists almost all the greatest and ablest men in Rome, and though he kept on wrestling with them up to his old age, never lost his footing. He was involved in countless civil processes, both as plaintiff and defendant; as plaintiff, he often won his case, as defendant, he never lost it, thanks to that bulwark and efficacious weapon of his life, his eloquence. To this, more justly than to fortune and the guardian genius of the man, we may ascribe the fact that he was never visited with disgrace. That was a great φιλοσόφῳ τούτῳ προσεμαρτύρησεν Ἀντίπατρος γράφων περὶ αὐτοῦ μετὰ τὴν τελευτήν, ὅτι πρὸς τοῖς ἄλλοις ὁ ἀνὴρ καὶ τὸ πιθανὸν εἶχεν.

¹ ix. 64.

III. "Ὅτι μὲν δὴ τῆς πολιτικῆς ἀνθρωπος ἀρετῆς οὐ κτᾶται τελειότεραν, ὁμολογούμενον ἔστι· ταύτης δέ που μόνον οἱ πλείστοι τὴν οἰκονομικὴν οὐ μικρὸν τίθενται· καὶ γὰρ ἡ πόλις οἴκων τι σύστημα καὶ κεφάλαιον οὔσα ῥώννυται πρὸς τὰ δημόσια τοῖς ἰδίῳ βίοις τῶν πολιτῶν εὐθενούντων, ὅπου καὶ Λυκούργος ἐξοικίσας μὲν ἄργυρον, 2 ἐξοικίσας δὲ χρυσὸν τῆς Σπάρτης, νόμισμα δὲ διεφθαρμένου πυρὶ σιδήρου θέμενος αὐτοῖς οἰκονομίας οὐκ ἀπήλλαξε τοὺς πολίτας, ἀλλὰ τὰ τρυφῶντα καὶ ὑπουλα καὶ φλεγμαίνοντα τοῦ πλούτου περιελών, ὅπως εὐπορήσωσι τῶν ἀναγκαίων καὶ χρησίμων ἅπαντες, ὡς ἄλλος οὐδεὶς νομοθέτης προὔνόησε, τὸν ἄπορον καὶ ἀνέστιον καὶ πένητα 3 σύνοικον ἐπὶ κοινωνίᾳ πολιτείας μᾶλλον τοῦ πλουσίου καὶ ὑπερόγκου φοβηθεῖς. φαίνεται τοίνυν ὁ μὲν Κάτων οὐδέν τι φαυλότερος οἴκου προστάτης ἢ πόλεως γενόμενος· καὶ γὰρ αὐτὸς ἠϋξῆσε τὸν αὐτοῦ βίον καὶ κατέστη διδάσκαλος οἰκονομίας καὶ γεωργίας ἑτέροις, πολλὰ καὶ χρήσιμα περὶ τούτων συνταξάμενος· Ἀριστείδης δὲ τῇ πενίᾳ καὶ τὴν δικαιοσύνην συνδιέβαλεν ὡς οἰκοφθόρον καὶ πτωχοποιὸν καὶ πᾶσι μᾶλλον ἢ τοῖς κεκτη- 4 μένοις ὠφέλιμον. καίτοι πολλὰ μὲν Ἡσίοδος

COMPARISON OF ARISTIDES AND CATO

tribute which was paid Aristotle the philosopher by Antipater, when he wrote concerning him, after his death, that in addition to all his other gifts, the man had also the gift of persuasion.

III. Man has no higher capacity than that for conducting cities and states, as is generally admitted. But the ability to conduct a household enters in no small degree into this higher political capacity, as most believe. For the city is but an organised sum total of households, and has public vigour only as its citizens prosper in their private lives. When Lycurgus banished both silver and gold from Sparta, and introduced there a coinage of iron that had been ruined by fire, he did not set his fellow citizens free from the duty of domestic economy. He merely removed the swollen and feverish wantonness of wealth, and so provided that all alike might have an abundance of the necessary and useful things of life. He did this because better than any other ancient legislator, he foresaw that the helpless, homeless, and poverty-stricken citizen was a greater menace to the commonwealth than one who was rich and ostentatious. Cato, then, was no whit less efficient in the conduct of his household than in that of the city. He not only increased his own substance, but became a recognized teacher of domestic economy and agriculture for others, and compiled many useful precepts on these subjects. Aristides, on the other hand, was so poor as to bring even his righteousness into disrepute, as ruining a household, reducing a man to beggary, and profiting everybody rather than its possessor. And yet Hesiod¹ has much to say by

¹ Works and Days, 309.

πρὸς δικαιοσύνην ἅμα καὶ οἰκονομίαν παρακαλῶν
ἡμᾶς εἶρηκε καὶ τὴν ἀργίαν ὡς ἀδικίας ἀρχὴν λελοιπόρηκεν, εὖ δὲ καὶ Ὀμήρῳ πεποιήται·

ἔργον δέ μοι οὐ φίλον ἦεν
οὐδ' οἰκωφελίη, ἣ τε τρέφει ἀγλαὰ τέκνα, ἀλλὰ μοι αἰεὶ νῆες ἐπήρετμοι φίλαι ἦσαν
καὶ πόλεμοι καὶ ἄκοντες εὐξέστοι καὶ οὔστοι·

ὡς τοὺς αὐτοὺς ἀμελοῦντας οἰκίας καὶ ποριζομέν-5 οὺς ἐξ ἀδικίας. οὐ γάρ, ὡς τοῦλαιον οἱ ἱατροί
φασι τοῦ σώματος εἶναι τοῖς μὲν ἐκτὸς ὠφελιμώ-
τατον, τοῖς δ' ἐντὸς βλαβερώτατον, οὕτως ὁ
δίκαιος ἐτέροις μὲν ἐστι χρήσιμος, αὐτοῦ δὲ καὶ
τῶν ἰδίων ἀκηδέης, ἀλλ' ἔοικε ταύτῃ πεπηρῶσθαι
τῷ Ἀριστείδῃ τὸ πολιτικόν, εἶπερ, ὡς οἱ πλείστοι
λέγουσιν, οὐδὲ προῖκα τοῖς θυγατρίοις οὐδὲ
6 ταφὴν αὐτῷ καταλιπέσθαι προϋνόησεν. ὅθεν ὁ μὲν Κάτωνος οἶκος ἄχρι γένους τετάρτου στρατηγούς καὶ ὑπάτους τῇ Ῥώμῃ παρέϊχε· καὶ γὰρ
υἱωνοὶ καὶ τούτων ἔτι παῖδες ἤρξαν ἀρχὰς τὰς
μεγίστας· τῆς δ' Ἀριστείδου τοῦ πρωτεύσαντος Ἑλλήνων γενεᾶς ἡ πολλὴ καὶ ἄπορος πενία τοὺς
μὲν εἰς ἀγυρτικοὺς κατέβαλε πίνακας, τοὺς δὲ δημοσίῳ τὰς χεῖρας ἐράνω δι' ἔνδειαν ὑπέχειν ἠνάγκασεν, οὐδεὶν δὲ λαμπρὸν οὐδὲν οὐδ' ἄξιον ἐκείνου
τοῦ ἀνδρὸς φρονῆσαι παρέσχεν.

IV. Ἡ τοῦτο πρῶτον ἀμφιλογίαν ἔχει; πενία
γὰρ αἰσχρὸν οὐδαμοῦ μὲν δι' αὐτήν, ἀλλ' ὅπου
δείγμα ῥαθυμίας ἐστίν, ἀκρασίας, πολυτελείας,

COMPARISON OF ARISTIDES AND CATO

way of exhorting us to righteousness allied with domestic economy, and abuses idleness as a source of injustice ; Homer also says well :—

“ Labour I never liked,
Nor household thrift, which breeds good children.
But ships equipped with oars were ever my delight,
Battles and polished javelins and arrows,”¹

implying that the men who neglect their households are the very ones to live by injustice. Oil, as physicians tell us, is very beneficial when externally applied, though very injurious when used internally. But the righteous is not so. He is not helpful to others, while heedless of himself and his family. Indeed, the poverty of Aristides would seem to have been a blemish on his political career, if, as most writers state, he had not foresight enough to leave his poor daughters a marriage portion,² or even the cost of his own burial. And so it fell out that the family of Cato furnished Rome with prætors and consuls down to the fourth generation, for his grandsons, and their sons after them, filled the highest offices of state. Whereas, though Aristides was foremost of the Greeks, the abject poverty of his descendants forced some to ply a fortune-teller's trade,³ and others, for very want, to solicit the public bounty, while it robbed them all of every ambition to excel, or even to be worthy of their great ancestor.

IV. Possibly this point invites discussion. Poverty is never dishonourable in itself, but only when it is a mark of sloth, intemperance, extravagance, or ¹ Odyssey, xiv. 222 ff., Palmer's translation.

² Aristides, xxvii. 1. ³ Aristides, xxvii. 3.

ἀλογιστίας, ἀνδρὶ δὲ σώφρονι καὶ φιλοπόνῳ καὶ
 δικαίῳ καὶ ἀνδρείῳ καὶ δημοσιεύοντι ταῖς ἀρεταῖς
 ἀπάσαις συνοῦσα μεγαλοψυχίας ἐστὶ καὶ μεγαλο-2 φροσύνης σημεῖον. οὐ γὰρ ἔστι πράττειν μεγάλα
 φροντίζοντα μικρῶν, οὐδὲ πολλοῖς δεομένοις
 βοηθεῖν πολλῶν αὐτὸν δεόμενον. μέγα δ' εἰς πολιτείαν ἐφόδιον οὐχὶ πλοῦτος, ἀλλ' αὐτάρκεια,
 τῷ μηδενὸς ἰδίᾳ τῶν περιττῶν δεῖσθαι πρὸς οὐ-δεμίαν ἀσχολίαν ἄγουσα τῶν δημοσίων. ἀπροσδεῆς μὲν γὰρ ἀπλῶς ὁ θεός, ἀνθρωπίνης δ' ἀρετῆς,
 ᾧ συνάγεται πρὸς τὸ ἐλάχιστον ἢ χρεῖα, τοῦτο
 3 τελειότατον καὶ θειότατον. ὥς γὰρ σῶμα τὸ 355
 καλῶς πρὸς εὐεξίαν κεκραμένον οὔτ' ἐσθῆτος οὔτε
 τροφῆς δεῖται περιττῆς, οὕτω καὶ βίος καὶ οἶκος
 ὑγιαίνων ἀπὸ τῶν τυχόντων διοικεῖται. δεῖ δὲ
 τῇ χρεῖᾳ σύμμετρον ἔχειν τὴν κτήσιν· ὥς ὁ γε
 πολλὰ συνάγων, ὀλίγοις δὲ χρώμενος οὐκ ἔστιν
 αὐτάρκης, ἀλλ' εἴτε μὴ δεῖται, τῆς παρασκευῆς ὧν
 οὐκ ὀρέγεται μάταιος, εἴτ' ὀρέγεται, μικρολογία
 κολούων τὴν ἀπόλαυσιν ἄθλιος.

Αὐτοῦ γέ τοι Κάτωνος ἠδέως ἂν πυθοίμην·
 4 εἰ μὲν ἀπολαυστὸν ὁ πλοῦτός ἐστι, τί σεμνύνη τῷ
 πολλὰ κεκτημένος ἀρκεῖσθαι μετρίοις; εἰ δὲ
 λαμπρόν ἐστιν, ὥσπερ ἐστίν, ἄρτῳ τε χρῆσθαι
 τῷ προστυχόντι καὶ πίνειν οἶνον ἐργάται πι-νουσι καὶ θεράποντες οἶνον καὶ πορφύρας μὴ
 δεηθῆναι μηδὲ οἰκίας κεκοιναμένης, οὐδὲν οὔτ'
 Ἀριστείδης οὔτ' Ἐπαμεινώνδας οὔτε Μάνιος
 Κούριος οὔτε Γάϊος Φαβρίκιος ἐνέλιπον τοῦ προσ-

COMPARISON OF ARISTIDES AND CATO

thoughtlessness. When, on the other hand, it is the handmaid of a sober, industrious, righteous, and brave man, who devotes all his powers to the service of the people, it is the sign of a lofty spirit that harbours no mean thoughts. It is impossible for a man to do great things when his thoughts are busy with little things; nor can he aid the many who are in need when he himself is in need of many things. A great equipment for public service consists, not in wealth, but in contented independence, which requires no private superfluities, and so puts no hindrance in the way of serving the commonwealth. God alone is absolutely free from wants; but that is the most perfect and god-like quality in human excellence which reduces man's wants to their lowest terms. For as a body which is well tempered and vigorous needs no superfluous food or raiment, so a healthy individual or family life can be conducted with the simplest outlays. A man should make his gains tally with his needs. He who heaps up much substance and uses little of it, is not contented and independent. If he does not need it, he is a fool for providing what he does not crave; and if he craves it, he makes himself wretched by parsimoniously curtailing his enjoyment of it.

Indeed, I would fain ask Cato himself this question: "If wealth is a thing to be enjoyed, why do you plume yourself on being satisfied with little when possessed of much?" But if it be a fine thing, as indeed it is, to eat ordinary bread, and to drink such wine as labourers and servants drink, and not to want purple robes nor even plastered houses, then Aristides and Epaminondas and Manius Curius and Gaius Fabricius were perfectly right in turning

ήκοντος, χαίρειν εύσαντες τήν κτήσιν ών τήν
 5 χρήσιν άπεδοκίμαζον. ού γάρ ην αναγκαίον άνθρώπω γογγυλίδας ήδιστον όψον πεποιημένω και
 δι' αύτου ταύτας έψοντι, ματτούσης άμα τής
 γυναικός άλφιτα, τοσαύτα περι άσσαρίου θρυλείν
 και γράφειν άφ' ης άν τις έργασίας τάχιστα
 πλούσιος γένοιτο. μέγα γάρ τό εύτελές και
 αύταρκες, ότι τής έπιθυμίας άμα και τής φρον-6 τίδος άπαλλάττει τών περιττών. διό και τουτό
 φασιν έν τή Καλλίου δίκη τόν 'Αριστείδην ειπέιν,
 ώς αισχύνεσθαι πενίαν προσήκει τοίς άκουσίως
 πενομένοις, τοίς δ', ώσπερ αύτός, έκουσίως, έγκαλλωπίζεσθαι. γελοϊον γάρ οϊεσθαι ραθυμίας ειναι
 τήν 'Αριστείδου πενίαν, ή παρήν αισχρόν είργασμένω μηδέν, άλλ' ένα σκυλεύσαντι βάρβαρον ή
 μίαν σκηνήν καταλαβόντι πλουσίω γενέσθαι.
 ταύτα μέν ουν περι τούτων.

V. Στρατηγίαι δέ αί μέν Κάτωνος ούδέν ώς
 μεγάλοις πράγμασι μέγα προσέθηκαν, έν δέ ταίς
 'Αριστείδου τά κάλλιστα και λαμπρότατα και
 πρώτα τών 'Ελληνικών έργων εστιν, ό Μαραθών,
 ή Σαλαμίς, αί Πλαταιαί. και ούκ άξιον δήπου
 παραβαλείν τή Ξέρξη τόν 'Αντίοχον και τά
 περιαιρεθέντα τών 'Ιβηρικών πόλεων τείχη ταίς
 2 τοσαύταις μέν έν γή, τοσαύταις δ' έν θαλάσση πεσούσαις μυριάσιν· έν οίς 'Αριστείδης έργω
 μέν ούδενός ελείπετο, δόξης δέ και στεφάνων,
 ώσπερ άμέλει πλούτου και χρημάτων, ύφήκατο
 τοίς μάλλον δεομένοις, ότι και πάντων τούτων διέφερεν.

COMPARISON OF ARISTIDES AND CATO

their backs on the gaining of what they scorned to use. Surely it was not worth while for a man who, like Cato, esteemed turnips a delectable dish and cooked them himself, while his wife was kneading bread, to babble so much about a paltry copper, and write on the occupation in which one might soonest get rich. Great is the simple life, and great its independence, but only because it frees a man from the anxious desire of superfluous things. Hence it was that Aristides, as we are told, remarked at the trial of Callias¹ that only those who were poor in spite of themselves should be ashamed of their poverty; those who, like himself, chose poverty, should glory in it. And surely it were ridiculous to suppose that the poverty of Aristides was due to his sloth, when, without doing anything disgraceful, but merely by stripping a single Barbarian, or seizing a single tent, he might have made himself rich. So much on this head.

V. The military campaigns of Cato made no great addition to the Roman empire, which was great already; but those of Aristides include the fairest, most brilliant, and most important actions of the Greeks, namely, Marathon, Salamis, and Plataea. And certainly Antiochus is not worthy to be compared with Xerxes, nor the demolition of the walls of the Spanish cities with the destruction of so many myriads of Barbarians both by land and sea. On these occasions Aristides was inferior to no one in actual service, but he left the glory and the laurels, as he did wealth and substance, to those who wanted them more, because he was superior to all these things also.

¹ Aristides, xxv. 5.

PLUTARCH'S LIVES

Εγὼ δ' οὐ μέμφομαι μὲν Κάτωνος τὸ μεγαλύ-
 νειν αἰεὶ καὶ πρῶτον ἑαυτὸν ἀπάντων τίθεσθαι
 καίτοι φησὶν ἔν τινι λόγῳ τὸ ἐπαινεῖν αὐτὸν
 ὥσπερ τὸ λοιδορεῖν ἄτοπον εἶναι· τελειότερος
 δέ μοι δοκεῖ πρὸς ἀρετὴν τοῦ πολλάκις ἑαυτὸν
 ἐγκωμιάζοντος ὁ μὴδ' ἑτέρων τοῦτο ποιούντων
 3 δέομενος. τὸ γὰρ ἀφιλότιμον οὐ μικρὸν εἰς
 πραότητα πολιτικὴν ἐφόδιον, καὶ τὸνναντίον
 ἢ φιλοτιμία χαλεπὸν καὶ φθόνου γονιμώτατον,
 ἧς ὁ μὲν ἀπήλλακτο παντάπασιν, ὁ δὲ καὶ
 πάνυ πολλῆς μετεῖχεν. Ἀριστείδης μὲν γε Θεμιστοκλεῖ τὰ μέγιστα συμπράττων καὶ τρόπον
 τινὰ τὴν στρατηγίαν αὐτοῦ δορυφορῶν ὄρθωσε
 4 τὰς Ἀθήνας, Κάτων δ' ἀντιπράττων Σκηπίωνι μικροῦ μὲν ἀνέτρεψε καὶ διελυμήνατο τὴν ἐπὶ Καρχηδονίους αὐτοῦ στρατηγίαν, ἐν ἧ τὸν ἀήτ-τητον Ἀννίβαν καθεῖλε, τέλος δὲ μηχανώμενος
 αἰεὶ τινὰς ὑποψίας καὶ διαβολὰς αὐτὸν μὲν
 ἐξήλασε τῆς πόλεως, τὸν δ' ἀδελφὸν αἰσχίστη
 κλοπῆς καταδίκη περιέβαλεν.

VI. Ἦν τοίνυν πλείστοις ὁ Κάτων κεκόσμηκε
 καὶ καλλίστοις ἐπαίνοις αἰεὶ σωφροσύνην Ἀριστείδης μὲν ἄθικτον ὡς ἀληθῶς καὶ καθαρὰν
 ἐτήρησεν, αὐτοῦ δὲ τοῦ Κάτωνος ὁ παρ' ἀξίαν
 ἅμα καὶ παρ' ὄραν γάμος οὐ μικρὰν οὐδὲ φαύλην
 εἰς τοῦτο διαβολὴν κατεσκεδάσε. πρεσβύτην 356
 γὰρ ἤδη τοσοῦτον ἐνηλίκῳ παιδὶ καὶ γυναικὶ
 νύμφη παιδὸς ἐπιγῆμαι κόρην ὑπηρετοῦ καὶ
 δημοσιεύοντος ἐπὶ μισθῷ πατρὸς οὐδαμοῦ καλόν,

COMPARISON OF ARISTIDES AND CATO

For my own part, I do not blame Cato for his constant boasting, and for rating himself above everybody else, although he does say, in one of his speeches, that self-praise and self-depreciation are alike absurd. But I regard the man who is often lauding himself as less complete in excellence than one who does not even want others to do so. Freedom from ambition is no slight requisite for the gentleness which should mark a statesman; and, on the contrary, ambition is harsh, and the greatest fomentor of envy. From this spirit Aristides was wholly free, whereas Cato was very full of it. For example, Aristides co-operated with Themistocles in his greatest achievements, and as one might say, stood guard over him while he was in command, and thereby saved Athens; while Cato, by his opposition to Scipio, almost vitiated and ruined that wonderful campaign of his against the Carthaginians, in which he overthrew the invincible Hannibal,¹ and finally, by perpetually inventing all sorts of suspicions and calumnies against him, drove him out of Rome, and brought down on his brother's head a most shameful condemnation for embezzlement.

VI. Once more, that temperance which Cato always decked out with the fairest praises, Aristides maintained and practised in unsullied purity; whereas Cato, by marrying unworthily and unseasonably, fell under no slight or insignificant censure in this regard. It was surely quite indecent that a man of his years should bring home as step-mother to his grown-up son and that son's bride, a girl whose father was his assistant and served the public for hire. Whether he did this merely for

¹ At Zama, 202 B.C.

PLUTARCH'S LIVES

ἀλλ εἴτε πρὸς ἡδονὴν ταῦτ' ἔπραξεν εἴτ' ὀργῇ
διὰ τὴν ἑταίραν ἀμυνόμενος τὸν υἱόν, αἰσχύνῃ
2 ἔχει καὶ τὸ ἔργον καὶ ἡ πρόφασις. ᾧ δ' αὐτὸς
ἐχρήσατο λόγῳ κατειρωνευόμενος τὸ μειράκιον,
οὐκ ἦν ἀληθής. εἰ γὰρ ἐβούλετο παῖδας ἀγαθοὺς
ὁμοίως τεκνῶσαι, γάμον ἔδει λαβεῖν γενναῖον
ἐξ ἀρχῆς σκεψάμενον, οὐχ ἕως μὲν ἐλάνθανεν
ἀνεγγύῳ γυναικὶ καὶ κοινῇ συγκοιμώμενος ἀγαπᾶν, ἐπεὶ δ' ἐφωράθη ποιήσασθαι πενθερόν,
ὄν ῥᾶστα πείσειν, οὐχ ᾧ κάλλιστα κηδεύσειν
ἔμελλεν.

COMPARISON OF ARISTIDES AND CATO

his own pleasure, or in anger, to punish his son for objecting to his mistress, both what he did and what led him to do it were disgraceful. And the sarcastic reason for it which he gave his son was not a true one. For had he wished to beget more sons as good, he should have planned at the outset to marry a woman of family, instead of contenting himself, as long as he could do so secretly, with the society of a low concubine, and when he was discovered, making a man his father-in-law whom he could most easily persuade, rather than one whose alliance would bring him most honour.

CIMON

ΚΙΜΩΝ

1. Περιπόλτας ὁ μάντις ἐκ Θετταλίας εἰς Βοιωτίαν Ὀφέλταν τὸν βασιλέα καὶ τοὺς ὑπ' αὐτῷ λαοὺς καταγαγὼν γένος εὐδοκιμήσαν ἐπὶ πολλοὺς χρόνους κατέλιπεν, οὐ τὸ πλεῖστον ἐν Χαιρωνείᾳ κατόκησεν, ἦν πρώτην πόλιν ἔσχον ἐξελάσαντες τοὺς βαρβάρους. οἱ μὲν οὖν πλεῖστοι τῶν ἀπὸ τοῦ γένους φύσει μάχιμοι καὶ ἀνδρώδεις γενόμενοι καταναλώθησαν ἐν ταῖς Μηδικαῖς ἐπιδρομαῖς καὶ τοῖς Γαλατικοῖς ἀγῶσιν ἀφειδήσαντες ἑαυτῶν.

2 λείπεται δὲ παῖς ὀρφανὸς γονέων, ὄνομα Δάμων, παρωνύμιον δὲ Περιπόλτας, πολὺ δὴ τι καὶ σώματος κάλλει καὶ ψυχῆς φρονήματι τοὺς καθ' αὐτὸν ὑπεραίρων νέους, ἄλλως δ' ἀπαίδευτος καὶ σκληρὸς τὸ ἦθος.

Τούτου Ῥωμαῖος ἡγεμὼν σπείρας τινὸς ἐν Χαιρωνείᾳ διαχειμαζούσης ἐρασθεὶς ἄρτι τὴν παιδικὴν ἡλικίαν παρηλλάχότος, ὡς οὐκ ἔπειθε πειρῶν καὶ διδούς, δῆλος ἦν οὐκ ἀφεξόμενος βίας, 479 ἄτε δὴ καὶ τῆς πατρίδος ἡμῶν τότε λυπρὰ πραττούσης καὶ διὰ μικρότητα καὶ πενίαν παρορωμένης.

3 τοῦτο δὴ δεδιὼς ὁ Δάμων, καὶ τὴν πείραν αὐτὴν δι' ὀργῆς πεπονημένος, ἐπεβούλευε τῷ ἀνδρὶ καὶ συνίστη τῶν ἡλικιωτῶν τινὰς ἐπ' αὐτὸν, οὐ πολλοὺς ἕνεκα τοῦ λαθεῖν, ἀλλ' οἱ σύμπαντες

CIMON

I. PERIPOLTAS the seer, who conducted King Opheltas with his subjects from Thessaly into Boeotia, left a posterity there which was in high repute for many generations. The greater part of them settled in Chaeroneia, which was the first city they won from the Barbarians. Now the most of this posterity were naturally men of war and courage, and so were consumed away in the Persian invasions and the contests with the Gauls, because they did not spare themselves. There remained, however, an orphan boy, Damon by name, Peripoltas by surname, who far surpassed his fellows in beauty of body and in vigour of spirit, though otherwise he was untrained and of a harsh disposition.

With this Damon, just passed out of boy's estate, the Roman commander of a cohort that was wintering in Chaeroneia fell enamoured, and since he could not win him over by solicitations and presents, he was plainly bent on violence, seeing that our native city was at that time in sorry plight, and neglected because of her smallness and poverty. Violence was just what Damon feared, and since the solicitation itself had enraged him, he plotted against the man, and enlisted against him sundry companions,—a few only, that they might escape notice. There were

PLUTARCH'S LIVES

- ἑκκαίδεκα γενόμενοι χρίονται μὲν αἰθάλῳ τὰ
 πρόσωπα νυκτός, ἐμπιόντες δὲ ἄκρατον ἅμ' ἡμέρα
 προσπίπτουσι τῷ Ῥωμαίῳ κατ' ἀγορὰν θύοντι,
 καὶ καταβαλόντες αὐτὸν τε καὶ τῶν περὶ αὐτὸν
 4 οὐκ ὀλίγους ἐκ τῆς πόλεως μετέστησαν. γενο-μένης δὲ ταραχῆς ἢ τῶν Χαιρωνέων βουλή
 συνελθοῦσα θάνατον αὐτῶν κατέγνω· καὶ τοῦτο
 ἦν ὑπὲρ τῆς πόλεως ἀπολόγημα πρὸς τοὺς Ῥω-μαίους. ἐσπέρας δὲ τῶν ἀρχόντων, ὥσπερ ἔθος
 ἐστί, κοινῇ δειπνούντων οἱ περὶ τὸν Δάμωνα
 παρειαπεσόντες εἰς τὸ ἀρχεῖον ἀπέσφαξαν αὐτοὺς
 καὶ πάλιν ὄχοντο φεύγοντες ἐκ τῆς πόλεως.
- 5 Ἔτυχε δὲ περὶ τὰς ἡμέρας ἐκείνας Λεύκιος Λούκουλλος ἐπὶ τινα πράξιν μετὰ δυνάμεως
 παρερχόμενος. ἐπιστήσας δὲ τὴν πορείαν καὶ
 τῶν γεγονότων προσφάτων ὄντων ἐξέτασιν ποιη-σάμενος εὔρε τὴν πόλιν οὐδενὸς αἰτίας, ἀλλὰ
 μᾶλλον συνηδικημένην· καὶ τοὺς στρατιώτας
 6 ἀναλαβὼν ἀπήγαγε μεθ' ἑαυτοῦ. τὸν δὲ Δάμωνα
 ληστείαις καὶ καταδρομαῖς πορθοῦντα τὴν χώραν
 καὶ τῇ πόλει προσκείμενον ὑπηγάγοντο πρεσβεΐαις καὶ ψηφίσμασι φιλανθρώποις οἱ πολῖται, κατελθόντα δὲ γυμνασίαρχον κατέστησαν· εἴτ'
 ἀλειφόμενον ἐν τῷ πυριατηρίῳ διέφθειραν. ἐπὶ
 πολὺν δὲ χρόνον εἰδώλων τινῶν ἐν τῷ τόπῳ προφαινομένων καὶ στεναγμῶν ἐξακουομένων, ὡς οἱ
 πατέρες ἡμῶν λέγουσι, τὰς θύρας ἀνφοδόμησαν
 τοῦ πυριατηρίου· καὶ μέχρι νῦν οἱ τῷ τόπῳ
 γειτνιῶντες οἴονταί τινας δῦφεις καὶ φωνὰς ταρα-
 7 χῶδεις φέρεσθαι. τοὺς δ' ἀπὸ τοῦ γένους αὐτοῦ (διασώζονται γὰρ ἔνιοι, μάλιστα τῆς Φωκίδος

CIMON

sixteen of them in all, who smeared their faces with soot one night, heated themselves with wine, and at daybreak fell upon the Roman while he was sacrificing in the market-place, slew him, together with many of his followers, and departed the city. During the commotion which followed, the council of Chaeroneia met and condemned the murderers to death, and this was the defence which the city afterwards made to its Roman rulers. But in the evening, while the magistrates were dining together, as the custom is, Damon and his men burst into the town-hall, slew them, and again fled the city.

Now about that time¹ it chanced that Lucius Lucullus passed that way, on some errand, with an army. Halting on his march and investigating matters while they were still fresh in mind, he found that the city was in no wise to blame, but rather had itself also suffered wrong. So he took its garrison of soldiers and led them away with him. Then Damon, who was ravaging the country with predatory forays and threatening the city, was induced by embassies and conciliatory decrees of the citizens to return, and was appointed gymnasiarch. But soon, as he was anointing himself in the vapour-bath, he was slain. And because for a long while thereafter certain phantoms appeared in the place, and groans were heard there, as our Fathers tell us, the door of the vapour-bath was walled up, and to this present time the neighbours think it the source of alarming sights and sounds. Descendants of Damon's family (and some are still living, especially near Stiris in περὶ Στεῖριν, αἰολίζοντες) ἀσβολωμένους καλοῦσι διὰ τὸ τὸν Δάμωνα πρὸς τὸν φόνον ἀσβόλω χρισάμενον ἐξελεῖν.

¹ 74 B.C. (?)

PLUTARCH'S LIVES

- II. Ἐπεὶ δ' ἀστυγείτονες ὄντες Ὀρχομένιοι καὶ διάφοροι τοῖς Χαιρωνεῦσιν ἐμισθώσαντο Ῥωμαϊκὸν συκοφάντην, ὁ δ' ὥσπερ ἑνὸς ἀνθρώπου τὸ τῆς πόλεως ὄνομα κατενεγκῶν ἐδίωκε φόνου τῶν ὑπὸ τοῦ Δάμωνος ἀνηρημένων, ἡ δὲ κρίσις ἦν ἐπὶ τοῦ στρατηγοῦ τῆς Μακεδονίας (οὐπω γὰρ εἰς τὴν Ἑλλάδα Ῥωμαῖοι στρατηγοὺς διεπέμ-
- 2 ποντο), οἱ λέγοντες ὑπὲρ τῆς πόλεως ἐπεκαλοῦντο τὴν Λουκούλλου μαρτυρίαν, γράψαντος δὲ τοῦ στρατηγοῦ πρὸς Λούκουλλον ἐκεῖνος ἐμαρτύρησε τάληθῆ, καὶ τὴν δίκην οὕτως ἀπέφυγεν ἡ πόλις κινδυνεύουσα περὶ τῶν μεγίστων. ἐκεῖνοι μὲν οὖν οἱ τότε σωθέντες εἰκόνα τοῦ Λουκούλλου λιθίνην ἐν ἀγορᾷ παρὰ τὸν Διόνυσσον ἀνέστησαν, ἡμεῖς δ', εἰ καὶ πολλαῖς ἡλικίαις λειπόμεθα, τὴν μὲν χάριν οἴομεθα διατείνειν καὶ πρὸς ἡμᾶς τοὺς
- 3 νῦν ὄντας, εἰκόνα δὲ πολὺ καλλίονα νομίζοντες εἶναι τῆς τὸ σῶμα καὶ τὸ πρόσωπον ἀπομιμουμένης τὴν τὸ ἦθος καὶ τὸν τρόπον ἐμφανίζουσαν, ἀναληψόμεθα τῇ γραφῇ τῶν παραλλήλων βίων τὰς πράξεις τοῦ ἀνδρός, τάληθῆ διεξιόντες. ἄρκει γὰρ ἡ τῆς μνήμης χάρις· ἀληθοῦς δὲ μαρτυρίας οὐδ' ἂν αὐτὸς ἐκεῖνος ἠξίωσε μισθὸν λαβεῖν ψευδῆ καὶ πεπλασμένην ὑπὲρ αὐτοῦ διήγησιν.
- 4 Ὡσπερ γὰρ τοὺς τὰ καλὰ καὶ πολλὴν ἔχοντα χάριν εἶδη ζωγραφοῦντας, ἂν προσῆ τι μικρὸν αὐτοῖς δυσχερές, ἀξιούμεν μῆτε παραλιπεῖν τοῦτο τελῶς μῆτε ἐξακριβοῦν· τὸ μὲν γὰρ αἰσχρὰν, τὸ δ' ἀνομοίαν παρέχεται τὴν ὄψιν· οὕτως, ἐπεὶ Phocis, Aeolians in speech) are called "Asbolomeni," or "Besooted," because Damon smeared himself with soot before he went forth to do his deed of murder.

CIMON

II. But the Orchomenians, who were neighbours and rivals of the Chaeroneians, hired a Roman informer to cite the city by name, as though it were an individual person, and prosecute it for the murder of the Roman soldiers who had been slain by Damon. The trial was held before the praetor of Macedonia (the Romans were not yet sending praetors to Greece), and the city's advocates invoked the testimony of Lucullus. Lucullus, when the praetor wrote to him, testified to the truth of the matter, and so the city escaped capital condemnation. Accordingly, the people who at that time were saved by him erected a marble statue of Lucullus in the market-place beside that of Dionysus. And we, though many generations removed from him, think that his favour extends even down to us who are now living; and since we believe that a portrait which reveals character and disposition is far more beautiful than one which merely copies form and feature, we shall incorporate this man's deeds into our parallel lives, and we shall rehearse them truly. The mere mention of them is sufficient favour to show him; and as a return for his truthful testimony he himself surely would not deign to accept a false and garbled narrative of his career.

We demand of those who would paint fair and graceful features that, in case of any slight imperfection therein, they shall neither wholly omit it nor yet emphasise it, because the one course makes the portrait ugly and the other unlike its original. In χαλεπόν ἐστι, μᾶλλον δ' ἴσως ἀμήχανον, ἀμεμφῆ

 καὶ καθαρὸν ἀνδρὸς ἐπιδείξαι βίον, ἐν τοῖς καλοῖς 480
 ἀναπληρωτέον ὥσπερ ὁμοιότητα τὴν ἀλήθειαν.
 5 τὰς δ' ἐκ πάθους τινὸς ἢ πολιτικῆς ἀνάγκης
 ἐπιτρεχούσας ταῖς πράξεσιν ἀμαρτίας καὶ κήρας
 ἐλλείμματα μᾶλλον ἀρετῆς τινος ἢ κακίας
 πονηρεύματα νομίζοντας οὐ δεῖ πάνυ προθύμως
 ἐναποσημαίνειν τῇ ἱστορίᾳ καὶ περιττῶς, ἀλλ'
 ὥσπερ αἰδουμένους ὑπὲρ τῆς ἀνθρωπίνης φύσεως,
 εἰ καλὸν οὐδὲν εἰλικρινὲς οὐδ' ἀναμφισβήτητον
 εἰς ἀρετὴν ἠθος γεγονὸς ἀποδίδωσιν.

III. Ὁ δ' οὖν Λούκουλλος ἐδόκει σκοποῦσιν
 ἡμῖν τῷ Κίμωνι παραβλητέος εἶναι. πολεμικοὶ
 γὰρ ἀμφοτέροι καὶ πρὸς τοὺς βαρβάρους λαμπροί, πρᾶοι δὲ τὰ πολιτικὰ καὶ μάλιστα τῶν ἐμφυλίων
 στάσεων ἀναπνοὴν ταῖς πατρίσι παρασχόντες,
 ἕκαστος δὲ τις αὐτῶν στήσαντες τρόπαια καὶ
 2 νίκας ἀνελόμενοι περιβοήτους. οὔτε γὰρ Ἑλ-λήνων Κίμωνος οὔτε Ῥωμαίων Λουκούλλου πρό-τερος οὐδεὶς οὕτω μακρὰν πολεμῶν προῆλθεν,
 ἕξω λόγου τιθεμένων τῶν καθ' Ἡρακλέα καὶ
 Διόνυσον, εἴ τέ τι Περσέως πρὸς Αἰθίοπας ἢ Μήδους καὶ Ἀρμενίου ἢ Ἰάσονος ἔργον ἀξιόπιστον ἐκ τῶν τότε χρόνων μνήμη φερόμενον εἰς
 3 τοὺς νῦν ἀφίκται. κοινὸν δὲ πῶς αὐτῶν καὶ τὸ
 ἀτελὲς γέγονε τῆς στρατηγίας, ἑκατέρου μὲν
 συντρίψαντος, οὐδετέρου δὲ καταλύσαντος τὸν
 ἀνταγωνιστὴν. μάλιστα δ' ἡ περὶ τὰς ὑποδοχὰς
 καὶ τὰς φιλανθρωπίας ταύτας ὑγρότης καὶ δαψί-λεια καὶ τὸ νεαρὸν καὶ ἀνειμένον ἐν τῇ διαίτη
 παραπλήσιον ἐπ' ἀμφοτέρων ἰδεῖν ὑπάρχει.

CIMON

like manner, since it is difficult, nay rather perhaps impossible, to represent a man's life as stainless and pure, in its fair chapters we must round out the truth into fullest semblance; but those transgressions and follies by which, owing to passion, perhaps, or political compulsion, a man's career is sullied, we must regard rather as shortcomings in some particular excellence than as the vile products of positive baseness, and we must not all too zealously delineate them in our history, and superfluously too, but treat them as though we were tenderly defending human nature for producing no character which is absolutely good and indisputably set towards virtue.

III. On looking about for some one to compare with Lucullus, we decided that it must be Cimon. Both were men of war, and of brilliant exploits against the Barbarians, and yet they were mild and beneficent statesmen, in that they gave their countries unusual respite from civil strifes, though each one of them set up martial trophies and won victories that were famous. No Hellene before Cimon and no Roman before Lucullus carried his wars into such remote lands, if we leave out of our account the exploits of Heracles and Dionysus, and whatever credible deeds of Perseus against the Aethiopians or Medes and Armenians, or of Jason, have been brought down in the memory of man from those early times to our own. Common also in a way to both their careers was the incompleteness of their campaigns. Each crushed, but neither gave the death blow to his antagonist. But more than all else, the lavish ease which marked their entertainments and hospitalities, as well as the ardour and laxity of their way of living, was conspicuous alike in both. Pos-παραλείπομεν δ' ἴσως καὶ ἄλλας τινὰς ὁμοιότητας, ἃς οὐ χαλεπὸν ἐκ τῆς διηγήσεως αὐτῆς συναγαγεῖν.

PLUTARCH'S LIVES

- IV. Κίμων ὁ Μιλτιάδου μητρὸς ἦν Ἡγησιπύλης, γένος Θράττης, θυγατρὸς Ὀλόρου τοῦ βασιλέως, ὡς ἐν τοῖς Ἀρχελαίου καὶ Μελαυθίου ποιήμασιν εἰς αὐτὸν Κίμωνα γεγραμμένοις ἰστόρηται. διὸ καὶ Θουκυδίδης ὁ ἱστορικὸς τοῖς περὶ Κίμωνα κατὰ γένος προσήκων Ὀλόρου τε πατρὸς ἦν, εἰς τὸν πρόγονον ἀναφέροντος τὴν ὁμωνυμίαν,
- 2 καὶ τὰ χρυσεῖα περὶ τὴν Θράκην ἐκέκτητο. καὶ τελευτήσαι μὲν ἐν τῇ Σκαπτῇ ὕλῃ (τοῦτο δ' ἔστι τῆς Θράκης χωρίου) λέγεται φονευθεὶς ἐκεῖ, μνήμα δ' αὐτοῦ τῶν λειψάνων εἰς τὴν Ἀττικὴν κομισθέντων ἐν τοῖς Κιμωνείοις δείκνυται παρὰ τὸν Ἐλπινίκης τῆς Κίμωνος ἀδελφῆς τάφον. ἀλλὰ Θουκυδίδης μὲν Ἀλιμούσιος γέγονε τῶν δήμων, οἱ δὲ περὶ τὸν Μιλτιάδην Λακιάδαι.
- 3 Μιλτιάδης μὲν οὖν πεντήκοντα ταλάντων ὀφλῶν δίκην καὶ πρὸς τὴν ἔκτισιν εἰρχθεὶς ἐτελεύτησεν ἐν τῷ δεσμοτηρίῳ, Κίμων δὲ μειράκιον παντάπασιν ἀπολειφθεὶς μετὰ τῆς ἀδελφῆς ἔτι κόρης οὔσης καὶ ἀγάμου τὸν πρῶτον ἠδόξει χρόνον ἐν τῇ πόλει καὶ κακῶς ἤκουεν ὡς ἄτακτος καὶ πολυπότης καὶ τῷ πάππῳ Κίμωνι προσεικῶς τὴν φύσιν, ὃν δι' εὐήθειάν φασι Κοάλεμον προσαγορευθῆναι.
- 4 Στησίμβροτος δ' ὁ Θάσιος περὶ τὸν αὐτὸν ὁμοῦ τι χρόνον τῷ Κίμωνι γεγονῶς φησιν αὐτὸν οὔτε μουσικὴν οὔτε ἄλλο τι μάθημα τῶν ἐλευθερίων καὶ τοῖς Ἑλλησιν ἐπιχωριαζόντων ἐκδιδαχθῆναι, δεινότητός τε καὶ στωμυλίας

CIMON

sibly we may omit still other resemblances, but it will not be hard to gather them directly from our story.

IV. Cimon was the son of Miltiades by Hegesipyle, a woman of Thracian stock, daughter of King Olorus, as it is stated in the poems of Archelaüs and Melanthius addressed to Cimon himself. That explains how it was that the father of Thucydides the historian—and Thucydides was connected with the family of Cimon—was also an Olorus, who referred his name back to that of the common ancestor, and also how it was that Thucydides had gold mines in Thrace.¹ And it is said that Thucydides died in Skapte Hylé, a place in Thrace, having been murdered there; but his remains were brought to Attica, and his monument is shown among those of Cimon's family, hard by the tomb of Elpinicé, Cimon's sister. However, Thucydides belonged to the deme of Halimus, the family of Miltiades to that of Laciadae.

Now Miltiades, who had been condemned to pay a fine of fifty talents and confined till payment should be made, died in prison, and Cimon, thus left a mere stripling with his sister who was a young girl and unmarried, was of no account in the city at first. He had the bad name of being dissolute and bibulous, and of taking after his grandfather Cimon, who, they say, because of his simplicity, was dubbed Coalemus, or Booby. And Stesimbrotus the Thasian, who was of about Cimon's time, says that he acquired no literary education, nor any other liberal and distinctively Hellenic accomplishment; that he lacked entirely the Attic cleverness and fluency

¹ Thuc. iv. 105.

PLUTARCH'S LIVES

Ἀττικῆς ὅλως ἀπηλλάχθαι, καὶ τῷ τρόπῳ πολὺ τὸ γενναῖον καὶ ἀληθὲς ἐνυπάρχειν, καὶ μᾶλλον εἶναι Πελοποννήσιον τὸ σχῆμα τῆς ψυχῆς τοῦ ἀνδρός, φαῦλον, ἄκομψον, τὰ μέγιστ' ἀγαθόν,

κατὰ τὸν Εὐριπίδειον Ἡρακλέα· ταῦτα γὰρ ἔστι τοῖς ὑπὸ τοῦ Στῆσιμβρότου γεγραμμένοις ἐπειπεῖν.

- 5 Ἔτι δὲ νέος ὦν αἰτίαν ἔσχε πλησιάζειν τῇ ἀδελφῇ. καὶ γὰρ οὐδ' ἄλλως τὴν Ἑλπινίκην εὐτακτὸν τινα γεγυῖναι λέγουσιν, ἀλλὰ καὶ πρὸς Πολύγνωτον ἐξαμαρτεῖν τὸν ζωγράφον· καὶ διὰ τοῦτό φασι ἐν τῇ Πεισιανακτεῖῳ τότε καλουμένῃ, Ποικίλῃ δὲ νῦν στοᾶ, γράφοντα τὰς 481 Τρωάδας τὸ τῆς Λαοδίκης ποιῆσαι πρόσωπον 6 ἐν εἰκόνι τῆς Ἑλπινίκης. ὁ δὲ Πολύγνωτος οὐκ ἦν τῶν βαναύσων οὐδ' ἀπ' ἐργολαβίας ἔγραφε τὴν στοάν, ἀλλὰ προῖκα, φιλοτιμούμενος πρὸς τὴν πόλιν, ὡς οἱ τε συγγραφεῖς ἱστοροῦσι καὶ Μελάνθιος ὁ ποιητῆς λέγει τὸν τρόπον τοῦτον·

Αὐτοῦ γὰρ δαπάναισι θεῶν ναοὺς ἀγοράν τε

Κεκροπῖαν κόσμησ' ἡμιθέων ἀρεταῖς.

- 7 εἰσὶ δ' οἱ τὴν Ἑλπινίκην οὐ κρύφα τῷ Κίμωνι, φανερώως δὲ γημαμένην συνοικῆσαι λέγουσιν, ἀξίου τῆς εὐγενείας νυμφίου διὰ τὴν πενίαν ἀποροῦσαν· ἐπεὶ δὲ Καλλίας τῶν εὐπόρων τις Ἀθήνησιν ἐραστὴς προσῆλθε τὴν ὑπὲρ τοῦ πατρὸς καταδίκην ἐκτίνειν ἔτοιμος ὦν πρὸς τὸ δημόσιον, αὐτὴν τε πεισθῆναι καὶ τὸν Κίμωνα τῷ Καλλίᾳ συνοικίσει τὴν Ἑλπινίκην.

CIMON

of speech ; that in his outward bearing there was much nobility and truthfulness ; that the fashion of the man's spirit was rather Peloponnesian, “ Plain, unadorned, in a great crisis brave and true,” as Euripides says of Heracles,¹ a citation which we may add to what Stesimbrotus wrote.

While he was still a youth he was accused of improper intercourse with his sister. And indeed in other cases too they say that Elpinicé was not very decorous, but that she had improper relations also with Polygnotus the painter, and that it was for this reason that, in the Peisianactium, as it was then called, but now the Painted Colonnade, when he was painting the Trojan women, he made the features of Laodicé a portrait of Elpinicé. Now Polygnotus was not a mere artisan, and did not paint the stoa for a contract price, but gratis, out of zeal for the welfare of the city, as the historians relate, and as Melanthius the poet testifies after this fashion :—

“ He at his own lavish outlay the gods' great fanes,
and the market

Named Cecropia, adorned ; demigods' valour his theme.”

Still, there are some who say that Elpinicé did not live with Cimon in secret intercourse, but openly rather, as his wedded wife, because, on account of her poverty, she could not get a husband worthy of her high lineage ; but that when Callias, a wealthy Athenian, fell in love with her, and offered to pay into the state treasury the fine which had been imposed upon her father, she consented herself, and Cimon freely gave Elpinicé to Callias to wife.

¹ Nauck, Trag. Graec. Frag., 473.

PLUTARCH'S LIVES

8 Οὐ μὴν ἀλλὰ καὶ ὅλως φαίνεται τοῖς περὶ τὰς γυναῖκας ἐρωτικοῖς ὁ Κίμων ἔνοχος γενέσθαι. καὶ γὰρ Ἀστερίας τῷ γένει Σαλαμινίας καὶ πάλιν Μνήστρας τινὸς ὁ ποιητῆς Μελάνθιος μνημονεύει πρὸς τὸν Κίμωνα παίζων δι' ἐλεγείας, 9 ὡς σπουδαζομένων ὑπ' αὐτοῦ. δῆλος δ' ἐστὶ καὶ πρὸς Ἴσοδίκην τὴν Εὐρυπτολέμου μὲν θυγατέρα τοῦ Μεγακλέους, κατὰ νόμους δ' αὐτῷ συμβιώσασαν ὁ Κίμων ἐμπαθέστερον διατεθεὶς καὶ δυσφορήσας ἀποθανούσης, εἴ τι δεῖ τεκμαίρεσθαι ταῖς γεγραμμέναις ἐπὶ παρηγορία τοῦ πένθους ἐλεγείαις πρὸς αὐτόν, ὧν Παναίτιος ὁ φιλόσοφος οἶεται ποιητὴν γεγονέναι τὸν φυσικὸν Ἀρχέλαον, οὐκ ἀπὸ τρόπου τοῖς χρόνοις εἰκάζων.

V. Τὰ δ' ἄλλα πάντα τοῦ ἥθους ἀγαστὰ καὶ γενναῖα τοῦ Κίμωνος. οὔτε γὰρ τόλμη Μιλτιάδου λειπόμενος οὔτε συνέσει Θεμιστοκλέους, δικαιότερος ἀμφοῖν ὁμολογεῖται γενέσθαι, καὶ ταῖς πολεμικαῖς οὐδὲ μικρὸν ἀποδέων ἀρεταῖς ἐκείνων ἀμήχανον ὅσον ἐν ταῖς πολιτικαῖς ὑπερβαλέσθαι 2 νέος ὧν ἔτι καὶ πολέμων ἄπειρος. ὅτε γὰρ τὸν δῆμον ἐπιόντων Μήδων Θεμιστοκλῆς ἔπειθε προέμενον τὴν πόλιν καὶ τὴν χώραν ἐκλιπόντα πρὸ τῆς Σαλαμίνας ἐν ταῖς ναυσὶ τὰ ὄπλα θέσθαι καὶ διαγωνίσασθαι κατὰ θάλατταν, ἐκπεπληγμένων τῶν πολλῶν τὸ τόλμημα πρῶτος Κίμων ὤφθη διὰ τοῦ Κεραμεικοῦ φαιδρὸς ἀνιῶν εἰς τὴν ἀκρόπολιν μετὰ τῶν ἐταίρων ἵππου τινὰ χαλινὸν ἀναθεῖναι τῇ θεῷ, διὰ χειρῶν κομίζων, ὡς οὐδὲν ἵππικῆς ἀλκῆς, ἀλλὰ ναυμάχων ἀνδρῶν ἐν τῷ 3 παρόντι τῆς πόλεως δεομένης. ἀναθεὶς δὲ τὸν

CIMON

However, it is perfectly apparent that Cimon was given to the love of women. Asteria, of a Salaminian family, and a certain Mnestra are mentioned by the poet Melanthius, in a sportive elegy addressed to Cimon, as wooed and won by him. And it is clear that he was even too passionately attached to his lawful wife, Isodicé, the daughter of Euryptolemus and grand-daughter of Megacles, and that he was too sorely afflicted at her death, if we may judge from the elegy addressed to him for the mitigation of his grief. This was composed by the naturalist Archelaüs, as Panaetius the philosopher thinks, and his conjecture is chronologically possible.

V. All other traits of Cimon's character were admirable and noble. Neither in daring was he inferior to Miltiades, nor in sagacity to Themistocles, and it is admitted that he was a juster man than either, and that while not one whit behind them in the good qualities of a soldier, he was inconceivably their superior in those of a statesman, even when he was still young and untried in war. When the Medes made their invasion, and Themistocles was trying to persuade the people to give up their city, abandon their country, make a stand with their fleet off Salamis, and fight the issue at sea, most men were terrified at the boldness of the scheme; but lo! Cimon was first to act, and with a gay mien led a procession of his companions through the Cerameicus up to the Acropolis, to dedicate to the goddess there the horse's bridle which he carried in his hands, signifying thus that what the city needed then was not knightly prowess but sea-fighters. After he had dedicated his bridle,

PLUTARCH'S LIVES

χαλινὸν καὶ λαβῶν ἐκ τῶν περὶ τὸν ναὸν κρεμα-
μένων ἄσπιδων, καὶ προσευξάμενος τῇ θεῷ, κατέ-
βαινε ἐπὶ θάλασσαν, οὐκ ὀλίγοις ἀρχὴ τοῦ θαρρεῖν γενόμενος.

Ἦν δὲ καὶ τὴν ιδέαυ οὐ μεμπτός, ὡς Ἴων ὁ
ποιητὴς φησιν, ἀλλὰ μέγας, οὕλη καὶ πολλῇ
τριχὶ κομῶν τὴν κεφαλὴν. φανείς δὲ καὶ κατ'
αὐτὸν τὸν ἀγῶνα λαμπρὸς καὶ ἀνδρώδης ταχὺ δόξαν ἐν τῇ πόλει μετ' εὐνοίας ἔσχευ, ἀθροισμένων
πολλῶν πρὸς αὐτὸν καὶ παρακαλούντων ἄξια τοῦ
4 Μαραθῶνος ἤδη διανοεῖσθαι καὶ πράσσειν. ὀρμήσαντα δ' αὐτὸν ἐπὶ τὴν πολιτείαν ἄσμενος ὁ δῆμος ἐδέξατο, καὶ μεστὸς ὦν τοῦ Θεμιστοκλέους
ἀνῆγε πρὸς¹ τὰς μεγίστας ἐν τῇ πόλει τιμὰς καὶ
ἀρχάς, εὐάρμοστον ὄντα καὶ προσφιλῆ τοῖς πολλοῖς διὰ πραύτητα καὶ ἀφέλειαν. οὐχ ἡκιστα δὲ
αὐτὸν ἠῤῥξῆσεν Ἀριστείδης ὁ Λυσιμάχου, τὴν
εὐφυίαν ἐνορῶν τῷ ἦθει, καὶ ποιούμενος οἶον ἀντί-παλον πρὸς τὴν Θεμιστοκλέους δεινότητα καὶ
τόλμαν.

VI. Ἐπεὶ δὲ Μήδων φυγόντων ἐκ τῆς Ἑλ-
λάδος ἐπέμφθη στρατηγός, κατὰ θάλατταν οὐπω
τὴν ἀρχὴν Ἀθηναίων ἐχόντων, ἔτι δὲ Πausania
τε καὶ Λακεδαιμονίοις ἐπομένων, πρῶτον μὲν ἐν
ταῖς στρατείαις αἰεὶ παρεῖχε τοὺς πολίτας κόσμῳ
τε θαυμαστοὺς καὶ προθυμία πολὺ πάντων δια-2 φέροντας· ἔπειτα Pausaniou τοῖς μὲν βαρ- 482
βάροις διαλεγόμενου περὶ προδοσίας καὶ βασιλεῖ
γράφοντος ἐπιστολάς, τοῖς δὲ συμμάχοις τραχέως
καὶ ἀθαδῶς προσφερομένου καὶ πολλὰ δι'

¹ πρὸς supplied by Stephanus, and confirmed by S; Bekker supplied eis.

CIMON

he took one of the shields which were hung up about the temple, addressed his prayers to the goddess, and went down to the sea, whereat many were first made to take heart.

He was also of no mean presence, as Ion the poet says, but tall and stately, with an abundant and curly head of hair. And since he displayed brilliant and heroic qualities in the actual struggle at Salamis,¹ he soon acquired reputation and good will in the city. Many thronged to him and besought him to purpose and perform at once what would be worthy of Marathon. So when he entered politics the people gladly welcomed him, and promoted him, since they were full to surfeit of Themistocles, to the highest honours and offices in the city, for he was engaging and attractive to the common folk by reason of his gentleness and artlessness. But it was Aristides, son of Lysimachus, who more than any one else furthered his career, for he saw the fine features of his character, and made him, as it were, a foil to the cleverness and daring of Themistocles.

VI. After the flight of the Medes from Hellas, Cimon was sent out as a commander,² before the Athenians had obtained their empire of the sea, and while they were still under the leadership of Pausanias and the Lacedaemonians. During this campaign, the citizen-soldiers he furnished on expeditions were always admirably disciplined and far more zealous than any others; and again, while Pausanias was holding treasonable conference with the Barbarians, writing letters to the King, treating the allies with harsh arrogance, and displaying much wantonness of

¹ 480 B.C.

² 478-477 B.C.

PLUTARCH'S LIVES

ἐξουσίαν καὶ ὄγκον ἀνόητον ὑβρίζοντος, ὑπολαμβάνων πρῶως τοὺς ἀδικουμένους καὶ φιλανθρώπως ἐξομιλῶν ἔλαθεν οὐ δι' ὄπλων τὴν τῆς Ἑλλάδος ἡγεμονίαν, ἀλλὰ λόγῳ καὶ ἤθει παρελόμενος.

3 προσετίθεντο γὰρ οἱ πλείστοι τῶν συμμάχων ἐκείνῳ τε καὶ Ἀριστείδῃ τὴν χαλεπότητα καὶ ὑπεροψίαν τοῦ Πausανίου μὴ φέροντες. οἱ δὲ καὶ τούτους ἅμα προσήγοντο καὶ τοῖς ἐφόροις πέμποντες ἔφραζον, ὡς ἀδοξούσης τῆς Σπάρτης καὶ ταραπτομένης τῆς Ἑλλάδος, ἀνακαλεῖν τὸν Πausανίαν.

4 Λέγεται δὲ παρθένον τινὰ Βυζαντίαν ἐπιφανῶν γονέων, ὄνομα Κλεονίκη, ἐπ' αἰσχύνῃ τοῦ Πausανίου μεταπεμπομένου, τοὺς μὲν γονεῖς ὑπ' ἀνάγκης καὶ φόβου προέσθαι τὴν παῖδα, τὴν δὲ τῶν πρὸ τοῦ δωματίου δεηθεῖσαν ἀνελέσθαι τὸ φῶς, διὰ σκότους καὶ σιωπῆς τῇ κλίτῃ προσιοῦσαν ἤδη τοῦ Πausανίου καθεύδοντος, ἐμπεσεῖν καὶ ἀνα-

5 τρέψαι τὸ λυχνίον ἄκουσαν· τὸν δ' ὑπὸ τοῦ ψόφου ταραχθέντα καὶ σπασάμενον¹ τὸ παρακείμενον ἐγχειρίδιον, ὡς τινος ἐπ' αὐτὸν ἐχθροῦ βαδίζοντος, πατάξαι καὶ καταβαλεῖν τὴν παρθένον, ἐκ δὲ τῆς πληγῆς ἀποθανοῦσαν αὐτὴν οὐκ ἔαν τὸν Πausανίαν ἡσυχάζειν, ἀλλὰ νύκτωρ εἶδωλον αὐτῷ φοιτῶσαν εἰς τὸν ὕπνον ὀργῇ λέγειν τόδε τὸ ἠρῶν·

Στείχε δίκης ἄσσον· μάλα τοι κακὸν ἀνδράσιν ὕβρις.

ἐφ' ᾧ καὶ μάλιστα χαλεπῶς ἐνεγκόντες οἱ

¹ καὶ σπασάμενον with S: σπασάμενον.

CIMON

power and silly pretension, Cimon received with mildness those who brought their wrongs to him, treated them humanely, and so, before men were aware of it, secured the leadership of Hellas, not by force of arms, but by virtue of his address and character. For most of the allies, because they could not endure the severity and disdain of Pausanias, attached themselves to Cimon and Aristides, who had no sooner won this following than they sent also to the Ephors and told them, since Sparta had lost her prestige and Hellas was in confusion, to recall Pausanias.

It is said that a maiden of Byzantium, of excellent parentage, Cleonicé by name, was summoned by Pausanias for a purpose that would disgrace her. Her parents, influenced by constraint and fear, abandoned their daughter to her fate, and she, after requesting the attendants before his chamber to remove the light, in darkness and silence at length drew near the couch on which Pausanias was asleep, but accidentally stumbled against the lamp-holder and upset it. Pausanias, startled by the noise, drew the dagger which lay at his side, with the idea that some enemy was upon him, and smote and felled the maiden. After her death in consequence of the blow, she gave Pausanias no peace, but kept coming into his sleep by night in phantom form, wrathfully uttering this verse:—

“Draw thou nigh to thy doom; 'tis evil for men to be wanton.”

At this outrage the allies were beyond measure

PLUTARCH'S LIVES

σύμμαχοι μετὰ τοῦ Κίμωνος ἐξεπολιόρησαν
 6 αὐτόν. ὁ δ' ἐκπεσὼν τοῦ Βυζαντίου καὶ τῷ
 φάσματι ταραττόμενος, ὡς λέγεται, κατέφυγε
 πρὸς τὸ νεκυομαντεῖον εἰς Ἡράκλειαν, καὶ τὴν
 ψυχὴν ἀνακαλούμενος τῆς Κλεονίκης παρητείτο
 τὴν ὀργήν. ἡ δ' εἰς ὄψιν ἔλθοῦσα ταχέως ἔφη
 παύσεσθαι τῶν κακῶν αὐτὸν ἐν Σπάρτῃ γενό-μενον, αἰνιττομένη, ὡς ἔοικε, τὴν μέλλουσαν αὐτῷ
 τελευτήν. ταῦτα μὲν οὖν ὑπὸ πολλῶν ἱστορήται.

VII. Κίμων δέ, τῶν συμμάχων ἤδη προσκε-χωρηκότων αὐτῷ, στρατηγὸς εἰς Θράκην ἔπλευσε, πυνθανόμενος Περσῶν ἄνδρας ἐνδόξους καὶ συγ-γενεῖς βασιλέως Ἡϊόνα πόλιν παρὰ τῷ Στρυμόνι
 κειμένην ποταμῷ κατέχοντας ἐνοχλεῖν τοῖς περὶ
 2 τὸν τόπον ἐκείνου Ἑλλησι. πρῶτον μὲν οὖν
 αὐτοὺς μάχῃ τοὺς Πέρσας ἐνίκησε καὶ κατέκλει-σεν εἰς τὴν πόλιν· ἔπειτα τοὺς ὑπὲρ Στρυμόνα Θράκας, ὅθεν αὐτοῖς ἐφοῖτα σίτος, ἀναστάτους
 ποιῶν καὶ τὴν χώραν παραφυλάττων ἅπασαν εἰς τοσαύτην ἀπορίαν τοὺς πολιορκουμένους κατέστησεν, ὥστε Βούτην τὸν βασιλέως στρατηγὸν ἀπογνόντα τὰ πράγματα τῇ πόλει πῦρ ἐνεῖναι καὶ
 3 συνδιαφθεῖραι μετὰ τῶν φίλων καὶ τῶν χρημάτων
 ἐαυτόν. οὕτω δὲ λαβὼν τὴν πόλιν ἄλλο μὲν οὐδὲν ἀξιόλογον ὠφελήθη, τῶν πλείστων τοῖς
 βαρβάροις συγκατακαέντων, τὴν δὲ χώραν
 εὐφυστάτην οὖσαν καὶ καλλίστην οἰκῆσαι
 παρέδωκε τοῖς Ἀθηναίοις. καὶ τοὺς Ἑρμᾶς

CIMON

incensed, and joined Cimon in forcing Pausanias to give up the city. Driven from Byzantium, and still harassed by the phantom, as the story goes, he had recourse to the ghost-oracle of Heracleia, and summoning up the spirit of Cleonicé, besought her to forgo her wrath. She came into his presence and said that he would soon cease from his troubles on coming to Sparta, thus darkly intimating, as it seems, his impending death. At any rate, this tale is told by many.

VII. But Cimon, now that the allies had attached themselves to him, took command of them and sailed to Thrace,¹ for he heard that men of rank among the Persians and kinsmen of the King held possession of Eïon, a city on the banks of the Strymon, and were harassing the Hellenes in that vicinity. First he defeated the Persians themselves in battle and shut them up in the city; then he expelled from their homes above the Strymon the Thracians from whom the Persians had been getting provisions, put the whole country under guard, and brought the besieged to such straits that Butes, the King's general, gave up the struggle, set fire to the city, and destroyed with it his family, his treasures, and himself. And so it was that though Cimon took the city, he gained no other memorable advantage thereby, since most of its treasures had been burned up with the Barbarians; but the surrounding territory was very fertile and fair, and this he turned over to the Athenians for occupation. Wherefore the people permitted him to

¹ 476-475 B.C.

PLUTARCH'S LIVES

αὐτῷ τοὺς λιθίνους ὁ δῆμος ἀναθεῖναι συνεχώρησεν, ὧν ἐπιγέγραπται τῷ μὲν πρώτῳ

- 4 Ἦν ἄρα κάκεῖνοι ταλακάρδιοι, οἳ ποτε Μήδων
παισὶν ἐπ' Ἡϊόνι, Στρυμόνος ἀμφὶ ῥοάς, λιμόν τ' αἴθωνα κρυερόν τ' ἐπάγοντες Ἄρηα
πρῶτοι δυσμενέων εὐρον ἀμηχανίην.

τῷ δὲ δευτέρῳ

Ἦγεμόνεσσι δὲ μισθὸν Ἀθηναῖοι τὰδ' ἔδωκαν
ἀντ' εὐεργεσίας καὶ μεγάλων ἀγαθῶν.
μᾶλλον τις τὰδ' ἰδὼν καὶ ἐπεσσομένων ἐθελήσει
ἀμφὶ περὶ ξυνοῖς πράγμασι δῆριν ἔχειν.

- 5 τῷ δὲ τρίτῳ

483

Ἐκ ποτε τῆσδε πόλης ἄμ' Ἀτρείδῃσι Μενε-σθεὺς

ἠγείτο ζάθεον Τρωϊκὸν ἐς πεδίον·
ὄν ποθ' Ὀμηρος ἔφη Δαναῶν πύκα θωρηκτῶν
κοσμητῆρα μάχης ἔξοχον ὄντα μολεῖν.
οὕτως οὐδὲν ἀεικὲς Ἀθηναίοισι καλεῖσθαι
κοσμηταῖς πολέμου τ' ἀμφὶ καὶ ἠγρορέης,

424

CIMON

dedicate the stone Hermae, on the first of which is the inscription :—

“ Valorous-hearted as well were they who at Eion
fighting,
Facing the sons of the Medes, Strymon’s current beside,
Fiery famine arrayed, and gore-flecked Ares,
against them,
Thus first finding for foes that grim exit,— despair ;”

and on the second :—

“ Unto their leaders reward by Athenians thus hath been given ;
Benefits won such return, valorous deeds of
the brave.
All the more strong at the sight will the men of the future be eager,
Fighting for commonwealth, war’s dread strife to maintain ;”

and on the third :—

“ With the Atridae of old, from this our city, Menestheus
Led his men to the plain Trojan called and divine.
He, once Homer asserted, among well-armoured Achaean,
Marshaller was of the fight, best of them all
who had come.
Thus there is naught unseemly in giving that name to Athenians ;
Marshallars they both of war and of the vigour
of men.”

VIII. Ταῦτα καίπερ οὐδαμοῦ τὸ Κίμωνος ὄνομα δηλοῦντα τιμῆς ὑπερβολὴν ἔχειν ἐδόκει τοῖς τότε ἀνθρώποις. οὔτε γὰρ Θεμιστοκλῆς τοιοῦτου τινὸς οὔτε Μιλτιάδης ἔτυχεν, ἀλλὰ τούτῳ γε θαλλοῦ στέφανον αἰτοῦντι Σωφάνης ὁ Δεκελεύς ἐκ μέσου τῆς ἐκκλησίας ἀναστὰς ἀντ-εῖπεν, οὐκ εὐγνώμονα μὲν, ἀρέσασαν δὲ τῷ δήμῳ τότε φωνὴν ἀφείς· “Ὅταν γάρ,” ἔφη, “μόνος ἀγωνισάμενος, ὡς Μιλτιάδῃ, νικήσῃς τοὺς βαρ-
 2 βάρους, τότε καὶ τιμᾶσθαι μόνος ἀξίον.” διὰ τί τοίνυν τὸ Κίμωνος ὑπερηγάπησαν ἔργον; ἢ ὅτι τῶν μὲν ἄλλων στρατηγούντων ὑπὲρ τοῦ μὴ παθεῖν ἡμύνοντο τοὺς πολεμίους, τούτου δὲ καὶ ποιῆσαι κακῶς ἠδυνήθησαν ἐπὶ τὴν ἐκείνων αὐτοὶ στρατεύσαντες, καὶ προσεκτήσαντο χώρας αὐτῆν τε τὴν Ἡϊόνα καὶ τὴν Ἀμφίπολιν οἰκίσαντες;
 3 Ὡς οὖν ὦν δὲ καὶ Σκῦρον ἐλόντος Κίμωνος ἐξ αἰτίας τοιαύτης. Δόλοπες ὄκουν τὴν νῆσον, ἐργάται κακοὶ γῆς· ληϊζόμενοι δὲ τὴν θάλασσαν ἐκ παλαιοῦ, τελευτώντες οὐδὲ τῶν εἰσπλεόντων παρ’ αὐτοὺς καὶ χρωμένων ἀπείχοντο ξένων, ἀλλὰ Θετταλοὺς τινὰς ἐμπόρους περὶ τὸ Κτήσιον
 4 ὀρμισαμένους συλήσαντες εἰρξαν. ἐπεὶ δὲ διαδράντες ἐκ τῶν δεσμῶν οἱ ἄνθρωποι δίκην κατεδικάσαντο τῆς πόλεως Ἀμφικτυονικῆν, οὐ βουλομένων τὰ χρήματα τῶν πολλῶν συνεκτίνειν, ἀλλὰ τοὺς ἔχοντας καὶ διηρπακότας ἀποδοῦναι κελευόντων, δέισαντες ἐκεῖνοι πέμπουσι γράμματα πρὸς Κίμωνα, κελεύοντες ἦκειν μετὰ τῶν νεῶν ληψόμενον τὴν πόλιν ὑπ’ αὐτῶν ἐνδιδομένην.

CIMON

VIII. Although these inscriptions nowhere mentioned Cimon by name, his contemporaries held them to be a surpassing honour for him. Neither Themistocles nor Miltiades achieved any such, nay, when the latter asked for a crown of olive merely, Sophanes the Deceleian rose up in the midst of the assembly and protested. His speech was ungracious, but it pleased the people of that day. "When," said he, "thou hast fought out alone a victory over the Barbarians, then demand to be honoured alone." Why, then, were the people so excessively pleased with the achievement of Cimon? Perhaps it was because when the others were their generals they were trying to repel their enemies and so avert disaster; but when he led them they were enabled to ravage the land of their enemies with incursions of their own, and acquired fresh territories for settlement, not only Eion itself, but also Amphipolis.

They settled Scyros too, which Cimon seized for the following reason. Dolopians were living on the island, but they were poor tillers of the soil. So they practised piracy on the high sea from of old, and finally did not withhold their hands even from those who put into their ports and had dealings with them, but robbed some Thessalian merchants who had cast anchor at Ctesium, and threw them into prison. When these men had escaped from bondage and won their suit against the city at the Amphictyonic assembly, the people of Scyros were not willing to make restitution, but called on those who actually held the plunder to give it back. The robbers, in terror, sent a letter to Cimon, urging him to come with his fleet to seize the city, and they would give it up to him.

PLUTARCH'S LIVES

- 5 παραλαβὼν δ' οὕτω τὴν νῆσον ὁ Κίμων τοὺς μὲν Δόλοπας ἐξήλασε καὶ τὸν Αἰγαῖον ἠλευθέρωσε, πυνθανόμενος δὲ τὸν παλαιὸν Θησέα τὸν Αἰγέως φυγόντα μὲν ἐξ Ἀθηνῶν εἰς Σκύρον, αὐτοῦ δ' ἀποθανόντα δόλω δια φόνον ὑπὸ Λυκομήδους τοῦ
- 6 βασιλέως, ἐσπούδασε τὸν τάφον ἀνευρεῖν. καὶ γὰρ ἦν χρησμός Ἀθηναίοις τὰ Θησέως λείψανα κελεύων ἀνακομίζειν εἰς ἄστν καὶ τιμᾶν ὡς ἥρωα πρεπόντως, ἀλλ' ἠγνόουν ὅπου κείται, Σκυρίων οὐχ ὁμολογούντων οὐδ' ἐώντων ἀναζητεῖν. τότε δὴ πολλῇ φιλοτιμίᾳ τοῦ σηκοῦ μόγις ἐξευρεθέντος, ἐνθέμενος ὁ Κίμων εἰς τὴν αὐτοῦ τριήρη τὰ ὀστᾶ καὶ τᾶλλα κοσμήσας μεγαλοπρεπῶς κατήγαγεν εἰς τὴν αὐτοῦ δι' ἐτῶν σχεδὸν τετρακοσίων. ἐφ' ᾧ καὶ μάλιστα πρὸς αὐτὸν ἠδέως ὁ δῆμος ἔσχεν.
- 7 Ἔθεντο δ' εἰς μνήμην αὐτοῦ καὶ τὴν τῶν τραγωδῶν κρίσιν ὀνομαστὴν γενομένην. πρώτην γὰρ διδασκαλίαν τοῦ Σοφοκλέους ἔτι νέου καθέντος, Ἀψεφίων ὁ ἄρχων, φιλονεικίας οὔσης καὶ παρατάξεως τῶν θεατῶν, κριτὰς μὲν οὐκ ἐκλήρωσε τοῦ ἀγῶνος, ὡς δὲ Κίμων μετὰ τῶν συστρατήγων προελθὼν εἰς τὸ θέατρον ἐποίησατο τῷ θεῷ τὰς νενομισμένας σπονδάς, οὐκ ἀφήκεν αὐτοὺς ἀπελθεῖν, ἀλλ' ὀρκώσας ἠνάγκασε καθίσαι καὶ κρῖναι δέκα ὄντας, ἀπὸ φυλῆς μιᾶς ἕκαστον.
- 8 ὁ μὲν οὖν ἀγὼν καὶ διὰ τὸ τῶν κριτῶν ἀξίωμα τὴν φιλοτιμίαν ὑπερέβαλε. νικήσαντος δὲ τοῦ

CIMON

In this manner Cimon got possession of the island, drove out the Dolopians, and made the Aegean a free sea.

On learning that the ancient Theseus, son of Aegeus, had fled in exile from Athens to Scyros, but had been treacherously put to death there, through fear, by Lycomedes the king, Cimon eagerly sought to discover his grave. For the Athenians had once received an oracle bidding them bring back the bones of Theseus to the city and honour him as became a hero, but they knew not where he lay buried, since the Scyrians would not admit the truth of the story, nor permit any search to be made. Now, however, Cimon set to work with great ardour, discovered at last the hallowed spot, had the bones bestowed in his own trireme, and with general pomp and show brought them back to the hero's own country after an absence of about four hundred years. This was the chief reason why the people took kindly to him.

But they also cherished in kindly remembrance of him that decision of his in the tragic contests which became so famous. When Sophocles, still a young man, entered the lists with his first plays, Apsephion the Archon, seeing that the spirit of rivalry and partisanship ran high among the spectators, did not appoint the judges of the contest as usual by lot, but when Cimon and his fellow-generals advanced into the theatre and made the customary libation to the god, he would not suffer them to depart, but forced them to take the oath and sit as judges, being ten in all, one from each tribe. So, then, the contest, even because of the unusual dignity of the judges, was more animated than ever before. But Σοφοκλέους λέγεται τὸν Αἰσχύλον περιπαθῆ γενόμενον καὶ βαρέως ἐνεγκόντα χρόνον οὐ πολὺν Ἀθήνησι διαγαγεῖν, εἴτ' οἴχεσθαι δι' ὄργην εἰς Σικελίαν, ὅπου καὶ τελευτήσας περὶ Γέλαν τέθαπται.

IX. Συνδειπνήσαι δὲ τῷ Κίμωνί φησιν ὁ Ἰωὺν 484 παντάπασι μενύκιον ἤκων εἰς Ἀθήνας ἐκ Χίου παρὰ Λαομέδοντι· καὶ τῶν σπονδῶν γενομένων παρακληθέντος¹ ἄσαι, καὶ ἄσαντος¹ οὐκ ἀηδῶς ἐπαινεῖν τοὺς παρόντας ὡς δεξιώτερον Θεμιστοκλέους· ἐκείνον γὰρ ἄδειν μὲν οὐ φάναι μαθεῖν οὐδὲ κιθαρίζειν, πόλιν δὲ ποιῆσαι μεγάλην καὶ 2 πλουσίαν ἐπίστασθαι τούντεϋθεν, οἶον εἰκὸς ἐν πότῳ, τοῦ λόγου ῥυέντος ἐπὶ τὰς πράξεις τοῦ Κίμωνος καὶ μνημονευομένων τῶν μεγίστων, αὐτὸν ἐκείνον ἐν διελθεῖν στρατήγημα τῶν ἰδίων ὡς σοφώτατον. ἐπεὶ γὰρ ἐκ Σηστοῦ καὶ Βυζαντίου πολλοὺς τῶν βαρβάρων αἰχμαλώτους λαβόντες οἱ σύμμαχοι τῷ Κίμωνι διανεῖμαι προσέταξαν, ὁ δὲ χωρὶς μὲν αὐτούς, χωρὶς δὲ τὸν 3 τὴν διανομὴν ὡς ἄνισον. ὁ δὲ τῶν μερίδων ἐκέλευσεν αὐτοὺς ἐλέσθαι τὴν ἑτέραν, ἣν δ' ἂν ἐκείνοι καταλίπωσιν, ἀγαπήσειν Ἀθηναίους. Ἡροφύτου δὲ τοῦ Σαμίου συμβουλευσάντος αἰρεῖσθαι τὰ Περσῶν μᾶλλον ἢ Πέρσας, τὸν μὲν κόσμον αὐτοὶ ἔλαβον, Ἀθηναίους δὲ τοὺς αἰχμαλώτους ἀπέλιπον. καὶ τότε μὲν ὁ Κίμων ἀπήει γελοῖος εἶναι δοκῶν διανομεύς, τῶν μὲν συμμάχων

¹ παρακληθέντος, ἄσαντος Bekker corrects, after Schäfer, το παρακληθέντα, ἄσαντα.

CIMON

Sophocles came off victorious, and it is said that Aeschylus, in great distress and indignation thereat, lingered only a little while at Athens, and then went off in anger to Sicily. There he died also, and is buried near Gela.

IX. Ion says that, coming from Chios to Athens as a mere stripling, he was once a fellow-guest with Cimon at a dinner given by Laomedon, and that over the wine the hero was invited to sing, and did sing very agreeably, and was praised by the guests as a cleverer man than Themistocles. That hero, they said, declared that he had not learned to sing, nor even to play the lyre, but knew how to make a city great and rich.¹ Next, Ion says, as was natural over the cups, the conversation drifted to the exploits of Cimon, and as his greatest deeds were being recounted, the hero himself dwelt at length on one particular stratagem which he thought his shrewdest. Once, he said, when the Athenians and their allies had taken many Barbarian prisoners at Sestos and Byzantium and turned them over to him for distribution, he put into one lot the persons of the captives, and into another the rich adornments of their bodies, and his distribution was blamed as unequal. But he bade the allies choose one of the lots, and the Athenians would be content with whichever one they left. So, on the advice of Herophytus the Samian to choose Persian wealth rather than Persians, the allies took the rich adornments for themselves, and left the prisoners for the Athenians. At the time Cimon came off with the reputation of being a ridiculous distributor, since

¹ Cf. Themistocles, ii. 3.

PLUTARCH'S LIVES

ψέλια χρυσᾶ καὶ μανιάκας καὶ στρεπτοὺς καὶ κάνδυας καὶ πορφύραν φερομένων, τῶν δ' Ἀθηναίων γυμνὰ σώματα κακῶς ἡσκημένα πρὸς 4 ἐργασίαν παραλαβόντων. μικρὸν δὲ ὕστερον οἱ τῶν ἐαλωκότων φίλοι καὶ οἰκείοι καταβαίνοντες ἐκ Φρυγίας καὶ Λυδίας ἐλυτροῦντο μεγάλων χρημάτων ἕκαστον, ὥστε τῷ Κίμωνι τεσσάρων μηνῶν τροφὰς εἰς τὰς ναῦς ὑπάρξαι καὶ προσέτι τῇ πόλει χρυσίον οὐκ ὀλίγον ἐκ τῶν λύτρων περιγενέσθαι.

X. Ἦδη δ' εὐπορῶν ὁ Κίμων ἐφόδια τῆς στρατηγίας ἃ καλῶς ἀπὸ τῶν πολεμίων ἔδοξεν ὠφελῆσθαι κάλλιον ἀνήλισκεν εἰς τοὺς πολίτας. τῶν τε γὰρ ἀγρῶν τοὺς φραγμοὺς ἀφεΐλεν, ἵνα καὶ τοῖς ξένοις καὶ τῶν πολιτῶν τοῖς δεομένοις ἀδεῶς ὑπάρχη λαμβάνειν τῆς ὀπώρας, καὶ δεῖπνον οἴκοι παρ' αὐτῷ λιτὸν μὲν, ἀρκοῦν δὲ πολλοῖς, ἐποιεῖτο καθ' ἡμέραν, ἐφ' ὃ τῶν πενήτων ὁ βουλόμενος εἰσῆει καὶ διατροφὴν εἶχεν ἀπράγ- 2 μονα, μόνοις τοῖς δημοσίοις σχολάζων. ὡς δ' Ἀριστοτέλης φησὶν, οὐχ ἀπάντων Ἀθηναίων, ἀλλὰ τῶν δημοτῶν αὐτοῦ Λακιαδῶν παρεσκευάζετο τῷ βουλομένῳ τὸ δεῖπνον. αὐτῷ δὲ νεανίσκοι παρείποντο συνήθεις ἀμπεχόμενοι καλῶς, ὧν ἕκαστος, εἴ τις συντύχοι τῷ Κίμωνι τῶν ἀστῶν πρεσβύτερος ἡμφιεσμένος ἐνδεῶς, διημείβετο πρὸς αὐτὸν τὰ ἱμάτια· καὶ τὸ γινόμενον ἐφαίνετο 3 σεμνόν. οἱ δ' αὐτοὶ καὶ νόμισμα κομίζοντες ἄφθονον παριστάμενοι τοῖς κομψοῖς τῶν πενήτων ἐν ἀγορᾷ σιωπῇ τῶν κερματίων ἐέβαλλον εἰς

CIMON

the allies had their gold anklets and armlets and collars and jackets and purple robes to display, while the Athenians got only naked bodies ill-trained for labour. But a little while after, the friends and kinsmen of the captives came down from Phrygia and Lydia and ransomed every one of them at a great price, so that Cimon had four months' pay and rations for his fleet, and besides that, much gold from the ransoms was left over for the city.

X. And since he was already wealthy, Cimon lavished the revenues from his campaign, which he was thought to have won with honour from the enemy, to his still greater honour, on his fellow-citizens. He took away the fences from his fields, that strangers and needy citizens might have it in their power to take fearlessly of the fruits of the land; and every day he gave a dinner at his house, —simple, it is true, but sufficient for many, to which any poor man who wished came in, and so received a maintenance which cost him no effort and left him free to devote himself solely to public affairs. But Aristotle says¹ that it was not for all Athenians, but only for his own demesmen, the Laciadae, that he provided a free dinner. He was constantly attended by young comrades in fine attire, each one of whom, whenever an elderly citizen in needy array came up, was ready to exchange raiment with him. The practice made a deep impression. These same followers also carried with them a generous sum of money, and going up to poor men of finer quality in the market-place, they would quietly thrust small change into their hands. To such generosity as this

¹ Const. of Athens, xxvii. 3.

PLUTARCH'S LIVES

τὰς χεῖρας. ὧν δὴ καὶ Κρατῖνος ὁ κωμικὸς ἐν Ἀρχιλόχοις ἔοικε μεμνήσθαι διὰ τούτων·

- 4 Κάγω γὰρ ἤϋχουν Μητρόβιος ὁ γραμματεὺς
 σὺν ἀνδρὶ θείῳ καὶ φιλοξενωτάτῳ
 καὶ πάντ' ἀρίστῳ τῶν Πανελλήνων πρὸ τοῦ Κίμωνι λιπαρὸν γῆρας εὐωχούμενος
 αἰῶνα πάντα συνδιατρίψειν. ὁ δὲ
 λιπὼν βέβηκε πρότερος.

- 5 ἔτι τοίνυν Γοργίας μὲν ὁ Λεοντίνος φησι τὸν Κίμωνα τὰ χρήματα κτᾶσθαι μὲν ὡς χρῶτο,
 χρῆσθαι δὲ ὡς τιμῶτο, Κριτίας δὲ τῶν τριάκοντα
 γενόμενος ἐν ταῖς ἐλεγεῖαις εὐχεται·

Πλούτον μὲν Σκοπαδῶν, μεγαλοφροσύνην δὲ Κίμωνος,
 νίκας δ' Ἀρκεσίλα τοῦ Λακεδαιμονίου.

- Καίτοι Λίχαν γε τὸν Σπαρτιάτην ἀπ' οὐδενὸς
 ἄλλου γινώσκομεν ἐν τοῖς Ἑλλησιν ὀνομαστὸν
 γενόμενον ἢ ὅτι τοὺς ξένους ἐν ταῖς γυμνοπαιδίαις 485
 ἐδείπνιζεν· ἢ δὲ Κίμωνος ἀφθονία καὶ τὴν
 παλαιὰν τῶν Ἀθηναίων φιλοξείαν καὶ φιλαν-6 θρωπίαν ὑπερέβαλεν. οἱ μὲν γάρ, ἐφ' οἷς ἢ πόλις μέγα φρονεῖ δικαίως, τό τε σπέρμα τῆς
 τροφῆς εἰς τοὺς Ἑλληνας ἐξέδωκαν ὑδάτων τε
 πηγαίων¹ καὶ πυρὸς ἔναυσιν χρῆζουσιν
 ἀνθρώποις ἐδίδαξαν,² ὁ δὲ τὴν μὲν οἰκίαν τοῖς
 πολίταις πρυτανεῖον ἀποδείξας κοινόν, ἐν δὲ
 τῇ χώρᾳ καρπῶν ἐτοιμῶν ἀπαρχὰς καὶ ὅσα
 ὄραι καλὰ φέρουσι χρῆσθαι καὶ λαμβάνειν
 ἅπαντα τοῖς ξένοις παρέχων, τρόπον τινα τὴν ἐπὶ

¹ The lacuna can only be conjecturally filled.

² ἐδίδαξαν Bekker corrects, with Schäfer, to εἰδειξαν.

CIMON

Cratinus] seems to have referred in his Archilochi, with the words:—

“ Yes, I too hoped, Metrobius, I, the public scribe,
Along with man divine, the rarest host that lives,
In every way the best of all Hellenic men,
With Cimon, feasting out in joy a sleek old age,
To while away the remnant of my life. But he Has gone before and left me.”

And again, Georgias the Leontine says that Cimon made money that he might spend it, and spent it that he might be honoured for it. And Critias, one of the thirty tyrants, prays in his elegies that he may have “ the wealth of the Scopadae, the great-mindedness of Cimon, and the victories of Arcesilaus of Lacedaemon.”

And yet we know that Lichas the Spartan became famous among the Hellenes for no other reason than that he entertained the strangers at the boys' gymnastic festival; but the generosity of Cimon surpassed even the hospitality and philanthropy of the Athenians of olden time. For they—and their city is justly very proud of it—spread abroad among the Hellenes the sowing of grain and the lustral uses of spring waters, and taught mankind who knew it not the art of kindling fire. But he made his home in the city a general public residence for his fellow citizens, and on his estates in the country allowed even the stranger to take and use the choicest of the ripened fruits, with all the fair things which the seasons bring. Thus, in a certain fashion, he

PLUTARCH'S LIVES

Κρόνου μυθολογουμένην κοινωνίαν εἰς τὸν βίον
 7 αὐθις κατήγεν. οἱ δὲ ταῦτα κολακεῖαν ὄχλου καὶ δημαγωγίαν εἶναι διαβάλλοντες ὑπὸ τῆς ἄλλης ἐξηλέγχοντο τοῦ ἀνδρὸς προαιρέσεως ἀριστοκρα-τικῆς καὶ Λακωνικῆς οὔσης, ὅς γε καὶ Θεμιστοκλεῖ
 πέρα τοῦ δέοντος ἐπαίροντι τὴν δημοκρατίαν
 ἀντέβαινε μετ' Ἀριστείδου, καὶ πρὸς Ἐφιάλτην
 ὕστερον χάριτι τοῦ δήμου καταλύοντα τὴν ἐξ
 8 Ἀρείου πάγου βουλὴν διηνέχθη, λημμάτων δὲ
 δημοσίων τοὺς ἄλλους πλὴν Ἀριστείδου καὶ Ἐφιάλτου πάντας ἀναπιπλαμένους ὄρων, αὐτὸν
 ἀδέκαστον καὶ ἄθικτον ἐκ τῆ πολιτείας δωροδοκίας
 καὶ πάντα πρόικα καὶ καθαρῶς πράττοντα καὶ
 λέγοντα διὰ τέλους παρέσχε.

Λέγεται γέ τοι Ῥοισάκην τινὰ βάρβαρον ἀπο-στάτην βασιλέως ἐλθεῖν μετὰ χρημάτων πολλῶν
 εἰς Ἀθήνας, καὶ σπαραττόμενον ὑπὸ τῶν συκοφαντῶν καταφυγεῖν πρὸς Κίμωνα, καὶ θεῖναι
 παρὰ τὴν αὐλειον αὐτοῦ φιάλας δύο, τὴν μὲν
 ἀργυρεῖων ἐμπλησάμενον Δαρεικῶν, τὴν δὲ χρυ-σῶν· ἰδόντα δὲ τὸν Κίμωνα καὶ μειδιάσαντα 9 πυθέσθαι τοῦ ἀνθρώπου, πότερον αἰρεῖται Κίμωνα
 μισθωτὸν ἢ φίλον ἔχειν· τοῦ δὲ φήσαντος φίλου “Οὐκοῦν,” φάναι, “ταῦτ' ἄπιθι μετὰ σεαυτοῦ κομίζων· χρήσομαι γὰρ αὐτοῖς ὅταν δέωμαι φίλος γενόμενος.”

XI. Ἐπεὶ δ' οἱ σύμμαχοι τοὺς φόρους μὲν
 ἐτέλουν, ἀνδρας δὲ καὶ ναῦς ὡς ἐτάχθησαν οὐ
 παρείχον, ἀλλ' ἀπαγορεύοντες ἤδη πρὸς τὰς
 στρατείας, καὶ πολέμου μὲν οὐδὲν δεόμενοι, γεωργεῖν δὲ καὶ ζῆν καθ' ἡσυχίαν ἐπιθυμοῦντες, ἀπηλλαγμένων τῶν βαρβάρων καὶ μὴ διοχλοῦν-

CIMON

restored to human life the fabled communism of the age of Cronus,—the golden age. Those who slanderously said that this was flattery of the rabble and demagogic art in him, were refuted by the man's political policy, which was aristocratic and Laconian. He actually opposed Themistocles when he exalted the democracy unduly, as Aristides also did. Later on he took hostile issue with Ephialtes, who, to please the people, tried to dethrone the Council of the Areiopagus; and though he saw all the rest except Aristides and Ephialtes filling their purses with the gains from their public services, he remained unbought and unapproached by bribes, devoting all his powers to the state, without recompense and in all purity, through to the end.

It is told, indeed, that one Rhoesaces, a Barbarian who had deserted from the King, came to Athens with large moneys, and being set upon fiercely by the public informers, fled for refuge to Cimon, and deposited at his door two platters, one filled with silver, the other with golden Darics. Cimon, when he saw them, smiled, and asked the man whether he preferred to have Cimon as his hireling or his friend, and on his replying, "As my friend," "Well then," said Cimon, take this money with thee and go thy way, for I shall have the use of it when I want it if I am thy friend."

XI. The allies continued to pay their assessments, but did not furnish men and ships according to allotment, since they were soon weary of military service, and had no need of war, but a great desire to till their land and live at their ease. The Barbarians were gone and did not harass them, so they neither

PLUTARCH'S LIVES

των, οὔτε τὰς ναῦς ἐπλήρουν οὔτ' ἄνδρας ἀπέ-στελλον, οἱ μὲν ἄλλοι στρατηγοὶ τῶν Ἀθηναίων
 προσηνάγκαζον αὐτοὺς ταῦτα ποιεῖν καὶ τοὺς
 ἐλλείποντας ὑπάγοντες δίκαις καὶ κολάζοντες
 2 ἐπαχθῆ τὴν ἀρχὴν καὶ λυπηρὰν ἐποίουν, Κίμων
 δὲ τὴν ἐναντίαν ὁδὸν ἐν τῇ στρατηγίᾳ πορευόμενος βίαν μὲν οὐδενὶ τῶν Ἑλλήνων προσήγε, χρήματα δὲ λαμβάνων παρὰ τῶν οὐ βουλομένων
 στρατεύεσθαι καὶ ναῦς κενάς, ἐκείνους εἶα δελεαζομένους τῇ σχολῇ περὶ τὰ οἰκεῖα διατρέβειν, γεωργοὺς καὶ χρηματιστὰς ἀπολέμους ἐκ πολε-
 μικῶν ὑπὸ τρυφῆς καὶ ἀνοίας γινομένους, τῶν δ' Ἀθηναίων ἀνὰ μέρος πολλοὺς ἐμβιβάζων καὶ
 διαπονῶν ταῖς στρατείαις ἐν ὀλίγῳ χρόνῳ τοῖς
 3 παρὰ τῶν συμμάχων μισθοῖς καὶ χρήμασι δεσπό-τας αὐτῶν τῶν διδόντων ἐποίησε. πλέοντας γὰρ
 αὐτοὺς συνεχῶς καὶ διὰ χειρὸς ἔχοντας αἰεὶ τὰ
 ὄπλα καὶ τρεφομένους καὶ ἀσκοῦντας ἐκ τῆς
 αὐτῶν ἀστρατείας¹ ἐθισθέντες φοβεῖσθαι καὶ κολακεύειν, ἔλαθον ἀντὶ συμμάχων ὑποτελεῖς καὶ δούλοι γεγονότες.

XII. Καὶ μὴν αὐτοῦ γε τοῦ μεγάλου βασιλέως
 οὐδεὶς ἐταπείνωσε καὶ συνέστειλε τὸ φρόνημα
 μᾶλλον ἢ Κίμων. οὐ γὰρ ἀνῆκεν ἐκ τῆς Ἑλ-λάδος ἀπηλλαγμένον, ἀλλ' ὥσπερ ἐκ ποδὸς
 διώκων, πρὶν διαπνεῦσαι καὶ στήναι τοὺς βαρβάρους, τὰ μὲν ἐπόρθει καὶ κατεστρέφετο, τὰ δὲ
 ἀφίστη καὶ προσήγετο τοῖς Ἑλλησιν, ὥστε τὴν
 ἀπ' Ἰωνίας Ἀσίαν ἄχρι Παμφυλίας παντάπασι

¹ ἀστρατείας the correction of Reiske, adopted by Sintenis and Bekker. The MSS., including S, have στρατείας, which must be referred to the Athenians. So Coraës.

CIMON

manned their ships nor sent out soldiers. The rest of the Athenian generals tried to force them to do this, and by prosecuting the delinquents and punishing them, rendered their empire burdensome and vexatious. But Cimon took just the opposite course when he was general, and brought no compulsion to bear on a single Hellene, but accepted money from those who did not wish to go out on service, and ships without crews, and so suffered the allies, caught with the bait of their own ease, to stay at home and become tillers of the soil and unwarlike merchants instead of warriors, and all through their foolish love of comfort. On the other hand, he made great numbers of the Athenians man their ships, one crew relieving another, and imposed on them the toil of his expeditions, and so in a little while, by means of the very wages which they got from the allies, made them lords of their own paymasters. For those who did no military service became used to fearing and flattering those who were continually voyaging, and for ever under arms and training, and practising, and so, before they knew it, they were tributary subjects instead of allies.

XII. And surely there was no one who humbled the Great King himself, and reduced his haughty spirit, more than Cimon. For he did not let him go quietly away from Hellas, but followed right at his heels, as it were, and before the Barbarians had come to a halt and taken breath, he sacked and overthrew here, or subverted and annexed to the Hellenes there, until Asia from Ionia to Pamphylia was

- 2 Περσικῶν ὄπλων ἐρημῶσαι. πυθόμενος δὲ τοὺς βασιλέως στρατηγούς μεγάλῳ στρατῷ καὶ ναυσὶ 486
πολλαῖς ἐφεδρεῦειν περὶ Παμφυλίαν, καὶ βουλόμενος αὐτοῖς ἄπλουν καὶ ἀνέμβατον ὄλως ὑπὸ
φόβου τὴν ἐντὸς Χελιδονίων ποιήσασθαι θάλατταν, ὥρμησεν ἄρας ἀπὸ Κνίδου καὶ Τριοπίου
διακοσίαις τριήρεσι, πρὸς μὲν τάχος ἀπ' ἀρχῆς
καὶ περιαγωγὴν ὑπὸ Θεμιστοκλέους ἄριστα
κατεσκευασμέναις, ἐκεῖνος δὲ τότε καὶ πλατυτέρας
ἐποίησεν αὐτάς καὶ διάβασιν τοῖς καταστρώμασιν
ἔδωκεν, ὡς ἂν ὑπὸ πολλῶν ὀπλιτῶν μαχιμώτεροι
3 προσφέροντο τοῖς πολεμίοις. ἐπιπλεύσας δὲ τῇ
πόλει τῶν Φασηλιτῶν, Ἑλλήνων μὲν ὄντων, οὐ δεχομένων δὲ τὸν στόλον οὐδὲ βουλομένων ἀφίστασθαι βασιλέως, τὴν τε χώραν κακῶς ἐποίει
καὶ προσέβαλλε τοῖς τείχεσιν. οἱ δὲ Χίοι συμπλέοντες αὐτῷ, πρὸς δὲ τοὺς Φασηλίτας ἐκ
παλαιοῦ φιλικῶς ἔχοντες, ἅμα μὲν τὸν Κίμωνα
κατεπράϋνουν, ἅμα δὲ τοξεύοντες ὑπὲρ τὰ τεῖχη
βιβλίδια προσκείμενα τοῖς οἴστοις ἐξήγγελλον
4 τοῖς Φασηλίταις. τέλος δὲ διήλλαξεν¹ αὐτούς, ὅπως δέκα τάλαντα δόντες ἀκολουθῶσι καὶ συ-στρατεύωσιν ἐπὶ τοὺς βαρβάρους.

Ἐφορος μὲν οὖν Τιθραύστην φησὶ τῶν βασι-λικῶν νεῶν ἄρχειν καὶ τοῦ πεζοῦ Φερενδάτην, Καλλισθένης δ' Ἀριομάνδην τὸν Γωβρῦνου κυριώτατον ὄντα τῆς δυνάμεως παρὰ τὸν Εὐρυμέδοντα
ταῖς ναυσὶ παρορμεῖν, οὐκ ὄντα μάχεσθαι τοῖς Ἑλλησι πρόθυμον, ἀλλὰ προσδεχόμενον ὀγδοή-κοντα ναῦς Φοινίσσας ἀπὸ Κύπρου προσπλε-

¹ διήλλαξεν Coraës and Bekker have διήλλαξαν, as does S, referring to the Chians as reconciling the two hostile parties.

CIMON

entirely cleared of Persian arms. Learning that the generals of the King were lurking about Pamphylia with a great army and many ships, and wishing to make them afraid to enter at all the sea to the west of the Chelidonian isles, he set sail from Cnidus and Triopium¹ with two hundred triremes. These vessels had been from the beginning very well constructed for speed and manœuvring by Themistocles; but Cimon now made them broader, and put bridges between their decks, in order that with their numerous hoplites they might be more effective in their onsets. Putting in at Phaselis, which was a Hellenic city, but refused to admit his armament or even to abandon the King's cause, he ravaged its territory and assaulted its walls. But the Chians, who formed part of his fleet and were of old on friendly terms with the people of Phaselis, laboured to soften Cimon's hostility, and at the same time, by shooting arrows over the walls with little documents attached, they conveyed messages of their success to the men of Phaselis. So finally Cimon made friends with them on condition that they should pay ten talents and join him in his expedition against the Barbarians.

Now Ephorus says that Tithraustes was commander of the royal fleet, and Pherendates of the infantry; but Callisthenes says that it was Ariomandes, the son of Gobryas, who, as commander-in-chief of all the forces, lay at anchor with the fleet off the mouth of the Eurymedon, and that he was not at all eager to fight with the Hellenes, but was waiting for eighty Phœnician ships to sail up from

¹ About 467 B.C.

5 ούσας. ταύτας φθῆναι βουλόμενος ὁ Κίμων ἀνήχθη, βιάζεσθαι παρεσκευασμένος, ἂν ἐκόντες μὴ ναυμαχῶσιν. οἱ δὲ πρῶτον μὲν, ὡς μὴ βιασθεῖεν, εἰς τὸν ποταμὸν εἰσωρμίσαντο, προσφερομένων δὲ τῶν Ἀθηναίων ἀντεξέπλευσαν, ὡς ἱστορεῖ Φανόδημος, ἑξακοσίαις ναυσίν, ὡς δ' Ἐφορος, πεντήκοντα καὶ τριακοσίαις. ἔργον δὲ κατὰ γοῦν τὴν θάλατταν οὐδὲν ὑπ' αὐτῶν
 6 ἐπράχθη τῆς δυνάμεως ἄξιον, ἀλλ' εὐθύς εἰς τὴν γῆν ἀποστρέφοντες ἐξέπιπτον οἱ πρῶτοι καὶ κατέφευγον εἰς τὸ πεζὸν ἐγγὺς παρατεταγμένον, οἱ δὲ καταλαμβανόμενοι διεφθείροντο μετὰ τῶν νεῶν. ᾧ καὶ δῆλόν ἐστιν, ὅτι πάμπολλοί τινες αἱ πεπληρωμένοι τοῖς βαρβάροις νῆες ἦσαν, ὅτε πολλῶν μὲν, ὡς εἰκός, ἐκφυγουσῶν, πολλῶν δὲ συντριβεισῶν, ὅμως αἰχμαλώτους διακοσίας ἔλαβον οἱ Ἀθηναῖοι.

XIII. Τῶν δὲ πεζῶν ἐπικαταβάντων πρὸς τὴν θάλασσαν μέγα μὲν ἔργον ἐφαίνετο τῷ Κίμωνι τὸ βιάζεσθαι τὴν ἀπόβασιν καὶ κεκμηκότας ἀκμῆσι καὶ πολλαπλασίοις ἐπάγειν τοὺς Ἕλληνας, ὅμως δὲ ῥώμη καὶ φρονήματι τοῦ κρατεῖν ὀρῶν ἐπηρμένους καὶ προθύμους ὁμόσε χωρεῖν τοῖς βαρβάροις, ἀπεβίβαζε τοὺς ὀπλίτας ἔτι θερμούς τῷ κατὰ τὴν ναυμαχίαν ἀγῶνι μετὰ
 2 κρानυγῆς καὶ δρόμου προσφερομένους. ὑποστάντων δὲ τῶν Περσῶν καὶ δεξαμένων οὐκ ἀγευνῶς κρατερὰ μάχη συνέστη· καὶ τῶν Ἀθηναίων ἄνδρες ἀγαθοὶ καὶ τοῖς ἀξιώμασι πρῶτοι καὶ διαπρεπεῖς ἔπεσον. πολλῶ δ' ἀγῶνι τρεψάμενοι

CIMON

Cyprus. Wishing to anticipate their arrival, Cimon put out to sea, prepared to force the fighting if his enemy should decline an engagement. At first the enemy put into the river, that they might not be forced to fight; but when the Athenians bore down on them there, they sailed out to meet them. They had six hundred ships, according to Phanodemus; three hundred and fifty, according to Ephorus. Whatever the number, nothing was achieved by them on the water which was worthy of such a force, but they straightway put about and made for shore, where the foremost of them abandoned their ships and fled for refuge to the infantry which was drawn up near by; those who were overtaken were destroyed with their ships. Whereby also it is plain that the Barbarian ships which went into action were very numerous indeed, since, though many, of course, made their escape and many were destroyed, still two hundred were captured by the Athenians.

XIII. When the enemy's land forces marched threateningly down to the sea, Cimon thought it a vast undertaking to force a landing and lead his weary Hellenes against an unwearied and many times more numerous foe. But he saw that his men were exalted by the impetus and pride of their victory, and eager to come to close quarters with the Barbarians, so he landed his hoplites still hot with the struggle of the sea-fight, and they advanced to the attack with shouts and on the run. The Persians stood firm and received the onset nobly, and a mighty battle ensued, wherein there fell brave men of Athens who were foremost in public office and eminent. But after a long struggle the Athenians τοὺς βαρβάρους ἔκτεινον, εἶτα ἤρουν αὐτοῦς τε καὶ σκηνὰς παντοδαπῶν χρημάτων γεμούσας.

PLUTARCH'S LIVES

- 3 Κίμων δ' ὥσπερ ἀθλητῆς δεινὸς ἡμέρα μιᾷ δύο καθηρηκῶς ἀγωνίσματα, καὶ τὸ μὲν ἐν Σαλαμῖνι πεζομαχία, τὸ δ' ἐν Πλαταιαῖς ναυμαχία παρεληλυθῶς τρόπαιον, ἐπηγωνίσατο ταῖς νίκαις, καὶ τὰς ὀγδοήκοντα Φοινίσσας τριήρεις, αἰ τῆς μάχης ἀπελείφθησαν, "Υδροῦ προσβεβληκέναι πυθόμενος διὰ τάχους ἐπλευσεν, οὐδὲν εἰδόντων βέβαιον οὐπω περὶ τῆς μείζονος δυνάμεως τῶν στρατηγῶν, ἀλλὰ δυσπίστως ἔτι καὶ
- 4 μετεώρως ἐχόντων· ἧ καὶ μᾶλλον ἐκπλαγέντες ἀπώλεσαν τὰς ναῦς ἀπάσας, καὶ τῶν ἀνδρῶν οἱ πλείστοι συνδιεφθάρησαν. τοῦτο τὸ ἔργον οὕτως ἐταπείνωσε τὴν γνώμην τοῦ βασιλέως, ὥστε συνθέσθαι τὴν περιβόητον εἰρήνην ἐκείνην, 487 ἵππου μὲν δρόμον αἰεὶ τῆς Ἑλληνικῆς ἀπέχει θαλάσσης, ἔνδον δὲ Κυανέων καὶ Χελιδονίων μακρᾷ νηὶ καὶ χαλκεμβόλῳ μὴ πλέειν.
- 5 Καίτοι Καλλισθένης οὐ φησι ταῦτα συνθέσθαι τὸν βάρβαρον, ἔργῳ δὲ ποιεῖν διὰ φόβον τῆς ἡττης ἐκείνης, καὶ μακρὰν οὕτως ἀποστήναι τῆς Ἑλλάδος, ὥστε πεντήκοντα ναυσὶ Περικλέα καὶ τριάκοντα μόναις Ἐφιάλτην ἐπέκεινα πλεῦσαι Χελιδονίων καὶ μηδὲν αὐτοῖς ναυτικὸν ἀπαντῆσαι
- 6 παρὰ τῶν βαρβάρων. ἐν δὲ τοῖς ψηφίσμασιν, ἃ συνήγαγε Κρατερός, ἀντίγραφα συνθηκῶν ὡς γενομένων κατατέτακται. φασὶ δὲ καὶ βωμῶν

CIMON

routed the Barbarians with slaughter, and then captured them and their camp, which was full of all sorts of treasure.

But Cimon, though like a powerful athlete he had brought down two contests in one day, and though he had surpassed the victory of Salamis with an infantry battle, and that of Plataea with a naval battle, still went on competing with his own victories. Hearing that the eighty Phoenician triremes which were too late for the battle had put in at Hydrus,¹ he sailed thither with all speed, while their commanders as yet knew nothing definite about the major force, but were still in distrustful suspense. For this reason they were all the more panic-stricken at his attack, and lost all their ships. Most of their crews were destroyed with the ships. This exploit so humbled the purpose of the King that he made the terms of that notorious peace, by which he was to keep away from the Hellenic sea-coast as far as a horse could travel in a day, and was not to sail west of the Cyanean and Chelidonian isles with armoured ships of war.

And yet Callisthenes denies that the Barbarian made any such terms, but says he really acted as he did through the fear which that victory inspired, and kept so far aloof from Hellas that Pericles with fifty, and Ephialtes with only thirty, ships sailed beyond the Chelidonian isles without encountering any navy of the Barbarians. But in the decrees collected by Craterus there is a copy of the treaty in its due place, as though it had actually been made. And they say that the Athenians

¹ Hydrus is the name in the MSS., but no such place is known. Syedra is the most probable correction.

εἰρήνης διὰ ταῦτα τοὺς Ἀθηναίους ιδρύσασθαι, καὶ Καλλίαν τὸν πρεσβεύσαντα τιμῆσι διαφερόντως.

Πραθέντων δὲ τῶν αἰχμαλώτων λαφύρων εἰς τε τὰ ἄλλα χρήμασιν ὁ δῆμος ἐρρώσθη, καὶ τῇ ἀκροπόλει τὸ νότιον τεῖχος κατεσκεύασεν ὑπὸ 7 ἐκείνης εὐπορήσας τῆς στρατείας. λέγεται δὲ καὶ τῶν μακρῶν τειχῶν, ἃ σκέλη καλοῦσι, συντελεσθῆναι μὲν ὕστερον τὴν οἰκοδομίαν, τὴν δὲ πρώτην θεμελίωσιν εἰς τόπους ἐλώδεις καὶ διαβρόχους τῶν ἔργων ἐμπесόντων ἐρεισθῆναι διὰ Κίμωνος ἀσφαλῶς, χάλικι πολλῇ καὶ λίθοις βαρέσι τῶν ἐλῶν πιεσθέντων, ἐκείνου χρήματα πορίζοντος καὶ 8 διδόντος. πρῶτος δὲ ταῖς λεγομέναις ἐλευθερίοις καὶ γλαφυραῖς διατριβαῖς, αἱ μικρὸν ὕστερον ὑπερφυῶς ἠγαπήθησαν, ἐκαλλώπισε τὸ ἄστυ, τὴν μὲν ἀγορὰν πλατάνοις καταφυτεύσας, τὴν δ' Ἀκαδήμειαν ἐξ ἀνύδρου καὶ αὐχμηρᾶς κατάρρυσεν ἀποδείξας ἄλσος ἠσκημένον ὑπὸ αὐτοῦ δρόμοις καθαροῖς καὶ συσκίοις περιπάτοις.

XIV. Ἐπεὶ δὲ τῶν Περσῶν τινες οὐκ ἐβούλοντο τὴν Χερρόνησον ἐκλιπεῖν, ἀλλὰ καὶ τοὺς Θρακᾶς ἄνωθεν ἐπεκαλοῦντο καταφρονούντες τοῦ Κίμωνος μετ' ὀλίγων παντάπασι τριήρων Ἀθήνηθεν ἐκπεπλευκότος, ὀρμήσας ἐπ' αὐτοὺς τέσσαρσι μὲν ναυσὶ τρισκαίδεκα τὰς ἐκείνων ἔλαβεν, ἐξελάσας δὲ τοὺς Πέρσας καὶ κρατήσας τῶν Θρακῶν πᾶσαν ᾤκειώσατο τῇ πόλει τὴν Χερρόνησον. 2 ἐκ δὲ τούτου Θασίους μὲν ὑποστάντας Ἀθηναίων καταναυμαχήσας τρεῖς καὶ τριάκοντα ναῦς ἔλαβε καὶ τὴν πόλιν ἐξεπολιόρκησε καὶ τὰ χρυσεῖα τὰ also built the altar of Peace to commemorate this event, and paid distinguished honours to Callias as their ambassador.

CIMON

By the sale of the captured spoils the people was enabled to meet various financial demands, and especially it constructed the southern wall of the Acropolis with the generous resources obtained from that expedition. And it is said that, though the building of the long walls, called "legs," was completed afterwards, yet their first foundations, where the work was obstructed by swamps and marshes, were stayed up securely by Cimon, who dumped vast quantities of rubble and heavy stones into the swamps, meeting the expenses himself. He was the first to beautify the city with the so-called "liberal" and elegant resorts which were so excessively popular a little later, by planting the market-place with plane trees, and by converting the Academy from a waterless and arid spot into a well watered grove, which he provided with clear running-tracks and shady walks.

XIV. Now there were certain Persians who would not abandon the Chersonese, but called in Thracians from the North to help them, despising Cimon, who had sailed out from Athens with only a few triremes all told.¹ But he sallied out against them with his four ships and captured their thirteen, drove out the Persians, overwhelmed the Thracians, and turned the whole Chersonese over to his city for settlement. And after this, when the Thasians were in revolt from Athens,² he defeated them in a sea-fight, captured thirty-three of their ships, besieged and took their city, acquired their gold mines

¹ 466 B.C.

² 465 B.C.

πέραν Ἀθηναίους προσεκτήσατο καὶ χώραν, ἧς ἐπήρχον Θάσιοι, παρέλαβεν.

Ἐκείθεν δὲ ῥαδίως ἐπιβῆναι Μακεδονίας καὶ πολλὴν ἀποτεμέσθαι παρασχόν, ὡς ἐδόκει, μὴ θελήσας αἰτίαν ἔσχε δώροις ὑπὸ τοῦ βασιλέως Ἀλεξάνδρου συμπεπεῖσθαι, καὶ δίκην ἔφυγε τῶν
 3 ἐχθρῶν συστάντων ἐπ' αὐτόν. ἀπολογούμενος δὲ πρὸς τοὺς δικαστὰς οὐκ Ἰώνων ἔφη προξενεῖν οὐδὲ Θεσσαλῶν, πλουσίων ὄντων, ὥσπερ ἑτέρους, ἵνα θεραπεύωνται καὶ λαμβάνωσιν, ἀλλὰ Λακεδαιμονίων, μιμούμενος καὶ ἀγαπῶν τὴν παρ' αὐτοῖς εὐτέλειαν καὶ σωφροσύνην, ἧς οὐδένα προτιμᾶν πλοῦτον, ἀλλὰ πλουτίζων ἀπὸ τῶν πο-
 4 λεμίων τὴν πόλιν ἀγάλλεσθαι. μνησθεῖς δὲ τῆς κρίσεως ἐκείνης ὁ Στησίμβροτός φησι τὴν Ἐλπινίκην ὑπὲρ τοῦ Κίμωνος δεομένην ἔλθειν ἐπὶ τὰς θύρας τοῦ Περικλέους (οὗτος γὰρ ἦν τῶν κατηγορῶν ὁ σφοδρότατος), τὸν δὲ μειδιάσαντα “Γραῦς εἶ,” φάναι, “γραῦς, ὦ Ἐλπινίκη, ὡς τηλικαῦτα διαπράττεσθαι πρῶγματα.” πλὴν ἔν γε τῇ δίκῃ πρῶτατον γενέσθαι τῷ Κίμωνι καὶ πρὸς τὴν κατηγορίαν ἅπαξ ἀναστήναι μόνον, ὥσπερ ἀφοσιούμενον.

XV. Ἐκείνην μὲν οὖν ἀπέφυγε τὴν δίκην· ἐν δὲ τῇ λοιπῇ πολιτείᾳ παρὼν μὲν ἐκράτει καὶ συνέστελλε τὸν δῆμον ἐπιβαίνοντα τοῖς ἀρίστοις καὶ περισπῶντα τὴν πᾶσαν εἰς ἑαυτὸν ἀρχὴν καὶ δύναμιν· ὡς δὲ πάλιν ἐπὶ στρατείᾳ ἐξέπλευσε, τελῶς ἀνεθέντες οἱ πολλοὶ καὶ συγγέαντες τὸν καθεστῶ-
 τα τῆς πολιτείας κόσμον τὰ τε πάτρια νόμιμα, οἷς

CIMON

on the opposite mainland for Athens, and took possession of the territory which the Thasians controlled there.

From this base he had a good opportunity, as it was thought, to invade Macedonia and cut off a great part of it, and because he would not consent to do it, he was accused of having been bribed to this position by King Alexander, and was actually prosecuted, his enemies forming a coalition against him.¹ In making his defence before his judges he said he was no proxenus of rich Ionians and Thessalians, as others were, to be courted and paid for their services, but rather of Lacedaemonians, whose temperate simplicity he lovingly imitated, counting no wealth above it, but embellishing the city with the wealth which he got from the enemy. In mentioning this famous trial Stesimbrotus says that Elpinicé came with a plea for Cimon to the house of Pericles, since he was the most ardent accuser, and that he smiled and said, "Too old, too old, Elpinicé, to meddle with such business." But at the trial he was very gentle with Cimon, and took the floor only once in accusation of him, as though it were a mere formality.

XV. Well then, Cimon was acquitted at this trial. And during the remainder of his political career, when he was at home, he mastered and constrained the people in its onsets upon the nobles, and in its efforts to wrest all office and power to itself; but when he sailed away again on military service,² the populace got completely beyond control. They confounded the established political order of things and the ancestral practices which they had formerly

¹ 463 B.C.

² 462 B.C. See chap. xvii

- 2 ἐχρῶντο πρότερον, Ἐφιάλτου προεστῶτος ἀφεί-
 λοντο τῆς ἐξ Ἀρείου πάγου βουλῆς τὰς κρίσεις
 πλὴν ὀλίγων ἀπάσας, καὶ τῶν δικαστηρίων
 κυρίου ἐαυτοὺς ποιήσαντες εἰς ἄκρατον δημο-κρατίαν ἐνέβαλον τὴν πόλιν, ἤδη καὶ Περικλέους
 δυναμένου καὶ τὰ τῶν πολλῶν φρονούντος. διὸ
 καὶ τοῦ Κίμωνος, ὡς ἐπανῆλθεν, ἀγανακτοῦντος
 ἐπὶ τῷ προπηλακίζεσθαι τὸ ἀξίωμα τοῦ συνεδρίου, καὶ πειρωμένου πάλιν ἄνω τὰς δίκας
 ἀνακαλεῖσθαι καὶ τὴν ἐπὶ Κλεισθένους ἐγείρειν
 ἀριστοκρατίαν, κατεβῶν συνιστάμενοι καὶ τὸν
 3 δῆμον ἐξηρέθιζον, ἐκεῖνά τε τὰ πρὸς τὴν ἀδελφὴν ἀνανεοῦμενοι καὶ Λακωνισμόν ἐπικαλοῦντες. εἰς
 ἃ καὶ τὰ Εὐπόλιδος διατεθρύληται περὶ Κίμωνος,
 ὅτι

Κακὸς μὲν οὐκ ἦν, φιλοπότης δὲ κάμελής·
 κἀνίοςτ' ἂν ἀπεκοιμᾶτ' ἂν ἐν Λακεδαίμονι,
 κἂν Ἑλπινίκην τήνδε καταλιπὼν μόνην.

εἰ δ' ἀμελῶν καὶ μεθυσκόμενος τοσαύτας πόλεις
 εἶλε καὶ τοσαύτας νίκας ἐνίκησε, δῆλον ὅτι νήφοντος αὐτοῦ καὶ προσέχοντος οὐδεὶς ἂν οὔτε
 τῶν πρότερον οὔτε τῶν ὕστερον Ἑλλήνων παρῆλθε
 τὰς πράξεις.

XVI. Ἦν μὲν οὖν ἀπ' ἀρχῆς φιλολάκων· καὶ τῶν
 γε παίδων τῶν διδύμων τὸν ἕτερον Λακεδαιμόνιον ὠνόμασε, τὸν δ' ἕτερον Ἥλειον, ἐκ γυναικὸς
 αὐτῷ Κλειτορίας γενομένους, ὡς Σησιμβροτος
 ἱστορεῖ· διὸ πολλάκις τὸν Περικλέα τὸ μητρῶον
 αὐτοῖς γένος ὀνειδίζειν. Διόδωρος δ' ὁ Περιηγη-
 τῆς καὶ τούτους φησὶ καὶ τὸν τρίτον τῶν Κίμωνος

CIMON

observed, and under the lead of Ephialtes they robbed the Council of the Areiopagus of all but a few of the cases in its jurisdiction. They made themselves masters of the courts of justice, and plunged the city into unmitigated democracy, Pericles being now a man of power and espousing the cause of the populace. And so when Cimon came back home, and in his indignation at the insults heaped upon the reverend council, tried to recall again its jurisdiction and to revive the aristocracy of the times of Cleisthenes, they banded together to denounce him, and tried to inflame the people against him, renewing the old slanders about his sister and accusing him of being a Spartan sympathiser. It was to these calumnies that the famous and popular verses of Eupolis about Cimon had reference :—

“ He was not base, but fond of wine and full of sloth,
And oft he 'ld sleep in Lacedaemon, far from home,
And leave his Elpinicé sleeping all alone.”

But if, though full of sloth and given to tippling, he yet took so many cities and won so many victories, it is clear that had he been sober and mindful of his business, no Hellene either before or after him would have surpassed his exploits.

XVI. It is true indeed that he was from the first a philo-Laconian. He actually named one of his twin sons Lacedaemonius, and the other Eleius,—the sons whom a woman of Cleitor bare him, as Stesimbrotus relates, wherefore Pericles often reproached them with their maternal lineage. But Diodorus the Topographer says that these, as well

PLUTARCH'S LIVES

- 2 *υἱῶν Θεσσαλὸν ἐξ Ἴσοδίκης γεγονέναι τῆς
 Εὐρυπτολέμου τοῦ Μεγακλέους. ἠϋξήθη δ' ὑπὸ
 τῶν Λακεδαιμονίων ἤδη τῷ Θεμιστοκλεῖ προσπολεμούντων καὶ τοῦτον ὄντα νέον ἐν Ἀθήναις
 μᾶλλον ἰσχύειν καὶ κρατεῖν βουλομένων. οἱ
 δ' Ἀθηναῖοι τὸ πρῶτον ἠδέως ἑώρων οὐ μικρὰ τῆς
 πρὸς ἐκείνον εὐνοίας τῶν Σπαρτιατῶν ἀπολαύον-
 τες· αὐξανόμενοις γὰρ αὐτοῖς κατ' ἀρχὰς καὶ τὰ
 3 συμμαχικὰ πολυπραγμονοῦσιν οὐκ ἤχθοντο τιμῇ
 καὶ χάριτι τοῦ Κίμωνος. τὰ γὰρ πλείστα δι'
 ἐκείνου τῶν Ἑλληνικῶν διεπράττετο, πράως μὲν
 τοῖς συμμάχοις, κεχαρισμένως δὲ τοῖς Λακεδαιμονίοις ὀμιλοῦντος. ἔπειτα δυνατώτεροι γενό-μενοι καὶ τὸν Κίμωνα τοῖς Σπαρτιάταις οὐκ
 ἠρέμα προσκείμενον ὀρώντες ἤχθοντο. καὶ γὰρ
 αὐτὸς ἐπὶ παντὶ μεγαλύνων τὴν Λακεδαίμονα
 πρὸς Ἀθηναίους, καὶ μάλιστα ὅτε τύχοι μεμφόμενος αὐτοῖς ἢ παροξύνων, ὡς φησι Σπησίμβροτος,
 εἰώθει λέγειν· “Ἄλλ' οὐ Λακεδαιμόνιοί γε 4 τοιοῦτοι.” ὅθεν φθόνον ἑαυτῷ συνῆγε καὶ δυσμένειάν τινα παρὰ τῶν πολιτῶν.*

Ἡ δ' οὖν ἰσχύσασα μάλιστα κατ' αὐτοῦ τῶν
 διαβολῶν αἰτίαν ἔσχε τοιαύτην. Ἀρχιδάμου τοῦ Ζευξιδάμου τέταρτον¹ ἔτος ἐν Σπάρτῃ βασιλεύοντος ὑπὸ σεισμοῦ μεγίστου δὴ τῶν μνημονευομένων
 πρότερον ἢ τε χώρα τῶν Λακεδαιμονίων χάσμα-σιν ἐνώλισθε πολλοῖς καὶ τῶν Ταυγέτων τιναχθέντων κορυφαί τινες ἀπερράγησαν, αὐτὴ δ' ἢ πόλις ὅλη συνεχύθη πλὴν οἰκῶν πέντε, τὰς δ' ἄλλας ἤρειψεν ὁ σεισμός.

¹ τέταρτον Bekker adopted Niebuhr's correction to τεσσαρεσκαίδεκατον fourteenth.

CIMON

as the third of Cimon's sons, Thessalus, were born of Isodicé, the daughter of Euryptolemus, the son of Megacles. And he was looked upon with favour by the Lacedaemonians, who soon were at enmity with Themistocles, and therefore preferred that Cimon, young as he was, should have the more weight and power in Athens. The Athenians were glad to see this at first, since they reaped no slight advantage from the good will which the Spartans showed him. While their empire was first growing, and they were busy making alliances, they were not displeased that honour and favour should be shown to Cimon. He was the foremost Hellenic statesman, dealing gently with the allies and acceptably with the Lacedaemonians. But afterwards, when they became more powerful, and saw that Cimon was strongly attached to the Spartans, they were displeased thereat. For on every occasion he was prone to exalt Lacedaemon to the Athenians, especially when he had occasion to chide or incite them. Then, as Stesimbrotus tells us, he would say, "But the Lacedaemonians are not of such a sort." In this way he awakened the envy and hatred of his fellow-citizens.

At any rate, the strongest charge against him arose as follows. When Archidamus, the son of Zeuxidamus, was in the fourth year of his reign at Sparta,¹ a greater earthquake than any before reported rent the land of the Lacedaemonians into many chasms, shook Taygetus so that sundry peaks were torn away, and demolished the entire city with the exception of five houses. The rest were thrown down by the earthquake.

¹ 464 B. C.

- 5 Ἐν δὲ μέσῃ τῇ στοᾷ γυμναζομένων ὁμοῦ τῶν ἐφήβων καὶ τῶν νεανίσκων λέγεται μικρὸν πρὸ τοῦ σεισμοῦ λαγὼν παραφανῆναι, καὶ τοὺς μὲν νεανίσκους, ὥσπερ ἦσαν ἀηλιμμένοι, μετὰ παιδιᾶς ἐκδραμεῖν καὶ διώκειν, τοῖς δ' ἐφήβοις ὑπολειφθεῖσιν ἐπιπεσεῖν τὸ γυμνάσιον καὶ πάντας ὁμοῦ τελευτῆσαι. τὸν δὲ τάφον αὐτῶν ἔτι νῦν Σεισματίαν προσαγορεύουσι.
- 6 Ταχὺ δὲ συνιδῶν ἀπὸ τοῦ παρόντος τὸν μέλλοντα κίνδυνον ὁ Ἀρχίδαμος, καὶ τοὺς πολίτας 489 ὀρῶν ἐκ τῶν οἰκιῶν τὰ τιμιώτατα πειρωμένους σώζειν, ἐκέλευσε τῇ σάλπιγγι σημαίνειν, ὡς πολεμίων ἐπιόντων, ὅπως ὅτι τάχιστα μετὰ τῶν ὄπλων ἀθροίζωνται πρὸς αὐτόν. ὃ δὲ καὶ μόνον ἐν τῷ τότε καιρῷ τὴν Σπάρτην διέσωσεν. οἱ γὰρ εἴλωτες ἐκ τῶν ἀγρῶν συνέδραμον πανταχόθεν ὡς ἀναρπασόμενοι τοὺς σεσωσμένους
- 7 τῶν Σπαρτιατῶν. ὦπλισμένους δὲ καὶ συνταγμένους εὐρόντες ἀνεχώρησαν ἐπὶ τὰς πόλεις καὶ φανερώς ἐπολέμουν, τῶν τε περιοίκων ἀναπέισαντες οὐκ ὀλίγους, καὶ Μεσσηνίων ἅμα τοῖς Σπαρτιάταις συνεπιθεμένων.

Πέμπουσιν οὖν οἱ Λακεδαιμόνιοι Περικλείδαν εἰς Ἀθήνας δεόμενοι βοηθεῖν, ὃν φησι κωμωδῶν Ἀριστοφάνης καθεζόμενον ἐπὶ τοῖς βωμοῖς ὄχρον 8 ἐν φοινικίδι στρατιὰν ἐπαιτεῖν. Ἐφιάλτου δὲ κωλύοντος καὶ διαμαρτυρομένου μὴ βοηθεῖν μηδ' ἀνιστάναι πόλιν ἀντίπαλον ἐπὶ τὰς Ἀθήνας, ἀλλ' εἶαν κεῖσθαι καὶ πατηθῆναι τὸ φρόνημα τῆς Σπάρτης, Κίμωνά φησι Κριτίας τὴν τῆς πατρίδος αὐξήσιν ἐν ὑστέρω θέμενον τοῦ Λακεδαιμονιώω

CIMON

It is said that while the young men and youths were exercising together in the interior of the colonnade, just a little before the earthquake, a hare made its appearance, and the youths, all anointed as they were, in sport dashed out and gave chase to it, but the young men remained behind, on whom the gymnasium fell, and all perished together. Their tomb, even down to the present day, they call Seismatias.

Archidamus at once comprehended from the danger at hand that which was sure to follow, and as he saw the citizens trying to save the choicest valuables out of their houses, ordered the trumpet to give the signal of an enemy's attack, in order that they might flock to him at once under arms. This was all that saved Sparta at that crisis. For the Helots hurriedly gathered from all the country round about with intent to despatch the surviving Spartans. But finding them arrayed in arms, they withdrew to their cities and waged open war, persuading many Perioeci also so to do. The Messenians besides joined in this attack upon the Spartans.

Accordingly, the Lacedaemonians sent Pericleidas to Athens with request for aid, and Aristophanes introduces him into a comedy as "sitting at the altars, pale of face, in purple cloak, soliciting an army."¹ But Ephialtes opposed the project, and besought the Athenians not to succour nor restore a city which was their rival, but to let haughty Sparta lie to be trodden under foot of men. Whereupon, as Critias says, Cimon made his country's increase of less account than Sparta's interest, and persuaded the συμφέροντος ἀναπέισαντα τὸν δῆμον ἐξελθεῖν βοηθοῦντα μετὰ πολλῶν ὀπλιτῶν. ὁ δ' Ἴων ἀπομνημονεύει καὶ τὸν λόγον, ᾧ μάλιστα τοὺς Ἀθηναίους ἐκίνησε, παρακαλῶν μῆτε τὴν Ἑλλάδα χωλὴν μῆτε τὴν πόλιν ἑτερόζυγα περιιδεῖν γεγεννημένην.

¹ Lysistrata, 1137 ff.

XVII. Ἐπεὶ δὲ βοηθήσας τοῖς Λακεδαιμονίοις ἀπῆει διὰ Κορίνθου τὴν στρατιὰν ἄγων, ἐνεκάλει Λάχαρτος αὐτῷ πρὶν ἐντυχεῖν τοῖς πολίταις εἰσαγαγόντι τὸ στράτευμα· καὶ γὰρ θύραν κόψαντας ἀλλοτρίαν οὐκ εἰσιέναι πρότερον ἢ τὸν κύριον κελεῦσαι. καὶ ὁ Κίμων “Ἄλλ' οὐχ ὑμεῖς,” εἶπεν, “ὦ Λάχαρτε, τὰς Κλεωναίων καὶ Μεγαρέων πύλας κόψαντες, ἀλλὰ κατασχίσαντες εἰσεβιάσασθε μετὰ τῶν ὄπλων ἀξιούντες ἀνεωγῆναι πάντα τοῖς μείζον δυναμένοις.” οὕτω μὲν ἔθρασύνατο πρὸς τὸν Κορίνθιον ἐν δέοντι, καὶ μετὰ τῆς στρατιᾶς διεξῆλθεν.

- 2 Οἱ δὲ Λακεδαιμόνιοι τοὺς Ἀθηναίους αὐθις ἐκάλουν ἐπὶ τοὺς ἐν Ἰθώμῃ Μεσσηνίους καὶ εἴλωτας, ἐλθόντων δὲ τὴν τόλμαν καὶ τὴν λαμπρότητα δείσαντες ἀπεπέμψαντο μόνους τῶν συμμάχων ὡς νεωτεριστάς. οἱ δὲ πρὸς ὄργην ἀπελθόντες ἤδη τοῖς λακωνίζουσι φανερώς ἐχαλέπαινον, καὶ τὸν Κίμωνα μικρᾶς ἐπιλαβόμενοι προφάσεως ἐξωστράκισαν εἰς ἔτη δέκα· τοσοῦτον γὰρ ἦν χρόνου τεταγμένον ἅπασιν τοῖς ἐξωστρακισομένοις.
- 3 Ἐν δὲ τούτῳ τῶν Λακεδαιμονίων, ὡς ἐπανήρχοντο Δελφοὺς ἀπὸ Φωκῶν ἐλευθερώσαντες, ἐν people to go forth to her aid with many hoplites. And Ion actually mentions the phrase by which, more than by anything else, Cimon prevailed upon the Athenians, exhorting them "not to suffer Hellas to be crippled, nor their city to be robbed of its yoke-fellow."

CIMON

XVII. After he had given aid to the Lacedaemonians, he was going back home with his forces through the Isthmus of Corinth, when Lachartus upbraided him for having introduced his army before he had conferred with the citizens. "People who knock at doors," said he, "do not go in before the owner bids them"; to which Cimon replied, "And yet you Corinthians, O Lachartus, did not so much as knock at the gates of Cleonae and Megara, but hewed them down and forced your way in under arms, demanding that everything be opened up to the stronger." Such was his boldness of speech to the Corinthian in an emergency, and he passed on through with his forces.

Once more the Lacedaemonians summoned the Athenians to come to their aid against the Messenians and Helots in Ithomé, and the Athenians went, but their dashing boldness awakened fear, and they were singled out from all the allies and sent off as dangerous conspirators. They came back home in a rage, and at once took open measures of hostility against the Laconizers, and above all against Cimon. Laying hold of a trifling pretext, they ostracised him for ten years.¹ That was the period decreed in all cases of ostracism.

It was during this period that the Lacedaemonians, after freeing the Delphians from the Phocians,

¹ 461 B.C.

PLUTARCH'S LIVES

Τανάγρα καταστρατοπεδευσάντων Ἀθηναῖοι μὲν
 ἀπήντων διαμαχοῦμενοι, Κίμων δὲ μετὰ τῶν
 ὄπλων ἦκεν εἰς τὴν αὐτοῦ φυλὴν τὴν Οἰνηίδα,
 πρόθυμος ὦν ἀμύνεσθαι τοὺς Λακεδαιμονίους μετὰ
 4 τῶν πολιτῶν. ἡ δὲ βουλὴ τῶν πεντακοσίων πυθο-μένη καὶ φοβηθεῖσα, τῶν ἐχθρῶν αὐτοῦ καταβοώντων ὡς συνταράξαι τὴν φάλαγγα βουλο-μένου καὶ τῇ πόλει Λακεδαιμονίους ἐπαγαγεῖν, ἀπηγόρευσε τοῖς στρατηγοῖς μὴ δέχεσθαι τὸν
 ἄνδρα. κάκεινος μὲν ὄχετο δεηθεὶς Εὐθύππου
 τοῦ Ἀναφλυστίου καὶ τῶν ἄλλων ἐταίρων, ὅσοι
 μάλιστα τὴν τοῦ λακωνίζειν αἰτίαν ἔσχον, ἐρρωμένως ἀγωνίσασθαι πρὸς τοὺς πολεμίους καὶ δι'
 ἔργων ἀπολύσασθαι τὴν αἰτίαν πρὸς τοὺς πολίτας.
 5 οἱ δὲ λαβόντες αὐτοῦ τὴν πανοπλίαν εἰς τὸν λόχον
 ἔθεντο· καὶ μετ' ἀλλήλων συστάντες ἐκθύμως ἑκατὸν ὄντες ἔπεσον, πολὺν αὐτῶν πόθον καὶ μεταμέλειαν ἐφ' οἷς ἠτιάθησαν ἀδίκως ἀπολιπόντες τοῖς Ἀθηναίοις. ὅθεν οὐδὲ τῷ πρὸς Κίμωνα
 θυμῷ πολὺν χρόνον ἐνέμειναν, τὰ μὲν, ὡς εἰκός,
 ὦν ἔπαθον εὖ μεμνημένοι, τὰ δὲ τοῦ καιροῦ συλ-6 λαμβανομένου. νενικημένοι γὰρ ἐν Τανάγρα 490
 μάχῃ μεγάλη καὶ προσδοκῶντες εἰς ὄραν ἔτους
 στρατιὰν Πελοποννησίων ἐπ' αὐτοὺς ἐκάλουν ἐκ
 τῆς φυγῆς τὸν Κίμωνα· καὶ κατήλθε τὸ ψήφισμα
 γράψαντος αὐτῷ Περικλέους. οὕτω τότε πολιτικαὶ μὲν ἦσαν αἱ διαφοραί, μέτριοι δ' οἱ θυμοὶ

CIMON

encamped at Tanagra on their march back home.¹ Here the Athenians confronted them, bent on fighting their issue out, and here Cimon came in arms, to join his own Oeneïd tribe, eager to share with his fellow-citizens in repelling the Lacedaemonians. But the Council of the Five Hundred learned of this and was filled with fear, since Cimon's foes accused him of wishing to throw the ranks into confusion, and then lead the Lacedaemonians in an attack upon the city; so they forbade the generals to receive the man. As he went away he besought Euthippus of Anaphlystus and his other comrades, all who were specially charged with laconizing, to fight sturdily against the enemy, and by their deeds of valour to dissipate the charge which their countrymen laid at their door. They took his armour and set it in the midst of their company, supported one another ardently in the fight, and fell, to the number of one hundred, leaving behind them among the Athenians a great and yearning sense of their loss, and sorrow for the unjust charges made against them. For this reason the Athenians did not long abide by their displeasure against Cimon, partly because, as was natural, they remembered his benefits, and partly because the turn of events favoured his cause. For they were defeated at Tanagra in a great battle, and expected that in the following spring-time an armed force of Peloponnesians would come against them, and so they recalled Cimon from his exile. The decree which provided for his return was formally proposed by Pericles. To such a degree in those days were dissensions based on political differences of opinion, while personal feelings were

¹ 457 B.C.

καὶ πρὸς τὸ κοινὸν εὐανάκλητοι συμφέρον, ἡ δὲ φιλοτιμία πάντων ἐπικρατοῦσα τῶν παθῶν τοῖς τῆς πατρίδος ὑπεχώρει καιροῖς.

XVIII. Εὐθύς μὲν οὖν ὁ Κίμων κατελθὼν ἔλυσε τὸν πόλεμον καὶ διήλλαξε τὰς πόλεις· γενομένης δ' εἰρήνης ὁρῶν τοὺς Ἀθηναίους ἡσυχίαν ἄγειν μὴ δυναμένους, ἀλλὰ κινεῖσθαι καὶ αὐξάνεσθαι ταῖς στρατείαις βουλομένους, ἵνα μὴ τοῖς Ἑλλησι διοχλῶσι μηδὲ περὶ τὰς νήσους ἢ Πελοπόννησον ἀναστρεφόμενοι ναυσὶ πολλαῖς αἰτίας ἐμφυλίων πολέμων καὶ συμμαχικῶν ἐγκλημάτων ἀρχὰς ἐπισπάσωνται κατὰ τῆς πόλεως,

2 ἐπλήρου διακοσίας τριήρεις ὡς ἐπ' Αἴγυπτον καὶ Κύπρον αὐθις ἐκστρατευσόμενος, ἅμα μὲν ἐμμελετᾶν τοῖς πρὸς τοὺς βαρβάρους ἀγῶσι βουλόμενος τοὺς Ἀθηναίους, ἅμα δ' ὠφελεῖσθαι δικαίως τὰς ἀπὸ τῶν φύσει πολεμίων εὐπορίας εἰς τὴν Ἑλλάδα κομίζοντας.

Ἦδη δὲ παρεσκευασμένων ἀπάντων καὶ τοῦ στρατοῦ παρὰ ταῖς ναυσὶν ὄντος ὄναρ εἶδεν ὁ

3 Κίμων. ἐδόκει κύνα θυμουμένην ὑλακτεῖν πρὸς αὐτόν, ἐκ δὲ τῆς ὑκλαῆς μεμιγμένον ἀφείσαν ἀνθρώπου φθόγγον εἰπεῖν·

Στείχε· φίλος γὰρ ἔση καὶ ἐμοὶ καὶ ἐμοῖς σκυλάκεσιν.

οὕτω δὲ δυσκρίτου τῆς ὄψεως οὔσης Ἀστύφίλος ὁ Ποσειδωνιάτης, μαντικὸς ἀνὴρ καὶ συνήθης τῷ Κίμωνι, φράζει θάνατον αὐτῷ προσημαίνειν τὴν ὄψιν, οὕτω διαιρῶν· κύων ἀνθρώπων, πρὸς ὃν ὑλακτεῖ, πολέμιος· πολεμίῳ δ' οὐκ ἂν τις μᾶλλον moderate, and easily recalled into conformity with the public weal. Even ambition, that master passion, paid deference to the country's welfare.

CIMON

XVIII. Well then, as soon as Cimon returned from exile he stopped the war and reconciled the rival cities. After peace was made,¹ since he saw that the Athenians were unable to keep quiet, but wished to be on the move and to wax great by means of military expeditions; also because he wished that they should not exasperate the Hellenes generally, nor by hovering around the islands and the Peloponnesus with a large fleet bring down upon the city charges of intestine war, and initial complaints from the allies, he manned two hundred triremes. His design was to make another expedition with them against Egypt and Cyprus. He wished to keep the Athenians in constant training by their struggles with Barbarians, and to give them the legitimate benefits of importing into Hellas the wealth taken from their natural foes.

All things were now ready and the soldiery on the point of embarking, when Cimon had a dream. He thought an angry bitch was baying at him, and that mingled with its baying it uttered a human voice, saying:—

“Go thy way, for a friend shalt thou be both to me and my puppies.”

The vision being hard of interpretation, Astyphilus of Posidonia, an inspired man and an intimate of Cimon's, told him that it signified his death. He analysed the vision thus: a dog is a foe of the man at whom it bays; to a foe, one cannot be a friend

¹ 450 B.C.

ἡ τελευταία φίλος γένοιτο· τὸ δὲ μῖγμα τῆς φωνῆς Μῆδον ἀποδηλοῖ τὸν ἐχθρόν· ὁ γὰρ
 4 Μῆδων στρατὸς Ἑλλησιν ὁμοῦ καὶ βαρβάροις μέμικται. μετὰ δὲ ταύτην τὴν ὄψιν αὐτοῦ τῷ Διονύσῳ θύσαντος ὁ μὲν μάντις ἀπέτεμε τὸ ἱερεῖον, τοῦ δ' αἵματος τὸ πηγνύμενον ἤδη μύρμηκες πολλοὶ λαμβάνοντες κατὰ μικρὸν ἔφερον πρὸς τὸν Κίμωνα καὶ τοῦ ποδὸς περὶ τὸν μέγαν δάκτυλον περιέπλαττον, ἐπὶ πολὺν χρόνον λανθάνοντες. ἅμα δὲ πως ὁ τε Κίμων τῷ γινομένῳ προσέσχε καὶ παρῆν ὁ θύτης ἐπιδεικνύμενος αὐτῷ τὸν λοβὸν οὐκ ἔχοντα κεφαλὴν.

Ἄλλ' οὐ γὰρ ἦν ἀνάδυσσις τῆς στρατείας ἐξέπλευσε, καὶ τῶν νεῶν ἐξήκοντα μὲν ἀπέστειλεν εἰς Αἴγυπτον, ταῖς δ' ἄλλαις πάλιν . . . ἔπλει.¹
 5 καὶ καταναυμαχῆσας Φοινισσῶν νεῶν καὶ Κιλισσῶν βασιλικὸν στόλον ἀνεκτάτο τε τὰς ἐν κύκλῳ πόλεις καὶ τοῖς περὶ Αἴγυπτον ἐφήδρευεν, οὐδὲν μικρὸν, ἀλλ' ὅλης ἐπινοῶν τῆς βασιλέως ἡγεμονίας κατὰλυσιν, καὶ μάλιστα ὅτι τοῦ Θεμιστοκλέους ἐπυνθάνετο δόξαν εἶναι καὶ δύναμιν ἐν τοῖς βαρβάροις μεγάλην, ὑποδεδεγμένου βασιλεῖ κινουῦντι τὸν Ἑλληνικὸν πόλεμον στρατηγήσειν.
 6 Θεμιστοκλῆς μὲν οὖν οὐχ ἥκιστα λέγεται τὰς Ἑλληνικὰς πράξεις ἀπογνοῦς, ὡς οὐκ ἂν ὑπερβαλόμενος τὴν Κίμωνος εὐτυχίαν καὶ ἀρετὴν, ἐκὼν τελευτῆσαι, Κίμων δὲ μεγάλων ἐπαιρόμενος ἀρχὰς ἀγώνων καὶ περὶ Κύπρον συνέχων τὸ ναυτικὸν ἐπεμφεν εἰς Ἀμμωνος ἄνδρα ἀπόρρητόν τινα μαντείαν ποιησομένους παρὰ τῷ θεῷ.

¹ πάλιν . . . ἔπλει either πάλιν is a corruption (περὶ Παμφυλίαν?), or words have fallen out.

CIMON

any better than by dying; the mixture of speech indicates that the enemy is the Mede, for the army of the Medes is a mixture of Hellenes and Barbarians. After this vision, when Cimon had sacrificed to Dionysus and the seer was cutting up the victim, swarms of ants took the blood as it congealed, brought it little by little to Cimon, and enveloped his great toe therewith, he being unconscious of their work for some time. Just about at the time when he noticed what they were doing, the ministrant came and showed him the liver of his victim without a head.

But since he could not get out of the expedition, he set sail, and after detailing sixty of his ships to go to Egypt, with the rest he made again for Cyprus. After defeating at sea the royal armament of Phœnician and Cilician ships, he won over the cities round about, and then lay threatening the royal enterprise in Egypt, and not in any trifling fashion,—nay, he had in mind the dissolution of the King's entire supremacy, and all the more because he learned that the reputation and power of Themistocles were great among the Barbarians, who had promised the King that when the Hellenic war was set on foot he would take command of it. At any rate, it is said that it was most of all due to Themistocles' despair of his Hellenic undertakings, since he could not eclipse the good fortune and valour of Cimon, that he took his own life.¹

But Cimon, while he was projecting vast conflicts and holding his naval forces in the vicinity of Cyprus, sent men to the shrine of Ammon to get oracular answer from the god to some secret question.

¹ Cf. Themistocles, xxxi. 4.

7 γινώσκει γὰρ οὐδεὶς ὑπὲρ ὧν ἐπέμφθησαν, οὐδὲ χρησμὸν αὐτοῖς ὁ θεὸς ἐξήνεγκεν, ἀλλ' ἅμα τῷ προσελθεῖν ἐκέλευσεν ἀπιέναι τοὺς θεοπρόπους· αὐτὸν γὰρ ἤδη τὸν Κίμωνα παρ' ἑαυτῷ τυγχάνειν ὄντα. ταῦτα ἀκούσαντες οἱ θεοπρόποι κατέβαινον ἐπὶ θάλασσαν· γενόμενοι δὲ ἐν τῷ στρατοπέδῳ τῶν Ἑλλήνων, ὃ τότε περὶ Αἴγυπτου ἦν, ἐπύθοντο τεθνάναι τὸν Κίμωνα· καὶ τὰς ἡμέρας πρὸς τὸ μαντεῖον ἀνάγοντες ἔγνωσαν ἡνιγμένην τὴν τελευτὴν τοῦ ἀνδρός, ὡς ἤδη παρὰ θεοῖς ὄντος.

XIX. Ἀπέθανε δὲ πολιορκῶν Κίτιον, ὡς οἱ 491 πλείστοι λέγουσι, νοσήσας· ἔνιοι δὲ φασιν ἐκ τραύματος, ὃ πρὸς τοὺς βαρβάρους ἀγωνιζόμενος ἔσχε. τελευτῶν δὲ τοὺς περὶ αὐτὸν ἐκέλευσεν εὐθύς ἀποπλεῖν ἀποκρυψαμένους τὸν θάνατον αὐτοῦ· καὶ συνέβη μῆτε τῶν πολεμίων μῆτε τῶν συμμάχων αἰσθομένων ἀσφαλῶς αὐτοὺς ἀνακομισθῆναι στρατηγούμενους ὑπὸ Κίμωνος, ὡς φησι Φανόδημος, τεθνηκότος ἐφ' ἡμέρας τριάκοντα.

2 Μετὰ δὲ τὴν ἐκείνου τελευτὴν πρὸς μὲν τοὺς βαρβάρους οὐδὲν ἔτι λαμπρὸν ὑπ' οὐδενὸς ἐπράχθη στρατηγῶν τῶν Ἑλλήνων, ἀλλὰ τραπέντες ὑπὸ δημαγωγῶν καὶ πολεμοποιῶν ἐπ' ἀλλήλους, οὐδενὸς τὰς χεῖρας ἐν μέσῳ διασχόντος, συνερράγησαν εἰς τὸν πόλεμον, ἀναπνοὴ μὲν τοῖς βασιλέως πράγμασι γενόμενοι, φθόρον δ' ἀμύθητον 3 τῆς Ἑλληνικῆς δυνάμεως ἀπεργασάμενοι. ὁψέ δ' οἱ περὶ τὸν Ἀγησίλαον εἰς τὴν Ἀσίαν ἐξενεγκάμενοι τὰ ὄπλα βραχέος ἤψαντο πολέμου πρὸς

CIMON

No one knows what they were sent to ask, nor did the god vouchsafe them any response, but as soon as the enquirers drew nigh, he bade them depart, saying that Cimon himself was already with him. On hearing this, the enquirers went down to the sea-coast, and when they reached the camp of the Hellenes, which was at that time on the confines of Egypt, they learned that Cimon was dead, and on counting the days back to the utterance of the oracle, they found that it was their commander's death which had been darkly intimated, since he was already with the gods.

XIX. He died while besieging Citium, of sickness, as most say.¹ But some say it was of a wound which he got while fighting the Barbarians. As he was dying he bade those about him to sail away at once and to conceal his death. And so it came to pass that neither the enemy nor the allies understood what had happened, and the force was brought back in safety "under the command of Cimon," as Phanodemus says, "who had been dead for thirty days."

After his death no further brilliant exploit against the Barbarians was performed by any general of the Hellenes, who were swayed by demagogues and partisans of civil war, with none to hold a mediating hand between them, till they actually clashed together in war. This afforded the cause of the King a respite, but brought to pass an indescribable destruction of Hellenic power. It was not until long afterwards² that Agesilaüs carried his arms into Asia and prosecuted a brief war against the King's

¹ Thuc. i. 112.

² 396-394 B.C.

PLUTARCH'S LIVES

τοὺς ἐπὶ θαλάσῃ βασιλέως στρατηγούς· καὶ λαμπρὸν οὐδὲν οὐδὲ μέγα δράσαντες, αὐθις δὲ ταῖς Ἑλληνικαῖς στάσεσι καὶ ταραχαῖς ἀφ' ἐτέρας ἀρχῆς ὑπενεχθέντες, ὄχοντο τοὺς Περσῶν φορολόγους ἐν μέσαις ταῖς συμμάχοις καὶ φίλαις πόλεσιν ἀπολιπόντες, ὧν οὐδὲ γραμματοφόρος κατέβαινεν οὐδ' ἵππος πρὸς θαλάσῃ τετρακοσίων σταδίων ἐντὸς ὤφθη στρατηγούντος Κίμωνος.

- 4 "Ὅτι μὲν οὖν εἰς τὴν Ἀττικὴν ἀπεκομίσθη τὰ λείψανα αὐτοῦ, μαρτυρεῖ τῶν μνημάτων τὰ μέχρι νῦν Κιμώνεια προσαγορευόμενα· τιμῶσι δὲ καὶ Κιτιεῖς τάφον τινὰ Κίμωνος, ὡς Ναυσικράτης ὁ ῥήτωρ φησὶν, ἐν λοιμῇ καὶ γῆς ἀφορία τοῦ θεοῦ προστάξαντος αὐτοῖς μὴ ἀμελεῖν Κίμωνος, ἀλλ' ὡς κρείττονα σέβεσθαι καὶ γεραίρειν. τοιοῦτος μὲν ὁ Ἑλληνικὸς ἡγεμών.

CIMON

generals along the sea-coast. And even he could perform no great and brilliant deeds, but was overwhelmed in his turn by a flood of Hellenic disorders and seditions and swept away from a second empire. So he withdrew, leaving in the midst of allied and friendly cities the tax-gatherers of the Persians, not one of whose scribes, nay, nor so much as a horse, had been seen within four hundred furlongs of the sea, as long as Cimon was general.

That his remains were brought home to Attica, there is testimony in the funeral monuments to this day called Cimonian. But the people of Citium also pay honours to a certain tomb of Cimon, as Nausicrates the rhetorician says, because in a time of pestilence and famine the god enjoined upon them not to neglect Cimon, but to revere and honour him as a superior being. Such was the Greek leader.

LUCULLUS

ΛΟΥΚΟΥΛΛΟΣ

1. Τῷ δὲ Λουκούλλῳ πάππος μὲν ἦν ὑπατικός, θεῖος δὲ πρὸς μητρός Μέτελλος ὁ Νομαδικὸς ἐπικληθείς. τῶν δὲ γονέων ὁ μὲν πατὴρ ἐάλω κλοπῆς, Κεκιλία δὲ ἡ μήτηρ ἠδόξησεν ὡς οὐ βεβιωκυῖα σωφρόνως. αὐτὸς δ' ὁ Λούκουλλος ἔτι μειράκιον ὄν, πρὶν ἀρχὴν τινα μετελθεῖν καὶ πολιτείας ἄψασθαι, πρῶτον ἔργον ἐποιήσατο τὸν τοῦ πατρὸς κατήγορον κρίναι Σερουίλιον
- 2 αὔγουρα, λαβὼν ἀδικούντα δημοσίᾳ. καὶ τὸ πρᾶγμα λαμπρὸν ἐφάνη Ῥωμαίοις, καὶ τὴν δίκην ἐκείνην ὥσπερ ἀριστείαν διὰ στόματος ἔσχον. ἐδόκει δὲ καὶ ἄλλως αὐτοῖς ἄνευ προφάσεως οὐκ ἀγεννὲς εἶναι τὸ τῆς κατηγορίας ἔργον, ἀλλὰ καὶ πάνυ τοὺς νέους ἐβούλοντο τοῖς ἀδικούσιν ἐπιφυομένους ὄρᾶν ὥσπερ θηρίοις εὐγενεῖς σκύλακας. οὐ μὴν ἀλλὰ μεγάλης περὶ τὴν δίκην ἐκείνην φιλονεικίας γενομένης, ὥστε καὶ τρωθῆναί τινας καὶ πεσεῖν, ἀπέφυγεν ὁ Σερουίλιος.
- 3 Ὁ δὲ Λούκουλλος ἤσκητο καὶ λέγειν ἱκανῶς ἐκατέραν γλώτταν, ὥστε καὶ Σύλλας τὰς αὐτοῦ πράξεις ἀναγράφων ἐκείνῳ προσεφώνησεν ὡς συνταξομένῳ καὶ διαθήσονται τὴν ἱστορίαν ἄμεινον. ἦν γὰρ οὐκ ἐπὶ τὴν χρεῖαν μόνην ἐμμελής αὐτοῦ

LUCULLUS

I. IN the case of Lucullus, his grandfather was a man of consular rank, and his uncle on his mother's side was Metellus, surnamed Numidicus. But as for his parents, his father was convicted of peculation, and his mother, Caecilia, had the bad name of a dissolute woman. Lucullus himself, while he was still a mere youth, before he had entered public life or stood for any office, made it his first business to impeach his father's accuser, Servilius the Augur, whom he found wronging the commonwealth. The Romans thought this a brilliant stroke, and the case was in everybody's mouth, like a great deed of prowess. Indeed, they thought the business of impeachment, on general principles and without special provocation, no ignoble thing, but were very desirous to see their young men fastening themselves on malefactors like high-bred whelps on wild beasts. However, the case stirred up great animosity, so that sundry persons were actually wounded and slain, and Servilius was acquitted.

Lucullus was trained to speak fluently both Latin and Greek, so that Sulla, in writing his own memoirs, dedicated them to him, as a man who would set in order and duly arrange the history of the times better than himself. For the style of Lucullus was not only businesslike and ready; the same

PLUTARCH'S LIVES

καὶ πρόχειρος ὁ λόγος, καθάπερ ὁ τῶν ἄλλων τὴν
μὲν ἀγορὰν

Θύννος βολαῖος πέλαγος ὡς διεστρόβει,

- γενόμενος δὲ τῆς ἀγορᾶς ἐκτὸς αὐτος, ἀμουσία
4 τεθνηκώς, ἀλλὰ καὶ τὴν ἐμμελῆ ταύτην καὶ 492
λεγομένην ἑλευθέριον ἐπὶ τῷ καλῷ προσεποιεῖτο
παιδείαν ἔτι καὶ μειράκιον ὦν. γενόμενος δὲ
πρεσβύτερος ἤδη παντάπασιν ὥσπερ ἐκ πολλῶν
ἀγώνων ἀφήκε τὴν διάνοιαν ἐν φιλοσοφίᾳ σχολάζειν
καὶ ἀναπαύεσθαι, τὸ θεωρητικὸν αὐτῆς
ἐγείρας, καταλύσας δ' ἐν καιρῷ καὶ κολούσας τὸ
5 φιλότιμον ἐκ τῆς πρὸς Πομπηίου διαφορᾶς. περὶ
μὲν οὖν τῆς φιλολογίας αὐτοῦ πρὸς τοῖς εἰρημένους
καὶ ταῦτα λέγεται· νέον ὄντα πρὸς Ὀρτήσιον τὸν
δικολόγον καὶ Σισεννᾶν τὸν ἱστορικὸν ἐκ παιδιᾶς
τινος εἰς σπουδὴν προελθούσης ὁμολογήσαι, προθεμένων ποίημα καὶ λόγον Ἑλληνικὸν τε καὶ Ῥωμαϊκόν, εἰς ὃ τι ἂν λάχῃ τούτων, τὸν Μαρ-σικὸν ἐντενεῖν πόλεμον. καὶ πως ἔοικεν εἰς λόγον
Ἑλληνικὸν ὁ κλῆρος ἀφικέσθαι· διασώζεται γὰρ
Ἑλληνικὴ τις ἱστορία τοῦ Μαρσικοῦ πολέμου.
- 6 Τῆς δὲ πρὸς τὸν ἀδελφὸν αὐτοῦ Μάρκον εὐνοίας
πολλῶν τεκμηρίων ὄντων μάλιστα Ῥωμαῖοι τοῦ
πρώτου μνημονεύουσι. πρεσβύτερος γὰρ ὦν
αὐτοῦ λαβεῖν ἀρχὴν μόνος οὐκ ἠθέλησεν, ἀλλὰ
τὸν ἐκείνου καιρὸν ἀναμείνας οὕτως ἐπηγάγετο

LUCULLUS

was true of many another man's in the Forum.
There,

“Like smitten tunny, through the billowy sea it dashed,”

although outside of the Forum it was “Withered, inelegant, and dead.”

But Lucullus, from his youth up, was devoted to the genial and so-called “liberal” culture then in vogue, wherein the Beautiful was sought. And when he came to be well on in years, he suffered his mind to find complete leisure and repose, as it were after many struggles, in philosophy, encouraging the contemplative side of his nature, and giving timely halt and check, after his difference with Pompey, to the play of his ambition. Now, as to his love of literature, this also is reported, in addition to what has already been said: when he was a young man, proceeding from jest to earnest in a conversation with Hortensius, the orator, and Sisenna, the historian, he agreed, on their suggestion of a poem and a history, both in Greek and Latin, that he would treat the Marsic war in whichever of these forms the lot should prescribe. And it would seem that the lot prescribed a Greek history, for there is extant a Greek history of the Marsic war.

Of his affection for his brother Marcus there are many proofs, but the Romans dwell most upon the first. Although, namely, he was older than his brother, he was unwilling to hold office alone, but waited until his brother was of the proper age, and thus gained the favour of the people

PLUTARCH'S LIVES

τὸν δῆμον, ὥστε σὺν ἐκείνῳ μὴ παρὼν ἀγορανόμος αἰρεθῆναι.

- II. Νέος δ' ὢν ἐν τῷ Μαρσικῷ πολέμῳ πολλὰ μὲν τόλμης δείγματα παρέσχε καὶ συνέσεως, μᾶλλον γε μὴν αὐτὸν δι' εὐστάθειαν καὶ πραότητα Σύλλας προσηγάγετο, καὶ χρώμενος ἀπ' ἀρχῆς ἐπὶ τὰ πλείστης ἄξια σπουδῆς διετέλεσεν· ὢν ἦν
- 2 καὶ ἡ περὶ τὸ νόμισμα πραγματεία. δι' ἐκείνου γὰρ ἐκόπη τὸ πλείστον ἐν Πελοποννήσῳ περὶ τὸν Μιθριδατικὸν πόλεμον, καὶ Λουκούλλειον ἀπ' ἐκείνου προσηγορεύθη, καὶ διετέλεσεν ἐπὶ πλείστον, ὑπὸ τῶν στρατιωτικῶν χρεῶν ἐν τῷ πολέμῳ λαμβάνον ἀμοιβὴν ταχείαν. ἐκ τούτου τῆς μὲν γῆς ἐπικρατῶν ὁ Σύλλας ἐν ταῖς Ἀθήναις, περικοπτόμενος δὲ τὴν ἀγορὰν ἐκ τῆς θαλάττης ὑπὸ τῶν πολεμίων ναυκρατούντων, ἐξέπεμψεν ἐπ' Αἰγύπτου καὶ Λιβύης τὸν Λούκουλλον ἄξοντα
- 3 ναῦς ἐκεῖθεν. ἦν μὲν οὖν ἀκμῇ χειμῶνος, ἐξέπλευσε δὲ τρισὶν Ἑλληνικοῖς μυσπάρωσι καὶ δικρότοις Ἰσαῖς Ῥοδιακαῖς πρὸς μέγα πέλαγος καὶ ναῦς πολεμίας, πανταχόσε τῷ κρατεῖν πολλὰς διαφορομένας, παραβαλλόμενος. οὐ μὴν ἀλλὰ καὶ Κρήτην κατάρως ὤκειώσατο καὶ Κυρηναίους καταλαβὼν ἐκ τυραννίδων συνεχῶν καὶ πολέμων ταραττομένους ἀνέλαβε, καὶ κατεστήσατο τὴν πολιτείαν Πλατωνικῆς τινος φωνῆς ἀναμνήσας τὴν πόλιν, ἣν ἐκείνος ἀπεθέσπισε πρὸς αὐτούς.
- 4 δεομένων γάρ, ὡς ἔοικεν, ὅπως τε νόμους γράψῃ καὶ τὸν δῆμον αὐτὸν εἰς τύπον τινὰ καταστήσῃ πολιτείας σὺμφρονος, ἔφη χαλεπὸν εἶναι Κυρηναίοις

LUCULLUS

to such an extent that, although in absence from the city, he was elected aedile along with his brother.

II. Though he was but a young man in the Marsic war,¹ he gave many proofs of courage and understanding. It was, however, more owing to his constancy and mildness that Sulla attached him to himself and employed him from first to last on business of the highest importance. Such, for instance, was the management of the mint. Most of the money used in Peloponnesus during the Mithridatic war was coined by him, and was called Lucullean after him. It remained current for a long time, since the wants of the soldiery during the war gave it rapid circulation. Afterwards, at Athens, Sulla found himself master on land, but cut off from supplies by sea, owing to the superior naval force of the enemy. He therefore despatched Lucullus to Egypt and Libya,² with orders to fetch ships from there. Winter was then at its worst, but he sailed forth with three Greek brigantines and as many small Rhodian galleys, exposing himself not only to the high sea, but to numerous hostile ships which were cruising about everywhere in full mastery of it. However, he put in at Crete and won it over to his side. He also made Cyrené, and finding it in confusion in consequence of successive tyrannies and wars, he restored it to order, and fixed its constitution, reminding the city of a certain oracular utterance which the great Plato had once vouchsafed to them. They asked him, it would seem, to write laws for them, and to mould their people into some form of sound government, whereupon he said that it was hard to be a lawgiver for the Cyrenaeans when they

¹ 90-89 B.C.

² 87-86 B.C.

οὕτως εὐτυχοῦσι νομοθετεῖν. οὐδὲν γὰρ ἀνθρώ-
 πον δυσαρκτότερον εὖ πράσσειν δοκοῦντος,
 οὐδ' αὖ πάλιν δεκτικώτερον ἐπιστασίας συστα-λέντος ὑπὸ τῆς τύχης. ὃ καὶ τότε Κυρηναίους
 νομοθετοῦντι Λουκούλλῳ πρᾶους παρέσχεν.

- 5 Ἐκείθεν δ' ἀναχθεῖς ἐπ' Αἰγύπτου τὰ πλείστα
 τῶν σκαφῶν ἀπέβαλε πειρατῶν ἐπιφανέντων, αὐτὸς δὲ διασωθεὶς κατήγετο λαμπρῶς εἰς Ἀλε-ξάνδρειαν. ἀπήντησε γὰρ αὐτῷ σύμπας ὁ στόλος, ὥσπερ εἰώθει βασιλεῖ καταπλέοντι, κεκοσμη-μένος ἐκπρεπῶς· καὶ τὸ μειράκιον ὁ Πτολεμαῖος
 ἄλλην τε θαυμαστήν ἐπεδείκνυτο φιλοφροσύνην πρὸς αὐτόν, οἴκησίν τε καὶ δῖαιταν ἐν τοῖς βασιλείοις ἔδωκεν, οὐδενός πω ξένου πρότερον ἡγεμόνος
 6 αὐτόθι καταχθέντος. δαπάνην δὲ καὶ σύνταξιν
 οὐχ ὄσσην ἐδίδου τοῖς ἄλλοις, ἀλλὰ τετραπλὴν
 ἐκείνῳ παρέιχεν, οὐ προσιεμένῳ τῶν ἀναγκαίων
 πλέον οὐδὲν οὐδὲ δῶρον λαβόντι, καίπερ ὀγδοή-κοντα ταλάντων ἄξια πέμψαντος αὐτῷ. λέγεται 493
 δὲ μήτ' εἰς Μέμφιν ἀναβῆναι μήτ' ἄλλο τῶν
 θαυματομένων ἐν Αἰγύπτῳ καὶ περιβοήτων ἱστο-ρῆσαι· σχολάζοντος γὰρ εἶναι ταῦτα θεατοῦ καὶ τρυφῶντος, οὐχ, ὡς αὐτός, ἐν ὑπαίθρῳ τὸν αὐτοκράτορα σκηνοῦντα παρὰ ταῖς ἐπάλλξεσι τῶν
 πολεμίων ἀπολελοιπότος.

III. Ἐπεὶ δ' ἀπέλιπε τὴν συμμαχίαν ὁ Πτολε-μαῖος πρὸς τὸν πόλεμον ἀποδειλιάσας, ἐκείνῳ δὲ
 ναῦς ἄχρι Κύπρου πομποὺς παρέσχε, καὶ περὶ
 τὸν ἔκπλου αὐτὸν ἰσπαζόμενος καὶ θεραπεύων
 ἔδωρεῖτο χρυσένδετον σμάραγδον τῶν πολυτελῶν,

LUCULLUS

were having such good-fortune. In fact, nothing is more ungovernable than a man reputed to be prosperous; and, on the other hand, nothing is more receptive of authority than a man who is humbled by misfortune. This was what made the Cyrenaeans at that time so submissive to Lucullus as their law-giver.

From thence he set sail for Egypt, but was attacked by pirates, and lost most of his vessels. He himself, however, escaped in safety, and entered the port of Alexandria in splendid style. The entire Egyptian fleet came to meet him, as it was wont to do when a king put into port, in resplendent array, and the youthful Ptolemy, besides showing him other astonishing marks of kindness, gave him lodging and sustenance in the royal palace, whither no foreign commander had ever been brought before. The allowance which the king made for his expenses was not the same as others had received, but four times as much, and yet he accepted nothing beyond what was actually necessary, and took no gift, although he was offered the worth of eighty talents. It is also said that he neither went up to Memphis, nor sought out any other of the famous wonders of Egypt; this he held to be the privilege of a leisurely and luxurious sight-seer, not of one who, like himself, had left his commander-in-chief encamped under the open sky alongside the battlements of the enemy.

III. Ptolemy abandoned his alliance with Rome, out of fear for the outcome of the war, but furnished Lucullus with ships to convoy him as far as Cyprus, embraced him graciously at parting, and offered him a costly emerald set in gold. At first Lucullus

- τὸ μὲν πρῶτον ὁ Λούκουλλος παρητείτο, δείξαν-τος δὲ τὴν γλυφὴν τοῦ βασιλέως εἰκόνα οὖσαν
 ἰδίαν ἐφοβήθη διώσασθαι, μὴ παντάπασιν ἐχ-
 θρὸς ἀποπλεῖν νομισθεὶς ἐπιβουλευθεῖη κατὰ
 2 θάλατταν. ἐπεὶ δὲ πλήθος ἐν παράπλῳ νεῶν ἐκ τῶν παραλίῳν πόλεων ἀθροίσας, πλὴν ὅσοι πειρατικῶν μετείχον ἀδικημάτων, εἰς τὴν Κύπρον διεπέρασεν, ἐνταῦθα πυνθανόμενος τοὺς πολεμίους ναυλοχοῦντας ἐπὶ ταῖς ἄκραις παραφυλάττειν αὐτόν, ἐνεώλκησε τὰ σκάφη πάντα, καὶ ταῖς
 πόλεσιν ἔγραψε περὶ χειμαδίων καὶ ἀγορᾶς, ὡς
 3 αὐτόθι τὴν ὄραν ἀναμενῶν. εἶτα πλοῦ φανέντος
 ἐξαπίνης κατασπάσας τὰς ναῦς ἀνήχθη, καὶ μεθ'
 ἡμέραν μὲν ὑφειμένοις πλέων τοῖς ἰστίοις καὶ ταπεινοῖς, νύκτωρ δ' ἐπαιρομένοις εἰς Ῥόδον
 ἐσώθη. Ῥοδίων δὲ ναῦς αὐτῷ προσπαρασχόντων Κῶους ἔπεισε καὶ Κνιδίους τῶν βασιλικῶν ἀπαλ-λαγέντας ἐπὶ Σαμίους συστρατεύειν. ἐκ δὲ Χίου
 τοὺς βασιλικοὺς αὐτὸς ἐξήλασε, Κολοφωνίους
 δ' ἠλευθέρωσε συλλαβῶν Ἐπίγονον τὸν τύραννον αὐτῶν.
- 4 Ἐτύγχανε δὲ κατ' ἐκείνον τὸν χρόνον ἤδη
 Μιθριδάτης τὸ Πέργαμον ἐκλελοιπῶς καὶ συνε-σταλμένος εἰς Πιτάνην. ἐκεῖ δὲ Φιμβρίου κατέ-
 χοντος αὐτὸν ἐκ γῆς καὶ πολιορκούντος, εἰς τὴν
 θάλατταν ἀφορῶν συνήγε καὶ μετεπέμπετο τοὺς
 πανταχόθεν στόλους πρὸς αὐτόν, ἀνδρὶ τολμητῇ
 καὶ νενικηκότι τῷ Φιμβρία συμπλέκεσθαι καὶ
 5 πολεμεῖν ἀπεγνωκῶς. ὁ δὲ ταῦτα συνορῶν, ναυτικῷ δὲ λειπόμενος πρὸς Λούκουλλον ἔπεμπεν, ἦκειν τῷ στόλῳ δεόμενος καὶ συνεξελεῖν ἔχθιστου

LUCULLUS

declined to accept it, but when the king showed him that the engraving on it was a likeness of himself, he was afraid to reject it, lest he be thought to have sailed away at utter enmity with the king, and so have some plot laid against him on the voyage. As he sailed along, he collected a multitude of ships from the maritime cities, omitting all those engaged in piracy, and came at last to Cyprus. Learning there that the enemy lay at anchor off the headlands and were watching for his coming, he hauled all his vessels up on land, and wrote letters to the cities requesting winter quarters and provisions, as though he would await the fine season there. Then, when the wind served, he suddenly launched his ships and put out to sea, and by sailing in the day time with his sails reefed and low, but in the night time under full canvas, he came safely to Rhodes. The Rhodians furnished him with more ships, and he induced the people of Cos and Cnidus to forsake the royal cause and join him in an expedition against Samos. Without any aid he also drove the royal forces out of Chios,¹ and set the Colophonians free from their tyrant, Epigonus, whom he arrested.

It happened about this time that Mithridates abandoned Pergamum and shut himself up in Pitané. Since Fimbria held him in close siege there by land, he looked to make his escape by sea, and collected and summoned his fleets from every quarter for this purpose, renouncing all engagements in the field with a man so bold and victorious as Fimbria. This design Fimbria perceived, and being without any fleet of his own, sent to Lucullus, beseeching him to come with his, and assist in capturing the

¹ 85 B.C.

PLUTARCH'S LIVES

καὶ πολεμώτατον βασιλέων, ὡς μὴ τὸ μέγα καὶ
 διὰ πολλῶν ἀγώνων καὶ πόνων διωκόμενον ἄθλον
 ἐκφύγοι Ῥωμαίους, Μιθριδάτης εἰς λαβὰς ἤκων καὶ γεγωνὸς ἐντὸς ἀρκύων, οὐ ληφθέντος οὐδένα
 τῆς δόξης οἴσεσθαι πλέον ἢ τὸν ἐμποδῶν τῇ φυγῇ
 6 στάντα καὶ διαδιδράσκοντος ἐπιλαβόμενον· ὑφ'
 ἑαυτοῦ μὲν ἐξεωσμένον τῆς γῆς, ὑπ' ἐκείνου δὲ
 τῆς θαλάττης εἰργόμενον ἀμφοτέροις ἀποδώσειν
 τὸ κατόρθωμα, τὰς δὲ Σύλλα πρὸς Ὀρχομενῶ
 καὶ περὶ Χαιρώνειαν ὑμνουμένας ἀριστείας ἐν
 οὐδενὶ λόγῳ θήσεσθαι Ῥωμαίους. καὶ οὐδὲν ἦν
 ἀπὸ τρόπου τῶν λεγομένων, ἀλλὰ παντὶ δῆλον,
 ὡς, εἰ Φιμβρία τότε πεισθεὶς ὁ Λούκουλλος οὐ
 μακρὰν ὦν περιήγαγεν ἐκείσε τὰς ναῦς καὶ συνέ-φραξε τὸν λιμένα τῷ στόλῳ, πέρασ ἂν εἶχεν ὁ
 πόλεμος καὶ μυρίων ἀπηλλαγμένοι κακῶν ἅπαντες
 7 ἦσαν. ἀλλ' εἴτε τὰ πρὸς Σύλλαν δίκαια πρεσ-βεύων πρὸ παντὸς ἰδίου τε καὶ κοινοῦ συμφέροντος, εἴτε τὸν Φιμβρίαν μιὰρὸν ὄντα καὶ φονέα
 γεγενημένον ἔναγχος ἀνδρὸς φίλου καὶ στρατηγοῦ
 διὰ φιλαρχίαν προβαλλόμενος, εἴτε κατὰ θείαν
 δὴ τινα τύχην περιφεισάμενος αὐτὸς τοῦ¹ Μιθρι-δάτου καὶ φυλάξας ἀνταγωνιστήν, οὐχ ὑπήκουσεν,
 ἀλλὰ Μιθριδάτῃ μὲν ἐκπλεύσαι παρέσχε καὶ
 8 καταγελάσαι τῆς Φιμβρίου δυνάμεως, αὐτὸς δὲ
 πρῶτον μὲν ἐπὶ Λεκτοῦ τῆς Τρωάδος βασιλικὰς
 ναῦς ἐπιφανείσας κατεναυμάχησεν, αὐθις δὲ πρὸς
 Τενέδῳ ναυλοχοῦντα μείζονι παρασκευῇ κατιδῶν

¹ αὐτὸς τοῦ Reiske, Coraës, Bekker : αὐτοῦ.

LUCULLUS

most hostile and warlike of kings, that the great prize which they had sought with so many toils and struggles might not escape the Romans, now that Mithridates was in their grip and fast in the meshes of their net. If he should be captured, Fimbria said, no one would get more of the glory than the man who stood in the way of his flight and seized him as he was running off. "Driven from the land by me, and excluded from the sea by you, he will crown us both with success, and the much heralded exploits of Sulla at Orchomenus and Chaeroneia will cease to interest the Romans." And there was nothing absurd in the proposition. It is clear to everyone that if Lucullus, who was close at hand, had then listened to Fimbria, brought his ships thither, and closed up the harbour with his fleet, the war would have been at an end, and the world freed from infinite mischief. But, whether he ranked the honourable treatment of Sulla above every consideration of private or public advantage, or whether he regarded Fimbria as a wretch whose ambition for command had recently led him to murder a man who was his friend and superior officer, or whether it was by some mysterious dispensation of fortune that he chose to spare Mithridates, and so reserved him for his own antagonist,—for whatever reason, he would not listen to the proposal, but suffered Mithridates to sail off and mock at Fimbria's forces, while he himself, to begin with, defeated the king's ships which showed themselves off Lectum in the Troad. And again, catching sight of Neoptolemus lying in wait for him at Tenedos with a still larger armament, Νεοπτόλεμον ἐπέπλει πρὸ τῶν ἄλλων, Ῥοδιακῆς πεντήρους ἐπιβεβηκῶς, ἧς ἐναυάρχει Δαμαγόρας, ἀνὴρ εὖνους τε Ῥωμαίοις καὶ θαλασσιῶν ἀγώνων 9 ἐμπειρότατος. ἐπελαύνοντος δὲ ῥοθίῳ τοῦ Νεοπτολέμου καὶ κελεύσαντος εἰς ἐμβολὴν ἀγαγεῖν 494 τὸν κυβερνήτην, δείσας ὁ Δαμαγόρας τὸ βάρος τῆς βασιλικῆς καὶ τὴν τραχύτητα τοῦ χαλκώματος οὐκ ἐτόλμησε συμπεσεῖν ἀντίπρῳρος, ἀλλ' ὀξέως ἐκ περιαγωγῆς ἀποστρέψας ἐκέλευσεν ἐπὶ πρύμναν ὤσασθαι καὶ πιεσθείσης ἐνταῦθα τῆς νεῶς ἐδέξατο τὴν πληγὴν ἀβλαβῆ γενομένην, ἅτε δὴ τοῖς θαλαττεύουσι τῆς νεῶς μέρεσι προσπε- 10 σοῦσαν. ἐν τούτῳ δὲ τῶν φίλων προσφερομένων, ἐγκελευσάμενος ὁ Λούκουλλος ἐπιστρέφει καὶ πολλὰ δράσας ἄξια λόγου τρέπεται τοὺς πολεμίους καὶ καταδιώκει τὸν Νεοπτόλεμον.

IV. Ἐκεῖθεν δὲ Σύλλα περὶ Χερρόνησον ἤδη μέλλοντι διαβαίνειν συμβαλὼν τὸν τε πόρον ἀσφαλῆ παρεῖχε καὶ τὴν στρατιὰν συνδιεβίβαζεν. ἐπεὶ δὲ συνθηκῶν γενομένων Μιθριδάτης μὲν ἀπέπλευσεν εἰς τὸν Εὐξείνιον πόντον, Σύλλας δὲ τὴν Ἀσίαν δισμυρίοις ταλάντοις ἐξημίωσε, προσ- ταχθὲν αὐτῷ τά τε χρήματα ταῦτα πρᾶξαι καὶ νόμισμα κόψαι, παραμύθιον τι δοκεῖ τῆς Σύλλας χαλεπότητος γενέσθαι ταῖς πόλεσιν, οὐ μόνον καθαρὸν καὶ δίκαιον, ἀλλὰ καὶ πρᾶον εἰς οὕτω βαρὺ καὶ σκυθρωπὸν ὑπηρέτημα παρασχὼν ἑαυτὸν.

2 Μιτυληναίους δ' ἄντικρυς ἀφεστῶτας ἐβούλετο μὲν εὐγνωμονῆσαι καὶ δίκης τυχεῖν μετρίας ἐφ' οἷς περὶ Μάριον¹ ἐξήμαρτον, ὡς δ' ἑώρα κακοδαιμο-

¹ Μάριον with Sintenis¹ and Coraës : Μάνιον.

LUCULLUS

he sailed out against him in advance of the rest, on board of a Rhodian galley which was commanded by Damagoras, a man well disposed to the Romans, and of the largest experience as a sea-fighter. Neoptolemus dashed out to meet him, and ordered his steersman to ram the enemy. Damagoras, however, fearing the weight of the royal ship and her rugged bronze armour, did not venture to engage head on, but put swiftly about and ordered his men to back water, thus receiving his enemy astern, where his vessel was depressed. The blow was harmless, since it fell upon the submerged parts of the ship. At this point, his friends coming up, Lucullus gave orders to turn the ship about, and, after performing many praiseworthy feats, put the enemy to flight and gave close chase to Neoptolemus.

IV. From thence he joined Sulla at the Chersonesus, where he was about to cross the strait into Asia;¹ he rendered his passage safe, and assisted in transporting his troops. After peace had been made, Mithridates sailed away into the Euxine, and Sulla laid a contribution of twenty thousand talents upon Asia. Lucullus was commissioned to collect this money and re-coin it, and the cities of Asia felt it to be no slight assuagement of Sulla's severity when Lucullus showed himself not only honest and just, but even mild in the performance of a task so oppressive and disagreeable. The Mitylenaeans too, who had revolted outright, he wished to be reasonable, and to submit to a moderate penalty for having espoused the cause of Marius. But when he saw that they were possessed by an

¹ 84 B.C.

PLUTARCH'S LIVES

νοῦντας, ἐπιπλεύσας ἐκράτησε μάχη καὶ κατέκλεισεν εἰς τὰ τείχη, καὶ πολιορκίαν συστησάμενος ἐξέπλευσε μὲν ἡμέρας καὶ φανερώς εἰς Ἐλαίαν, ὑπέστρεψε δὲ λεληθότως καὶ περὶ τὴν πόλιν 3 ὑφεῖς ἐνέδραν ἡσύχαζεν. ἐπεὶ δ' ἀτάκτως καὶ μετὰ θράσους ὡς ἔρημον ἀρπασόμενοι τὸ στρατόπεδον οἱ Μιτυληναῖοι προήλθον, ἐπισπεσὼν αὐτοῖς ἔλαβέ τε παμπόλλους ζῶντας καὶ τῶν ἀμυνομένων πεντακοσίους ἀπέκτεινεν, ἀνδραπόδων δὲ χιλιάδας ἕξ καὶ τὴν ἄλλην ἀναρίθμητον ἤλασατο λείαν.

4 Τῶν δὲ περὶ τὴν Ἰταλίαν κακῶν, ἃ τότε Σύλλας καὶ Μάριος ἄφθονα καὶ παντοδαπὰ τοῖς ἀνθρώποις παρέιχον, οὐ πᾶν μετέσχε θεία τιτὴ τύχη περὶ τὰς ἐν Ἀσίᾳ πράξεις βραδύνας. οὐ μὴν ἔλαττόν τι παρὰ Σύλλα τῶν ἄλλων φίλων ἔσχευ, ἀλλὰ τὴν τε γραφήν, ὡς εἴρηται, τῶν ὑπομνημάτων ἐκείνῳ δι' εὐνοίαν ἀνέθηκε, καὶ τελευτῶν ἐπίτροπον τοῦ παιδὸς ἔγραψεν ὑπερβᾶς Πομπήϊον. καὶ δοκεῖ τοῦτο πρῶτον αὐτοῖς ὑπάρξει διαφορᾶς αἴτιον καὶ ζηλοτυπίας νέοις οὔσι καὶ διαπύροις πρὸς δόξαν.

V. Ὀλίγῳ δ' ὕστερον ἢ Σύλλαν ἀποθανεῖν ὑπάτευσε μετὰ Μάρκου Κόττα περὶ τὴν ἕκτην καὶ ἑβδομηκοστὴν πρὸς ταῖς ἑκατὸν ὀλυμπιάδα. πολλῶν οὖν αὐθις ἀνακινούντων τὸν Μιθριδατικὸν πόλεμον, ἔφη Μάρκος αὐτὸν οὐ πεπαῦσθαι, ἀλλ' ἀναπεπαῦσθαι. διὸ καὶ λαχὼν τῶν ἐπαρχιῶν ὁ Λούκουλλος τὴν ἐντὸς Ἀλπεων Γαλατίαν ἤχθητο, πράξεων ὑποθέσεις μεγάλων οὐκ ἔχουσαν.

LUCULLUS

evil spirit, he sailed against them, conquered them in battle, and shut them up within their walls. After instituting a siege of their city, he sailed away in open day to Elaea, but returned by stealth, and lay quietly in ambush near the city. When the Mitylenaeans sallied forth in disorder and with the confident expectation of plundering his deserted camp, he fell upon them, took a great number of them alive, and slew five hundred of those who offered resistance. He also carried off six thousand slaves, besides countless other booty.

But in the boundless and manifold evils which Sulla and Marius were bringing upon the people of Italy at that time, he had no share whatever, for, as some kindly fortune would have it, he was detained at his business in Asia.¹ However, Sulla accorded no less favour to Lucullus than to his other friends. His memoirs, as I have said, Sulla dedicated to Lucullus in token of affection, and in his will appointed him guardian of his son, thereby passing Pompey by. And this seems to have been the first ground for estrangement and jealousy between these two men; both were young, and burning for distinction.

V. Shortly after the death of Sulla, Lucullus was made consul along with Marcus Cotta, about the hundred and seventy-sixth Olympiad.² Many were now trying to stir up anew the Mithridatic war, which Marcus said had not come to an end, but merely to a pause. Therefore when the province of Cisalpine Gaul was allotted to Lucullus, he was displeased, since it offered no opportunity for great exploits. But what most of all embittered him was

¹ 84-80 B.C.

² 74 B.C.

- 2 μάλιστα δ' αὐτὸν εὐδοκίμων Πομπήϊος ἐν Ἰβηρίᾳ παρώξυνεν, ὡς ἄλλος οὐδεὶς ἐπίδοξος ὢν, εἰ συμβαίῃ παύσασθαι τὸν Ἰβηρικὸν πόλεμον, εὐθύς αἰρεθήσεται στρατηγὸς ἐπὶ Μιθριδάτην. διὸ καὶ χρήματα αἰτοῦντος αὐτοῦ καὶ γράφοντος, ὡς, εἰ μὴ πέμποιεν, ἀφείς Ἰβηρίαν καὶ Σερτώριον εἰς Ἰταλίαν ἀπάξοι τὰς δυνάμεις, συνέπραξεν ὁ Λούκουλλος προθυμότατα πεμφθῆναι τὰ χρήματα καὶ μηδ' ἀφ' ἧστινοσοῦν προφάσεως ἐκείνον
- 3 ἐπανελθεῖν ὑπατεύοντος αὐτοῦ· πάντα γὰρ ἂν ἐπ' ἐκείνῳ γενήσεται τὰ τῆς πόλεως παρόντι μετὰ τοσαύτης στρατιᾶς. καὶ γὰρ ὁ κρατῶν τότε τῆς πολιτείας τῷ πρὸς χάριν ἅπαντα καὶ λέγειν καὶ πράττειν Κέθηγος ἔχθραν τινὰ πρὸς Λούκουλλον εἶχε, βδελυττόμενον αὐτοῦ τὸν βίον 495 αἰσχυρῶν ἐρώτων καὶ ὕβρεως καὶ πλημμελείας
- 4 μεστὸν ὄντα. τοῦτον μὲν οὖν ἄντικρυς ἐπολέμει· Λεύκιον δὲ Κόϊντον, ἄλλον δημαγωγόν, ἐπαναστάντα τοῖς Σύλλα πολιτεύμασι καὶ ταραττεῖν τὰ πράγματα πειρώμενον ἐκ τοῦ καθεστῶτος, ἰδίᾳ τε πολλὰ παραμυθούμενός καὶ δημοσίᾳ νουθετῶν ἀπέστησε τῆς πείρας καὶ κατεστόρεσε τὴν φιλοτιμίαν, ὡς ἐνῆν μάλιστα πολιτικῶς καὶ σωτηριῶς ἀρχὴν νοσήματος μεγάλου μεταχειρισάμενος.

VI. Ἐν τούτῳ δ' ὁ τὴν Κιλικίαν ἔχων Ὀκταούϊος ἠγγέλθη τεθνηκῶς. σπαργόντων δὲ πολλῶν πρὸς τὴν ἐπαρχίαν καὶ Κέθηγον ὡς δυνατώτατον ὄντα διαπράξασθαι θεραπευόντων, αὐτῆς μὲν ὁ Λούκουλλος Κιλικίας οὐ πολὺν εἶχε λόγον, οἴομενος δ', εἰ λάβοι ταύτην, ἐγγὺς οὔσης Καππαδοκίας, ἄλλον οὐδένα πεμφθήσεται πολε-

LUCULLUS

the reputation which Pompey was winning in Spain. If the war in Spain should happen to come to an end, Pompey was more likely than anyone else to be at once chosen general against Mithridates. Therefore when Pompey wrote home requesting money, and declaring that if they did not send it, he would abandon Spain and Sertorius and bring his forces back to Italy, Lucullus moved heaven and earth to have the money sent, and to prevent Pompey from coming back, on any pretext whatsoever, while he was consul. He knew that all Rome would be in Pompey's hands if he were there with so large an army. For the man who at that time controlled the course of political affairs by virtue of doing and saying everything to court the favour of the people, Cethegus, hated Lucullus, who loathed his manner of life, full as it was of disgraceful amours and wanton trespasses. Against this man Lucullus waged open war. But Lucius Quintus, another popular leader, who opposed the institutions of Sulla and sought to confound the established order of things, he turned from his purpose by much private remonstrance and public admonition, and allayed his ambition, thus treating in as wise and wholesome a manner as was possible the beginnings of a great distemper.

VI. At this time there came tidings of the death of Octavius, the governor of Cilicia. There were many eager applicants for the province, and they paid court to Cethegus as the man best able to further their designs. Of Cilicia itself Lucullus made little account, but in the belief that, if he should get this province, which was near Cappadocia, no one else would be sent to conduct the war against

μήσοντα Μιθριδάτη, πᾶσαν ἔστρεφε μηχανὴν
 2 ὑπὲρ τοῦ μὴ προσέσθαι τὴν ἐπαρχίαν ἐτέρῳ. καὶ
 τελευτῶν ἔργου οὐ σεμνὸν. οὐδ' ἐπαινετόν, ἄλλως
 δ' ἀνύσιμον πρὸς τὸ τέλος ἐκ τῆς ἀνάγκης
 ὑπέμεινε παρὰ τὴν ἑαυτοῦ φύσιν.

Πραικία τις ἦν ὄνομα τῶν ἐφ' ὧρα καὶ λαμυρία
 διαβοήτων ἐν τῇ πόλει, τὰ μὲν ἄλλα κρείττων
 οὐδὲν ἀνέδην ἐταιρούσης γυναικός, ἐκ δὲ τοῦ χρῆσθαι τοῖς ἐντυγχάνουσιν αὐτῇ καὶ διαλεγομένοις πρὸς τὰς ὑπὲρ τῶν φίλων σπουδὰς καὶ
 πολιτείας προσλαβοῦσα τῇ λουπῇ χάριτι τὸ
 δοκεῖν φιλέταιρός τις εἶναι καὶ δραστήριος
 3 ἴσχυσε μέγιστον. ὡς δὲ καὶ Κέθηγον ἀνθούonta
 τῇ δόξῃ τότε καὶ φέροντα τὴν πόλιν ὑπηγάγετο
 καὶ συνῆν ἐρῶντι, παντάπασιν εἰς ἐκείνην
 περιήλθεν ἢ τῆς πόλεως δύναμις. οὐδὲ γὰρ
 ἐπράττετό τι δημοσία Κεθήγου μὴ σπουδάζοντος
 οὐδὲ Πραικίας μὴ κελευούσης παρὰ Κεθήγῳ.
 ταύτην οὖν ὑπελθὼν δώροις ὁ Λούκουλλος καὶ κολακείαις (ἦν δὲ που καὶ τῷ Λουκούλλῳ συμφιλοτιμουμένην ὁρᾶσθαι μέγας γυναικὶ σοβαρᾷ καὶ πανηγυρικῇ μισθός), εὐθύς εἶχε τὸν
 Κέθηγον ἐπαινέτην καὶ προμνόμενον αὐτῷ
 4 Κιλικίαν. ἐπεὶ δ' ἄπαξ ἔτυχε ταύτης, οὐδὲν ἔτι Πραικίαν οὐδὲ Κέθηγον ἔδει παρακαλεῖν, ἀλλὰ
 πάντες ὁμαλῶς ἐκείνῳ φέροντες ἐνεχείρισαν τὸν Μιθριδατικὸν πόλεμον ὡς ὑφ' ἐτέρου μηδενὸς
 ἄμεινον διαπολεμηθῆναι δυνάμενον, Πομπηίου μὲν
 ἔτι Σερτωρίῳ προσπολεμοῦντος, Μετέλλου δ' ἀπειρηκότος ἤδη διὰ γῆρας, οὓς μόνους ἂν τις

LUCULLUS

Mithridates, he strained every nerve to keep the province from being assigned to another. And finally, contrary to his natural bent, he was driven by the necessities of the case to adopt a course which was neither dignified nor praiseworthy, it is true, but conducive to his end.

There was a certain woman then in Rome, Praecia by name, whose fame for beauty and wit filled the city. In other respects she was no whit better than an ordinary courtesan, but she used her associates and companions to further the political ambitions of her friends, and so added to her other charms the reputation of being a true comrade, and one who could bring things to pass. She thus acquired the greatest influence. And when Cethegus also, then at the zenith of his fame and in control of the city, joined her train and became her lover, political power passed entirely into her hands. No public measure passed unless Cethegus favoured it, and Cethegus did nothing except with Praecia's approval. This woman, then, Lucullus won over by gifts and flatteries, and it was doubtless a great boon for a woman so forward and ostentatious to be seen sharing the ambitions of Lucullus. Straightway he had Cethegus singing his praises and suing for Cilicia in his behalf. But as soon as he had obtained this province, there was no further need of his soliciting the aid of Praecia, or of Cethegus, for that matter, but all were unanimous and prompt in putting into his hands the Mithridatic war, assured that no one else could better bring it to a triumphant close. Pompey was still engaged in his war with Sertorius, Metellus had now retired from active service by reason of his age, and these were the only

5 ἐναμίλλους ἐποίησατο Λουκούλλῳ περὶ τῆς
στρατηγίας ἀμφισβητοῦντας. οὐ μὴν ἀλλὰ Κόπτας ὁ συνάρχων αὐτοῦ πολλὰ λιπαρήσας τὴν
σύγκλητον ἀπεστάλη μετὰ νεῶν τὴν Προποντίδα
φυλάξων καὶ προπολεμήσων Βιθυνίας.

VII. Λούκουλλος δὲ τάγμα μὲν αὐτόθεν ἔχων
συντεταγμένον ὑπ' αὐτοῦ διέβαινεν εἰς τὴν
'Ἀσίαν· ἐκεῖ δὲ τὴν ἄλλην παρέλαβε δύναμιν,
πάντων μὲν πάλαι τρυφαῖς διεφθορότων καὶ
πλεονεξίαις, τῶν δὲ Φιμβριανῶν λεγομένων καὶ
2 διὰ συνήθειαν ἀναρχίας δυσμεταχειρίστων γεγονότων. οὗτοι γὰρ ἦσαν οἱ Φλάκκον τε μετὰ
Φιμβρίου τὸν ὑπατον καὶ στρατηγὸν ἀνηρηκότες
αὐτόν τε τὸν Φιμβρίαν Σύλλα προδοδωκότες, αὐθάδεις μὲν ἄνθρωποι καὶ παράνομοι, μάχιμοι
δὲ καὶ τλήμονες μετ' ἐμπειρίας πολέμου. οὐ
μὴν ἀλλὰ βραχεῖ χρόνῳ καὶ τούτων τὸ θράσος
ὁ Λούκουλλος ἐξέκοψε καὶ τοὺς ἄλλους ἐπέ-στρεψε, τότε πρῶτον, ὡς ἔοικε, πειρωμένους
ἄρχοντος ἀληθινοῦ καὶ ἡγεμόνος· ἄλλως δ' ἐδη-μαγωγοῦντο πρὸς ἡδονὴν ἐθιζόμενοι στρατεύεσθαι.
3 Τὰ δὲ τῶν πολεμίων οὕτως εἶχε. Μιθριδάτης, 496
ὥσπερ οἱ πολλοὶ τῶν σοφιστῶν, κομπῶδης ἐν
ἀρχῇ καὶ σοβαρὸς ἐπὶ Ῥωμαίους ἀναστὰς διακένῳ δυνάμει, λαμπρᾷ δὲ καὶ πανηγυρικῇ τὴν
ᾄψιν, εἴτ' ἐκπεσὼν καταγελάστως καὶ νουθετη-θεῖς, ὅτε τὸ δεύτερον πολεμεῖν ἔμελλεν, εἰς
ἀληθινὴν καὶ πραγματικὴν συνέστελλε τὰς δυνά-4 μεις παρασκευήν. ἀφελὼν γὰρ τὰ παντοδαπὰ
πλήθη καὶ τὰς πολυγλώσσους ἀπειλὰς τῶν
βαρβάρων, ὅπλων τε¹ διαχρύσων καὶ διαλίθων

¹ τε with S: δέ.

LUCULLUS

men who could be regarded as rivals of Lucullus in any dispute about this command. Cotta, however, his colleague in the consulship, after fervent entreaties to the Senate, was sent with some ships to guard the Propontis, and to protect Bithynia.

VII. With a legion which he had raised himself in Italy, Lucullus crossed into Asia,¹ and there assumed command of the rest of the Roman forces. All these had long been spoiled by habits of luxury and greed, and the Fimbrians, as they were called, had become unmanageable, through long lack of discipline. These were the men who, in collusion with Fimbrius, had slain Flaccus, their consul and general, and had delivered Fimbrius himself over to Sulla. They were self-willed and lawless, but good fighters, hardy, and experienced in war. However, in a short time Lucullus pruned off their insolent boldness, and reformed the rest. Then for the first time, as it would seem, they made the acquaintance of a genuine commander and leader, whereas before this they had always been cajoled into doing their duty, like crowds at the hustings.

On the enemy's side, matters stood as follows. Mithridates, boastful and pompous at the outset, like most of the Sophists, had first opposed the Romans with forces which were really unsubstantial, though brilliant and ostentatious to look upon. With these he had made a ridiculous fiasco and learned a salutary lesson. When therefore, he thought to go to war the second time, he organized his forces into a genuinely effective armament. He did away with Barbarous hordes from every clime, and all their discordant and threatening cries; he provided no

¹ 74 B.C. Cf. Cimon, i. 5.

PLUTARCH'S LIVES

κατασκευάς, ὡς λάφυρα τῶν κρατούντων, οὐκ ἀλκὴν τινα τῶν κεκτημένων ὄντα, ξίφη μὲν ἠλαύνετο Ῥωμαϊκὰ καὶ θυρεοὺς ἐμβριθεῖς ἐπήγνυτο καὶ γεγυμνασμένους μᾶλλον ἢ κεκοσμημένους ἤθροιζεν ἵππους, πεζῶν δὲ μυριάδας δώδεκα κατεσκευασμένων εἰς φάλαγγα Ῥωμαϊκὴν, ἰππεῖς δὲ πρὸς μυρίοις ἑξακισχιλίους ἄνευ τῶν δρεπανη-
 5 φόρων τεθρίππων· ταῦτα δ' ἦν ἑκατόν· ἔτι δὲ ναῦς οὐ χρυσορόφοις σκηνίσιν οὐδὲ λουτροῖς παλλακίδων καὶ γυναικωνίτισι τρυφώσαις ἡσκημένας, ἀλλ' ὄπλων καὶ βελῶν καὶ χρημάτων γεμούσας παραρτυσάμενος ἐνέβαλεν εἰς Βιθυνίαν, τῶν πόλεων αὐθις ἀσμένως ὑποδεχομένων οὐ μόνον τούτων, ἀλλὰ καὶ τὴν Ἀσίαν ὅλην ὑποτροπὴ τῶν ἔμπροσθεν νοσημάτων εἶχεν, ἀφόρητα πᾶσχουσιν ὑπὸ Ῥωμαϊκῶν δανειστῶν καὶ τελω-
 6 νῶν· οὓς ὕστερον μὲν ὥσπερ Ἀρπυίας τὴν τροφὴν ἀρπάζοντας αὐτῶν ὁ Λούκουλλος ἐξήλασε, τότε δὲ μετριωτέρους ἐπειρᾶτο νουθετῶν ποιεῖν, καὶ τὰς ἀποστάσεις κατέπαυε τῶν δήμων, οὐδενός, ὡς ἔπος εἰπεῖν, ἡσυχάζοντος.

VIII. Ὃν δὲ περὶ ταῦτα Λούκουλλος ἡσχολεῖτο χρόνον αὐτοῦ καιρὸν εἶναι νομίζων ὁ Κόττας παρεσκευάζετο μάχεσθαι πρὸς Μιθριδάτην. καὶ πολλῶν ἀπαγγελλόντων ἤδη Λούκουλλον ἐν Φρυγίᾳ στρατοπεδεύειν ἐπιόντα, μόνον οὐκ ἐν ταῖς χερσὶν ἔχειν τὸν θρίαμβον οἰόμενος, ὡς μὴ μεταλάβῃ Λούκουλλος αὐτοῦ,
 2 συμβαλεῖν ἔσπευσε. πληγεῖς δ' ἄμα καὶ κατὰ

LUCULLUS

more armour inlaid with gold and set with precious stones, for he saw that these made rich booty for the victors, but gave no strength whatever to their wearers; instead, he had swords forged in the Roman fashion, and heavy shields welded; he collected horses that were well trained rather than richly caparisoned, and a hundred and twenty thousand footmen drilled in the Roman phalanx formation, and sixteen thousand horsemen, not counting the scythe-bearing, four-horse chariots, which were a hundred in number: and further, he put in readiness ships which were not tricked out with gilded canopies, or baths for concubines, and luxurious apartments for women, but which were rather loaded down with armour and missiles and munitions of war. Then he burst into Bithynia, and not only did the cities there receive him again with gladness, but all Asia suffered a relapse into its former distempered condition, afflicted, as it was, past bearing by Roman money-lenders and tax-gatherers. These were afterwards driven off by Lucullus,—harpies that they were, snatching the people's food; but then he merely tried, by admonishing them, to make them more moderate in their demands, and laboured to stop the uprisings of the towns, hardly one of which was in a quiet state.

VIII. While Lucullus was thus occupied, Cotta, thinking that his own golden opportunity had come, was getting ready to give battle to Mithridates. And when tidings came from many sources that Lucullus was coming up, and was already encamped in Phrygia, thinking that a triumph was all but in his grasp, and desiring that Lucullus have no share in it, he hastened to engage the king. But γῆν καὶ κατὰ θάλατταν ἐξήκοντα μὲν ἀπώλεσεν αὐτανδρα σκάφη, πεζοὺς δὲ τετρακισχιλίους, αὐτὸς δὲ κατακλεισθεὶς εἰς Χαλκηδόνα καὶ πολιορκούμενος εἰς τὰς Λουκούλλου χεῖρας ἀπέβλεπεν.

- 3 Ἦσαν μὲν οὖν οἱ τὸν Λούκουλλον ἀμελήσαντα Κόττα πρόσω χωρεῖν παρορμῶντες ὡς ἔρημον αἰρήσοντα τὴν Μιθριδάτου βασιλείαν, καὶ μάλιστα τῶν στρατιωτῶν οὗτος ἦν ὁ λόγος, ἀγανακτούντων, εἰ μὴ μόνον αὐτὸν ἀπολεῖ καὶ τοὺς σὺν αὐτῷ βουλευσάμενος κακῶς ὁ Κόττας, ἀλλὰ καὶ σφίσιν ἐμποδῶν ἔσται νικᾶν ἀμαχεὶ δυνα-
- 4 μένοις. Λούκουλλος δὲ πρὸς μὲν τούτους δημηγορῶν εἶπεν, ὡς ἔνα βούλοιτ' ἂν ἐκ πολεμίων σῶσαι Ῥωμαῖον ἢ πάντα λαβεῖν τὰ τῶν πολεμίων Ἀρχελάου δὲ τοῦ περὶ Βοιωτίαν Μιθριδάτη στρατηγήσαντος, εἶτ' ἀποστάντος καὶ Ῥωμαίοις συστρατεύοντος, διαβεβαιουμένου ὀφθέντα Λούκουλλον ἐν Πόντῳ πάντων ὁμοῦ κρατήσῃν, οὐκ ἔφη δειλότερος εἶναι τῶν κυνηγῶν, ὥστε τὰ θηρία παρελθὼν ἐπὶ κενοὺς αὐτῶν τοὺς φωλεοὺς βαδί-
- 5 ζειν. καὶ ταῦτ' εἰπὼν ἐπὶ Μιθριδάτην προῆγε πεζοὺς μὲν ἔχων τρισμυρίους, ἵππεῖς δὲ δισχιλίους πεντακοσίους. καταστὰς δ' εἰς ἔποψιν τῶν πολεμίων καὶ θαυμάσας τὸ πλῆθος ἐβούλετο μὲν ἀπέχεσθαι μάχης καὶ τρίβειν τὸν χρόνον, Μαρίου δ', ὃν Σερτώριος ἐξ Ἰβηρίας ἀπεστάλκει Μιθριδάτη μετὰ δυνάμεως στρατηγόν, ἀπαντήσαντος αὐτῷ καὶ προκαλουμένου κατέστη μὲν εἰς τάξιν ὡς διαμαχούμενος, ἤδη δὲ ὄσον οὐπω συμφερο-
- 6 μένων, ἀπ' οὐδεμιᾶς ἐπιφανοῦς μεταβολῆς, ἀλλ'

LUCULLUS

he was defeated by sea and land, lost sixty vessels, crews and all, and four thousand foot-soldiers, while he himself was shut up in Chalcedon and besieged there, looking for relief at the hands of Lucullus.

Now there were some who urged Lucullus to ignore Cotta and march on into the kingdom of Mithridates, assured of capturing it in its defenceless condition. This was the reasoning of the soldiers especially, who were indignant that Cotta, by his evil counsels, should not only be the undoing of himself and his army, but also block their own way to a victory which they could have won without a battle. But Lucullus, in a harangue which he made them, said that he would rather save one Roman from the enemy than take all that enemy's possessions. And when Archelaüs, who had held command for Mithridates in Boeotia, and then had abandoned his cause, and was now in the Roman army, stoutly maintained that if Lucullus were once seen in Pontus, he would master everything at once, Lucullus declared that he was at least as courageous as the hunter; he would not give the wild beasts the slip and stalk their empty lairs. With these words, he led his army against Mithridates, having thirty thousand foot-soldiers, and twenty-five hundred horsemen. But when he had come within sight of the enemy and seen with amazement their multitude, he desired to refrain from battle and draw out the time. But Marius, whom Sertorius had sent to Mithridates from Spain with an army, came out to meet him, and challenged him to combat, and so he put his forces in array to fight the issue out. But presently, as they were on the point of joining

ἑξαίφνης τοῦ ἀέρος ὑπορραγέντος¹ ὤφθη μέγα σῶμα φλογειδὲς εἰς μέσον τῶν στρατοπέδων καταφερόμενον, τὸ μὲν σχῆμα πίθῳ μάλιστα, τὴν δὲ χροάν ἀργύρῳ διαπύρῳ προσεικός, ὥστε δείσαντας ἀμφοτέρους τὸ φάσμα διακριθῆναι. 497
 7 τοῦτο μὲν οὖν φασιν ἐν Φρυγίᾳ περὶ τὰς λεγομένας Ὀτρύας συμβῆναι τὸ πάθος.

Ὁ δὲ Λούκουλλος οὐδεμιᾶς εἶναι νομίζων ἀνθρωπίνης παρασκευῆς οὐδὲ πλούτου θρέψαι μυριάδας ἐπὶ πολὺν χρόνον ἀντικαθηρένων πολεμίων τοσαύτας, ὅσας εἶχε Μιθριδάτης, ἐκέλευσεν ἀχθῆναι τῶν αἰχμαλώτων ἕνα· καὶ πρῶτον ἀνέκρινε, μετὰ πόσων διαιτῶτο συσκήνων, ἔπειτα
 8 πόσον ἐν τῇ σκηνῇ καταλέλοιπε σίτον. ἀποκριναμένου δὲ τῆς ἀνθρώπου τὸν μὲν ἐκέλευσε μεταστήναι, δεῦτερον δὲ καὶ τρίτον ὁμοίως ἀνέκρινεν. εἶτα συνθεὶς τὸ τῆς παρεσκευασμένης τροφῆς πλήθος πρὸς τὸ τῶν τρεφομένων, ἔγνω τριῶν ἢ τεσσάρων ἡμερῶν ἐπιλείψοντα σίτον τοὺς πολεμίους. καὶ πολὺ μᾶλλον εἶχετο τοῦ χρόνου, καὶ συνήγεν εἰς τὸν χάρακα παμπληθῆ σίτον, ὡς ἐν ἀφθόνοις διάγων αὐτὸς ἐφεδρεύοι ταῖς ἐκείνων ἀπορίαις.

IX. Ἐν τούτῳ δὲ Μιθριδάτης ἐπεβούλευε Κυζικηνοῖς πεπληγόσιν ἐν τῇ περὶ Χαλκηδόνα μάχῃ· τρισχιλίων γὰρ ἀνδρῶν καὶ δέκα νεῶν ἐστέρηντο. βουλόμενος οὖν λαθεῖν τὸν Λούκουλλον, εὐθύς ἀπὸ δείπνου νύκτα δυσφανῆ καὶ νοτεράν ἔχων ἐκίνει· καὶ φθάνει τῆς πόλεως ἀντικρυς ἅμ' ἡμέρα περὶ τὸ τῆς Ἀδραστείας ὄρος battle, with no apparent change of weather, but all on a sudden, the sky burst asunder, and a huge, flame-like body was seen to fall between the two armies. In shape, it was most like a wine-jar, and in colour, like molten silver. Both sides were astonished at the sight, and separated. This marvel, as they say, occurred in Phrygia, at a place called Otryae.

¹ ὑπορραγέντος with S : ἀπορραγέντος.

LUCULLUS

But Lucullus, feeling sure that no human provision or wealth could maintain, for any length of time, and in the face of an enemy, so many thousands of men as Mithridates had, ordered one of the captives to be brought to him, and asked him first, how many men shared his mess, and then, how much food he had left in his tent. When the man had answered these questions, he ordered him to be removed, and questioned a second and a third in like manner. Then, comparing the amount of food provided with the number of men to be fed, he concluded that within three or four days the enemy's provisions would fail them. All the more, therefore, did he trust to time, and collected into his camp a great abundance of provisions, that so, himself in the midst of plenty, he might watch for his enemy's distress.

IX. But in the meantime, Mithridates planned a blow at Cyzicus, which had suffered terribly in the battle near Chalcedon, having lost three thousand men and ten ships. Accordingly, wishing to evade the notice of Lucullus, he set out immediately after the evening meal, taking advantage of a dark and rainy night, and succeeded in planting his forces over against the city, on the slopes of the mountain range

PLUTARCH'S LIVES

- 2 ἰδρύσας τὴν δύναμιν. Ὁ δὲ Λούκουλλος αἰσθόμενος καὶ διώξας ἠγάπησε μὲν οὐκ ἐμπεσῶν ἀσύντακτος εἰς τοὺς πολεμίους, καθίζει δὲ τὸν στρατὸν περὶ τὴν Θρακίαν λεγόμενην κώμην ἐν τόπῳ κατὰ τῶν ὁδῶν ἄριστα πεφυκότι καὶ τῶν χωρίων, ἀφ' ὧν καὶ δι' ὧν ἀναγκαῖον ἦν τοῖς Μιθριδατικοῖς τὰ ἐπιτήδεια φοιτᾶν. διὸ καὶ περιλαβὼν τῇ διανοίᾳ τὸ μέλλον οὐκ ἀπεκρύψατο τοὺς στρατιώτας, ἀλλ' ἅμα τῷ θέσθαι τὸ στρατόπεδον καὶ ἀπὸ τῶν ἔργων γενέσθαι συναγαγὼν αὐτοὺς ἐμεγαληγόρησεν, ὡς ὀλίγων ἡμερῶν ἀναιμωτὶ τὸ νίκημα παραδώσων αὐτοῖς.
- 3 Κυζικηνοὺς δὲ Μιθριδάτης δέκα μὲν ἐκ γῆς στρατοπέδοις περιλαβὼν, ταῖς δὲ ναυσὶν ἐκ θαλάσσης τὸν ἀπὸ τῆς ἠπείρου διείργοντα τὴν πόλιν εὖριπον ἐμφράξας, ἐκατέρωθεν ἐπολιόρκει, τὰ μὲν ἄλλα διακειμένους πρὸς τὸν κίνδυνον εὐθαρσῶς καὶ πᾶν ἔνεκα Ῥωμαίων ἐγνωκότας ἐκδέχεσθαι δυσχερές, ἀγνοοῦντας δὲ ὄπη Λούκουλλος εἶη καὶ τῷ μηδὲν
- 4 περὶ αὐτοῦ πεπύσθαι ταραττομένους. καίτοι καταφανὴς ἦν ἡ στρατοπεδεία καὶ ἄποπτος, ἀλλ' ὑπο τῶν Μιθριδατικῶν ἐξηπατῶντο. δεικνύντες γὰρ αὐτοῖς τοὺς Ῥωμαίους ἄνω παρεμβεβληκότας “Ὁρᾶτε τούτους;” ἔφασαν, “Ἀρμενίων στρατὸς ἐστὶ καὶ Μήδων, Τιγράνου Μιθριδάτη καταπέμψαντος ἐπικουρίαν.” οἱ δ' ἐξεπλήσσαντο τοσούτου πολέμου περικεχυμένου μηδ', εἰ παραγένοιτο Λούκουλλος, χῶραν ἔτι λελεῖφθαι βοηθείας ἐλπίζοντες.
- 5 Οὐ μὴν ἀλλὰ πρῶτος αὐτοῖς εἰσπεμφθεὶς ὑπ' Ἀρχελάου Δημῶναξ ἔφρασε τὴν τοῦ Λουκούλλου of Adrasteia, by day-break. Lucullus got wind of his departure and pursued him, but was well satisfied not to fall upon the enemy while his own troops were in disorder from their march, and stationed his army near the village called Thracia, in a spot best suited to command the roads and regions from which, and over which, the army of Mithridates must get its necessary supplies. Seeing clearly, therefore, what the issue must be, he did not conceal it from his soldiers, but as soon as they had completed the labour of fortifying their camp, called them together, and boastfully told them that within a few days he would give them their victory, and that without any bloodshed.

LUCULLUS

Mithridates was besieging Cyzicus both by land and sea, having encompassed it with ten camps on the land side, and having blockaded with his ships by sea the narrow strait which parts the city from the mainland. Although the citizens viewed their peril with a high courage, and were resolved to sustain every hardship for the sake of the Romans, still, they knew not where Lucullus was, and were disturbed because they heard nothing of him. And yet his camp was in plain sight, only they were deceived by their enemies. These pointed the Romans out to them, lying encamped on the heights, and said: "Do you see those forces? It is an army of Armenians and Medes which Tigranes has sent to assist Mithridates." They were therefore terrified to see such hosts encompassing them, and had no hopes that any way of succour remained, even if Lucullus should come.

However, in the first place, Demonax was sent in to them by Archelaüs, and told them that Lucullus

PLUTARCH'S LIVES

παρουσίαν. Τούτων δ' ἀπιστούντων καὶ νομιζόντων αὐτὸν τῶν παρόντων ἐπὶ παρηγορία πεπλασμένα λέγειν, ἦκε παιδάριον αἰχμάλωτον ἐκ τῶν πολεμίων ἀποδεδρακός. πυνθανομένων δ' αὐτῶν, ποῦ λέγοι τὸν Λούκουλλον εἶναι, κατεγέλα παίζειν αὐτοὺς οἰόμενον. ὡς δ' ἑώρα σπουδάζοντας, ἐσήμηνε τῇ χειρὶ τὸν χάρακα τῶν Ῥωμαίων, οἱ δ' 6 ἀνεθάρσησαν. τῆς δὲ Δασκυλίτιδος λίμνης πλεομένης ἀκατίοις ἐπιεικῶς εὐμεγέθεσι, τὸ μέγιστον αὐτῶν ὁ Λούκουλλος ἀνεγκύσας καὶ διαγαγὼν ἀμάξῃ πρὸς τὴν θάλατταν ὅσους ἐχώρει στρατιώτας ἐνεβίβασεν. ἔλαθον δὲ νυκτὸς διαπεράσαντες καὶ παρεισῆλθον εἰς τὴν πόλιν.

X. Ἔοικε δὲ καὶ τὸ θεῖον ἐπιθαρρῦναι τοὺς Κυζικηνούς, ἀγασθὲν αὐτῶν τὴν ἀνδραγαθίαν, ἄλλοις τε σημείοις ἐναργέσι, καὶ τῆς τῶν Φερεφατῶν ἐορτῆς ἐνεστῶσης οἱ μὲν ἠπόρουσαν βοδὸς μελαίνης πρὸς τὴν θυσίαν καὶ σταιτίνην πλάσαντες 498 τῷ βωμῷ παρέστησαν, ἡ δ' ἱερὰ καὶ τρεφομένη τῇ θεῷ νομὴν μὲν εἶχεν, ὥσπερ τὰλλα βοτὰ τῶν Κυζικηνῶν, ἐν τῇ περαία, κατ' ἐκείνην δὲ τὴν ἡμέραν ἀποκριθεῖσα τῆς ἀγέλης μόνη διενήξατο πρὸς τὴν πόλιν καὶ κατέστησεν ἐπὶ τὴν θυσίαν 2 αὐτήν. ὄναρ δ' ἡ θεὸς Ἀρισταγόρα τῷ τοῦ δήμου γραμματιστῇ παραστᾶσα, “Καὶ μὴν ἔγωγε,” εἶπεν, “ἦκω τὸν Διβυκὸν αὐλητὴν ἐπὶ τὸν Ποντικὸν σαλπικτὴν ἐπάγουσα. φράσον οὖν θαρρεῖν τοῖς πολίταις.” θαυμαζόντων δὲ τὴν φωνὴν τῶν Κυζικηνῶν ἅμ' ἡμέρα σάλον εἶχεν ἡ θάλασσα κατιόντος ἀκρίτου πνεύματος, αἳ τε μηχαναὶ τοῦ βασιλέως παρεστῶσαι τοῖς τείχεσιν, ἔργα θαυμαστὰ Νικωνίδου τοῦ Θεσσαλοῦ, ροίζω 500 was arrived. They disbelieved him, and thought he had invented his story merely to mitigate their anxieties, but then a boy came to them, who had escaped from his captivity with the enemy. On their asking him where he thought Lucullus was, he laughed at them, supposing them to be jesting. But when he saw that they were in earnest, he pointed out the Roman camp to them, and their courage was revived. Again, Lucullus drew out on shore the largest of the sizable craft which plied the lake Dascylitis, carried it across to the sea on a waggon, and embarked upon it as many soldiers as it would hold, who crossed by night unobserved, and got safely into the city.

LUCULLUS

X. It would seem also that Heaven, in admiration of their bravery, emboldened the men of Cyzicus by many manifest signs, and especially by the following. The festival of Persephone was at hand, and the people, in lack of a black heifer for the sacrifice, fashioned one of dough, and brought it to the altar. Now the sacred heifer reared for the goddess was pasturing, like the other herds of the Cyzicenes, on the opposite side of the strait, but on that day she left her herd, swam over alone to the city, and presented herself for the sacrifice. And again, the goddess appeared in a dream to Aristagoras, the town-clerk, saying: "Lo, here am I, and I bring the Libyan fifer against the Pontic trumpeter. Bid the citizens therefore be of good cheer." While the Cyzicenes were lost in wonder at the saying, at day-break the sea began to toss under a boisterous wind, and the siege-engines of the king along the walls, the wonderful works of Niconides the Thessalian, by 3 καὶ πατάγῳ πρῶτον ἀπεδήλουν τὸ μέλλον· εἶτα νότος ἐκραγεῖς ἄπιστος τὸ μέγεθος τά τ' ἄλλα συνέτριψε μηχανήματα ὥρας βραχεῖ μορίῳ, καὶ τὸν ξύλινον πύργον ἑκατὸν πηχῶν ὕψος ὄντα διασείσας κατέβαλεν. ἱστορεῖται δὲ τῶν ἐν Ἰλίῳ πολλοῖς καθ' ὕπνον ὀφθῆναι τὴν Ἀθηνᾶν ἰδρῶτι πολλῷ ῥεομένην καὶ ὑποφαίνουσάν τι τοῦ πέπλου παρερρωγός, λέγουσαν, ὡς ἀρτίως ἦκοι βοηθήσασα Κυζικηνοῖς. καὶ στήλην τινα δόγματα καὶ γράμματα περὶ τούτων ἔχουσαν ἐδείκνυον Ἰλιεῖς.

XI. Μιθριδάτην δέ, ἄχρι μὲν ὑπὸ τῶν ἑαυτοῦ στρατηγῶν φενακίζόμενος ἠγνόει τὸν ἐν τῷ στρατοπέδῳ λιμόν, ἠνίων Κυζικηνοὶ διαφεύγοντες τὴν πολιορκίαν. ταχὺ δ' ἐξερρύη τὸ φιλότιμον αὐτοῦ καὶ φιλόνεικον ἐν αἰσθήσει γενομένου τῶν ἀποριῶν, αἷς οἱ στρατιῶται συνείχοντο, καὶ τῶν ἀνθρωποφαγιῶν, ἅτε δὴ μὴ θεατρικῶς μῆδ' ἐπιδεικτικῶς Λουκούλλου πολεμοῦντος, ἀλλά, τοῦτο δὴ τὸ λεγόμενον, εἰς τὴν γαστέρα ἐναλλομένου καὶ ὅπως ὑφαιρήσει τὴν τροφήν ἅπαντα πραγματευομένου. διὸ καὶ φρούριόν τι πολιορκοῦντος αὐτοῦ τῷ καιρῷ χρήσασθαι σπεύδων ὁ Μιθριδάτης ἐξέπεμψεν εἰς Βιθυνίαν τοὺς μὲν ἵππεῖς σχεδὸν ἅπαντας μετὰ τῶν ὑποζυγίων, τῶν δὲ πεζῶν τοὺς ἀχρήστους. πυθόμενος δ' ὁ Λούκουλλος ἔτι νυκτὸς ἤκεν εἰς τὸ στρατόπεδον, πρῶτ' δὲ χειμῶνος ὄντος ἀναλαβὼν σπέρας δέκα καὶ τὴν ἵππου ἐδίωκε νιφόμενος καὶ κακοπαθῶν, ὥστε πολλοὺς ὑπὸ κρύους ἐνδιδόντας ἀπολείπεσθαι τῶν στρα-

LUCULLUS

their creaking and cracking showed clearly what was about to happen; then a south wind burst forth with incredible fury, shattered the other engines in a short space of time, and threw down with a great shock the wooden tower a hundred cubits high. It is related, too, that the goddess Athena appeared to many of the inhabitants of Ilium in their sleep, dripping with sweat, showing part of her peplus torn away, and saying that she was just come from assisting the Cyzicenes. And the people of Ilium used to show a stelé which had on it certain decrees and inscriptions relating to this matter.

XI. Mithridates, as long as his generals deceived him into ignorance of the famine in his army, was vexed that the Cyzicenes should successfully withstand his siege. But his eager ambition quickly ebbed away when he perceived the straits in which his soldiers were involved, and their actual cannibalism. For Lucullus was not carrying on the war in any theatrical way, nor for mere display, but, as the saying is, was "kicking in the belly," and devising every means for cutting off food. Accordingly, while Lucullus was laying siege to some outpost or other, Mithridates eagerly took advantage of the opportunity, and sent away into Bithynia almost all his horsemen, together with the beasts of burden, and those of his foot-soldiers who were disabled. On learning of this, Lucullus returned to his camp while it was still night, and early in the morning, in spite of a storm, took ten cohorts of infantry and his calvary, and started in pursuit, although snow was falling and his hardships were extreme. Many of his soldiers were overcome with the cold and had to be left behind, but with the rest he overtook the

- τιωτῶν, τοῖς δ' ἄλλοις περὶ τὸν Ῥυνδακὸν ποταμὸν
 3 καταλαβὼν τοὺς πολεμίους τοσαύτην τροπὴν
 ἐποίησεν, ὥστε τὰς γυναῖκας ἐκ τῆς Ἀπολλωνίας
 προερχομένας ἀφαρπάζειν τὰ φορτία καὶ σκυ-λεύειν τοὺς φονευομένους. πολλῶν δ', ὡς εἰκός, ἀποθανόντων ἐάλωσαν ἵπποι μὲν ἑξακισχίλιοι
 καὶ πλῆθος ἀναρίθμητον ὑποζυγίων, ἄνδρες δὲ
 μύριοι πεντακισχίλιοι· καὶ τούτους ἄγων πάντα
 παρεξήει παρὰ τὸ στρατόπεδον τῶν πολεμίων.
 4 Σαλουστίου δὲ θαυμάζω τότε πρῶτον ὦφθαι
 Ῥωμαίοις καμήλους λέγοντος, εἰ μήτε πρότερον
 τοὺς μετὰ Σκηπίωνος νικήσαντας Ἀντίοχον ᾤετο
 μήτε τοὺς ἔναγχος πρὸς Ὀρχομενῶ καὶ περὶ Χαιρώνειαν Ἀρχελάφ μεμαχημένους ἐγνωκέναι κάμηλον.
 5 Ἀλλὰ τῷ γε Μιθριδάτῃ φεύγειν μὲν ἔγνωστο
 τὴν ταχίστην, ἀνθοκὰς δὲ Λουκούλλῳ καὶ διατριβὰς ὀπίσω μηχανώμενος ἔστειλε τὸν ναύαρχον Ἀριστόνικον ἐπὶ τὴν Ἑλληνικὴν θάλασσαν· καὶ
 ὅσον οὐπω μέλλοντος ἐκπλεῖν ἐκ προδοσίας ὁ Λούκουλλος ἐκυρίευσε μετὰ χρυσῶν μυρίων, οὗς
 ἐκόμιζε διαφθερῶν τι τοῦ Ῥωμαϊκοῦ στρατεύματος. ἐκ τούτου Μιθριδάτῃ μὲν ἔφυγεν ἐπὶ
 θάλασσαν, οἱ δὲ στρατηγοὶ πεζοὶ τὸν στρατὸν
 6 ἀπήγαγον. ἐπιπεσῶν δὲ Λούκουλλος αὐτοῖς
 περὶ τὸν Γρανικὸν ποταμὸν εἰλέ τε παμπόλλους
 καὶ δισμυρίους ἀπέκτεινε. λέγονται δ' ἐκ τοῦ
 παντὸς ἀκολούθων τε καὶ μαχίμων ὄχλου μυριἄδες οὐ πολὺ δὴ τῶν τριάκοντα λείπουσαι 499
 διαφθαρῆναι.

XII. Λούκουλλος δὲ πρῶτον εἰς Κύζικον παρελθὼν ἀπέλαυσεν ἡδονῆς καὶ φιλοφροσύνης enemy at the river Rhyndacus and inflicted such a defeat upon them that the very women came forth from Apollonia and carried off their baggage and stripped their slain. Many fell in the battle, as it is natural to suppose. Six thousand horses and fifteen thousand men were captured, besides an untold number of beasts of burden. All these followed in the train of Lucullus as he marched back past the camp of the enemy. Sallust says, to my amazement, that camels were then seen by the Romans for the first time. He must have thought that the soldiers of Scipio who conquered Antiochus before this, and those who had lately fought Archelaüs at Orchomenus and Chaeroneia, were unacquainted with the camel.

LUCULLUS

Mithridates was now resolved upon the speediest possible flight, but with a view to drawing Lucullus away, and holding him back from pursuit, he dispatched his admiral, Aristonicus, to the Grecian sea. Aristonicus was just on the point of sailing when he was betrayed into the hands of Lucullus, together with ten thousand pieces of gold which he was carrying for the corruption of some portion of the Roman army. Upon this, Mithridates fled to the sea, and his generals of infantry began to lead the army away. But Lucullus fell upon them at the river Granicus, captured a vast number of them, and slew twenty thousand. It is said that out of the whole horde of camp-followers and fighting men, not much less than three hundred thousand perished in the campaign.

XII. Lucullus, in the first place, entered Cyzicus in triumph, and enjoyed the pleasant welcome which

PLUTARCH'S LIVES

πρεπούσης· ἔπειτα ναυτικὸν ἐξηρτύετο τὸν Ἑλλησποντον ἐπιπορευόμενος. εἰς δὲ Τρωάδα καταχθεῖς ἐσκήνωσε μὲν ἐν τῷ ἱερῷ τῆς Ἀφροδίτης, κατακοιμηθεὶς δὲ νύκτωρ ἐδόκει τὴν θεὰν ὄραν ἐφεστῶσαν αὐτῷ καὶ λέγουσαν·

Τί κνώσσεις, μεγάθυμε λέον; νεβροὶ δέ τοι ἐγγύς.

- 2 ἔξαναστάς δὲ καὶ τοὺς φίλους καλέσας διηγείτο τὴν ὄψιν ἔτι νυκτὸς οὔσης. καὶ παρήσαν ἐξ Ἴλιου τινὲς ἀπαγγέλλοντες ὠφθαί περὶ τὸν Ἀχαιῶν λιμένα τρισκαίδεκα πεντήρεις τῶν βασιλικῶν ἐπὶ Λῆμνον πλεύσας. εὐθύς οὖν ἀναχθεὶς τούτους μὲν εἶλε καὶ τὸν στρατηγὸν αὐτῶν Ἰσίδωρον ἀπέκτεινεν, ἐπὶ δὲ τοὺς ἄλλους ἔπλει
- 3 πρῶρας. οἱ δὲ ἔτυχον ὀρμούντες, καὶ τὰ πλοῖα πάντα πρὸς τὴν γῆν συνέλκοντες ἀπὸ τῶν καταστρωμάτων διεμάχοντο καὶ πληγὰς ἐδίδοσαν τοῖς περὶ τὸν Λούκουλλον, οὔτε περιπλεῦσαι τοῦ χωρίου διδόντος οὔτε βιάσασθαι ναυσὶ μετεώροις τὰς τῶν πολεμίων προσερηρισμένας
- 4 τῇ γῆ καὶ βεβηκυίας ἀσφαλῶς. οὐ μὲν ἀλλὰ μόλις ἢ προσβολὴν τινα ἢ νῆσος εἶχεν ἀποβιβάζει τῶν στρατιωτῶν τοὺς ἀρίστους, οἱ κατόπιν ἐπιπεσόντες τοῖς πολεμίοις τοὺς μὲν διέφθειρον αὐτῶν, τοὺς δ' ἠνάγκαζον ἀποκόπτοντας τὰ πρυμνήσια τῶν νεῶν καὶ φεύγοντας ἐκ τῆς γῆς ἀλλήλοις τε συγκρούειν τὰ πλοῖα καὶ ταῖς ἐμβολαῖς ταῖς περὶ τὸν Λούκουλλον ὑποπίπτειν.
- 5 πολλοὶ μὲν οὖν διεφθάρησαν, ἐν δὲ τοῖς ἀλοῦσιν ἀνήχθη καὶ Μάριος ὁ παρὰ Σερτωρίου στρατηγός·

LUCULLUS

was his due ; then he proceeded to the Hellespont, and began to equip a fleet. On visiting the Troad, he pitched his tent in the sacred precinct of Aphrodite, and in the night, after he had fallen asleep, he thought he saw the goddess standing over him and saying :—

“ Why dost thou sleep, great lion ? the fawns are near for thy taking.”

Rising up from sleep and calling his friends, he narrated to them his vision, while it was yet night. And lo, there came certain men from Ilium, with tidings that thirteen of the king's galleys had been seen off the harbour of the Achaeans, making for Lemnos. Accordingly, Lucullus put to sea at once, captured these, slew their commander, Isodorus, and then sailed in pursuit of the other captains, whom these were seeking to join. They chanced to be lying at anchor close to shore, and drawing their vessels all up on land, they fought from their decks, and sorely galled the crews of Lucullus. These had no chance to sail round their enemies, nor to make onset upon them, since their own ships were afloat, while those of their enemies were planted upon the land and securely fixed. However, Lucullus at last succeeded in disembarking the best of his soldiers where the island afforded some sort of access. These fell upon the enemy from the rear, slew some of them, and forced the rest to cut their stern cables and fly from the shore, their vessels thus falling foul of one another, and receiving the impact of the ships of Lucullus. Many of the enemy perished, of course, and among the captives there was brought in Marius, the general sent from ἦν γὰρ ἑτερόφθαλμος, καὶ παρήγγελτο τοῖς στρατιώταις εὐθὺς ἐπιπλέουσιν ὑπὸ Λουκούλλου μηδένα κτείνειν ἑτερόφθαλμον, ὅπως ἔξουειδισθεῖς καὶ καθυβρισθεῖς ἀποθάνοι.

XIII. Γενόμενος δ' ἀπὸ τούτων ἠπείγετο πρὸς τὴν αὐτοῦ Μιθριδάτου δίωξιν. ἤλπιζε γὰρ ἔτι περὶ Βιθυνίαν εὐρήσειν αὐτὸν ὑπὸ Βοκωνίου φρουρούμενον, ὃν αὐτὸς ἐνστησόμενον τῇ φυγῇ
 2 μετὰ νεῶν ἀπεστάλκει πρὸς Νικομήδειαν. ἀλλὰ Βοκώνιος μὲν ἐν Σαμοθράκῃ μνούμενος καὶ πανηγυρίζων καθυστέρησε· Μιθριδάτην δὲ ἀναχθέντα μετὰ τοῦ στόλου, σπεύδοντα πρὶν ἐπιστρέφειν Λούκουλλον εἰς τὸν Πόντον εἰσπλευσαι, καταλαμβάνει χειμῶν πολὺς, ὑφ' οὗ τὰ μὲν ἀφηρηπάγη, τὰ δ' ἐβυθίσθη τῶν σκαφῶν, πᾶσα δ' ἡ παραλία τῶν ναυαγίων ἐκφερομένων ὑπὸ τοῦ κλύδωνος ἐπὶ πολλὰς ἡμέρας ἦν περίπλεως.
 3 αὐτὸς δέ, τῆς ὀλκάδος, ἐφ' ἧς ἔπλει, μήτε πρὸς τὴν γῆν εὐπαρακομίστου διὰ μέγεθος ἐν σάλῳ μεγάλῳ καὶ κύματι τυφλῷ παρισταμένης τοῖς κυβερνήταις, πρὸς τε τὴν θάλασσαν ἤδη βαρείας καὶ ὑπεράντλου γενομένης, μετεμβὰς εἰς ληστρικὸν μνοπάρωνα καὶ τὸ σῶμα πειραταῖς ἐγχειρίσας ἀνελπίστως καὶ παραβόλως εἰς τὴν Ποντικὴν
 4 Ἑράκλειαν ἐξεσώθη. Λουκούλλω δ' ἀνεμέσητος ἢ πρὸς τὴν σύγκλητον ἀπέβη φιλοτιμία. ψηφισομένης γὰρ αὐτῆς πρὸς τὸν πόλεμον ἀπὸ τρισχιλίων ταλάντων ἐξαρτύεσθαι ναυτικόν, ἐκώλυσε πέμψας γράμματα καὶ μεγαληγορήσας,

LUCULLUS

Sertorius. He had but one eye, and the soldiers had received strict orders from Lucullus, as soon as they set sail, to kill no one-eyed man. Lucullus wished Marius to die under the most shameful insults.

XIII. These things done, Lucullus hastened in pursuit of Mithridates himself. For he expected to find him still in Bithynia under the watch and ward of Voconius, whom he had dispatched with a fleet to Nicomedeia that he might intercept the king's flight. But Voconius was behindhand, owing to his initiation into, and celebration of, the mysteries in Samothrace, and Mithridates put to sea with his armament, eager to reach Pontus before Lucullus turned and set upon him. He was overtaken, however, by a great storm, which destroyed some of his vessels and disabled others. The whole coast for many days was covered with the wrecks dashed upon it by the billows. As for the king himself, the merchantman on which he was sailing was too large to be readily beached when the sea ran so high and the waves were so baffling, nor would it answer to its helm, and it was now too heavy and full of water to gain an offing; accordingly, he abandoned it for a light brigantine belonging to some pirates, and, entrusting his person to their hands, contrary to expectation and after great hazard, got safely to Heracleia in Pontus. And so it happened that the boastful speech of Lucullus to the Senate brought no divine retribution down upon him. When, namely, that body was ready to vote three thousand talents to provide a fleet for this war, Lucullus blocked the measure by writing a letter, in which he made the haughty boast that ὡς ἄνευ δαπάνης καὶ τοσαύτης παρασκευῆς ταῖς τῶν συμμάχων ναυσὶ Μιθριδάτην ἐκβαλεῖ τῆς θαλάττης. καὶ τοῦτο ὑπῆρξεν αὐτῷ τοῦ θεοῦ συναγωνισαμένου. λέγεται γὰρ Ἀρτέμιδος χόλω Πριαπίνης ὁ χειμῶν ἐμπεσεῖν τοῖς Ποντικοῖς συλήσασιν αὐτῆς τὸ ἱερόν καὶ τὸ ξόανον ἀνασπάσαι.

XIV. Πολλῶν δὲ Λουκούλλω παραινούτων ἀναβάλλεσθαι τὸν πόλεμον, οὐ φροντίσας ἐνέβαλε διὰ Βιθυνίας καὶ Γαλατίας εἰς τὴν βασιλικήν, ἐν ἀρχῇ μὲν ἐνδεῆς τῶν ἀναγκαίων, ὥστε Γαλάτας ἔπεσθαι τρισμυρίους ἕκαστον ἐπὶ τῶν ὤμων κομίζοντα σίτου μέδιμνον, προῖων δὲ καὶ κρατῶν ἀπάντων εἰς τοσαύτην ἦλθεν εὐπορίαν, 500 ὥστε τὸν μὲν βοῦν ἐν στρατοπέδῳ δραχμῆς, τὸ δὲ ἀνδράποδον τεττάρων ὄνιον εἶναι, τὴν δ' ἄλλην λείαν ἐν οὐδενὶ λόγῳ τοὺς μὲν ἀπολείπειν, τοὺς δὲ ἀναλίσκειν. διάθεσις γὰρ ἦν οὐδενὸς πρὸς οὐδένα πάντων εὐπορούντων.

- 2 Ἄλλ' ὅσον φθεῖραι καὶ κακῶσαι τὴν χώραν ἰππασάμενοι καὶ καταδραμόντες ἄχρι Θεμισκύρας καὶ τῶν περὶ Θερμώδοντα πεδίων, ἠτιῶντο τὸν Λούκουλλον, ὅτι πάσας προσάγεται τὰς πόλεις, κατὰ κράτος δὲ οὐδεμίαν ἤρηκεν οὐδὲ παρέσχηκεν αὐτοῖς ὠφελῆθῆναι διαρπάσασιν.
- 3 “Ἄλλὰ καὶ νῦν,” ἔφασαν, “Ἀμισόν, πόλιν εὐδαίμονα καὶ πλουσίαν, οὐ μέγα ὄν ἔργον, εἴ τις ἐντείνει τὴν πολιορκίαν, κατασχεῖν, ἀπολιπόντας ἡμᾶς ἄγει περὶ τὴν Τιβαρηνῶν καὶ Χαλδαίων without any such costly array, but only with the ships of the allies, he would drive Mithridates from the sea. And this success he gained with the assistance of Heaven. For it is said that it was owing to the wrath of Artemis of Priapus that the tempest fell upon the men of Pontus, who had plundered her shrine and pulled down her image.

LUCULLUS

XIV. Though many now advised Lucullus to suspend the war, he paid no heed to them, but threw his army into the king's country by way of Bithynia and Galatia.¹ At first he lacked the necessary supplies, so that thirty thousand Galatians followed in his train, each carrying a bushel of grain upon his shoulders; but as he advanced and mastered everything, he found himself in the midst of such plenty that an ox sold in his camp for a drachma, and a man-slave for four, while other booty had no value at all. Some abandoned it, and some destroyed it. There was no sale for anything to anybody when all had such abundance.

But when Lucullus merely wasted and ravaged the country with cavalry incursions, which penetrated to Themiscyra and the plains of the river Thermodon, his soldiers found fault with him because he brought all the cities over to him by peaceable measures; he had not taken a single one by storm, they said, nor given them a chance to enrich themselves by plunder. "Nay," they said, "at this very moment we are leaving Amisus, a rich and prosperous city, which it would be no great matter to take, if its siege were pressed, and are following our general into the desert of the Tibareni and the Chaldaeans

¹ 73 B.C.

PLUTARCH'S LIVES

ἐρημίαν Μιθριδάτη πολεμήσοντας.” ἀλλὰ ταῦτα μὲν οὐκ ἂν ὁ Λούκουλλος ἐλπίσας εἰς τοσοῦτον ἀποουσίας τοὺς στρατιώτας παραγαγεῖν, ὅσον ὕστερον ἐξέφηναν, ὑπερεώρα καὶ οὐκ
 4 ἐφρόντιζεν, ἐκείνοις δ' ἀπελογοῖτο μᾶλλον, οἱ βραδυτήτα κατηγοροῦν αὐτοῦ διατρίβοντος ἐν ταῦθα περὶ κώμας καὶ πόλεις οὐ πολλοῦ τινος ἀξίας πολὺν χρόνον, ἐῶντος δ' αὔξεσθαι Μιθριδάτην. “Αὐτὸ γάρ,” ἔφη, “τοῦτο καὶ βούλομαι καὶ κάθημαι τεχνάζων, μέγαν αὖθις γενέσθαι τὸν ἄνδρα καὶ συναγαγεῖν αὐτὸν ἀξιόμαχον δύναμιν,
 5 ἵνα μείνη καὶ μὴ φύγη προσιόντας ἡμᾶς. ἢ οὐχ ὄρατε πολλὴν μὲν αὐτῷ καὶ ἀτέκμαρτον ἐρημίαν ὀπίσω παρούσαν; ἐγγὺς δὲ ὁ Καύκασος καὶ ὄρη πολλὰ καὶ βαθέα καὶ μυρίους βασιλεῖς φυγομαχοῦντας ἀρκοῦντα κατακρύψαι καὶ περισχεῖν ὀλίγων δ' ἡμερῶν ὁδὸς εἰς Ἀρμενίαν ἐκ Καβείρων, καὶ ὑπὲρ Ἀρμενίας κάθηται Τιγράνης, βασιλεὺς βασιλέων, ἔχων δύναμιν, ἣ Πάρθους τε περικόπτει τῆς Ἀσίας καὶ πόλεις Ἑλληνίδας εἰς Μηδίαν ἀνακομίζει καὶ Συρίας κρατεῖ καὶ Παλαιστίνης καὶ τοὺς ἀπὸ Σελεύκου βασιλεῖς ἀποκτινύει, θυγατέρας δ' αὐτῶν ἄγει καὶ γυναῖκας
 6 ἀνασπάστους. οὗτος οἰκεῖός ἐστι Μιθριδάτου καὶ γαμβρός. οὐ περιόψεται δὲ αὐτὸν ἰκέτην ὑποδεξάμενος, ἀλλὰ πολεμήσει πρὸς ἡμᾶς· καὶ σπεύδοντες ἐκβάλλειν Μιθριδάτην κινδυνεύσομεν ἐπισπάσασθαι Τιγράνην, πάλαι μὲν αἰτίας δέομενον ἐφ' ἡμᾶς, εὐπρεπεστέραν δὲ οὐκ ἂν λαβόντα τῆς ὑπὲρ ἀνδρὸς οἰκείου καὶ βασιλέως ἀναγκασθέντα ὑπουργεῖν αὐτῷ. τί οὖν δεῖ τοῦθ' ἡμᾶς

LUCULLUS

to fight with Mithridates." But these grievances, not dreaming that they would bring the soldiers to such acts of madness as they afterwards performed, Lucullus overlooked and ignored. He was, however, more ready to defend himself against those who denounced his slowness in lingering there a long while, subduing worthless little villages and cities, and allowing Mithridates to recruit himself. "That," he said, "is the very thing I want, and I am sitting here to get it. I want the man to become powerful again, and to get together a force with which it is worth our while to fight, in order that he may stand his ground, and not fly when we approach. Do you not see that he has a vast and trackless desert behind him? The Caucasus, too, is near, with its many hills and dells, which are sufficient to hide away in safety ten thousand kings who decline to fight. And it is only a few days' journey from Cabira into Armenia and over Armenia there sits enthroned Tigranes, King of Kings, with forces which enable him to cut the Parthians off from Asia, transplant Greek cities into Media, sway Syria and Palestine, put to death the successors of Seleucus, and carry off their wives and daughters into captivity. This king is a kinsman of Mithridates, his son-in-law. He will not be content to receive him as a suppliant, but will make war against us. If we strive, therefore, to eject Mithridates from his kingdom, we shall run the risk of drawing Tigranes down upon us. He has long wanted an excuse for coming against us, and could not get a better one than that of being compelled to aid a man who is his kinsman and a king. Why, then, should we bring this to pass, ἐξεργάσασθαι καὶ διδάξαι Μιθριδάτην ἀγνοοῦντα, μεθ' ὧν ἔστιν αὐτῷ πρὸς ἡμᾶς πολεμητέον, καὶ μὴ βουλόμενον, ἀλλ' ἀδοξοῦντα συνελαύνειν εἰς τὰς Τιγράνου χεῖρας, ἀλλ' οὐχὶ δόντας αὐτῷ χρόνον ἐκ τῶν οἰκείων παρασκευάσασθαι καὶ ἀναθαρρῦναι, Κόλχοις καὶ Τιβαρηνοῖς καὶ Καππάδοξιν, ὧν πολλάκις κεκρατήκαμεν, μάχεσθαι μᾶλλον ἢ Μήδοις καὶ Ἀρμενίοις;"

- XV. Ἐπὶ τοιούτων λογισμῶν γενόμενος ὁ Λούκουλλος περὶ τε τὴν Ἀμισὸν διέτριψε, μαλακῶς τῇ πολιορκίᾳ χρώμενος, καὶ μετὰ χειμῶνα Μουρήναν ἀπολιπὼν ἐπὶ τῆς πολιορκίας ἐβάδιζεν ἐπὶ Μιθριδάτην καθήμενον ἐν Καβεῖροις καὶ διανοούμενον ὑφίστασθαι τοὺς Ῥωμαίους, ἠθροισμένης αὐτῷ δυνάμεως εἰς τετρακισμυρίου πεζούς, ἰππεῖς δὲ τετρακισχιλίους, οἷς ἐθάρρει
- 2 μάλιστα. καὶ διαβὰς τὸν Λύκον ποταμὸν εἰς τὸ πεδῖον προῦκαλεῖτο τοὺς Ῥωμαίους. γενομένης δ' ἵππομαχίας ἔφυγον οἱ Ῥωμαῖοι. Πομπώνιος δ' ἀνὴρ οὐκ ἄδοξος ἑάλω τετρωμένος καὶ πρὸς τὸν Μιθριδάτην ἀνήχθη κακῶς ὑπὸ τραυμάτων διακείμενος. πυθομένου δὲ τοῦ βασιλέως, εἰ σωθεὶς ὑπ' αὐτοῦ γενήσεται φίλος, "Ὁ γὰρ δὴ," ἔφη, "Ῥωμαίοις διαλλαγῆς· εἰ δὲ μὴ, πολέμιος." τοῦτον μὲν θαυμάσας ὁ Μιθριδάτης οὐκ ἠδίκησε.
- 3 Τοῦ δὲ Λουκούλλου τὰ μὲν πεδία τῶν πολεμίων 501 ἵπποκρατούντων δεδιότος, τὴν δ' ὄρεινὴν ὀκνοῦντος προΐεναι, μακρὰν καὶ ὑλώδη καὶ δύσβατον οὔσαν, ἀλίσκονται τινες κατὰ τύχην Ἕλληνας εἰς τι and teach Mithridates, when he does not know it, with what allies he must carry on war against us? Why help to drive him, against his wish and as a last resource, into the arms of Tigranes, instead of giving him time to equip himself from his own resources and get fresh courage? Then we shall fight with Colchians and Tibareni and Cappadocians, whom we have often overcome, rather than with Medes and Armenians."

LUCULLUS

XV. Influenced by such considerations as these, Lucullus lingered about Amisus, without pushing the siege vigorously. When winter was over, he left Murena in charge of the siege, and marched against Mithridates,¹ who had taken his stand at Cabira, and intended to await the Roman onset there. A force of forty thousand footmen had been collected by him, and four thousand horsemen; on the latter he placed his chief reliance. Crossing the river Lycus and advancing into the plain, he offered the Romans battle. A cavalry fight ensued, and the Romans took to flight. Pomponius, a man of some note, having been wounded, was taken prisoner and led into the presence of Mithridates, suffering greatly from his wounds. When the king asked him if he would become his friend provided he spared his life, Pomponius answered: "Yes, indeed, if you come to terms with the Romans; otherwise I must remain your enemy." Mithridates was struck with admiration for him, and did him no harm.

Lucullus was now afraid of the plains, since the enemy was superior in cavalry, and yet hesitated to go forward into the hill country, which was remote, woody, and impassable. But it chanced that certain

¹ 72 B.C.

PLUTARCH'S LIVES

- σπήλαιον καταφυγόντες, ὧν ὁ πρεσβύτερος Ἄρ-
 τεμίδωρος ὑπέσχετο τὸν Λούκουλλον ἄξειν καὶ
 καταστήσειν ἐπὶ τόπῳ ἀσφαλῆ τῷ στρατοπέδῳ
 καὶ φρούριον ἔχοντι τοῖς Καβείροις ἐπικρεμάμενον.
- 4 πιστεύσας δ' ὁ Λούκουλλος ἅμα τῇ νυκτὶ πυρὰ
 καύσας ἐκίνει· καὶ τὰ στενὰ παρελθὼν ἀσφαλῶς
 τὸ χωρίον εἶχε, καὶ μεθ' ἡμέραν ὑπερεφαίνετο
 τῶν πολεμίων ἰδρύων τὸν στρατὸν ἐν τόποις,
 οἱ μάχεσθαι βουλομένῳ προσαγωγὴν ἐδίδουσαν
 καὶ τὸ μὴ βιασθῆναι παρείχον ἡσυχάζοντι.
- 5 Γνώμην μὲν οὖν οὐδέτερος εἶχεν ἔν γε τῷ
 παρόντι διακινδυνεύειν· ἔλαφον δὲ λέγεται τῶν
 βασιλικῶν διωκόντων ὑποτεμνομένους ἀπαντῆσαι
 τοὺς Ῥωμαίους, ἐκ δὲ τούτου συμπεσόντας ἀγωνίζεσθαι πλείονων ἑκατέροις ἀεὶ προσγινομένων.
 τέλος δ' ἐνίκων οἱ βασιλικοὶ καὶ τὴν φυγὴν ἐκ
 τοῦ χάρακος οἱ Ῥωμαῖοι καθορῶντες ἡσχαλλον
 καὶ συνέτρεχον πρὸς τὸν Λούκουλλον, ἄγειν σφᾶς
 δεόμενοι καὶ σύνθημα πρὸς τὴν μάχην αἰτοῦντες.
- 6 ὁ δὲ βουλούμενος αὐτοὺς μαθεῖν, ἠλίκον ἐστὶν ἐν
 ἀγῶνι πολέμου καὶ κινδύνῳ παρουσία καὶ ὄψις
 ἡγεμόνος ἔμφρονος, ἐκείνους μὲν ἡσυχίαν ἄγειν
 ἐκέλευσεν, αὐτὸς δὲ κατέβαινε εἰς τὸ πεδῖον καὶ
 τοῖς πρώτοις ἀπαντήσας τῶν φευγόντων ἴστασθαι
- 7 προσέταξε καὶ ἀναστρέφειν μετ' αὐτοῦ. πεισθέν-
 των δὲ τούτων καὶ οἱ λοιποὶ μεταβαλλόμενοι καὶ
 συστάντες ὀλίγῳ πόνῳ τρέπονται τοὺς πολεμίους
 καὶ καταδιώκουσιν εἰς τὸ στρατόπεδον. ἐπανελθὼν δὲ Λούκουλλος ἀτιμίαν τινα τοῖς φεύγουσι
 νεομισμένην προσέβαλε, κελεύσας ἐν χιτῶσιν

LUCULLUS

Greeks, who had taken refuge in a sort of cave, were captured, and the elder of them, Artemidorus, promised to serve Lucullus as a guide, and set him in a place which was safe for his camp, and which had a fortress overlooking Cabira. Lucullus put confidence in this promise, and as soon as it was night, lit his camp fires and set out. He passed safely through the narrow defiles and took possession of the desired place, and at daybreak was seen above the enemy, stationing his men in positions which gave him access to the enemy if he wished to fight, and safety from their assaults if he wished to keep quiet.

Now neither commander had any intention of hazarding an engagement at once. But we are told that while some of the king's men were chasing a stag, the Romans cut them off and confronted them, whereupon a skirmish followed, with fresh accessions continually to either side. At last, the king's men were victorious. Then the Romans in their camp, beholding the flight of their comrades, were in distress, and ran in throngs to Lucullus, begging him to lead them, and demanding the signal for battle. But he, wishing them to learn how important, in a dangerous struggle with the enemy, the visible presence of a prudent general is, bade them keep quiet. Then he went down into the plain by himself, and confronting the foremost of the fugitives, bade them stop, and turn back with him. They obeyed, and the rest also wheeled about and formed in battle array, and in a short time routed the enemy and drove them to their camp. When he came back, however, Lucullus inflicted the customary disgrace upon the fugitives. He bade them dig a twelve-ἀζώστοις ὀρύξαι δώδεκα ποδῶν τάφρον, ἐφεστώτων καὶ θεωμένων τῶν ἄλλων στρατιωτῶν.

- XVI. Ἦν δέ τις ἐν τῷ Μιθριδάτου στρατοπέδῳ Δανδαρίων δυνάστης Ὀλθακός (γένος δ' εἰσὶν οἱ Δανδάριοι βαρβάρων τῶν περὶ τὴν Μαιώτιν
οἰκούντων), ἀνὴρ ὅσα χειρὸς ἔργα καὶ τόλμης ἐν πολέμῳ διαπρεπῆς ἅπαντα, καὶ γνώμην ἱκανὸς
ἐν τοῖς μεγίστοις, ἔτι δ' ἐμμελῆς ὁμιλῆσαι καὶ
θεραπευτικός. οὗτος ἔχων ἀεὶ πρὸς τινα τῶν
ὁμοφύλων δυναστῶν ἀμιλλαν ὑπὲρ πρωτείων
καὶ ζηλοτυπίαν ὑπέσχετο τῷ Μιθριδάτῃ μέγα
2 ἔργον, ἀποκτενεῖν Λούκουλλον. ἐπαινέσαντος δὲ
τοῦ βασιλέως καὶ τινας αὐτῷ προσβαλόντος ἐπίτηδες ἀτιμίας εἰς προσποίησιν ὀργῆς ἀφιππάσατο πρὸς Λούκουλλον· ὁ δ' ἄσμενος ἐδέξατο·
λόγος γὰρ ἦν αὐτοῦ πολὺς ἐν τῷ στρατοπέδῳ·
καὶ ταχὺ πειρώμενος ἠσπάζετο τὴν τε ἀγχίνουαν
αὐτοῦ καὶ τὸ λιπαρές, ὥστε τραπέζης καὶ συνεδρίου ποτὲ ποιεῖσθαι κοινωνόν.
- 3 Ἐπεὶ δ' ἐδόκει καιρὸν ἔχειν ὁ Δανδάριος, τὸν
μὲν ἵππον ἔξω τοῦ χάρακος ἐκέλευσε προαγαγεῖν
τοὺς παῖδας, αὐτὸς δὲ μεσημβρίας οὔσης καὶ
τῶν στρατιωτῶν ἐνδιαζόντων καὶ ἀναπαυομένων
ἐβάδιζεν ἐπὶ τὴν στρατηγικὴν σκηνήν, ὡς οὐδενὸς
κωλύσοντος εἰσελθεῖν ἄνδρα συνήθη καὶ λόγους
τινας ἀξίους σπουδῆς τῷ στρατηγῷ κομίζειν
- 4 φάσκοντα. κὰν εἰσῆλθεν ἀδεῶς, εἰ μὴ ὁ πολλοὺς
ἀνηρηκῶς στρατηγούς ὕπνος Λούκουλλον ἔσωσεν.
ἐτύγχανε γὰρ καθεύδων· καὶ Μενέδημος, εἰς τῶν
κατευναστῶν, παρὰ ταῖς θύραις ἐστῶς οὐκ ἔφη κατὰ καιρὸν ἦκειν τὸν Ὀλθακόν, ἄρτι Λουκούλλου
πρὸς ἀνάπαυσιν ἐκ μακρᾶς ἀγρυπνίας καὶ πόνων

LUCULLUS

foot ditch, working in ungirt blouses, while the rest of the soldiers stood by and watched them.

XVI. In the camp of Mithridates there was a Dandarian prince named Olthacus (the Dandarians are a tribe of barbarians dwelling about Lake Maeotis), a man conspicuous as a soldier for qualities of strength and boldness, of a most excellent judgment, and withal affable in address and of insinuating manners. This man was always in emulous rivalry for the precedence with a fellow prince of his tribe, and so was led to undertake a great exploit for Mithridates, namely, the murder of Lucullus. The king approved of his design, and purposely inflicted upon him sundry marks of disgrace, whereupon, pretending to be enraged, he galloped off to Lucullus, who gladly welcomed him, since there was much talk of him in the camp. After a short probation, Lucullus was so pleased with his shrewdness and zeal, that he made him a table companion, and at last a member of his council.

Now when the Dandarian thought his opportunity had come, he ordered his slaves to lead his horse outside the camp, while he himself, at mid-day, when the soldiers were lying around enjoying their rest, went to the general's tent. He thought no one would deny entrance to a man who was an intimate of the general, and said he brought him certain messages of great importance. And he would have entered without let or hindrance, had not sleep, the destroyer of many generals, saved Lucullus. For it chanced that he was asleep, and Menedemus, one of his chamberlains, who stood at the tent-door, told Olthacus that he had come at an inopportune time, since Lucullus had just betaken himself to rest after

5 τοσοῦτων δεδωκότος ἑαυτόν. ἐπεὶ δ' οὐκ ἀπῆει κελεύοντος, ἀλλ' ἔφη καὶ κωλύοντος εἰσελεύ-σεσθαι περὶ πράγματος ἀναγκαίου καὶ μεγάλου
 διαλεχθῆναι βουλόμενος, ἤδη πρὸς ὄργην ὁ Μενέδημος εἰπὼν μηδὲν ἀναγκαιότερον τοῦ σώζεσθαι Λούκουλλον ἀπέωσατο τὸν ἄνθρωπον 502
 6 ἀμφοτέραις ταῖς χερσίν. ὁ δὲ δείσας ὑπέξῆλθε
 τοῦ χάρακος, καὶ λαβὼν τὸν ἵππον ἀπήλασεν
 εἰς τὸ Μιθριδάτου στρατόπεδον ἄπρακτος. οὕτως
 ἄρα καὶ τοῖς πράγμασιν ὁ καιρὸς ὥσπερ τοῖς φαρμάκοις καὶ τὴν σώζουσιν καὶ τὴν ἀναιρούσαν
 ῥοπήν προστίθησιν.

XVII. Ἐκ τούτου Σωρνάτιος μὲν ἐπὶ σίτου
 κομιδὴν ἐπέμφθη μετὰ δέκα σπειρῶν· καὶ κατα-διωχθεὶς ὑπὸ Μενάνδρου, τῶν Μιθριδάτου στρα-τηγῶν ἑνός, ἀντέστη καὶ συμβαλὼν φόνον ἐποίησε
 πολὺν καὶ τροπήν τῶν πολεμίων. αὐτίς δὲ πεμφ-θέντος Ἀδριανοῦ μετὰ δυνάμεως, ὅπως ἐκ περιουσίας ἔχουσιν οἱ στρατιῶται σίτον, οὐ περιεΐδε Μι-θριδάτης, ἀλλ' ἀπέστειλε Μενέμαχον καὶ Μύρωνα
 πολλῶν μὲν ἰπέων, πολλῶν δὲ πεζῶν ἡγουμένους.
 2 οὗτοι πάντες, ὡς λέγεται, πλὴν δυεῖν κατεκόπησαν ὑπὸ τῶν Ῥωμαίων. καὶ Μιθριδάτης μὲν
 ἔκρυπτε τὴν συμφορὰν ὡς οὐ τοσαύτην οὔσαν,
 ἀλλὰ μικράν, προσκεκρουκότων ἀπειρία τῶν
 στρατηγῶν, Ἀδριανὸς δὲ λαμπρὸς παρημείβετο
 τὸ στρατόπεδον πολλὰς κατὰ γων ἀμάξας σίτου
 καὶ λαφύρων γεμούσας, ὥστε δυσθυμίαν μὲν
 αὐτῷ, ταραχήν δὲ καὶ φόβον ἀμήχανον ἐμπεσεῖν
 3 τοῖς στρατιώταις. ἐδέδοκτο μὲν οὖν μηκέτι μένειν· ἐπεὶ δὲ προεξέπεμπον οἱ βασιλικοὶ τὰ
 σφέτερα χρήματα καθ' ἡσυχίαν, τοὺς δ' ἄλλους

LUCULLUS

his long watching and many hardships. Olthacus did not retire at the bidding of Menedemus, but declared that even in spite of him he would go in, since he wished to confer with the general on urgent business of great importance. Then Menedemus got angry, declared that nothing was more urgent than the preservation of Lucullus, and pushed the man away with both hands. Then Olthacus, in fear, left the camp, took horse, and rode off to the camp of Mithridates, without effecting his purpose. So true is it that in active life, as well as in sickness, it is the critical moment which gives the scales their saving or their fatal inclination.

XVII. After this, Sornatius was sent with ten cohorts to get supplies of grain. Being pursued by Menander, one of the generals of Mithridates, he faced about, joined battle, and routed the enemy with great slaughter. And again, when Adrian was sent out with a force to procure an abundance of grain for the soldiers, Mithridates did not look on idly, but dispatched Menemachus and Myron, at the head of a large body of cavalry and footmen. All these, it is said, except two, were cut to pieces by the Romans. Mithridates tried to conceal the extent of the disaster, pretending that it was a slight matter, and due to the inexperience of his generals. But when Adrian marched pompously past his camp, conveying many waggons laden with grain and booty, a great despair fell upon the king, and confusion and helpless fear upon his soldiers. They decided, therefore, to remain where they were no longer. But when the king's servants tried to send away their own baggage first, and to hinder the rest from going, the soldiers at once got angry, pushed and forced ἐκώλουν, ἤδη καὶ πρὸς ὄργην ἐπὶ τὰς ἐξόδους ὠθούμενοι καὶ βιαζόμενοι τὰ μὲν χρήματα ἤρπαζον, αὐτοὺς δὲ ἀπέσφαττον. ὅπου καὶ Δορύλαος ὁ στρατηγὸς οὐδὲν ἕτερον ἔχων ἢ τὴν πορφύραν περὶ αὐτὸν ἀπώλετο διὰ ταύτην, Ἑρμαῖος δὲ ὁ θύτης κατεπατήθη περὶ τὰς πύλας.

- 4 Αὐτὸς δ' ὁ Μιθριδάτης, οὔτε ὀπαδοῦ τινος οὔτε ἵπποκόμου παραμείναντος αὐτῷ, συνεξέπεσεν ἀπὸ τοῦ στρατοπέδου τοῖς πολλοῖς ἀναμειγμένος, οὐδ' ἵππου τῶν βασιλικῶν εὐπορήσας, ἀλλ' ὄψέ που κατιδὼν αὐτὸν ἐν τῷ ρέυματι τῆς τροπῆς ἐκείνης διαφερόμενοι Πτολεμαῖος ὁ εὐνούχος ἵππον ἔχων αὐτὸς ἀπεπήδησε καὶ
- 5 παρέσχεν. ἤδη γὰρ αὐτὸν οἱ Ῥωμαῖοι κατεῖχον ἐπικείμενοι· καὶ τάχει μὲν οὐκ ἀπελίποντο τοῦ λαβεῖν αὐτόν, ἀλλ' ἦλθον ἔγγιστα τούτου, φιλοπλουτία δὲ καὶ μικρολογία στρατιωτικὴ τὸ πολλοῖς ἀγῶσι καὶ μεγάλοις κινδύνοις διωκόμενοι ἐκ μακροῦ θήραμα Ῥωμαίους ἀφείλετο καὶ Δούκουλλον ἀπεστέρησε νικῶντα τῶν ἐπάθλων.
- 6 ἦν μὲν γὰρ ἐν ἐφικτῷ τῆς διώξεως ὁ ὑπεκφέρων τὸν ἄνδρα ἵππος, ἡμίονου δὲ τῶν τὸ χρυσίον κομιζόντων μεταξὺ τοῦ βασιλέως εἴτ' ἀπὸ ταῦτομάτου παρεισπεσόντος, εἴτε τοῦ βασιλέως ἐπιτηδες ἐμβαλόντος αὐτὸν εἰς τοὺς διώκοντας, ἀρπάζοντες καὶ συλλέγοντες τὸ χρυσίον καὶ
- 7 διαμαχόμενοι πρὸς ἀλλήλους καθυστέρησαν. καὶ οὐ τοῦτο μόνον αὐτῶν ἀπέλαυσε τῆς πλεονεξίας Δούκουλλος, ἀλλὰ καὶ τὸν ἐπὶ τῶν ἀπορρήτων τοῦ βασιλέως ὄντα Καλλίστρατον ὁ μὲν ἄγειν ἐκέλευσεν, οἱ δ' ἄγοντες αἰσθόμενοι πεντακοσίους their way to the exits of the camp, and there plundered the baggage and slew the men in charge of it. There it was that Dorylaüs, the general, with nothing else about him but his purple robe, lost his life for that, and Hermaeus, the priest, was trampled to death at the gates.

LUCULLUS

Mithridates himself, with no attendant or groom to assist him, fled away from the camp in the midst of the throng, not even provided with one of the royal horses; but at last the eunuch Ptolemaeus, who was mounted, spied him as he was borne along in the torrent of the rout, leaped down from his horse, and gave it to the king. Presently the Romans, who were forcing the pursuit, were hard upon him, and it was for no lack of speed that they did not take him. Indeed, they were very near doing so, but greed, and petty soldier's avarice, snatched from them the quarry which they had so long pursued in many struggles and great dangers, and robbed Lucullus of the victor's prize. For the horse which carried the king was just within reach of his pursuers, when one of the mules which carried the royal gold came between him and them, either of his own accord, or because the king purposely sent him into the path of pursuit. The soldiers fell to plundering and collecting the gold, fought with one another over it, and so were left behind in the chase. Nor was this the only fruit of their greed which Lucullus reaped. He had given orders that Callistratus, who was in charge of the king's private papers, should be brought alive to him, but his conductors, finding that he had five hundred pieces of gold in his girdle, slew him.

χρυσούς ὑπέζωσμένον ἀπέκτειναν. οὐ μὴν ἀλλὰ τούτοις μὲν ἐπέτρεψε τὸν χάρακα πορθῆσαι.

XVIII. Τὰ δὲ Κάβειρα λαβὼν καὶ τῶν ἄλλων φρουρίων τὰ πλείστα θησαυρούς τε μεγάλους εὔρε καὶ δεσμοπήρια, πολλῶν μὲν Ἑλλήνων, πολλῶν δὲ συγγενῶν τοῦ βασιλέως καθειργμένων, οἷς πάλαι τεθνάναι δοκοῦσιν οὐ σωτηρίαν, ἀλλ' ἀναβίωσιν καὶ δευτέραν τινὰ γέννησιν ἢ Λουκούλου χάρις παρέσχευ. 2 ἐάλω δὲ καὶ ἀδελφὴ τοῦ Μιθριδάτου Νύσσα σωτήριοι ἄλωσιν· αἱ δ' ἀπωτάτω τοῦ κινδύνου καὶ καθ' ἡσυχίαν ἀποκεῖσθαι δοκοῦσαι περὶ Φαρνάκειαν ἀδελφαὶ καὶ γυναῖκες οἰκτρῶς ἀπώλοντο, Μιθριδάτου πέμψαντος ἐπ' 503 αὐτάς ἐκ τῆς φυγῆς Βακχίδην εὐνοῦχον. ἦσαν δὲ μετὰ πολλῶν ἀδελφαί τε δύο τοῦ βασιλέως, Ῥωξάνη καὶ Στάτειρα, περὶ τεσσαράκοντα ἔτη παρθενεύομεναι, καὶ γαμεταὶ δύο, γένος Ἰωνίδες, Βερενίκη μὲν ἐκ Χίου, Μοῦιμη δὲ Μιλησία. 3 ταύτης ὁ πλείστος ἦν λόγος ἐν τοῖς Ἕλλησιν, ὅτι τοῦ βασιλέως πειρῶντος αὐτὴν καὶ μυρίους πεντακισχιλίους χρυσοῦς προσπέμψαντος ἀντέσχε, μέχρι οὐ γάμων ἐγένοντο συνθήκαι καὶ διάδημα πέμψας αὐτῇ βασίλισσαν ἀνηγόρευσεν. αὕτη καὶ παρὰ τὸν ἄλλον χρόνον ἀνιαρῶς εἶχε καὶ ἀπεθρήνει τὴν τοῦ σώματος εὐμορφίαν, ὡς δεσπότην μὲν ἀντ' ἀνδρὸς αὐτῇ, φρουρὰν δὲ βαρβάρων ἀντὶ γάμου καὶ οἴκου προξενήσασαν, πόρρω δὲ πού τῆς Ἑλλάδος ἀπφκισμένη τοῖς ἐλπισθεῖσιν ἀγαθοῖς ὄναρ σύνεστι, τῶν δ' ἀληθινῶν ἐκείνων ἀπεστέρηται.

LUCULLUS

However, Lucullus allowed such soldiers as these to plunder the enemy's camp.

XVIII. In capturing Cabira and most of the other strongholds, he found great treasures, and many prisons, in which many Greeks and many kinsfolk of the king were confined. As they had long been given up for dead, it was not so much a rescue as it was a resurrection and a sort of second birth, for which they were indebted to the favour of Lucullus. Nyssa, a sister of Mithridates, was also captured; and her capture was her salvation. But the sisters and wives of the king who were thought to be at farthest remove from danger and quietly hidden away in Pharnacia, perished pitifully, since Mithridates paused long enough in his flight to send Bacchides, a eunuch, to compass their death. Among many other women, there were two sisters of the king, Roxana and Statira, about forty years old and unmarried; and two of his wives, of Ionian families, Berenicé from Chios, and Monimé, a Milesian. The latter was most talked of among the Greeks, to the effect that though the king tempted her virtue and sent her fifteen thousand pieces of gold, she resisted his advances, until he entered into a marriage contract with her, sent her a diadem, and greeted her with the title of Queen. But her marriage had been an unhappy one, and she bewailed that beauty which had procured her a master instead of a husband, and a guard of Barbarians instead of home and family, dwelling as she did far, far away from Greece, where the blessings for which she had hoped existed only in her dreams, while she was bereft of the real blessings to which she had been wonted.

PLUTARCH'S LIVES

4 Καὶ δὴ τοῦ Βακχίδου παραγενομένου καὶ προστάξαντος αὐταῖς ἀποθνήσκειν, ὡς ἐκάστη δοκοίη ῥᾶστον εἶναι καὶ ἀλυπότατον, περισπᾶσασα τῆς κεφαλῆς τὸ διάδημα τῷ τραχήλῳ περιήψε καὶ ἀνήρτησεν ἑαυτὴν. ταχὺ δ' ἀποραγέντος "ὦ κατηραμένον," ἔφη, "ῥάκος, οὐδὲ πρὸς τοῦτό μοι χρήσιμον ἔση;" κακῆν μὲν ἀπέριψε προσπτύσασα, τῷ δὲ Βακχίδῃ τὴν
 5 σφαγὴν παρέσχευ. ἡ δὲ Βερενίκη κύλικα φαρμάκου λαβοῦσα, τῆς μητρὸς αὐτῇ παρουσίας καὶ δεομένης, μετέδωκε. καὶ συνεξέπιον μὲν ἀμφοτέραι, ἤρκεσε δὲ ἡ τοῦ φαρμάκου δύναμις εἰς τὸ ἀσθενέστερον σῶμα, τὴν δὲ Βερενίκην οὐχ ὅσον ἔδει πιούσαν οὐκ ἀπήλλαξεν, ἀλλὰ δυσθανατοῦσα
 6 τοῦ Βακχίδου σπεύδοντος ἀπεπνίγη. λέγεται δὲ καὶ τῶν ἀγάμων ἀδελφῶν ἐκείνων τὴν μὲν ἐπαρωμένην πολλὰ καὶ λοιδοροῦσαν ἐκπιεῖν τὸ φάρμακον, τὴν δὲ Στάτειραν οὔτε δύσφημόν τι φθεγξαμένην οὔτ' ἀγεννές, ἀλλ' ἐπαινοῦσαν τὸν ἀδελφόν, ὅτι περὶ τοῦ σώματος κινδυνεύων οὐκ ἠμέλησεν αὐτῶν, ἀλλὰ προῦνόησεν ἐλευθέρας καὶ ἀνυβρίστους ἀποθανεῖν. ταῦτα μὲν οὖν φύσει χρηστὸν ὄντα καὶ φιλάνθρωπον ἠνία τὸν Λούκουλλον.

XIX. Ἐλάσας δ' ἄχρι Ταλαύρων, ἔνθεν ἡμέρα τετάρτη πρότερον ἐφθάκει Μιθριδάτης εἰς Ἀρμενίαν πρὸς Τιγράνην πεφευγώς, ἀποτρέπεται. καταστρεφάμενος δὲ Χαλδαίους καὶ Τιβαρηνοὺς καὶ τὴν μικρὰν Ἀρμενίαν παραλαβὼν καὶ φρούρια καὶ πόλεις παρασησάμενος, Ἀππιον μὲν ἔπεμψε πρὸς Τιγράνην ἐξαιτῶν Μιθριδάτην, αὐτὸς
 2 δ' ἦκε πρὸς Ἀμισὸν ἔτι πολιορκουμένην. αἴτιος

LUCULLUS

And now Bacchides came and ordered them all to die, in whatever manner each might deem easiest and most painless. Monimé snatched the diadem from her head, fastened it round her neck, and hanged herself. But her halter quickly broke in two. "O cursed bauble," she cried, "couldst thou not serve me even in this office?" Then she spat upon it, hurled it from her, and offered her throat to Bacchides. But Berenicé, taking a cup of poison, shared it with her mother, who stood at her side and begged for some. Together they drank it off, and the force of the poison sufficed for the weaker body, but it did not carry off Berenicé, who had not drunk enough. As she was long in dying, and Bacchides was in a hurry, she was strangled. It is said also that of the unmarried sisters, one drank off her poison with many abusive imprecations on her brother; but that Statira did so without uttering a single reproachful or ungenerous word. She rather commended her brother because, when his own life was at hazard, he had not neglected them, but had taken measures to have them die in freedom and under no insults. Of course these things gave pain to Lucullus, who was naturally of a gentle and humane disposition.

XIX. Lucullus pushed on in pursuit as far as Talaura, whence, four days before, Mithridates had succeeded in escaping to Tigranes, in Armenia; then he turned aside. After subduing the Chaldaeans and the Tibareni, he occupied Lesser Armenia, reducing its fortresses and cities, and then sent Appius to Tigranes with a demand for Mithridates. He himself, however, came to Amisus, which was still holding out against the siege. Its success in

PLUTARCH'S LIVES

δ' ἦν Καλλίμαχος ὁ στρατηγὸς ἐμπειρία μηχανικῆς παρασκευῆς καὶ δεινότητι πανουργίας, ὅσσην πολιορκία δέχεται, πλείστα λυπήσας Ῥωμαίους· ὧν ὕστερον ἔδωκε δίκην. τότε δ' ὑπὸ Λουκούλλου καταστρατηγηθεῖς, ὑφ' ἧν ἔθος εἶχεν ὄραν τῆς ἡμέρας ἀπάγειν καὶ ἀναπαύειν τοὺς στρατιώτας, ἐν ἐκείνῃ προσβαλόντος αἰφνιδίως καὶ κατασχόντος οὐ πολὺ μέρος τοῦ τείχους, αὐτὸς ἐκλιπὼν τὴν πόλιν ὑφῆψεν, εἴτε φθονῶν ὠφελθῆναι Ῥωμαίοις, εἴτε ῥαστώνην φυγῆς ἑαυτῷ μηχανώ-

3 μενος. οὐδεὶς γὰρ ἐφρόντιζε τῶν ἐκπλεόντων, ἀλλὰ ὡς ἡ φλόξ ἀναδραμοῦσα πολλὴ τὰ τείχη περιέσχεν, οἱ μὲν στρατιῶται παρεσκευάζοντο πρὸς ἀρπαγὴν, ὁ δὲ Λούκουλλος οἰκτείρων ἀπολυμένην τὴν πόλιν ἐξῶθεν ἐβοήθει πρὸς τὸ πῦρ καὶ σβεννύναι παρεκάλει, μηδενὸς αὐτῷ προσέχοντος, ἀλλ' ἐξαιτουμένων τὰ χρήματα καὶ μετὰ βοῆς ὄπλα κρουόντων, ἕως ἐκβιασθεῖς ἐπέτρεψεν, ὡς αὐτὴν γε τὴν πόλιν ἐξαιρησόμενος τοῦ πυρός.

4 οἱ δὲ τούναντίον ἔπραξαν. πάντα γὰρ ἐξερευνῶντες ὑπὸ λαμπάδων καὶ πανταχοῦ φῶς ἐπιφέροντες αὐτοὶ τὰ πλείστα τῶν οἰκημάτων καθεῖλον, ὥστε τὸν Λούκουλλον εἰσελθόντα μεθ' ἡμέραν καὶ δακρύσαντα πρὸς τοὺς φίλους εἰπεῖν, ὡς 504

5 ὅτι σῶσαι βουλευθεῖς ἐδυνήθη τὰς Ἀθήνας. “ Ἐμὲ

528

LUCULLUS

this was due to Callimachus, its commander, who, by his acquaintance with mechanical contrivances and his power to employ every resource which the siege of a city demands, had given the Romans the greatest annoyance. For this he afterwards paid the penalty. But at this time, he was simply out-generalled by Lucullus, who made a sudden attack at just that time of day when Callimachus was accustomed to draw his soldiers off from the ramparts and give them a rest. When the Romans had got possession of a small part of the wall, Callimachus abandoned the city, first setting fire to it with his own hands, either because he begrudged the visitors their booty, or because his own escape was thus facilitated. For no one paid any attention to those who were sailing away, but when the flames increased mightily and enveloped the walls, the soldiers made ready to plunder the houses. Lucullus, out of pity for the perishing city, tried to bring aid from outside against the fire, and gave orders to extinguish the flames, but no one paid any heed to his commands. The soldiers all clamoured for the booty, and shouted, and clashed their shields and spears together, until he was forced to let them have their way, hoping that he could at least save the city itself from the flames. But the soldiers did just the opposite. Ransacking everything by torch-light and carrying lights about everywhere, they destroyed most of the houses themselves. When Lucullus entered the city at daybreak, he burst into tears, and said to his friends that he had often already deemed Sulla happy, and on that day more than ever he admired the man's good fortune, in that when he wished to save Athens, he had the power to do so. "But upon δ'," ἔφη, "τούτου ζηλωτὴν γενόμενον εἰς τὴν Μομμίου δόξαν ὁ δαίμων περιέστησεν."

Οὐ μὴν ἀλλ' ἐκ τῶν παρόντων ἀναλαμβάνειν ἐπειράτο τὴν πόλιν. καὶ τὸ μὲν πῦρ ὄμβροι κατέσβησαν ἐκ τινος θείας τύχης περὶ τὴν ἄλωσιν αὐτὴν συμπεσόντες, τὰ δὲ πλείστα τῶν ἀπολωλότων αὐτὸς ἔτι παρὼν ἀνφοδόμησε, καὶ τοὺς φεύγοντας Ἀμισσηνῶν ἐδέξατο, καὶ τῶν ἄλλων Ἑλλήνων κατώκισε τοὺς βουλομένους, εἴκοσι καὶ 6 ἑκατὸν σταδίων χώραν προσορίσας. ἦν δ' ἡ πόλις Ἀθηναίων ἄποικος, ἐν ἐκείνοις ἄρα τοῖς καιροῖς, ἐν οἷς ἠκμαζεν ἡ δύναμις αὐτῶν καὶ κατεῖχε τὴν θάλασσαν, οἰκισθεῖσα. καὶ διὰ τοῦτο πολλοὶ τῶν τὴν Ἀριστίωνος τυραννίδα βουλομένων φεύγειν εἰσπλεύσαντες αὐτοῦ κατώκουν καὶ μετείχον τῆς πολιτείας, οἷς συνέβη τὰ οἰκεία κακὰ φεύγουσιν ἀπολαῦσαι τῶν ἀλλοτρίων. ἀλλὰ τοὺς γε σωθέντας αὐτῶν ὁ Λούκουλλος ἀμφιέσας καλῶς καὶ διακοσίας ἐκάστῳ δραχμὰς ἐπιδουὺς ἀπέστειλε. 7 τότε καὶ Τυραννίων ὁ γραμματικὸς ἐάλω· Μουρήνας δ' αὐτὸν ἐξητήσατο καὶ λαβῶν ἀπηλευθέρωσεν, ἀνελευθέρως τῇ δωρεᾷ χρησάμενος. οὐ γὰρ ἠξίου Λούκουλλος ἄνδρα διὰ παιδείαν ἐσπουδασμένον δοῦλον γενέσθαι πρότερον, εἴτ' ἀπελευθερον. ἀφαίρεσις γὰρ ἦν τῆς ὑπαρχούσης ἢ τῆς δοκούσης ἐλευθερίας δόσις. ἀλλὰ Μουρήνας μὲν οὐκ ἐνταῦθα μόνον ὤφθη πολὺ τῆς τοῦ στρατηγού καλοκαγαθίας ἀποδέων.

LUCULLUS

me," he said, "who have been so eager to imitate his example, Heaven has devolved the reputation of Mummius."

However, as far as circumstances allowed, he endeavoured to restore the city. The fire, indeed, had been quenched by showers which fell providentially just as the city was captured, and most of what the soldiers had destroyed he rebuilt himself before his departure. He also received into the city those of the Amisenes who had fled, and settled there any other Greeks who so desired, and added to the city's domain a tract of a hundred and twenty stadia. The city was a colony of Athens, founded in that period when her power was at its height and she controlled the sea. And this was the reason why many who wished to escape the tyranny of Aristion¹ at Athens sailed to Amisus, settled there, and became citizens. In flying from evils at home, they got the benefit of greater evils abroad. But those of them who survived were well clothed by Lucullus, and sent back home, with a present of two hundred drachmas apiece. Tyrannio the grammarian was also taken prisoner at this time. Murena asked to have him as his own prize, and on getting him, formally gave him his liberty, therein making an illiberal use of the gift which he had received. For Lucullus did not think it meet that a man so esteemed for his learning should first become a slave, and then be set at liberty. To give him a nominal liberty was to rob him of the liberty to which he was born. But this was not the only case in which Murena was found to be far inferior to his commander in nobility of conduct.

¹ Tyrant of Athens when the city was besieged by Sulla, 87 B.C.

XX. Λούκουλλος δὲ τρέπεται πρὸς τὰς ἐν Ἀσίᾳ πόλεις, ὅπως, τῶν πολεμικῶν ἔργων σχολάζοντος αὐτοῦ, καὶ δίκης τινὸς μετὰσχη καὶ θεσμῶν, ὧν ἐπὶ πολὺν χρόνον ἐνδεῆ τὴν ἐπαρχίαν οὖσαν ἄρρητοι καὶ ἄπιστοι δυστυχίαι κατεῖχον, ὑπὸ τῶν τελωνῶν καὶ τῶν δανειστῶν πορθουμένην καὶ ἀνδραποδιζομένην, πιπράσκειν ἰδίᾳ μὲν υἱοὺς εὐπρεπεῖς θυγατέρας τε παρθένους, δημοσίᾳ δ' ἀναθήματα, γραφάς, ἱεροὺς ἀνδριάντας ἀναγκαζομένων. αὐτοῖς δὲ τέλος μὲν ἦν προσθέτοις γενομένοις δουλεύειν, τὰ δὲ πρὸ τούτου χαλεπώτερα, σχοινοισμοὶ καὶ κινγκλίδες καὶ ἵπποι καὶ στάσεις ὑπαιθροί, καύματος μὲν ἐν ἡλίῳ, ψύχους δ' εἰς πηλὸν ἐμβιβαζομένων ἢ πάγον, ὥστε τὴν δουλείαν σεισάχθειαν δοκεῖν εἶναι καὶ εἰρήνην.

3 τοιαῦτα μὲν κακὰ Λούκουλλος εὐρῶν ἐν ταῖς πόλεσιν ὀλίγῳ χρόνῳ πάντων ἀπήλλαξε τοὺς ἀδικουμένους.

Πρῶτον μὲν γὰρ ἑκατοστὴν ἐκέλευσε καὶ μὴ πλέον εἰς τοὺς τόκους λογίζεσθαι· δεύτερον δὲ τοὺς μακροτέρους τοῦ ἀρχαίου τόκους ἀπέκοψε· τὸ δὲ τρίτον καὶ μέγιστον, ἔταξε τῶν τοῦ χρεωφειλέτου προσόδων τὴν τετάρτην μερίδα καρποῦσθαι τὸν δανειστὴν· ὁ δὲ τόκον κεφαλαίῳ

4 συνάψας ἐστέρητο τοῦ παντός· ὥστ' ἐν ἐλάττονι χρόνῳ τετραετίας διαλυθῆναι τὰ χρέα πάντα καὶ τὰς κτήσεις ἐλευθέρως ἀποδοθῆναι τοῖς δεσπόταις. ἦν δὲ τοῦτο κοινὸν δάνειον ἐκ τῶν δισμυρίων ταλάντων, οἷς τὴν Ἀσίαν ἐζημίωσεν ὁ Σύλλας· καὶ διπλοῦν ἀπεδόθη τοῖς δανείσασιν, ὑπ' ἐκείνων

LUCULLUS

XX. Lucullus now turned his attention to the cities in Asia,¹ in order that, while he was at leisure from military enterprises, he might do something for the furtherance of justice and law. Through long lack of these, unspeakable and incredible misfortunes were rife in the province. Its people were plundered and reduced to slavery by the tax-gatherers and money-lenders. Families were forced to sell their comely sons and virgin daughters, and cities their votive offerings, pictures, and sacred statues. At last men had to surrender to their creditors and serve them as slaves, but what preceded this was far worse,—tortures of rope, barrier, and horse; standing under the open sky in the blazing sun of summer, and in winter, being thrust into mud or ice. Slavery seemed, by comparison, to be disburdenment and peace. Such were the evils which Lucullus found in the cities, and in a short time he freed the oppressed from all of them.

In the first place, he ordered that the monthly rate of interest should be reckoned at one per cent., and no more; in the second place, he cut off all interest that exceeded the principal; third, and most important of all, he ordained that the lender should receive not more than the fourth part of his debtor's income, and any lender who added interest to principal was deprived of the whole. Thus, in less than four years' time, the debts were all paid, and the properties restored to their owners unencumbered. This public debt had its origin in the twenty thousand talents which Sulla had laid upon Asia as a contribution, and twice this amount had been paid back to the money-lenders. Yet now, by

¹ 71-70 B.C.

ἀνηγμένον ἤδη τοῖς τόκοις εἰς δώδεκα μυριάδας
 5 ταλάντων. ἐκεῖνοι μὲν οὖν ὡς δεινὰ πεπονθότες
 ἐν Ῥώμῃ τοῦ Λουκούλλου κατεβόων, καὶ χρήμασις ἀνίστασαν ἐπ' αὐτὸν ἐνίους τῶν δημαγωγῶν,
 μέγα δυνάμενοι καὶ πολλοὺς ὑπόχρεως πεπονημένοι τῶν πολιτευομένων. ὁ δὲ Λούκουλλος οὐ
 μόνον ὑπὸ τῶν εὐ πεπονθότων ἠγαπάτο δῆμων,
 ἀλλὰ καὶ ταῖς ἄλλαις ἐπαρχίαις ποθεινὸς ἦν,
 εὐδαιμονιζούσαις τοὺς ἠγεμόνος τοιούτου τυχόντας.

XXI. Ἄππιος δὲ Κλώδιος, ὁ πεμφθεὶς πρὸς
 Τιγράνην (ἦν δὲ ὁ Κλώδιος ἀδελφὸς τῆς τότε 505 Λουκούλλου συνοικουσίας) πρῶτον μὲν ὑπὸ τῶν
 βασιλικῶν ὁδηγῶν κύκλον τινὰ καὶ περιβολὴν
 ἔχουσαν οὐκ ἀναγκαίαν καὶ πολυήμερον ὁδὸν διὰ
 τῆς ἄνω χώρας ἀγόμενος, μηνύσαντος αὐτῷ τὴν
 εὐθείαν ὁδὸν ἀπελευθέρου Σύρου τὸ γένος, ἐκ-τρέπεται τῆς μακρᾶς ἐκείνης καὶ σοφιστικῆς,
 ἐρρῶσθαι φράσας πολλὰ τοῖς βαρβάροις ἀγωγοῖς,
 καὶ δι' ἡμερῶν ὀλίγων τὸν Εὐφράτην περάσας
 2 εἰς Ἀντιόχειαν ἦκε τὴν ἐπὶ Δάφνης. ἔπειτα Τιγράνην αὐτοῦ κελευσθεὶς περιμένειν (ἀπὴν γὰρ
 ἐνίας ἔτι τῶν ἐν Φοινίκῃ πόλεων καταστρεφόμενος), πολλοὺς μὲν ὠκείωσατο τῶν ὑπούλως
 ἀκρωμένων τοῦ Ἀρμενίου δυναστῶν, ὧν εἰς ἦν
 καὶ Ζαρβιηνὸς ὁ τῆς Γορδυνηῆς βασιλεὺς, πολλαῖς δὲ κρύφα τῶν δεδουλωμένων πόλεων
 διαπεμπομέναις πρὸς αὐτὸν ὑπέσχετο τὴν Λου-κούλλου βοήθειαν, ἐν τῷ παρόντι κελεύσας ἡσυχάζειν.
 3 Ἦν γὰρ οὐκ ἀνασχετὸς ἡ τῶν Ἀρμενίων ἀρχὴ

LUCULLUS

- reckoning usurious interest, they had brought the total debt up to a hundred and twenty thousand talents. These men, accordingly, considered themselves outraged, and raised a clamour against Lucullus at Rome. They also bribed some of the tribunes to proceed against him, being men of great influence, who had got many of the active politicians into their debt. Lucullus, however, was not only beloved by the peoples whom he had benefited, nay, other provinces also longed to have him set over them, and felicitated those whose good fortune it was to have such a governor.

XXI. Appius Clodius, who had been sent to Tigranes (Clodius was a brother of her who was then the wife of Lucullus), was at first conducted by the royal guides through the upper country by a route needlessly circuitous and long. But when a freedman of his, who was a Syrian, told him of the direct route, he left the long one which was being trickily imposed upon him, bade his Barbarian guides a long farewell, and within a few days crossed the Euphrates and came to Antioch by Daphne.¹ Then, being ordered to await Tigranes there (the king was still engaged in subduing some cities of Phoenicia), he gained over many of the princes who paid but a hollow obedience to the Armenian. One of these was Zarbienus, king of Gordyene. He also promised many of the enslaved cities, when they sent to confer with him secretly, the assistance of Lucullus, although for the present he bade them keep quiet.

Now the sway of the Armenians was intolerably

¹ The great Antioch on the river Orontes. Daphne was the name of a grove near the city consecrated to Apollo.

- τοῖς Ἕλλησιν, ἀλλὰ χαλεπή· καὶ μάλιστα τοῦ βασιλέως αὐτοῦ τὸ φρόνημα τραγικὸν καὶ ὑπερογκον ἐν ταῖς μεγάλαις εὐτυχίαις ἐγεγόνει, πάντων, ὅσα ζηλοῦσιν οἱ πολλοὶ καὶ θαυμάζουσιν, οὐ μόνον ὄντων περὶ αὐτόν, ἀλλὰ καὶ δι' αὐτὸν
- 4 γεγυῖναι δοκοῦντων. ἀρξάμενος γὰρ ἀπὸ μικρᾶς καὶ καταφρονουμένης ἐλπίδος ἔθνη πολλὰ κατεστρέψατο, καὶ τὴν Πάρθων, ὡς ἄλλος οὐδεὶς, δύναμιν ἐταπείνωσεν, Ἑλλήνων δὲ τὴν Μεσοποταμίαν ἐνέπλησε, πολλοὺς μὲν ἐκ Κιλικίας, πολλοὺς δ' ἐκ Καππαδοκίας ἀνασπάστους κατοικίζων. ἐκίνησε δ' ἐξ ἠθῶν καὶ Ἀραβας τοὺς Σικηνίτας μεταγαγὼν καὶ πλησίον ἰδρύσας, ὅπως
- 5 χρῶτο δι' ἐκείνων ταῖς ἐμπορίαις. βασιλεῖς δὲ πολλοὶ μὲν ἦσαν οἱ θεραπεύοντες αὐτόν, τέσσαρες δέ, οὓς αἰεὶ περὶ αὐτόν εἶχεν ὥσπερ ὄπαδους ἢ δορυφόρους, ἰππότη μὲν ἐλαύνοντι πεζοὺς παραθέοντας ἐν χιτωνίσκοις, καθημένῳ δὲ καὶ χρηματίζοντι περιεστῶτας ἐπηλλαγμέναις δι' ἀλλήλων ταῖς χερσίν, ὅπερ ἐδόκει μάλιστα τῶν σχημάτων ἐξομολόγησις εἶναι δουλείας, οἷον ἀποδομένων τὴν ἐλευθερίαν καὶ τὸ σῶμα τῷ κυρίῳ παρεχόντων παθεῖν ἐτοιμότερον ἢ ποιῆσαι.
- 6 Ταύτην μέντοι τὴν τραγωδίαν οὐχ ὑποτρέσας οὐδ' ἐκπλαγεὶς ὁ Ἀππιος, ὡς ἔτυχε λόγου πρῶτον, ἀντικρυς ἤκειν ἔφη Μιθριδάτην ἀπάξων ὀφειλόμενον τοῖς Λουκούλλου θριάμβοις ἢ καταγεγελῶν Τιγράνην πόλεμον, ὥστε τὸν Τιγράνην, καίπερ ἐν διαχύσει τοῦ προσώπου καὶ μειδιάματι πεπλασμένῳ πειρώμενον ἀκούειν τῶν λόγων, μὴ λαθεῖν τοὺς παρόντας ἠλλοιωμένον τῇ παρρησίᾳ τοῦ νεανίσκου, φωνῆς σχεδὸν ἐλευθέρας ἀκούοντα grievous to the Greeks. Above all else, the spirit of the king himself had become pompous and haughty in the midst of his great prosperity. All the things which most men covet and admire, he not only had in his possession, but actually thought that they existed for his sake. For though he had started on his career with small and insignificant expectations, he had subdued many nations, humbled the Parthian power as no man before him had done, and filled Mesopotamia with Greeks whom he removed in great numbers from Cilicia and from Cappadocia, and settled anew. He also removed from their wonted haunts the nomadic Arabians, and brought them to an adjacent settlement, that he might employ them in trade and commerce. Many were the kings who waited upon him, and four, whom he always had about him like attendants or body-guards, would run on foot by their master's side when he rode out, clad in short blouses, and when he sat transacting business, would stand by with their arms crossed. This attitude was thought to be the plainest confession of servitude, as if they had sold their freedom and offered their persons to their master disposed for suffering rather than for service.

LUCULLUS .

Appius, however, was not frightened or astonished at all this pomp and show, but as soon as he obtained an audience, told the king plainly that he was come to take back Mithridates, as an ornament due to the triumph of Lucullus, or else to declare war against Tigranes. Although Tigranes made every effort to listen to this speech with a cheerful countenance and a forced smile, he could not hide from the bystanders his discomfiture at the bold words of the young man. It must have been five and twenty διὰ πέντε καὶ εἴκοσιν ἐτῶν· τοσαῦτα γὰρ ἐβασί-7 λευσε, μᾶλλον δὲ ὕβρισεν. ἀπεκρίνατο μὲν οὖν

 τῷ Ἀππίῳ μὴ προήσασθαι Μιθριδάτην, καὶ Ῥωμαίους πολέμου ἄρχοντας ἀμυνεῖσθαι. Λου-κούλλῳ δ' ὀργιζόμενος, ὅτι βασιλέα μόνον αὐτόν,
 οὐ βασιλέων ἐν τῇ ἐπιστολῇ προσηγόρευσε,
 οὐδ' αὐτὸς ἀντιγράφων αὐτοκράτορα προσεῖπεν.
 ἔπεμψε δὲ δῶρα τῷ Ἀππίῳ λαμπρά, καὶ μὴ λαβόντος ἄλλα πλείω προσέθηκεν. ἐκ τούτων ὁ Ἀππίος
 οὐκ ἐθέλων δοκεῖν ἔχθρα τινὶ διωθεῖσθαι φιάλην
 δεξάμενος μίαν ἀπέπεμψε τὰ λοιπά, καὶ διὰ
 ταχέων ἀπήλαυσε πρὸς τὸν αὐτοκράτορα.

XXII. Τιγράνης δὲ Μιθριδάτην πρότερον μὲν
 οὐδὲ ἰδεῖν ἤξιωσε οὐδὲ προσεῖπεν οἰκείον ἄνδρα
 βασιλείας ἐκπεπτωκότα τηλικαύτης, ἀλλ' ἀτίμως
 καὶ ὑπερηφάνως ἀπωτάτω περιεῖδεν αὐτόν τρό-πον τινὰ φρουρούμενον ἐν χωρίοις ἐλώδεσι καὶ
 νοσεροῖς· τότε δὲ σὺν τιμῇ καὶ φιλοφροσύνῃ
 2 μετεπέμψατο αὐτόν εἰς τὰ βασίλεια. καὶ δὴ
 λόγων γενομένων ἀπορρήτων τὰς πρὸς ἀλλήλους 506
 ἐθεράπευον ὑποψίας ἐπὶ κακῷ τῶν φίλων, εἰς
 ἐκείνους τὰς αἰτίας τρέποντες. ὧν ἦν καὶ Μητρόδωρος ὁ Σκήψιος, ἀνὴρ εἰπεῖν οὐκ ἀηδὴς
 καὶ πολυμαθής, ἀκμῇ δὲ φιλίας τοσαύτη χρησά-3 μένος, ὥστε πατὴρ προσαγορεύεσθαι τοῦ βασιλέως. τούτου, ὡς ἔοικεν, ὁ Τιγράνης πεμφθέντα
 πρεσβευτὴν ὑπὸ τοῦ Μιθριδάτου πρὸς αὐτόν 538

LUCULLUS

years since he had listened to a free speech. That was the length of his reign, or rather, of his wanton tyranny. However, he replied to Appius that he would not surrender Mithridates, and that if the Romans began war, he would defend himself. He was vexed with Lucullus for addressing him in his letter with the title of King only, and not King of Kings, and accordingly, in his reply, would not address Lucullus as Emperor. But he sent splendid gifts to Appius, and when he would not take them, added more besides. Appius finally accepted a single bowl from among them, not wishing his rejection of the king's offers to seem prompted by any personal enmity, but sent back the rest, and marched off with all speed to join the Emperor.

XXII. Up to this time Tigranes had not deigned to see Mithridates, nor speak to him, though the man was allied to him by marriage, and had been expelled from such a great kingdom. Instead, he had kept him at the farthest remove possible, in disgrace and contumely, and had suffered him to be held a sort of prisoner in marshy and sickly regions. Now, however, he summoned him to his palace with marks of esteem and friendship. There, in secret conference, they strove to allay their mutual suspicions at the expense of their friends, by laying the blame upon them. One of these was Metrodorus of Scepsis, a man of agreeable speech and wide learning, who enjoyed the friendship of Mithridates in such a high degree that he was called the king's father. This man, as it seems, had once been sent as an ambassador from Mithridates to Tigranes, with a request for aid against the Romans. On this

PLUTARCH'S LIVES

- δεομένου βοηθεῖν ἐπὶ Ῥωμαίους ἤρετο. “Σὺ δ’ αὐτός, ὦ Μητρόδωρε, τί μοι περὶ τούτων παραινεῖς;” κάκεινος εἶτε πρὸς τὸ Τιγράνου συμφέρον εἶτε Μιθριδάτην σώζεσθαι μὴ βουλόμενος, ὡς μὲν πρεσβευτῆς ἔφη κελεύειν, ὡς δὲ σύμβουλος ἀπαγορεύειν. ταῦτ’ ἐξήνεγκεν ὁ Τιγράνης τῷ Μιθριδάτῃ καὶ κατεῖπεν ὡς οὐδὲν ἐργασομένῳ τὸν
- 4 Μητρόδωρον ἀνήκεστον. ὁ δ’ εὐθύς ἀνήρητο· καὶ μετάνοια τὸν Τιγράνην εἶχεν, οὐ παντελῶς ὄντα τῷ Μητροδώρῳ τῆς συμφορᾶς αἴτιον, ἀλλὰ ῥοπήν τινα τῷ πρὸς αὐτὸν ἔχθει τοῦ Μιθριδάτου προσθέντα. πάλαι γὰρ ὑπούλως εἶχε πρὸς τὸν ἄνδρα, καὶ τοῦτ’ ἐφωράθη τῶν ἀπορρήτων αὐτοῦ γραμμάτων ἀλόντων, ἐν οἷς ἦν καὶ Μητρόδωρον ἀπολέσθαι διατεταγμένον. ἔθαψεν οὖν ὁ Τιγράνης λαμπρῶς τὸ σῶμα, μηδεμιᾶς πολυτελείας φεισάμενος εἰς νεκρὸν ὃν ζῶντα προὔδωκεν.
- 5 Ἐτελεύτησε δὲ παρὰ τῷ Τιγράνῃ καὶ Ἀμφικράτης ὁ ῥήτωρ, εἰ δεῖ καὶ τούτου μνήμην τινα γενέσθαι διὰ τὰς Ἀθήνας. λέγεται γὰρ φυγεῖν μὲν αὐτὸν εἰς Σελεύκειαν τὴν ἐπὶ Τίγριδι, δεομένων δ’ αὐτόθι σοφιστεύειν ὑπεριδεῖν καταλαξονευσάμενον, ὡς οὐδὲ λεκάνῃ δελφίνα χωροίη, μεταστάντα δὲ πρὸς Κλεοπάτραν τὴν Μιθριδάτου θυγατέρα, Τιγράνην δὲ συνοικοῦσαν ἐν διαβολῇ γενέσθαι ταχύ, καὶ τῆς πρὸς τοὺς Ἕλληνας ἐπιμιξίας εἰργόμενον ἀποκαρτερῆσαι· ταφῆναι δὲ καὶ τοῦτον ἐντίμως ὑπὸ τῆς Κλεοπάτρας καὶ occasion Tigranes asked him: "But what is your own advice to me, Metrodorus, in this matter?" Whereupon Metrodorus, either with an eye to the interests of Tigranes, or because he did not wish Mithridates to be saved, said that as an ambassador he urged consent, but as an adviser he forbade it. Tigranes disclosed this to Mithridates, not supposing, when he told him, that he would punish Metrodorus past all healing. But Metrodorus was at once put out of the way. Then Tigranes repented of what he had done, although he was not entirely to blame for the death of Metrodorus. He merely gave an impulse, as it were, to the hatred which Mithridates already had for the man. For he had long been secretly hostile to him, as was seen from his private papers when they were captured, in which there were directions that Metrodorus, as well as others, be put to death. Accordingly, Tigranes gave the body of Metrodorus a splendid burial, sparing no expense upon the man when dead, although he had betrayed him when alive.

LUCULLUS

Amphicrates, the rhetorician, also lost his life at the court of Tigranes, if, for the sake of Athens, we may make some mention of him too. It is said that when he was exiled from his native city, he went to Seleucia on the Tigris, and that when the citizens asked him to give lectures there, he treated their invitation with contempt, arrogantly remarking that a stewpan could not hold a dolphin. Removing thence, he attached himself to Cleopatra, the daughter of Mithridates and wife of Tigranes, but speedily fell into disfavour, and, being excluded from intercourse with Greeks, starved himself to death. He also received honourable burial at the hands of

PLUTARCH'S LIVES

κεῖσθαι περὶ Σαφίν, ἐκεῖ τι χωρίον οὕτω κυλούμενον.

XXIII. Λούκουλλος δὲ τὴν Ἀσίαν πολλῆς μὲν εὐνομίας, πολλῆς δ' εἰρήνης ἐμπεπληκῶς οὐδὲ τῶν πρὸς ἡδονὴν καὶ χάριν ἠμέλησεν, ἀλλὰ πομπαῖς καὶ πανηγύρεσιν ἐπινικίοις καὶ ἀγῶσιν ἀθλητῶν καὶ μονομάχων ἐν Ἐφέσῳ καθήμενος ἐδημαγῶγει τὰς πόλεις, αἱ δ' ἀμειβόμεναι Λουκούλλειά τε ἦγον ἐπὶ τιμῇ τοῦ ἀνδρός, καὶ τῆς τιμῆς ἡδίονα
 2 τὴν ἀληθινὴν εὐνοίαν αὐτῷ παρεῖχον. ἐπεὶ δ' Ἀππιὸς τε ἦκε καὶ πολεμητέον πρὸς Τυγράνην ἐφαίνετο, παρήλθεν αὐθις εἰς Πόντον, καὶ τοὺς στρατιώτας ἀναλαβὼν ἐπολιόρκει Σινώπην, μᾶλλον δὲ τοὺς κατέχοντας αὐτὴν βασιλικούς Κίλικας, οἱ πολλοὺς μὲν ἀνελόντες τῶν Σινωπέων, τὴν
 3 δὲ πόλιν ἐμπρήσαντες διὰ νυκτὸς ἔφυγον. αἰσθόμενος δ' ὁ Λούκουλλος καὶ παρελθὼν εἰς τὴν πόλιν ὀκτακισχιλίους αὐτῶν τοὺς ἐγκαταλειφθέντας ἀπέκτεινε, τοῖς δ' ἄλλοις ἀπέδωκε τὰ οἰκεία καὶ τῆς πόλεως ἐπεμελήθη μάλιστα διὰ τὴν τοιαύτην ὄψιν. ἐδόκει τινὰ κατὰ τοὺς ὕπνους εἰπεῖν παραστάνα· “Πρόελθε, Λούκουλλε, μικρόν ἦκει γὰρ
 4 Αὐτόλυκος ἐντυχεῖν σοι βουλόμενος.” ἔξαναστὰς δὲ τὴν μὲν ὄψιν οὐκ εἶχε συμβαλεῖν εἰς ὃ τι φέροι, τὴν δὲ πόλιν εἶλε κατ' ἐκείνην τὴν ἡμέραν, καὶ τοὺς ἐκπλέοντας τῶν Κιλικῶν διώκων ὄρα παρατὸν αἰγιαλὸν ἀνδριάντα κείμενον, ὃν ἐκκομίζοντες οἱ Κίλικες οὐκ ἔφθησαν ἐμβαλέσθαι· τὸ δ' ἔργον ἦν Σθένειδος τῶν καλῶν. φράζει οὖν τις, ὡς Αὐτολύκου τοῦ κτίσαντος τὴν Σινώπην ὁ ἀνδριάς εἶη.

LUCULLUS

Cleopatra, and his body lies at Sapha, as a place in those parts is called.

XXIII. Lucullus, after filling Asia full of law and order, and full of peace, did not neglect the things which minister to pleasure and win favour, but during his stay at Ephesus gratified the cities with processions and triumphal festivals and contests of athletes and gladiators. And the cities, in response, celebrated festivals which they called Lucullea, to do honour to the man, and bestowed upon him what is sweeter than honour, their genuine good-will. But when Appius came, and it was plain that war must be waged against Tigranes, he went back into Pontus, put himself at the head of his soldiers, and laid siege to Sinopé, or rather, to the Cilicians who were occupying that city for the king. These slew many of the Sinopians, fired the city, and set out to fly by night. But Lucullus saw what was going on, made his way into the city, and slew eight thousand of the Cilicians who were still there. Then he restored to the citizens their private property, and ministered to the needs of the city, more especially on account of the following vision. He thought in his sleep that a form stood by his side and said: "Go forward a little, Lucullus; for Autolyceus is come, and wishes to meet you." On rising from sleep, he was unable to conjecture what the vision meant; but he took the city on that day, and as he pursued the Cilicians who were sailing away, he saw a statue lying on the beach, which the Cilicians had not succeeded in getting on board with them. It was the work of Sthenis, and one of his master-pieces. Well then, some one told Lucullus that it was the statue of Autolyceus, the founder of Sinopé.

- 5 Λέγεται δ' ὁ Αὐτόλυκος γενέσθαι τῶν ἐπὶ τὰς Ἀμαζόνας ἐκ Θετταλίας Ἡρακλεῖ συστρατευσάντων, Δηϊμάχου παῖς· ἐκείθεν δ' ἀποπλέων ἅμα Δημολέοντι καὶ Φλογίῳ τὴν μὲν ναῦν ἀπολέσαι περιπεσοῦσαν τῆς Χερρονήσου κατὰ τὸ καλούμενον Πηδάλιον, αὐτὸς δὲ σωθεὶς μετὰ τῶν ὄπλων 507 καὶ τῶν ἐταίρων πρὸς τὴν Σινώπην ἀφελέσθαι
- 6 τοὺς Σύρους τὴν πόλιν· Σύροι γὰρ αὐτὴν κατεῖχον ἀπὸ Σύρου γεγονότες τοῦ Ἀπόλλωνος, ὡς λέγεται, καὶ Σινώπης τῆς Ἀσωπίδος.

Ταῦτ' ἀκούων ὁ Λούκουλλος ἀνεμιμνήσκετο τῆς Σύλλα παραινέσεως· παρήνει δὲ διὰ τῶν ὑπομημάτων ἐκείνος μηδὲν οὕτως ἀξιόπιστον ἡγείσθαι καὶ βέβαιοι, ὡς ὃ τι ἂν ἀποσημανθῆ διὰ τῶν ἐνυπνίων.

- 7 Πυνθανόμενος δὲ Μιθριδάτην τε καὶ Τιγράνην εἰς Λυκαονίαν καὶ Κιλικίαν ὅσον οὐπω διαβιβάξειν δύναμιν ὡς προτέρους ἐμβαλοῦντας εἰς τὴν Ἀσίαν, ἐθαύμαζε τὸν Ἀρμένιον, εἰ γνώμην ἔχων ἐπιθέσθαι Ῥωμαίοις, ἀκμάζοντι μὲν οὐκ ἐχρήτο Μιθριδάτῃ πρὸς τὸν πόλεμον, οὐδ' ἐρρωμένοις τοῖς ἐκείνου τὰ παρ' αὐτοῦ συνῆπτεν, ἀπολέσθαι δ' ἑάσας καὶ συντριβῆναι νῦν ἐπὶ ψυχραῖς ἐλπίσιν ἄρχεται πολέμου τοῖς ἀναστήναι μὴ δυναμένοις συγκαταβάλλων ἑαυτόν.

XXIV. Ἐπειδὴ δὲ καὶ Μαχάρης ὁ Μιθριδάτου παῖς ἔχων τὸν Βόσπορον ἔπεμψεν αὐτῷ στέφανον ἀπὸ χρυσῶν χιλίων, δεόμενος Ῥωμαίων ἀναγραφῆναι φίλος καὶ σύμμαχος, ἤδη οἰόμενος τὰ τοῦ προτέρου πολέμου πέρασ ἔχειν Σωρνάτιον

LUCULLUS

Now Autolyceus is said to have been one of those who made an expedition with Heracles from Thessaly against the Amazons, a son of Deïmachus. On his voyage of return, in company with Demoleon and Phlogius, he lost his ship, which was wrecked at the place called Pedalium, in the Chersonesus; but he himself escaped, with his arms and his companions, and coming to Sinopé, took the city away from the Syrians. These Syrians who were in possession of the city were descended, as it is said, from Syrus, the son of Apollo, and Sinopé, the daughter of Asopis.

On hearing this, Lucullus called to mind the advice of Sulla, in his Memoirs, which was to think nothing so trustworthy and sure as that which is signified by dreams.

Being informed now that Mithridates and Tigranes were on the point of entering Lycaonia and Cilicia, with the purpose of invading Asia before war was actually declared, he was amazed that the Armenian, if he cherished the design of attacking the Romans, had not made use of Mithridates for this war when he was at the zenith of his power, nor joined forces with him when he was strong, but had allowed him to be crushed and ruined, and now began a war which offered only faint hopes of success, prostrating himself to the level of those who were unable to stand erect.

XXIV. But when Machares also, the son of Mithridates, who held the Bosphorus, sent Lucullus a crown valued at a thousand pieces of gold, begging to be included in the list of Rome's friends and allies, Lucullus decided at once that the first war was finished. He therefore left Sornatius there

PLUTARCH'S LIVES

- μὲν αὐτοῦ φύλακα τῶν Ποντικῶν ἀπέλιπε μετὰ
 2 στρατιωτῶν ἑξακισχιλίων, αὐτὸς δὲ μυρίους μὲν
 ἄγων καὶ δισχιλίους πεζοὺς, ἵππεις δὲ τρισχιλίων
 ἐλάττους, ἐπὶ τὸν δεύτερον ἐχώρει πόλεμον, ὄρμη
 τινι δοκῶν παραβόλῳ καὶ σωτήριον οὐκ ἐχούσῃ
 λογισμὸν ἐμβαλεῖν αὐτὸν εἰς ἔθνη μάχιμα καὶ
 μυριάδας ἵππέων πολλὰς καὶ ἀχανῆ χώραν,
 βαθέσι μὲν ποταμοῖς, αἰεὶ δὲ καταनिφομένοις ὄρεσι
 3 περιεχομένην, ὥστε τοὺς μὲν στρατιώτας οὐδ'
 ἄλλως ὄντας εὐτάκτους ἄκοντας ἔπεσθαι καὶ
 ζυγομαχοῦντας, ἐν δὲ Ῥώμῃ καταβοᾶν καὶ διαμαρτύρεσθαι τοὺς δημαγωγούς, ὡς πόλεμον ἐκ
 πολέμου διώκει Λούκουλλος οὐδὲν τῆς πόλεως
 δεομένης, ἀλλ' ὑπὲρ τοῦ στρατηγῶν μηδέποτε
 καταθέσθαι τὰ ὄπλα μηδὲ παύσασθαι χρηματιζό-4 μενος ἀπὸ τῶν κοινῶν κινδύνων. οὗτοι μὲν οὖν ἐξεργάσαντο χρόνῳ τὴν αὐτῶν ὑπόθεσιν. Λούκουλλος δὲ συντόνως ὀδεύσας ἐπὶ τὸν Εὐφράτην,
 καὶ κατιόντα πολὺν καὶ θολερὸν ὑπὸ χειμῶνος εὐρών, ἤσχαλλεν, ὡς διατριβῆς αὐτῷ καὶ πραγματείας ἐσομένης συνάγοντι πορθμεῖα καὶ πηγ-νυμένῳ σχεδίας. ἀρξάμενον δ' ἀφ' ἐσπέρας
 ὑποχωρεῖν τὸ ρεῦμα καὶ μειούμενον διὰ τῆς νυκτὸς
 ἅμ' ἡμέρᾳ κοῖλον παρέσχευ ὀφθῆναι τὸν ποταμόν.
 5 οἱ δ' ἐπιχώριοι νησιδας ἐν τῷ πόρῳ μικρὰς διαφανέϊσας θεασάμενοι καὶ τεναγίζοντα τὸν ῥοῦν ἐπ'
 αὐταῖς, προσεκύνουν τὸν Λούκουλλον, ὡς ὀλιγάκις τούτου συμβεβηκότος πρότερον, ἐκείνῳ δ' ἐκου-σίως χειροῆθη καὶ πρῶτον αὐτὸν ἐνδιδόντος τοῦ ποταμοῦ καὶ παρέχοντος ἀπράγμονα καὶ ταχεῖαν
 τὴν διάβασιν.

LUCULLUS

as guardian of Pontus, with six thousand soldiers, while he himself, with twelve thousand footmen and less than three thousand horse, set out for the second war.¹ He seemed to be making a reckless attack, and one which admitted of no saving calculation, upon warlike nations, countless thousands of horsemen, and a boundless region surrounded by deep rivers and mountains covered with perpetual snow. His soldiers, therefore, who were none too well disciplined in any case, followed him reluctantly and rebelliously, while the popular tribunes at Rome raised an outcry against him, and accused him of seeking one war after another, although the city had no need of them, that he might be in perpetual command and never lay down his arms or cease enriching himself from the public dangers. And, in time, these men accomplished their purpose. But Lucullus advanced by forced marches to the Euphrates. Here he found the stream swollen and turbid from the winter storms, and was vexed to think of the delay and trouble which it would cost him to collect boats and build rafts. But at evening the stream began to subside, went on diminishing through the night, and at day-break the river was running between lofty banks. The natives, observing that sundry small islands in the channel had become visible, and that the current near them was quiet, made obeisance to Lucullus, saying that this had seldom happened before, and that the river had voluntarily made itself tame and gentle for Lucullus, and offered him an easy and speedy passage.

¹ 69 B. C.

- 6 Χρησάμενος οὖν τῷ καιρῷ διεβίβαζε τὴν στρατιάν· καὶ γίνεται σημεῖον αὐτῷ χρηστὸν ἅμα τῇ διαβάσει. βόες ἱεραὶ νέμονται Περσίας Ἀρτέμιδος, ἣν μάλιστα θεῶν οἱ πέραν Εὐφρύτου βάρβαροι τιμῶσι· χρώνται δὲ ταῖς βουσί πρὸς θυσίαν μόνον, ἄλλως δὲ πλάζονται κατὰ τὴν χώραν ἄφετοι, χαράγματα φέρουσαι τῆς θεοῦ λαμπάδα, καὶ λαβεῖν ἐξ αὐτῶν, ὅταν δεθῶσιν, οὐ πάνυ ῥαδίον ἐστὶν οὐδὲ μικρᾶς πραγματείας.
- 7 τούτων μία, τοῦ στρατοῦ διαβάντος τὸν Εὐφράτην, ἐλθοῦσα πρὸς τινα πέτραν ἱερὰν τῆς θεοῦ νομιζομένην ἐπ' αὐτῆς ἔστη, καὶ καταβαλοῦσα τὴν κεφαλὴν, ὥσπερ αἱ δεσμῷ κατατεινόμεναι, θῦσαι τῷ Λουκούλλῳ παρέσχεν αὐτήν. ἔθυσε δὲ καὶ
- 8 τῷ Εὐφράτῃ ταῦρον διαβατήραι. κἀκείνην μὲν αὐτοῦ τὴν ἡμέραν ἠύλισατο, τῇ δ' ὑστεραία καὶ 508 ταῖς ἐφεξῆς προῆγε διὰ τῆς Σωφηνῆς, οὐδὲν ἀδικῶν τοὺς ἀνθρώπους προσχωροῦντας αὐτῷ καὶ δεχομένους τὴν στρατιὰν ἀσμένους, ἀλλὰ καὶ τῶν στρατιωτῶν φρούριόν τι δοκοῦν ἔχειν χρήματα πολλὰ βουλομένων λαβεῖν “Ἐκεῖνο,” ἔφη, “μᾶλλον τὸ φρούριον ἡμῖν ἐκκοπτέον ἐστί,” δείξας τὸν Ταῦρον ἄπωθεν ὄντα, “ταῦτα δ' ἀπόκειται τοῖς μικῶσι.” συντείνας δὲ τὴν πορείαν καὶ τὸν Τίγριν διαβὰς ἐνέβαλεν εἰς τὴν Ἀρμενίαν.

XXV. Τιγράνῃ δ', ὡς ὁ πρῶτος ἀγγείλας ἦκουτα Λούκουλλον οὐκ ἐχαίρησεν, ἀλλ' ἀπετέμνητο τὴν κεφαλὴν, οὐδεὶς ἄλλος ἔφραζεν, ἀλλ' ἀγνοῶν καθῆστο περικαιόμενος ἤδη τῷ πολεμῷ

LUCULLUS

Accordingly, he took advantage of his opportunity and put his troops across, and a favourable sign accompanied his crossing. Heifers pasture there which are sacred to Persia Artemis, a goddess whom the Barbarians on the further side of the Euphrates hold in the highest honour. These heifers are used only for sacrifice, and at other times are left to roam about the country at large, with brands upon them in the shape of the torch of the goddess. Nor is it a slight or easy matter to catch any of them when they are wanted. One of these heifers, after the army had crossed the Euphrates, came to a certain rock which is deemed sacred to the goddess, and stood upon it, and lowering its head without any compulsion from the usual rope, offered itself to Lucullus for sacrifice. He also sacrificed a bull to the Euphrates, in acknowledgment of his safe passage. Then, after encamping there during that day, on the next and the succeeding days he advanced through Sophené. He wrought no harm to the inhabitants, who came to meet him and received his army gladly. Nay, when his soldiers wanted to take a certain fortress which was thought to contain much wealth, "Yonder lies the fortress which we must rather bring low," said he, pointing to the Taurus in the distance; "these nearer things are reserved for the victors." Then he went on by forced marches, crossed the Tigris, and entered Armenia.

XXV. Since the first messenger who told Tigranes that Lucullus was coming had his head cut off for his pains, no one else would tell him anything, and so he sat in ignorance while the fires of war were already blazing around him, giving ear only to those

PLUTARCH'S LIVES

- πυρί, λόγους ἀκούων πρὸς χάριν, ὡς μέγαν ὄντα
 Λούκουλλον στρατηγόν, εἰ πρὸς Ἐφέσῳ Τιγράϊην
 ὑποσταίη καὶ μὴ φεύγων εὐθύς ἐξ Ἀσίας οἴχοιτο
 2 τὰς τοσαύτας μυριάδας ἰδών. οὕτως οὔτε σώματος παντός ἐστι πολὺν ἄκρατον ἐνεγκεῖν οὔτε
 διανοίας τῆς τυχούσης ἐν εὐτυχήμασι μεγάλοις
 μὴ ἐκστῆναι τῶν λογισμῶν. πρῶτος δ' αὐτῷ τῶν
 φίλων ἐτόλμησε Μιθροβαρζάνης φράσαι τὸ
 ἀληθές. οὐδ' οὗτος δὲ χρῆστὸν ἠνέγκατο γέρας
 τῆς παρρησίας. ἐπέμφθη γὰρ εὐθύς ἐπὶ τὸν Λούκουλλον σὺν ἰππεῦσι τρισχιλίοις, πεζοῖς δὲ
 παμπόλλοις, κελευσθεὶς τὸν μὲν στρατηγὸν ἄγειν ζῶντα, τοὺς δ' ἄλλους καταπατῆσαι.
- 3 Λουκούλλῳ δὲ τῆς στρατιᾶς ἢ μὲν ἤδη κατε-ζεύγνυνεν, ἢ δὲ ἔτι προσῆει. τῶν δὲ σκοπῶν αὐτῷ
 φρασάντων ἐπελαύνοντα τὸν βάρβαρον, ἔδεισε μὴ
 χωρὶς ὄντας καὶ οὐκ ἐν τάξει προσπεσὼν ταραξῆ.
 καὶ αὐτὸς μὲν καθίστατο τὴν στρατοπεδείαν,
 Σεξτίλιον δὲ πρεσβευτὴν ἔπεμψεν ἰππεῖς ἔχοντα
 χιλίους ἑξακοσίους, ὀπίστας δὲ καὶ ψιλούς οὐ
 4 πολλῷ πλείονας, κελεύσας ἐγγὺς προσελθόντα
 τοῖς πολεμίοις μένειν, ἕως ἂν πύθῃται τοὺς μετ'
 αὐτοῦ κατεστρατοπεδευκότας. ἐβούλετο μὲν
 οὖν ὁ Σεξτίλιος ταῦτα ποιεῖν, ἐβιάσθη δ' ὑπὸ τοῦ Μιθροβαρζάνου θρασέως ἐπελαύνοντος εἰς χεῖρας
 ἔλθειν. καὶ γενομένης μάχης ὁ μὲν Μιθροβαρ-ζάνης ἔπεσεν ἀγωνιζόμενος, οἱ δ' ἄλλοι φεύγοντες
 ἀπώλοντο πλὴν ὀλίγων ἅπαντες.
- 5 Ἐκ τούτου Τιγράνης μὲν ἐκλιπὼν Τιγρανό-κερτα, μεγάλην πόλιν ἐκτισμένην ὑπ' αὐτοῦ,

LUCULLUS

who flattered him and said that Lucullus would be a great general if he ventured to withstand Tigranes at Ephesus, and did not fly incontinently from Asia at the mere sight of so many myriads of men. Which only proves that it is not every man who can bear much unmixed wine, nor is it any ordinary understanding that does not lose its reckoning in the midst of great prosperity. The first of his friends who ventured to tell him the truth was Mithrobarzanes, and he, too, got no very excellent reward for his boldness of speech. He was sent at once against Lucullus with three thousand horsemen and a large force of infantry, under orders to bring the general alive, but to trample his men under foot.

Now, part of the army of Lucullus was already preparing to go into camp, and the rest was still coming up, when his scouts told him that the Barbarian was advancing to the attack. Fearing lest the enemy attack his men when they were separated and in disorder, and so throw them into confusion, he himself fell to arranging the encampment, and Sextilius, the legate, was sent at the head of sixteen hundred horsemen and about as many light and heavy infantry, with orders to get near the enemy and wait there until he learned that the main body was safely encamped. Well then, this was what Sextilius wished to do, but he was forced into an engagement by Mithrobarzanes, who boldly charged upon him. A battle ensued, in which Mithrobarzanes fell fighting, and the rest of his forces took to flight and were cut to pieces, all except a few.

Upon this, Tigranes abandoned Tigranocerta, that great city which he had built, withdrew to the

PLUTARCH'S LIVES

πρὸς τὸν Ταῦρον ἀνεχώρησε καὶ τὰς δυνάμεις πανταχόθεν ἐνταῦθα συνήγε, Λούκουλλος δὲ τῇ παρασκευῇ χρόνον οὐ διδούς Μουρήναν μὲν ἐξέπεμψεν ἐνοχλήσοντα καὶ περικόφοντα τοὺς ἀθροιζομένους πρὸς τὸν Τιγράνην, Σεξτίλιον δὲ πάλιν Ἀράβων χεῖρα μεγάλην ἀνείρξοντα βασιλεῖ
 6 προσιοῦσαν. ὁμοῦ δὲ Σεξτίλιος μὲν ἐπιπεσὼν στρατόπεδον ποιούμενοις τοῖς Ἀραψι τοὺς πλείστους διέφθειρε, Μουρήνας δ' ἐπόμενος Τιγράνη τραχὺν αὐλῶνα καὶ στενόπορον στρατῷ μακρῷ διεκβάλλουσι καιροῦ παρασχόντος ἐπιτίθεται. καὶ φεύγει μὲν αὐτὸς Τιγράνης προέμενος τὴν ἀποσκευὴν ἅπασαν, ἀποθνήσκουσι δὲ πολλοὶ καὶ πλείονες ἀλίσκονται τῶν Ἀρμενίων.

XXVI. Οὕτω δὲ τούτων προχωρούντων ἄρας ὁ Λούκουλλος ἐπορεύετο πρὸς Τιγρανόκερτα, καὶ περιστρατοπεδεύσας ἐπολιόρκει τὴν πόλιν. ἦσαν δ' ἐν αὐτῇ πολλοὶ μὲν Ἕλληνες τῶν ἀναστάτων ἐκ Κιλικίας, πολλοὶ δὲ βάρβαροι τοῖς Ἕλλησιν ὅμοια πεπονθότες, Ἀδιαβηνοὶ καὶ Ἀσσύριοι καὶ Γορδυνηνοὶ καὶ Καππάδοκες, ὧν κατασκάψας τὰς πατρίδας, αὐτοὺς δὲ κομίσας ἐκεῖ κατοικεῖν
 2 ἠνάγκασεν. ἦν δὲ καὶ χρημάτων ἢ πόλις μεστή καὶ ἀναθημάτων, παντὸς ἰδιώτου καὶ δυνάστου τῷ βασιλεῖ συμφιλοτιμουμένου πρὸς αὔξησιν καὶ κατασκευὴν τῆς πόλεως. διὸ καὶ συντόμως ἐπολιόρκει ὁ Λούκουλλος αὐτήν, οὐκ ἀνέξεσθαι τὸν Τιγράνην οἴομενος, ἀλλὰ καὶ παρὰ γνώμην ὑπ' ὀργῆς καταβήσεσθαι διαμαχούμενον, ὀρθῶς οἰό-
 3 μενος. πολλὰ δὲ Μιθριδάτης ἀπηγόρευσεν ἀγγέλους πέμπων καὶ γράμματα μὴ συνάπτειν μάχην, ἀλλὰ τοῖς ἰππεῦσι περικόπτειν τὴν ἀγοράν.

LUCULLUS

Taurus, and there began collecting his forces from every quarter. Lucullus, however, gave him no time for preparation, but sent out Murena to harass and cut off the forces gathering to join Tigranes, and Sextilius again to hold in check a large body of Arabs which was drawing near the king. At one and the same time Sextilius fell upon the Arabs as they were going into camp, and slew most of them; and Murena, following hard upon Tigranes, seized his opportunity and attacked the king as he was passing through a rough and narrow defile with his army in long column. Tigranes himself fled, abandoning all his baggage, many of the Armenians were slain, and more were captured.

XXVI. Thus successful in his campaign, Lucullus struck camp and proceeded to Tigranocerta, which city he invested and began to besiege. There were in the city many Greeks who had been transplanted, like others, from Cilicia, and many Barbarians who had suffered the same fate as the Greeks,—Adiabeni, Assyrians, Gordyeni, and Cappadocians, whose native cities Tigranes had demolished, and brought their inhabitants to dwell there under compulsion. The city was also full of wealth and votive offerings, since every private person and every prince vied with the king in contributing to its increase and adornment. Therefore Lucullus pressed the siege of the city with vigour, in the belief that Tigranes would not endure it, but contrary to his better judgment and in anger would descend into the plains to offer battle; and his belief was justified. Mithridates, indeed, both by messengers and letters, strongly urged the king not to join battle, but to cut off the enemy's supplies

πολλά δὲ Ταξίλης ἤκων παρ' αὐτοῦ καὶ συστρατεύων ἐδεῖτο τοῦ βασιλέως φυλάττεσθαι καὶ
 φεύγειν ὡς ἄμαχον πρᾶγμα τὰ Ῥωμαίων ὄπλα.
 4 καὶ τά γε πρῶτα πράως ἤκουε τούτων. ἐπεὶ δὲ
 πανστρατιᾷ μὲν αὐτῷ συνῆλθον Ἀρμένιοι καὶ Γορδυηνοί, πανστρατιᾷ δὲ Μήδους καὶ Ἀδιαβη-νοὺς ἄγοντες οἱ βασιλεῖς παρήσαν, ἤκων δὲ πολλοὶ
 μὲν ἀπὸ τῆς ἐν Βαβυλῶνι θαλάσσης Ἄραβες,
 πολλοὶ δὲ ἀπὸ τῆς Κασπίας Ἀλβανοὶ καὶ Ἴβηρες Ἀλβανοῖς προσοικούντες, οὐκ ὀλίγοι δὲ τῶν περὶ
 τὸν Ἀράξην νεμομένων ἀβασίλευτοι χάριτι καὶ
 δώροις πεισθέντες ἀπήντησαν, ἐλπίδων δὲ καὶ
 θράσους καὶ βαρβαρικῶν ἀπειλῶν μεστὰ μὲν ἦν
 τὰ συμπόσια τοῦ βασιλέως, μεστὰ δὲ τὰ συμ-βούλια, παρεκινδύνευσε μὲν ὁ Ταξίλης ἀποθανεῖν
 ὑπεναντιούμενος τῇ γνώμῃ τῆς μάχης, ἐδόκει δὲ
 καὶ Μιθριδάτης φθονῶν ἀποτρέπειν μεγάλου
 5 κατορθώματος. ὅθεν οὐδ' ἀνέμεινε αὐτὸν ὁ Τιγράνης, μὴ μετάσχοι τῆς δόξης, ἀλλ' ἐχώρει
 παντὶ τῷ στρατῷ σφόδρα δυσφορῶν, ὡς λέγεται, πρὸς τοὺς φίλους, ὅτι πρὸς Λούκουλλον αὐτῷ μό-νον, οὐ πρὸς ἅπαντας ὁ ἀγὼν ἔσοιτο τοὺς Ῥωμαίων στρατηγούς ἐν ταύτῳ γενομένους.

Καὶ οὐ παντάπασιν ἦν τὸ θράσος αὐτοῦ μανιῶδες
 οὐδ' ἄλογον, ἔθνη τοσαῦτα καὶ βασιλεῖς ἐπομένους
 καὶ φάλαγγας ὀπλιτῶν καὶ μυριάδας ἱππέων ἀπο-6 βλέποντος. τοξότας μὲν γὰρ καὶ σφενδονήτας δις-μυρίους ἤγευ, ἱππεῖς δὲ πεντακισμυρίους καὶ πεν-τακισχιλίους, ὧν ἑπτακισχίλιοι καὶ μύριοι κατά-φρακτοὶ ἦσαν, ὡς Λούκουλλος ἔγραψε πρὸς τὴν
 σύγκλητον, ὀπλιτῶν δέ, τῶν μὲν εἰς σπεύρας, τῶν

LUCULLUS

with his cavalry; Taxiles also, who came from Mithridates and joined the forces of Tigranes, earnestly begged the king to remain on the defensive and avoid the invincible arms of the Romans. And at first Tigranes gave considerate hearing to this advice. But when the Armenians and Gordyeni joined him with all their hosts, and the kings of the Medes and Adiabeni came up with all their hosts, and many Arabs arrived from the sea of Babylonia, and many Albanians from the Caspian sea, together with Iberians who were neighbours to the Albanians; and when not a few of the peoples about the river Araxes, who are not subject to kings, had been induced by favours and gifts to come and join him; and when the banquets of the king, and his councils as well, were full of hopes and boldness and barbaric threats,—then Taxiles ran the risk of being put to death when he opposed the plan of fighting, and Mithridates was thought to be diverting the king from a great success out of mere envy. Wherefore Tigranes would not even wait for him, lest he share in the glory, but advanced with all his army, bitterly lamenting to his friends, as it is said, that he was going to contend with Lucullus alone, and not with all the Roman generals put together.

And his boldness was not altogether that of a mad man, nor without good reason, when he saw so many nations and kings in his following, with phalanxes of heavy infantry and myriads of horsemen. For he was in command of twenty thousand bowmen and slingers, and fifty-five thousand horsemen, of whom seventeen thousand were clad in mail, as Lucullus said in his letter to the Senate; also of one hundred and fifty thousand heavy infantry,

PLUTARCH'S LIVES

δ' εἰς φάλαγγας συντεταγμένων, πεντεκαίδεκα μυριάδας, ὁδοποιούς δὲ καὶ γεφυρωτὰς καὶ καθαρτὰς ποταμῶν καὶ ὑλοτόμους καὶ τῶν ἄλλων χρεῖων ὑπηρέτας τρισμυρίους καὶ πεντακισχιλίους, οἱ τοῖς μαχομένοις ἐπιτεταγμένοι κατόπιον ὄψιν ἅμα καὶ ῥώμην παρείχον.

- XXVII. Ὡς δ' ὑπερβαλὼν τὸν Ταῦρον ἄθρους κατεφάνη καὶ κατείδε πρὸς τοῖς Τιγρανοκέρτοις ἐπικαθήμενον τὸ στράτευμα τῶν Ῥωμαίων, ὁ μὲν ἐν τῇ πόλει βάρβαρος ὄμιλος ὀλολυγῆ καὶ κρότῳ τὴν ὄψιν ἐδέξατο, καὶ τοῖς Ῥωμαίοις ἀπὸ τῶν τειχῶν ἀπειλοῦντες ἐδείκνυσαν τοὺς
- 2 Ἀρμενίους· Λουκούλλῳ δὲ σκοποῦντι περὶ τῆς μάχης οἱ μὲν ἄγειν ἐπὶ Τιγράνην ἐάσαντα τὴν πολιορκίαν συνεβούλευον, οἱ δὲ μὴ καταλιπεῖν ὀπίσω πολεμίους τοσούτους μηδ' ἀνεῖναι τὴν πολιορκίαν. ὁ δ' εἰπὼν ἑκατέρους μὲν οὐκ ὀρθῶς, ἀμφοτέρους δὲ καλῶς παραινεῖν διεῖλε τὴν στρατιάν. καὶ Μουρήναν μὲν ἑξακισχιλίους ἔχοντα πεζοὺς ἐπὶ τῆς πολιορκίας ἀπέλιπεν, αὐτὸς δὲ τέσσεσaras καὶ εἴκοσι σπείρας ἀναλαβὼν, ἐν αἷς οὐ πλείους ἦσαν μυρίων ὀπλιτῶν, καὶ τοὺς ἰππεῖς ἅπαντας καὶ σφενδονήτας καὶ τοξότας περὶ χιλίους, ἐχώρει.
- 3 Καὶ παρὰ τὸν ποταμὸν ἐν πεδίῳ μεγάλῳ καταστρατοπεδεύσας παντάπασι μικρὸς ἐφάνη Τιγράνη, καὶ τοῖς κολακεύουσιν αὐτὸν διατριβὴν παρείχεν. οἱ μὲν γὰρ ἔσκωπτον, οἱ δ' ὑπὲρ τῶν λαφύρων ἐν παιδιᾷ διεβάλλοντο κλήρον· τῶν δὲ στρατηγῶν καὶ βασιλέων ἕκαστος ἡτέτεο προσιὼν αὐτοῦ μόνου γενέσθαι τὸ ἔργον, ἐκείνον
- 556

LUCULLUS

some of whom were drawn up in cohorts, and some in phalanxes ; also of road-makers, bridge-builders, clearers of rivers, foresters, and ministers to the other needs of an army, to the number of thirty-five thousand. These latter, being drawn up in array behind the fighting men, increased the apparent strength of the army.

XXVII. When Tigranes had crossed the Taurus, deployed with all his forces, and looked down upon the Roman army investing Tigranocerta, the throng of Barbarians in the city greeted his appearance with shouts and din, and standing on the walls, threateningly pointed out the Armenians to the Romans. When Lucullus held a council of war, some of his officers advised him to give up the siege and lead his army against Tigranes ; others urged him not to leave so many enemies in his rear, and not to remit the siege. Whereupon, remarking that each counsel by itself was bad, but both together were good, he divided his army. Murena, with six thousand footmen, he left behind in charge of the siege ; while he himself, with twenty-four cohorts, comprising no more than ten thousand heavy infantry, and all the horsemen, slingers, and archers, to the number of about a thousand, set out against the enemy.

When he had encamped along the river in a great plain, he appeared utterly insignificant to Tigranes, and supplied the king's flatterers with ground for amusement. Some mocked at the Romans, and others, in pleasantry, cast lots for their spoil, while each of the generals and kings came forward and begged that the task of conquering them might be entrusted to himself alone, and that the

- 4 δὲ καθέζεσθαι θεατὴν. βουλόμενος δὲ τι καὶ αὐτὸς ὁ Τιγράνης χαρίεις εἶναι καὶ σκωπτικὸς εἶπε τὸ θρυλούμενον “Εἰ μὲν ὡς πρεσβευταί, πολλοὶ πάρευσιν· εἰ δ’ ὡς στρατιῶται, ὀλίγοι.” καὶ τότε μὲν οὕτως εἰρωνευόμενοι καὶ παίζοντες διητέλεσαν. ἅμα δ’ ἡμέρα Λούκουλλος ὀπλισμένην τὴν δύναμιν ἐξήγε. καὶ πρὸς ἔω μὲν 510 ἦν τοῦ ποταμοῦ τὸ βαρβαρικὸν στράτευμα· τοῦ δὲ ρεύματος ἀποστροφὴν λαμβάνοντος ἐπὶ τὰς δύοσεις, ἣ μάλιστα περάσιμον ἦν, ἀντιπαρεξάγων τὴν δύναμιν καὶ σπεύδων ἔδοξεν ἀποχωρεῖν
- 5 τῷ Τιγράνῃ. καὶ καλέσας τὸν Ταξίλην ἅμα γέλῳτι “Τοὺς ἀμάχους,” ἔφη, “Ῥωμαίων ὀπλίτας οὐχ ὁρᾶς φεύγοντας;” καὶ ὁ Ταξίλης “Βουλοίμην ἄν,” εἶπεν, “ὦ βασιλεῦ, γενέσθαι τι τῷ σῷ δαίμονι τῶν παραλόγων, ἀλλ’ οὐτ’ ἐσθῆτα λαμπρὰν οἱ ἄνδρες λαμβάνουσιν ὁδοιποροῦντες οὔτε θυρεοῖς ἐκκεκαθαρμένοις χρῶνται καὶ κράνεσι γυμνοῖς, ὥσπερ νῦν τὰ σκύτινα τῶν ὄπλων σκεπύσματα περισπάσαντες, ἀλλὰ μαχουμένων ἐστὶν ἡ λαμπρότης αὕτη καὶ βαδιζόντων ἤδη
- 6 πρὸς τοὺς πολεμίους.” ταῦτα λέγοντος ἔτι τοῦ Ταξίλου καταφανῆς ἦν πρῶτος ἀετὸς ἐπιστρέφοντος τοῦ Λουκούλλου καὶ τάξιν αἰ σπεῖραι κατὰ λόχους λαμβάνουσαι πρὸς τὴν διάβασιν· καὶ μόλις ὥσπερ ἐκ μέθης τινὸς ἀναφέρων ὁ Τιγράνης δις ἢ τρίς ἐξέκραγεν· “Ἐφ’ ἡμᾶς οἱ ἄνδρες;” ὥστε θορύβῳ πολλῷ τὸ πλῆθος εἰς τάξιν καθίστασθαι, βασιλέως μὲν αὐτοῦ τὸ μέσον ἔχοντος, τῶν δὲ κεράτων τὸ μὲν ἀριστερὸν τῷ Ἀδιαβηνῷ, τὸ δὲ δεξιὸν τῷ Μήδῳ παραδόντος,

LUCULLUS

king would sit by as a spectator. Then Tigranes, not wishing to be left behind entirely in this play of wit and scoffing, uttered that famous saying: "If they are come as ambassadors, they are too many; if as soldiers, too few." And so for the while they continued their sarcasms and jests. But at daybreak Lucullus led out his forces under arms. Now, the Barbarian army lay to the east of the river. But as the stream takes a turn to the west at the point where it was easiest to ford, and as Lucullus led his troops to the attack in that direction first, and with speed, he seemed to Tigranes to be retreating. So he called Taxiles and said, with a laugh, "Don't you see that the invincible Roman hoplites are taking to flight?" "O King," said Taxiles, "I could wish that some marvellous thing might fall to your good fortune; but when these men are merely on a march, they do not put on shining raiment, nor have they their shields polished and their helmets uncovered, as now that they have stripped the leathern coverings from their armour. Nay, this splendour means that they are going to fight, and are now advancing upon their enemies." While Taxiles was yet speaking, the first eagle came in sight, as Lucullus wheeled towards the river, and the cohorts were seen forming in maniples with a view to crossing. Then at last, as though coming out of a drunken stupor, Tigranes cried out two or three times, "Are the men coming against us?" And so, with much tumult and confusion, his multitude formed in battle array, the king himself occupying the centre, and assigning the left wing to the king of the Adiabeni, the right to the king of the Medes. In front of this wing also ἐφ' οὗ καὶ τῶν καταφράκτων ἐν προτάγματι τὸ πλεῖστον ἦν.

PLUTARCH'S LIVES

- 7 Λουκούλλῳ δὲ μέλλοντι διαβαίνειν τὸν ποταμὸν ἔνιοι τῶν ἡγεμόνων παρήνουν φυλάττεσθαι τὴν ἡμέραν μίαν οὖσαν τῶν ἀποφράδων, ἃς μελαίνας καλοῦσιν· ἐν ἐκείνῃ γὰρ τῇ ἡμέρᾳ ἢ μετὰ Καιπίωνος ἀπώλετο στρατιὰ συμβαλοῦσα Κίμβροις. ὁ δ' ἀπεκρίνατο τὴν μνημονευομένην φωνήν· “Ἐγὼ γάρ,” ἔφη, “καὶ ταύτην εὐτυχῆ ποιήσω Ῥωμαίοις τὴν ἡμέραν.” ἦν δὲ πρὸ μιᾶς νωνῶν Ὀκτωβρίων.

- XXVIII. Ταῦτα δ' εἰπὼν καὶ θαρρεῖν κελεύσας τὸν τε ποταμὸν διέβαινε καὶ πρῶτος ἐπὶ τοὺς πολεμίους ἡγεῖτο, θώρακα μὲν ἔχων σιδηροῦν φολιδωτὸν ἀποστίλβοντα, κροσσωτὴν δὲ ἐφαστρίδα, τὸ δὲ ξίφος αὐτόθεν ὑποφαίνων γυμνόν, ὡς εὐθύς εἰς χεῖρας ἴεσθαι δέον¹ ἐκηβόλοις ἀνδράσι καὶ συναρεῖν² τὴν διατοξεύσιμον χώραν τῷ τάχει τῆς ἐπαγωγῆς. ἐπεὶ δὲ τὴν κατάφρακτον ἵππον, ἧς πλεῖστος ἦν λόγος, κατεῖδε κατατεταγμένην ὑπὸ λόφῳ τιμὴ τὴν ἄνω χώραν ἐπίπεδον καὶ πλατεῖαν ἔχοντι, πρόσβασιν δὲ τεττάρων σταδίων οὐ παντάπασι χαλεπὴν οὐδ' ἀποκεκομμένην, Θράκας μὲν ἵππεις καὶ Γαλάτας, οὓς εἶχεν, ἐκέλευσεν ἐκ πλαγίου προσφερομένους παρακρούεσθαι ταῖς μαχαίραις τοὺς κοντούς. μία γὰρ ἀλκὴ τῶν καταφράκτων κοντός· ἄλλο δ' οὐδὲν οὔθ' ἑαυτοῖς οὔτε τοῖς πολεμίοις χρῆσθαι δύνανται διὰ

¹ δέον Coraës, Sintenis and Bekker, after Reiske; δέοι MSS., including S.

² συναρεῖν Coraës and Bekker, after Reiske; συναρῆσειν (S) and συναρῆσει MSS.: συναρῆσων, a suggestion of Reiske's.

LUCULLUS

the greater part of the mail-clad horsemen were drawn up.

As Lucullus was about to cross the river, some of his officers advised him to beware of the day, which was one of the unlucky days—the Romans call them “black days.” For on that day Caepio and his army perished in a battle with the Cimbri.¹ But Lucullus answered with the memorable words: “Verily, I will make this day, too, a lucky one for the Romans.” Now the day was the sixth of October.

XXVIII. Saying this, and bidding his men be of good courage, he crossed the river, and led the way in person against the enemy. He wore a steel breastplate of glittering scales, and a tasselled cloak, and at once let his sword flash forth from its scabbard, indicating that they must forthwith come to close quarters with men who fought with long range missiles, and eliminate, by the rapidity of their onset, the space in which archery would be effective. But when he saw that the mail-clad horsemen, on whom the greatest reliance was placed, were stationed at the foot of a considerable hill which was crowned by a broad and level space, and that the approach to this was a matter of only four stadia, and neither rough nor steep, he ordered his Thracian and Gallic horsemen to attack the enemy in the flank, and to parry their long spears with their own short swords. (Now the sole resource of the mail-clad horsemen is their long spear, and they

¹ B. C. 105. Cf. Camillus, xix. 7.

βάρος καὶ σκληρότητα τῆς σκευῆς, ἀλλ' ἐγκατωκοδομημένοις εἰκόσιν. αὐτὸς δὲ δύο σπείρας
 ἀναλαβὼν ἡμιλλᾶτο πρὸς τὸν λόφον, ἐρρωμένως
 ἐπομένων τῶν στρατιωτῶν διὰ τὸ κάκεινον ἐν τοῖς
 ὄπλοις ὄραν πρῶτον κακοπαθοῦντα πεζὸν καὶ
 προσβιαζόμενον. γενόμενος δ' ἄνω καὶ στὰς ἐν
 τῷ περιφανεῖ τοῦ χωρίου μέγα βοήσας “Νενική-καμεν,” ἔφη, “νενικήκαμεν, ὦ συστρατιῶται.” 4 καὶ τοῦτο εἰπὼν ἐπήγε τοῖς καταφράκτοις, κελεύσας μὴδὲν ἔτι χρῆσθαι τοῖς ὑσσοῖς, ἀλλ' ἐκ
 χειρὸς ἕκαστον διαλαβόντα παίειν τῶν πολεμίων
 κνήμας τε καὶ μηρούς, ἃ μόνον γυμνὰ τῶν καταφράκτων ἐστίν. οὐ μὴν ἐδέησέ τι ταύτης τῆς
 μάχης· οὐ γὰρ ἐδέξαντο τοὺς Ῥωμαίους, ἀλλ'
 ἀλαλάξαντες καὶ φεύγοντες αἰσχιστα πάντων
 ἐνώσαν ἑαυτοὺς τε καὶ τοὺς ἵππους βαρεῖς ὄντας
 εἰς τὰ τῶν πεζῶν ὄπλα πρὶν ἄρξασθαι τινος
 ἐκείνους μάχης, ὥστε μῆτε τραύματος γενομένου
 μὴθ' αἵματος ὀφθέντος ἠττᾶσθαι τὰς τοσαύτας
 5 μυριάδας. ὁ δὲ πολὺς φόνος ἤδη φευγόντων
 ἐγένετο, μᾶλλον δὲ βουλομένων φεύγειν· οὐ γὰρ 511
 ἐδύναντο πυκνότητι καὶ βάθει τῶν τάξεων ὑφ'
 αὐτῶν ἐμποδιζόμενοι. Τιγράνης δ' ἐξελάσας ἐν
 ἀρχῇ μετ' ὀλίγων ἔφευγε· καὶ τὸν υἱὸν ὄρων
 κοινωνοῦντα τῆς αὐτῆς τύχης περιεσπάσατο τὸ
 διαδάημα τῆς κεφαλῆς κάκεινῳ δακρύσας παρέδωκε,
 σώζειν ἑαυτὸν, ὅπως δύναται, καθ' ἑτέρας ὁδοὺς
 6 κελεύσας. ὁ δὲ νεανίας ἀναδήσασθαι μὲν οὐκ
 ἐτόλμησε, τῶν δὲ παίδων τῷ πιστοτάτῳ φυλάτ-562

LUCULLUS

have none other whatsoever, either in defending themselves or attacking their enemies, owing to the weight and rigidity of their armour; in this they are, as it were, immured.) Then he himself, with two cohorts, hastened eagerly towards the hill, his soldiers following with all their might, because they saw him ahead of them in armour, enduring all the fatigue of a foot-soldier, and pressing his way along. Arrived at the top, and standing in the most conspicuous spot, he cried with a loud voice, "The day is ours, the day is ours, my fellow soldiers!" With these words, he led his men against the mail-clad horsemen, ordering them not to hurl their javelins yet, but taking each his own man, to smite the enemy's legs and thighs, which are the only parts of these mail-clad horsemen left exposed. However, there was no need of this mode of fighting, for the enemy did not await the Romans, but, with loud cries and in most disgraceful flight, they hurled themselves and their horses, with all their weight, upon the ranks of their own infantry, before it had so much as begun to fight, and so all those tens of thousands were defeated without the infliction of a wound or the sight of blood. But the great slaughter began at once when they fled, or rather tried to fly, for they were prevented from really doing so by the closeness and depth of their own ranks. Tigranes rode away at the very outset with a few attendants, and took to flight. Seeing his son also in the same plight, he took off the diadem from his head and, in tears, gave it to him, bidding him save himself as best he could by another route. The young man, however, did not venture to assume the diadem, but gave it to his most trusted slave for safe keeping.

τειν ἔδωκεν. οὗτος ἀλοὺς κατὰ τύχην ἀνήχθη πρὸς Λούκουλλον, ὥστε μετὰ τῶν ἄλλων αἰχμάλωτον καὶ τὸ διάδημα γενέσθαι τοῦ Τιγράνου. λέγεται δὲ τῶν μὲν πεζῶν ὑπὲρ δέκα μυριάδας διαφθαρῆναι, τῶν δ' ἰππέων ὀλίγους παντάπασι διαφυγεῖν. Ῥωμαίων δ' ἑκατὸν ἐτρόθησαν, ἔπεσον δὲ πέντε.

- 7 Ταύτης τῆς μάχης Ἀντίοχος ὁ φιλόσοφος ἐν τῇ Περὶ θεῶν γραφῇ μνησθεὶς οὐ φησιν ἄλλην ἐφεωρακέσαι τοιαύτην τὸν ἥλιον. Στράβων δ', ἕτερος φιλόσοφος, ἐν τοῖς ἱστορικοῖς ὑπομνήμασιν αὐτοὺς λέγει τοὺς Ῥωμαίους αἰσχύνεσθαι καὶ καταγελάειν ἑαυτῶν ἐπ' ἀνδράποδα τοιαῦτα δεθθέντας ὄπλων. Λιούσιος δ' εἶρηκεν, ὡς οὐδέποτε Ῥωμαῖοι πολεμίοις ἀποδέοντες τοσούτῳ πλήθει παρετάξαντο· σχεδὸν γὰρ οὐδ' εἰκοστὸν, ἀλλ' ἔλαττον ἐγένοντο μέρος οἱ νικῶντες τῶν ἡσσημένων. Ῥωμαίων δ' οἱ δεινότατοι στρατηγοὶ καὶ πλείστα πολέμοις ὠμιληκότες ἐπήγουν μάλιστα τοῦ Λουκούλλου τὸ δύο βασιλεῖς τοὺς ἐπιφανεστάτους καὶ μεγίστους δυσὶ τοῖς ἐναντιωτάτοις, τάχει καὶ βραδυτήτι, καταστρατηγήσαι. Μιθριδάτην μὲν γὰρ ἀκμάζοντα χρόνῳ καὶ τριβῇ κατανάλωσε, Τιγράνην δὲ τῷ σπεύσαι συνέτριψεν, ἐν ὀλίγοις τῶν πώποτε ἡγεμόνων τῇ μελλήσει μὲν ἔργῳ, τῇ τόλμῃ δ' ὑπὲρ ἀσφαλείας χρησάμενος.

XXIX. Διὸ καὶ Μιθριδάτης οὐ συνέτεινεν ἐπὶ τὴν μάχην, τῇ συνήθει τὸν Λούκουλλον εὐλαβεῖα καὶ παραγωγῇ πολεμήσειν οἰόμενος, ἀλλὰ καθ' ἡσυχίαν ἐπορεύετο πρὸς τὸν Τιγράνην. καὶ πρῶτον μὲν ὀλίγοις τῶν Ἀρμενίων ἐντυχὼν καθ'

LUCULLUS

This slave happened to be captured, and was brought to Lucullus, and thus even the diadem of Tigranes became a part of the booty. It is said that more than a hundred thousand of the enemy's infantry perished, while of the cavalry only a few, all told, made their escape. Of the Romans, on the other hand, only a hundred were wounded, and only five killed.

Antiochus the philosopher makes mention of this battle in his treatise "Concerning Gods," and says that the sun never looked down on such another. And Strabo, another philosopher, in his "Historical Commentaries," says that the Romans themselves were ashamed, and laughed one another to scorn for requiring arms against such slaves. Livy also has remarked that the Romans were never in such inferior numbers when they faced an enemy; for the victors were hardly even a twentieth part of the vanquished, but less than this. The Roman generals who were most capable and most experienced in war, praised Lucullus especially for this, that he out-generalled two kings who were most distinguished and powerful by two most opposite tactics, speed and slowness. For he used up Mithridates, at the height of his power, by long delays; but crushed Tigranes by the speed of his operations, being one of the few generals of all time to use delay for greater achievement, and boldness for greater safety.

XXIX. This was the reason why Mithridates made no haste to be at the battle. He thought Lucullus would carry on the war with his wonted caution and indirectness, and so marched slowly to join Tigranes. At first he met a few Armenians hurrying back over the road in panic fear, and conjectured what had

PLUTARCH'S LIVES

ὁδὸν ἐπτοιοιμένοις καὶ περιφόβοις ἀπιούσιν εἵκασε τὸ πάθος, εἴτ' ἤδη πλειόνων γυμνῶν καὶ τετρωμένων ἀπαντῶντων πυθόμενος τὴν ἤτταν ἐξήτει
 2 τὸν Τιγράνην. εὐρῶν δὲ πάντων ἔρημον καὶ ταπεινὸν οὐκ ἀνθύβρισεν, ἀλλὰ καταβὰς καὶ συνδακρύσας τὰ κοινὰ πάθη θεραπείαν τε τὴν ἐπομένην αὐτῷ βασιλικὴν ἔδωκε καὶ κατεθάρρυνε πρὸς τὸ μέλλον. οὗτοι μὲν οὖν αὐθις ἐτέρας δυνάμεις συνήγουν.

Ἐν δὲ τῇ πόλει τοῖς Τιγρανοκέρτοις τῶν Ἑλλήνων πρὸς τοὺς βαρβάρους στασιασάντων καὶ τῷ Λουκούλλῳ τὴν πόλιν ἐνδιδόντων προσβα-
 3 λῶν εἶλε· καὶ τοὺς μὲν ἐν τῇ πόλει θησαυροὺς παρελάμβανε, τὴν δὲ πόλιν διαρπάσαι παρέδωκε τοῖς στρατιώταις, μετὰ τῶν ἄλλων χρημάτων ὀκτακισχίλια τάλαντα νομίσματος ἔχουσιν. χωρὶς δὲ τούτων ὀκτακοσίας δραχμὰς κατ' ἄνδρα
 4 διένειμεν ἀπὸ τῶν λαφύρων. πυνθανόμενος δὲ πολλοὺς ἐν τῇ πόλει κατειλήφθαι τῶν περὶ τὸν Διόνυσον τεχνιτῶν, οὓς ὁ Τιγράνης πανταχόθεν ἠθροΐκει μέλλον ἀποδεικνύει τὸ κατεσκευασμένον ὑπ' αὐτοῦ θέατρον, ἐχρήσατο τούτοις πρὸς τοὺς ἀγῶνας καὶ τὰς θέας τῶν ἐπινικίων. τοὺς δ' Ἕλληνας εἰς τὰς αὐτῶν πατρίδας ἔπεμψε προσθεῖς ἐφόδια, καὶ τῶν βαρβάρων ὁμοίως τοὺς ἠναγκασμένους κατοικεῖν, ὥστε συνέβη μιᾷ πόλεως διαλυθείσης πολλὰς ἀνοικίζεσθαι πάλιν κομιζόμενας τοὺς αὐτῶν οἰκήτορας, ὑφ' ὧν ὡς εὐεργέτης ὁ Λούκουλλος καὶ κτίστης ἠγαπάτο.
 5 Προὐχώρει δὲ καὶ τὰλλα κατ' ἀξίαν τάνδρῃ 512 τῶν ἀπὸ δικαιοσύνης καὶ φιλανθρωπίας ἐπαίνων happened; then presently, when he had learned of the defeat from more unarmed and wounded fugitives whom he met, he sought to find Tigranes. And though he found him destitute of all things and humiliated, he did not return his insolent behaviour, but got down from his horse and wept with him over their common sufferings. Then he gave him his own royal equipage, and tried to fill him with courage for the future. And so these kings began again to assemble fresh forces.

LUCULLUS

But in the city of Tigranocerta, the Greeks had risen up against the Barbarians and were ready to hand the city over to Lucullus; so he assaulted and took it. The royal treasures in the city he took into his own charge, but the city itself he turned over to his soldiers for plunder, and it contained eight thousand talents in money, together with the usual valuables. Besides this, he gave to each man eight hundred drachmas from the general spoils. On learning that many dramatic artists had been captured in the city, whom Tigranes had collected there from all quarters for the formal dedication of the theatre which he had built, Lucullus employed them for the contests and spectacles with which he celebrated his victories. The Greeks he sent to their native cities, giving them also the means wherewith to make the journey, and likewise the Barbarians who had been compelled to settle there. Thus it came to pass that the dissolution of one city was the restoration of many others, by reason of their recovering their own inhabitants, and they all loved Lucullus as their benefactor and founder.

And whatever else he did also prospered, in a way worthy of the man, who was ambitious of the

- ὄρεγομένῳ μᾶλλον ἢ τῶν ἐπὶ τοῖς πολεμικοῖς κατορθώμασιν. ἐκείνων μὲν γὰρ οὐκ ὀλίγον ἢ στρατιὰ καὶ πλείστον ἢ τύχη μετείχε, ταῦτα δ' ἦν ἡμέρου ψυχῆς καὶ πεπαιδευμένης ἐπίδειξις, οἷς ὁ Λούκουλλος τότε χωρὶς ὄπλων ἔχειροῦτο τοὺς βαρβάρους. καὶ γὰρ Ἀράβων βασιλεῖς ἦγον πρὸς αὐτὸν ἐγχειρίζοντες τὰ σφέτερα, καὶ τὸ
- 6 Σωφηνῶν ἔθνος προσεχώρει· τὸ δὲ Γορδυνηῶν οὕτω διέθηκεν, ὥστε βούλεσθαι τὰς πόλεις ἐκλιπόντας ἀκολουθεῖν ἐκείνῳ μετὰ παίδων καὶ γυναικῶν ἐθελοντὰς ἐξ αἰτίας τοιαύσδε. Ζαρβιηνὸς γὰρ ὁ τῶν Γορδυνηῶν βασιλεὺς, ὥσπερ εἴρηται, δι' Ἀππίου κρύφα Λουκούλλῳ διείλεκτο περὶ συμμαχίας τὴν Τιγράνου τυραννίδα βαρυνόμενος· μνηστῆς δ' ἀπεσφάγη, καὶ παῖδες αὐτοῦ καὶ γυνὴ συριαπώλοντο πρὶν ἢ Ῥωμαίους εἰς Ἀρμενίαν
- 7 ἐμβαλεῖν. τούτων οὐκ ἠμνημόνησεν ὁ Λούκουλλος, ἀλλὰ παρελθὼν εἰς τὴν Γορδυνηῶν ταφὰς προὔθετο τοῦ Ζαρβιηνοῦ, καὶ πυρὰν ἐσθῆτι καὶ χρυσῷ βασιλικῷ καὶ τοῖς ἀπὸ Τιγράνου κοσμήσας λαφύροις αὐτὸς παρῶν ὑφήψε, καὶ χοὰς ἐπήνεγκε μετὰ φίλων καὶ οἰκείων τοῦ ἀνδρός, ἐταῖρον ἑαυτοῦ καὶ Ῥωμαίων σύμμαχον ἀνακαλούμενος.
- 8 ἐκέλευσε δὲ καὶ μνημεῖον ἀπὸ χρημάτων συχνῶν αὐτῷ γενέσθαι· πάμπολλα γὰρ εὐρέθη, καὶ χρυσὸς καὶ ἄργυρος ἐν τοῖς τοῦ Ζαρβιηνοῦ βασιλείοις, σίτου δ' ἀπέκειντο μυριάδες τριακόσiai μεδίμνων, ὥστε καὶ τοὺς στρατιώτας ὠφελεῖσθαι καὶ τὸν Λούκουλλον θαυμάζεσθαι, ὅτι δραχμὴν μίαν ἐκ

LUCULLUS

praise that is consequent upon righteousness and humanity, rather than of that which follows military successes. For the latter, the army also was in no slight degree, and fortune in the highest degree, responsible ; but the former were the manifestations of a gentle and disciplined spirit, and in the exercise of these qualities Lucullus now, without appeal to arms, subdued the Barbarians. The kings of the Arabs came to him, with proffers of their possessions, and the Sopheni joined his cause. The Gordyeni were so affected by his kindness that they were ready to abandon their cities and follow him with their wives and children, in voluntary service. The reason for this was as follows: Zarbienus, the king of the Gordyeni, as has been said,¹ secretly stipulated with Lucullus, through Appius, for an alliance, being oppressed by the tyranny of Tigranes. He was informed against, however, and put to death, and his wife and children perished with him, before the Romans entered Armenia. Lucullus was not unmindful of all this, but on entering the country of the Gordyeni, appointed funeral rites in honour of Zarbienus, and after adorning a pyre with royal raiment and gold and with the spoils taken from Tigranes, set fire to it with his own hand, and joined the friends and kindred of the man in pouring libations upon it, calling him a comrade of his and an ally of the Romans. He also ordered that a monument be erected to his memory at great cost ; for many treasures were found in the palace of Zarbienus, including gold and silver, and three million bushels of grain were stored up there, so that the soldiers were plentifully supplied, and Lucullus was admired

¹ xxi. 2.

PLUTARCH'S LIVES

τοῦ δημοσίου ταμείου μὴ λαβὼν αὐτὸν ἐξ αὐτοῦ
διώκει τὸν πόλεμον.

XXX. Ἐνταῦθα καὶ παρὰ τοῦ Πάρθων βασιλέως ἦκε πρεσβεία παρ' αὐτὸν εἰς φιλίαν προ-καλουμένου καὶ συμμαχίαν. ἦν δ' ἀσμένῳ ταῦτα
τῷ Λουκούλλῳ· καὶ πάλιν ἀντέπεμψε παρ' ἑαυτοῦ πρεσβείαν πρὸς τὸν Πάρθον, οἱ κατεφώρασαν
αὐτὸν ἐπαμφοτερίζοντα τῇ γνώμῃ καὶ μισθὸν
αἰτοῦντα κρύφα τοῦ συμμαχεῖσθαι τῷ Τιγράνῃ
2 τὴν Μεσοποταμίαν. ὡς οὖν ταῦθ' ὁ Λούκουλλος
ἤσθητο, Τιγράνῃ μὲν ἔγνω καὶ Μιθριδάτῃ
παρελθεῖν ὡσπερ ἀνταγωνιστὰς ἀπειρηκότας, ἀποπειρᾶσθαι δὲ τῆς Πάρθων δυνάμεως καὶ
στρατεύειν ἐπ' αὐτούς, καλὸν ἡγούμενος μιᾶ
ῤύμη πολέμου τρεῖς ἐφεξῆς ὡσπερ ἀθλητῆς
βασιλεῖς καταπαλαῖσαι καὶ διὰ τριῶν τῶν ὑπὸ
τὸν ἥλιον μεγίστων ἡγεμονιῶν ἀήττητος καὶ
νικῶν διεξελθεῖν.

3 Ἐπεμψεν οὖν εἰς Πόντον τοῖς περὶ Σωρνάτιον
ἡγεμόσιν ἐπιστείλας ἄγειν τὴν ἐκεῖ στρατιὰν
πρὸς αὐτόν, ὡς ἐκ τῆς Γορδυνηῆς ἀναβησόμενος.
οἱ δὲ καὶ πρότερον χαλεποῖς χρώμενοι καὶ
δυσπειθέσι τοῖς στρατιώταις τότε παντελῶς ἀπεκάλυψαν αὐτῶν τὴν ἀκολασίαν, οὐδενὶ τρόπῳ
πειθοῦς οὐδ' ἀνάγκης εὐρόμενοι προσαγαγέσθαι
μαρτυρομένους καὶ βοῶντας, ὡς οὐδ' αὐτόθι
μενοῦσιν, ἀλλ' οἰχθήσονται τὸν Πόντον ἔρημον
4 ἀπολιπόντες. ταῦτα πρὸς Λούκουλλον ἀπαγγελθέντα καὶ τοὺς ἐκεῖ προσδιέφθειρε στρατιώτας, ἤδη μὲν ὑπὸ πλούτου καὶ τρυφῆς βαρεῖς γεγονότας πρὸς τὴν στρατείαν καὶ σχολῆς δεομένους, ὡς δὲ τὴν ἐκείνων ἐπύθοντο παρρησίαν,

LUCULLUS

for not taking a single drachma from the public treasury, but making the war pay for itself.

XXX. Here he received an embassy from the king of the Parthians also, inviting him into friendly alliance. This was agreeable to Lucullus, and in his turn he sent ambassadors to the Parthian, but they discovered that he was playing a double game, and secretly asking for Mesopotamia as reward for an alliance with Tigranes. Accordingly, when Lucullus was apprised of this, he determined to ignore Tigranes and Mithridates as exhausted antagonists, and to make trial of the Parthian power by marching against them, thinking it a glorious thing, in a single impetuous onset of war, to throw, like an athlete, three kings in succession, and to make his way, unvanquished and victorious, through three of the greatest empires under the sun.

Accordingly he sent orders to Sornatius and his fellow commanders in Pontus to bring the army there to him, as he intended to proceed eastward from Gordyené. These officers had already found their soldiers unmanageable and disobedient, but now they discovered that they were utterly beyond control, being unable to move them by any manner of persuasion or compulsion. Nay, they roundly swore that they would not even stay where they were, but would go off and leave Pontus undefended. When news of this was brought to Lucullus, it demoralised his soldiers there also. Their wealth and luxurious life had already made them averse to military service and desirous of leisure, and when they heard of the bold words of their comrades in Pontus, they called them brave men, and said

PLUTARCH'S LIVES

ἄνδρας αὐτοὺς ἀπεκάλουν καὶ μιμητέον αὐτοὺς ἔφασαν εἶναι· πολλὰ γὰρ αὐτοῖς ἄξια σωτηρίας καὶ ἀναπαύσεως κατεργάσθαι.

- XXXI. Τοιούτων δὲ καὶ πονηροτέρων ἔτι λόγων αἰσθόμενος ὁ Λούκουλλος τὴν ἐπὶ Πάρθους στρατείαν ἀφήκεν, αὐθις δ' ἐπὶ τὸν Τιγράνην ἐβάδιζε θέρους ἀκμάζοντος. καὶ τὸν Ταῦρον ὑπερβαλὼν ἠθύμησε χλωρῶν τῶν πεδίων ἐκφανέντων· τοσοῦτον αἱ ὠραι διὰ τὴν ψυχρότητα τοῦ ἀέρος
- 2 ὑστερίζουσιν. οὐ μὴν ἀλλὰ καταβὰς καὶ δις 513 ἢ τρὶς ἀνατολήσαντας ἐπ' αὐτὸν τοὺς Ἀρμενίους τρεψόμενος ἀδεῶς ἐπόρθει τὰς κώμας, καὶ τὸν παρεσκευασμένον τῷ Τιγράνῃ σίτον ἐξαιρῶν ἦν αὐτὸς ἐφοβεῖτο τοῖς πολεμίοις περιέστησεν ἀπορίαν. ἐπεὶ δὲ προκαλούμενος εἰς μάχην αὐτοὺς περιταφρεύων τὸν χάρακα καὶ πορθῶν ἐν ὄψει τὴν χώραν οὐκ ἐκίνει πεπληγότας πολλὰκις, ἀναστὰς ἐβάδιζεν ἐπ' Ἀρτάξατα τὸ Τιγρίνου βασιλεῖον, ὅπου καὶ παῖδες αὐτῷ νήπιοι καὶ γαμεταὶ γυναῖκες ἦσαν, οὐκ ἂν οἰόμενος ἀμαχεῖ ταῦτα προήσεσθαι τὸν Τιγράνην.
- 3 Λέγεται δ' Ἀντίβαν τὸν Καρχηδόνιον, Ἀντιόχου καταπολεμηθέντος ὑπὸ Ῥωμαίων, μεταβάντα πρὸς Ἀρτάξαν τὸν Ἀρμένιον ἄλλων τε πολλῶν εἰσηγητὴν καὶ διδάσκαλον αὐτῷ γενέσθαι χρησίμων, καὶ τῆς χώρας καταμαθόντα τόπον εὐφύεστατον καὶ ἥδιστον ἀργοῦντα καὶ παρορώμενον σχῆμα πόλεως ἐν αὐτῷ προῦπογράψασθαι, καὶ their example must be followed in Gordyené, for their many achievements entitled them to respite from toil and freedom from danger.

LUCULLUS

XXXI. Such speeches, and even worse than these, coming to the ears of Lucullus, he gave up his expedition against the Parthians, and marched once more against Tigranes,¹ it being now the height of summer. And yet, after crossing the Taurus, he was discouraged to find the plains still covered with unripe grain, so much later are the seasons there, owing to the coolness of the atmosphere. However, he descended from the mountains, routed the Armenians who twice or thrice ventured to attack him, and then plundered their villages without fear, and, by taking away the grain which had been stored up for Tigranes, reduced his enemy to the straits which he had been fearing for himself. Then he challenged them to battle by encompassing their camp with a moat, and by ravaging their territory before their eyes; but this did not move them, so often had they been defeated. He therefore broke camp and marched against Artaxata, the royal residence of Tigranes, where were his wives and young children, thinking that Tigranes would not give these up without fighting.

It is said that Hannibal the Carthaginian, after Antiochus had been conquered by the Romans, left him and went to Artaxas the Armenian, to whom he gave many excellent suggestions and instructions. For instance, observing that a section of the country which had the greatest natural advantages and attractions was lying idle and neglected, he drew up a plan for a city there, and then brought Artaxas

¹ 68 B. C.

τὸν Ἀρτάξαν ἐπαγαγόντα δεῖξαι καὶ παρορμῆσαι
 4 πρὸς τὸν οἰκισμὸν. ἡσθέντος δὲ τοῦ βασιλέως
 καὶ δεθέντος, ὅπως αὐτὸς ἐπιστατήσῃ τοῦ ἔργου,
 μέγα τι καὶ πάγκαλον χρῆμα πόλεως ἀναστῆναι,
 καὶ γενομένην ἐπώνυμον τοῦ βασιλέως μητρόπολιν
 ἀποδειχθῆναι τῆς Ἀρμενίας.

Ἐπὶ ταύτην τοῦ Λουκούλλου βαδίζοντος οὐκ
 ἠνέσχετο Τιγράνης, ἀλλὰ τὴν δύναμιν ἀναλαβὼν
 ἡμέρᾳ τετάρτῃ παρεστρατοπέδευσε τοῖς Ῥωμαίοις, ἐν μέσῳ λαβὼν τὸν Ἀρσανίαν ποταμὸν,
 5 ὃν ἐξ ἀνάγκης διαβατέον ἦν τοῖς Ῥωμαίοις τὴν ἐπ'
 Ἄρταξάτων πορευομένοις. θύσας δὲ τοῖς θεοῖς Λούκουλλος, ὡς ἐν χερσὶν οὔσης τῆς νίκης, διεβί-βαζε τὸν στρατὸν ἐν δώδεκα σπείραις προτεταγ-μέναις, ταῖς δ' ἄλλαις ἐπιτεταγμέναις πρὸς τὰς
 κυκλώσεις τῶν πολεμίων. πολλοὶ γὰρ ἦσαν
 ἵππεῖς καὶ λογάδες ἀντιπαρατεταγμένοι, πρὸ
 6 δ' αὐτῶν ἵπποτοξόται Μάρδοι καὶ λογχοφόροι Ἰβηρες, οἷς μάλιστα τῶν ξένων ὁ Τιγράνης
 ἐπίστευεν ὡς μαχιμωτάτοις. οὐ μὴν ἐπράχθη
 τι λαμπρὸν ἀπ' αὐτῶν, μικρὰ δὲ τοῖς ἵππεῦσι
 τῶν Ῥωμαίων διαπληκτισάμενοι τοὺς πεζοὺς
 ἐπιόντας οὐχ ὑπέμειναν, ἀλλ' ἐκατέρωσε τῆς
 φυγῆς σχισθέντες ἐπεσπάσαντο τοὺς ἵππεῖς
 πρὸς τὴν δίωξιν. ἅμα δὲ τῷ τούτους διασπαρῆναι
 τῶν περὶ τὸν Τιγράνην ἐξιππασαμένων ἰδῶν τὴν
 λαμπρότητα καὶ τὸ πλῆθος ὁ Λούκουλλος ἔδεισε.
 7 καὶ τοὺς μὲν ἵππεῖς ἀπὸ τῆς διώξεως ἀνεκαλείτο, πρῶτος δ' αὐτὸς ἀντέστη τοῖς Ἀτροπατηνοῖς κατ'
 αὐτὸν οὔσι μετὰ τῶν ἀρίστων, καὶ πρὶν εἰς χεῖρας
 ἐλθεῖν φοβήσας ἐτρέψατο. τριῶν δ' ὁμοῦ παρα-

LUCULLUS

to the place and showed him its possibilities, and urged him to undertake the building. The king was delighted, and begged Hannibal to superintend the work himself, whereupon a very great and beautiful city arose there, which was named after the king, and proclaimed the capital of Armenia.

When Lucullus marched against this city, Tigranes could not suffer it quietly, but put himself at the head of his forces, and on the fourth day encamped over against the Romans, keeping the river Arsania between himself and them, which they must of necessity cross on their way to Artaxata. Thereupon Lucullus sacrificed to the gods, in full assurance that the victory was already his, and then crossed the river with twelve cohorts in the van, and the rest disposed so as to prevent the enemy from closing in upon his flanks. For large bodies of horsemen and picked soldiers confronted him, and these were covered by Mardian mounted archers and Iberian lancers, on whom Tigranes relied beyond any other mercenaries, deeming them the most warlike. However, they did not shine in action, but after a slight skirmish with the Roman cavalry, gave way before the advancing infantry, scattered to right and left in flight, and drew after them the cavalry in pursuit. On the dispersion of these troops, Tigranes rode out at the head of his cavalry, and when Lucullus saw their splendour and their numbers he was afraid. He therefore recalled his cavalry from their pursuit of the flying enemy, and taking the lead of his troops in person, set upon the Atropateni, who were stationed opposite him with the magnates of the king's following, and before coming to close quarters, sent them off in panic flight. Of three

PLUTARCH'S LIVES

8 τεταγμένων βασιλέων αἰσχιστα δοκεῖ φυγεῖν ὁ Ποντικὸς Μιθριδάτης, οὐδὲ τὴν κραυγὴν τῶν Ῥωμαίων ἀνασχόμενος. γενομένης δὲ τῆς διώξεως μακρᾶς καὶ δι' ὅλης νυκτός, οὐ μόνον κτείνοντες αὐτούς, ἀλλὰ καὶ ζωγροῦντες καὶ χρήματα καὶ λείαν ἄγοντες καὶ φέροντες ἀπέειπον οἱ Ῥωμαῖοι. φησὶ δὲ ὁ Λιούϊος ἐν μὲν τῇ προτέρᾳ μάχῃ πλείουας, ἐν δὲ ταύτῃ γνωριμωτέρους πεσεῖν καὶ ληφθῆναι τῶν πολεμίων.

XXXII. Ἐκ τούτου Λούκουλλος μὲν ἐπηρμένος καὶ τεθαρρηκῶς ἄνω προάγειν διανοεῖτο καὶ καταστρέφεσθαι τὴν βάρβαρον· ὥρα δ' ἰσημερίας φθινοπωρινῆς οὐκ ἂν ἐλπίσαντι χειμῶνες ἐπέπεσον βαρεῖς, τὰ μὲν πλείστα κατανίφοντες, ἐν δὲ ταῖς αἰθρίαις πάχνην ἐπιφέροντες καὶ πάγον, ὑφ' οὗ χαλεποὶ μὲν ἦσαν οἱ ποταμοὶ τοῖς ἵπποις πίνεσθαι διὰ ψυχρότητος ὑπερβολῆν, χαλεπαὶ δ' αὐτῶν αἱ διαβάσεις ἐκρηγνυμένου τοῦ κρυστάλλου καὶ διακόπτοντος τὰ νεῦρα τῶν
2 ἵππων τῇ τραχύτητι. τῆς δὲ χώρας ἡ πολλὴ συνηρεφῆς οὔσα καὶ στενόπορος καὶ ἐλώδης αἰεὶ καθύγραινεν αὐτούς, χιόνος ἀναπιμπλαμένους ἐν ταῖς ὄδοιπορίαις καὶ κακῶς ἐν τόποις νοτεροῖς
3 στρατιᾶς. καίτοι πολλὰ προσελιπάρει Λούκουλλος ἀξιῶν αὐτούς μακροθυμίαν ἐμβαλέσθαι ταῖς

514

LUCULLUS

kings who together confronted the Romans, Mithridates of Pontus seems to have fled most disgracefully, for he could not endure even their shouting. The pursuit was long and lasted through the whole night, and the Romans were worn out, not only with killing their enemies, but also with taking prisoners and getting all sorts of booty. Livy says that in the former battle a greater number of the enemy, but in this more men of high station were slain and taken prisoners.

XXXII. Elated and emboldened by this victory, Lucullus purposed to advance further into the interior and subdue the Barbarian realm utterly. But, contrary to what might have been expected at the time of the autumnal equinox, severe winter weather was encountered, which generally covered the ground with snow, and even when the sky was clear produced hoar frost and ice, owing to which the horses could not well drink of the rivers, so excessive was the cold, nor could they easily cross them, since the ice broke, and cut the horses' sinews with its jagged edges. Most of the country was thickly shaded, full of narrow defiles, and marshy, so that it kept the soldiers continually wet; they were covered with snow while they marched, and spent the nights uncomfortably in damp places. Accordingly, they had not followed Lucullus for many days after the battle when they began to object. At first they sent their tribunes to him with entreaties to desist, then they held more tumultuous assemblies, and shouted in their tents at night, which seems to have been characteristic of a mutinous army. And yet Lucullus plied them with entreaties, calling upon them to possess their souls in patience until they had

ψυχαῖς, ἄχρι οὗ τὴν ἐν Ἀρμενίοις Καρχηδόνα λαβόντες ἀνδρὸς ἐχθίστου, τὸν Ἀννίβαν λέγων, ἔργον ἀνατρέψωσιν. ὡς δ' οὐκ ἔπειθεν, ἀπήγγεν αὐτοὺς ὀπίσω καὶ κατ' ἄλλας ὑπερβολὰς διελθὼν τὸν Ταῦρον εἰς τὴν λεγομένην Μυγδορικὴν κατέβαινε, χώραν πάμπορον μαὶ ἀλεεινὴν καὶ πόλιν ἐν αὐτῇ μεγάλην καὶ πολυάνθρωπον ἔχουσαν, ἣν οἱ μὲν βάρβαροι Νίσιβιν, οἱ δ' Ἕλληνας

4 Ἀντιόχειαν Μυγδορικὴν προσηγόρευον. ταύτην εἶχεν ἀξιώματι μὲν ἀδελφὸς Τιγράνου Γούρας, ἐμπειρία δὲ καὶ δεινότητι μηχανικῇ Καλλίμαχος ὁ καὶ περὶ Ἀμισὸν πλείστα πράγματα Λουκούλλῳ παρασχών. βαλόμενος δὲ στρατόπεδον καὶ πᾶσαν ἰδέαν πολιορκίας ἐπαγαγὼν ὀλίγω

5 χρόνῳ κατὰ κράτος λαμβάνει τὴν πόλιν. καὶ Γούρα μὲν ἑαυτὸν ἐγχειρίσαντι φιλανθρώπως ἐχρήσατο, Καλλιμάχῳ δ' ὑπισχνουμένῳ θήκας ἀπορρήτους μεγάλων χρημάτων ἀνακαλύψειν οὐ προσέσχεν, ἀλλ' ἐκέλευσεν ἐν πέδαις κομίζεσθαι δίκην ὑφέξοντα τοῦ πυρός, ᾧ τὴν Ἀμισηνῶν διαλυμηνάμενος πόλιν ἀφείλετο φιλοτιμίαν αὐτοῦ καὶ χρηστότητος ἐπίδειξιν πρὸς τοὺς Ἕλληνας.

XXXIII. Μέχρι τοῦδε φαίη τις ἂν Λουκούλλῳ τὴν τύχην ἐπομένην συστρατηγεῖν. ἐντεῦθεν δ' ὥσπερ πνεύματος ἐπιλιπόντος προσβιαζόμενος πάντα καὶ παντάπασιν ἀντικρούων ἀρετὴν μὲν ἐπεδείκνυτο καὶ μακροθυμίαν ἡγεμόνος ἀγαθοῦ, δόξαν δὲ καὶ χάριν οὐδεμίαν αἱ πράξεις ἔσχον, ἀλλὰ καὶ τὴν προϋπάρχουσαν ἐγγὺς ἦλθε δυσπραγῶν καὶ διαφερόμενος μάτην ἀποβαλεῖν.

2 τῶν δ' αἰτιῶν αὐτὸς οὐχὶ τὴν ἐλαχίστην εἰς τοῦτο παρέσχεν, οὐκ ὦν θεραπευτικὸς πλήθους taken and destroyed the Armenian Carthage, the work of their most hated foe, meaning Hannibal. But since he could not persuade them, he led them back, and crossing the Taurus by another pass, descended into the country called Mygdonia, which is fertile and open to the sun, and contains a large and populous city, called Nisibis by the Barbarians, Antioch in Mygdonia by the Greeks. The nominal defender of this city, by virtue of his rank, was Gouras, a brother of Tigranes; but its actual defender, by virtue of his experience and skill as an engineer, was Callimachus, the man who gave Lucullus most trouble at Amisus also. But Lucullus established his camp before it, laid siege to it in every way, and in a short time took the city by storm. To Gouras, who surrendered himself into his hands, he gave kind treatment; but to Callimachus, who promised to reveal secret stores of great treasure, he would not hearken. Instead, he ordered him to be brought in chains, that he might be punished for destroying Amisus by fire, and thereby robbing Lucullus of the object of his ambition, which was to show kindness to the Greeks.

LUCULLUS

XXXIII. Up to this point, one might say that fortune had followed Lucullus and fought on his side; but from now on, as though a favouring breeze had failed him, he had to force every issue, and met with obstacles everywhere. He still displayed the bravery and patience of a good leader, but his undertakings brought him no new fame or favour; indeed, so ill-starred and devious was his course, that he came near losing that which he had already won. And he himself was not least to blame for this. He was not disposed to court the favour of the common

PLUTARCH'S LIVES

στρατιωτικῷ, καὶ πᾶν τὸ πρὸς ἡδονὴν τοῦ ἀρχομένου γινόμενον ἀρχῆς ἀτιμίαν καὶ κατάλυσιν ἡγούμενος· τὸ δὲ μέγιστον, οὐδὲ τοῖς δυνατοῖς καὶ ἰσοτίμοις εὐάρμοστος εἶναι πεφυκῶς, ἀλλὰ πάντων καταφρονῶν καὶ μηδενὸς ἀξίους πρὸς αὐτὸν

3 ἡγούμενος. ταῦτα γὰρ ὑπάρξαι Λουκούλλῳ κακὰ λέγουσιν ἐν πᾶσι τοῖς ἄλλοις ἀγαθοῖς· καὶ γὰρ μέγας καὶ καλὸς καὶ δεινὸς εἰπεῖν καὶ φρόνιμος ὁμαλῶς ἐν ἀγορᾷ καὶ στρατοπέδῳ δοκεῖ γενέσθαι.

Σαλούστιος μὲν οὖν φησι χαλεπῶς διατεθῆναι τοὺς στρατιώτας πρὸς αὐτὸν εὐθύς ἐν ἀρχῇ τοῦ πολέμου πρὸς Κυζίκῳ καὶ πάλιν πρὸς Ἀμισῶ, δύο χειμῶνας ἐξῆς ἐν χάρακι διαγαγεῖν ἀναγκα-

4 σθέντας. ἡνίων δ' αὐτοὺς καὶ οἱ λοιποὶ χειμῶνες. ἡ γὰρ ἐν τῇ πολέμῳ διεχείμαζον ἢ παρὰ τοῖς συμμάχοις ὑπαιθροὶ σκηνοῦντες, εἰς δὲ πόλιν Ἑλληνίδα καὶ φίλην οὐδ' ἄπαξ εἰσῆλθε μετὰ στρατοπέδου Λούκουλλος. οὕτω δὲ διακειμένοις αὐτοῖς τὰς μεγίστας ἐνέδωκαν ἀπὸ τῆς Ῥώμης οἱ δημαγωγοὶ προφάσεις, φθόνῳ τοῦ Λουκούλλου κατηγοροῦντες ὡς ὑπὸ φιλαρχίας καὶ φιλοπλουτίας ἔλκοντος τὸν πόλεμον καὶ μονοноῦ κατέχοντος ἐν ταύτῳ Κιλικίαν, Ἀσίαν, Βιθυνίαν, Παφλαγονίαν, Γαλατίαν, Πόντον, Ἀρμενίαν, τὰ μέχρι Φάσιδος, νυνὶ δὲ καὶ τὰ Τιγράνου βασιλεία πεπορθηκότος, ὥσπερ ἐκδῦσαι τοὺς βασιλεῖς, οὐ soldier, and thought that everything that was done to please one's command only dishonoured and undermined one's authority. Worst of all, not even with men of power and of equal rank with himself could he readily co-operate; he despised them all, and thought them of no account as compared with himself. These bad qualities Lucullus is said to have had, but no more than these. He was tall and handsome, a powerful speaker, and equally able in the forum and the field.

5 καταπολεμῆσαι πεμφθέντος. τοῦτο γὰρ εἰπεῖν φασιν ἓνα τῶν στρατηγῶν Λεύκιον Κοῖντον, ὑφ' οὗ μάλιστα πεισθέντες ἐψηφίσαντο πέμπειν διαδόχους τῷ Λουκούλλῳ τῆς ἐπαρχίας. ἐψηφίσαντο δὲ καὶ τῶν ὑπ' αὐτῷ στρατευομένων πολ-

515

LUCULLUS

Well, then, Sallust says that his soldiers were ill-disposed towards him at the very beginning of the war, before Cyzicus, and again before Amisus, because they were compelled to spend two successive winters in camp. The winters that followed also vexed them. They spent them either in the enemy's country, or among the allies, encamped under the open sky. Not once did Lucullus take his army into a city that was Greek and friendly. In their disaffection, they received the greatest support from the popular tribunes at Rome. These envied Lucullus and denounced him for protracting the war through love of power and love of wealth. They said he all but had in his own sole power Cilicia, Asia, Bithynia, Paphlagonia, Galatia, Pontus, Armenia, and the regions extending to the Phasis, and that now he had actually plundered the palaces of Tigranes, as if he had been sent, not to subdue the kings, but to strip them. These were the words, they say, of Lucius Quintus, one of the praetors, to whom most of all the people listened when they passed a vote to send men who should succeed Lucullus in the command of his province. They voted also that many of the soldiers under him should be released from military service.

PLUTARCH'S LIVES

- XXXIV. Τούτοις δὲ τηλικούτοις οὔσι προσγίνεται τὸ μάλιστα Λουκούλλῳ διειργασμένον τὰς
 πράξεις, Πόπλιος Κλώδιος, ἀνὴρ ὑβριστῆς καὶ
 μεστὸς ὀλιγωρίας ἀπίσσης καὶ θρασύτητος. ἦν δὲ
 τῆς Λουκούλλου γυναικὸς ἀδελφός, ἦν καὶ δια-φθείρειν ἔσχεν αἰτίαν ἀκολαστοτάτην οὔσαν.
- 2 τότε δὲ τῷ Λουκούλλῳ συστρατεύων οὐχ ὄσης
 αὐτὸν ἠξίου τιμῆς ἐτύγχανεν· ἠξίου δὲ πρῶτος
 εἶναι, καὶ πολλῶν ἀπολειπόμενος διὰ τὸν τρόπον ὑποικούρει τὴν Φιμβριανὴν στρατιὰν καὶ παρώξυνε κατὰ τοῦ Λουκούλλου, λόγους χρηστοὺς εἰς
 οὐκ ἄκοντας οὐδ' ἀήθεις τοῦ δημαγωγείσθαι
 διαδιδούς. οὔτοι γὰρ ἦσαν, οὓς καὶ πρότερον
 ἀνέπεισε Φιμβρίας ἀποκτείναντας τὸν ὕπατον
- 3 Φλάκκον αὐτὸν ἐλέσθαι στρατηγόν. διὸ καὶ τὸν
 Κλώδιον ἠδέως ἐδέχοντο καὶ φιλοστρατιώτην
 προσηγόρευον, ἀγανακτεῖν προσποιούμενον ὑπὲρ
 αὐτῶν, εἰ πέρασ οὐδὲν ἔσται πολέμων τοσοῦτων
 καὶ πόνων, ἀλλὰ παντὶ μὲν ἔθνει μαχόμενοι,
 πᾶσαν δὲ γῆν πλανώμενοι κατατρίψουσι τὸν βίον
 οὐδὲν ἄξιον ἐκ τηλικαύτης φερόμενοι στρατείας,
 ἀλλὰ τὰς Λουκούλλου παραπέμποντες ἀμάξας
 καὶ καμήλους ἐκπωμάτων χρυσῶν καὶ διαλίθων
- 4 γεμούσας, οἱ δὲ Πομπηίου στρατιῶται δῆμος
 ὄντες ἤδη που μετὰ γυναικῶν καὶ τέκνων κάθηνται
 γῆν εὐδαίμονα καὶ πόλεις ἔχοντες, οὐ Μιθριδάτην
 καὶ Τιγράνην εἰς τὰς ἀοικήτους ἐμβαλόντες ἐρημίας, οὐδὲ τῆς Ἀσίας τὰ βασίλεια καταρρίψαντες, ἀλλὰ φυγάσιν ἀνθρώποις ἐν Ἰβηρίᾳ καὶ δραπέ-

LUCULLUS

XXXIV. To these factors in the case, so unfavourable in themselves, there was added another, which most of all vitiated the undertakings of Lucullus. This was Publius Clodius, a man of wanton violence, and full of all arrogance and boldness. He was a brother of the wife of Lucullus, a woman of the most dissolute ways, whom he was actually accused of debauching. At this time he was in service with Lucullus, and did not get all the honour which he thought his due. He thought a foremost place his due, and when many were preferred before him because of his evil character, he worked secretly upon the soldiers who had been commanded by Fimbria, and tried to incite them against Lucullus, disseminating among them speeches well adapted to men who were neither unwilling nor unaccustomed to have their favour courted. These were the men whom Fimbria had once persuaded to kill the consul Flaccus, and choose himself for their general. They therefore gladly listened to Clodius also, and called him the soldier's friend. For he pretended to be incensed in their behalf, if there was to be no end of their countless wars and toils, but they were rather to wear out their lives in fighting with every nation and wandering over every land, receiving no suitable reward for such service, but convoying the waggons and camels of Lucullus laden with golden beakers set with precious stones, while the soldiers of Pompey, citizens now, were snugly ensconced with wives and children in the possession of fertile lands and prosperous cities,—not for having driven Mithridates and Tigranes into uninhabitable deserts, nor for having demolished the royal palaces of Asia, but for having fought with wretched exiles in Spain and ταις ἐν Ἰταλία πολεμήσαντες. “ Τί οὖν, εἰ δεῖ μηδέποτε παύσασθαι στρατευομένους, οὐχὶ τοιούτῳ στρατηγῷ καὶ σώματα τὰ λοιπὰ καὶ ψυχὰς φυλάσσομεν, ᾧ κάλλιστος εἶναι δοκεῖ κόσμος ὁ τῶν στρατευομένων πλοῦτος ; ”

- 5 Τοιαύταις αἰτίαις τὸ Λουκούλλου στράτευμα διαφθαρὲν οὐτ' ἐπὶ Τιγράνην ἠκολούθησεν οὐτ' ἐπὶ Μιθριδάτην αὐθις ἐξ Ἀρμενίας εἰς Πόντον ἐμβαλόντα καὶ τὴν ἀρχὴν ἀναλαμβάνοντα, πρόφασιν δὲ τὸν χεῖμῶνα ποιούμενοι περὶ τὴν Γορδυηνὴν διέτριβον, ὅσον οὐπω Πομπήϊον ἢ τιν' ἄλλον τῶν ἡγεμόνων Λουκούλλῳ διάδοχον ἀφίξεσθαι προσδοκῶντες.

XXXV. Ἐπεὶ δὲ Μιθριδάτης ἠγγελοτο Φάβιον νενικηκῶς ἐπὶ Σωρνάτιον καὶ Τριάριον βαδίζειν, αἰσχυρθέντες εἶποντο τῷ Λουκούλλῳ. Τριάριος δ' ὡς ἔτοιμον ἀρπάσαι τὸ νίκημα, πρὶν ἐπελθεῖν Λούκουλλον ἐγγὺς ὄντα, φιλοτιμούμενος ἠττάται μάχῃ μεγάλη. λέγονται γὰρ ὑπὲρ ἑπτακισχιλίους Ῥωμαίων ἀποθανεῖν, ἐν οἷς ἑκατόνταρχοι μὲν ἑκατὸν πεντήκοντα, χιλίαρχοι δ' εἴκοσι καὶ τέσσαρες· τὸ δὲ στρατόπεδον εἶλε Μιθριδάτης.

- 2 ἐπελθὼν δὲ Λούκουλλος ὀλίγαις ὕστερον ἡμέραις Τριάριον μὲν ὑπὸ τῶν στρατιωτῶν ζητούμενον πρὸς ὄργην ἐξέκλεψε, Μιθριδάτου δὲ μὴ θέλοντος μάχεσθαι, ἀλλὰ Τιγράνην περιμένοντος ἤδη καταβαίνοντα μετὰ πολλῆς δυνάμεως, ἔγνω πρὶν ἀμφοτέρους συνελθεῖν πάλιν ἀπαντῆσαι καὶ διαγωνίσασθαι πρὸς τὸν Τιγράνην. πορευομένῳ δ' αὐτῷ καθ' ὁδὸν οἱ Φιμβριανοὶ στασιάζσαντες ἀπέλιπον τὰς τάξεις, ὡς ἀφειμένοι δόγματι τῆς

LUCULLUS

runaway slaves in Italy. "Why, then," he would cry, "if our campaigns are never to come to an end, do we not reserve what is left of our bodies, and our lives, for a general in whose eyes the wealth of his soldiers is his fairest honour?"

For such reasons as these the army of Lucullus was demoralised, and refused to follow him either against Tigranes, or against Mithridates, who had come back into Pontus from Armenia, and was trying to restore his power there. They made the winter their excuse for lingering in Gordyené, expecting every moment that Pompey, or some other commander, would be sent out to succeed Lucullus.

XXXV. But when tidings came that Mithridates had defeated Fabius,¹ and was on the march against Sornatius and Triarius, they were struck with shame and followed Lucullus. But Triarius, who was ambitious to snatch the victory, which he thought assured, before Lucullus, who was near, should come up, was defeated in a great battle. It is said that over seven thousand Romans fell, among whom were a hundred and fifty centurions, and twenty-four tribunes; and their camp was captured by Mithridates. But Lucullus, coming up a few days afterward, hid Triarius from the search of his infuriated soldiers. Then, since Mithridates was unwilling to give fight, but lay waiting for Tigranes, who was coming down with a large force, he determined to anticipate the junction of their armies, and march back to meet Tigranes in battle. But while he was on the way thither, the Fimbrian soldiers mutinied and left their ranks, declaring that they were discharged from

¹ 67 B.C.

PLUTARCH'S LIVES

στρατείας καὶ μηκέτι τῷ Λουκούλλῳ προσήκον
 ἄρχειν, ἑτέροις ἀποδεδειγμένων τῶν ἐπαρχιῶν.
 οὐδὲν οὖν ἔστιν ὃ τι τῶν παρ' ἀξίαν ὁ Λούκουλλος
 οὐχ ὑπέμεινεν, ἀντιβωδῶν καθ' ἓνα καὶ κατὰ
 σκηναὺς περιῶν ταπεινὸς καὶ δεδακρυμένος, ἔστι
 4 δ' ὧν καὶ χειρὸς¹ ἀπτόμενος. οἱ δ' ἀπετρίβοντο
 τὰς δεξιῶσεις καὶ κενὰ προσερρίπτον βαλάντια,
 καὶ μόνον μάχεσθαι τοῖς πολεμίοις ἐκέλευον,
 ἀφ' ὧν μόνος ἠπίστατο πλουτεῖν. οὐ μὴν ἀλλὰ
 τῶν ἄλλων στρατιωτῶν δεομένων ἐκβιασθέντες
 οἱ Φιμβριανοὶ συνέθεντο παραμεῖναι τὸ θέρος· 516
 εἰάν δὲ μηδεὶς ἐν τῷ χρόνῳ τούτῳ κατῆε πρὸς
 αὐτοὺς ἀγωνιούμενος, ἀπηλλάχθαι. ταῦτ' ἔδει
 στέργειν ἐξ ἀνάγκης τὸν Λούκουλλον, ἢ προσέσθαι
 5 τοῖς βαρβάροις τὴν χώραν ἀπολειφθέντα. συνέι-χεν οὖν αὐτοὺς οὐκέτι προσβιαζόμενος οὐδὲ
 προάγων πρὸς μάχην, ἀλλ' εἰ παραμένοιεν
 ἀγαπῶν, καὶ περιορῶν πορθουμένην ὑπὸ τοῦ
 Τιγράνου τὴν Καππαδοκίαν καὶ πάλιν ὑβρίζοντα Μιθριδάτην, ὃν αὐτὸς ἐπεστάλκει τῇ συγκλήτῳ
 γράφων καταπεπολεμηῆσθαι· καὶ οἱ πρέσβεις
 παρήσαν αὐτῷ πρὸς τὴν διάθεσιν τῶν ἐν Πόντῳ
 6 πραγμάτων, ὡς δὴ βεβυίως ἐχομένων. καὶ δὴ παρόντες ἑώρων οὐδ' αὐτοῦ κύριον, ἀλλὰ παροι-νούμενον καὶ προπηλακιζόμενον ὑπὸ τῶν στρατιω-τῶν, οἷς γε τοσοῦτο περιῆν τῆς εἰς τὸν στρατηγὸν
 ἀσελγείας, ὥστε τοῦ θέρους λήγοντος ἐνδύντες

¹ καὶ χειρὸς S; χειρὸς.

LUCULLUS

service by decree of the people, and that Lucullus no longer had the right to command them, since the provinces had been assigned to others. Accordingly, there was no expedient, however much beneath his dignity, to which Lucullus did not force himself to resort,—entreating the soldiers man by man, going about from tent to tent in humility and tears, and actually taking some of the men by the hand in supplication. But they rejected his advances, and threw their empty purses down before him, bidding him fight the enemy alone, since he alone knew how to get rich from them. However, at the request of the other soldiers, the Fimbrians were constrained to agree to remain during the summer; but if, in the meantime, no enemy should come down to fight them, they were to be dismissed. Lucullus was obliged to content himself with these terms, or else to be deserted and give up the country to the Barbarians. He therefore simply held his soldiers together, without forcing them any more, or leading them out to battle. Their remaining with him was all he could expect, and he looked on helplessly while Tigranes ravaged Cappadocia and Mithridates resumed his insolent ways,—a monarch whom he had reported by letter to the Senate as completely subdued. Besides, the commissioners were now with him, who had been sent out to regulate the affairs of Pontus, on the supposition that it was a secure Roman possession. And lo, when they came, they saw that Lucullus was not even his own master, but was mocked and insulted by his soldiers. These went so far in their outrageous treatment of their general, that, at the close of the summer, they donned their τὰ ὄπλα καὶ σπασάμενοι τὰς μαχαίρας προεκαλούντο τοὺς μηδαμοῦ παρόντας, ἀλλ' ἀπηρκότας

 ἤδη πολεμίους. ἀλαλάξαντες δὲ καὶ σκιαμαχή-σαντες ἀπεχώρησαν ἐκ τοῦ χάρακος, ἐπιμαρτυ-ράμενοι πεπληρῶσθαι τὸν χρόνον, ὃν ὠμολόγησαν
 τῷ Λουκούλλῳ παραμένειν.

- 7 Τοὺς δ' ἄλλους ἐκάλει διὰ γραμμάτων Πομπήῖος· ἤδη γὰρ ἀποδέδεικτο τοῦ πρὸς Μιθριδάτην
 καὶ Τιγράνην πολέμου στρατηγὸς χάριτι τοῦ
 δήμου καὶ κολακείᾳ τῶν δημαγωγῶν, ἐπεὶ τῇ γε
 βουλῇ καὶ τοῖς ἀρίστοις ἄδικα πάσχειν ἐδόκει Λούκουλλος οὐ πολέμου διαδόχους, ἀλλὰ θριάμ-βου λαμβάνων, οὐδὲ τῆς στρατηγίας ἀναγκαζό-μενος, ἀλλὰ τῶν ἐπάθλων τῆς στρατηγίας ἐξί-στασθαι καὶ παραχωρεῖν ἐτέροις.

- XXXVI. Ἐτι δὲ μᾶλλον ἐφάνη τὸ γινόμενον
 τοῖς ἐκεῖ παροῦσι νεμεσητόν. οὔτε γὰρ τιμῆς ὁ Λούκουλλος οὔτε τιμωρίας τῶν ἐν πολέμῳ κύριος
 ὑπῆρχεν, οὐδ' εἶα τινὰ Πομπήϊος βαδίζειν πρὸς
 αὐτὸν οὐδὲ προσέχειν οἷς ἐκείνος ἔγραφε καὶ
 διένεμε μετὰ τῶν δέκα πρέσβειων, ἀλλ' ἐκώλυεν
 ἐκτιθεῖς διαγράμματα καὶ φοβερὸς παρὼν ἀπὸ
 2 μείζονος δυνάμεως. ὅμως δὲ ἔδοξε τοῖς φίλοις
 συναγαγεῖν αὐτούς· καὶ συνήλθον ἐν κώμῃ τινὶ
 τῆς Γαλατίας καὶ προσεῖπον ἀλλήλους φιλοφρό-νως καὶ συνήσθησαν ἐπὶ τοῖς κατωρθωμένοις
 ἐκατέρῳ, πρεσβύτερος μὲν ὢν ὁ Λούκουλλος, ἀξίωμα δ' ἦν τὸ Πομπηίου μείζον ἀπὸ πλειόνων
 στρατηγιῶν καὶ δυνεῖν θριάμβων. ῥάβδοι δ'

LUCULLUS

armour, drew their swords, and challenged to battle an enemy who was nowhere near, but had already withdrawn. Then they shouted their war cries, brandished their weapons in the air, and departed from the camp, calling men to witness that the time had expired during which they had agreed to remain with Lucullus.

The rest of the soldiers Pompey summoned by letter, for he had already been appointed to conduct the war against Mithridates and Tigranes,¹ because he won the favour of the people and flattered their leaders. But the Senate and the nobility considered Lucullus a wronged man. He had been superseded, they said, not in a war, but in a triumph, and had been forced to relinquish and turn over to others, not his campaign, but the prizes of victory in his campaign.

XXXVI. But to those who were on the spot, what happened there seemed still greater matter for wrath and indignation. For Lucullus was not allowed to bestow rewards or punishments for what had been done in the war, nor would Pompey even suffer any one to visit him, or to pay any heed to the edicts and regulations which he made in concert with the ten commissioners, but prevented it by issuing counter-edicts, and by the terror which his presence with a larger force inspired. Nevertheless, their friends decided to bring the two men together, and so they met in a certain village of Galatia. They greeted one another amicably, and each congratulated the other on his victories. Lucullus was the elder man, but Pompey's prestige was the greater, because he had conducted more campaigns, and celebrated

¹ 66 B.C.

ἀμφοτέρων προηγούντο δαφνηφόροι διὰ τὰς νίκας.
 3 καὶ τοῦ γε Πομπηίου μακρὰν ὁδὸν διὰ τόπων
 ἀνδρῶν καὶ αὐχμηρῶν ὀδεύσαντος τὰς δάφνας
 ξηρὰς περικειμένας ταῖς ῥάβδοις ἰδόντες οἱ
 τοῦ Λουκούλλον ῥαβδοφόροι φιλοφρονούμενοι
 τοῖς ἐκείνου μετέδωκαν ἐκ τῶν ἰδίων, προσφάτους καὶ θαλερὰς ἔχοντες. καὶ τὸ γινόμενον
 εἰς οἰωνὸν ἐτίθεντο χρηστὸν οἱ Πομπηίου φίλοι·
 τῷ γὰρ ὄντι τὴν ἐκείνου στρατηγίαν αἱ τούτου
 4 πράξεις ἐκόσμησαν. ἐκ δὲ τῶν λόγων πρὸς οὐδὲν
 ἐπιεικὲς συνέβησαν, ἀλλ' ἔτι μᾶλλον ἄλλοτριω-θέντες πρὸς ἀλλήλους ἀπήλθον· καὶ τὰς ὑπὸ τοῦ
 Λουκούλλου γενομένας διατάξεις ἠκύρωσεν ὁ Πομπηῖος, στρατιώτας δὲ τοὺς ἄλλους ἀπαγαγὼν
 μόνους αὐτῷ χιλίους ἑξακοσίους ἀπέλιπε συν-θριαμβεύσοντας, οὐδὲ τούτους μάλα προθύμως
 5 ἐπομένους. οὕτω τις ἦν ἀφυῆς ἢ δυστυχῆς ὁ Λούκουλλος πρὸς τὸ πάντων ἐν ἡγεμονίᾳ πρῶτον
 καὶ μέγιστον· ὡς, εἰ τοῦτο μετὰ τῶν ἄλλων
 ὑπῆρξεν αὐτῷ, τηλικούτων ὄντων καὶ τοσοῦτων,
 μετ' ἀνδρείας, ἐπιμελείας, συνέσεως, δικαιοσύνης,
 οὐκ ἂν εἶχεν ἢ Ῥωμαίων ἡγεμονία τὸν Εὐφράτην
 6 τῆς Ἀσίας ὄρον, ἀλλὰ τὰ ἔσχατα καὶ τὴν Ἑρκα- 517
 νίαν θάλατταν, τῶν μὲν ἄλλων ἔθνῶν Τιγρᾶν
 προητημένων, τῆς δὲ Πάρθων δυνάμεως οὐχ ὅση
 κατὰ Κράσσον ἐξεφάνη τοσαύτης καὶ κατὰ Λούκουλλον οὔσης οὐδ' ὁμοίως συνεστῶσης, ἀλλ' ὑπ
 ἐμφυλίων καὶ προσοίκων πολέμων οὐδ' Ἀρμενίου
 ὑβρίζοντας ἐρρωμένης ἀμύνεσθαι.

Νῦν δέ μοι δοκεῖ Λούκουλλος ὦν ὠφέλησε δι'
 αὐτοῦ τὴν πατρίδα βλάψαι μείζονα δι' ἐτέρων.

LUCULLUS

two triumphs. Fasces wreathed with laurel were carried before both commanders in token of their victories, and since Pompey had made a long march through waterless, and arid regions, the laurel which wreathed his fasces was withered. When the lictors of Lucullus noticed this, they considerably gave Pompey's lictors some of their own laurel, which was fresh and green. This circumstance was interpreted as a good omen by the friends of Pompey; for, in fact, the exploits of Lucullus did adorn the command of Pompey. However, their conference resulted in no equitable agreement, but they left it still more estranged from one another. Pompey also annulled the ordinances of Lucullus, and took away all but sixteen hundred of his soldiers. These he left to share his triumph, but even these did not follow him very cheerfully. To such a marvellous degree was Lucullus either unqualified or unfortunate as regards the first and highest of all requisites in a leader. Had this power of gaining the affection of his soldiers been added to his other gifts, which were so many and so great,—courage, diligence, wisdom, and justice,—the Roman empire would not have been bounded by the Euphrates, but by the outer confines of Asia, and the Hyrcanian sea; for all the other nations had already been subdued by Tigranes, and in the time of Lucullus the Parthian power was not so great as it proved to be in the time of Crassus, nor was it so well united, nay rather, owing to intestine and neighbouring wars, it had not even strength enough to repel the wanton attacks of the Armenians.

Now my own opinion is that the harm Lucullus did his country through his influence upon others, was greater than the good he did her himself. For his

7 τὰ γὰρ ἐν Ἀρμενίᾳ τρόπαια Πάρθων πλησίον ἐστῶτα καὶ Τιγρανόκερτα καὶ Νίσιβις καὶ πλοῦτος ἐκ τούτων πολὺς εἰς Ῥώμην κομισθεὶς καὶ τὸ Τιγράνου διάδημα πομπευθὲν αἰχμάλωτον ἐπήρε Κράσσον ἐπὶ τὴν Ἀσίαν, ὡς λάφυρα καὶ λείαν τοὺς βαρβάρους, ἄλλο δ' οὐδὲν ὄντας. ταχὺ μέντοι τοῖς Πάρθων τοξεύμασιν ἐντυχὼν ἀπέδειξε τὸν Λούκουλλον οὐκ ἀφροσύνη καὶ μαλακία τῶν πολεμίων, αὐτοῦ δὲ τόλμη καὶ δεινότητι περιγεγόμενον. ἀλλὰ ταῦτα μὲν ὕστερον.

XXXVII. Ὁ δὲ Λούκουλλος ἀναβὰς εἰς Ῥώμην πρῶτον μὲν κατέλαβε τὸν ἀδελφὸν Μάρκον ὑπὸ Γαίου Μεμμίου κατηγορούμενον ἐφ' οἷς ἔπραξε ταμιέων Σύλλα προστάξαντος. ἐκείνου δ' ἀποφυγόντος ἐπὶ τούτῳ αὐτὸν ὁ Μέμμιος μεταβαλόμενος παρώξυνε τὸν δῆμον, καὶ ὡς πολλὰ νεοσφισμένῳ καὶ μηκύναντι τὸν πόλεμον ἔπεισεν αὐτῷ μὴ δοῦναι θρίαμβον. ἐλθόντος δ' εἰς ἀγῶνα τοῦ Λουκούλλου μέγαν οἱ πρῶτοι καὶ δυνατώτατοι καταμίξαντες ἑαυτοὺς ταῖς φυλαῖς πολλῇ δεήσει καὶ σπουδῇ μόλις ἔπεισαν τὸν δῆμον ἐπιτρέψαι θριαμβεῦσαι, οὐχ, ὥσπερ ἔνιοι, μήκει τε πομπῆς καὶ πλήθει τῶν κομιζομένων ἐκπληκτικὸν καὶ ὀχλώδη θρίαμβον, ἀλλὰ τοῖς μὲν ὄπλοις τῶν πολεμίων οὐσι παμπόλλοις καὶ τοῖς βασιλικοῖς μηχανήμασι τὸν Φλαμίνειον ἵππόδρομον διεκόσμησε· καὶ θέα τις 3 ἦν αὐτῇ καθ' ἑαυτὴν οὐκ εὐκαταφρόνητος· ἐν δὲ trophies in Armenia, standing on the borders of Parthia, and Tigranocerta, and Nisibis, and the vast wealth brought to Rome from these cities, and the display in his triumph of the captured diadem of Tigranes, incited Crassus to his attack upon Asia; he thought that the Barbarians were spoil and booty, and nothing else. It was not long, however, before he encountered the Parthian arrows, and proved that Lucullus had won his victories, not through the folly and cowardice of his enemies, but through his own daring and ability. This, however, is later history.

LUCULLUS

XXXVII. Now when Lucullus had returned to Rome, he found, in the first place, that his brother Marcus was under prosecution by Gaius Memmius for his acts as quaestor under the administration of Sulla. Marcus, indeed, was acquitted, but Memmius then turned his attack upon Lucullus, and strove to excite the people against him. He charged him with diverting much property to his own uses, and with needlessly protracting the war, and finally persuaded the people not to grant him a triumph. Lucullus strove mightily against this decision, and the foremost and most influential men mingled with the tribes, and by much entreaty and exertion at last persuaded the people to allow him to celebrate a triumph;¹ not, however, like some, a triumph which was startling and tumultuous from the length of the procession and the multitude of objects displayed. Instead, he decorated the circus of Flaminius with the arms of the enemy, which were very numerous, and with the royal engines of war; and this was a great spectacle in itself, and far from contemptible.

¹ 66 B. C.

τῇ πομπῇ τῶν τε καταφράκτων ἰππέων ὀλίγοι καὶ τῶν δρεπανηφόρων ἀρμάτων δέκα παρήλθον, ἐξήκοντα δὲ φίλοι καὶ στρατηγοὶ τῶν βασιλικῶν, μακραὶ δὲ χαλκέμβολοι νῆες ἑκατὸν καὶ δέκα ἅμα παρεκομίσθησαν, αὐτοῦ τε Μιθριδάτου χρύσεος ἐξάπους κολοσσός, καὶ θυρεός τις διάλιθος, καὶ φορήματα εἴκοσι μὲν ἀργυρῶν σκευῶν, χρυσῶν δ' ἐκπιωμάτων καὶ ὄπλων καὶ νομίσματος δύο καὶ 4 τριάκοντα. ταῦτα μὲν οὖν ἄνδρες παρεκόμιζον ἡμίονοι δ' ὀκτὼ κλίνας χρυσᾶς ἔφερον, ἐξ δὲ καὶ πεντήκοντα κεχωνευμένον ἀργύριον, ἄλλοι δ' ἑκατὸν ἑπτὰ νομίσματος ἀργυροῦ, μικρῶ τιμι δεούσας ἑβδομήκοντα καὶ διακοσίας μυριάδας. ἐν δὲ δέλτοις ἀναγραφαὶ τῶν ἤδη δεδομένων χρημάτων ὑπ' αὐτοῦ Πομπηΐφ πρὸς τὸν πειρατικὸν πόλεμον καὶ τοῖς ἐπὶ τοῦ δημοσίου ταμείου, καὶ χωρὶς ὅτι στρατιώτης ἕκαστος ἑνακοσίας καὶ πεντήκοντα δραχμὰς ἔλαβεν. ἐπὶ τούτοις τὴν τε πόλιν εἰστίασε λαμπρῶς καὶ τὰς περιοικίδας κώμας, ἃς οὐίκους καλοῦσι.

XXXVIII. Τῆς δὲ Κλωδίας ἀπηλλαγμένος, οὔσης ἀσελγούς καὶ πονηρᾶς, Σερουίλιαν ἐγήμεν, ἀδελφὴν Κάτωνος, οὐδὲ τούτου εὐτυχῆ γάμον. ἐν γὰρ οὐ προσῆν αὐτῷ τῶν Κλωδίας κακῶν μόνον, ἢ τῶν ἀδελφῶν διαβολή· τὰλλα δὲ βδελυρὰν ὁμοίως οὔσαν καὶ ἀκόλαστον ἠναγκάζετο φέρειν αἰδούμενος Κάτωνα, τέλος δὲ ἀπέειπεν.

2 Ἐλπίδας δὲ θαυμαστὰς τῇ βουλῇ παρασχών, ὡς ἐχούσῃ τὸν ἄνδρα τούτου ἀντίταγμα πρὸς τὴν τοῦ Πομπηΐου τυραννίδα καὶ τῆς ἀριστοκρατίας

LUCULLUS

But in the procession, a few of the mail-clad horsemen and ten of the scythe-bearing chariots moved along, together with sixty of the king's friends and generals. A hundred and ten bronze-beaked ships of war were also carried along, a golden statue of Mithridates himself, six feet in height, a wonderful shield adorned with precious stones, twenty litters of silver vessels, and thirty-two litters of gold beakers, armour, and money. All this was carried by men. Then there were eight mules which bore golden couches, fifty-six bearing ingots of silver, and a hundred and seven more bearing something less than two million seven hundred thousand pieces of silver coin. There were also tablets with records of the sums of money already paid by Lucullus to Pompey for the war against the pirates, and to the keepers of the public treasury, as well as of the fact that each of his soldiers had received nine hundred and fifty drachmas. To crown all, Lucullus gave a magnificent feast to the city, and to the surrounding villages called Vici.

XXXVIII. After his divorce from Clodia, who was a licentious and base woman, he married Servilia, a sister of Cato, but this, too, was an unfortunate marriage. For it lacked none of the evils which Clodia had brought in her train except one, namely, the scandal about her brothers. In all other respects Servilia was equally vile and abandoned, and yet Lucullus forced himself to tolerate her, out of regard for Cato. At last, however, he put her away.

The Senate had conceived wondrous hopes that in him it would find an opposer of the tyranny of Pompey and a champion of the aristocracy, with all

- πρόμαχον ἀπὸ δόξης καὶ δυνάμειος ὀρμώμενον
 μεγάλης, ἐγκατέλιπε καὶ προήκατο τὴν πολιτείαν,
 εἴτε δυσκάρηκτον ἤδη καὶ νοσοῦσαν ὀρῶν εἶθ', ὡς φασιν ἔνιοι, μεστὸς ὦν δόξης καὶ πρὸς τὸ ῥᾶστων
 ἀναπίπτων τοῦ βίου καὶ μαλακώτατον ἐκ πολλῶν
 ἀγῶνων καὶ πόνων οὐκ εὐτυχέστατον τέλος
 3 λαβόντων. οἱ μὲν γὰρ ἐπαινοῦσιν αὐτοῦ τὴν 518
 τοσαύτην μεταβολήν, τὸ Μαρίου πάθος μὴ
 παθόντος, ὃς ἐπὶ ταῖς Κιμβρिकाῖς νίκαις καὶ τοῖς
 καλοῖς καὶ μεγάλοις ἐκείνοις κατορθώμασιν οὐκ
 ἠθέλησεν αὐτὸν ἀνεῖναι τιμῇ τοσαύτῃ ζηλωτόν,
 ἀλλ' ἀπληστία δόξης καὶ ἀρχῆς νέοις ἀνδράσι
 γέρων ἀντιπολιτευόμενος εἰς ἔργα δεινὰ καὶ πάθη
 δεινότερα τῶν ἔργων ἐξώκειλε· βέλτιον δ' ἂν καὶ Κικέρωνα γηράσαι μετὰ Κατιλίαν ὑποστειλά-μενον καὶ Σκηπίωνα Καρχηδόνι προσθέντα
 4 Νομαντίαν, εἴτα παυσάμενον· εἶναι γάρ τινα καὶ
 πολιτικῆς περιόδου κατάλυσιν· τῶν γὰρ ἀθλη-τικῶν ἀγῶνων τοὺς πολιτικούς οὐδὲν ἦττον ἀκμῆς
 καὶ ὥρας ἐπιλιπούσης ἐλέγχεσθαι. οἱ δὲ περὶ τὸν Κράσσον καὶ Πομπήιον ἐχλεύαζον τὸν Λούκουλ-λον εἰς ἡδονὴν ἀφεικότα καὶ πολυτέλειαν αὐτόν,
 ὥσπερ οὐ τοῦ τρυφᾶν μᾶλλον τοῖς τηλικούτοις
 παρ' ἡλικίαν ὄντος ἢ τοῦ πολιτεύεσθαι καὶ στρατηγεῖν.

XXXIX. Ἔστι δ' οὖν τοῦ Λουκούλλου βίου, καθάπερ ἀρχαίας κωμωδίας, ἀναγνῶναι τὰ μὲν
 πρῶτα πολιτείας καὶ στρατηγίας, τὰ δ' ὕστερα
 πότους καὶ δείπνα καὶ μονονουχὶ κώμους καὶ
 2 λαμπάδας καὶ παιδιὰν ἅπασαν. εἰς παιδιὰν γὰρ
 ἔγωγε τίθεμαι καὶ οἰκοδομὰς πολυτελεῖς καὶ 596

LUCULLUS

the advantage of great glory and influence; but he quitted and abandoned public affairs, either because he saw that they were already beyond proper control and diseased, or, as some say, because he had his fill of glory, and felt that the unfortunate issue of his many struggles and toils entitled him to fall back upon a life of ease and luxury. Some commend him for making such a change, and thereby escaping the unhappy lot of Marius, who, after his Cimbrian victories and the large and fair successes which were so famous, was unwilling to relax his efforts and enjoy the honours won, but with an insatiate desire for glory and power, old man that he was, fought with young men in the conduct of the state, and so drove headlong into terrible deeds, and sufferings more terrible still. Cicero, say these, would have had a better old age if he had taken in sail after the affair of Catiline, and Scipio, too, if he had given himself pause after adding Numantia to Carthage; for a political cycle, too, has a sort of natural termination, and political no less than athletic contests are absurd, after the full vigor of life has departed. Crassus and Pompey, on the other hand, ridiculed Lucullus for giving himself up to pleasure and extravagance, as if a luxurious life were not even more unsuitable to men of his years than political and military activities.

XXXIX. And it is true that in the life of Lucullus, as in an ancient comedy, one reads in the first part of political measures and military commands, and in the latter part of drinking bouts, and banquets, and what might pass for revel-routs, and torch-races, and all manner of frivolity. For I must count as frivolity his costly edifices, his ambulatories

PLUTARCH'S LIVES

- κατασκευὰς περιπάτων καὶ λουτρῶν καὶ ἔτι μάλλον γραφὰς καὶ ἀνδριάντας καὶ τὴν περὶ ταύτας τὰς τέχνας σπουδὴν, ἃς ἐκείνος συνῆγε μεγάλοις ἀναλώμασιν, εἰς ταῦτα τῷ πλούτῳ ῥύδην καταχρῶμενος, ὃν ἠθροίκει πολλὴν καὶ λαμπρὸν ἀπὸ τῶν στρατειῶν, ὅπου καὶ νῦν, ἐπίδοσιν τοιαύτην τῆς τρυφῆς ἐχούσης, οἱ Λουκουλιανοὶ κῆποι τῶν βασιλικῶν ἐν τοῖς πολυτελεστάτοις ἀριθμοῦνται. τὰ δ' ἐν τοῖς παραλίοις καὶ περὶ Νέαν πόλιν ἔργα, λόφους ἀνακρεμαννύντος αὐτοῦ μεγάλοις ὀρύγμασι καὶ τροχοῦς θαλάσσης καὶ διαδρομὰς ἰχθυοτρόφους τοῖς οἰκητηρίοις περιελίσσοντος καὶ διαίτας ἐναλίους κτίζοντος, ὁ Στωϊκὸς Τουβέρων θεασάμενος Ξέρξην αὐτὸν ἐκ 3 τηβέννου προσηγόρευσεν. ἦσαν δ' αὐτῷ περὶ Τοῦσκλον ἐγγῶριοι δίαιται καὶ κατασκοπαὶ περιόπτων καὶ κατασκευαὶ ἀναπεπταμένων ἀνδρῶνων καὶ περιπάτων, ἐν αἷς ὁ Πομπήϊος γενόμενος ἐμέμφετο τὸν Λούκουλλον, ὅτι πρὸς θέρος ἄριστα διαθεῖς τὴν ἔπαυλιν ἀοίκητον ἐν χειμῶνι πεποίηκε. γελάσας οὖν ἐκείνος “Εἶτα,” ἔφη, “σοὶ δοκῶ ἐλάττονα τῶν γεράνων νοῦν ἔχειν καὶ τῶν πελαργῶν, ὥστε ταῖς ὥραις μὴ συμμετα- 4 βάλλειν τὰς διαίτας;” στρατηγοῦ δέ ποτε φιλοτιμουμένου περὶ θέας καὶ χορῶ τινι κόσμον αἰτουμένου πορφυρᾶς χλαμύδας ἀπεκρίνατο σκεψάμενος, ἂν ἔχη, δώσειν, εἶτα μεθ' ἡμέραν ἠρώτησεν αὐτόν, ὅπόσων δέοιτο. τοῦ δὲ ἑκατὸν ἀρκέσειν φήσαντος ἐκέλευσε λαβεῖν δις τοσαύτας· εἰς ὃ καὶ Φλάκκος ὁ ποιητῆς ἐπιπεφώνηκεν, ὡς

LUCULLUS

and baths, and still more his paintings and statues (not to speak of his devotion to these arts), which he collected at enormous outlays, pouring out into such channels the vast and splendid wealth which he accumulated from his campaigns. Even now, when luxury has increased so much, the gardens of Lucullus are counted among the most costly of the imperial gardens. As for his works on the sea-shore and in the vicinity of Neapolis, where he suspended hills over vast tunnels, girdled his residences with zones of sea and with streams for the breeding of fish, and built dwellings in the sea,—when Tubero the Stoic saw them, he called him Xerxes in a toga. He had also country establishments near Tusculum, with observatories, and extensive open banqueting halls and cloisters. Pompey once visited these, and chided Lucullus because he had arranged his country seat in the best possible way for summer, but had made it uninhabitable in winter. Whereupon Lucullus burst out laughing and said: “Do you suppose, then, that I have less sense than cranes and storks, and do not change residences according to the seasons?” A praetor was once making ambitious plans for a public spectacle, and asked of him some purple cloaks for the adornment of a chorus. Lucullus replied that he would investigate, and if he had any, would give them to him. The next day he asked the praetor how many he wanted, and on his replying that a hundred would suffice, bade him take twice that number. The poet Flaccus¹ alluded to this when ¹ Epist. i. 6, 45 f.

PLUTARCH'S LIVES

οὐ νομίζει πλοῦτον, οὐ μὴ τὰ παρορώμενα καὶ
λανθάνοντα πλείονα τῶν φαινομένων ἐστί.

XI. Νεόπλουτα δ' ἦν τοῦ Λουκούλλου τὰ
δείπνα τὰ καθ' ἡμέραν, οὐ μόνον στρωμαῖς
άλουργέσι καὶ διαλίθοις ἐκπώμασι καὶ χοροῖς καὶ ἀκροάμασιν ἐπεισοδίοις, ἀλλ' ὄψων τε παντοδαπῶν καὶ πεμμάτων περιττῶς διαπεπονημένων
παρασκευαῖς ζηλωτὸν ἀνελευθέρους ποιούντος
2 εαυτόν. ὁ γοῦν Πομπήϊος εὐδοκίμησε νοσῶν
τοῦ γὰρ ἰατροῦ κίχλην αὐτὸν λαβεῖν κελεύσαντος,
τῶν δ' οἰκετῶν οὐκ ἂν εὐρεῖν ἀλλαχόθι φαιμένων
θέρους ὥρα κίχλην ἢ παρὰ Λουκούλλῳ σιτενομένην, οὐκ εἶασε λαβεῖν ἐκεῖθεν, ἀλλ' εἰπὼν πρὸς
τὸν ἰατρόν “ Οὐκοῦν, εἰ μὴ Λούκουλλος ἐτρύφα, Πομπήϊος οὐκ ἂν ἔζησεν; ” ἄλλο τι παρασκευάσαι
3 τῶν εὐπορίστων ἐκέλευσε. Κάτων δ' ἦν αὐτῷ 519
φίλος καὶ οἰκεῖος, οὕτω δὲ τὸν βίον αὐτοῦ καὶ τὴν
δίαιταν ἐδυσχέraitεν, ὥστε, νέου τινὸς ἐν τῇ
βουλῇ λόγον ἐπαχθῆ καὶ μακρὸν ἀκαίρως ὑπὲρ
εὐτελείας καὶ σωφροσύνης διελθόντος, ἐπαναστὰς
ὁ Κάτων “ Οὐ παύση, ” ἔφη, “ σὺ πλουτῶν μὲν ὡς
Κράσσος, ζῶν δ' ὡς Λούκουλλος, λέγων δὲ ὡς
Κάτων; ” ἔνιοι δὲ τοῦτο ῥηθῆναι μὲν οὕτως, ὑπὸ
Κάτωνος δὲ οὐ λέγουσιν.

XLI. Ὁ μέντοι Λούκουλλος οὐχ ἠδόμενος
μόνον, ἀλλὰ καὶ σεμννόμενος τῷ βίῳ τούτῳ
δῆλος ἦν ἐκ τῶν ἀπομνημονευομένων. λέγεται
γὰρ Ἕλληνας ἀνθρώπους ἀναβάοντας εἰς Ῥώμην
ἐστιᾶν ἐπὶ πολλὰς ἡμέρας, τοὺς δ' ὄντως Ἕλληνικὸν τι παθόντας, αἰσχύνεσθαι καὶ διωθεῖσθαι 600

LUCULLUS

he said that he did not regard a house as wealthy in which the treasures that were overlooked and unobserved were not more than those which met the eye.

XL. The daily repasts of Lucullus were such as the newly rich affect. Not only with his dyed coverlets, and beakers set with precious stones, and choruses and dramatic recitations, but also with his arrays of all sorts of meats and daintily prepared dishes, did he make himself the envy of the vulgar. A saying of Pompey's, when he was ill, was certainly very popular. His physicians had prescribed a thrush for him to eat, and his servants said that a thrush could not be found anywhere in the summer season except where Lucullus kept them fattening. Pompey, however, would not suffer them to get one from there, but bade them prepare something else that was easily to be had, remarking as he did so to his physician, "What! must a Pompey have died if a Lucullus were not luxurious?" And Cato, who was a friend of his, and a relation by marriage, was nevertheless much offended by his life and habits. Once when a youthful senator had delivered a tedious and lengthy discourse, all out of season, on frugality and temperance, Cato rose and said; "Stop there! you get wealth like Crassus, you live like Lucullus, but you talk like Cato." Some, however, while they say that these words were actually uttered, do not say that they were spoken by Cato.

XLI. Moreover, that Lucullus took not only pleasure but pride in this way of living, is clear from the anecdotes recorded of him. It is said, for instance, that he entertained for many successive days some Greeks who had come up to Rome, and that they, with genuinely Greek scruples, were at last ashamed to accept his invitation, on the ground

PLUTARCH'S LIVES

την κλήσιν, ὡς δι' αὐτοὺς καθ' ἡμέραν τοσούτων
 2 ἀναλισκομένων· τὸν οὖν Λούκουλλον εἰπεῖν μειδιάσαντα πρὸς αὐτούς· “Γίνεται μὲν τι τούτων
 καὶ δι' ὑμᾶς, ὦ ἄνδρες Ἕλληνες· τὰ μέντοι πλείστα γίνεται διὰ Λούκουλλον.” ἐπεὶ δὲ μόνου δειπνοῦντος αὐτοῦ μία τράπεζα καὶ μέτριον παρε-σκευάσθη δειπνον, ἠγανάκτει καλέσας τὸν ἐπὶ
 τούτῳ τεταγμένοι οἰκέτην. τοῦ δὲ φήσαντος, ὡς
 οὐκ ᾔετο μηδενὸς κεκλημένου πολυτελοῦς τινος
 αὐτὸν δεήσεσθαι “Τί λέγεις;” εἶπεν, “οὐκ ᾔδεις, 3 ὅτι σήμερον παρὰ Λουκούλλῳ δειπνεῖ Λούκουλ-λος;” οὗτος δὲ περὶ τούτου, ὡς εἰκός, ἐν τῇ πόλει
 λόγου πολλοῦ, προσῆλθον αὐτῷ κατ' ἀγορὰν
 σχολὴν ἄγοντι Κικέρων καὶ Πομπήϊος, ὁ μὲν ἐν τοῖς μάλιστα φίλος ὦν καὶ συνηθής, Πομπηίῳ δ'
 ἦν μὲν ἐκ τῆς στρατηγίας διαφορὰ πρὸς αὐτόν,
 εἰώθεισαν δὲ χρῆσθαι καὶ διαλέγεσθαι πολλάκις
 4 ἐπιεικῶς ἀλλήλοις. ἄσπασάμενος οὖν ὁ Κικέρων
 αὐτὸν ἠρώτησεν, ὅπως ἔχει πρὸς ἔντευξιν· τοῦ δὲ
 φήσαντος, ὡς ἄριστα, καὶ παρακαλοῦντος ἐντυγ-χάνειν “Ἡμεῖς,” ἔφη, “βουλόμεθα δειπνήσαι
 παρὰ σοὶ τήμερον οὕτως, ὅπως ἐστί σοι παρεσκευασμένα.” θρυπτομένου δὲ τοῦ Λουκούλλου
 καὶ μεταλαβεῖν ἡμέραν ἀξιούντος οὐκ ἔφασαν
 ἐπιτρέψειν, οὐδ' εἶων διαλέγεσθαι τοῖς οἰκέταις,
 ἵνα μὴ τι πλεον κελεύση γενέσθαι τῶν αὐτῷ
 5 γινομένων, πλὴν τοσοῦτο μόνον αἰτουμένῳ συνεχώρησαν εἰπεῖν πρὸς ἓνα τῶν οἰκετῶν ἐναντίον
 ἐκείνων, ὅτι τήμερον ἐν τῷ Ἀπόλλωνι δειπνήσοι·
 τοῦτο γάρ τις εἶχε τῶν πολυτελῶν οἴκων ὄνομα.

LUCULLUS

that he was incurring so much expense every day on their account; whereupon Lucullus said to them with a smile, "Some of this expense, my Grecian friends, is indeed on your account; most of it, however, is on account of Lucullus." And once, when he was dining alone, and a modest repast of one course had been prepared for him, he was angry, and summoned the servant who had the matter in charge. The servant said that he did not suppose, since there were no guests, that he wanted anything very costly. "What sayest thou?" said the master, "dost thou not know that to-day Lucullus dines with Lucullus?" While this matter was much talked of in the city, as was natural, Cicero and Pompey came up to him as he was idling in the forum. Cicero was one of his most intimate friends, and although the matter of the command of the army had led to some coolness between him and Pompey, still they were accustomed to frequent and friendly intercourse and conversation with one another. Accordingly, Cicero saluted him, and asked how he was disposed towards receiving a petition. "Most excellently well," said Lucullus, and invited them to make their petition. "We desire," said Cicero, "to dine with you to-day just as you would have dined by yourself." Lucullus demurred to this, and begged the privilege of selecting a later day, but they refused to allow it, nor would they suffer him to confer with his servants, that he might not order any thing more provided than what was provided for himself. Thus much, however, and no more, they did allow him at his request, namely, to tell one of his servants in their presence that he would dine that day in the Apollo. Now this was the name of one of his costly apartments,

PLUTARCH'S LIVES

καὶ τοῦτο σεσοφισμένος ἐλελήθει τοὺς ἄνδρας. ἐκάστῳ γάρ, ὡς ἔοικε, δειπνητηρίῳ τεταγμένον ἦν τίμημα δείπνου, καὶ χορηγίαν ἰδίαν καὶ παρασκευὴν ἕκαστον εἶχεν, ὥστε τοὺς δούλους ἀκούσαντας, ὅπου βούλεται δειπνεῖν, εἰδέναι, πόσον δαπάνημα καὶ ποῖόν τι κόσμῳ καὶ διαθέσει γενέσθαι δεῖ τὸ δεῖπνον· εἰώθει δὲ δειπνεῖν ἐν τῷ

6 Ἀπόλλωνι πέντε μυριάδων· καὶ τότε τοσούτου τελεσθέντος ἐξέπληξε τοὺς περὶ τὸν Πομπηῖον ἐν τῷ μεγέθει τῆς δαπάνης τὸ τάχος τῆς παρασκευῆς. εἰς ταῦτα μὲν οὖν ὑβριστικῶς ἐχρήτη τῷ πλούτῳ καθάπερ ὄντως αἰχμαλώτῳ καὶ βαρβάρῳ.

XLII. Σπουδῆς δ' ἄξια καὶ λόγου τὰ περὶ τὴν τῶν βιβλίων κατασκευήν. καὶ γὰρ πολλὰ καὶ γεγραμμένα καλῶς συνήγευ, ἧ τε χρήσις ἦν φιλοτιμοτέρα τῆς κτήσεως, ἀνειμένων πᾶσι τῶν βιβλιοθηκῶν, καὶ τῶν περὶ αὐτὰς περιπάτων καὶ σχολαστηρίων ἀκωλύτως ὑποδεχομένων τοὺς Ἕλληνας ὥσπερ εἰς Μουσῶν τι καταγώγιον ἐκεῖσε φοιτῶντας καὶ συνδιημερεύοντας ἀλλήλοις, ἀπὸ τῶν ἄλλων χρειῶν ἀσμένως ἀποτρέχοντας.

2 πολλάκις δὲ καὶ συνεσχόλαζεν αὐτὸς ἐμβάλλων εἰς τοὺς περιπάτους τοῖς φιλολόγοις καὶ τοῖς πολιτικοῖς συνέπραττεν ὅτου δέοιντο· καὶ ὅλως ἐστία καὶ πρυτανεῖον Ἑλληνικὸν ὁ οἶκος ἦν αὐτοῦ τοῖς ἀφικνουμένοις εἰς Ῥώμην. φιλοσοφίαν δὲ πᾶσαν μὲν ἠσπάζετο καὶ πρὸς πᾶσαν εὐμενῆς ἦν καὶ οἰκείος, ἴδιον δὲ τῆς Ἀκαδημείας ἐξ ἀρχῆς and he thus outwitted the men without their knowing it. For each of his dining-rooms, as it seems, had a fixed allowance for the dinner served there, as well as its own special apparatus and equipment, so that his slaves, on hearing where he wished to dine, knew just how much the dinner was to cost, and what were to be its decorations and arrangements. Now the usual cost of a dinner in the Apollo was fifty thousand drachmas, and that was the sum laid out on the present occasion. Pompey was amazed at the speed with which the banquet was prepared, notwithstanding it had cost so much. In these ways, then, Lucullus used his wealth wantonly, as though it were in very truth a Barbarian prisoner-of-war.

LUCULLUS

XLII. But what he did in the establishment of a library deserves warm praise. He got together many books; and they were well written, and his use of them was more honourable to him than his acquisition of them. His libraries were thrown open to all, and the cloisters surrounding them, and the study-rooms, were accessible without restriction to the Greeks, who constantly repaired thither as to an hostelry of the Muses, and spent the day with one another, in glad escape from their other occupations. Lucullus himself also often spent his leisure hours there with them, walking about in the cloisters with their scholars, and he would assist their statesmen in whatever they desired. And in general his house was a home and prytaneium for the Greeks who came to Rome. He was fond of all philosophy, and well-disposed and friendly towards every school, but from the first he cherished a particular and zealous love for the Academy, not

- 3 ἔρωτα καὶ ζῆλον ἔσχεν, οὐ τῆς νέας λεγομένης, καίπερ ἀνθούσης τότε τοῖς Καρνεάδου λόγοις διὰ Φίλωνος, ἀλλὰ τῆς παλαιᾶς, πιθανὸν ἄνδρα 520 καὶ δεινὸν εἰπεῖν τότε προστάτην ἐχούσης τὸν Ἀσκαλωνίτην Ἀντίοχον, ὃν πάσῃ σπουδῇ ποιησάμενος φίλον ὁ Λούκουλλος καὶ συμβιωτὴν ἀντέταττε τοῖς Φίλωνος ἀκροαταῖς, ὧν καὶ
- 4 Κικέρων ἦν. καὶ σύγγραμμά γε πάγκαλον ἐποίησεν εἰς τὴν αἴρεσιν, ἐν ᾧ τὸν ὑπὲρ τῆς καταλήψεως λόγον Λουκούλλῳ περιτέθεικεν, αὐτῷ δὲ τὸν ἐναντίον. Λούκουλλος δ' ἀναγέγραπται τὸ βιβλίον.

Ἦσαν δ', ὥσπερ εἴρηται, φίλοι σφόδρα καὶ κοινωνοὶ τῆς ἐν πολιτείᾳ προαιρέσεως· οὐδὲ γὰρ αὐτὸν πάμπαν ἀπηλλάχει τῆς πολιτείας ἑαυτὸν ὁ

5 Λούκουλλος, ἀλλὰ τὴν ὑπὲρ τοῦ μέγιστος εἶναι καὶ πλείστον δύνασθαι φιλοτιμίαν καὶ ἄμεινον, ὡς οὔτε ἀκίνδυνον οὔτ' ἀνύβριστον οὔσαν, εὐθὺς ἀφῆκε Κράσῳ καὶ Κάτωνι· τούτους γὰρ οἱ τὴν Πομπηίου δύναμιν ὑφορώμενοι προεβάλλοντο τῆς βουλῆς, ἀπολεγομένου τοῦ Λουκούλλου τὰ πρωτεῖα· κατέβαινε δ' εἰς τὴν ἀγορὰν διὰ τοὺς φίλους, εἰς δὲ τὴν σύγκλητον, εἰ Πομπηίου

6 τινὰ δέοι σπουδὴν ἢ φιλοτιμίαν ἐπηρεῦσαι. καὶ τὰς τε διατάξεις, ἃς ἐκεῖνος ἐποίησατο τῶν βασιλέων κρατήσας, ἐξέκρουσε, καὶ νέμησιν τινα τοῖς στρατιώταις αὐτοῦ γράφοντος ἐκώλυσε δοθῆναι συμπράττοντος Κάτωνος, ὥστε Πομπηίου εἰς τὴν

LUCULLUS

the New Academy, so-called, although that school at the time had a vigorous representative of the doctrines of Carneades in Philo, but the Old Academy, which at that time was headed by a persuasive man and powerful speaker in the person of Antiochus of Ascalon. This man Lucullus hastened to make his friend and companion, and arrayed him against the disciples of Philo, of whom Cicero also was one. Indeed, Cicero wrote a noble treatise on the doctrines of this sect, in which he has put the argument in support of "apprehension" into the mouth of Lucullus, and carried the opposing argument himself. The book is entitled "Lucullus."¹

Lucullus and Cicero were, as I have said, ardent friends, and members of the same political party, for Lucullus had not withdrawn himself entirely from political life, although he lost no time in leaving to Crassus and Cato the ambitious struggle for the chief place and the greatest power, since he saw that it involved both peril and ignominy. For those who looked with suspicion upon the power of Pompey, made Crassus and Cato the champions of the senatorial party when Lucullus declined the leadership. But Lucullus would still go to the forum in support of his friends, and also to the Senate, whenever there was need of combating some ambitious scheme of Pompey's. Thus, the dispositions which Pompey made after his conquest of the kings, Lucullus made null and void, and his proposal for a generous distribution of lands to his soldiers, Lucullus, with the co-operation of Cato, prevented from being granted. Pompey therefore

¹ Academicorum Priorum, Liber Secundus, qui inscribitur Lucullus.

PLUTARCH'S LIVES

Κράσσου καὶ Καίσαρος φιλίαν, μᾶλλον δὲ συνωμοσίαν, καταφυγεῖν καὶ πληρώσαντα τὴν πόλιν ὄπλων καὶ στρατιωτῶν βία κυρῶσαι τὰ δόγματα, τοὺς περὶ τὸν Κάτωνα καὶ Λούκουλλον ἐκβαλόντα τῆς ἀγορᾶς.

- 7 Ἀγανακτούντων δὲ τῶν βελτίστων ἐπὶ τοῖς γινομένοις προῆγον οἱ Πομπηϊανοὶ Βέττιόν τινα, συνειληφέναι λέγοντες ἐπιβουλεύοντα Πομπητῶ. κἀκείνος ἀνακρινόμενος ἐν μὲν τῇ συγκλήτῳ κατηγορήσεν ἐτέρων τινῶν, ἐν δὲ τῷ δῆμῳ Λούκουλλον ὠνόμασεν, ὡς ὑπ' ἐκείνου παρεσκευασμένος ἀποκτεῖναι Πομπηϊόν. οὐδεὶς δὲ τῷ λόγῳ προσέσχεν, ἀλλὰ καὶ παραντίκα δῆλος ἦν ὁ ἄνθρωπος ἐπὶ συκοφαντία καὶ διαβολῇ προημένος ὑπ' αὐτῶν, καὶ μᾶλλον ἐφωράθη τὸ πρᾶγμα μετ' ὀλίγας ἡμέρας ριφθέντος ἐκ τῆς εἰρκτῆς νεκροῦ, λεγομένου μὲν αὐτομάτως τεθνάναι, σημεῖα δ' ἀγχόνης καὶ πληγῶν ἔχοντος· ἐδόκει γὰρ ὑπ' αὐτῶν ἀνηρῆσθαι τῶν παρεσκευακῶτων.

- XLIII. Ταῦτα δὴ καὶ μᾶλλον ἀπήγε τῆς πολιτείας τὸν Λούκουλλον. ἐπεὶ δὲ Κικέρων ἐξέπεσε τῆς πόλεως καὶ Κάτων εἰς Κύπρον ἀπεστάλη, παντάπασιν ἐξελύθη. καὶ πρό γε τῆς τελευτῆς λέγεται νοσήσαι τὴν διάνοιαν αὐτῷ κατὰ μικρὸν ἀπομαραινόμενην. Νέπως δὲ Κορνήλιος οὐχ ὑπὸ γήρωσ φησὶν οὐδὲ νόσου παραλλάξαι τὸν Λούκουλλον, ἀλλὰ φαρμάκοις ὑπὸ τινος τῶν ἀπελευθέρων Καλλισθένους διαφθαρέντα· τὰ δὲ φάρμακα δοθῆναι μὲν, ὡς ἀγαπῶτο μᾶλλον ὁ Καλλισθένης ὑπ' αὐτοῦ, τοιαύτην ἔχειν δοκοῦντα τὴν δύναμιν, ἐκστήσαι δὲ καὶ κατακλύσαι τὸν λογισμὸν, ὥστ'
- 608

LUCULLUS

took refuge in an alliance, or rather a conspiracy, with Crassus and Caesar, and by filling the city with his armed soldiery and expelling from the forum the partisans of Cato and Lucullus, got his measures ratified.

As these proceedings were resented by the nobles, the partisans of Pompey produced a certain Vettius, whom, as they declared, they had caught plotting against the life of Pompey. So the man was examined in the Senate, where he accused sundry other persons, but before the people he named Lucullus as the man who had engaged him to kill Pompey. However, no one believed his story, nay, it was at once clear that the fellow had been put forward by the partisans of Pompey to make false and malicious charges, and the fraud was made all the plainer when, a few days afterwards, his dead body was cast out of the prison. It was said, indeed, that he had died a natural death, but he bore the marks of throttling and violence, and the opinion was that he had been taken off by the very men who had engaged his services.

XLIII. Of course this induced Lucullus to withdraw even more from public life. And when Cicero was banished from the city, and Cato was sent out to Cyprus, he retired altogether. Even before his death, it is said that his understanding was affected and gradually faded away. But Cornelius Nepos says that Lucullus lost his mind not from old age, nor yet from disease, but that he was disabled by drugs administered to him by one of his freedmen, Callisthenes; that the drugs were given him by Callisthenes in order to win more of his love, in the belief that they had such a power, but they drove him from his senses and overwhelmed his reason

PLUTARCH'S LIVES

ἔτι ζώντος αὐτοῦ τὴν οὐσίαν διοικεῖν τὸν ἀδελφόν. οὐ μὴν ἀλλ' ὡς ἀπέθανε, καθάπερ ἂν¹ ἐν ἀκμῇ τῆς στρατηγίας καὶ τῆς πολιτείας αὐτοῦ τελευτήσαντος, ὁ δῆμος ἠχθέσθη καὶ συνέδραμε, καὶ τὸ σῶμα κομισθὲν εἰς ἀγορὰν ὑπὸ τῶν εὐγενεστάτων νεανίσκων ἐβιάζετο θάπτειν ἐν τῷ πεδίῳ τοῦ

3 Ἄρεως, ὅπου καὶ Σύλλαν ἔθαψεν. οὐδενὸς δὲ τοῦτο προσδοκήσαντος, οὐδὲ ῥαδίας οὔσης τῆς παρασκευῆς, ὁ ἀδελφὸς αὐτοῦ δεόμενος καὶ παραιτούμενος ἔπεισεν ἐπιτρέψαι τὴν παρεσκευασμένην ἐν τῷ περὶ Τοῦσκλον ἀγρῷ τοῦ νεκροῦ κηδεῖαν γενέσθαι. πολὺν δ' οὐδ' αὐτὸς προσεβίω χρόνον, ἀλλ' ὡς ἡλικία καὶ δόξη μικρὸν ἀπελείφθη, καὶ τῷ χρόνῳ τῆς τελευτῆς, φιλαδελφότατος γενόμενος.

KIMΩΝΟΣ ΚΑΙ ΛΟΥΚΟΥΛΛΟΥ ΣΥΓΚΡΙΣΙΣ

Ι. Μάλιστα δ' ἂν τις εὐδαιμονίσειε τοῦ τέλους 521 Λούκουλλον, ὅτι πρὸ τῆς μεταβολῆς, ἦν ἤδη κατὰ τῆς πολιτείας ἐτεκταίνετο τοῖς ἐμφυλίοις πολέμοις τὸ πεπρωμένον, ἔφθη προαποθανῶν καὶ καταλύσας ἐν νοσοῦσῃ μὲν, ἔτι δ' ἐλευθέρᾳ τῇ πατρίδι τὸν βίον. καὶ τοῦτό γε πάντων αὐτῷ

2 πρὸς Κίμωνα κοινότατόν ἐστι. καὶ γὰρ ἐκεῖνος οὐπω συντεταραγμένων τῶν Ἑλληνικῶν, ἀλλ' ἀκμὴν ἔχοντων ἐτελεύτησεν, ἐπὶ στρατοπέδου μέντοι καὶ στρατηγῶν, οὐκ ἀπειρηκῶς οὐδ' ἀλύων, οὐδὲ τῶν ὄπλων καὶ τῶν στρατηγιῶν καὶ τῶν

¹ ἂν supplied by Reiske.

LUCULLUS

so that even while he was still alive, his brother managed his property. However, when he died,¹ the people grieved just as much as if his death had come at the culmination of his military and political services, and flocked together, and tried to compel the young nobles who had carried the body into the forum to bury it in the Campus Martius, where Sulla also had been buried. But no one had expected this, and preparations for it were not easy, and so his brother, by prayers and supplications, succeeded in persuading them to suffer the burial to take place on the estate at Tusculum, where preparations for it had been made. Nor did he himself long survive Lucullus, but, as in age and reputation he came a little behind him, so did he also in the time of his death, having been a most affectionate brother.

COMPARISON OF LUCULLUS AND CIMON

I. ONE might deem Lucullus especially happy in his end, from the fact that he died before that constitutional change had come, which fate was already contriving by means of the civil wars. His country was in a distempered state when he laid down his life, but still she was free. And in this respect, more than any other, he is like Cimon. For Cimon also died before Greece was confounded, and while she was at the acme of her power. He died, however, in the field, and at the head of an army, not exhausted or of a wandering mind, nor yet

¹ About 57 B.C.

PLUTARCH'S LIVES

τροπαίων ἔπαθλον ποιούμενος εὐωχίας καὶ πότους, ὡσπερ Πλάτων ἐπισκώπτει τοὺς περὶ τὸν Ὀρφέα, τοῖς εὖ βεβιωκόσι φάσκοντας ἀποκείσθαι γέρας
 3 ἐν ἄδου μέθην αἰώνιον. σχολή μὲν οὖν καὶ ἡσυχία καὶ διατριβὴ περὶ λόγους ἡδονὴν τινα καὶ θεωρίαν ἔχοντας εὐπρεπέστατον ἀνδρὶ πρεσβύτῃ καὶ πεπαυμένῳ πολέμων καὶ πολιτείας παραμύθιον· τὸ δ' ἐφ' ἡδονήν, ὡς τέλος, καταστρέψαντα τὰς καλὰς πράξεις ἤδη λοιπὸν Ἀφροδίσια τῶν πολέμων καὶ στρατηγιῶν ἄγοντα παίζειν καὶ τρυφᾶν οὐκ ἄξια τῆς καλῆς Ἀκαδημείας, οὐδὲ τὸν Ξενοκράτη ζηλοῦντος, ἀλλ' ἐγκεκλικότος
 4 πρὸς τὸν Ἐπίκουρον. ὃ καὶ θαυμαστόν ἐστιν ὑπεναντίως γὰρ ἢ νεότης τοῦ μὲν ἐπίψογος καὶ ἀκόλαστος γεγονέαι δοκεῖ, τοῦ δὲ πεπαιδευμένη καὶ σώφρων. βελτίων οὖν ὧ πρὸς τὸ βέλτιον ἢ μεταβολὴ χρηστοτέρα γὰρ ἢ φύσις, ἐν ἣ γηρᾷ μὲν τὸ χειρόν, ἐπακμάζει δὲ τὸ ἄμεινον.

Καὶ μὴν ὁμοίως γε πλουτήσαντες οὐχ ὁμοίως
 5 διέθεντο τὸν πλοῦτον. οὐ γὰρ ἄξιον ὁμοιωσαὶ τῷ νοτίῳ τείχει τῆς ἀκροπόλεως, ὃ τοῖς ὑπὸ Κίμωνος κομισθεῖσιν ἐτελέσθη χρήμασι, τοὺς ἐν Νέα πόλει θαλάμους καὶ τὰς περικλύστους ἀπόψεις, ἃς Λούκουλλος ἀπὸ τῶν βαρβαρικῶν ἐξωκοδόμει λαφύρων· οὐδέ γε τῇ Κίμωνος τραπέξῃ τὴν Λουκούλλου παραβαλεῖν, τῇ δημοκρατικῇ καὶ φιλανθρώπῳ τὴν πολυτελεῆ καὶ σατραπικῇν. ἢ μὲν γὰρ ἀπὸ μικρᾶς δαπάνης πολλοὺς καθ' ἡμέραν διέτρεφεν, ἢ δ' εἰς ὀλίγους τρυφῶντας ἀπὸ πολλῶν

COMPARISON OF LUCULLUS AND CIMON

making feastings and revellings the crowning prize for arms and campaigns and trophies. Plato¹ ban- ters the followers of Orpheus for declaring that for those who have lived rightly, there is laid up in Hades a treasure of everlasting intoxication. Leisure, no doubt, and quiet, and the pursuit of pleasantly speculative learning, furnish a most fitting solace for a man of years who has retired from wars and politics. But to divert fair achievements to pleasure as their final end, and then to sport and wanton at the head of Aphrodite's train, as a sequel to wars and fightings, was not worthy of the noble Academy, nor yet of one who would follow Xenocrates, but rather of one who leaned towards Epicurus. And this is the more astonishing, because, contrariwise, Cimon seems to have been of ill repute and unrestrained in his youth, while Lucullus was disciplined and sober. Better, surely, is the man in whom the change is for the better; for it argues a more wholesome nature when its evil withers and its good ripens.

And further, though both alike were wealthy, they did not make a like use of their wealth. There is no comparing the south wall of the Acropolis, which was completed with the moneys brought home by Cimon, with the palaces and sea-washed Bel- videres at Neapolis, which Lucullus built out of the spoils of the Barbarians. Nor can the table of Cimon be likened to that of Lucullus; the one was democratic and charitable, the other sumptuous and oriental. The one, at slight outlay, gave daily sus- tenance to many; the other, at large cost, was prepared for a few luxurious livers. It may be said,

¹ Republic, ii. p. 363.

παρεσκευάζετο χρημάτων. εἰ μὴ νῆ Δία τῶν πραγμάτων ἐποίει διαφορὰν ὁ χρόνος· ἄδηλον γάρ, εἰ καὶ Κίμων ἀπὸ τῶν πράξεων καὶ στρατηγιῶν εἰς ἀπόλεμον καὶ ἀπολίτευτον γῆρας ἀφείδ αὐτὸν ἔτι μᾶλλον ἂν ἐχρήσατο σοβαρᾶ καὶ πρὸς ἡδονὴν ἀνειμένη διαίτη· καὶ γὰρ φιλοπότης καὶ πανηγυρικός καὶ τὰ πρὸς γυναῖκας, ὡς προεί-
 7 ρηται, διαβεβλημένος. αἱ δὲ περὶ τὰς πράξεις καὶ τοὺς ἀγῶνας κατορθώσεις ἡδονὰς ἑτέρας ἔχουσαι τῶν χειρόνων ἐπιθυμιῶν ἀσχολίαν ποιούσι καὶ λήθην ταῖς πολιτικαῖς καὶ φιλοτίμοις φύσεσιν. εἰ γοῦν καὶ Λούκουλλος ἐτελεύτησεν ἀγωνιζόμενος καὶ στρατηγῶν, οὐδ' ἂν ὁ ψογερώτατος καὶ φιλομεμφότατος εὐρεῖν μοι δοκεῖ διαβολὴν ἐπ' αὐτόν. καὶ ταῦτα μὲν περὶ τῆς διαίτης.

II. Ἐν δὲ τοῖς πολεμικοῖς ὅτι μὲν ἀμφότεροι καὶ κατὰ γῆν καὶ κατὰ θάλασσαν ἀγαθοὶ γεγονασιν ἀγωνισταὶ δῆλον· ὥσπερ δὲ τῶν ἀθλητῶν τοὺς ἡμέρα μιᾶ πάλῃ καὶ παγκρατίῳ στεφανομένους ἔθει τινὲ παραδοξονίκας καλοῦσιν, οὕτω Κίμων ἐν ἡμέρα μιᾶ πεζομαχίας καὶ ναυμαχίας ἅμα τροπαίῳ στεφανώσας τὴν Ἑλλάδα δίκαιός ἐστιν ἔχειν τινὰ προεδρίαν ἐν τοῖς στρατηγοῖς.
 2 καὶ μὴν Λουκούλλῳ μὲν ἡ πατρίς, Κίμων δὲ τῆ πατρίδι τὴν ἡγεμονίαν περιέθηκε. καὶ ὁ μὲν ἀρχούσῃ τῶν συμμάχων προσεκτήσατο τὰ τῶν πολεμίων, ὁ δ' ἄλλοις ἐπομένην παραλαβὼν ἅμα καὶ τῶν συμμάχων ἄρχειν καὶ τῶν πολεμίων κρατεῖν ἐποίησε, Πέρσας μὲν ἀναγκάσας ἡττη- 522
 θέντας ἐκβῆναι τῆς θαλάσσης, Λακεδαιμονίους δὲ

COMPARISON OF LUCULLUS AND CIMON

indeed, that the difference in state was due to the difference in time. For it is at least possible that Cimon also, if he had retired after his active campaigns to an old age which knew neither war nor politics, might have led an even more ostentatious and pleasure-loving life. He was fond of wine and given to display, and his relations with women, as I have said before,¹ were scandalous. But success in strenuous achievement, affording as it does a higher pleasure, gives public-spirited and ambitious natures no time to indulge the baser appetites, which are forgotten. At any rate, if Lucullus also had ended his days in active military command, not even the most carping and censorious spirit, I think, could have brought accusation against him. Thus much concerning their manner of life.

II. In war, it is plain that both were good fighters, both on land and sea. But just as those athletes who win crowns in wrestling and the pancratium on a single day are called, by custom, "Victors-extraordinary," so Cimon, who in a single day crowned Greece with the trophies of a land and sea victory, may justly have a certain pre-eminence among generals. And further, it was his country which conferred imperial power upon Lucullus, whereas Cimon conferred it upon his. The one added his foreign conquests to a country which already ruled her allies; the other found his country obeying others, and gave her command over her allies and victory over her foreign foes, by defeating the Persians and driving them from the sea, and by persuading the Lacedaemonians voluntarily to

¹ See Cimon, iv. 8.

- 3 πείσας ἐκόντας ἐκστήναι. εἰ τοίνυν μέγιστον ἔργον ἡγεμόνος εὐπείθειαν ἐργάσασθαι δι' εὐνοίας,¹ Λούκουλλος μὲν ὑπὸ τῶν στρατιωτῶν κατεφρονήθη, Κίμων δ' ὑπὸ τῶν συμμάχων ἐθανμάσθη· παρ' οὗ μὲν γὰρ ἀπέστησαν, πρὸς δὲ μετέστησαν. καὶ ὁ μὲν ὦν ἄρχων ἐξῆλθεν, ὑπὸ τούτων ἀπολειφθεὶς ἐπανῆλθεν, ὁ δὲ μεθ' ὧν ἐτέροις ποιήσων τὸ προσταττόμενον ἐξεπέμφθη, τούτοις αὐτὸς διδοὺς τὸ παράγγελμα κατέπλευσε, τρία τὰ πάντων δυσκολώτατα διαπεπραγμένος ὁμοῦ τῇ πόλει, πρὸς μὲν τοὺς πολεμίους εἰρήνην, παρὰ δὲ τῶν συμμάχων ἡγεμονίαν, πρὸς δὲ Λακεδαιμονίους ὁμόνοιαν.
- 4 Μεγάλας τοίνυν ἐπιχειρήσαντες ἀμφότεροι καταλύειν ἡγεμονίας καὶ καταστρέφειν τὴν Ἀσίαν πᾶσαν ἀτελεῖς ἐγένοντο τῶν πράξεων, ὁ μὲν καθάπαξ διὰ τὴν τύχην· ἐτελεύτησε γὰρ στρατηγῶν καὶ εὐημερῶν· τὸν δ' οὐ παντελῶς ἄν τις ἐξέλοιτο τῆς παρ' αὐτὸν αἰτίας, εἴτ' ἠγνόησεν εἴτ' οὐκ ἐθεράπευσε τὰς ἐν τῷ στρατιωτικῷ διαφορὰς καὶ μέμψεις, ἀφ' ὧν εἰς τηλικαύτας
- 5 ἀπεχθείας προῆλθεν. ἢ τοῦτό γε καὶ πρὸς Κίμωνα κοινόν ἐστι· καὶ γὰρ ἐκείνον ὑπήγαγόν τε εἰς δίκασι οἱ πολῖται καὶ τελευτῶντες ἐξωστράκισαν, ἕν' αὐτοῦ δέκα ἐτῶν, ὡς φησὶν ὁ Πλάτων, τῆς φωνῆς μὴ ἀκούσωσιν. αἱ γὰρ ἀριστοκρατικαὶ φύσεις ὀλίγα τοῖς πολλοῖς συνάδουσι καὶ πρὸς ἡδονὴν ἔχουσι, τὰ δὲ πολλὰ προσβιαζόμεναι τῷ κατευθύνειν διαστρεφομένους ἀνιῶσιν, ὥσπερ οἱ τῶν ἰατρῶν δεσμοί, καίπερ εἰς τὰ κατὰ φύσιν relinquish the command. Granted that it is the most important task of a leader to secure prompt obedience through good will, Lucullus was despised by his own soldiers, while Cimon was admired by the allies. His soldiers deserted the one; the allies came over to the other. The one came back home abandoned by those whom he commanded when he set out; the other was sent out with allies to do the commands of others, but before he sailed home he himself gave commands to those allies, having successfully secured for his city three of the most difficult objects at once, namely, peace with the enemy, leadership of the allies, and concord with the Lacedaemonians.

¹ εὐνοίας with S: εὐνοϊαν.

COMPARISON OF LUCULLUS AND CIMON

Again, both attempted to subvert great empires and to subdue all Asia, and both left their work unfinished: Cimon through ill fortune pure and simple, for he died at the head of his army and at the height of his success; but Lucullus one cannot altogether acquit of blame, whether he was ignorant of, or would not attend to the grievances and complaints among his soldiery, in consequence of which he became so bitterly hated. Or perhaps this has its counterpart in the life of Cimon, for he was brought to trial by his fellow citizens and finally ostracised, in order that for ten years, as Plato says,¹ they might not hear his voice. For aristocratic natures are little in accord with the multitude, and seldom please it, but by so often using force to rectify its aberrations, they vex and annoy it, just as physicians' bandages vex and annoy, although they bring the dislocated members into their natural

¹ Gorgias, p. 516.

ἄγοντες τὰς παραρθήσεις. ταύτης μὲν οὖν ἴσως ἀπαλλακτέον τῆς αἰτίας ἐκάτερον.

III. Πολὺ δ' ὁ Λούκουλλος προῆλθε τῷ πολέμῳ τὸν τε Ταῦρον ὑπερβαλὼν στρατοπέδῳ Ῥωμαίων πρῶτος, καὶ τὸν Τίγριν διαβὰς καὶ τὰ βασίλεια τῆς Ἀσίας ἐν ὄψει τῶν βασιλέων, Τιγρανόκερτα καὶ Κάβειρα καὶ Σινώπην καὶ
 2 Νίσιβιν, ἐλὼν καὶ καταφλέξας, καὶ τὰ μὲν βόρεια μέχρι Φάσιδος, τὰ δ' ἔφα μέχρι Μηδίας, τὰ δὲ πρὸς νότον καὶ τὴν ἐρυθρὰν θάλασσαν οἰκειωσάμενος διὰ τῶν Ἀραβικῶν βασιλέων, συντρίψας δὲ τὰς δυνάμεις τῶν βασιλέων, ἀπολειφθεὶς δὲ
 3 μόνου τοῦ τὰ σώματα λαβεῖν, ὥσπερ θηρίων εἰς ἐρημίας καὶ ὕλας ἀστιβεῖς καὶ ἀβάτους ἀποδιδρασκόντων. τεκμήριον δὲ μέγα· Πέρσαι μὲν γὰρ ὡς οὐδὲν μέγα πεπονθότες ὑπὸ Κίμωνος εὐθύς ἀντετάττοντο τοῖς Ἕλλησι, καὶ τὴν γε πολλὴν δύναμιν αὐτῶν ἐν Αἰγύπτῳ κρατήσαντες διέφθειραν, Τιγράνου δὲ καὶ Μιθριδάτου μετὰ Λούκουλλον οὐδὲν ἄλλο ἔργον ἐγένετο, ἀλλ' ὁ μὲν ἀσθενὴς ἤδη καὶ συγκεκομμένος ὑπὸ τῶν πρώτων ἀγῶνων οὐδ' ἅπαξ ἐτόλμησε δεῖξαι Πομπηίῳ τὴν δύναμιν ἔξω τοῦ χάρακος, ἀλλὰ φυγῶν εἰς Βόσπορον
 4 κατέβη κάκει κατέστρεψε, Τιγράνης δ' αὐτὸς ἑαυτὸν γυμνὸν καὶ ἄνοπλον φέρων ὑπέρριψε Πομπηίῳ, καὶ τὸ διάδημα τῆς κεφαλῆς ἀφελόμενος ἔθηκε πρὸ τῶν ποδῶν, οὐ τοῖς ἑαυτοῦ κολακεύων Πομπηίου, ἀλλὰ τοῖς ὑπὸ Λουκούλλου τεθριαμβευμένοις. ἠγάπησε γοῦν ἀπολαμβάνων τὰ σύμβολα τῆς βασιλείας ὡς ἀφηρημένος πρότερον.

COMPARISON OF LUCULLUS AND CIMON

position. Perhaps, then, both come off about alike on this count.

III. But Lucullus was much the greater in war. He was the first Roman to cross the Taurus with an army; he passed the Tigris and captured and burned the royal cities of Asia,—Tigranocerta, Cabira, Sinopé, and Nisibis, before the eyes of their kings; he made his own the regions to the north as far as the Phasis, to the east as far as Media, and to the south as far as the Red Sea, through the assistance of the Arabian kings; he annihilated the forces of the hostile kings, and failed only in the capture of their persons, since like wild beasts they fled away into deserts and trackless and impenetrable forests. Strong proof of his superiority is seen in this, that the Persians, since they had suffered no great harm at the hands of Cimon, straightway arrayed themselves against the Greeks, and overwhelmed and destroyed that large force of theirs in Egypt;¹ whereas, after Lucullus, Tigranes and Mithridates availed nothing: the latter, already weak and disabled by his first struggles, did not once dare to show Pompey his forces outside their camp, but fled away to the Bosphorus, and there put an end to his life; as for Tigranes, he hastened to throw himself, while unrobed and unarmed, at the feet of Pompey, and taking the diadem from off his head, laid it there upon the ground, flattering Pompey thus not with his own exploits, but with those for which Lucullus had celebrated a triumph. At any rate, he was as much delighted to get back the insignia of his royalty as though he had been robbed of them before. Greater therefore is the general, as is the ¹ 454 B.C. See Thucydides, i. 109 f.

PLUTARCH'S LIVES

μείζων οὖν στρατηγός, ὥσπερ ἀθλητής, ὁ τῷ μεθ' ἑαυτὸν ἀσθενέστερον παραδοῦς τὸν ἀντίπαλον.

- 5 Ἔτι τοίνυν Κίμων μὲν συντετριμμένην τὴν βασιλέως δύναμιν καὶ τὸ Περσῶν φρόνημα συνεσταλμένον ἤπταις μεγάλαις καὶ ἀπαύστοις φυγαῖς ὑπὸ Θεμιστοκλέους καὶ Πausανίου καὶ Λεωτυχίδου καταλαβὼν ἐπενέβη καὶ ὑποπεπτωκότων καὶ προηττημένων ταῖς ψυχαῖς τὰ σώματα ῥαδίως ἐνίκησε, Λουκούλλῳ δὲ Τιγράνης ἀήττητος 523 ἐκ πολλῶν ἀγώνων καὶ μέγα φρονῶν συνέπεσε.
- 6 πλήθει δ' οὐδ' ἄξιον παραβαλεῖν τοῖς ἐπὶ Λούκουλλον συνελθοῦσι τοὺς ὑπὸ Κίμωνος κρατηθέντας. ὥστε πάντῃ μεταλαμβάνοντι δυσδιαίτητον εἶναι τὴν κρίσιν, ἐπεὶ καὶ τὸ δαιμόνιον ἀμφοτέροις ἔοικεν εὐμενές γενέσθαι, τῷ μὲν ἂν χρὴ κατορθοῦν, τῷ δ' ἂν φυλάττεσθαι χρὴ προμηνῦον, ὥστε καὶ τὴν παρὰ τῶν θεῶν ψῆφον αὐτοῖς ὑπάρχειν ὡς ἀγαθοῖς καὶ θείοις τὴν φύσιν ἀμφοτέροις.

COMPARISON OF LUCULLUS AND CIMON

athlete, who hands over his antagonist to his successor in a weaker plight.

Moreover, and still further, Cimon made his onsets when the power of the king had been broken, and the pride of the Persians humbled by great defeats and incessant routs at the hands of Themistocles, Pausanias, and Leotychides, and easily conquered the bodies of men whose spirits had been defeated beforehand and lay prone. But when Tigranes encountered Lucullus, he had known no defeat in many battles, and was in exultant mood. In point of numbers also, those who were overpowered by Cimon are not worthy of comparison with those who united against Lucullus. Therefore, one who takes everything into consideration finds it hard to reach a decision. Heaven seems to have been kindly disposed to both, directing the one as to what he must perform, and the other as to what he must avoid. Both, therefore, may be said to have received the vote of the gods as noble and god-like natures.

A PARTIAL DICTIONARY OF PROPER NAMES

A

- Acestodorus, possibly the Acestodorus of Megalopolis, of unknown date, author of a work "On Cities."
- Achaia, a province in the north of Peloponnesus, seat of the Achaean League (280-146 B.C.). In 167 B.C., the Romans deported 1000 Achaeans to Italy, where they were held for seventeen years. Among them was the historian Polybius. The name Achaia was afterwards given to the whole of southern Greece as a Roman province.
- Acharnae, the largest deme, or township, of Attica, some eight miles to the north of Athens.
- Adiabéné, the western province of Assyria, lying along the Tigris river.
- Aeolian Isles, a group of islands lying between Sicily and Italy (Lucania).
- Aeschines the Socratic, a disciple of Socrates, and author of Socratic dialogues.
- Agessilaüs, king of Sparta 398-361 B.C.
- Albania, a country lying between Armenia, the Caspian Sea, and the Caucasus mountains, to the east of Iberia.
- Allia, an insignificant stream, joining the Tiber about eleven miles above Rome, from the east.
- Amisus, a city of Pontus (or Paphlagonia), on the southern shore of the Euxine Sea, some one hundred miles east of Sinopé.
- Ammon, a Libyan divinity, identified with Zeus and Jupiter. His most famous oracle was in an oasis of the Libyan desert.
- Amphiaräus, a mythical seer and prophet, king of Argos, who perished in the expedition of the Seven against Thebes.
- Anaxagoras, of Clazomenae, in Ionian Asia Minor, influential at Athens as an advanced thinker from about 460 to 432 B.C., when the enemies of Pericles secured his banishment.
- Andocides, an Athenian orator, prominent 415-390 B.C. He betrayed the oligarchical party, incurring its hatred, and vainly tried to win the favour of the democratic party.
- Andros, the most northerly island of the Cyclades group, S.E. of Euboea.
- Anio, a large river of Latium, rising in the Apennines, and joining the Tiber about three miles above Rome, from the east.
- Antiochus the Great, king of Syria 223-187 B.C.
- Antiochus the philosopher, of Ascalon, pupil of Philo in the school of the Academy, a friend of Lucullus, and a teacher of Cicero. He died in 68 B.C.
- Antipater, regent of Macedonia after the death of Alexander (322 B.C.), victor over the confederate Greeks at Crannon, in Thessaly, 322. He died in 319.

DICTIONARY OF PROPER NAMES

- Araxes, a large river rising in Armenia, and flowing east into the Caspian Sea.
- Arbela, an Assyrian town near which (at the village of Gaugamela) Darius suffered final defeat at the hands of Alexander, in 331 B.C.
- Archelaüs, of Miletus, the natural philosopher, said to have been a pupil of Anaxagoras, and a teacher of Socrates.
- Archidamus, king of Sparta from 361 to 338 B.C., when he went to the aid of the Tarentines in Italy, and was killed in battle.
- Archon Eponymous, the first of the board of nine archons at Athens, so called, after the Roman conquest, because the year was registered in his name.
- Aristogeiton, slayer, with Harmodius, of Hipparchus, the brother of the Athenian tyrant Hippias, in 514 B.C. The two "tyrannicides" were afterwards honoured as patriots and martyrs.
- Ariston of Ceos, head of the Peripatetic school of philosophy at Athens about 225 B.C. (pp. 9, 217).
- Ariston the philosopher (p. 355), of Chios, a Stoic, pupil of Zeno. In his later life he taught doctrines of the Cynic school. He flourished about 260 B.C., and is often confounded with Ariston of Ceos.
- Aristoxenus the musician, a pupil of Aristotle, and a philosopher of the Peripatetic school.
- Armenia, a country lying north of Mesopotamia and Assyria, between the upper Euphrates and Media.
- Artaxata, the ancient capital of Armenia, on the river Araxes. See Tigranocerta.
- Artemisia, queen of Halicarnassus, vassal of Xerxes, who distinguished herself in the battle of Salamis.
- Asopis, a mythical personage, mother of Mentor by Heracles.
- Atilius, M. Atilius Regulus, consul for the second time in 256 B.C., when he was defeated and taken prisoner by the Carthaginians.
- Atropatené, a province of Media, to the east of Armenia.
- Attalus, the name of three kings of Pergamum, in Asia Minor.

B

- Bithynia, a country of N.W. Asia Minor, lying east of the Propontis, and along the coast of the Euxine Sea.
- Boëdromion, the third month in the Attic calendar, corresponding nearly to our September.
- Brundisium, an important city on the eastern coast of Italy (Calabria), with a fine harbour. It was the natural point of departure from Italy to the East, and was the chief naval station of the Romans in the Adriatic Sea.

C

- Cabeira (or Cabira), a city of Pontus, in the northern part of Asia Minor.
- Caepio, Q. Servilius, consul in 106 B.C., receiving the province of Gallia Narbonensis, where, in the following year, on the 6th of October, his army was utterly annihilated by the Cimbri.
- Callisthenes, of Olynthus, a relative and pupil of Aristotle, author of a Hellenica, or History of Greece, from 387 to 357 B.C. He accompanied Alexander the Great as historian of the expedition, the end of which he did not live to see.
- Cappadocia, a district in eastern Asia Minor, south of Pontus, and north of Cilicia.
- Carneades, of Cyrené, head of the Academy at Athens in 156 B.C. (when he was one of an embassy of philosophers to Rome) and until his death in 129 B.C. He was famous for the persuasive force of his eloquence.

DICTIONARY OF PROPER NAMES

- Chaeronela, a town commanding the entrance from Phocis into Boeotia, celebrated for the battles fought in its neighbourhood. Here Philip of Macedon defeated the allied Greeks in 338 B.C.
- Chalcedon, a city of Bithynia, at the entrance of the Euxine Sea, opposite Byzantium.
- Chaldaeans, a general name for the inhabitants of Babylonia.
- Charon of Lampsacus, a "logographer," a predecessor of Herodotus, who wrote a history of Persia in annalistic form.
- Chelidonian Isles, a group of islands off the coast of Pamphylia, in southern Asia Minor.
- Chersonese (i.e. peninsula), here (p. 447) of the Thracian Chersonese, extending in a S.W. direction into the Aegean Sea west of the Hellespont.
- Cilicia, a country in southern Asia Minor, extending along the Mediterranean between Pamphylia and Syria.
- Cimbri, a northern tribe which, joining with the Teutones, invaded southern Europe. They were at last annihilated by Marius in 101 B.C.
- Citium, a town on the southern coast of Cyprus.
- Cleidemus, the oldest annalist of Athens, who flourished during the closing years of the fifth and the first half of the fourth century B.C.
- Cleisthenes, the Athenian aristocrat who introduced the democratic reforms which followed the expulsion of the tyrants in 510 B.C.
- Cleitarchus (Clitarchus), a historian who accompanied Alexander on his expedition to the East, and wrote a rhetorical history of it. He was the son of Deinon.
- Cleonae, a city nearly midway between Argos and Corinth in Peloponnesus. The Nemean games were celebrated in its territory.
- Cnidus, a Dorian city in the S.W. of Caria, in south-western Asia Minor.
- Colchis, a district at the eastern extremity of the Euxine Sea, north of Armenia.
- Colophon, one of the cities of Ionian Asia Minor.
- Corcyra, an island in the Ionian Sea, opposite Epeirus, the modern Corfu.
- Cos, an island off the S.W. coast of Caria, opposite Cnidus.
- Crannon, a town in central Thessaly, the seat of the wealthy family of the Scopadae.
- Craterus the Macedonian, a half-brother of Antigonus Gonatas, the king of Macedonia (ob. 239 B.C.), who compiled historical documents, such as decrees and other published inscriptions, bearing on the history of Athens.
- Critias, one of the "thirty tyrants" (404-403 B.C.), like Alcibiades a follower of Socrates, author of tragedies, and elegiac poems on political subjects.
- Cronus, the father of Zeus, identified with the Roman Saturnus.
- Curius, Manius Curius Dentatus, consul in 290 B.C., in which year he brought the long war with the Samnites to a close and reduced the revolted Sabines. In 275 B.C., he defeated Pyrrhus at Beneventum. He celebrated two triumphs in 290, and one in 275.
- Cyanean Isles, two islands at mouth of the Bosphorus, entrance into the Euxine; the clashing isles of myth.
- Cyné, an Aeoian city on the coast of Asia Minor, S.E. of Leta.
- Cyrené, a Greek city on northern coast of Africa; commercial relations with Carthage, Greece, and Egypt.
- Cyzicus, a city on the southern shore of the Propontis, in Mysia; were strongly situated on the neck of a peninsula.

DICTIONARY OF PROPER NAMES

D

- Damastes, of Sigeium in the Troad, a historian contemporary with Herodotus, and author, besides many other works, of a genealogy of the Greeks who fought at Troy.
- Deceleia, a mountain citadel of Attica, about fourteen miles from Athens towards Boeotia.
- Deinon (Dinon), of Colophon, author of a History of Persia, father of Cleitarchus the historian of Alexander's expedition.
- Demetrius of Phalerum, regent at Athens for Cassander 317-307 B.C., a voluminous writer on history, politics, poetry, and philosophy.
- Diodorus the Topographer (Periegetes), of Athens (probably), a contemporary of Alexander the Great, wrote on the deines and monuments of Attica.
- Dion, of Syracuse, an ardent disciple of Plato, master of Syracuse after the expulsion of Dionysius II, assassinated in 353 B.C.
- Dodona, a town in Epeirus, seat of the most ancient oracle of Zeus.

E

- Elaea, an Aeolic city of Asia Minor, the port for Pergamum.
- Epaminondas, Theban general and statesman, friend of Pelopidas, fell in the battle of Mantinea, 362 B.C.
- Ephesus, one of the twelve Ionian cities, in Lydia, Asia Minor, at the mouth of the river Caÿster.
- Ephors, five chief magistrates at Sparta elected annually. The first Ephor gave his name to the year, like the Athenian Archon Eponymous.
- Ephorus, of Cymé, pupil of Isocrates, author of a highly rhetorical history of Greece from the "Dorian Invasion" down to 340 B.C., in which year he died.
- Epicurus, founder of the philo-

- sophical school named from him, born in Samos, 342 B.C., died at Athens, 270 B.C.
- Eratosthenes, of Cyrené, librarian at Alexandria, most distinguished as geographer and chronologist, a writer also on philosophy and ethics, 275-194 B.C.
- Eumenes, king of Pergamum in Asia Minor from 197 to 159 B.C., and like his father (Attalus I), a persistent friend of Rome.
- Eurymedon, a river flowing through Pamphylia, in southern Asia Minor, into the Mediterranean.

F

- Fabricius, C. Fabricius Luscinus, like Curius and Atilius a representative of the sterling virtues of the more ancient times, ambassador to Pyrrhus at Tarentum after the disastrous battle of Heracleia, 280 B.C., consul in 278 B.C., censor in 275, with the severity of a Cato.

G

- Gabinian way, Via Gabina (earlier called Via Tiburtina), leading eastwards from Rome to Tibur (Tivoli).
- Galatia, a district in central Asia Minor.
- Gordyené, a district of southern Armenia, lying east of the river Tigris.
- Gorgias, of Leontini in Sicily, famous for his eloquence, came on an embassy to Athens in 427 B.C., when sixty years of age, and spent the rest of his life in that and neighbouring cities, amassing great wealth as a paid teacher of rhetoric.
- Granicus, a river of Troas, flowing north into the Propontis.

H

- Hamilcar, surnamed Barcas, implacable enemy of the Romans,

DICTIONARY OF PROPER NAMES

- father of Hannibal, and founder of the Carthaginian empire in Spain, died in 229 B.C.
- Hecatombæon, the first month of the Attic calendar, corresponding nearly to our July.
- Helots, a name given to the original inhabitants of Laconia who had lost both land and freedom. They were state slaves. See Perioeci.
- Heracleia (p. 423), called Pontica, to distinguish it from the many other cities of the same name, a city of Bithynia (or Phrygia Minor) on the southern shore of the Euxine Sea.
- Heracleides, called Ponticus from his birth in Heracleia Pontica, a pupil of Plato and Aristotle, and a learned and voluminous writer on almost all possible subjects. Cicero thought him superstitious and uncritical.
- Hieronymus the Rhodian, a disciple of Aristotle, flourishing about 300 B.C. Little is known about him, though he is often quoted by Cicero.
- Hippocrates, the second of that name, and the most famous physician of ancient times, 460-357 B.C.
- Hyrcean Sea, another name for the Caspian Sea, from the province of Hyrcania to the S.E. of it.
- I
- Iberia, a country east of Colchis, between the Euxine and Caspian Seas.
- Idea, the fifteenth day of the Roman month in March, May, July, and October; the thirteenth in the other months.
- Idomeneus, of Lampsacus, a pupil and friend of Epicurus (342-270 B.C.), author of biographical works on "The Socratics," and "The Demagogues."
- Ino, daughter of Cadmus, and wife of Athamas, the king of Orchomenus in Boeotia. After her death she was worshipped as Leucothea, a sea goddess. According to one of the many myths connected with her name, she became mad with jealousy of a female slave, and slew her own son. See Plutarch, Roman Questions, 16.
- Ion, of Chios, a popular poet at Athens between 452 and 421 B.C., also author of a prose work entitled "Sojourns," in which he recounted his experiences with famous men of his time.
- Isocrates, the celebrated Attic orator and rhetorician, 436-338 B.C.
- J
- Jason, the great hero of the Argonautic expedition, husband of Medea.
- L
- Lamptrae, name of two demes, or townships, in S.E. Attica.
- Lemnos, a large island in the northern part of the Aegean Sea.
- Leucothea. See Ino.
- Lycaonia, a district in central Asia Minor, between Galatia and Cilicia.
- Lycurgus, the semi-historical law-giver of Sparta, where he was honoured as a god.
- Lysias, the Attic orator, 458-378 B.C.
- M
- Maeotis, Lake, the modern Sea of Azov, N.E. of the Euxine Sea.
- Maimacterion, the fifth month of the Attic year, corresponding nearly to our November.
- Mardians, a tribe on the southern shore of the Caspian Sea.
- Marsi, an ancient people of central Italy, akin to the Sabines. After their defeat in 89 B.C., they were admitted to the Roman citizenship, with the other Italians.

DICTIONARY OF PROPER NAMES

Melanthius, an author of tragedies and elegiac poems, contemporary with Cimon at Athens.

Melissus, of Samos, a famous natural philosopher, a disciple of Parmenides, who led the Samians successfully against Pericles.

Mesopotamia, the region between the Tigris and Euphrates rivers above Babylonia.

Metageitnion, the second month of the Attic calendar, corresponding nearly to our August.

Metellus Pius, Q. Caecilius, obtained the surname of Pius for persuading the people to recall his father, Metellus Numidicus, from banishment. He was a successful general under Sulla, and consul with him in 80 B.C. He died about 63 B.C.

Mithridates, the sixth king of Pontus bearing this name, commonly known as Mithridates the Great, 120-63 B.C., the most formidable enemy of the Romans in the East.

Mitylené the largest city of Lesbos, off the N.W. coast of Asia Minor. Mygdonia, a district in the N.E. of Mesopotamia.

N

Nausicrates (or Naucrates), the rhetorician, a pupil of Isocrates. He composed models of funeral orations for men of note.

Neanthes, of Cyzicus, a voluminous writer of history, who flourished about 240 B.C. He belonged to the school of Isocrates.

Nepos, Cornelius, Roman biographer and historian, a contemporary and friend of Cicero.

Nicomedeia, capital of Bithynia, at the N.E. corner of the Propontis.

Nisibis, the chief city of Mygdonia (q.v.).

Nones, the ninth day before the Ides of the Roman month, falling therefore on the seventh day of the month in March, May, July, and October, and on the fifth day of the other months.

Numantia, a city in the northern part of Spain, taken after a memorable siege by Scipio Africanus, in 134 B.C.

O

Oropus, a town and district on the northern and eastern borders (respectively) of Attica and Boeotia, much in dispute between Athenians and Thebans.

Orpheus, the mythical singer of Thrace, and one of the Argonauts.

P

Pagasae, a city in S.E. Thessaly, at the head of a gulf of the same name, famed in story as the port from which Jason set sail with the Argonauts.

Palatium, the Palatine hill of Rome.

Pamphylia, a country on the south coast of Asia Minor, between Lycia and Cilicia.

Panaetius, of Rhodes, the Stoic philosopher, chief founder of the Stoic school at Rome, flourishing between 150 and 110 B.C.

Parthia, in the time of Lucullus, a vast realm to the east of Armenia, Assyria, and Mesopotamia.

Pelistratus, tyrant of Athens in 560 B.C., and during seventeen of the thirty-three years thereafter.

Pelopidas, the Theban general and statesman, bosom friend of Epaminondas, killed in battle 364 B.C.

Pergamum (or Pergamus), an ancient city of Mysia, in Asia Minor, on the river Calvus. After 283 B.C., it was the seat of the Attalid dynasty.

Perloeci, the name of those inhabitants of Sparta who kept their lands and personal liberty, unlike the Helots, but who did not exercise the rights of citizenship.

DICTIONARY OF PROPER NAMES

- Perseus (pp. 347, 363), the last king of Macedonia, son of Philip V. He graced the triumph of Aemilius Paulus in 167 B.C., and died at Rome several years later.
- Perseus (p. 411), the famous Argive hero, son of Zeus and Danaë, slayer of the Gorgon Medusa.
- Phalerum, the ancient harbour of Athens, before Themistocles fortified the Peiræus.
- Phanias, the Lesbian, of Eresos, the most distinguished pupil of Aristotle after Theophrastus, a prolific writer on philosophy and history,—a historical romancer.
- Phanodemus, a writer of Attic annals, after the manner of Cleidemus (q.v.).
- Pharnacia, a city of Pontus, on the southern shore of the Euxine, N.E. of Cabeira.
- Phasis, a river of Colchis, flowing into the Euxine at its eastern end.
- Philip (p. 139), of Macedon, father of Alexander the Great, secured the leadership of Greece in the battle at Chaeroneia, 338 B.C.
- Philip (p. 335), Philip V of Macedon, father of Perseus, from 216 B.C. till his death in 179 a formidable enemy of Rome.
- Philo (p. 607), the Academic, of Larissa, removed from Athens to Rome about 88 B.C., where he was teacher of Cicero, and where he died about 80 B.C.
- Phlya, a deme, or township, somewhere in the N.E. of Attica.
- Phrygia, a large province in western and north-western Asia Minor.
- Phylarchus, of Naucratis and Athens, a Greek historian who flourished about 220 B.C., to whom Plutarch is much indebted in his Agis and Cleomenes.
- Pitané, an ancient Aeolian city on the N.W. coast of Asia Minor.
- Polybius, the Greek historian of the Punic Wars, of Megalopolis, in Arcadia, born about 204 B.C., one of the Achaean exiles (see Achaia) in 187. In Rome, he resided in the house of Aemilius Paulus, and became the intimate friend of the younger Scipio, with whom he was present at the destruction of Carthage in 146 B.C.
- Pontus, a large district in N.E. Asia Minor, stretching along the southern shore of the Euxine.
- Potamus, the name of a deme, or township, in eastern Attica.
- Propontis, the intermediate sea between the Aegean and the Euxine, connected with the former by the Hellespont, with the latter by the Thracian Bosphorus.
- Pydna, a town on the Theraic gulf, S.E. of Macedonia.
- Pyrrhus, king of Epeirus from 295 till his death in 272 B.C. From 280 till 274 he was campaigning in Italy and Sicily.

S

- Sabines, a people occupying the western slopes of the central Apennines, in Italy. They were finally subdued by Curius Dentatus in 290 B.C., and in 268 became Roman citizens.
- Sallust, C. Sallustius Crispus, 86–34 B.C. He was a partisan of Caesar, who made him governor of Numidia, where he amassed great wealth. He afterwards wrote histories of the conspiracy of Catiline and of the Jugurthine war.
- Samnites, inhabitants of Samnium, the mountainous district of central Italy lying between Latium and Apulia. In 290 B.C. Curius Dentatus won the honour of putting an end to the Samnite wars after they had lasted fifty years.
- Sarothrace, an island in the northern part of the Aegean Sea.
- Scepsis, an ancient town east of the Troad, which in later times became subject to Pergamum, and a seat of learning.

DICTIONARY OF PROPER NAMES

- Scopas, the Thessalian. See Cranon.
- Seleucus, surnamed Nicator, founder of the Syrian monarchy, 353-280 B.C.
- Seriphus, one of the Cyclades islands, S.E. of Attica, proverbial for poverty and insignificance.
- Sertorius, one of the greatest soldiers bred by the Roman civil wars, who successfully opposed the best generals of the aristocratic party in Spain from 82 B.C. till his assassination in 72.
- Sicyon, an important city in N.E. Peloponnesus, about two miles south of the Corinthian gulf.
- Simonides of Ceos, one of the greatest lyric poets of Greece, 556-467 B.C.
- Sinopé, an important Greek city on the southern shore of the Euxine Sea, in N.E. Paphlagonia.
- Sophené, a district of S.W. Armenia.
- Sophists, a general name for paid teachers of rhetoric and philosophy, like Gorgias.
- Stesimbrotus, of Thasos, a sophist and rhapsodist of note in Athens during the times of Cimon and Pericles.
- Sthenis, of Olynthus, a famous statuary at Athens, who flourished about 350 B.C.
- Strabo, the geographer (philosopher, p. 565), lived during the times of Augustus.
- T
- Talaura, a stronghold in Pontus.
- Tanagra, a town and district in S.E. Boeotia.
- Tarentum, a Greek city in S.E. Italy. It surrendered to the Romans in 272 B.C., was betrayed into the hands of Hannibal in 212, and recovered by Fabius in 209.
- Taurus, a general name for the lofty range of mountains extending from Lycia in Asia Minor through Cilicia and south of Armenia into Media.
- Tegea, an ancient city in S.E. Arcadia, of Peloponnesus.
- Tempé, a famous valley in N.E. Thessaly.
- Tenedos, an island about five miles west of the Troad, in the N.E. Aegean.
- Tenos, one of the Cyclades islands, S.E. of Attica.
- Thargelion, the eleventh month of the Attic calendar, corresponding nearly to our May.
- Themiscyra, a plain and city in Pontus, near the mouth of the river Thermodon.
- Theophrastus, the most famous pupil of Aristotle, and his successor as head of the Peripatetic school at Athens. He was born at Eresos in Lesbos, and died at Athens in 287 B.C., at the age of eighty-five.
- Theopompus, of Chios, a fellow-pupil of Isocrates with Ephorus, historian of Greece from 411 to 394 B.C., and of Philip of Macedon (360-336 B.C.).
- Tibareni, a tribe on the northern coast of Pontus.
- Tigranocerta, the city of Tigranes, later capital of Armenia, in Mygdonia, west of Nisibis, just south of the Taurus.
- Tigris, the great river rising in Armenia and flowing between Mesopotamia and Assyria.
- Timocreon, of Rhodes, a lyric poet, now known chiefly for his hatred of Themistocles and Simonides of Ceos.
- Timoleon, of Corinth, rescued Syracuse from its tyrant (Dionysius II) and the Carthaginians in 343 B.C., and became virtual master of Sicily, though without office. He died in Syracuse, 337 B.C.
- Troezen, a city in S.E. Argolis, of Peloponnesus.
- Trophonius, received worship and had an oracle in a cave near Lebadela in Boeotia.

DICTIONARY OF PROPER NAMES

Tubero the Stoic p. 599), Q.

Aelius, a pupil of Panaetius, flourished in the century before Lucullus, and could not have seen him playing Xerxes. The jest may have come from Lucius Tubero, the relative and intimate friend of Cicero, who cultivated literature and philosophy.

Tusculum, an ancient city of Latium, fifteen miles S.E. of Rome, in the Alban mountains. It became a favourite resort of wealthy Romans.

Tyrannio the Grammarian, of Amisus in Pontus. He was taken to Rome by Lucullus, where he became a teacher, was patronised and praised by Cicero, and amassed wealth.

V

Vesta, an ancient Roman divinity, identical with the Greek Hestia as goddess of the hearth and fire-side. The Vestals were her virgin priestesses.

X

Xenocrates, of Chalcedon, 396-314 B.C., a pupil and disciple of Plato, became head of the Academy in 339 B.C.

~~L.G.~~
~~P.737v~~
~~Ap. 2~~

Plutarch. Vitae parallelae

(Lives)

PLUTARCH'S LIVES

WITH AN ENGLISH TRANSLATION BY BERNADOTTE PERRIN

IN TEN VOLUMES
III

PERICLES AND FABIVS MAXIMVS
NICIAS AND CRASSVS

388002
13.1.41

LONDON: WILLIAM HEINEMANN LTD
NEW YORK: G. P. PUTNAM'S SONS

PA
4369
A2
1914
V3
Cop. 5

First printed 1916
Reprinted 1932

Printed
in Great Britain at
The Windmill Press, Kingswood, Surrey

PREFATORY NOTE

As in the preceding volumes of this series, agreement between the Sintenis (Teubner, 1873-1875) and Bekker (Tauchnitz, 1855-1857) texts of the Parallel Lives has been taken as the basis for the text. Any preference of the one to the other, where they differ, and any departure from both, have been indicated in the critical notes. The more important ameliorations of the text which have been secured by collations of Codex Parisinus 1676 (F^a) and Codex Seitenstettensis (S), have been introduced. The relative importance of these MSS. is explained in the Introduction to the first volume. The text-tradition of the chapters of the Crassus (xv.-xxxiii.) which appear in the Parthian War attributed to Appian (Pseudo-Appian), is seldom, if ever, superior to that of the same chapters in Plutarch. No attempt has been made, naturally, to furnish either a diplomatic text or a full critical apparatus. The reading which follows the colon in the critical notes is that of the Teubner Sintenis, and also, unless otherwise stated in the note, of the Tauchnitz Bekker.

PREFATORY NOTE

Among editions of special Lives included in this volume should be noted that of Fuhr, Themistokles und Perikles, Berlin, 1880, in the Haupt-Sauppe series of annotated texts; and that of Blass, Themistokles und Perikles, Leipzig, 1883, in the Teubner series of annotated texts. These editions bring F^a and S into rightful prominence as a basis for the text. Holden's edition of the Nicias, in the Pitt Press series, Cambridge, 1887, has also been found useful. A brief bibliography for the study of Plutarch may be found in the Introduction to the first volume.

The translations of the Pericles and of the Nicias have already appeared in my Plutarch's Cimon and Pericles (New York, 1910), and Plutarch's Nicias and Alcibiades (New York, 1912), and are reproduced here (with only slight changes) by the generous consent of the publishers, the Messrs. Charles Scribner's Sons. The translations of the Fabius Maximus and of the Crassus appear here for the first time. All the standard translations of the Lives have been carefully compared and utilized, including that of the Crassus by Professor Long.

B. PERRIN.

NEW HAVEN, CONNECTICUT, U.S.A.

June, 1915.

CONTENTS

	PAGE
PREFATORY NOTE	v
ORDER OF THE PARALLEL LIVES IN THIS EDITION	viii
TRADITIONAL ORDER OF THE PARALLEL LIVES	ix
PERICLES	1
FABIUS MAXIMUS	117
COMPARISON OF PERICLES AND FABIUS MAXIMUS . . .	198
NICIAS	207
CRASSUS	313
COMPARISON OF NICIAS AND CRASSUS	424
DICTIONARY OF PROPER NAMES	439

ORDER OF THE PARALLEL LIVES IN THIS EDITION IN THE CHRONOLOGICAL SEQUENCE OF THE GREEK LIVES.

VOLUME I.

- (1) Theseus and Romulus.
Comparison.
- (2) Lycurgus and Numa.
Comparison.
- (3) Solon and Publicola.
Comparison.

VOLUME II.

- (4) Themistocles and
Camillus.
- (9) Aristides and Cato the
Elder.
Comparison.
- (13) Cimon and Lucullus.
Comparison.

VOLUME III.

- (5) Pericles and Fabius Max-
imus.
Comparison.
- (14) Nicias and Crassus.
Comparison.

VOLUME IV.

- (6) Alcibiades and Coriola-
nus.
Comparison.
- (12) Lysander and Sulla.
Comparison.

VOLUME V.

- (16) Agesilaus and Pompey.
Comparison.
- (8) Pelopidas and Marcellus.
Comparison.

VOLUME VI.

- (22) Dion and Brutus.
Comparison.
- (7) Timoleon and Aemilius
Paulus.
Comparison.
- (20) Demosthenes and Cicero.
Comparison.

VOLUME VII.

- (17) Alexander and Julius X
Caesar.
- (15) Sertorius and Eumenes.
Comparison.

VOLUME VIII.

- (18) Phocion and Cato the Younger.
- (21) Demetrius and Antony.
Comparison.

VOLUME IX.

- (11) Pyrrhus and Caius Marius.
- (19) Agis and Cleomenes, and
Tiberius and Caius
Gracchus.
Comparison.

VOLUME X.

- (10) Philopoemen and Flam-
inius.
Comparison.
- (23) Artaxerxes.
- (24) Aratus.
- (25) Galba.
- (26) Otho.

TRADITIONAL ORDER OF THE PARALLEL LIVES.

- (1) Theseus and Romulus.
- (2) Lycurgus and Numa.
- (3) Solon and Publicola.
- (4) Themistocles and Camillus.
- (5) Pericles and Fabius Maximus.
- (6) Alcibiades and Coriolanus.
- (7) Timoleon and Aemilius Paulus.
- (8) Pelopidas and Marcellus.
- (9) Aristides and Cato the Elder.
- (10) Philopoemen and Flamininus.
- (11) Pyrrhus and Caius Marius.
- (12) Lysander and Sulla.
- (13) Cimon and Lucullus.
- (14) Nicias and Crassus.
- (15) Sertorius and Eumenes.
- (16) Agesilaus and Pompey.
- (17) Alexander and Julius Caesar.
- (18) Phocion and Cato the Younger.
- (19) Agis and Cleomenes, and Tiberius and Caius
Gracchus.
- (20) Demosthenes and Cicero.
- (21) Demetrius and Antony.
- (22) Dion and Brutus.
.
- (23) Artaxerxes.
- (24) Aratus.
- (25) Galba.
- (26) Otho.

PERICLES

ΠΕΡΙΚΛΗΣ

Ι. Ξένους τινὰς ἐν Ῥώμῃ πλουσίους κυνῶν
τέκνα καὶ πιθήκων ἐν τοῖς κόλποις περιφέροντας
καὶ ἀγαπῶντας ἰδὼν ὁ Καῖσαρ, ὡς ἔοικεν, ἠρώ-τησεν εἰ παιδιά παρ' αὐτοῖς οὐ τίκτουσιν αἱ
γυναῖκες, ἡγεμονικῶς σφόδρα νουθετήσας τοὺς
τὸ φύσει φιλητικὸν ἐν ἡμῖν καὶ φιλόστοργον εἰς
θηρία καταναλίσκοντας ἀνθρώποις ὑφειλόμενον.
2 ἄρ' οὖν, ἐπεὶ φιλομαθές τι κέκτηται καὶ φιλο-
θέαμον ἡμῶν ἢ ψυχὴ φύσει, λόγον ἔχει ψέγειν
τοὺς καταχρωμένους τούτῳ πρὸς τὰ μηδεμιᾶς
ἄξια σπουδῆς ἀκούσματα καὶ θεάματα, τῶν δὲ
καλῶν καὶ ὠφελίμων παραμελοῦντας; τῇ μὲν γὰρ
αἰσθήσει κατὰ πάθος τῆς πληγῆς ἀντιλαμβανομένη τῶν προστυγχανόντων ἴσως ἀνάγκη πᾶν
τὸ φαινόμενον, ἂν τε χρήσιμον ἂν τ' ἄχρηστον ἦ, 3 θεωρεῖν, τῷ νῷ δ' ἕκαστος εἰ βούλοιο χρῆσθαι,
καὶ τρέπειν ἑαυτὸν αἰεὶ καὶ μεταβάλλειν ῥᾶστα
πρὸς τὸ δοκοῦν πέφυκεν, ὥστε χρὴ διώκειν τὸ
βέλτιστον, ἵνα μὴ θεωρῇ μόνον, ἀλλὰ καὶ τρέ-φεται τῷ θεωρεῖν. ὡς γὰρ ὀφθαλμῷ χροῖα πρόσφορος ἦς τὸ ἀνθηρὸν ἕμα καὶ τερπνὸν ἀναζωπυρεῖ

Paris Edition,
a. 1624,
P.
152

PERICLES

I. ON sceing certain wealthy foreigners in Rome carrying puppies and young monkeys about in their bosoms and fondling them, Caesar¹ asked, we are told, if the women in their country did not bear children, thus in right princely fashion rebuking those who squander on animals that proneness to love and loving affection which is ours by nature, and which is due only to our fellow-men. Since, then, our souls are by nature possessed of great fondness for learning and fondness for seeing, it is surely reasonable to chide those who abuse this fondness on objects all unworthy either of their eyes or ears, to the neglect of those which are good and serviceable. Our outward sense, since it apprehends the objects which encounter it by virtue of their mere impact upon it, must needs, perhaps, regard everything that presents itself, be it useful or uscless; but in the exercise of his mind every man, if he pleases, has the natural power to turn himself away in every case, and to change, without the least difficulty, to that object upon which he himself determines. It is meet, therefore, that he pursue what is best, to the end that he may not merely regard it, but also be edified by regarding it. A colour is suited to the eye if its freshness, and its pleasantness as well, stimulates and

¹ Caesar Augustus.

καὶ τρέφει τὴν ὄψιν, οὕτω τὴν διάνοιαν ἐπάγει
 δεῖ θεάμασιν ἂ τῷ χαίρειν πρὸς τὸ οἰκείου αὐτὴν ἀγαθὸν ἐκκαλεῖ.

- 4 Ταῦτα δὲ ἔστιν ἐν τοῖς ἀπ' ἀρετῆς ἔργοις, ἃ καὶ
 ζῆλόν τινα καὶ προθυμίαν ἀγωγὸν εἰς μίμησιν
 ἐμποιεῖ τοῖς ἱστορήσασιν¹ ἐπεὶ τῶν γ' ἄλλων
 οὐκ εὐθὺς ἀκολουθεῖ τῷ θαυμάσαι τὸ πραχθὲν
 ὀρμὴ πρὸς τὸ πράξαι· πολλάκις δὲ καὶ τοῦναντίον χαίροντες τῷ ἔργῳ τοῦ δημιουργοῦ κατα-φρονοῦμεν, ὡς ἐπὶ τῶν μύρων καὶ τῶν ἀλουργῶν
 τούτοις μὲν ἠδόμεθα, τοὺς δὲ βαφεῖς καὶ μυρε-ψοὺς ἀνελευθέρους ἠγοῦμεθα καὶ βαναύσους.
- 5 διὸ καλῶς μὲν Ἀντισθένης ἀκούσας ὅτι σπουδαῖός
 ἐστὶν αὐλητῆς Ἰσμηνίας, “ Ἄλλ' ἄνθρωπος,” ἔφη, “ μοχθηρός· οὐ γὰρ ἂν οὕτω σπουδαῖός ἦν αὐλη-τῆς.” ὁ δὲ Φίλιππος πρὸς τὸν υἱὸν ἐπιτερπῶς ἔντιμι πτόφῳ ψήλαντα καὶ τεχνικῶς εἶπεν· “ Οὐκ
 αἰσχύνῃ καλῶς οὕτω ψάλλον;” ἀρκεῖ γάρ, ἂν
 βασιλεὺς ἀκροᾷσθαι ψαλλόντων σχολάζῃ, καὶ
 πολὺ νέμει ταῖς Μούσαις ἐτέρων ἀγωνιζομένων
 τὰ τοιαῦτα θεατῆς γιγνόμενος.

II. Ἡ δ' αὐτουργία τῶν ταπεινῶν τῆς εἰς τὰ 153
 καλὰ ῥαθυμίας μάρτυρα τὸν ἐν τοῖς ἀχρήστοις
 πόνον παρέχεται καθ' αὐτῆς· καὶ οὐδεὶς εὐφυῆς
 νέος ἢ τὸν ἐν Πίσῃ θεασάμενος Δία γενέσθαι
 Φειδίας ἐπεθύμησεν ἢ τὴν Ἥραν τὴν ἐν Ἀργεῖ
 Πολύκλειτος, οὐδ' Ἀνακρέων ἢ Φιλητᾶς ἢ Ἀρχί-
 2 λοχος ἢ σθεῖς αὐτῶν τοῖς ποιήμασιν. οὐ γὰρ
 ἀναγκαῖον, εἰ τέρπει τὸ ἔργον ὡς χάρειν, ἄξιον

¹ ἱστορήσασιν Bekker, Fuhr, and Blass, with Reiske, after Amyot: ἱστορήμασιν (researches).

PERICLES

nourishes the vision; and so our intellectual vision must be applied to such objects as, by their very charm, invite it onward to its own proper good.

Such objects are to be found in virtuous deeds; these implant in those who search them out a great and zealous eagerness which leads to imitation. In other cases, admiration of the deed is not immediately accompanied by an impulse to do it. Nay, many times, on the contrary, while we delight in the work, we despise the workman, as, for instance, in the case of perfumes and dyes; we take a delight in them, but dyers and perfumers we regard as illiberal and vulgar folk. Therefore it was a fine saying of Antisthenes, when he heard that Ismenias was an excellent piper: "But he's a worthless man," said he, "otherwise he wouldn't be so good a piper." And so Philip¹ once said to his son, who, as the wine went round, plucked the strings charmingly and skilfully, "Art not ashamed to pluck the strings so well?" It is enough, surely, if a king have leisure to hear others pluck the strings, and he pays great deference to the Muses if he be but a spectator of such contests.

II. Labour with one's own hands on lowly tasks gives witness, in the toil thus expended on useless things, to one's own indifference to higher things. No generous youth, from seeing the Zeus at Pisa,² or the Hera at Argos, longs to be Pheidias or Polycleitus; nor to be Anacreon or Philetas or Archilochus out of pleasure in their poems. For it does not of necessity follow that, if the work delights you with its grace, the one who wrought it is worthy of your

¹ Philip of Macedon, to Alexander.

² That is, Olympia.

σπουδῆς εἶναι τὸν εἰργασμένον. ὅθεν οὐδ' ὠφελεῖ
τὰ τοιαῦτα τοὺς θεωμένους, πρὸς ἃ μιμητικὸς οὐ
γίνεται ζῆλος οὐδὲ ἀνάδοσις κινουσα προθυμίαν
καὶ ὄρμην¹ ἐπὶ τὴν ἔξομοίωσιν. ἀλλ' ἢ γε ἀρετῇ
ταῖς πράξεσιν εὐθύς οὕτω διατίθησιν ὥστε ἅμα
θαυμάζεσθαι τὰ ἔργα καὶ ζηλοῦσθαι τοὺς εἰργα-3 σμένους. τῶν μὲν γὰρ ἐκ τῆς τύχης ἀγαθῶν
τὰς κτήσεις καὶ ἀπολαύσεις, τῶν δ' ἀπ' ἀρετῆς
τὰς πράξεις ἀγαπῶμεν, καὶ τὰ μὲν ἡμῖν παρ'
έτέρων, τὰ δὲ μᾶλλον ἑτέροις παρ' ἡμῶν ὑπάρχειν
βουλόμεθα. τὸ γὰρ καλὸν ἐφ' αὐτὸ πρακτικῶς
κινεῖ καὶ πρακτικὴν εὐθύς ὄρμην ἐντίθησιν, ἡθο-ποιοῦν οὐ τῇ μιμήσει τὸν θεατὴν, ἀλλὰ τῇ
ἱστορίᾳ τοῦ ἔργου τὴν προαίρεσιν παρεχόμενον.

4 Ἐδοξεν οὖν καὶ ἡμῖν ἐνδιατρίψαι τῇ περὶ τοὺς
βίους ἀναγραφῇ, καὶ τοῦτο τὸ βιβλίον δέκατον συντετάχαμεν τὸν Περικλέους βίον καὶ τὸν Φα-βίου Μαξίμου τοῦ διαπολεμήσαντος πρὸς Ἀννίβαν περιέχον, ἀνδρῶν κατὰ τε τὰς ἄλλας ἀρετὰς
ὁμοίων, μάλιστα δὲ πραότητα καὶ δικαιοσύνην,
καὶ τῷ δύνασθαι φέρειν δῆμων καὶ συναρχόντων
ἀγνωμοσύνας ὠφελιμωτάτων ταῖς πατρίσι γενομένων. εἰ δ' ὀρθῶς στοχαζόμεθα τοῦ δέοντος,
ἔξεστι κρίνειν ἐκ τῶν γραφομένων.

III. Περικλῆς γὰρ ἦν τῶν μὲν φυλῶν Ἀκαμαντίδης, τῶν δὲ δῆμων Χολαργεύς, οἴκου δὲ καὶ
γένους τοῦ πρώτου κατ' ἀμφοτέρους. Ξάνθιππος
γὰρ ὁ νικῆσας ἐν Μυκάλη τοὺς βασιλέως στρατη-γοὺς ἔγημεν Ἀγαρίστην Κλεισθένους ἑγγονου, ὃς

¹ ὄρμην Fuhr and Blass, after Reiske: ἀφορμῆν.

PERICLES

esteem. Wherefore the spectator is not advantaged by those things at sight of which no ardour for imitation arises in the breast, nor any uplift of the soul arousing zealous impulses to do the like. But virtuous action straightway so disposes a man that he no sooner admires the works of virtue than he strives to emulate those who wrought them. The good things of Fortune we love to possess and enjoy; those of Virtue we love to perform. The former we are willing should be ours at the hands of others; the latter we wish that others rather should have at our hands. The Good creates a stir of activity towards itself, and implants at once in the spectator an active impulse; it does not form his character by ideal representation alone, but through the investigation of its work it furnishes him with a dominant purpose.

For such reasons I have decided to persevere in my writing of Lives, and so have composed this tenth book, containing the life of Pericles, and that of Fabius Maximus, who waged such lengthy war with Hannibal. The men were alike in their virtues, and more especially in their gentleness and rectitude, and by their ability to endure the follies of their peoples and of their colleagues in office, they proved of the greatest service to their countries. But whether I aim correctly at the proper mark must be decided from what I have written.

III. Pericles was of the tribe Acamantis, of the deme Cholargus, and of the foremost family and lineage on both sides. His father, Xanthippus, who conquered the generals of the King at Mycale,¹ married Agariste, granddaughter² of that Cleisthenes

¹ 479 B.C.

² His niece, rather.

ἔξήλασε Πεισιστρατίδας καὶ κατέλυσε τὴν τυραν-νίδα γενναίως καὶ νόμους ἔθετο καὶ πολιτείαν
 ἄριστα κεκραμένην πρὸς ὁμόνοιαν καὶ σωτηρίαν
 2 κατέστησεν. αὕτη κατὰ τοὺς ὕπνους ἔδοξε τεκεῖν
 λέοντα, καὶ μεθ' ἡμέρας ὀλίγας ἔτεκε Περικλέα,
 τὰ μὲν ἄλλα τὴν ιδέαυ τοῦ σώματος ἄμεμπτον,
 προμήκη δὲ τῇ κεφαλῇ¹ καὶ ἀσύμμετρον. ὅθεν
 αἱ μὲν εἰκόνες αὐτοῦ σχεδὸν ἅπασαι κράνεσι
 περιέχονται, μὴ βουλομένων, ὡς ἔοικε, τῶν τεχνιτῶν ἐξουειδίξειν. οἱ δ' Ἀττικοὶ ποιηταὶ σχινοκέφαλον αὐτὸν ἐκάλουν· τὴν γὰρ σκίλλαν ἔστιν
 3 ὅτε καὶ σχῖνον ὀνομάζουσι. τῶν δὲ κωμικῶν ὁ
 μὲν Κρατῖνος ἐν Χείρωσι “Στάσις δὲ” (φησὶ) “καὶ πρεσβυγενὴς Κρόνος ἀλλήλοισι μιγέντε
 μέγιστον τίκτετον τύραννον, ὃν δὴ κεφαληγερέταν
 θεοὶ καλέουσι” καὶ πάλιν ἐν Νεμέσει· “Μόλ’, 4 ὦ Ζεῦ ξένιε καὶ καραιέ.” Τηλεκλείδης δὲ ποτὲ μὲν
 ὑπὸ τῶν πραγμάτων ἠπορημένον καθῆσθαι φησιν
 αὐτὸν ἐν τῇ πόλει “καρηβαροῦντα, ποτὲ δὲ
 μόνον ἐκ κεφαλῆς ἑνδεκακλίνου θόρυβον πολὺν
 ἐξανατέλλειν.” ὁ δ' Εὐπολις ἐν τοῖς Δήμοις
 πυνθανόμενος περὶ ἐκάστου τῶν ἀναβεβηκότων
 ἐξ ἄδου δημαγωγῶν, ὡς ὁ Περικλῆς ὀνομάσθη
 τελευταῖος·

“Ὅ τι περ κεφάλαιον τῶν κάτωθεν ἦγαγες.

IV. Διδάσκαλον δ' αὐτοῦ τῶν μουσικῶν οἱ
 πλείστοι Δάμωνα γενέσθαι λέγουσιν, οὐ φασι

¹ τῇ κεφαλῇ Fuhr and Blass with F^aS : τὴν κεφαλὴν.

PERICLES

who, in such noble fashion, expelled the Peisistratidae and destroyed their tyranny, instituted laws, and established a constitution best attempered for the promotion of harmony and safety. She, in her dreams, once fancied that she had given birth to a lion, and a few days thereafter bore Pericles.¹ His personal appearance was unimpeachable, except that his head was rather long and out of due proportion. For this reason the images of him, almost all of them, wear helmets, because the artists, as it would seem, were not willing to reproach him with deformity. The comic poets of Attica used to call him "Schinocephalus," or Squill-head (the squill is sometimes called "schinus"). So the comic poet Cratinus, in his "Cheirons," says: "Faction and Saturn, that ancient of days, were united in wedlock; their offspring was of all tyrants the greatest, and lo! he is called by the gods the head-compeller."² And again in his "Nemesis": "Come, Zeus! of guests and heads the Lord!"² And Telecleides speaks of him as sitting on the acropolis in the greatest perplexity, "now heavy of head, and now alone, from the eleven-couched chamber of his head, causing vast uproar to arise."² And Eupolis, in his "Demes," having inquiries made about each one of the demagogues as they come up from Hades, says, when Pericles is called out last:—

"The very head of those below hast thou now brought."²

IV. His teacher in music, most writers state, was Damon (whose name, they say, should be pronounced

¹ Cf. Herodotus, vi. 131.

² Kock, Com. Att. Frag. i. p. 86; p. 49; p. 220; p. 280.

δεῖν τοῦνομα βραχύνοντας τὴν προτέραν συλλαβὴν ἐκφέρειν· Ἀριστοτέλης δὲ παρὰ Πυθοκλείδην μουσικὴν διαπονηθῆναι τὸν ἄνδρα φησίν. ὁ δὲ Δάμων ἔοικεν ἄκρος ὦν σοφιστῆς καταδύεσθαι μὲν εἰς τὸ τῆς μουσικῆς ὄνομα πρὸς τοὺς πολλοὺς ἐπικρυπτόμενος τὴν δεινότητα, τῷ δὲ Περικλεῖ 154
 2 καὶ διδάσκαλος. οὐ μὴν ἔλαθεν ὁ Δάμων τῇ λύρᾳ παρακαλύμματι χρώμενος, ἀλλ' ὡς μεγαλοπράγμων καὶ φιλοτύρανος ἐξωστρακίσθη καὶ παρέσχε τοῖς κωμικοῖς διατριβήν. ὁ γοῦν Πλάτων καὶ πυνθανόμενον αὐτοῦ τινα πεποίηκεν οὕτω·

Πρῶτον μὲν οὖν μοι λέξον, ἀντιβολῶ· σὺ γάρ, ὡς φασιν, ὁ Χείρων ἐξέθρεψας Περικλέα.

3 διήκουσε δὲ Περικλῆς καὶ Ζήνωνος τοῦ Ἐλεάτου πραγματευομένου περὶ φύσιν, ὡς Παρμενίδης, ἐλεγκτικὴν δέ τινα καὶ δι' ἀντιλογίας κατακλείουσιν εἰς ἀπορίαν ἐξασκήσαντος ἕξιν, ὥσπερ καὶ Τίμων ὁ Φλιάσιος εἶρηκε διὰ τούτων·

Ἀμφοτερογλώσσου τε μέγα σθένος οὐκ ἀλαπαδνὸν

Ζήνωνος, πάντων ἐπιλήπτορος.

4 Ὁ δὲ πλεῖστα Περικλεῖ συγγενόμενος καὶ μάλιστα περιθεὶς ὄγκον αὐτῷ καὶ φρόνημα δημαγωγίας ἐμβριθέστερον, ὅλως τε μετεωρίσας καὶ συνεχάρας τὸ ἀξίωμα τοῦ ἡθους, Ἀναξαγόρας ἦν ὁ Κλαζομένιος, ὃν οἱ τότε ἄνθρωποι Νοῦν προσ-

PERICLES

with the first syllable short); but Aristotle¹ says he had a thorough musical training at the hands of Pythocleides. Now Damon seems to have been a consummate sophist, but to have taken refuge behind the name of music in order to conceal from the multitude his real power, and he associated with Pericles, that political athlete, as it were, in the capacity of rubber and trainer. However, Damon was not left unmolested in this use of his lyre as a screen, but was ostracized for being a great schemer and a friend of tyranny, and became a butt of the comic poets. At all events, Plato² represented some one as inquiring of him thus:—

“In the first place tell me then, I beseech thee, thou who art
The Cheiron, as they say, who to Pericles gave his craft.”

Pericles was also a pupil of Zeno the Eleatic, who discoursed on the natural world, like Parmenides, and perfected a species of refutative catch which was sure to bring an opponent to grief; as Timon of Phlius expressed it:—

“His was a tongue that could argue both ways with a fury resistless,
Zeno’s; assailer of all things.”

But the man who most consorted with Pericles, and did most to clothe him with a majestic demeanour that had more weight than any demagogue’s appeals, yes, and who lifted on high and exalted the dignity of his character, was Anaxagoras the Clazomenian, whom men of that day used to call

¹ Plato, rather, Alcibiades I. 118 c.

² Plato the comic poet. Kock Com. Att. Frag. i. p. 655.

ηγόρευον, εἴτε τὴν σύνεσιν αὐτοῦ μεγάλην εἰς φυσιολογίαν καὶ περιττὴν διαφανείσαν θαυμάσαντες, εἴθ' ὅτι τοῖς ὅλοις πρῶτος οὐ τύχην οὐδ' ἀνάγκην διακοσμήσεως ἀρχήν, ἀλλὰ νοῦν ἐπέστησε καθαρὸν καὶ ἄκρατον ἐν μεμιγμένοις πᾶσι τοῖς ἄλλοις, ἀποκρίνοντα τὰς ὁμοιομερείας.

V. Τοῦτον ὑπερφυῶς τὸν ἄνδρα θαυμάσας ὁ Περικλῆς καὶ τῆς λεγομένης μετεωρολογίας καὶ μεταρσιολεσχίας ὑποπιμπλάμενος, οὐ μόνον, ὡς ἔοικε, τὸ φρόνημα σοβαρὸν καὶ τὸν λόγον ὑψηλὸν εἶχε καὶ καθαρὸν ὀχλικῆς καὶ πανούργου βωμολοχίας, ἀλλὰ καὶ προσώπου σύστασις ἄθρυπτος εἰς γέλωτα καὶ πραότης πορείας καὶ καταστολὴ περιβολῆς πρὸς οὐδὲν ἐκταραττομένη πάθος ἐν τῷ λέγειν καὶ πλάσμα φωνῆς ἀθόρυβον, καὶ ὅσα
2 τοιαῦτα πάντας θαυμαστῶς ἐξέπληττε. λαιδορούμενος γοῦν ποτε καὶ κακῶς ἀκούων ὑπὸ τινος τῶν βδελυρῶν καὶ ἀκολάστων ὅλην ἡμέραν ὑπέμεινε σιωπῇ κατ' ἀγοράν, ἅμα τι τῶν ἐπειγόντων καταπραττόμενος· ἐσπέρας δ' ἀπῆει κροσμίως οἵκαδε παρακολουθούντος τοῦ ἀνθρώπου καὶ πάσῃ
3 χρωμένου βλασφημίᾳ πρὸς αὐτόν. ὡς δ' ἔμελλεν εἰσιέναι σκότους ὄντος ἤδη, προσέταξέ τιμι τῶν οἰκετῶν φῶς λαβόντι παραπέμψαι καὶ καταστήσαι πρὸς τὴν οἰκίαν τὸν ἄνθρωπον.

Ὁ δὲ ποιητῆς Ἴων μοθωνικὴν φησι τὴν ὁμιλίαν καὶ ὑπότυφον εἶναι τοῦ Περικλέους, καὶ ταῖς

PERICLES

“Nous,” either because they admired that comprehension of his, which proved of such surpassing greatness in the investigation of nature ; or because he was the first to enthrone in the universe, not Chance, nor yet Necessity, as the source of its orderly arrangement, but Mind (Nous) pure and simple, which distinguishes and sets apart, in the midst of an otherwise chaotic mass, the substances which have like elements.

V. This man Pericles extravagantly admired, and being gradually filled full of the so-called higher philosophy and elevated speculation, he not only had, as it seems, a spirit that was solemn and a discourse that was lofty and free from plebeian and reckless effrontery, but also a composure of countenance that never relaxed into laughter, a gentleness of carriage and cast of attire that suffered no emotion to disturb it while he was speaking, a modulation of voice that was far from boisterous, and many similar characteristics which struck all his hearers with wondering amazement. It is, at any rate, a fact that, once on a time when he had been abused and insulted all day long by a certain lewd fellow of the baser sort, he endured it all quietly, though it was in the market-place, where he had urgent business to transact, and towards evening went away homewards unruffled, the fellow following along and heaping all manner of contumely upon him. When he was about to go in doors, it being now dark, he ordered a servant to take a torch and escort the fellow in safety back to his own home.

The poet Ion, however, says that Pericles had a presumptuous and somewhat arrogant manner of μεγαλαυχίαις αὐτοῦ πολλὴν ὑπεροψίαν ἀναμειχθαι καὶ περιφρόνησιν τῶν ἄλλων· ἐπαινεῖ δὲ τὸ Κίμωνος ἐμμελὲς καὶ ὑγρὸν καὶ μεμουσωμένον ἔν ταῖς περιφοραῖς. ἄλλ' Ἴωνα μὲν, ὡς περ τραγικὴν διδασκαλίαν, ἀξιούντα τὴν ἀρετὴν ἔχειν τι πάντως καὶ σατυρικὸν μέρος ἔωμεν· τοὺς δὲ τοῦ Περικλέους τὴν σεμνότητα δοξοκοπίαν τε καὶ τῦφον ἀποκαλοῦντας ὁ Ζήνων παρεκάλει καὶ αὐτοὺς τι τοιοῦτο δοξοκοπεῖν, ὡς τῆς προσποιήσεως αὐτῆς τῶν καλῶν ὑποποιούσης τινὰ λεληθότως ζῆλον καὶ συνήθειαν.

VI. Οὐ μόνον δὲ ταῦτα τῆς Ἀναξαγόρου συνουσίας ἀπέλαυσε Περικλῆς, ἀλλὰ καὶ δεισιδαιμονίας δοκεῖ γενέσθαι καθυπέρτερος, ὅσην τὸ¹ πρὸς τὰ μετέωρα θάμβος ἐνεργάζεται τοῖς αὐτῶν τε τούτων τὰς αἰτίας ἀγνοοῦσι καὶ περὶ τὰ θεῖα δαιμονῶσι καὶ ταραττομένοις δι' ὑπειρίαν αὐτῶν, ἣν ὁ φυσικὸς λόγος ἀπαλλάττων ἀντὶ τῆς φοβερᾶς καὶ φλεγμαινούσης δεισιδαιμονίας τὴν ἀσφαλῆ μετ' ἐλπίδων ἀγαθῶν εὐσέβειαν ἐργάζεται.

2 Λέγεται δὲ ποτε κριοῦ μονόκερω κεφαλὴν ἐξ ἀγροῦ τῷ Περικλεῖ κομισθῆναι, καὶ Λάμπωνα μὲν τὸν μάντιν, ὡς εἶδε τὸ κέρας ἰσχυρὸν καὶ στερεὸν ἐκ μέσου τοῦ μετώπου πεφυκός, εἰπεῖν ὅτι δυεῖν οὐσῶν ἐν τῇ πόλει δυναστειῶν, τῆς Θουκυδίδου καὶ Περικλέους, εἰς ἓνα περιστήσεται τὸ κράτος

¹ ὅσην τὸ older edd., Corsæes, Fuhr and Blass; Bekker ὅσην with the MSS.: ὅσην.

PERICLES

address, and that into his haughtiness there entered a good deal of disdain and contempt for others; he praises, on the other hand, the tact, complaisance, and elegant address which Cimon showed in his social intercourse.¹ But we must ignore Ion, with his demand that virtue, like a dramatic tetralogy, have some sort of a farcical appendage. Zeno, when men called the austerity of Pericles a mere thirst for reputation, and swollen conceit, urged them to have some such thirst for reputation themselves, with the idea that the very assumption of nobility might in time produce, all unconsciously, something like an eager and habitual practice of it.

VI. These were not the only advantages Pericles had of his association with Anaxagoras. It appears that he was also lifted by him above superstition, that feeling which is produced by amazement at what happens in regions above us. It affects those who are ignorant of the causes of such things, and are crazed about divine intervention, and confounded through their inexperience in this domain; whereas the doctrines of natural philosophy remove such ignorance and inexperience, and substitute for timorous and inflamed superstition that unshaken reverence which is attended by a good hope.

A story is told that once on a time the head of a one-horned ram was brought to Pericles from his country-place, and that Lampon the seer, when he saw how the horn grew strong and solid from the middle of the forehead, declared that, whereas there were two powerful parties in the city, that of Thucydides and that of Pericles, the mastery would finally devolve upon one man,—the man to

¹ Cf. Cimon, ix.

παρ' ᾧ γένοιτο τὸ σημεῖον· τὸν δ' Ἀναξαγόραν
 τοῦ κρανίου διακοπέντος ἔπιδειξαι τὸν ἐγκέφαλον
 οὐ πεπληρωκότα τὴν βάσιν, ἀλλ' ὄξυν ὥσπερ
 ὠὸν ἐκ τοῦ παντός ἀγγείου συνωλισθηκότα κατὰ
 τὸν τόπον ἐκείνον ὅθεν ἡ ρίζα τοῦ κέρατος εἶχε
 3 τὴν ἀρχήν. καὶ τότε μὲν θαυμασθῆναι τὸν Ἀναξαγόραν ὑπὸ τῶν παρόντων, ὀλίγω δ' ὕστερον
 τὸν Λάμπωνα, τοῦ μὲν Θουκυδίδου καταλυθέντος,
 τῶν δὲ τοῦ δήμου πραγμάτων ὁμαλῶς ἀπάντων
 ὑπὸ τῷ Περικλεῖ γενομένων.

Ἐκώλυε δ' οὐδέν, οἶμαι, καὶ τὸν φυσικὸν
 ἐπιτυγχάνειν καὶ τὸν μάντιν, τοῦ μὲν τὴν αἰτίαν,
 τοῦ δὲ τὸ τέλος καλῶς ἐκλαμβάνοντος· ὑπέκειτο
 γὰρ τῷ μὲν, ἐκ τίνων γέγονε καὶ πῶς πέφυκε,
 θεωρῆσαι, τῷ δέ, πρὸς τί γέγονε καὶ τί σημαίνει,
 4 προειπεῖν. οἱ δὲ τῆς αἰτίας τὴν εὔρεσιν ἀναίρεσιν
 εἶναι λέγοντες τοῦ σημείου οὐκ ἐπινοοῦσιν ἅμα
 τοῖς θεοῖς καὶ τὰ τεχνητὰ τῶν συμβόλων
 ἀθετοῦντες, ψόφους τε δίσκων καὶ φῶτα πυρσῶν καὶ γνωμόνων ἀποσκιασμούς· ὧν ἕκαστον αἰτία
 τινὲ καὶ κατασκευῇ σημεῖον εἶναι τινος πεποίηται.
 ταῦτα μὲν οὖν ἴσως ἑτέρας ἐστὶ πραγματείας.

VII. Ὁ δὲ Περικλῆς νέος μὲν ὢν σφόδρα
 τὸν δῆμον εὐλαβεῖτο. καὶ γὰρ ἐδόκει Πεισιστράτῳ τῷ τυράννῳ τὸ εἶδος ἐμφορῆς εἶναι,
 τὴν τε φωνὴν ἠδεῖαν οὔσαν αὐτοῦ καὶ τὴν
 γλῶτταν εὐτροχον ἐν τῷ διαλέγεσθαι καὶ ταχεῖαν
 οἱ σφόδρα γέροντες ἐξεπλήττοντο πρὸς τὴν

PERICLES

whom this sign had been given. Anaxagoras, however, had the skull cut in two, and showed that the brain had not filled out its position, but had drawn together to a point, like an egg, at that particular spot in the entire cavity where the root of the horn began. At that time, the story says, it was Anaxagoras who won the plaudits of the bystanders; but a little while after it was Lampon, for Thucydides was overthrown, and Pericles was entrusted with the entire control of all the interests of the people.

Now there was nothing, in my opinion, to prevent both of them, the naturalist and the seer, from being in the right of the matter; the one correctly divined the cause, the other the object or purpose. It was the proper province of the one to observe why anything happens, and how it comes to be what it is; of the other to declare for what purpose anything happens, and what it means. And those who declare that the discovery of the cause, in any phenomenon, does away with the meaning, do not perceive that they are doing away not only with divine portents, but also with artificial tokens, such as the ringing of gongs, the language of fire-signals, and the shadows of the pointers on sundials. Each of these has been made, through some causal adaptation, to have some meaning. However, perhaps this is matter for a different treatise.

VII. As a young man, Pericles was exceedingly reluctant to face the people, since it was thought that in feature he was like the tyrant Peisistratus; and when men well on in years remarked also that his voice was sweet, and his tongue glib and speedy in discourse, they were struck with amazement at

PLUTARCH'S LIVES

- ὁμοιότητα. πλούτου δὲ καὶ γένους προσόντος αὐτῷ λαμπροῦ καὶ φίλων οἱ πλείστον ἠδύναντο, φοβούμενος ἔξοστρακισθῆναι, τῶν μὲν πολιτικῶν οὐδὲν ἔπραττεν, ἐν δὲ ταῖς στρατείαις ἀνὴρ
- 2 ἀγαθὸς ἦν καὶ φιλοκίνδυνος. ἐπεὶ δ' Ἀριστείδης μὲν ἀποτεθνήκει καὶ Θεμιστοκλῆς ἐξεπεπτώκει, Κίμωνα δ' αἱ στρατεῖαι τὰ πολλὰ τῆς Ἑλλάδος ἔξω κατεῖχον, οὕτω δὴ φέρων ὁ Περικλῆς τῷ δήμῳ προσένειμεν ἑαυτόν, ἀντὶ τῶν πλουσίων καὶ ὀλίγων τὰ τῶν πολλῶν καὶ πεινήτων ἐλόμενος παρὰ τὴν αὐτοῦ φύσιν ἤκιστα δημοτικὴν οὖσαν.
- 3 ἀλλ', ὡς ἔοικε, δεδιὼς μὲν ὑποψία περιπεσεῖν τυραννίδος, ὀρῶν δ' ἀριστοκρατικὸν τὸν Κίμωνα καὶ διαφερόντως ὑπὸ τῶν καλῶν καγαθῶν ἀνδρῶν ἀγαπώμενον, ὑπῆλθε τοὺς πολλούς, ἀσφάλειαν μὲν ἑαυτῷ, δύναμιν δὲ κατ' ἐκείνου παρασκευαζόμενος.
- 4 Εὐθύς δὲ καὶ τοῖς περὶ τὴν δίαιταν ἐτέραν τάξιν ἐπέθηκεν. ὁδόν τε γὰρ ἐν ἄστει μίαν ἑωρᾶτο τὴν ἐπ' ἀγορὰν καὶ τὸ βουλευτήριον πορευόμενος, κλήσεις τε δείπνων καὶ τὴν τοιαύτην ἅπασαν φιλοφροσύνην καὶ συνήθειαν ἐξέλιπεν, ὡς ἐν οἷς ἐπολιτεύσατο χρόνοις μακροῖς γενομένοις πρὸς μηδένα τῶν φίλων ἐπὶ δείπνον ἐλθεῖν, πλὴν Εὐρυπτολέμου τοῦ ἀνεψιοῦ γαμοῦντος ἄχρι τῶν

PERICLES

the resemblance. Besides, since he was rich, of brilliant lineage, and had friends of the greatest influence, he feared that he might be ostracized, and so at first had naught to do with politics, but devoted himself rather to a military career, where he was brave and enterprising. However, when Aristides was dead,¹ and Themistocles in banishment,² and Cimon was kept by his campaigns for the most part abroad, then at last Pericles decided to devote himself to the people, espousing the cause of the poor and the many instead of the few and the rich, contrary to his own nature, which was anything but popular. But he feared, as it would seem, to encounter a suspicion of aiming at tyranny, and when he saw that Cimon was very aristocratic in his sympathies, and was held in extraordinary affection by the party of the "Good and True," he began to court the favour of the multitude, thereby securing safety for himself, and power to wield against his rival.

Straightway, too, he made a different ordering in his way of life. On one street only in the city was he to be seen walking,—the one which took him to the market-place and the council-chamber. Invitations to dinner, and all such friendly and familiar intercourse, he declined, so that during the long period that elapsed while he was at the head of the state, there was not a single friend to whose house he went to dine, except that when his kinsman Eurypotemus gave a wedding feast, he attended until the libations were made,³ and then

¹ Soon after 468 B.C.

² After 472 B.C.

³ That is, until the wine for the symposium was brought in, and drinking began.

5 σπονδῶν παραγενόμενος εὐθύς ἐξανέστη. δειναὶ γὰρ αἱ φιλοφροσύναι παντὸς ὄγκου περιγενέσθαι, καὶ δυσφύλακτον ἐν συνηθείᾳ τὸ πρὸς δόξαν σεμνὸν ἐστὶ· τῆς ἀληθινῆς δ' ἀρετῆς κάλλιστα φαίνεται τὰ μάλιστα φαινόμενα, καὶ τῶν ἀγαθῶν ἀνδρῶν οὐδὲν οὕτω θαυμάσιον τοῖς ἐκτὸς ὡς ὁ καθ' ἡμέραν βίος τοῖς συνοῦσιν.

Ὁ δὲ καὶ τῷ δήμῳ¹ τὸ συνεχὲς φεύγων καὶ τὸν κόρον οἶον ἐκ διαλειμμάτων ἐπλησίαζεν, οὐκ ἐπὶ παντὶ πράγματι λέγων, οὐδ' αἰεὶ παριῶν εἰς τὸ πλῆθος, ἀλλ' ἑαυτὸν ὥσπερ τὴν Σαλαμινίαν τριήρη, φησὶ Κριτόλαος, πρὸς τὰς μεγάλας χρείας ἐπιδιδούς, τὰλλα δὲ φίλους καὶ ῥήτορας
6 ἑτέρους καθιεὶς ἔπραττεν. ὦν ἓνα φασὶ γενέσθαι τὸν Ἐφιάλτην, ὃς κατέλυσε τὸ κράτος τῆς ἐξ Ἀρείου πάγου βουλῆς, πολλήν, κατὰ τὸν Πλάτωνα, καὶ ἄκρατον τοῖς πολίταις ἐλευθερίαν οἰνοχοῶν, ὑφ' ἧς, ὥσπερ ἵππον, ἐξυβρίσαντα τὸν δῆμον οἱ κωμωδοποιοὶ λέγουσι “πειθαρχεῖν οὐκέτι τολμᾶν, ἀλλὰ δάκνειν τὴν Εὐβοίαν καὶ 156 ταῖς νήσοις ἐπιπηδᾶν.”

VIII. Τῇ μέντοι περὶ τὸν βίον κατασκευῇ καὶ τῷ μεγέθει τοῦ φρονήματος ἀρμόζοντα λόγον, ὥσπερ ὄργανον, ἐξαρτυόμενος παρενέτεινε πολλαχοῦ τὸν Ἀναξαγόραν, οἶον βαφήν τῇ ῥητορικῇ τὴν φυσιολογίαν ὑποχεόμενος. το γὰρ “ὑψη-

¹ τῷ δήμῳ Fuhr and Blass, after Sauppe : τοῦ δήμου.

PERICLES

straightway rose up and departed. Conviviality is prone to break down and overpower the haughtiest reserve, and in familiar intercourse the dignity which is assumed for appearance's sake is very hard to maintain. Whereas, in the case of true and genuine virtue, "fairest appears what most appears," and nothing in the conduct of good men is so admirable in the eyes of strangers, as their daily walk and conversation is in the eyes of those who share it.

And so it was that Pericles, seeking to avoid the satiety which springs from continual intercourse, made his approaches to the people by intervals, as it were, not speaking on every question, nor addressing the people on every occasion, but offering himself like the Salaminian trireme, as Critolaüs says, for great emergencies. The rest of his policy he carried out by commissioning his friends and other public speakers. One of these, as they say, was Ephialtes, who broke down the power of the Council of the Areiopagus, and so poured out for the citizens, to use the words of Plato,¹ too much "undiluted freedom," by which the people was rendered unruly, just like a horse, and, as the comic poets say, "no longer had the patience to obey the rein, but nabbed Euboea and trampled on the islands."

VIII. Moreover, by way of providing himself with a style of discourse which was adapted, like a musical instrument, to his mode of life and the grandeur of his sentiments, he often made an auxiliary string of Anaxagoras, subtly mingling, as it were, with his rhetoric the dye of natural science.

¹ Republic, viii. p. 562 c.

λόνουν τοῦτο καὶ πάντα τελεσιουργόν," ὡς ὁ θεῖος Πλάτων φησί, "πρὸς τῷ εὐφυῆς εἶναι κτησάμενος" ἐκ φυσιολογίας, καὶ τὸ πρόσφορον ἐλκύσας ἐπὶ τὴν τῶν λόγων τέχνην, πολὺ πάντων
 2 διήνεγκε. διὸ καὶ τὴν ἐπὶ κλησιν αὐτῷ γενέσθαι λέγουσι· καίτοι τινὲς ἀπὸ τῶν οἷς ἐκόσμησε τὴν πόλιν, οἱ δ' ἀπὸ τῆς ἐν τῇ πολιτεία καὶ ταῖς στρατηγίαις δυνάμεως Ὀλύμπιον αὐτὸν οἴονται προσαγορευθῆναι· καὶ συνδραμεῖν οὐδὲν ἀπέοικεν ἀπὸ πολλῶν προσόντων τῷ ἀνδρὶ τὴν δόξαν.
 3 αἱ μέντοι κωμωδίαί τῶν τότε διδασκάλων σπουδῆ τε πολλὰς καὶ μετὰ γέλωτος ἀφεικότων φωνὰς εἰς αὐτόν, ἐπὶ τῷ λόγῳ μάλιστα τὴν προσωνυμίαν γενέσθαι δηλοῦσι, "βροντᾶν" μὲν αὐτόν καὶ "ἀστράπτειν," ὅτε δημηγοροίη, "δεινὸν δὲ κεραυνὸν ἐν γλώσση φέρειν" λεγόντων.

Διαμνημονεύεται δέ τις καὶ Θουκυδίδου τοῦ Μελησίου λόγος εἰς τὴν δεινότητα τοῦ Περι-
 4 κλέους μετὰ παιδιᾶς εἰρημένος. ἦν μὲν γὰρ ὁ Θουκυδίδης τῶν καλῶν καὶ ἀγαθῶν ἀνδρῶν, καὶ πλείστον ἀντεπολιτεύσατο τῷ Περικλεῖ χρόνον· Ἀρχιδάμου δὲ τοῦ Λακεδαιμονίων βασιλέως πυνθανομένου πότερον αὐτὸς ἢ Περικλῆς παλαίει βέλτιον, "Ὅταν," εἶπεν, "ἐγὼ καταβάλω παλαίῳν, ἐκεῖνος ἀντιλέγων ὡς οὐ πέπτωκε, νικᾷ καὶ μεταπείθει τοὺς ὀρῶντας."

Οὐ μὲν ἀλλὰ καὶ αὐτὸς ὁ Περικλῆς περὶ τὸν λόγον εὐλαβῆς ἦν, ὥστ' αἰεὶ πρὸς τὸ βῆμα

PERICLES

It was from natural science, as the divine Plato says,¹ that he "acquired his loftiness of thought and perfectness of execution, in addition to his natural gifts," and by applying what he learned to the art of speaking, he far excelled all other speakers. It was thus, they say, that he got his surname; though some suppose it was from the structures with which he adorned the city, and others from his ability as a statesman and a general, that he was called Olympian. It is not at all unlikely that his reputation was the result of the blending in him of many high qualities. But the comic poets of that day, who let fly, both in earnest and in jest, many shafts of speech against him, make it plain that he got this surname chiefly because of his diction; they spoke of him as "thundering" and "lightening" when he harangued his audience,² and as "wielding a dread thunderbolt in his tongue."

There is on record also a certain saying of Thucydides, the son of Melesias, touching the clever persuasiveness of Pericles, a saying uttered in jest. Thucydides belonged to the party of the "Good and True," and was for a very long time a political antagonist of Pericles. When Archidamus, the king of the Lacedaemonians, asked him whether he or Pericles was the better wrestler, he replied: "Whenever I throw him in wrestling, he disputes the fall, and carries his point, and persuades the very men who saw him fall."

The truth is, however, that even Pericles, with all his gifts, was cautious in his discourse, so that when-

¹ Phaedrus, p. 270 a.

² Cf. Aristophanes, Acharnians, 528-531.

βαδίζων εὔχετο τοῖς θεοῖς μηδὲ ῥῆμα μηδὲν ἐκπεσεῖν ἄκοντος αὐτοῦ πρὸς τὴν προκειμένην
 5 χρείαν ἀνάρμοστον. ἔγγραφον μὲν οὖν οὐδὲν ἀπολέλοιπε πλὴν τῶν ψηφισμάτων· ἀπομνημονεύεται δ' ὀλίγα παντάπασιν· οἶον τὸ τὴν Λίγιναν ὡς λήμνην τοῦ Πειραιῶς ἀφελεῖν κελεῦσαι, καὶ τὸ τὸν πόλεμον ἤδη φάναι καθορᾶν ἀπὸ Πελοποννήσου προσφερόμενον. καὶ ποτε τοῦ Σοφοκλέους, ὅτε συστρατηγῶν ἐξέπλευσε μετ' αὐτοῦ, παῖδα καλὸν ἐπαινέσαντος, “Οὐ μόνου,” ἔφη, “τὰς χεῖρας, ὦ Σοφόκλεις, δεῖ καθαρὰς ἔχειν τὸν στρατηγόν, ἀλλὰ καὶ τὰς
 6 ὄψεις.” ὁ δὲ Στησίμβροτός φησιν ὅτι τοὺς ἐν Σάμῳ τεθνηκότας ἐγκωμιάζων ἐπὶ τοῦ βήματος ἀθανάτους ἔλεγε γεγονέναι καθάπερ τοὺς θεούς· οὐ γὰρ ἐκείνους αὐτοὺς ὀρώμεν, ἀλλὰ ταῖς τιμαῖς ἃς ἔχουσι, καὶ τοῖς ἀγαθοῖς ἃ παρέχουσιν, ἀθανάτους εἶναι τεκμαιρόμεθα· ταῦτ' οὖν ὑπάρχειν καὶ τοῖς ὑπὲρ τῆς πατρίδος ἀποθανοῦσιν.

IX. Ἐπεὶ δὲ Θουκυδίδης μὲν ἀριστοκρατικὴν τινα τὴν τοῦ Περικλέους ὑπογράφει πολιτείαν, “λόγῳ μὲν οὔσαν δημοκρατίαν, ἔργῳ δ' ὑπὸ τοῦ πρώτου ἀνδρὸς ἀρχήν,” ἄλλοι δὲ πολλοὶ πρῶτον ὑπ' ἐκείνου φασὶ τὸν δῆμον ἐπὶ κληρουχίας καὶ θεωρικᾶ καὶ μισθῶν διανομὰς προαχθῆναι, κακῶς ἐθισθέντα καὶ γενόμενον πολυτελῆ καὶ ἀκόλαστον ὑπὸ τῶν τότε πολιτευμάτων ἀντὶ σώ-

PERICLES

ever he came forward to speak he prayed the gods that there might not escape him unawares a single word which was unsuited to the matter under discussion. In writing he left nothing behind him except the decrees which he proposed, and only a few in all of his memorable sayings are preserved, as, for instance, his urging the removal of Ægina as the "eye-sore of the Piræus," and his declaring that he "already beheld war swooping down upon them from Peloponnesus." Once also when Sophocles, who was general with him on a certain naval expedition,¹ praised a lovely boy, he said: "It is not his hands only, Sophocles, that a general must keep clean, but his eyes as well." Again, Stesimbrotus says that, in his funeral oration over those who had fallen in the Samian War, he declared that they had become immortal, like the gods; "the gods themselves," he said, "we cannot see, but from the honours which they receive, and the blessings which they bestow, we conclude that they are immortal." So it was, he said, with those who had given their lives for their country.

IX. Thucydides describes² the administration of Pericles as rather aristocratic,—“in name a democracy, but in fact a government by the greatest citizen.” But many others say that the people was first led on by him into allotments of public lands, festival-grants, and distributions of fees for public services, thereby falling into bad habits, and becoming luxurious and wanton under the influence of his public measures, instead of frugal and self-sufficing. ✓

¹ Against Samos, 440–439 B.C.

² In the encomium on Pericles, ii. 65, 9.

φρονος καὶ αὐτουργοῦ, θεωρεῖσθω διὰ τῶν πραγμάτων αὐτῶν ἢ αἰτία τῆς μεταβολῆς.

- 2 Ἐν ἀρχῇ μὲν γάρ, ὥσπερ εἴρηται, πρὸς τὴν Κίμωνος δόξαν ἀντιταττόμενος ὑπεποιεῖτο τὸν δῆμον ἐλαττούμενος δὲ πλούτῳ καὶ χρήμασιν, ἀφ' ὧν ἐκεῖνος ἀνελάμβανε τοὺς πένητας, δεῖπνόν τε καθ' ἡμέραν τῷ δεομένῳ παρέχων Ἀθηναίων, καὶ τοὺς πρεσβυτέρους ἀμφιεννύων, τῶν τε χωρίων τοὺς φραγμοὺς ἀφαιρῶν ὅπως ὀπωρίζωσιν οἱ βουλόμενοι, τούτοις ὁ Περικλῆς καταδημαγωγούμενος τρέπεται πρὸς τὴν τῶν δημοσίων διανομήν, συμβουλευσάντος αὐτῷ Δαμωνίδου τοῦ Ὁαθεν,
- 3 ὡς Ἀριστοτέλης ἰστόρηκε. καὶ ταχὺ θεωρικοῖς καὶ δικαστικοῖς λήμμασιν ἄλλαις τε μισθοφοραῖς καὶ χορηγίαις συνδεκάσας τὸ πλῆθος, ἐχρήτο κατὰ τῆς ἐξ Ἀρείου πάγου βουλῆς, ἧς αὐτὸς οὐ μετεῖχε διὰ τὸ μὴτ' ἄρχων μῆτε θεσμοθέτης μῆτε βασιλεὺς μῆτε πολέμαρχος λαχεῖν. αὐταὶ γὰρ αἱ ἀρχαὶ κληρωταὶ τε ἦσαν ἐκ παλαιοῦ, καὶ δι' αὐτῶν οἱ δοκιμασθέντες ἀνέβαινον εἰς Ἀρειοπάγον.
- 4 διὸ καὶ μᾶλλον ἰσχύσας ὁ Περικλῆς ἐν τῷ δήμῳ κατεστασίασε τὴν βουλήν, ὥστε τὴν μὲν ἀφαιρεθῆναι τὰς πλείστας κρίσεις δι' Ἐφιάλτου, Κίμωνα δ' ὡς φιλολάκωνα καὶ μισόδημον ἐξοστρακισθῆναι, πλούτῳ μὲν καὶ γένει μηδενὸς ἀπολειπόμενον, νίκας δὲ καλλίστας νενικηκότα

PERICLES

Let us therefore examine in detail the reason for this change in him.¹

In the beginning, as has been said, pitted as he was against the reputation of Cimon, he tried to ingratiate himself with the people. And since he was the inferior in wealth and property, by means of which Cimon would win over the poor,—furnishing a dinner every day to any Athenian who wanted it, bestowing raiment on the elderly men, and removing the fences from his estates that whosoever wished might pluck the fruit,—Pericles, outdone in popular arts of this sort, had recourse to the distribution of the people's own wealth. This was on the advice of Damonides, of the deme Oa, as Aristotle has stated.² And soon, what with festival-grants and jurors' wages and other fees and largesses, he bribed the multitude by the wholesale, and used them in opposition to the Council of the Areiopagus. Of this body he himself was not a member, since the lot had not made him either First Archon, or Archon Thesmothete, or King Archon, or Archon Polemarch. These offices were in ancient times filled by lot, and through them those who properly acquitted themselves were promoted into the Areiopagus. For this reason all the more did Pericles, strong in the affections of the people, lead a successful party against the Council of the Areiopagus. Not only was the Council robbed of most of its jurisdiction by Ephialtes, but Cimon also, on the charge of being a lover of Sparta and a hater of the people, was ostracized,³—a man who yielded to none in wealth

¹ The discussion of this change in Pericles from the methods of a demagogue to the leadership described by Thucydides, continues through chapter xv. ² Const. of Athens, xxvii. 4.

³ 461 B.C. Cf. Cimon, xvii. 2.

τοὺς βαρβάρους καὶ χρημάτων πολλῶν καὶ λαφύρων ἐμπεπληκότα τὴν πόλιν, ὡς ἐν τοῖς περὶ ἐκείνου γέγραπται. Τοσοῦτον ἦν τὸ κράτος ἐν τῷ δήμῳ τοῦ Περικλέους.

Χ. Ὁ μὲν οὖν ἐξοστρακισμὸς ὠρισμένην εἶχε νόμῳ δεκαετίαν τοῖς φεύγουσιν· ἐν δὲ τῷ διαμέσου Λακεδαιμονίων στρατῷ μεγάλῳ ἐμβαλόντων εἰς τὴν Ταναγρικὴν καὶ τῶν Ἀθηναίων εὐθύς ὀρμησάντων ἐπ' αὐτούς, ὁ μὲν Κίμων ἐλθὼν ἐκ τῆς φυγῆς ἔθετο μετὰ τῶν φυλετῶν εἰς λόχον τὰ ὄπλα καὶ δι' ἔργων ἀπολύεσθαι τὸν Λακωνισμόν ἐβούλετο, συγκινδυνεύσας τοῖς πολίταις, οἱ δὲ φίλοι τοῦ Περικλέους συστάντες ἀπήλασαν αὐτὸν
 2 ὡς φυγάδα. διὸ καὶ δοκεῖ Περικλῆς ἐρρωμένεστατα¹ τὴν μάχην ἐκείνην ἀγωνίσασθαι καὶ γενέσθαι πάντων ἐπιφανέστατος ἀφειδήσας τοῦ σώματος. ἔπεσον δὲ καὶ τοῦ Κίμωνος οἱ φίλοι πάντες ὁμαλῶς, οὓς Περικλῆς συνεπητιᾶτο τοῦ Λακωνισμοῦ· καὶ μετάνοια δεινὴ τοὺς Ἀθηναίους καὶ πόθος ἔσχε τοῦ Κίμωνος, ἠττημένους μὲν ἐπὶ τῶν ὄρων τῆς Ἀπτικῆς, προσδοκῶντας δὲ βαρὺν
 3 εἰς ἔτους ὦραν πόλεμον. αἰσθόμενος οὖν ὁ Περικλῆς οὐκ ὤκνησε χαρίσασθαι τοῖς πολλοῖς, ἀλλὰ τὸ ψήφισμα γράψας αὐτὸς ἐκάλει τὸν ἄνδρα, καὶ κείνος κατελθὼν² εἰρήνην ἐποίησε ταῖς πόλεσιν. οἰκείως γὰρ εἶχον οἱ Λακεδαιμόνιοι πρὸς αὐτὸν ὥσπερ ἀπήχθοντο τῷ Περικλεῖ καὶ τοῖς ἄλλοις δημαγωγοῖς.

¹ ἐρρωμένεστατα Cobet, Sintenis², Fuhr, Blass; ἐρρωμενεστατήν Bekker, with the MSS.

² κατελθὼν Sintenis², Fuhr, Blass; ἀπελθὼν Bekker, with the MSS.

PERICLES

and lineage, who had won most glorious victories over the Barbarians, and had filled the city full of money and spoils, as is written in his Life. Such was the power of Pericles among the people.

X. Now ostracism involved legally a period of ten years' banishment. But in the meanwhile¹ the Lacedæmonians invaded the district of Tanagra with a great army, and the Athenians straightway sallied out against them. So Cimon came back from his banishment and stationed himself with his tribesmen in line of battle, and determined by his deeds to rid himself of the charge of too great love for Sparta, in that he shared the perils of his fellow-citizens. But the friends of Pericles banded together and drove him from the ranks, on the ground that he was under sentence of banishment. For which reason, it is thought, Pericles fought most sturdily in that battle, and was the most conspicuous of all in exposing himself to danger. And there fell in this battle all the friends of Cimon to a man, whom Pericles had accused with him of too great love for Sparta. Wherefore sore repentance fell upon the Athenians, and a longing desire for Cimon, defeated as they were on the confines of Attica, and expecting as they did a grievous war with the coming of spring. So then Pericles, perceiving this, hesitated not to gratify the desires of the multitude, but wrote with his own hand the decree which recalled the man. Whereupon Cimon came back from banishment and made peace² between the cities. For the Lacedæmonians were as kindly disposed towards him as they were full of hatred towards Pericles and the other popular leaders.

¹ 457 B.C.

² 450 B.C.

- 4 Ἐνιοὶ δὲ φασὶν οὐ πρότερον γραφῆναι τῷ Κίμωνι τὴν κάθοδον ὑπὸ τοῦ Περικλέους ἢ συνθήκας αὐτοῖς ἀπορρήτους γειέσθαι δι' Ἑλπινίκης, τῆς Κίμωνος ἀδελφῆς, ὥστε Κίμωνα μὲν ἐκπλεῦσαι λαβόντα ναῦς διακοσίας καὶ τῶν ἔξω στρατηγεῖν, καταστρεφόμενον τὴν βασιλέως χώραν, Περικλεῖ δὲ τὴν ἐν ἄστει δύναμιν ὑπάρχειν.
- 5 ἐδόκει δὲ καὶ πρότερον ἢ Ἑλπινίκη τῷ Κίμωνι τὸν Περικλέα πρότερον παρασχεῖν, ὅτε τὴν θανατικὴν δίκην ἔφευγεν. ἦν μὲν γὰρ εἰς τῶν κατηγορῶν ὁ Περικλῆς ὑπὸ τοῦ δήμου προβεβλημένος, ἐλθούσης δὲ πρὸς αὐτὸν τῆς Ἑλπινίκης καὶ δεομένης μειδιάσας εἶπεν· “ὦ Ἑλπινίκη, γραῦς εἶ, γραῦς εἶ, ὡς πράγματα τηλικαῦτα πράσσειν.” οὐ μὴν ἀλλὰ καὶ πρὸς τὸν λόγον ἄπαξ ἀνέστη, τὴν προβολὴν ἀφοσιούμενος, καὶ τῶν κατηγορῶν ἐλάχιστα τὸν Κίμωνα λυπήσας ἀπεχώρησε.
- 6 Πῶς ἂν οὖν τις Ἰδομενεί πιστεύσειε κατηγοροῦντι τοῦ Περικλέους ὡς τὸν δημαγωγὸν Ἐφιάλτην φίλον γενόμενον καὶ κοινῶν ὄντα τῆς ἐν τῇ πολιτείᾳ προαιρέσεως δολοφονήσαντος διὰ ζηλοτυπίαν καὶ φθόνον τῆς δόξης; ταῦτα γὰρ οὐκ οἶδ' ὅθεν συναγαγὼν ὥσπερ χολὴν τάνδρῃ προσβέβληκε, πάντῃ μὲν ἴσως οὐκ ἀνεπιλήπτῳ, φρόνημα δ' εὐγενὲς ἔχοντι καὶ ψυχὴν φιλότιμον, οἷς οὐδὲν ἐμφύεται πάθος ὠμὸν οὕτω καὶ θηριῶδες.
- 7 Ἐφιάλτην μὲν οὖν φοβερόν ὄντα τοῖς ὀλιγαρχικοῖς καὶ περὶ τὰς εὐθύνας καὶ διώξεις τῶν τὸν δῆμον ἀδικούντων ἀπαραίτητον ἐπιβουλεύσαντες οἱ ἐχθροὶ δι' Ἀριστοδίκου τοῦ Ἐπιβουλεύσαντος κρυφαίως

PERICLES

Some, however, say that the decree for the restoration of Cimon was not drafted by Pericles until a secret compact had been made between them, through the agency of Elpinicé, Cimon's sister, to the effect that Cimon should sail out with a fleet of two hundred ships and have command in foreign parts, attempting to subdue the territory of the King, while Pericles should have supreme power in the city. And it was thought that before this, too, Elpinice had rendered Pericles more lenient towards Cimon, when he stood his trial on the capital charge of treason.¹ Pericles was at that time one of the committee of prosecution appointed by the people, and on Elpinice's coming to him and supplicating him, said to her with a smile: "Elpinice, thou art an old woman, thou art an old woman, to attempt such tasks." However, he made only one speech, by way of formally executing his commission, and in the end did the least harm to Cimon of all his accusers.

How, then, can one put trust in Idomeneus, who accuses Pericles of assassinating the popular leader Ephialtes, though he was his friend and a partner in his political program, out of mere jealousy and envy of his reputation? These charges he has raked up from some source or other and hurled them, as if so much venom, against one who was perhaps not in all points irreproachable, but who had a noble disposition and an ambitious spirit, wherein no such savage and bestial feelings can have their abode. As for Ephialtes, who was a terror to the oligarchs and inexorable in exacting accounts from those who wronged the people, and in prosecuting them, his enemies laid plots against him, and had him slain ἀνεῖλον, ὡς Ἀριστοτέλης εἶρηκεν. ἐτελεύτησε δὲ Κίμων ἐν Κύπρῳ στρατηγῶν.

¹ 463 B.C. Cf. Cimon, xiv. 2-4.

XI. Οἱ δ' ἀριστοκρατικοὶ μέγιστον μὲν ἤδη τὸν Περικλέα καὶ πρόσθεν ὀρώντες γεγυότα τῶν πολιτῶν, βουλόμενοι δ' ὅμως εἶναί τινα τὸν πρὸς αὐτὸν ἀντιτασσόμενον ἐν τῇ πόλει καὶ τὴν δύναμιν ἀμβλύνοντα, ὥστε μὴ κομιδῇ μοναρχίαν εἶναι, Θουκυδίδην τὸν Ἀλωπεκῆθεν, ἄνδρα σώφρονα καὶ κηδεστήν Κίμωνος, ἀντέστησαν ἐναντιωσόμενον, 2 ὃς ἦπτον μὲν ὦν πολεμικὸς τοῦ Κίμωνος, ἀγοραῖος δὲ καὶ πολιτικὸς μᾶλλον, οἰκουρῶν ἐν ἄστει καὶ περὶ τὸ βῆμα τῷ Περικλεῖ συμπλεκόμενος, ταχὺ τὴν πολιτείαν εἰς ἀντίπαλον κατέστησεν.

Οὐ γὰρ εἶασε τοὺς καλοὺς κἀγαθοὺς καλουμένους ἄνδρας ἐνδιεσπάρθαι καὶ συμμεμίχθαι πρὸς τὸν δῆμον, ὡς πρότερον, ὑπὸ πλῆθους ἡμαυρωμένους τὸ ἀξίωμα, χωρὶς δὲ διακρίνας καὶ συναγαγῶν εἰς ταῦτὸ τὴν πάντων δύναμιν ἐμβριθῆ 3 γενομένην ὥσπερ ἐπὶ ζυγοῦ ῥοπήν ἐποίησεν. ἦν μὲν γὰρ ἐξ ἀρχῆς διπλόη τις ὕπουλος, ὥσπερ ἐν σιδήρῳ, διαφορὰν ὑποσημαίνουσα δημοτικῆς καὶ ἀριστοκρατικῆς προαιρέσεως, ἣ δ' ἐκείνων ἄμιλλα καὶ φιλοτιμία τῶν ἀνδρῶν βαθυτάτην τομὴν τεμοῦσα τῆς πόλεως τὸ μὲν δῆμον, τὸ δ' ὀλίγους 4 ἐποίησε καλεῖσθαι. διὸ καὶ τότε μάλιστα τῷ δήμῳ τὰς ἡγίας ἀνεῖς ὁ Περικλῆς ἐπολιτεύετο πρὸς χάριν, αἰεὶ μὲν τινα θέαν πανηγυρικὴν ἢ ἐστίασιν ἢ πομ-

PERICLES

secretly by Aristodicus of Tanagra, as Aristotle says.¹ As for Cimon, he died on his campaign in Cyprus.²

XI. Then the aristocrats, aware even some time before this that Pericles was already become the greatest citizen, but wishing nevertheless to have some one in the city who should stand up against him and blunt the edge of his power, that it might not be an out and out monarchy, put forward Thucydides of Alopecé, a discreet man and a relative of Cimon, to oppose him. He, being less of a warrior than Cimon, and more of a forensic speaker and statesman, by keeping watch and ward in the city, and by wrestling bouts with Pericles on the bema, soon brought the administration into even poise.

He would not suffer the party of the "Good and True," as they called themselves, to be scattered up and down and blended with the populace, as heretofore, the weight of their character being thus obscured by numbers, but by culling them out and assembling them into one body, he made their collective influence, thus become weighty, as it were a counterpoise in the balance. Now there had been from the beginning a sort of seam hidden beneath the surface of affairs, as in a piece of iron, which faintly indicated a divergence between the popular and the aristocratic programme; but the emulous ambition of these two men cut a deep gash in the state, and caused one section of it to be called the "Demos," or the People, and the other the "Oligoi," or the Few. At this time, therefore, particularly, Pericles gave the reins to the people, and made his policy one of pleasing them, ever devising some

¹ Const. of Athens, xxv. A.

² 449 B.C. Cf. Cimon, xviii., xix.

πήν εἶναι μηχανώμενος ἐν ἄστει καὶ “ διαπαιδαγωγῶν οὐκ ἀμούσοις ἡδοναῖς ” τὴν πόλιν, ἐξήκοντα δὲ τριῆρεις καθ’ ἕκαστον ἐνιαυτὸν ἐκπέμπων, ἐν αἷς πολλοὶ τῶν πολιτῶν ἔπλεον ὀκτῶ μῆνας ἔμμισθοι, μελετῶντες ἅμα καὶ μανθάνοντες τὴν ναυτικὴν
 5 ἔμπειρίαν. πρὸς δὲ τούτοις χιλίους μὲν ἔστειλεν εἰς Χερρόνησον κληρούχους, εἰς δὲ Νάξον πεντακοσίους, εἰς δὲ Ἄνδρον τοὺς ἡμίσεις¹ τούτων, εἰς δὲ Θράκην χιλίους Βισάλταις συνοικήσοντας, ἄλλους δ’ εἰς Ἰταλίαν οἰκιζομένης Συβάρειως, ἣν Θουρίους προσηγόρευσαν. καὶ ταῦτ’ ἔπραττεν ἀποκουφίζων μὲν ἀργοῦ καὶ διὰ σχολὴν πολυπράγμονος ὄχλου τὴν πόλιν, ἐπανορθούμενος δὲ τὰς ἀπορίας τοῦ δήμου, φόβον δὲ καὶ φρουρὰν τοῦ μὴ νεωτερίζειν τι παρακατοικίζων τοῖς συμμάχοις.

XII. Ὁ δὲ πλείστην μὲν ἡδονὴν ταῖς Ἀθήναις καὶ κόσμον ἤνεγκε, μεγίστην δὲ τοῖς ἄλλοις ἔκπληξιν ἀνθρώποις, μόνον δὲ τῇ Ἑλλάδι μαρτυρεῖ μὴ ψεύδεσθαι τὴν λεγομένην δύναμιν αὐτῆς ἐκείνην καὶ τὸν παλαιὸν ὄλβον, ἣ τῶν ἀναθημάτων κατασκευῇ, τοῦτο μάλιστα τῶν πολιτευμάτων τοῦ Περικλέους ἐβάσκαινον οἱ ἐχθροὶ καὶ διέβαλλον ἐν ταῖς ἐκκλησίαις, βοῶντες ὡς ὁ μὲν δήμος ἀδοξεῖ καὶ κακῶς ἀκούει τὰ κοινὰ τῶν Ἑλλήνων
 2 χρήματα πρὸς αὐτὸν ἐκ Δήλου μεταγαγών, ἣ δ’ ἔνεστιν αὐτῷ πρὸς τοὺς ἐγκαλοῦντας εὐπρεπεστάτη τῶν προφάσεων, δεῖσαντα τοὺς βαρβάρους ἐκεῖθει

¹ τοὺς ἡμίσεις Fuhr and Blass, after Cobet : ἡμίσεις.

PERICLES

sort of a pageant in the town for the masses, or a feast, or a procession, "amusing them like children with not uncouth delights,"¹ and sending out sixty triremes annually, on which large numbers of the citizens sailed about for eight months under pay, practising at the same time and acquiring the art of seamanship. In addition to this, he despatched a thousand settlers to the Chersonesus,² and five hundred to Naxos, and to Andros half that number, and a thousand to Thrace to settle with the Bisaltae, and others to Italy, when the site of Sybaris was settled,³ which they named Thurii. All this he did by way of lightening the city of its mob of lazy and idle busybodies, rectifying the embarrassments of the poorer people, and giving the allies for neighbours an imposing garrison which should prevent rebellion.

XII. But that which brought most delightful adornment to Athens, and the greatest amazement to the rest of mankind; that which alone now testifies for Hellas that her ancient power and splendour, of which so much is told, was no idle fiction,—I mean his construction of sacred edifices,—this, more than all the public measures of Pericles, his enemies maligned and slandered. They cried out in the assemblies: "The people has lost its fair fame and is in ill repute because it has removed the public moneys of the Hellenes from Delos into its own keeping, and that seemliest of all excuses which it had to urge against its accusers, to wit, that out of fear of the Barbarians it took the public funds

¹ An iambic trimeter from an unknown source.

² 447 B.C. Cf. chapter xix. 1-2.

³ 444 B.C. Sybaris had been destroyed in 510 B.C.

ἀνελέσθαι καὶ φυλάττειν ἐν ὀχυρῷ τὰ κοινά, ταύτην ἀνήρηκε Περικλῆς· καὶ δοκεῖ δεινὴν ὕβριν ἢ Ἑλλὰς ὑβρίζεσθαι καὶ τυραννεῖσθαι περιφανῶς, ὁρῶσα τοῖς εἰσφερομένοις ὑπ' αὐτῆς ἀναγκαίως πρὸς τὸν πόλεμον ἡμᾶς τὴν πόλιν καταχρυσούντας καὶ καλλωπίζοντας ὥσπερ ἀλαζόνα γυναῖκα, περιαπτομένην λίθους πολυτελεῖς καὶ ἀγάλματα καὶ ναοὺς χιλιοταλάντους.

3 Ἐδίδασκεν οὖν ὁ Περικλῆς τὸν δῆμον ὅτι χρημάτων μὲν οὐκ ὀφείλουσι τοῖς συμμάχοις λόγου προπολεμοῦντες αὐτῶν καὶ τοὺς βαρβάρους ἀνείργοντες, οὐχ ἵπποι, οὐ ναῦν, οὐχ ὀπλίτην, ἀλλὰ χρήματα μόνον τελούντων, ἃ τῶν διδόντων 159 οὐκ ἔστιν, ἀλλὰ τῶν λαμβανόντων, ἂν παρέχωσιν

4 ἀνθ' οὗ λαμβάνουσι· δεῖ δὲ τίς πόλεως κατεσκευασμένης ἰκανῶς τοῖς ἀναγκαίοις πρὸς τὸν πόλεμον, εἰς ταῦτα τὴν εὐπορίαν τρέπειν αὐτῆς ἀφ' ὧν δόξα μὲν γενομένων αἰδῖος, εὐπορία δὲ γινομένων ἐτοίμη παρέσται, παντοδαπῆς ἐργασίας φανείσης καὶ ποικίλων χρεῖων, αἱ πᾶσαν μὲν τέχνην ἐγείρουσαι, πᾶσαν δὲ χεῖρα κινουσαι, σχεδὸν ὅλην ποιοῦσιν ἔμμισθον τὴν πόλιν, ἐξ αὐτῆς ἅμα κοσμουμένην καὶ τρεφομένην.

5 Τοῖς μὲν γὰρ ἡλικίαν ἔχουσι καὶ ῥώμην αἱ στρατεῖαι τὰς ἀπὸ τῶν κοινῶν εὐπορίας παρείχον, τὸν δ' ἀσύντακτον καὶ βάνουσον ὄχλον οὔτ' ἄμοιρον εἶναι λημμάτων βουλόμενος οὔτε λαμβάνειν ἀργὸν καὶ σχολάζοντα, μεγάλας κατασκευ-

PERICLES

from that sacred isle and was now guarding them in a stronghold, of this Pericles has robbed it. And surely Hellas is insulted with a dire insult and manifestly subjected to tyranny when she sees that, with her own enforced contributions for the war, we are gilding and bedizening our city, which, for all the world like a wanton woman, adds to her wardrobe precious stones and costly statues and temples worth their millions."

For his part, Pericles would instruct the people that it owed no account of their moneys to the allies provided it carried on the war for them and kept off the Barbarians; "not a horse do they furnish," said he, "not a ship, not a hoplite, but money simply; and this belongs, not to those who give it, but to those who take it, if only they furnish that for which they take it in pay. And it is but meet that the city, when once she is sufficiently equipped with all that is necessary for prosecuting the war, should apply her abundance to such works as, by their completion, will bring her everlasting glory, and while in process of completion will bring that abundance into actual service, in that all sorts of activity and diversified demands arise, which rouse every art and stir every hand, and bring, as it were, the whole city under pay, so that she not only adorns, but supports herself as well from her own resources."

And it was true that his military expeditions supplied those who were in the full vigour of manhood with abundant resources from the common funds, and in his desire that the unwarlike throng of common labourers should neither have no share at all in the public receipts, nor yet get fees for

ασμάτων ἐπιβολὰς καὶ πολυτέχνους ὑποθέσεις ἔργων διατριβὴν ἔχόντων ἐνέβαλε φέρων εἰς τὸν δῆμον, ἵνα μηδὲν ἦττον τῶν πλεόντων καὶ φρουρούντων καὶ στρατευομένων τὸ οἰκουροῦν ἔχη πρόφασιν ἀπὸ τῶν δημοσίων ὠφελεῖσθαι καὶ
 6 μεταλαμβάνειν. ὅπου γὰρ ὕλη μὲν ἦν λίθος, χαλκός, ἐλέφας, χρυσός, ἔβενος, κυπάρισσος, αἰ δὲ ταύτην ἐκπονοῦσαι καὶ κτεργαζόμεναι τέχναι, τέκτονες, πλάσται, χαλκοτύποι, λιθουργοί, βαφείς, χρυσοῦ μαλακτῆρες καὶ ἐλέφαντος, ζωγράφοι, ποικιλταί, τορευταί, πομποὶ δὲ τούτων καὶ κομιστῆρες, ἔμποροι καὶ ναῦται καὶ κυβερνήται
 7 κατὰ θάλατταν, οἱ δὲ κατὰ γῆν ἀμαξοπηγοὶ καὶ ζευγοτρόφοι καὶ ἡνίοχοι καὶ καλωστρόφοι καὶ λινουργοὶ καὶ σκυτοτόμοι καὶ ὄδοποιοὶ καὶ μεταλλεῖς, ἐκάστη δὲ τέχνη, καθάπερ στρατηγὸς ἴδιον στρατεύμα, τὸν θητικὸν ὄχλον καὶ ἰδιώτην συντεταγμένον εἶχεν, ὄργανον καὶ σῶμα τῆς ὑπηρεσίας γινόμενον, εἰς πᾶσαν, ὡς ἔπος εἰπεῖν, ἡλικίαν καὶ φύσιν αἱ χρεῖαι διένεμον καὶ διέσπειρον τὴν εὐπορίαν.

XIII. Ἀναβαινόντων δὲ τῶν ἔργων ὑπερηφάνων μὲν μεγέθει, μορφῇ δ' ἀμιμήτων καὶ χάριτι, τῶν δημιουργῶν ἀμιλλωμένων ὑπερβάλλεσθαι τὴν δημιουργίαν τῇ καλλιτεχνίᾳ, μάλιστα θαυμάσιον ἦν τὸ τάχος. ὧν γὰρ ἕκαστον ὦντο πολλαῖς διςδοχαῖς καὶ ἡλικίαις μόλις ἐπὶ τέλος ἀφίξεσθαι, ταῦτα πάντα μιᾶς ἀκμῇ πολιτείας laziness and idleness, he boldly suggested to the people projects for great constructions, and designs for works which would call many arts into play and involve long periods of time, in order that the stay-at-homes, no whit less than the sailors and sentinels and soldiers, might have a pretext for getting a beneficial share of the public wealth. The materials to be used were stone, bronze, ivory, gold, ebony, and cypress-wood; the arts which should elaborate and work up these materials were those of carpenter, moulder, bronze-smith, stone-cutter, dyer, worker in gold and ivory, painter, embroiderer, embosser, to say nothing of the forwarders and furnishers of the material, such as factors, sailors and pilots by sea, and, by land, wagon-makers, trainers of yoked beasts, and drivers. There were also rope-makers, weavers, leather-workers, road-builders, and miners. And since each particular art, like a general with the army under his separate command, kept its own throng of unskilled and untrained labourers in compact array, to be as instrument unto player and as body unto soul in subordinate service, it came to pass that for every age, almost, and every capacity the city's great abundance was distributed and scattered abroad by such demands.

PERICLES

XIII. So then the works arose, no less towering in their grandeur than inimitable in the grace of their outlines, since the workmen eagerly strove to surpass themselves in the beauty of their handicraft. And yet the most wonderful thing about them was the speed with which they rose. Each one of them, men thought, would require many successive generations to complete it, but all of them were

- 2 ἐλάμβανε τὴν συντέλειαν. καίτοι ποτέ φασιν Ἀγαθάρχου τοῦ ζωγράφου μέγα φρονούντος ἐπὶ τῷ ταχύ καὶ ῥαδίως τὰ ζῶα ποιεῖν ἀκούσαντα τὸν Ζεῦξιν εἰπεῖν. “Ἐγὼ δ’ ἐν πολλῷ χρόνῳ.” ἢ γὰρ ἐν τῷ ποιεῖν εὐχέρεια καὶ ταχύτης οὐκ ἐντίθησι βάρος ἔργῳ μόνιμον οὐδὲ κάλλους ἀκρίβειαν· ὁ δ’ εἰς τὴν γένεσιν τῷ πόνῳ προδανεισθεὶς χρόνος ἐν τῇ σωτηρίᾳ τοῦ γενομένου τὴν ἰσχὺν
- 3 ἀποδίδωσιν. ὅθεν καὶ μᾶλλον θαυμάζεται τὰ Περικλέους ἔργα πρὸς πολὺν χρόνον ἐν ὀλίγῳ γενόμενα. κάλλει μὲν γὰρ ἕκαστον εὐθύς ἦν τότε ἀρχαῖον, ἀκμῇ δὲ μέχρι νῦν πρόσφατόν ἐστι καὶ νεουργόν· οὕτως ἐπανθεὶ καινότης αἰεί τις¹ ἄθικτον ὑπὸ τοῦ χρόνου διατηροῦσα τὴν ὄψιν, ὥσπερ αἰιθαλὲς πνεῦμα καὶ ψυχὴν ἀγήρω καταμειγμένην τῶν ἔργων ἐχόντων.
- 4 Πάντα δὲ διείπε καὶ πάντων ἐπίσκοπος ἦν αὐτῷ Φειδίας, καίτοι μεγάλους ἀρχιτέκτονας ἐχόντων καὶ τεχνίτας τῶν ἔργων. τὸν μὲν γὰρ ἐκατόμπεδον Παρθενῶνα Καλλικράτης εἰργάζετο καὶ Ἴκτῖνος, τὸ δ’ ἐν Ἐλευσίνι τελεστήριον ἤρξατο μὲν Κόροιβος οἰκοδομεῖν, καὶ τοὺς ἐπ’ ἐδάφους κίονας ἔθηκεν οὗτος καὶ τοῖς ἐπιστυλίοις ἐπέξευξεν· ἀποθανόντος δὲ τούτου Μεταγένης ὁ Ξυπέτιος τὸ διάζωμα καὶ τοὺς ἄνω κίονας
- 5 ἐπέστησε· τὸ δ’ ὅπαιον ἐπὶ τοῦ ἀνακτόρου Ξενοκλῆς ὁ Χολαργεὺς ἐκορύφωσε· τὸ δὲ μακρὸν 160

καινότης αἰεί τις Fuhr and Blass with F²S : καινότης τις.

PERICLES

fully completed in the heyday of a single administration. And yet they say that once on a time when Agatharchus the painter was boasting loudly of the speed and ease with which he made his figures, Zeuxis heard him, and said, "Mine take, and last, a long time." And it is true that deftness and speed in working do not impart to the work an abiding weight of influence nor an exactness of beauty; whereas the time which is put out to loan in laboriously creating, pays a large and generous interest in the preservation of the creation. For this reason are the works of Pericles all the more to be wondered at; they were created in a short time for all time. Each one of them, in its beauty, was even then and at once antique; but in the freshness of its vigour it is, even to the present day, recent and newly wrought. Such is the bloom of perpetual newness, as it were, upon these works of his, which makes them ever to look untouched by time, as though the unfaltering breath of an ageless spirit had been infused into them.

His general manager and general overseer was Pheidias, although the several works had great architects and artists besides. Of the Parthenon, for instance, with its cella of a hundred feet in length, Callicrates and Ictinus were the architects; it was Coroebus who began to build the sanctuary of the mysteries at Eleusis, and he planted the columns on the floor and yoked their capitals together with architraves; but on his death Metagenes, of the deme Xypete, carried up the frieze and the upper tier of columns; while Xenocles, of the deme Cholargus, set on high the lantern over the shrine.

τείχος, περὶ οὗ Σωκράτης ἀκούσαι φησιν αὐτὸς εἰσηγουμένου γνώμην Περικλέους, ἠργολάβησε Καλλικράτης. κωμῳδεῖ δὲ τὸ ἔργον Κρατῖνος ὡς βραδέως περαίνόμενον·

Πάλαι γὰρ αὐτό, φησί, λόγοισι προάγει Περικλῆς, ἔργοισι δ' οὐδὲ
κινεῖ.

Τὸ δ' Ὀιδεῖον, τῇ μὲν ἐντὸς διαθέσει πολύεδρον καὶ πολύστυλον, τῇ δ' ἐρέψει περικλινῆς καὶ κάταπτες ἐκ μιᾶς κορυφῆς πεποιημένον, εἰκόνα λέγουσι γενέσθαι καὶ μίμημα τῆς βασιλέως σκηνηῆς, ἐπιστατοῦντος καὶ τούτῳ Περικλέους.
6 διὸ καὶ πάλιν Κρατῖνος ἐν Θράτταις παίζει πρὸς αὐτόν·

Ὁ σχινοκέφαλος Ζεὺς ὄδε
προσέρχεται¹ τῷδεῖον ἐπὶ τοῦ κρανίου
ἔχων, ἐπειδὴ τοῦστρακον παροίχεται.

φιλοτιμούμενος δ' ὁ Περικλῆς τότε πρῶτον ἐψηφίσατο μουσικῆς ἀγῶνα τοῖς Παναθηναίοις ἄγεσθαι, καὶ διέταξεν αὐτὸς ἀθλοθέτης αἰρεθεὶς καθότι χρὴ τοὺς ἀγωνιζομένους αὐλεῖν ἢ ἄδειν ἢ κιθαρίζειν. ἐθεῶντο δὲ καὶ τότε καὶ τὸν ἄλλον χρόνον ἐν Ὀιδείῳ τοὺς μουσικοὺς ἀγῶνας.

7 Τὰ δὲ Προπύλαια τῆς ἀκροπόλεως ἐξειργάσθη μὲν ἐν πενταετία Μνησικλέους ἀρχιτεκτονούντος· τύχη δὲ θαυμαστὴ συμβᾶσα περὶ τὴν οἰκοδομίαν ἐμήνυσε τὴν θεὸν οὐκ ἀποστατοῦσαν, ἀλλὰ

¹ ὅδε | προσέρχεται Fulur and Blass, after Cobet: προσέρχεται | Περικλῆς.

PERICLES

For the long wall, concerning which Socrates says¹ he himself heard Pericles introduce a measure, Callicrates was the contractor. Cratinus pokes fun at this work for its slow progress, and in these words:—

“Since ever so long now
In word has Pericles pushed the thing; in fact he does not budge it.”²

The Odeum, which was arranged internally with many tiers of seats and many pillars, and which had a roof made with a circular slope from a single peak, they say was an exact reproduction of the Great King's pavilion, and this too was built under the superintendence of Pericles. Wherefore Cratinus, in his “Thracian Women,” rails at him again:—

“The squill-head Zeus! lo! here he comes,
The Odeum like a cap upon his cranium,
Now that for good and all the ostracism is o'er.”³

Then first did Pericles, so fond of honour was he, get a decree passed that a musical contest be held as part of the Panathenaic festival. He himself was elected manager, and prescribed how the contestants must blow the flute, or sing, or pluck the zither. These musical contests were witnessed, both then and thereafter, in the Odeum.

The Propylaea of the acropolis were brought to completion in the space of five years, Mnesicles being their architect. A wonderful thing happened in the course of their building, which indicated that the goddess was not holding herself aloof, but was a

¹ Plato, Gorgias, p. 455 e.

² From a play of unknown name. Kock, Com. Att. Frag. i. p. 100.

³ Kock, op. cit. i. p. 35.

- συνεφαπτομένην τοῦ ἔργου καὶ συνεπιτελοῦσαν.
- 8 ὁ γὰρ ἐνεργότατος καὶ προθυμότατος τῶν τεχνιτῶν ἀποσφαλεῖς ἐξ ὕψους ἔπεσε καὶ διέκειτο μοχθηρῶς, ὑπὸ τῶν ἰατρῶν ἀπεγνωσμένος. ἀθυμούντος δὲ τοῦ Περικλέους ἡ θεὸς ὄναρ φανείσα συνέταξε θεραπείαν, ἣ χρώμενος ὁ Περικλῆς ταχὺ καὶ ῥαδίως ἰάσατο τὸν ἄνθρωπον. ἐπὶ τούτῳ δὲ καὶ τὸ χαλκοῦν ἄγαλμα τῆς Ὑγιείας Ἀθηναῶν ἀνέστησεν ἐν ἀκροπόλει παρὰ τὸν βωμὸν ὃς καὶ πρότερον ἦν, ὡς λέγουσιν.
- 9 Ὁ δὲ Φειδίας εἰργάζετο μὲν τῆς θεοῦ τὸ χρυσοῦν ἔδος, καὶ τούτου δημιουργὸς ἐν τῇ στήλῃ ἀναγέγραπται,¹ πάντα δ' ἦν σχεδὸν ἐπ' αὐτῷ, καὶ πᾶσιν, ὡς εἰρήκαμεν, ἐπεστάτει τοῖς τεχνίταις διὰ φιλίαν Περικλέους. καὶ τοῦτο τῷ μὲν φθόνῳ, τῷ δὲ βλασφημίαν ἤνεγκεν, ὡς ἐλευθέρας τῷ Περικλεῖ γυναῖκας εἰς τὰ ἔργα φοιτώσας ὑπο-
- 10 δεχομένου τοῦ Φειδίου. δεξάμενοι δὲ τὸν λόγον οἱ κωμικοὶ πολλὴν ἀσέλγειαν ἀπ' αὐτοῦ κατεσκεδάσαν, εἰς τε τὴν Μενίππου γυναῖκα διαβάλλοντες, ἀνδρὸς φίλου καὶ ὑποστρατηγοῦντος, εἰς τε τὰς Πυριλάμπους ὀρνιθοτροφίας, ὃς ἐταῖρος ὦν Περικλέους αἰτίαν εἶχε ταῶνας ὑφιέναι ταῖς γυναίξιν αἷς ὁ Περικλῆς ἐπλησίαζε.
- 11 Καὶ τί ἂν τις ἀνθρώπους σατυρικοὺς τοῖς βίοις καὶ τὰς κατὰ τῶν κρειπτόνων βλασφημίας ὥσπερ δαίμονι κακῷ τῷ φθόνῳ τῶν πολλῶν ἀποθύοντας ἐκάστοτε θαυμάσειεν, ὅπου καὶ Στησίμβροτος ὁ

¹ ἀναγέγραπται Cobet : εἶναι γέγραπται.

PERICLES

helper both in the inception and in the completion of the work. One of its artificers, the most active and zealous of them all, lost his footing and fell from a great height, and lay in a sorry plight, despaired of by the physicians. Pericles was much cast down at this, but the goddess appeared to him in a dream and prescribed a course of treatment for him to use, so that he speedily and easily healed the man. It was in commemoration of this that he set up the bronze statue of Athena Hygieia on the acropolis near the altar of that goddess, which was there before, as they say.

But it was Pheidias who produced the great golden image of the goddess, and he is duly inscribed on the tablet as the workman who made it. Everything, almost, was under his charge, and all the artists and artisans, as I have said, were under his superintendence, owing to his friendship with Pericles. This brought envy upon the one, and contumely on the other, to the effect that Pheidias made assignations for Pericles with free-born women who would come ostensibly to see the works of art. The comic poets took up this story and bespattered Pericles with charges of abounding wantonness, connecting their slanders with the wife of Menippus, a man who was his friend, and a colleague in the generalship, and with the bird-culture of Pyrilampes, who, since he was the comrade of Pericles, was accused of using his peacocks to bribe the women with whom Pericles consorted.

And why should any one be astonished that men of wanton life lose no occasion for offering up sacrifices, as it were, of contumelious abuse of their superiors, to the evil deity of popular envy, when

Θάσιος δεινὸν ἀσέβημα καὶ μυθῶδες ἐξενεγκεῖν ἐτόλμησεν εἰς τὴν γυναῖκα τοῦ υἱοῦ κατὰ τοῦ
 12 Περικλέους; οὕτως ἔοικε πάντῃ χαλεπὸν εἶναι καὶ
 δυσθήρατον ἱστορία τάληθές, ὅταν οἱ μὲν ὕστερον
 γεγονότες τὸν χρόνον ἔχωσιν ἐπιπροσθούντα τῇ
 γνώσει τῶν πραγμάτων, ἢ δὲ τῶν πράξεων καὶ
 τῶν βίων ἡλικιωτὶς ἱστορία τὰ μὲν φθούοις καὶ
 δυσμενεῖαις, τὰ δὲ χαριζομένη καὶ κολακεύουσα
 λυμαίνεται καὶ διαστρέφῃ τὴν ἀλήθειαν.

XIV. Τῶν δὲ περὶ τὸν Θουκυδίδην ῥητόρων
 καταβοώντων τοῦ Περικλέους ὡς σπαθῶντος τὰ
 χρήματα καὶ τὰς προσόδους ἀπολλύντος, ἠρώ-τησεν ἐν ἐκκλησίᾳ τὸν δῆμον εἰ πολλὰ δοκεῖ
 δεδαπανῆσθαι φησάντων δὲ πάμπολλα. “Μὴ
 τοίνυν,” εἶπεν, “ὑμῖν, ἀλλ’ ἐμοὶ δεδαπανήσθω,
 καὶ τῶν ἀναθημάτων ἰδίαν ἐμαντοῦ ποιήσομαι 2 τὴν ἐπιγραφὴν.” εἰπόντος οὖν ταῦτα τοῦ Περικκλέους, εἴτε τὴν μεγαλοφροσύνην αὐτοῦ θαυμά-σαντες εἴτε πρὸς τὴν δόξαν ἀντιφιλοτιμούμενοι 161
 τῶν ἔργων, ἀνέκραγον κελεύοντες ἐκ τῶν δημοσίων
 ἀναλίσκειν καὶ χορηγεῖν μηδενὸς φειδόμενον.
 τέλος δὲ πρὸς τὸν Θουκυδίδην εἰς ἀγῶνα περὶ τοῦ
 ὀστράκου καταστὰς καὶ διακινδυνεύσας ἐκείνον
 μὲν ἐξέβαλε, κατέλυσε δὲ τὴν ἀντιτεταγμένην ἑταιρείαν.

XV. Ὡς οὖν παντάπασι λυθείσης τῆς διαφο-ρᾶς καὶ τῆς πόλεως οἷον ὀμαλῆς καὶ μᾶς γενο-μένης κομιδῆ, περιήνεγκεν εἰς ἑαυτὸν τὰς Ἀθήνας

PERICLES

even Stesimbrotus of Thasos has ventured to make public charge against Pericles of a dreadful and fabulous impiety with his son's wife? To such degree, it seems, is truth hedged about with difficulty and hard to capture by research, since those who come after the events in question find that lapse of time is an obstacle to their proper perception of them; while the research of their contemporaries into men's deeds and lives, partly through envious hatred and partly through fawning flattery, defiles and distorts the truth.

XIV. Thucydides and his party kept denouncing Pericles for playing fast and loose with the public moneys and annihilating the revenues. Pericles therefore asked the people in assembly whether they thought he had expended too much, and on their declaring that it was altogether too much, "Well then," said he, "let it not have been spent on your account, but mine, and I will make the inscriptions of dedication in my own name." When Pericles had said this, whether it was that they admired his magnanimity or vied with his ambition to get the glory of his works, they cried out with a loud voice and bade him take freely from the public funds for his outlays, and to spare naught whatsoever. And finally he ventured to undergo with Thucydides the contest of the ostracism, wherein he secured his rival's banishment,¹ and the dissolution of the faction which had been arrayed against him.

XV. Thus, then, seeing that political differences were entirely remitted and the city had become a smooth surface, as it were, and altogether united, he brought under his own control Athens and all the

¹ 442 B.C.

καὶ τὰ τῶν Ἀθηναίων ἐξηρητημένα πράγματα, φόρους καὶ στρατεύματα καὶ τριήρεις καὶ νήσους καὶ θάλασσαν, καὶ πολλὴν μὲν δι' Ἑλλήνων, πολλὴν δὲ καὶ διὰ βαρβύρων ἤκουσαν ἰσχύν, καὶ ἡγεμονίαν ὑπηκοοῖς ἔθνεσι καὶ φιλίαις βασιλέων
 2 καὶ συμμαχίαις πεφραγμένην δυναστῶν, οὐκέθ' ὁ αὐτὸς ἦν οὐδ' ὁμοίως χειροῆθης τῷ δήμῳ καὶ ῥάδιος ὑπέικειν καὶ συνενδιδόναι ταῖς ἐπιθυμίαις ὥσπερ πνοαῖς τῶν πολλῶν, ἀλλ' ἐκ τῆς ἀνειμένης ἐκείνης καὶ ὑποθρυπτομένης ἔνια δημαγωγίας, ὥσπερ ἀνθηρᾶς καὶ μαλακῆς ἀρμονίας, ἀριστοκρατικὴν καὶ βασιλικὴν ἐντεινόμενος πολιτείαν, καὶ χρώμενος αὐτῇ πρὸς τὸ βέλτιστον ὀρθῇ καὶ
 3 ἀνεγκλίτῳ, τὰ μὲν πολλὰ βουλόμενον ἦγε πείθων καὶ διδάσκων τὸν δῆμον, ἦν δ' ὅτε καὶ μάλα δυσχεραίνοντα κατατείνων καὶ προσβιβάζων ἐχειροῦτο τῷ συμφέροντι, μιμούμενος ἀτεχνῶς ἰατρὸν ποικίλῳ νοσήματι καὶ μακρῷ κατὰ καιρὸν μὲν ἠδονὰς ἀβλαβεῖς, κατὰ καιρὸν δὲ δηγμοὺς καὶ
 4 φάρμακα προσφέροντα σωτήρια. παντοδαπῶν γάρ, ὡς εἰκός, παθῶν ἐν ὄχλῳ τοσαύτην τὸ μέγεθος ἀρχὴν ἔχοντι φυομένων, μόνος ἐμμελῶς ἕκαστα διαχειρίσασθαι πεφυκώς, μάλιστα δ' ἐλπίσι καὶ φόβοις ὥσπερ οἶαξι προσστέλλων¹ τὸ θρασυνόμενον αὐτῶν καὶ τὸ δύσθυμον ἀνιείς καὶ παραμυθούμενος, ἔδειξε τὴν ῥητορικὴν κατὰ Πλάτωνα ψυχαγωγίαν οὖσαν καὶ μέγιστον ἔργον

¹ προσστέλλων Fuhr and Blass with S (προστέλλων BCF^a): προαναστέλλων.

PERICLES

issues dependent on the Athenians,— tributes, armies, triremes, the islands, the sea, the vast power derived from Hellenes, vast also from Barbarians, and a supremacy that was securely hedged about with subject nations, royal friendships, and dynastic alliances. But then he was no longer the same man as before, nor alike submissive to the people and ready to yield and give in to the desires of the multitude as a steersman to the breezes. Nay rather, forsaking his former lax and sometimes rather effeminate management of the people, as it were a flowery and soft melody, he struck the high and clear note of an aristocratic and kingly statesmanship, and employing it for the best interests of all in a direct and undeviating fashion, he led the people, for the most part willingly, by his persuasions and instructions. And yet there were times when they were sorely vexed with him, and then he tightened the reins and forced them into the way of their advantage with a master's hand, for all the world like a wise physician, who treats a complicated disease of long standing occasionally with harmless indulgences to please his patient, and occasionally, too, with caustics and bitter drugs which work salvation. For whereas all sorts of distempers, as was to be expected, were rife in a rabble which possessed such vast empire, he alone was so endowed by nature that he could manage each one of these cases suitably, and more than anything else he used the people's hopes and fears, like rudders, so to speak, giving timely check to their arrogance, and allaying and comforting their despair. Thus he proved that rhetoric, or the art of speaking, is, to use Plato's words,¹ "an enchantment

¹ Phaedrus, p 271 c.

αὐτῆς τὴν περὶ τὰ ἤθη καὶ πάθη μέθοδον, ὥσπερ
 τινὰς τόνους καὶ φθόγγους ψυχῆς μάλ' ἐμμελοῦς
 5 ἀφῆς καὶ κρούσεως δεομένους. αἰτία δ' οὐχ ἡ τοῦ
 λόγου ψιλῶς δύναμις, ἀλλ', ὡς Θουκυδίδης φησὶν,
 ἡ περὶ τὸν βίον δόξα καὶ πίστις τοῦ ἀνδρός,
 ἀδωροτάτου περιφανῶς γενομένου καὶ χρημάτων
 κρείττους· ὃς καὶ τὴν πόλιν ἐκ μεγάλης μεγίστην
 καὶ πλουσιωτάτην ποιήσας, καὶ γενόμενος δυνά-μει¹ πολλῶν βασιλέων καὶ τυράννων ὑπέρτερος,
 ὧν ἔνιοι καὶ ἐπίτροπον τοῖς υἱέσι διέθεντο ἐκείνον,² μιᾷ δραχμῇ μείζονα τὴν οὐσίαν οὐκ ἐποίησεν ἢς ὁ
 πατήρ αὐτῷ κατέλιπε.

XVI. Καίτοι τὴν δύναμιν αὐτοῦ σαφῶς μὲν ὁ Θουκυδίδης διηγείται, κακοήθως δὲ παρεμφαίνουσιν οἱ κωμικοί, Πεισιστρατίδας μὲν νέους τοὺς
 περὶ αὐτὸν ἑταίρους καλοῦντες, αὐτὸν δ' ἀπομόσαι
 μὴ τυραννήσειν κελεύοντες, ὡς ἀσυμμέτρου πρὸς
 δημοκρατίαν καὶ βαρυτέρας περὶ αὐτὸν οὔσης
 2 ὑπεροχῆς. ὁ δὲ Ἐηλεκλείδης παραδεδωκέναι φησὶν
 αὐτῷ τοὺς Ἀθηναίους

Πόλεων τε φόρους αὐτάς τε πόλεις, τὰς μὲν
 δεῖν, τὰς δ' ἀναλύειν,
 λάϊνα τείχη, τὰ μὲν οἰκοδομεῖν, τὰ δ' ἔπειτα³
 πάλιν καταβάλλειν,
 σπονδάς, δύναμιν, κράτος, εἰρήνην, πλοῦτόν τ'
 εὐδαιμονίαν τε.

καὶ ταῦτα καιρὸς οὐκ ἦν οὐδ' ἄκμῃ καὶ χάρις

¹ δυνάμει also Fuhr and Blass with S; Bekker has καὶ δυνάμει.

² ἐπίτροπον . . . ἐκείνον Madvig's restoration, adopted by Fuhr and Blass: ἐπὶ τοῖς υἱέσι διέθεντο, ἐκείνος (willed their property to their sons). ³ τὰ δ' ἔπειτα Fuhr: τὰ δὲ αὐτά.

PERICLES

of the soul," and that her chiefest business is a careful study of the affections and passions, which are, so to speak, strings and steps of the soul, requiring a very judicious fingering and striking. The reason for his success was not his power as a speaker merely, but, as Thucydides says,¹ the reputation of his life and the confidence reposed in him as one who was manifestly proven to be utterly disinterested and superior to bribes. He made the city, great as it was when he took it, the greatest and richest of all cities, and grew to be superior in power to kings and tyrants. Some of these actually appointed him guardian of their sons, but he did not make his estate a single drachma greater than it was when his father left it to him.

XVI. Of his power there can be no doubt, since Thucydides gives so clear an exposition of it, and the comic poets unwittingly reveal it even in their malicious gibes, calling him and his associates "new Peisistratidae," and urging him to take solemn oath not to make himself a tyrant, on the plea, forsooth, that his preëminence was incommensurate with a democracy and too oppressive. Telecleides says² that the Athenians had handed over to him

"With the cities' assessments the cities themselves,
to bind or release as he pleases,
Their ramparts of stone to build up if he likes, and then to pull down again straightway,
Their treaties, their forces, their might, peace, and riches, and all the fair gifts of good fortune."
(ROGERS.)

And this was not the fruit of a golden moment, nor

¹ ii. 65, 8.

² In a play of unknown name. Kock, op. cit. i. p. 220.

ἀνθούσης ἐφ' ὧρα πολιτείας, ἀλλὰ τεσσαράκοντα
 μὲν ἔτη πρωτεύων ἐν Ἐφιάλταις καὶ Λεωκράταις
 καὶ Μυρωνίδαῖς καὶ Κίμωσι καὶ Τολμίδαῖς καὶ
 3 Θουκυδίδαῖς, μετὰ δὲ τὴν Θουκυδίδου κατάλυσιν
 καὶ τὸν ὀστρακισμὸν οὐκ ἐλάττω τῶν πεντεκαίδεκα
 ἐτῶν διηνεκῆ καὶ μίαν οὔσαν ἐν ταῖς ἐνιαυσίοις
 στρατηγίαις ἀρχὴν καὶ δυναστείαν κτησάμενος, ἐφύλαξεν ἑαυτὸν ἀνάλωτον ὑπὸ χρημάτων, καί- 162
 περ οὐ παντάπασιν ἀργῶς ἔχων πρὸς χρηματισμὸν, ἀλλὰ τὸν πατρῶον καὶ δίκαιον πλοῦτον, ὡς
 μήτ' ἀμελούμενος ἐκφύγοι μήτε πολλὰ πράγματα
 καὶ διατριβὰς ἀσχολουμένῳ παρέχοι, συνέταξεν
 εἰς οἰκονομίαν ἣν ᾤετο ῥάστην καὶ ἀκριβεστάτην
 4 εἶναι. τοὺς γὰρ ἐπετεῖους καρποὺς ἅπαντας
 ἀθρόους ἐπίπρασκεν, εἶτα τῶν ἀναγκαίων ἕκαστον
 ἐξ ἀγορᾶς ὠνούμενος διώκει τὸν βίον καὶ τὰ περὶ
 τὴν δίαιταν. ὅθεν οὐχ ἠδὺς ἦν ἐνηλίκους παισὶν
 οὐδὲ γυναιξὶ δαψιλῆς χορηγός, ἀλλ' ἐμέμφοντο
 τὴν ἐφήμερον ταύτην καὶ συνηγμένην εἰς τὸ
 ἀκριβέστατον δαπάνην, οὐδενός, οἶον ἐν οἰκίᾳ
 μεγάλη καὶ πράγμασιν ἀφθόνοις, περιρρέοντος, 5 ἀλλὰ παντὸς μὲν ἀναλώματος, παντὸς δὲ λήμματος δι' ἀριθμοῦ καὶ μέτρου βαδίζοντος. ὁ δὲ
 πᾶσαν αὐτοῦ τὴν τοιαύτην συνέχων ἀκρίβειαν εἰς
 ἦν οἰκέτης, Εὐάγγελος, ὡς ἕτερος οὐδεὶς εὐ πεφυ-κῶς ἢ κατεσκευασμένος ὑπὸ τοῦ Περικλέους πρὸς οἰκονομίαν.

Ἄπαδοντα¹ μὲν οὖν ταῦτα τῆς Ἀναξαγόρου
 σοφίας, εἶγε καὶ τὴν οἰκίαν ἐκείνος ἐξέλιπε καὶ

¹ Ἄπαδοντα Valckenaer's restoration of the MS. ἅπαντα;
 Bekker changes to ἀπέδει.

PERICLES

the culminating popularity of an administration that bloomed but for a season ; nay rather he stood first for forty years¹ among such men as Ephialtes, Leocrates, Myronides, Cimon, Tolmides, and Thucydides, and after the deposition of Thucydides and his ostracism, for no less than fifteen of these years did he secure an imperial sway that was continuous and unbroken, by means of his annual tenure of the office of general. During all these years he kept himself untainted by corruption, although he was not altogether indifferent to money-making ; indeed, the wealth which was legally his by inheritance from his father, that it might not from sheer neglect take to itself wings and fly away, nor yet cause him much trouble and loss of time when he was busy with higher things, he set into such orderly dispensation as he thought was easiest and most exact. This was to sell his annual products all together in the lump, and then to buy in the market each article as it was needed, and so provide the ways and means of daily life. For this reason he was not liked by his sons when they grew up, nor did their wives find in him a liberal purveyor, but they murmured at his expenditure for the day merely and under the most exact restrictions, there being no surplus of supplies at all, as in a great house and under generous circumstances, but every outlay and every intake proceeding by count and measure. His agent in securing all this great exactitude was a single servant, Evangelus, who was either gifted by nature or trained by Pericles so as to surpass everybody else in domestic economy.

It is true that this conduct was not in accord with the wisdom of Anaxagoras, since that philosopher

¹ Reckoning roundly from 469 to 429 B.C.

6 τὴν χώραν ἀφήκεν ἀργὴν καὶ μηλόβοτον ὑπ' ἐνθουσιασμοῦ καὶ μεγαλοφροσύνης, οὐ ταῦτ' ὅν ἐστιν, οἶμαι, θεωρητικοῦ φιλοσόφου καὶ πολιτικοῦ βίος, ἀλλ' ὁ μὲν ἀνόργανον καὶ ἀπροσδεῆ τῆς ἐκτὸς ὕλης ἐπὶ τοῖς καλοῖς κινεῖ τὴν διάνοιαν, τῷ δ' εἰς ἀνθρωπείας χρείας ἀναμιγνύντι τὴν ἀρετὴν ἔστιν οὐ γένοιτ' ἂν οὐ τῶν ἀναγκαίων μόνον, ἀλλὰ καὶ τῶν καλῶν ὁ πλοῦτος, ὥσπερ ἦν καὶ Περικλεῖ βοηθοῦντι πολλοῖς τῶν πενήτων.

7 καὶ μέντοι γε τὸν Ἀναξαγόραν αὐτὸν λέγουσιν ἀσχολουμένου Περικλέους ἀμελούμενον κείσθαι συγκεκαλυμμένον ἤδη γηραιὸν ἀποκαρτεροῦντα· προσπεσόντος δὲ τῷ Περικλεῖ τοῦ πράγματος ἐκπλαγέντα θεῖν εὐθύς ἐπὶ τὸν ἄνδρα καὶ δεῖσθαι πᾶσαν δέησιν, ὀλοφυρόμενον οὐκ ἐκείνον, ἀλλ' ἑαυτόν, εἰ τοιοῦτον ἀπολεῖ τῆς πολιτείας σύμβουλον. ἐκκαλυψάμενον οὖν τὸν Ἀναξαγόραν εἶπεῖν πρὸς αὐτόν· “ὦ Περικλεῖς, καὶ οἱ τοῦ λύχνου χρεῖαν ἔχοντες ἔλαιον ἐπιχέουσιν.”

XVII. Ἀρχομένων δὲ Λακεδαιμονίων ἄχθεσθαι τῇ αὐξήσει τῶν Ἀθηναίων, ἐπαίρων ὁ Περικλῆς τὸν δῆμον ἔτι μᾶλλον μέγα φρονεῖν καὶ μεγάλων αὐτὸν ἀξιούν πραγμάτων, γράφει ψήφισμα, πάντας Ἕλληνας τοὺς ὀπήποτε κατοικοῦντας Εὐρώπης ἢ τῆς Ἀσίας παρακαλεῖν, καὶ μικρὰν πόλιν καὶ μεγάλην, εἰς σύλλογον πέμπειν Ἀθίναζε τοὺς βουλευσομένους περὶ τῶν Ἑλληνικῶν ἱερῶν, actually abandoned his house and left his land to lie fallow for sheep-grazing, owing to the lofty thoughts with which he was inspired. But the life of a speculative philosopher is not the same thing, I think, as that of a statesman. The one exercises his intellect without the aid of instruments and independent of external matters for noble ends; whereas the other, inasmuch as he brings his superior excellence into close contact with the common needs of mankind, must sometimes find wealth not merely one of the necessities of life, but also one of its noble things, as was actually the case with Pericles, who gave aid to many poor men. And, besides, they say that Anaxagoras himself, at a time when Pericles was absorbed in business, lay on his couch all neglected, in his old age, starving himself to death, his head already muffled for departure, and that when the matter came to the ears of Pericles, he was struck with dismay, and ran at once to the poor man, and besought him most fervently to live, bewailing not so much that great teacher's lot as his own, were he now to be bereft of such a counsellor in the conduct of the state. Then Anaxagoras—so the story goes—unmuffled his head and said to him, "Pericles, even those who need a lamp pour oil therein."

PERICLES

✓ XVII. When the Lacedaemonians began to be annoyed by the increasing power of the Athenians, Pericles, by way of inciting the people to cherish yet loftier thoughts and to deem itself worthy of great achievements, introduced a bill to the effect that all Hellenes wheresoever resident in Europe or in Asia, small and large cities alike, should be invited to send deputies to a council at Athens. This was to deliberate concerning the Hellenic sanctuaries which

ἃ κατέπρησαν οἱ βάρβαροι, καὶ τῶν θυσιῶν ἅς ὀφείλουσιν ὑπὲρ τῆς Ἑλλάδος εὐξάμενοι τοῖς
 θεοῖς ὅτε πρὸς τοὺς βαρβάρους ἐμάχοντο, καὶ
 τῆς θαλάττης, ὅπως πλέωσι πάντες ἀδεῶς καὶ
 2 τὴν εἰρήνην ἄγωσιν. ἐπὶ ταῦτα δ' ἄνδρες εἴκοσι
 τῶν ὑπὲρ πεντήκοντα ἔτη γεγονότων ἐπέμφθησαν,
 ὧν πέντε μὲν Ἴωνας καὶ Δωριεῖς τοὺς ἐν Ἀσία
 καὶ νησιώτας ἄχρι Λέσβου καὶ Ῥόδου παρεκά-λουν, πέντε δὲ τοὺς ἐν Ἑλλησπόντῳ καὶ Θράκῃ
 μέχρι Βυζαντίου τόπους ἐπήεσαν, καὶ πέντε ἐπὶ
 τούτοις εἰς Βοιωτίαν καὶ Φωκίδα καὶ Πελοπόν-νησον, ἐκ δὲ ταύτης διὰ Λοκρῶν ἐπὶ τὴν πρόσσι-κον ἠπειρον ἕως Ἀκαρνανίας καὶ Ἀμβρακίας
 3 ἀπεστάλησαν· οἱ δὲ λοιποὶ δι' Εὐβοίας ἐπ'
 Οἰταίους καὶ τὸν Μαλιέα κόλπον καὶ Φθιώτας Ἀχαιοὺς καὶ Θεσσαλοὺς ἐπορεύοντο, συμπίθοντες ἵεσαι καὶ μετέχειν τῶν βουλευμάτων ἐπ'
 εἰρήνῃ καὶ κοινοπραγίᾳ τῆς Ἑλλάδος. ἐπράχθη
 δὲ οὐδέν, οὐδὲ συνήλθον αἱ πόλεις, Λακεδαιμονίων
 ὑπεναντιωθέντων, ὡς λέγεται, καὶ τὸ πρῶτον ἐν Πελοποννήσῳ τῆς πείρας ἐλεγχθείσης. τεῦτο
 μὲν οὖν παρεθέμην ἐνδεικνύμενος αὐτοῦ τὸ φρόνημα καὶ τὴν μεγαλοφροσύνην.

XVIII. Ἐν δὲ ταῖς στρατηγίαις εὐδοκίμει 163
 μάλιστα διὰ τὴν ἀσφάλειαν, οὔτε μάχης ἐχούσης
 πολλὴν ἀδηλόγητα καὶ κίνδυνον ἐκουσίως ἀπτόμενος, οὔτε τοὺς ἐκ τοῦ παραβάλλεσθαι χρησαμένους τύχῃ λαμπρᾷ καὶ θαυμασθέντας ὡς μεγάλους ζηλῶν καὶ μιμούμενος στρατηγούς, αἰεὶ τε
 λέγων πρὸς τοὺς πολίτας ὡς ὅσον ἐπ' αὐτῷ
 μενοῦσιν ἀθάνατοι πάντα τὸν χρόνον.

PERICLES

the Barbarians had burned down, concerning the sacrifices which were due to the gods in the name of Hellas in fulfilment of vows made when they were fighting with the Barbarians, and concerning the sea, that all might sail it fearlessly and keep the peace. To extend this invitation, twenty men, of such as were above fifty years of age, were sent out, five of whom invited the Ionians and Dorians in Asia and on the islands between Lesbos and Rhodes; five visited the regions on the Hellespont and in Thrace as far as Byzantium; five others were sent into Boeotia and Phocis and Peloponnesus, and from here by way of the Ozolian Locrians into the neighbouring continent as far as Acarnania and Ambracia; while the rest proceeded through Euboea to the Oetaeans and the Maliac Gulf and the Phthiotic Achaeans and the Thessalians, urging them all to come and take part in the deliberations for the peace and common welfare of Hellas. But nothing was accomplished, nor did the cities come together by deputy, owing to the opposition of the Lacedaemonians, as it is said, since the effort met with its first check in Peloponnesus. I have cited this incident, however, to show forth the man's disposition and the greatness of his thoughts.

XVIII. In his capacity as general, he was famous above all things for his saving caution; he neither undertook of his own accord a battle involving much uncertainty and peril, nor did he envy and imitate those who took great risks, enjoyed brilliant good-fortune, and so were admired as great generals; and he was for ever saying to his fellow-citizens that, so far as lay in his power, they would remain alive forever and be immortals.

- 2 Ὅρων δὲ Τολμίδην τὸν Τολμαίου διὰ τὰς πρότερον εὐτυχίας καὶ διὰ τὸ τιμᾶσθαι διαφερόντως ἐκ τῶν πολεμικῶν σὺν οὐδενὶ καιρῷ παρασκευαζόμενον εἰς Βοιωτίαν ἐμβαλεῖν, καὶ πεπεικότα τῶν ἐν ἡλικίᾳ τοὺς ἀρίστους καὶ φιλοτιμοτάτους ἐβελουτὶ στρατεύεσθαι, χιλίους γενομένους ἄνευ τῆς ἄλλης δυνάμεως, κατέχειν ἐπειρᾶτο καὶ παρακαλεῖν ἐν τῷ δήμῳ, τὸ μνημονευόμενον εἰπὼν, ὡς εἰ μὴ πείθοιτο Περικλεῖ, τὸν γε σοφώτατον οὐχ ἁμαρτήσεται σύμβουλον
- 3 ἀναμείνας χρόνον. τότε μὲν οὖν μετρίως εὐδοκίμησε τοῦτ' εἰπὼν· ὀλίγαις δ' ὕστερον ἡμέραις, ὡς ἀνηγγέλθη τεθνεῶς μὲν αὐτὸς Τολμίδης περὶ Κορώνειαν ἠττηθεὶς μάχῃ, τεθνεῶτες δὲ πολλοὶ κάγαθοὶ τῶν πολιτῶν, μεγάλην τοῦτο τῷ Περικλεῖ μετ' εὐνοίας δόξαν ἤνεγκεν, ὡς ἀνδρὶ φρονίμῳ καὶ φιλοπολίτῃ.

XIX. Τῶν δὲ στρατηγιῶν ἠγαπήθη μὲν ἡ περὶ Χερρόνησον αὐτοῦ μάλιστα, σωτήριος γενομένη τοῖς αὐτόθι κατοικοῦσι τῶν Ἑλλήνων· οὐ γὰρ μόνον ἐποίκουσ' Ἀθηναίων χιλίους κομίσας ἔρρωσεν εὐανδρία τὰς πόλεις, ἀλλὰ καὶ τὸν αὐχένα διαζώσας ἐρύμασι καὶ προβλήμασιν ἐκ θαλάττης εἰς θάλατταν ἀπετείχισε τὰς καταδρομὰς τῶν

2 Θρακῶν περικεχυμένων τῇ Χερρονήσῳ, καὶ πόλεμον ἐνδελεχῆ καὶ βαρὺν ἐξέκλεισεν, ᾧ συνείχετο πάντα τὸν χρόνον ἡ χώρα βαρβαρικαῖς ἀναμειγμένη γειτνιασεσι καὶ γέμουσα λησθηρίων

PERICLES

So when he saw that Tolmides, son of Tolmaeus, all on account of his previous good-fortune and of the exceeding great honour bestowed upon him for his wars, was getting ready, quite inopportunately, to make an incursion into Boeotia, and that he had persuaded the bravest and most ambitious men of military age to volunteer for the campaign,—as many as a thousand of them, aside from the rest of his forces,—he tried to restrain and dissuade him in the popular assembly, uttering then that well remembered saying, to wit, that if he would not listen to Pericles, he would yet do full well to wait for that wisest of all counsellors, Time. This saying brought him only moderate repute at the time; but a few days afterwards, when word was brought that Tolmides himself was dead after defeat in battle near Coroneia,¹ and that many brave citizens were dead likewise, then it brought Pericles great repute as well as goodwill, for that he was a man of discretion and patriotism.

XIX. Of all his expeditions, that to the Chersonesus² was held in most loving remembrance, since it proved the salvation of the Hellenes who dwelt there. Not only did he bring thither a thousand Athenian colonists and stock the cities anew with vigorous manhood, but he also belted the neck of the isthmus with defensive bulwarks from sea to sea, and so intercepted the incursions of the Thracians who swarmed about the Chersonesus, and shut out the perpetual and grievous war in which the country was all the time involved, in close touch as it was with neighbouring communities of Barbarians, and full to overflowing of robber bands whose haunts were on or

¹ 447 B.C.

² 447 B.C.

ὁμόρων καὶ συνοίκων· ἐθαυμάσθη δὲ καὶ διε-
 βοήθη πρὸς τοὺς ἐκτὸς ἀνθρώπους περιπλεύσας
 Πελοπόννησον, ἐκ Πηγῶν τῆς Μεγαρικῆς ἀνα-
 3 χθεὶς ἑκατὸν τριήρεσιν. οὐ γὰρ μόνον ἐπόρθησε
 τῆς παραλίας πολλήν, ὡς Τολμίδης πρότερον,
 ἀλλὰ καὶ πόρρω θαλάττης προελθὼν τοῖς ἀπὸ
 τῶν νεῶν ὀπλίταις τοὺς μὲν ἄλλους εἰς τὰ τεῖχη
 συνέστειλε δέισαντας αὐτοῦ τὴν ἔφοδον, ἐν δὲ Νεμέᾳ Σικυωνίους ὑποστάντας καὶ συνάψαντας μάχην κατὰ κράτος τρεψάμενος ἔστησε τρόπαιον.
 4 ἐκ δ' Ἀχαΐας φίλης οὔσης στρατιώτας ἀναλαβὼν
 εἰς τὰς τριήρεις ἐπὶ τὴν ἀντιπέρας ἠπειρου
 ἐκομίσθη τῷ στόλῳ, καὶ παραπλεύσας τὸν Ἀχελῶον Ἀκαρνανίαν κατέδραμε, καὶ κατέκλεισεν Οἰνιάδας εἰς τὸ τεῖχος, καὶ τεμὼν τὴν γῆν καὶ
 κακώσας ἀπῆρεν ἐπ' οἶκου, φοβερὸς μὲν φανεὶς
 τοῖς πολεμίοις, ἀσφαλῆς δὲ καὶ δραστήριος τοῖς πολίταις. οὐδὲν γὰρ οὐδ' ἀπὸ τύχης πρόσκρουσμα συνέβη περὶ τοὺς στρατευομένους.

XX. Εἰς δὲ τὸν Πόντον εἰσπλεύσας στόλῳ
 μεγάλῳ καὶ κεκοσμημένῳ λαμπρῶς ταῖς μὲν Ἑλληνίσιν πόλεσιν ὧν ἐδέοντο διεπράξατο καὶ
 προσηνέχθη φιλανθρώπως, τοῖς δὲ περιοικοῦσι
 βαρβύροις ἔθνεσι καὶ βασιλεῦσιν αὐτῶν καὶ δυνάσταις ἐπεδείξατο μὲν τῆς δυνάμεως τὸ μέγεθος καὶ τὴν ἄδειαν καὶ τὸ θάρσος ἢ βούλοιτο
 πλεόντων καὶ πᾶσαν ὑφ' αὐτοῖς πεποιημένων τὴν
 θάλασσαν, Σινωπεῦσι δὲ τρισκαίδεκα ναῦς ἀπέ-λιπε μετὰ Λαμάχου καὶ στρατιώτας ἐπὶ Τιμησί-

PERICLES

within its borders. But he was admired and celebrated even amongst foreigners for his circumnavigation of the Peloponnesus,¹ when he put to sea from Pegae in the Megarid with a hundred triremes. He not only ravaged a great strip of seashore, as Tolmides had done before him, but also advanced far into the interior with the hoplites from his ships, and drove all his enemies inside their walls in terror at his approach, excepting only the Sicyonians, who made a stand against him in Nemea, and joined battle with him; these he routed by main force and set up a trophy for his victory. Then from Achaia, which was friendly to him, he took soldiers on board his triremes, and proceeded with his armament to the opposite mainland, where he sailed up the Acheloüs, overran Acarnania, shut up the people of Oeniadae behind their walls, and after ravaging and devastating their territory, went off homewards, having shown himself formidable to his enemies, but a safe and efficient leader for his fellow-citizens. For nothing untoward befell, even as result of chance, those who took part in the expedition.

XX. He also sailed into the Euxine Sea² with a large and splendidly equipped armament. There he effected what the Greek cities desired, and dealt with them humanely, while to the neighbouring nations of Barbarians with their kings and dynasts he displayed the magnitude of his forces and the fearless courage with which they sailed whithersoever they pleased and brought the whole sea under their own control. He also left with the banished Sinopians thirteen ships of war and soldiers under command of Lamachus to aid them against Timesi-

¹ 453 B.C.

² Probably about 436 B.C.

2 λεων τύραννον. ἐκπεσόντος δὲ τούτου καὶ τῶν
 ἑταίρων ἐψηφίσατο πλεῖν εἰς Σινώπην Ἀθηναίων
 ἑθελουτὰς ἑξακοσίους καὶ συγκατοικεῖν Σινωπεῦσι, νειμαμένους οἰκίας καὶ χώραν ἣν πρότερον οἱ
 τύρανοι κατεῖχον.

Τὰλλα δ' οὐ συνεχώρει ταῖς ὀρμαῖς τῶν πολι-
 τῶν, οὐδὲ συνεξέπιπτεν ὑπὸ ῥώμης καὶ τύχης
 τοσαύτης ἐπαιρομένων Αἰγύπτου τε πάλιν ἀντι- 164
 λαμβάνεσθαι καὶ κινεῖν τῆς βασιλέως ἀρχῆς τὰ
 3 πρὸς θαλάσση. πολλοὺς δὲ καὶ Σικελίας ὁ δύσερος ἐκεῖνος ἤδη καὶ δύσποτμος ἔρωσ εἶχεν,
 ὃν ὕστερον ἐξέκαυσαν οἱ περὶ τὸν Ἀλκιβιάδην
 ῥήτορες. ἣν δὲ καὶ Τυρρηνία καὶ Καρχηδῶν
 ἐνίοις ὄνειρος οὐκ ἀπ' ἐλπίδος διὰ τὸ μέγεθος τῆς ὑποκειμένης ἡγεμονίας καὶ τὴν εὐροίαν τῶν πραγμάτων.

XXI. Ἄλλ' ὁ Περικλῆς κατεῖχε τὴν ἐκδρομὴν ταύτην καὶ περιέκοπτε τὴν πολυπραγμοσύνην,
 καὶ τὰ πλείστα τῆς δυνάμεως ἔτρεπεν εἰς φυλακὴν
 καὶ βεβαιότητα τῶν ὑπαρχόντων, μέγα ἔργον
 ἡγούμενις ἀνείργειν Λακεδαιμονίους καὶ ὄλως
 ὑπεναντιούμενος ἐκείνοις, ὡς ἄλλοις τε πολλοῖς
 ἔδειξε καὶ μάλιστα τοῖς περὶ τὸν ἱερὸν πραχθεῖσι
 2 πόλεμον. ἐπεὶ γὰρ οἱ Λακεδαιμόνιοι στρατεύ-σαντες εἰς Δελφοὺς Φωκέων ἐχόντων τὸ ἱερὸν
 Δελφοῖς ἀπέδωκαν, εὐθὺς ἐκείνων ἀπαλλαγέντων

PERICLES

leos. When the tyrant and his adherents had been driven from the city, Pericles got a bill passed providing that six hundred volunteers of the Athenians should sail to Sinope and settle down there with the Sinopians, dividing up among themselves the houses and lands which the tyrant and his followers had formerly occupied.

But in other matters he did not accede to the vain impulses of the citizens, nor was he swept along with the tide when they were eager, from a sense of their great power and good fortune, to lay hands again upon Egypt and molest the realms of the King which lay along the sea. Many also were possessed already with that inordinate and inauspicious passion for Sicily which was afterwards kindled into flame by such orators as Alcibiades. And some there were who actually dreamed of Tuscany and Carthage, and that not without a measure of hope, in view of the magnitude of their present supremacy and the full-flowing tide of success in their undertakings.

XXI. But Pericles was ever trying to restrain this extravagance of theirs, to lop off their expansive meddlesomeness, and to divert the greatest part of their forces to the guarding and securing of what they had already won. He considered it a great achievement to hold the Lacedaemonians in check, and set himself in opposition to these in every way, as he showed, above all other things, by what he did in the Sacred War.¹ The Lacedaemonians made an expedition to Delphi while the Phocians had possession of the sanctuary there, and restored it to the Delphians; but no sooner had the Lacedaemo-

¹ About 448 B.C.

ὁ Περικλῆς ἐπιστρατεύσας πάλιν εἰσήγαγε τοὺς Φωκέας. καὶ τῶν Λακεδαιμονίων ἦν ἔδωκαν αὐτοῖς Δελφοὶ προμαντείαν εἰς τὸ μέτωπον ἐγκολαψάντων τοῦ χαλκοῦ λύκου, λαβὼν καὶ αὐτὸς προμαντείαν τοῖς Ἀθηναίοις εἰς τὸν αὐτὸν λύκον κατὰ τὴν δεξιὰν πλευρὰν ἐνεχάραξεν.

XXII. "Ὅτι δ' ὀρθῶς ἐν τῇ Ἑλλάδι τὴν δύναμιν τῶν Ἀθηναίων συνείχεν, ἐμαρτύρησεν αὐτῷ τὰ γενόμενα. πρῶτον μὲν γὰρ Εὐβοεῖς ἀπέστησαν, ἐφ' οὓς διέβη μετὰ δυνάμεως. εἶτ' εὐθύς ἀπηγγέλλοντο Μεγαρεῖς ἐκπεπολεμωμένοι καὶ στρατιὰ πολεμίων ἐπὶ τοῖς ὄροις τῆς Ἀττικῆς οὔσα, Πλειστῶνακτος ἡγουμένου, βασιλέως Λακεδαι-
 2 μονίων. πάλιν οὖν ὁ Περικλῆς κατὰ τάχος ἐκ τῆς Εὐβοίας ἀνεκομίζετο πρὸς τὸν ἐν τῇ Ἀττικῇ πόλεμον· καὶ συνάψαι μὲν εἰς χεῖρας οὐκ ἐθάρσησε πολλοῖς καὶ ἀγαθοῖς ὀπλίταις προκαλουμένοις, ὁρῶν δὲ τὸν Πλειστῶνακτα νέον ὄντα κομιδῇ, χρώμενον δὲ μάλιστα Κλεανδρίδῃ τῶν συμβούλων, ὃν οἱ ἔφοροι φύλακα καὶ πάρεδρον αὐτῷ διὰ τὴν ἡλικίαν συνέπεμψαν, ἐπειρᾶτο τούτου κρύφα· καὶ ταχὺ διαφθείρας χρήμασιν αὐτὸν ἔπεισεν ἐκ τῆς Ἀττικῆς ἀπαγαγεῖν τοὺς Πελοποννησίους.

3 Ὡς δ' ἀπεχώρησεν ἢ στρατιὰ καὶ διελύθη κατὰ πόλεις, βαρέως φέροντες οἱ Λακεδαιμόνιοι τὸν μὲν βασιλέα χρήμασιν ἐζημίωσαν, ὧν τὸ πλῆθος

PERICLES

nians departed than Pericles made a counter expedition and reinstated the Phocians. And whereas the Lacedaemonians had had the "promanteia," or right of consulting the oracle in behalf of others also, which the Delphians had bestowed upon them, carved upon the forehead of the bronze wolf in the sanctuary, he secured from the Phocians this high privilege for the Athenians, and had it chiselled along the right side of the same wolf.

XXII. That he was right in seeking to confine the power of the Athenians within lesser Greece, was amply proved by what came to pass. To begin with, the Euboeans revolted,¹ and he crossed over to the island with a hostile force. Then straightway word was brought to him that the Megarians had gone over to the enemy, and that an army of the enemy was on the confines of Attica under the leadership of Pleistoanax, the king of the Lacedaemonians. Accordingly, Pericles brought his forces back with speed from Euboea for the war in Attica. He did not venture to join battle with hoplites who were so many, so brave, and so eager for battle, but seeing that Pleistoanax was a very young man, and that out of all his advisers he set most store by Cleandridas, whom the ephors had sent along with him, by reason of his youth, to be a guardian and an assistant to him, he secretly made trial of this man's integrity, speedily corrupted him with bribes, and persuaded him to lead the Peloponnesians back out of Attica.

When the army had withdrawn and had been disbanded to their several cities, the Lacedaemonians, in indignation, laid a heavy fine upon their king,

¹ 446 B.C.

οὐκ ἔχων ἐκτίσαι μετέστησεν ἑαυτὸν ἐκ Λακεδαιμόνου, τοῦ δὲ Κλεανδρίδου φεύγοντος θάνατον κατέγνωσαν. οὗτος δ' ἦν πατὴρ Γυλίππου τοῦ περὶ Σικελίαν Ἀθηναίου καταπολεμήσαντος. ἔοικε δ' ὥσπερ συγγενικὸν αὐτῷ προστρίψασθαι νόσημα τὴν φιλαργυρίαν ἢ φύσις, ὑφ' ἧς καὶ αὐτὸς αἰσχυρῶς ἐπὶ καλοῖς ἔργοις ἄλους ἐξέπεσε τῆς Σπάρτης. ταῦτα μὲν οὖν ἐν τοῖς περὶ Λυσάνδρου δεδηλώκαμεν.

XXIII. Τοῦ δὲ Περικλέους ἐν τῷ τῆς στρατηγίας ἀπολογισμῷ δέκα ταλάντων ἀνάλωμα γράψαντος ἀνηλωμένων εἰς τὸ δέον, ὁ δῆμος ἀπεδέξατο μὴ πολυπραγμονήσας μηδ' ἐλέγξας τὸ ἀπόρρητον. ἔνιοι δ' ἱστορήκασιν, ὧν ἔστι καὶ Θεόφραστος ὁ φιλόσοφος, ὅτι καθ' ἕκαστον ἐνιαυτὸν εἰς τὴν Σπάρτην ἐφοῖτα δέκα τάλαντα παρὰ τοῦ Περικλέους, οἷς τοὺς ἐν τέλει πάντας θεραπεύων παρητεῖτο τὸν πόλεμον, οὐ τὴν εἰρήνην ὠνούμενος, ἀλλὰ τὸν χρόνον, ἐν ᾧ παρασκευασάμενος καθ' ἡσυχίαν ἔμελλε πολεμήσειν βέλτιον.

2 αὐθις¹ οὖν ἐπὶ τοὺς ἀφεστῶτας τραπόμενος καὶ διαβὰς εἰς Εὐβοίαν πεντήκοντα ναυσὶ καὶ πεντακισχιλίοις ὀπλίταις κατεστρέψατο τὰς πόλεις. καὶ Χαλκιδέων μὲν τοὺς ἵπποβότας λεγομένους πλούτῳ καὶ δόξῃ διαφέροντας ἐξέβαλεν, Ἔστιεῖς δὲ πάντας ἀναστήσας ἐκ τῆς χώρας Ἀθηναίους κατώκισε, μόνοις τούτοις ἀπαραιτήτως χρησάμενος ὅτι ναῦν Ἀττικὴν αἰχμύλωτον λαβόντες ἀπέκτειναν τοὺς ἄνδρας.

¹ αὐθις Fuhr and Blass, after Sauppe : εὐθύς (at once).

PERICLES

the full amount of which he was unable to pay, and so betook himself out of Lacedaemon, while Cleandridas, who had gone into voluntary exile, was condemned to death. He was the father of that Gylippus who overcame the Athenians in Sicily. And nature seems to have imparted covetousness to the son, as it were a congenital disease, owing to which he too, after noble achievements, was caught in base practices and banished from Sparta in disgrace. This story, however, I have told at length in my life of Lysander.¹

XXIII. When Pericles, in rendering his accounts for this campaign, recorded an expenditure of ten talents as "for sundry needs," the people approved it without officious meddling and without even investigating the mystery. But some writers, among whom is Theophrastus the philosopher, have stated that every year ten talents found their way to Sparta from Pericles, and that with these he conciliated all the officials there, and so staved off the war, not purchasing peace, but time, in which he could make preparations at his leisure and then carry on war all the better. However that may be, he again turned his attention to the rebels, and after crossing to Euboea with fifty ships of war and five thousand hoplites, he subdued the cities there. Those of the Chalcidians who were styled Hippobotae, or Knights, and who were preëminent for wealth and reputation, he banished their city, and all the Hestiaeans he removed from the country and settled Athenians in their places, treating them, and them only, thus inexorably, because they had taken an Attic ship captive and slain its crew.

¹ Chapters xvi. f.

XXIV. Ἐκ τούτου γενομένων σπονδῶν Ἀθηναίοις καὶ Λακεδαιμονίοις εἰς ἔτη τριάκοντα ψηφίζεται τὸν εἰς Σάμον πλοῦν, αἰτίαν ποιησάμενος κατ' αὐτῶν ὅτι τὸν πρὸς Μιλησίους κελευόμενοι διαλύσασθαι πόλεμον οὐχ ὑπήκουον.

Ἐπεὶ δ' Ἀσπασία χαριζόμενος δοκεῖ πράξαι τὰ πρὸς Σαμίους, ἐνταῦθα ἂν εἶη καιρὸς διαπορῆσαι μάλιστα περὶ τῆς ἀνθρώπου, τίνα τέχνην ἢ δύναμιν τοσαύτην ἔχουσα τῶν τε πολιτικῶν τοὺς πρωτεύοντας ἐχειρώσατο καὶ τοῖς φιλοσόφοις οὐ φαῦλον οὐδ' ὀλίγον ὑπὲρ αὐτῆς παρέσχε λόγον.

2 ὅτι μὲν γὰρ ἦν Μιλησία γένος, Ἀξιόχου θυγάτηρ, ὁμολογεῖται· φασὶ δ' αὐτὴν Θαρρηλίαν τινὰ τῶν παλαιῶν Ἰάδων ζηλώσασαν ἐπιθέσθαι τοῖς δυνατωτάτοις ἀνδράσι. καὶ γὰρ ἡ Θαρρηλία τό τ' εἶδος εὐπρεπῆς γενομένη καὶ χάριν ἔχουσα μετὰ δεινότητος πλείστοις μὲν Ἑλλήνων συνώκησεν ἀνδράσι, πάντας δὲ προσεποίησε βασιλεῖ τοὺς πλησιάζαντας αὐτῇ, καὶ ταῖς πόλεσι μηδισμοῦ δι' ἐκείνων ὑπέσπειρεν ἀρχὰς δυνατωτάτων ὄντων

3 καὶ μεγίστων. τὴν δ' Ἀσπασίαν οἱ μὲν ὡς σοφὴν τινα καὶ πολιτικὴν ὑπὸ τοῦ Περικλέους σπουδασθῆναι λέγουσι· καὶ γὰρ Σωκράτης ἔστιν ὅτε μετὰ τῶν γνωρίμων ἐφοίτα, καὶ τὰς γυναῖκας ἀκροασομένας οἱ συνήθεις ἦγον ὡς¹ αὐτήν, καί-περ οὐ κοσμίου προεστῶσαν ἐργασίας οὐδὲ σεμνῆς, ἀλλὰ παιδίσκας ἑταιρούσας τρέφουσαν·

¹ ὡς Fuhr and Blass, with F²S: εἰς.

PERICLES

XXIV. After this, when peace had been made for thirty years between the Athenians and the Lacedaemonians, he got a decree passed for his expedition to Samos,¹ alleging against its people that, though they were ordered to break off their war against the Milesians, they were not complying.

Now, since it is thought that he proceeded thus against the Samians to gratify Aspasia, this may be a fitting place to raise the query what great art or power this woman had, that she managed as she pleased the foremost men of the state, and afforded the philosophers occasion to discuss her in exalted terms and at great length. That she was a Milesian by birth, daughter of one Axiochus, is generally agreed; and they say that it was in emulation of Thargelia, an Ionian woman of ancient times, that she made her onslaughts upon the most influential men. This Thargelia came to be a great beauty and was endowed with grace of manners as well as clever wits. Inasmuch as she lived on terms of intimacy with numberless Greeks, and attached all her consorts to the king of Persia, she stealthily sowed the seeds of Persian sympathy in the cities of Greece by means of these lovers of hers, who were men of the greatest power and influence. And so Aspasia, as some say, was held in high favour by Pericles because of her rare political wisdom. Socrates sometimes came to see her with his disciples, and his intimate friends brought their wives to her to hear her discourse, although she presided over a business that was anything but honest or even reputable, since she kept a house of young courtesans. And Aeschines² says

¹ 440 B.C.

² Aeschines the Socratic, in a dialogue entitled "Aspasia," not extant.

- 4 Αἰσχίνης δέ φησι καὶ Λυσικλέα τὸν προβατοκάπηλον ἐξ ἀγεννοῦς καὶ ταπεινοῦ τὴν φύσιν Ἀθη-ναίων γενέσθαι πρῶτον, Ἀσπασία συνόντα μετὰ
 τὴν Περικλέους τελευτήν. ἐν δὲ τῷ Μενεξένῳ
 τῷ Πλάτωνος, εἰ καὶ μετὰ παιδιᾶς τὰ πρῶτα
 γέγραπται, τοσοῦτόν γ' ἱστορίας ἔνεστιν, ὅτι
 δόξαν εἶχε τὸ γύναιον ἐπὶ ῥητορικῇ πολλοῖς
 5 Ἀθηναίων ὀμιλεῖν. φαίνεται μέντοι μᾶλλον
 ἐρωτική τις ἢ τοῦ Περικλέους ἀγάπησις γενομένη
 πρὸς Ἀσπασίαν. ἦν μὲν γὰρ αὐτῷ γυνὴ προσἤκουσα μὲν κατὰ γένος, συνωκηκυῖα δ' Ἴπποῦικῳ
 πρότερον, ἐξ οὗ Καλλίαν ἔτεκε τὸν πλούσιον·
 ἔτεκε δὲ καὶ παρὰ τῷ Περικλεῖ Ξάνθιππον καὶ Πάραλον. εἶτα τῆς συμβιώσεως οὐκ οὔσης αὐτοῖς
 ἀρεστῆς, ἐκείνην μὲν ἐτέρῳ βουλομένην συνεξ-ἔδωκεν, αὐτὸς δὲ τὴν Ἀσπασίαν λαβὼν ἔστερξε
 6 διαφερόντως. καὶ γὰρ ἐξίων, ὡς φασι, καὶ εἰσίων
 ἀπ' ἀγορᾶς ἠσπάζετο καθ' ἡμέραν αὐτὴν μετὰ τοῦ καταφιλεῖν.

Ἐν δὲ ταῖς κωμωδίαις Ὀμφάλῃ τε νέα καὶ Δηϊἀνειρα καὶ πάλιν Ἥρα προσαγορεύεται. Κρατῖνος
 δ' ἀντικρυς παλλακὴν αὐτὴν εἶρηκεν ἐν τούτοις·

Ἥραν τέ οἱ Ἀσπασίαν τίκτει Καταπυγοσύνη παλλακὴν κυνώπιδα.

δοκεῖ δὲ καὶ τὸν νόθον ἐκ ταύτης τεκνῶσαι, περὶ
 οὗ πεποίηκεν Εὐπολις ἐν Δήμοις αὐτὸν μὲν οὕτως ἐρωτῶντα·

Ὁ νόθος δέ μοι ζῆ;

τὸν δὲ Μυρωνίδην ἀποκρινόμενον·

Καὶ πάλαι γ' ἂν ἦν ἀνήρ,
 εἰ μὴ τὸ τῆς πόρινης ὑπωρρώδει κακόν.

PERICLES

that Lysicles the sheep-dealer, a man of low birth and nature, came to be the first man at Athens by living with Aspasia after the death of Pericles. And in the "Menexenus" of Plato, even though the first part of it be written in a sportive vein, there is, at any rate, thus much of fact, that the woman had the reputation of associating with many Athenians as a teacher of rhetoric. However, the affection which Pericles had for Aspasia seems to have been rather of an amatory sort. For his own wife was near of kin to him, and had been wedded first to Hipponicus, to whom she bore Callias, surnamed the Rich; she bore also, as the wife of Pericles, Xanthippus and Paralus. Afterwards, since their married life was not agreeable, he legally bestowed her upon another man, with her own consent, and himself took Aspasia, and loved her exceedingly. Twice a day, as they say, on going out and on coming in from the market-place, he would salute her with a loving kiss.

But in the comedies she is styled now the New Omphale, new Deianeira, and now Hera. Cratinus¹ flatly called her a prostitute in these lines:—

"As his Hera, Aspasia was born, the child of Unnatural Lust,

A prostitute past shaming."

And it appears also that he begat from her that bastard son about whom Eupolis, in his "Demes," represented him as inquiring with these words:—

"And my bastard, doth he live?"

to which Myronides replies:—

"Yea, and long had been a man,
Had he not feared the mischief of his harlot-birth."²

¹ In his "Cheirons" (see chapter iii. 3).

² Kock, op. cit. i. p. 282.

7 Οὕτω δὲ τὴν Ἀσπασίαν ὀνομαστὴν καὶ κλεινὴν γενέσθαι λέγουσιν ὥστε καὶ Κῦρον τὸν πολεμησαντα βασιλεῖ περὶ τῆς τῶν Περσῶν ἡγεμονίας τὴν ἀγαπωμένην ὑπ' αὐτοῦ μάλιστα τῶν παλλακίδων Ἀσπασίαν ὀνομάσαι, καλουμένην Μιλτῶ πρότερον. ἦν δὲ Φωκαῆς τὸ γένος, Ἑρμοτίμου θυγάτηρ· ἐν δὲ τῇ μάχῃ Κύρου πεσόντος ἀπαχθεῖσα πρὸς βασιλέα πλείστον ἴσχυσε. ταῦτα μὲν ἐπελθόντα τῇ μνήμῃ κατὰ τὴν γραφὴν ἀπόσασθαι καὶ παρελθεῖν ἴσως ἀπάνθρωπον ἦν.

XXV. Τὸν δὲ πρὸς Σαμίους πόλεμον αἰτιῶνται μάλιστα τὸν Περικλέα ψηφίσασθαι διὰ Μιλησίους Ἀσπασίας δεηθείσης. αἱ γὰρ πόλεις ἐπολέμουν τὸν περὶ Πριήνης πόλεμον, καὶ κρατοῦντες οἱ Σάμιοι, παύσασθαι τῶν Ἀθηναίων 166 κελευόντων καὶ δίκας λαβεῖν καὶ δοῦναι παρ' αὐτοῖς, οὐκ ἐπέιθοντο. πλεύσας οὖν ὁ Περικλῆς τὴν μὲν οὔσαν ὀλιγαρχίαν ἐν Σάμῳ κατέλυσεν, τῶν δὲ πρώτων λαβῶν ὀμήρους πεντήκοντα καὶ 2 παῖδας ἴσους εἰς Λῆμνον ἀπέστειλε. καίτοι φασὶν ἕκαστον μὲν αὐτῷ τῶν ὀμήρων δίδοναι τάλαντον ὑπὲρ ἑαυτοῦ, πολλὰ δ' ἄλλα τοὺς μὴ θέλοντας ἐν τῇ πόλει γενέσθαι δημοκρατίαν. ἔτι δὲ Πισσοῦθνης ὁ Πέρσης ἔχων τινα πρὸς Σαμίους εὐνοίαν ἀπέστειλεν αὐτῷ μυρίους χρυσοῦς, παραιτούμενος τὴν πόλιν. οὐ μὲν ἔλαβε τούτων οὐδὲν ὁ Περικλῆς, ἀλλὰ χρησάμενος ὥσπερ ἐγνώκει τοῖς Σαμίοις καὶ καταστήσας 3 δημοκρατίαν ἀπέπλευσεν εἰς τὰς Ἀθήνας. οἱ δ'

PERICLES

So renowned and celebrated did Aspasia become, they say, that even Cyrus, the one who went to war with the Great King for the sovereignty of the Persians, gave the name of Aspasia to that one of his concubines whom he loved best, who before was called Milto. She was a Phocæan by birth, daughter of one Hermotimus, and, after Cyrus had fallen in battle, was carried captive to the King,¹ and acquired the greatest influence with him. These things coming to my recollection as I write, it were perhaps unnatural to reject and pass them by.

XXV. But to return to the war against the Samians, they accuse Pericles of getting the decree for this passed at the request of Aspasia and in the special behalf of the Milesians. For the two cities were waging their war for the possession of Priene, and the Samians were getting the better of it, and when the Athenians ordered them to stop the contest and submit the case to arbitration at Athens, they would not obey. So Pericles set sail and broke up the oligarchical government which Samos had, and then took fifty of the foremost men of the state, with as many of their children, as hostages, and sent them off to Lemnos. And yet they say that every one of these hostages offered him a talent on his own account, and that the opponents of democracy in the city offered him many talents besides. And still further, Pissouthnes, the Persian satrap, who had much good-will towards the Samians, sent him ten thousand gold staters and interceded for the city. However, Pericles took none of these bribes, but treated the Samians just as he had determined, set up a democracy and sailed back to Athens. Then εὐθὺς ἀπέστησαν, ἐκκλέψαντος αὐτοῖς τοὺς ὁμήρουσ Πισσούθνου καὶ τὰλλα παρασκευάσαντος πρὸς τὸν πόλεμον. αὐθις οὖν ὁ Περικλῆς ἐξέπλευσεν ἐπ' αὐτοὺς οὐχ ἡσυχάζοντις οὐδὲ κατεπτηχότας, ἀλλὰ καὶ πάνυ προθύμως ἐγνωκότας ἀντιλαμβάνεσθαι τῆς θαλάττης. γενομένης δὲ καρτερᾶς ναυμαχίας περὶ νῆσον ἦν Τραγίας καλοῦσι, λαμπρῶς ὁ Περικλῆς ἐνίκα, τέσσαρσι καὶ τεσσαράκοντα ναυσὶν ἐβδομήκοντα καταναυμαχίησας, ὧν εἴκοσι στρατιώτιδες ἦσαν.

¹ Cf. Xenophon, Anabasis, i. 10, 2.

XXVI. Ἄμα δὲ τῇ νίκῃ καὶ τῇ διώξει τοῦ λιμένος κρατήσας ἐπολιόρκει τοὺς Σαμίους, ἀμῶς γέ πως ἔτι τολμῶντας ἐπεξιέναι καὶ διαμάχεσθαι πρὸ τοῦ τείχους. ἐπεὶ δὲ μείζων ἕτερος στόλος ἦλθεν ἐκ τῶν Ἀθηνῶν καὶ παντελῶς κατεκλείσθησαν οἱ Σάμιοι, λαβὼν ὁ Περικλῆς ἐξήκοντα τριήρεις ἔπλευσεν εἰς τὸν ἔξω πόντον, ὡς μὲν οἱ πλεῖστοι λέγουσι, Φοινισσῶν νεῶν ἐπικούρων τοῖς Σαμίοις προσφερομένων ἀπαντῆσαι καὶ διαγωνίσασθαι πορρωτάτῳ βουλόμενος, ὡς δὲ Στησίμβροτος, ἐπὶ Κύπρον στελλόμενος· ὅπερ οὐ
 2 δοκεῖ πιθανὸν εἶναι. ὁποτέρῳ δ' οὖν ἐχρήσατο τῶν λογισμῶν, ἀμαρτεῖν ἔδοξε. πλεύσαντος γὰρ αὐτοῦ Μέλισσος ὁ Ἰθαγένους, ἀνὴρ φιλόσοφος στρατηγῶν τότε τῆς Σάμου, καταφρονήσας τῆς ὀλιγότητος τῶν νεῶν ἢ τῆς ἀπειρίας τῶν στρατηγῶν, ἔπεισε τοὺς πολίτας ἐπιθέσθαι τοῖς Ἀθηναίοις. καὶ γενομένης μάχης νικήσαντες οἱ Σάμιοι, καὶ πολλοὺς μὲν αὐτῶν ἀνδρας ἐλόντες,

PERICLES

the Samians at once revolted, after Pissouthnes had stolen away their hostages from Lemnos for them, and in other ways equipped them for the war. Once more, therefore, Pericles set sail against them. They were not victims of sloth, nor yet of abject terror, but full of exceeding zeal in their determination to contest the supremacy of the sea. In a fierce sea-fight which came off near an island called Tragia, Pericles won a brilliant victory, with four and forty ships outfighting seventy, twenty of which were infantry transports. NB

XXVI. Close on the heels of his victorious pursuit came his seizure of the harbour, and then he laid formal siege to the Samians, who, somehow or other, still had the daring to sally forth and fight with him before their walls. But soon a second and a larger armament came from Athens, and the Samians were completely beleaguered and shut in. Then Pericles took sixty triremes and sailed out into the main sea, as most authorities say, because he wished to meet a fleet of Phoenician ships which was coming to the aid of the Samians, and fight it at as great a distance from Samos as possible; but according to Stesimbrotus, because he had designs on Cyprus, which seems incredible. But in any case, whichever design he cherished, he seems to have made a mistake. For no sooner had he sailed off than Melissus, the son of Ithagenes, a philosopher who was then acting as general at Samos, despising either the small number of ships that were left, or the inexperience of the generals in charge of them, persuaded his fellow-citizens to make an attack upon the Athenians. In the battle that ensued the Samians were victorious, taking many of their enemy

πολλὰς δὲ ναῦς διαφθείραντες, ἐχρῶντο τῇ
θαλάσῃ καὶ παρετίθεντο τῶν ἀναγκαίων πρὸς
3 τὸν πόλεμον ὅσα μὴ πρότερον εἶχον. ὑπὸ δὲ τοῦ Μελίσσου καὶ Περικλέα φησὶν αὐτὸν Ἀριστο-τέλης ἠττηθῆναι ναυμαχοῦντα πρότερον.

Οἱ δὲ Σάμιοι τοὺς αἰχμαλώτους τῶν Ἀθηναίων
ἀνθυβρίζοντες ἔστιζον εἰς τὸ μέτωπον γλαῦκας·
καὶ γὰρ ἐκείνους οἱ Ἀθηναῖοι σάμαιναν. ἡ δὲ
σάμαινα ναῦς ἐστὶν ὑόπρωρος μὲν τὸ σίμωμα,
κοιλοτέρα δὲ καὶ γαστροειδής, ὥστε καὶ ποντοπο-4 ρεῖν¹ καὶ ταχυναυτεῖν. οὕτω δ' ὠνομάσθη διὰ τὸ
πρῶτον ἐν Σάμῳ φανῆναι, Πολυκράτους τυράννου
κατασκευάσαντος. πρὸς ταῦτα τὰ στίγματα λέ-γουσι καὶ τὸ Ἀριστοφάνειον ἠνίχθαι·

Σαμίῳν ὁ δῆμὸς ἐστὶν ὡς πολυγύμματος.

XXVII. Πυθόμενος δ' οὖν ὁ Περικλῆς τὴν ἐπὶ
στρατοπέδου συμφορὰν ἐβοήθει κατὰ τάχος·
καὶ τοῦ Μελίσσου πρὸς αὐτὸν ἀντιταξαμένου
κρατήσας καὶ τρεψάμενος τοὺς πολεμίους εὐθύς περιετείχιζε, δαπάνη καὶ χρόνῳ μᾶλλον ἢ τραύ-
μασι καὶ κινδύνοις τῶν πολιτῶν περιγενέσθαι
2 καὶ συνελεῖν τὴν πόλιν βουλόμενος. ἐπεὶ δὲ
δυσχεραίνοντας τῇ τριβῇ τοὺς Ἀθηναίους καὶ
μάχεσθαι προθυμουμένους ἔργον ἦν κατασχεῖν,
ὀκτῶ μέρη διελὼν τὸ πᾶν πλῆθος ἀπεκλήρου, καὶ
τῷ λαβόντι τὸν λευκὸν κύαμον εὐωχεῖσθαι καὶ

¹ ποντοπορεῖν MSS. and Blass: φορτοφορεῖν (a conjecture of Coraës, to carry freight).

PERICLES

captive, and destroying many of their ships, so that they commanded the sea and laid in large store of such necessaries for the war as they did not have before. And Aristotle says that Pericles was himself also defeated by Melissus in the sea-fight which preceded this.

The Samians retaliated upon the Athenians by branding their prisoners in the forehead with owls; for the Athenians had once branded some of them with the samaena. Now the samaena is a ship of war with a boar's head design for prow and ram, but more capacious than usual and paunchlike, so that it is a good deep-sea traveller and a swift sailer too. It got this name because it made its first appearance in Samos, where Polycrates the tyrant had some built. To these brand-marks, they say, the verse of Aristophanes¹ made riddling reference:—

“For oh! how lettered is the folk of the Samians!”

XXVII. Be that true or not, when Pericles learned of the disaster which had befallen his fleet, he came speedily to its aid. And though Melissus arrayed his forces against him, he conquered and routed the enemy and at once walled their city in, preferring to get the upper hand and capture it at the price of money and time, rather than of the wounds and deadly perils of his fellow-citizens. And since it was a hard task for him to restrain the Athenians in their impatience of delay and eagerness to fight, he separated his whole force into eight divisions, had them draw lots, and allowed the division which got the white bean to feast and take their ease, while the others σχολιάζειν παρείχε τῶν ἄλλων μαχομένων. διὸ καὶ φασὶ τοὺς ἐν εὐπαθείαις τισὶ γενομένους λευκὴν ἡμέραν ἐκείνην ἀπὸ τοῦ λευκοῦ κυάμου προσαγορεύειν.

¹ From his Babylonians, not extant. Kock, op. cit. i. p. 408.

- 3 Ἐφορος δὲ καὶ μηχαναῖς χρήσασθαι τὸν Περικλέα, τὴν καινότητα θαυμάσαντα, Ἀρτέμωνος τοῦ μηχανικοῦ παρόντος, ὃν χωλὸν ὄντα καὶ φορεῖω πρὸς τὰ κατεπείγοντα τῶν ἔργων προσκομιζόμενον ὀνομασθῆναι περιφόρητον. τοῦτο μὲν οὖν Ἡρακλείδης ὁ Ποντικός ἐλέγχει τοῖς Ἀνακρέοντος ποιήμασιν, ἐν οἷς ὁ περιφόρητος Ἀρτέμων ὀνομάζεται πολλαῖς ἔμπροσθεν ἡλικίαις τοῦ περὶ Σάμον πολέμου καὶ τῶν πραγμάτων
- 4 ἐκείνων· τὸν δ' Ἀρτέμωνά φησι τρυφερόν τινα τῷ βίῳ καὶ πρὸς τοὺς φόβους μαλακὸν ὄντα καὶ καταπλήγα τὰ πολλὰ μὲν οἴκοι καθέζεσθαι, χαλκὴν ἄσπίδα τῆς κεφαλῆς αὐτοῦ δυεῖν οἰκετῶν ὑπερεχόντων, ὥστε μηδὲν ἐμπεσεῖν τῶν ἄνωθεν, εἰ δὲ βιασθεῖη προελθεῖν, ἐν κλινιδίῳ κρεμαστῷ παρὰ τὴν γῆν αὐτὴν περιφερόμενον κομίζεσθαι, καὶ διὰ τοῦτο κληθῆναι περιφόρητον.

- XXVIII. Ἐνάτῳ δὲ μηνὶ τῶν Σαμίων παραστάντων ὁ Περικλῆς τὰ τείχη καθεῖλε καὶ τὰς ναῦς παρέλαβε καὶ χρήμασι πολλοῖς ἐζημίωσεν, ὧν τὰ μὲν εὐθὺς εἰσήνεγκαν¹ οἱ Σάμιοι, τὰ δ' ἐν χρόνῳ ῥητῷ ταξάμενοι κατοίσειν ὀμήρους ἔδωκαν. Δούρις δ' ὁ Σάμιος τούτοις ἐπιτραγωδεῖ πολλὴν ὀμότητα τῶν Ἀθηναίων καὶ τοῦ Περικλέους κατηγορῶν, ἣν οὔτε Θουκυδίδης ἱστόρηκεν οὔτ'
- 2 Ἐφορος οὔτ' Ἀριστοτέλης· ἀλλ' οὐδ' ἀληθεύειν ἔοικεν, ὡς ἄρα τοὺς τριηράρχους καὶ τοὺς ἐπι-

¹ εἰσήνεγκαν Fuhrand Blass, with F^aS: ἤνεγκαν.

PERICLES

did the fighting. And this is the reason, as they say, why those who have had a gay and festive time call it a "white day,"—from the white bean.

Ephorus says that Pericles actually employed siege-engines, in his admiration of their novelty, and that Artemon the engineer was with him there, who, since he was lame, and so had to be brought on a stretcher to the works which demanded his instant attention, was dubbed Periphoretus. Heracleides Ponticus, however, refutes this story out of the poems of Anacreon, in which Artemon Periphoretus is mentioned many generations before the Samian War and its events. And he says that Artemon was very luxurious in his life, as well as weak and panic-stricken in the presence of his fears, and therefore for the most part sat still at home, while two servants held a bronze shield over his head to keep anything from falling down upon it. Whenever he was forced to go abroad, he had himself carried in a little hammock which was borne along just above the surface of the ground. On this account he was called Periphoretus.

XXVIII. After eight months the Samians surrendered, and Pericles tore down their walls, took away their ships of war, and laid a heavy fine upon them, part of which they paid at once, and part they agreed to pay at a fixed time, giving hostages therefor. To these details Duris the Samian adds stuff for tragedy, accusing the Athenians and Pericles of great brutality, which is recorded neither by Thucydides, nor Ephorus, nor Aristotle. But he appears not to speak the truth when he says, forsooth, that Pericles had the Samian trierarchs and marines brought into

βάτας τῶν Σαμίων εἰς τὴν Μιλησίων ἀγορὰν
καταγαγῶν¹ καὶ σανίσι προσδήσας ἐφ' ἡμέρας
δέκα κακῶς ἤδη διακειμένους προσέταξεν ἀνελεῖν,
ξύλοις τὰς κεφαλὰς συγκόψαντας, εἶτα προβα-3 λεῖν ἀκήδευτα τὰ σώματα. Δούρις μὲν οὖν οὐδ'
ὄπου μηδὲν αὐτῷ πρόσεστιν ἴδιον πάθος εἰωθὸς
κρατεῖν τὴν διήγησιν ἐπὶ τῆς ἀληθείας, μᾶλλον
ἔοικεν ἐνταῦθα δεινῶσαι τὰς τῆς πατρίδος συμ-φορὰς ἐπὶ διαβολῇ τῶν Ἀθηναίων.

Ὁ δὲ Περικλῆς καταστρεψόμενος τὴν Σάμον
ὡς ἐπανήλθεν εἰς τὰς Ἀθήνας, ταφύς τε τῶν
ἀποθανόντων κατὰ τὸν πόλεμον ἐνδόξους ἐποίησε
καὶ τὸν λόγον εἰπὼν, ὥσπερ ἔθος ἐστίν, ἐπὶ τῶν
4 σημάτων ἐθαυμαστώθη. καταβαίνοντα δ' αὐτὸν
ἀπὸ τοῦ βήματος αἱ μὲν ἄλλαι γυναῖκες ἐδεξιούντο
καὶ στεφάνοις ἀνέδουν καὶ ταινίαις ὥσπερ ἀθλη-τὴν νικηφόρον, ἢ δ' Ἑλπινίκη προσελθοῦσα
πλησίον. “Ταῦτ’,” ἔφη, “θαυμαστά, Περικλεῖς, καὶ ἄξια στεφάνων, ὅς ἡμῖν πολλοὺς καὶ ὑγαθοὺς
ἀπώλεσας πολίτας οὐ Φοῖνιξι πολεμῶν οὐδὲ Μήδοις, ὥσπερ οὐμὸς ἀδελφὸς Κίμων, ἀλλὰ
σύμμαχον καὶ συγγενὴ πόλιν καταστρεφόμενος.” 5 ταῦτα τῆς Ἑλπινίκης λεγοίσης ὁ Περικλῆς μειδιῶσας ἀτρέμα λέγεται τὸ τοῦ Ἀρχιλόχου
πρὸς αὐτὴν εἰπεῖν.

Οὐκ ἂν μύροισι γραῦς ἐοῦσ' ἠλείφεο.

θαυμαστὸν δέ τι καὶ μέγα φρονῆσαι καταπολεμήσαντα τοὺς Σαμίους φησὶν αὐτὸν ὁ Ἴων, ὡς

¹ καταγαγῶν Fuhr and Blass, with F²S : ἀγαγῶν.

PERICLES

the market-place of Miletus and crucified there, and that then, when they had already suffered grievously for ten days, he gave orders to break their heads in with clubs and make an end of them, and then cast their bodies forth without burial rites. At all events, since it is not the wont of Duris, even in cases where he has no private and personal interest, to hold his narrative down to the fundamental truth, it is all the more likely that here, in this instance, he has given a dreadful portrayal of the calamities of his country, that he might calumniate the Athenians.

When Pericles, after his subjection of Samos, had returned to Athens, he gave honourable burial to those who had fallen in the war, and for the oration which he made, according to the custom, over their tombs, he won the greatest admiration. But as he came down from the bema, while the rest of the women clasped his hand and fastened wreaths and fillets on his head, as though he were some victorious athlete, Elpinice drew nigh and said: "This is admirable in thee, Pericles, and deserving of wreaths, in that thou hast lost us many brave citizens, not in a war with Phoenicians or Medes, like my brother Cimon, but in the subversion of an allied and kindred city." On Elpinice's saying this, Pericles, with a quiet smile, it is said, quoted to her the verse of Archilochus:—

"Thou hadst not else, in spite of years, perfumed thyself."¹

Ion says that he had the most astonishingly great thoughts of himself for having subjected the ¹ That is, "thou art too old to meddle in affairs." Cf. chapter x. 5.

τοῦ μὲν Ἀγαμέμνωνος ἔτεσι δέκα βάρβαρον πόλιν, αὐτοῦ δὲ μῆσιν ἑννέα τοὺς πρῶτους καὶ
 6 δυνατωτάτους Ἰώνων ἐλόντος. καὶ οὐκ ἦν ἄδικος ἢ ἀξιώσις, ἀλλ' ὄντως πολλὴν ἀδηλόγητα καὶ μέγαν ἔσχε κίνδυνον ὁ πόλεμος, εἴπερ, ὡς Θουκυδίδης φησί, παρ' ἐλάχιστον ἦλθε Σαμίων ἢ πόλις ἀφελέσθαι τῆς θαλάττης τὸ κράτος Ἀθηναίους.

XXIX. Μετὰ ταῦτα κυμαίνοντος ἤδη τοῦ Πελοποννησιακοῦ πολέμου, Κερκυραίοις πολεμουμένοις ὑπὸ Κορινθίων ἔπεισε τὸν δῆμον ἀποστεῖλαι βοήθειαν καὶ προσλαβεῖν ἐρρωμένην ναυτικῇ δυνάμει νῆσον, ὡς ὅσον οὐδέπω Πελο-
 2 ποννησίων ἐκπεπολεμωμένων πρὸς αὐτούς. ψηφισαμένου δὲ τοῦ δήμου τὴν βοήθειαν ἀπέστειλε δέκα ναῦς μόνας ἔχοντα Λακεδαιμόνιον, τὸν Κίμωνος υἱόν, οἷον ἐφυβρίζων· πολλὴ γὰρ ἦν εὖνοια καὶ φιλία τῷ Κίμωνος οἴκῳ πρὸς Λακεδαιμονίους. ὡς ἂν οὖν, εἰ μηδὲν ἔργον μέγα μηδ' ἐκπρεπὲς ἐν τῇ στρατηγίᾳ τοῦ
 168 Λακεδαιμονίου γένοιτο, προσδιαβληθείη μᾶλλον εἰς τὸν λακωνισμόν, ὀλίγας αὐτῷ ναῦς ἔδωκε καὶ
 3 μὴ βουλόμενον ἐξέπεμψε. καὶ ὅλως διετελεῖ κολούων ὡς μηδὲ τοῖς ὀνόμασι γνησίους, ἀλλ' ὀθνεῖους καὶ ξένους, ὅτι τῶν Κίμωνος υἱῶν τῷ μὲν ἦν Λακεδαιμόνιος ὄνομα, τῷ δὲ Θεσσαλός, τῷ δὲ Ἡλεῖος. ἐδόκουν δὲ πάντες ἐκ γυναικὸς Ἀρκαδικῆς γεγονέναι.

PERICLES

Samians; whereas Agamemnon was all of ten years in taking a barbarian city, he had in nine months time reduced the foremost and most powerful people of Ionia. And indeed his estimate of himself was not unjust, nay, the war actually brought with it much uncertainty and great peril, if indeed, as Thucydides says,¹ the city of Samos came within a very little of stripping from Athens her power on the sea.

— XXIX. After this, when the billows of the Peloponnesian War were already rising and swelling, he persuaded the people to send aid and succour to the Corcyraeans² in their war with the Corinthians, and so to attach to themselves an island with a vigorous naval power at a time when the Peloponnesians were as good as actually at war with them. But when the people had voted to send the aid and succour, he despatched Lacedaemonius, the son of Cimon, with only ten ships, as it were in mockery of him. Now there was much good-will and friendship on the part of the house of Cimon towards the Lacedaemonians. In order, therefore, that in case no great or conspicuous achievement should be performed under the generalship of Lacedaemonius, he might so be all the more caluminated for his laconism, or sympathy with Sparta, Pericles gave him only a few ships, and sent him forth against his will. And in general he was prone to thwart and check the sons of Cimon, on the plea that not even in their names were they genuinely native, but rather aliens and strangers, since one of them bore the name of Lacedaemonius, another that of Thessalus, and a third that of Eleius. And they were all held to be the sons of a woman of Arcadia.³

¹ viii. 76, 4.

² 433 B.C.

³ Cf. Cimon, xvi. 1.

Κακῶς οὖν ὁ Περικλῆς ἀκούων διὰ τὰς δέκα ταύτας τριήρεις, ὡς μικρὰν μὲν βοήθειαν τοῖς δεηθεῖσι, μεγάλην δὲ πρόφασιν τοῖς ἐγκαλοῦσι παρεσχηκῶς, ἐτέρας αὖθις ἔστειλε πλείονας εἰς τὴν Κέρκυραν, αἱ μετὰ τὴν μάχην ἀφίκοντο.

4 Χαλεπαίνουσι δὲ τοῖς Κορινθίσις καὶ κατηγοροῦσι τῶν Ἀθηναίων ἐν Λακεδαίμονι προσεγένοντο Μεγαρεῖς, αἰτιώμενοι πάσης μὲν ἀγορᾶς, πάντων δὲ λιμένων, ὧν Ἀθηναῖοι κρατοῦσιν, εἶργεσθαι καὶ ἀπελαύνεσθαι παρὰ τὰ κοινὰ δίκαια καὶ τοὺς γεγενημένους ὄρκους τοῖς Ἑλλησιν· Αἰγινῆται δὲ κακοῦσθαι δοκοῦντες καὶ βίαια πάσχειν ἐποτινῶντο κρύφα πρὸς τοὺς Λακεδαιμονίους, φανερώς ἐγκαλεῖν τοῖς Ἀθηναίοις οὐ θαρροῦντες. ἐν δὲ τούτῳ καὶ Ποτίδαια, πόλις ὑπήκοος Ἀθηναίων, ἄποικος δὲ Κορινθίων, ἀποστᾶσα καὶ πολιορκουμένη μᾶλλον ἐπετάχυνε τὸν πόλεμον.

5 Οὐ μὴν ἀλλὰ πρεσβειῶν τε πεμπομένων Ἀθήναζε, καὶ τοῦ βασιλέως τῶν Λακεδαιμονίων Ἀρχιδάμου τὰ πολλὰ τῶν ἐγκλημάτων εἰς διαλύσεις ἄγοντος καὶ τοὺς συμμάχους πραῦνοντος, οὐκ ἂν ἔοκεῖ συμπεσεῖν ὑπὸ γε τῶν ἄλλων αἰτιῶν ὁ πόλεμος τοῖς Ἀθηναίοις, εἰ τὸ ψήφισμα καθελεῖν τὸ Μεγαρικὸν ἐπέισθησαν καὶ διαλλαγῆναι πρὸς αὐτούς. διὸ καὶ μάλιστα πρὸς τοῦτο Περικλῆς ἐναντιωθεῖς, καὶ παροξύνας τὸν

PERICLES

Accordingly, being harshly criticised because of these paltry ten ships, on the ground that he had furnished scanty aid and succour to the needy friends of Athens, but a great pretext for war to her accusing enemies, he afterwards sent out other ships, and more of them, to Corcyra,—the ones which got there after the battle.¹

The Corinthians were incensed at this procedure, and denounced the Athenians at Sparta, and were joined by the Megarians, who brought their complaint that from every market-place and from all the harbours over which the Athenians had control, they were excluded and driven away, contrary to the common law and the formal oaths of the Greeks; the Aeginetans also, deeming themselves wronged and outraged, kept up a secret wailing in the ears of the Lacedaemonians, since they had not the courage to accuse the Athenians openly. At this juncture Potidaea, too, a city that was subject to Athens, although a colony of Corinth, revolted, and the siege laid to her hastened on the war all the more.

Notwithstanding all, since embassies were repeatedly sent to Athens, and since Archidamus, the king of the Lacedaemonians, tried to bring to a peaceful settlement most of the accusations of his allies and to soften their anger, it does not seem probable that the war would have come upon the Athenians for any remaining reasons, if only they could have been persuaded to rescind their decree against the Megarians and be reconciled with them. And therefore, since it was Pericles who was most of all opposed to this, and who incited the people to

¹ Cf. Thucydides, i. 50, 5.

δῆμον ἐμμεῖναι τῇ πρὸς τοὺς¹ Μεγαρεῖς φιλο-
νεικία, μόνος ἔσχε τοῦ πολέμου τὴν αἰτίαν.

XXX. Λέγουσι δὲ πρεσβείας Ἀθήναζε περὶ
τούτων ἐκ Λακεδαίμονος ἀφιγμένης, καὶ τοῦ Περικλέους νόμον τινὰ προβαλλομένου κωλύοντα
καθελεῖν τὸ πινάκιον ἐν ᾧ τὸ ψήφισμα γεγραμ-μένον ἐτύγχανεν, εἰπεῖν Πολυάλκη τῶν πρέσβεων
τινά· “ Σὺ δὲ μὴ καθέλῃς, ἀλλὰ στρέψον εἴσω τὸ
πινάκιον· οὐ γὰρ ἔστι νόμος ὁ τοῦτο κωλύων.”
2 Περικλῆς ἐνέδωκεν. ὑπῆν μὲν οὖν τις, ὡς ἔοικεν, αὐτῷ καὶ ἰδία πρὸς τοὺς Μεγαρεῖς ἀπέχθεια·
κοινὴν δὲ καὶ φανεράν ποιησάμενος αἰτίαν κατ’
αὐτῶν ἀποτέμνεσθαι τὴν ἱερὰν ὀργάδα, γράφει
ψήφισμα κήρυκα πεμφθῆναι πρὸς αὐτοὺς καὶ
πρὸς Λακεδαιμονίους τὸν αὐτὸν κατηγοροῦντα
3 τῶν Μεγαρέων. τοῦτο μὲν οὖν τὸ ψήφισμα
Περικλέους ἐστὶν εὐγνώμονος καὶ φιλανθρώπου
δικαιολογίας ἐχόμενον· ἐπεὶ δ’ ὁ πεμφθεὶς κήρυξ Ἀνθεμόκριτος αἰτία τῶν Μεγαρέων ἀποθανεῖν
ἔδοξε, γράφει ψήφισμα κατ’ αὐτῶν Χαρίνος, ἄσπονδον μὲν εἶναι καὶ ἀκήρυκτον ἔχθραν, ὅς δ’
ἂν ἐπιβῆ τῆς Ἀττικῆς Μεγαρέων θανάτῳ ζημιούσθαι, τοὺς δὲ στρατηγοὺς, ὅταν ὀμνύωσι τὸν
πάτριον ὄρκον, ἐπομνύειν ὅτι καὶ δις ἀνὰ πᾶν
ἔτος εἰς τὴν Μεγαρικὴν ἐμβαλοῦσι ταφήναι δ’ Ἀνθεμόκριτον παρὰ τὰς Θριασίας ἑύλας, αἱ
νῦν Δίπυλον ὀνομάζονται.

¹ πρὸς τοὺς Fuhr and Blass, with F²S: πρὸς.

PERICLES

abide by their contention with the Megarians, he alone was held responsible for the war.)

XXX. They say that when an embassy had come from Lacedaemon to Athens to treat of these matters, and Pericles was shielding himself behind the plea that a certain law prevented his taking down the tablet on which the decree was inscribed, Polyalces, one of the ambassadors, cried: "Well then, don't take it down, but turn the tablet to the wall; surely there's no law preventing that." Clever as the proposal was, however, not one whit the more did Pericles give in. He must have secretly cherished, then, as it seems, some private grudge against the Megarians; but by way of public and open charge he accused them of appropriating to their own profane uses the sacred territory of Eleusis, and proposed a decree that a herald be sent to them, the same to go also to the Lacedaemonians with a denunciation of the Megarians. This decree, at any rate, is the work of Pericles, and aims at a reasonable and humane justification of his course. But after the herald who was sent, Anthemocritus, had been put to death through the agency of the Megarians, as it was believed, Charinus proposed a decree against them, to the effect that there be irreconcilable and implacable enmity on the part of Athens towards them, and that whosoever of the Megarians should set foot on the soil of Attica be punished with death; and that the generals, whenever they should take their ancestral oath of office, add to their oath this clause, that they would invade the Megarid twice during each succeeding year; and that Anthemocritus be buried honourably at the Thriasian gates, which are now called the Dipylum.

- 4 Μεγαρεῖς δὲ τὸν Ἀνθεμοκρίτου φόνον ἀπαρνούμενοι τὰς αἰτίας εἰς Ἀσπασίαν καὶ Περικλέα τρέπουσι, χρώμενοι τοῖς περιβοήτοις καὶ δημώδεσι τούτοις ἐκ τῶν Ἀχαρνέων στιχιδίοις·

Πόρνην δὲ Σιμαίθαν ἰόντες Μεγάραδε
νεανίαι κλέπτουσι μεθυσκοότταβοι·
καθ' οἱ Μεγαρεῖς ὀδύναις πεφυσιγγωμένοι
ἀντεξέκλεψαν Ἀσπασίας πόρνας δύο.

XXXI. Τὴν μὲν οὖν ἀρχὴν ὅπως ἔσχεν οὐ 169
ῥάδιον γνῶναι, τοῦ δὲ μὴ λυθῆναι τὸ ψήφισμα πάντες ὡσαύτως τὴν αἰτίαν ἐπιφέρουσι τῷ Περικλεῖ. πλὴν οἱ μὲν ἐκ φρονήματος μεγάλου μετὰ γνώμης κατὰ τὸ βέλτιστον ἀπισχυρίσασθαί φασιν αὐτόν, πείραν ἐνδόσεως τὸ πρόσταγμα καὶ τὴν συγχώρησιν ἐξομολόγησιν ἀσθενείας ἡγούμενον· οἱ δὲ μᾶλλον ἀθαδείᾳ τινὶ καὶ φιλονεικίᾳ πρὸς ἔνδειξιν ἰσχύος περιφρονῆσαι Λακεδαιμονίων.

- 2 Ἡ δὲ χειρίστη μὲν αἰτία πασῶν, ἔχουσα δὲ πλείστους μάρτυρας, οὕτω πως λέγεται. Φειδίας ὁ πλάστης ἐργολάβος μὲν ἦν τοῦ ἀγάλματος, ὡσπερ εἴρηται, φίλος δὲ τῷ Περικλεῖ γενόμενος καὶ μέγιστον παρ' αὐτῷ δυνηθεὶς τοὺς μὲν δι' αὐτὸν ἔσχεν ἐχθροὺς φθονούμενος, οἱ δὲ τοῦ δήμου ποιούμενοι πείραν ἐν ἐκείνῳ, ποῖός τις ἔσοιτο τῷ Περικλεῖ¹ κριτῆς, Μένωνά τινα τῶν

¹ τῷ Περικλεῖ Fuhr and Blass, with F^aS: Περικλεῖ.

PERICLES

But the Megarians denied the murder of Anthemocritus, and threw the blame for Athenian hate on Aspasia and Pericles, appealing to those far-famed and hackneyed verses of the "Acharnians":—

"Simaetha, harlot, one of Megara's womankind,
Was stolen by gilded youths more drunk than otherwise;
And so the Megarians, pangs of wrath all reeking
hot,
Paid back the theft and raped of Aspasia's
harlots two."¹

XXXI. Well, then, whatever the original ground for enacting the decree,—and it is no easy matter to determine this,—the fact that it was not rescinded all men alike lay to the charge of Pericles. Only, some say that he persisted in his refusal in a lofty spirit and with a clear perception of the best interests of the city, regarding the injunction laid upon it as a test of its submissiveness, and its compliance as a confession of weakness; while others hold that it was rather with a sort of arrogance and love of strife, as well as for the display of his power, that he scornfully defied the Lacedaemonians.

But the worst charge of all, and yet the one which has the most vouchers, runs something like this. Pheidias the sculptor was contractor for the great statue, as I have said, and being admitted to the friendship of Pericles, and acquiring the greatest influence with him, made some enemies through the jealousy which he excited; others also made use of him to test the people and see what sort of a judge it would be in a case where Pericles was involved.

¹ Verses 524 ff.

- Φειδίου συνεργῶν πείσαντες ἰκέτην ἐν ἀγορᾷ καθίζουσιν, αἰτούμενον ἄδειαν ἐπὶ μηνύσει καὶ
- 3 κατηγορία τοῦ Φειδίου. προσδεξαμένου δὲ τοῦ δήμου τὸν ἄνθρωπον καὶ γενομένης ἐν ἐκκλησίᾳ διώξεως, κλοπαὶ μὲν οὐκ ἠλέγχοντο· τὸ γὰρ χρυσίου οὕτως εὐθύς ἐξ ἀρχῆς τῷ ἀγάλματι προσειργάσατο καὶ περιέθηκεν ὁ Φειδίας γνώμη τοῦ Περικλέους ὥστε πᾶν δυνατὸν εἶναι περιελούσιν ἀποδείξαι τὸν σταθμόν, ὃ καὶ τότε τοὺς κατηγοροὺς ἐκέλευσε ποιεῖν ὁ Περικλῆς.
- 4 Ἡ δὲ δόξα τῶν ἔργων ἐπίεξε φθόνῳ τὸν Φειδίαν, καὶ μάλισθ' ὅτι τὴν πρὸς Ἀμαζόνας μάχην ἐν τῇ ἀσπίδι ποιῶν αὐτοῦ τινα μορφήν ἐνετύπωσε πρεσβύτου φαλακροῦ πέτρου ἐπηρμένου δι' ἀμφοτέρων τῶν χειρῶν, καὶ τοῦ Περικλέους εἰκόνα παγκύλην ἐνέθηκε μαχομένου πρὸς Ἀμαζόνα. τὸ δὲ σχῆμα τῆς χειρός, ἀνατεινούσης δόρυ πρὸ τῆς ὄψεως τοῦ Περικλέους, πεποιημένον εὐμηχάνως οἶον ἐπικρύπτειν βούλεται τὴν ὁμοιότητα παραφαινομένην ἐκατέρωθεν.
- 5 Ὁ μὲν οὖν Φειδίας εἰς τὸ δεσμωτήριον ἀπαχθεὶς ἐτελεύτησε νοσήσας, ὡς δέ φασιν ἔνιοι, φαρμάκοις, ἐπὶ διαβολῇ τοῦ Περικλέους τῶν ἐχθρῶν παρασκευασάντων. τῷ δὲ μηνυτῇ Μένωνι γράψαντος Γλύκωνος ἀτέλειαν ὁ δῆμος ἔδωκε, καὶ προσέταξε τοῖς στρατηγοῖς ἐπιμελεῖσθαι τῆς ἀσφαλείας τοῦ ἀνθρώπου.

PERICLES

These latter persuaded one Menon, an assistant of Pheidias, to take a suppliant's seat in the market-place and demand immunity from punishment in case he should bring information and accusation against Pheidias. The people accepted the man's proposal, and formal prosecution of Pheidias was made in the assembly. Embezzlement, indeed, was not proven, for the gold of the statue, from the very start, had been so wrought upon and cast about it by Pheidias, at the wise suggestion of Pericles, that it could all be taken off and weighed,¹ and this is what Pericles actually ordered the accusers of Pheidias to do at this time.

But the reputation of his works nevertheless brought a burden of jealous hatred upon Pheidias, and especially the fact that when he wrought the battle of the Amazons on the shield of the goddess, he carved out a figure that suggested himself as a bald old man lifting on high a stone with both hands, and also inserted a very fine likeness of Pericles fighting with an Amazon. And the attitude of the hand, which holds out a spear in front of the face of Pericles, is cunningly contrived as it were with a desire to conceal the resemblance, which is, however, plain to be seen from either side.

Pheidias, accordingly, was led away to prison, and died there of sickness; but some say of poison which the enemies of Pericles provided, that they might bring calumny upon him. And to Menon the informer, on motion of Glycon, the people gave immunity from taxation, and enjoined upon the generals to make provision for the man's safety.

¹ Cf. Thucydides, ii. 13, 5.

XXXII. Περὶ δὲ τοῦτον τὸν χρόνον Ἀσπασία δίκην ἔφευγεν ἀσεβείας, Ἐρμίππου τοῦ κωμωδοποιοῦ διώκοντος καὶ προσκατηγοροῦντος ὡς Περικλεῖ γυναῖκας ἐλευθέρας εἰς τὸ αὐτὸ φοιτῶσας ὑποδέχοιτο. καὶ ψήφισμα Διοπεΐθης ἔγραψεν εἰσαγγέλλεσθαι τοὺς τὰ θεῖα μὴ νομίζοντας ἢ λόγους περὶ τῶν μεταρσίων διδάσκοντας, ἀπερειδόμενος εἰς Περικλέα δι' Ἀναξαγόρου τὴν

2 ὑπόνοιαν. δεχομένου δὲ τοῦ δήμου καὶ προσιεμένου τὰς διαβολάς, οὕτως ἤδη ψήφισμα κυροῦται, Δρακοντίδου γράψαντος, ὅπως οἱ λόγοι τῶν χρημάτων ὑπὸ Περικλέους εἰς τοὺς Πρυτάνεις ἀποτεθεῖεν, οἱ δὲ δικασταὶ τὴν ψήφον ἀπὸ τοῦ βωμοῦ φέροντες ἐν τῇ πόλει κρίνοιεν. Ἄγνωιν δὲ τοῦτο μὲν ἀφείλε τοῦ ψηφίσματος, κρίνεσθαι δὲ τὴν δίκην ἔγραψεν ἐν δικασταῖς χιλίοις καὶ πεντακοσίοις, εἴτε κλοπῆς καὶ δώρων εἴτ' ἀδικίου βούλοιτό τις ὀνομάζειν τὴν δίωξιν.

3 Ἀσπασίαν μὲν οὖν ἐξητήσατο, πολλὰ πάνυ παρὰ τὴν δίκην, ὡς Λίσχίνης φησίν, ἀφείς ὑπὲρ αὐτῆς δάκρυα καὶ δεηθεὶς τῶν δικαστῶν Ἀναξαγόραν δὲ φλβηθεὶς ἐξέπεμψεν ἐκ τῆς πόλεως. ὡς δὲ διὰ Φειδίου προσέπταισε τῷ δήμῳ, φοβηθεὶς τὸ δικαστήριον μέλλοντα τὸν πόλεμον καὶ ὑποτυφόμενον ἐξέκαυσε, ἐλπίζων διασκεδάσειν τὰ ἐγκλήματα καὶ ταπεινώσειν τὸν φθόνον ἐν πράγμασι μεγάλοις καὶ κινδύνοις τῆς πόλεως ἐκείνῳ μόνῳ διὰ τὸ ἀξίωμα καὶ τὴν δύναμιν ἀναθείσης ἑαυτήν. αἱ μὲν οὖν αἰτίαι δι' ἃς οὐκ

PERICLES

XXXII. About this time also Aspasia was put on trial for impiety, Hermippus the comic poet being her prosecutor, who alleged further against her that she received free-born women into a place of assignation for Pericles. And Diopieithes brought in a bill providing for the public impeachment of such as did not believe in gods, or who taught doctrines regarding the heavens, directing suspicion against Pericles by means of Anaxagoras. The people accepted with delight these slanders, and so, while they were in this mood, a bill was passed, on motion of Dracontides, that Pericles should deposit his accounts of public moneys with the prytanes, and that the jurors should decide upon his case with ballots which had lain upon the altar of the goddess on the acropolis. But Hagnon amended this clause of the bill with the motion that the case be tried before fifteen hundred jurors in the ordinary way, whether one wanted to call it a prosecution for embezzlement and bribery, or malversation.

Well, then, Aspasia he begged off, by shedding copious tears at the trial, as Aeschines says, and by entreating the jurors; and he feared for Anaxagoras so much that he sent him away from the city. And since in the case of Pheidias he had come into collision with the people, he feared a jury in his own case, and so kindled into flame the threatening and smouldering war, hoping thereby to dissipate the charges made against him and allay the people's jealousy, inasmuch as when great undertakings were on foot, and great perils threatened, the city entrusted herself to him and to him alone, by reason of his worth and power. Such, then, are the reasons which are alleged for his not suffering εἶασεν ἐνδοῦναι Λακεδαιμονίοις τὸν δῆμον, αὐται λέγονται, τὸ δ' ἀληθὲς ἄδηλον.

XXXIII. Οἱ δὲ Λακεδαιμόνιοι γινώσκοντες ὡς ἐκείνου καταλυθέντος εἰς πάντα μαλακωτέροις χρήσονται τοῖς Ἀθηναίοις, ἐκέλευον αὐτοὺς τὸ ἄγος ἐλαύνειν τὸ Κυλώνειον,¹ ᾧ τὸ μητρόθεν γένος τοῦ Περικλέους ἔνοχον ἦν, ὡς Θουκυδίδης ἰστόρηκεν.² ἡ δὲ πείρα περιέστη τοῖς πέμψασιν εἰς τούναντίον· ἀντὶ γὰρ ὑποψίας καὶ διαβολῆς ὁ Περικλῆς ἔτι μείζονα πίστιν ἔσχε καὶ τιμὴν παρὰ τοῖς πολίταις, ὡς μάλιστα μισούντων καὶ

2 φοβουμένων ἐκείνου τῶν πολεμίων. διὸ καὶ πρὶν ἐμβαλεῖν εἰς τὴν Ἀττικὴν τὸν Ἀρχίδαμον ἔχοντα τοὺς Πελοποννησίους προεῖπε τοῖς Ἀθηναίοις, ἂν ἄρα τὰλλα δηῶν ὁ Ἀρχίδαμος ἀπέχῃται τῶν ἐκείνου διὰ τὴν ξενίαν τὴν οὖσαν αὐτοῖς, ἢ διαβολῆς τοῖς ἐχθροῖς ἐνδιδούς ἀφορμᾶς, ὅτι τῇ πόλει καὶ τὴν χώραν καὶ τὰς ἐπαύλεις ἐπιδίδωσιν.

3 Ἐμβάλλουσιν οὖν εἰς τὴν Ἀττικὴν στρατῶ μεγάλῳ Λακεδαιμόνιοι μετὰ τῶν συμμάχων, Ἀρχιδάμου τοῦ βασιλέως ἡγουμένου. καὶ δηούντες τὴν χώραν προῆλθον εἰς Ἀχαρνὰς καὶ κατεστρατοπέδευσαν, ὡς τῶν Ἀθηναίων οὐκ ἀνεξομένων, ἀλλ' ὑπ' ὀργῆς καὶ φρονήματος

4 διαμαχομένων πρὸς αὐτούς. τῷ δὲ Περικλεῖ δεινὸν ἐφαίνετο πρὸς τοὺς ἑξακισμυρίους Πελοποννησίων καὶ Βοιωτῶν ὀπίστας (τοσοῦτοι γὰρ

¹ ἐλαύνειν τὸ Κυλώνειον Fuhr and Blass, with BCF^aS: ἐλαύνειν φ.

² ἰστόρηκεν Fuhr and Blass, with BCF^aS: εἶρηκεν.

PERICLES

the people to yield to the Lacedaemonians; but the truth about it is not clear.

XXXIII. The Lacedaemonians, perceiving that if he were deposed they would find the Athenians more pliant in their hands, ordered them to drive out the Cylonian pollution,¹ in which the family of Pericles on his mother's side was involved, as Thucydides states.² But the attempt brought a result the opposite of what its makers designed, for in place of suspicion and slander, Pericles won even greater confidence and honour among the citizens than before, because they saw that their enemies hated and feared him above all other men. Therefore also, before Archidamus invaded Attica with the Peloponnesians, Pericles made public proclamation to the Athenians, that in case Archidamus, while ravaging everything else, should spare his estates, either out of regard for the friendly tie that existed between them, or with an eye to affording his enemies grounds for slander, he would make over to the city his lands and the homesteads thereon.

Accordingly, the Lacedaemonians and their allies invaded Attica with a great host under the leadership of Archidamus the king. And they advanced, ravaging the country as they went, as far as Acharnae, where they encamped, supposing that the Athenians would not tolerate it, but would fight with them out of angry pride. Pericles, however, looked upon it as a terrible thing to join battle with sixty thousand Peloponnesian and Boeotian hoplites

¹ That is, members of the Alcmaeonid family, which was involved in the stain of bloodguiltiness when the archon Megacles, about 636 B.C., sacrilegiously slew the followers of Cylon. See Plutarch, Solon, xii. 1-3; Thucydides, i. 126.

² l. 127, 1.

ἦσαν οἱ τὸ πρῶτον ἐμβαλόντες) ὑπὲρ αὐτῆς τῆς
 πόλεως μάχην συνάψαι· τοὺς δὲ βουλομένους
 μάχεσθαι καὶ δυσπαθοῦντας πρὸς τὰ γινόμενα
 κατεπράϋνε, λέγων ὡς δένδρα μὲν τμηθέντα καὶ
 κοπέντα φύεται ταχέως, ἀνδρῶν δὲ διαφθαρέντων
 5 αὖθις τυχεῖν οὐ ῥαδίον ἔστι. τὸν δὲ δῆμον εἰς
 ἐκκλησίαν οὐ συνήγε δεδιὼς βιασθῆναι παρὰ
 γνώμην, ἀλλ' ὥσπερ νεὼς κυβερνήτης ἀνέμου κατιόντος ἐν πελάγει θέμενος εὖ πάντα καὶ κατα-τείνας τὰ ὄπλα χρήται τῇ τέχνῃ, δάκρυα καὶ
 δεήσεις ἐπιβατῶν ναυτιῶντων καὶ φοβουμένων
 εἴσας, οὕτως ἐκείνος, τό τε ἄστυ συγκλείσας καὶ
 καταλαβὼν πάντα φυλακαῖς πρὸς ἀσφάλειαν,
 ἐχρήτο τοῖς αὐτοῦ λογισμοῖς, βραχέα φροντίζων
 6 τῶν καταβοῶντων καὶ δυσχεραίνοντων. καίτοι
 πολλοὶ μὲν αὐτοῦ τῶν φίλων δεόμενοι προσέκειντο, πολλοὶ δὲ τῶν ἐχθρῶν ἀπειλοῦντες καὶ κατηγοροῦντες, χοροὶ¹ δ' ἦδον ἄσματα καὶ σκώμ-ματα πρὸς αἰσχύνην, ἐφυβρίζοντες αὐτοῦ τὴν
 στρατηγίαν ὡς ἄνανδρον καὶ προιεμένην τὰ
 πράγματα τοῖς πολεμίοις. ἐπεφύετο δὲ καὶ
 Κλέων ἤδη, διὰ τῆς πρὸς ἐκείνον ὀργῆς τῶν
 7 πολιτῶν πορευόμενος ἐπὶ τὴν δημαγωγίαν, ὡς τἰνάπαιστα ταῦτα δηλοῖ ποιήσαντος Ἐρμίππου·

Βασιλεῦ σατύρων, τί ποτ' οὐκ ἐθέλεις
 δόρυ βαστάζειν, ἀλλὰ λόγους μὲν περὶ τοῦ πολέμου δεινούς παρέχεις,² ψυχὴ δὲ Τέλητος ὕπεστιν;³

¹ χοροὶ Fuhr and Blass, with F^aS: πολλοί.

² παρέχεις Fuhr, with S: παρέχη.

³ ψυχὴ . . . ὕπεστιν Fuhr and Blass, after Emperius:
 ψυχὴν . . . ὑπέοτης.

PERICLES

(those who made the first invasion were as numerous as that), and stake the city itself upon the issue. So he tried to calm down those who were eager to fight, and who were in distress at what the enemy was doing, by saying that trees, though cut and lopped, grew quickly, but if men were destroyed it was not easy to get them again. And he would not call the people together into an assembly, fearing that he would be constrained against his better judgement, but, like the helmsman of a ship, who, when a stormy wind swoops down upon it in the open sea, makes all fast, takes in sail, and exercises his skill, disregarding the tears and entreaties of the sea-sick and timorous passengers, so he shut the city up tight, put all parts of it under safe garrison, and exercised his own judgement, little heeding the brawlers and malcontents. And yet many of his friends beset him with entreaties, and many of his enemies with threats and denunciations, and choruses sang songs of scurrilous mockery, railing at his generalship for its cowardice, and its abandonment of everything to the enemy. Cleon, too, was already harassing him, taking advantage of the wrath with which the citizens regarded him to make his own way toward the leadership of the people, as these anapaestic verses of Hermippus¹ show :—

“Thou king of the Satyrs, why pray wilt thou not Take the spear for thy weapon, and stop the dire talk

With the which, until now, thou conductest the war,
While the soul of a Teles is in thee?

¹ From his “Moirai,” or Fates. Kock, Com. Att. Frag., i. pp. 236 f.

PLUTARCH'S LIVES

καὶ χειριδίου δ' ἀκόνη σκληρὰ παραθηγομένης βρύχεις κοπίδος,¹ δηχθεὶς αἴθωνι Κλέωνι.

XXXIV. Πλὴν ὑπ' οὐδενὸς ἐκινήθη τῶν τοιούτων ὁ Περικλῆς, ἀλλὰ πράως καὶ σιωπῇ τὴν ἀδοξίαν καὶ τὴν ἀπέχθειαν ὑφιστάμενος, καὶ νεῶν ἑκατὸν ἐπὶ τὴν Πελοπόννησον στόλον ἐκπέμπων αὐτὸς οὐ συνεξέπλευσεν, ἀλλ' ἔμεινεν οἰκουρῶν καὶ διὰ χειρὸς ἔχων τὴν πόλιν, ἕως ἀπηλλάγησαν οἱ Πελοποννήσιοι. θεραπεύων δὲ τοὺς πολλοὺς ὁμως ἀσχάλλοντας ἐπὶ τῷ πολέμῳ, διανομαῖς τε χρημάτων ἀνελάμβανε καὶ κληρουχίας ἔγραφεν. Αἰγινήτας γὰρ ἐξελάσας ἅπαντας διένειμε τὴν νῆσον Ἀθηναίων τοῖς λαχοῦσιν. ἦν δέ τις 171
 2 παρηγορία καὶ ἀφ' ὧν ἔπασχον οἱ πολέμιοι. καὶ γὰρ οἱ περιπλέοντες τὴν Πελοπόννησον χώραν τε πολλὴν κώμας τε καὶ πόλεις μικρὰς διεπόρθησαν, καὶ κατὰ γῆν αὐτὸς ἐμβαλὼν εἰς τὴν Μεγαρικὴν ἔφθαρε πᾶσαν. ἦ καὶ δῆλον ἦν ὅτι ποῦ μὲν δρῶντες κατὰ γῆν κακὰ² τοὺς Ἀθηναίους, πολλὰ δὲ πᾶσχοντες ὑπ' ἐκείνων ἐκ θαλάττης, οὐκ ἂν εἰς μῆκος πολέμου τοσοῦτον προὔβησαν, ἀλλὰ ταχέως ἀπέλιπον, ὥσπερ ἐξ ἀρχῆς ὁ Περικλῆς προηγόρευσεν, εἰ μὴ τι δαιμόνιον ὑπηναντιώθη τοῖς ἀνθρωπίνοις λογισμοῖς.
 3 Νῦν δὲ πρῶτον μὲν ἡ λοιμώδης ἐνέπεσε φθορὰ καὶ κατενεμήθη τὴν ἀκμάζουσαν ἡλικίαν καὶ δύναμιν· ὑφ' ἧς καὶ τὰ σώματα κακούμενοι καὶ

¹ καὶ χειριδίου . . . κοπίδος Coraës' restoration of these corrupt verses, adopted by Fuhr.

² κατὰ γῆν κακὰ Fuhr and Blass, with F^{AS}: κακά.

PERICLES

If the tiniest knife is but laid on the stone
To give it an edge, thou gnashest thy teeth,
As if bitten by fiery Cleon."

XXXIV. However, Pericles was moved by no such things, but gently and silently underwent the ignominy and the hatred, and, sending out an armament of a hundred ships against the Peloponnesus, did not himself sail with it, but remained behind, keeping the city under watch and ward and well in hand, until the Peloponnesians withdrew. Then, by way of soothing the multitude, who, in spite of their enemies' departure, were distressed over the war, he won their favour by distributions of moneys and proposed allotments of conquered lands; the Aeginetans, for instance, he drove out entirely, and parcelled out their island among the Athenians by lot. And some consolation was to be had from what their enemies suffered. For the expedition around the Peloponnesus ravaged much territory and sacked villages and small cities, while Pericles himself, by land, invaded the Megarid and razed it all. Wherein also it was evident that though their enemies did the Athenians much harm by land, they suffered much too at their hands by sea, and therefore would not have protracted the war to such a length, but would have speedily given up, just as Pericles prophesied in the beginning, had not a terrible visitation from heaven thwarted human calculations.

As it was, in the first place, a pestilential destruction fell upon them¹ and devoured clean the prime of their youth and power. It weakened

¹ 430 B.C. Cf. Thucydides, ii. 47-54.

τὰς ψυχὰς παντάπασιν ἠγγριώθησαν πρὸς τὸν Περικλέα, καὶ καθ' ἕνα ἰατρὸν ἢ πατέρα τῇ νόσῳ παραφρονήσαντες ἀδικεῖν ἐπέχειρησαν, ἀναπεισθέντες ὑπὸ τῶν ἐχθρῶν ὡς τὴν μὲν νόσον ἢ τοῦ χωρικοῦ πλήθους εἰς τὸ ἄστυ συμφόρησις
 4 ἀπεργάζεται,¹ θέρους ὥρα πολλῶν ὁμοῦ χύδην ἐν οἰκήμασι μικροῖς καὶ σκηνώμασι πνιγηροῖς ἠναγκασμένων διαιτᾶσθαι δίαιταν οἰκουρὸν καὶ ἀργὴν ἀντὶ καθαρᾶς καὶ ἀναπεπταμένης τῆς πρότερον, τούτου δ' αἴτιος ὁ τῷ πολέμῳ τὸν ἀπὸ τῆς χώρας ὄχλον εἰς τὰ τείχη καταχεύμενος καὶ πρὸς οὐδέν ἀνθρώποις τοσοῦτοις χρώμενος, ἀλλ' ἔων ὥσπερ βοσκήματα καθειργμένους ἀναπίμπλασθαι φθορᾶς ἀπ' ἀλλήλων, καὶ μηδεμίαν μεταβολὴν μηδ' ἀναψυχὴν ἐκπορίζων.

XXXV. Ταῦτα βουλόμενος ἰᾶσθαι καὶ τι παραλυπεῖν τοὺς πολεμίους, ἑκατὸν καὶ πεντήκοντα ναῦς ἐπλήρου, καὶ πολλοὺς καὶ ἀγαθοὺς ὀπλίτας καὶ ἰππέας ἀναβιβασάμενος ἔμελλεν ἀνάγεσθαι, μεγάλην ἐλπίδα τοῖς πολίταις καὶ φόβον οὐκ ἐλάττω τοῖς πολεμίοις ἀπὸ τοσαύτης ἰσχύος παρασχών. ἤδη δὲ πεπληρωμένων τῶν νεῶν καὶ τοῦ Περικλέους ἀναβεβηκότος ἐπὶ τὴν ἑαυτοῦ τριήρη τὸν μὲν ἥλιον ἐκλιπεῖν συνέβη καὶ γενέσθαι σκότος, ἐκπλαγῆναι δὲ πάντας ὡς πρὸς μέγα σημεῖον.
 2 ὁρῶν οὖν ὁ Περικλῆς περίφοβον τὸν κυβερνήτην καὶ διηπορημένον, ἀνέσχε τὴν χλαμύδα πρὸ τῶν

¹ ἀπεργάζεται Fuhr and Blass, with F²S : ἐργάζεται.

PERICLES

them in body and in spirit, and made them altogether wild against Pericles, so that, for all the world as the mad will attack a physician or a father, so they, in the delirium of the plague, attempted to do him harm, persuaded thereto by his enemies. These urged that the plague was caused by the crowding of the rustic multitudes together into the city, where, in the summer season, many were huddled together in small dwellings and stifling barracks, and compelled to lead a stay-at-home and inactive life, instead of being in the pure and open air of heaven as they were wont. They said that Pericles was responsible for this, who, because of the war, had poured the rabble from the country into the walled city, and then gave that mass of men no employment whatever, but suffered them, thus penned up like cattle, to fill one another full of corruption, and provided them no change or respite.

— XXXV. Desiring to heal these evils, and at the same time to inflict some annoyance upon the enemy, he manned a hundred and fifty ships of war, and, after embarking many brave hoplites and horsemen, was on the point of putting out to sea, affording great hope to the citizens, and no less fear to the enemy in consequence of so great a force. But when the ships were already manned, and Pericles had gone aboard his own trireme, it chanced that the sun was eclipsed and darkness came on, and all were thoroughly frightened, looking upon it as a great portent. Accordingly, seeing that his steersman was timorous and utterly perplexed, Pericles held up his cloak before the ὄψεων¹ αὐτοῦ, καὶ παρακαλύψας ἠρώτησε μή τι δεινὸν ἢ δεινοῦ τινος οἶεται σημεῖον· ὡς δ' οὐκ ἔφη, “Τί οὖν,” εἶπεν, “ἐκείνο τούτου διαφέρει, πλὴν ὅτι μείζον τι τῆς χλαμύδος ἐστὶ τὸ πεποιηκὸς τὴν ἐπισκότησιν;” ταῦτα μὲν οὖν ἐν ταῖς σχολαῖς λέγεται τῶν φιλοσόφων.

- 3 Ἐκπλεύσας δ' οὖν ὁ Περικλῆς οὐτ' ἄλλο τι δοκεῖ τῆς παρασκευῆς ἄξιον δρᾶσαι, πολιορκήσας τε τὴν ἱερὰν Ἐπίδαυρον ἐλπίδα παρασχούσαν ὡς ἄλωσομένην ἀπέτυχε διὰ τὴν νόσον. ἐπιγενομένη γὰρ οὐκ αὐτοὺς μόνον, ἀλλὰ καὶ τοὺς ὀπωσοῦν τῆ στρατιᾷ συμμίξαντας προσδιέφθειρεν. ἐκ τούτου χαλεπῶς διακειμένους τοὺς Ἀθηναίους πρὸς αὐτὸν
- 4 ἐπειρᾶτο παρηγορεῖν καὶ ἀναθαρρύνειν. οὐ μὴν παρέλυσε τὴν ὀργὴν οὐδὲ μετέπεισε πρότερον ἢ τὰς ψήφους λαβόντας ἐπ' αὐτὸν εἰς τὰς χεῖρας καὶ γενομένους κυρίους ἀφελέσθαι τὴν στρατηγίαν καὶ ζημιῶσαι χρήμασιν, ὧν ἀριθμὸν οἱ τὸν ἐλάχιστον πεντεκαίδεκα τάλαντα, πεντήκοντα δ' οἱ τὸν πλεῖστον γράφουσιν. ἐπεγράφη δὲ τῇ δίκῃ κατηγορος, ὡς μὲν Ἰδομενεὺς λέγει, Κλέων, ὡς δὲ Θεόφραστος, Σιμμίας· ὁ δὲ Ποντικὸς Ἡρακλείδης Λακρατίδαν εἶρηκε.

XXXVI. Τὰ μὲν οὖν δημόσια ταχέως ἔμελλε παύσεσθαι,² καθάπερ κέντρον εἰς τοῦτον ἄμα πληγῇ τὸν θυμὸν ἀφεικότων τῶν πολλῶν· τὰ δ' οἰκεῖα μοχθηρῶς εἶχεν αὐτῷ κατὰ τε τὸν λοιμὸν

¹ τῶν ὄψεων Fuhr and Blass, with F^aS: τῆς ὄψεως.

² παύσεσθαι Fuhr and Blass, with F^aS, and after Reiske: παύεσθαι.

PERICLES

man's eyes, and, thus covering them, asked him if he thought it anything dreadful, or portentous of anything dreadful. "No," said the steersman. "How then," said Pericles, "is yonder event different from this, except that it is something rather larger than my cloak which has caused the obscurity?" At any rate, this tale is told in the schools of philosophy.

Well, then, on sailing forth, Pericles seems to have accomplished nothing worthy of his preparations, but after laying siege to sacred Epidaurus, which awakened a hope that it might be captured, he had no such good fortune, because of the plague. Its fierce onset destroyed not only the Athenians themselves, but also those who, in any manner soever, had dealings with their forces. The Athenians being exasperated against him on this account, he tried to appease and encourage them. He did not, however, succeed in allaying their wrath, nor yet in changing their purposes, before they got their hostile ballots into their hands, became masters of his fate, stripped him of his command, and punished him with a fine.) The amount of this was fifteen talents, according to those who give the lowest, and fifty, according to those who give the highest figures. The public prosecutor mentioned in the records of the case was Cleon, as Idomeneus says, but according to Theophrastus it was Simmias, and Heracleides Ponticus mentions Lacratides.

XXXVI. So much, then, for his public troubles; they were likely soon to cease, now that the multitude had stung him, as it were, and left their passion with their sting; but his domestic affairs were in a

- οὐκ ὀλίγους ἀποβαλόντι τῶν ἐπιτηδείων καὶ
 στάσει διατεταραγμένα¹ πόρρωθεν. ὁ γὰρ πρεσβύτατος αὐτοῦ τῶν γνησίων υἱῶν Ξάνθιππος
 φύσει τε δαπανηρὸς ὢν καὶ γυναικὶ νέα καὶ πολυτελεῖ συνοικῶν, Τισάνδρου θυγατρὶ τοῦ Ἐπιλύκου,
 χαλεπῶς ἔφερε τὴν τοῦ πατρὸς ἀκρίβειαν γλί-
 2 σχρα καὶ κατὰ μικρὸν αὐτῷ χορηγοῦντος. πέμψας 172
 οὖν πρὸς τινα τῶν φίλων ἔλαβεν ἀργύριον ὡς τοῦ Περικλέους κελεύσαντος. ἐκείνου δ' ὕστερον ἀπαι-τοῦντος, ὁ μὲν Περικλῆς καὶ δίκην αὐτῷ προσ-ἔλαχε, τὸ δὲ μεираκιον ὁ Ξάνθιππος ἐπὶ τούτῳ
 χαλεπῶς διατεθεὶς ἐλοιδορεῖ τὸν πατέρα, πρῶτον
 μὲν ἐκφέρων ἐπὶ γέλῳ τὰς οἴκοι διατριβὰς
 αὐτοῦ καὶ τοὺς λόγους οὓς ἐποιεῖτο² μετὰ τῶν
 3 σοφιστῶν. πεντάθλου γάρ τινος ἀκοντίῳ πατάξαντος Ἐπίτιμον τὸν Φαρσάλιον ἀκουσίως καὶ
 κατακτείναντος, ἡμέραν ὅλην ἀναλῶσαι μετὰ Πρωταγόρου διαποροῦντα πότερον τὸ ἀκόντιον ἢ
 τὸν βαλόντα μᾶλλον ἢ τοὺς ἀγωνοθέτας κατὰ τὸν
 ὀρθότατον λόγον αἰτίους χρῆ τοῦ πάθους ἡγεῖσθαι.
 πρὸς δὲ τούτοις καὶ τὴν περὶ τῆς γυναικὸς διαβολὴν ὑπὸ τοῦ Ξανθίππου φησὶν ὁ Στησίμβροτος εἰς τοὺς πολλοὺς διασπαρῆναι, καὶ ὅλως
 ἀνήκεστον ἄχρι τῆς τελευτῆς τῷ νεανίσκῳ πρὸς
 τὸν πατέρα παραμεῖναι τὴν διαφυρὰν· ἀπέθανε
 γὰρ ὁ Ξάνθιππος ἐν τῷ λοιμῷ νοσήσας.
 4 Ἀπέβαλε δὲ καὶ τὴν ἀδελφὴν ὁ Περικλῆς τότε
 καὶ τῶν κηδεστῶν καὶ φίλων τοὺς πλείστους καὶ

¹ διατεταραγμένα Fuhr and Blass, after Sauppe : διατεταραγ-μένηφ.

² ἐποιεῖτο Fuhr and Blass, with F^aS, and after Sauppe :
 ἐποιεῖ.

PERICLES

sorry plight, since he had lost not a few of his intimate friends during the pestilence, and had for some time been rent and torn by a family feud. The eldest of his legitimate sons, Xanthippus, who was naturally prodigal, and had married a young and extravagant wife, the daughter of Tisander, the son of Epilycus, was much displeased at his father's exactitude in making him but a meagre allowance, and that a little at a time. Accordingly, he sent to one of his father's friends and got money, pretending that Pericles bade him do it. When the friend afterwards demanded repayment of the loan, Pericles not only refused it, but brought suit against him to boot. So the young fellow, Xanthippus, incensed at this, fell to abusing his father, publishing abroad, to make men laugh, his conduct of affairs at home, and the discourses which he held with the sophists. For instance, a certain athlete had hit Epitimus the Pharsalian with a javelin, accidentally, and killed him, and Pericles, Xanthippus said, squandered an entire day discussing with Protagoras whether it was the javelin, or rather the one who hurled it, or the judges of the contests, that "in the strictest sense" ought to be held responsible for the disaster. Besides all this, the slanderous charge concerning his own wife Stesimbrotus says was sown abroad in public by Xanthippus himself, and also that the quarrel which the young man had with his father remained utterly incurable up to the time of his death,—for Xanthippus fell sick and died during the plague.

Pericles lost his sister also at that time, and of his relatives and friends the largest part, and those χρησιμωτάτους πρὸς τὴν πολιτείαν. οὐ μὴν ἀπέπειπεν οὐδὲ προὔδωκε τὸ φρόνημα καὶ τὸ μέγεθος τῆς ψυχῆς ὑπὸ τῶν συμφορῶν, ἀλλ' οὐδὲ κλαίων οὐδὲ κηδεύων οὐδὲ πρὸς τάφῳ τινὸς ὥφθη τῶν ἀναγκαίων, πρὶν γε δὴ καὶ τὸν περίλοιπον αὐτοῦ

 5 τῶν γνησίων υἱῶν¹ ἀποβαλεῖν Πάραλον. ἐπὶ τούτῳ δὲ καμφθεὶς ἐπειρᾶτο μὲν ἐγκαρτερεῖν τῷ ἡθεὶ καὶ διαφυλάττειν τὸ μεγαλόψυχον, ἐπιφέρων δὲ τῷ νεκρῷ στέφανον ἡττήθη τοῦ πάθους πρὸς τὴν ὄψιν, ὥστε κλαυθμόν τε ῥῆξαι καὶ πλῆθος ἐκχέαι δακρύων, οὐδέποτε τοιοῦτον οὐδὲν ἐν τῷ λοιπῷ βίῳ πεποιηκώς.

XXXVII. Τῆς δὲ πόλεως πειρωμένης τῶν ἄλλων στρατηγῶν εἰς τὸν πόλεμον καὶ ῥητόρων, ὡς δ' οὐδεὶς βάρος ἔχων ἰσόρροπον οὐδ' ἀξίωμα πρὸς τοσαύτην ἐχέγγυον ἡγεμονίαν ἐφαίνετο, ποθούσης ἐκείνον καὶ καλούσης ἐπὶ τὸ βῆμα καὶ τὸ στρατήγιον, ἀθυμῶν καὶ κείμενος οἴκοι διὰ τὸ πένθος ὑπ' Ἀλκιβιάδου καὶ τῶν ἄλλων ἐπείσθη φίλων
 2 προελθεῖν. ἀπολογησαμένου δὲ τοῦ δήμου τὴν ἀγνωμοσύνην πρὸς αὐτόν, ὑποδεξάμενος αὐθις τὰ πρύγματα καὶ στρατηγὸς αἰρεθεὶς ἡτήσατο λυθῆναι τὸν περὶ τῶν νόθων νόμον, ὃν αὐτὸς εἰσενηνόχει πρότερον, ὡς μὴ παντάπασιν ἐρημία διαδοχῆς τὸν οἶκον ἐκλίποι τοῦνομα καὶ τὸ γένος.

3 Εἶχε δ' οὕτω τὰ περὶ τὸν νόμον. ἀκμάζων ὁ

¹ γνησίων υἱῶν Fuhr and Blass, with F^aS : γνησίων.

PERICLES

who were most serviceable to him in his administration of the city. He did not, however, give up, nor yet abandon his loftiness and grandeur of spirit because of his calamities, nay, he was not even seen to weep, either at the funeral rites, or at the grave of any of his connections, until indeed he lost the very last remaining one of his own legitimate sons, Paralus. Even though he was bowed down at this stroke, he nevertheless tried to persevere in his habit and maintain his spiritual greatness, but as he laid a wreath upon the dead, he was vanquished by his anguish at the sight, so that he broke out into wailing, and shed a multitude of tears, although he had never done any such thing in all his life before.

XXXVII. The city made trial of its other generals and counsellors for the conduct of the war, but since no one appeared to have weight that was adequate or authority that was competent for such leadership, it yearned for Pericles, and summoned him back to the bema and the war-office.¹ He was lying dejectedly at home because of his sorrow, but was persuaded by Alcibiades and his other friends to resume his public life. When the people had apologized for their thankless treatment of him, and he had undertaken again the conduct of the state, and been elected general, he asked for a suspension of the law concerning children born out of wedlock,—a law which he himself had formerly introduced,—in order that the name and lineage of his house might not altogether expire through lack of succession.

The circumstances of this law were as follows.

¹ 429 B.C.

PLUTARCH'S LIVES

Περικλῆς ἐν τῇ πολιτείᾳ πρὸ πάνυ πολλῶν χρόνων, καὶ παῖδας ἔχων, ὥσπερ εἴρηται, γησιούς, νόμον ἔγραψε μόνους Ἀθηναίους εἶναι τοὺς ἐκ δευῖν Ἀθηναίων γεγονότας. ἐπεὶ δὲ τοῦ βασιλέως τῶν Αἰγυπτίων δωρεὰν τῷ δήμῳ πέμψαντος τετρακισμυρίους πυρῶν μεδίμνους ἔδει διανέμεσθαι τοὺς πολίτας, πολλαὶ μὲν ἀνεφύοντο δίκαι τοῖς νόμοις ἐκ τοῦ γράμματος ἐκείνου τέως διαλανθάνουσι καὶ παρορωμένοις,¹ πολλοὶ δὲ καὶ συκοφαντήμασι περιέπιπτον. ἐπράθησαν δ' οὖν² ἄλόντες ὀλίγῳ πεντακισχιλίων ἐλάττους, οἱ δὲ μέιναντες ἐν τῇ πολιτείᾳ καὶ κριθέντες Ἀθηναῖοι μύριοι καὶ τετρακισχίλιοι καὶ τεσσαράκοντα τὸ
 5 πλῆθος ἐξητίσθησαν. ὄντος οὖν δεινοῦ τὸν κατὰ τοσοῦτων ἰσχύσαντα νόμον ὑπ' αὐτοῦ πάλιν λυθῆναι τοῦ γράψαντος, ἢ παροῦσα δυστυχία τῷ Περικλεῖ περὶ τὸν οἶκον, ὡς δίκην τινὰ δεδωκότι τῆς ὑπεροψίας καὶ τῆς μεγαλαυχίας ἐκείνης, ἐπέκλασε τοὺς Ἀθηναίους, καὶ δόξαντες αὐτὸν νεμεσητὰ τε παθεῖν ἀνθρωπίνων³ τε δεῖσθαι συνεχώρησαν ἀπογράψασθαι τὸν νόμον εἰς τοὺς φράτορας, ὄνομα θέμενον τὸ αὐτοῦ. καὶ τοῦτον μὲν ὕστερον ἐν Ἀργινοῦσαις καταναυμαχήσαντα Πελοποννησίους ἀπέκτεινεν ὁ δῆμος μετὰ τῶν συστρατῆγων.

¹ διαλανθάνουσι, παρορωμένοις Fuhr and Blass, after Sauppe : διαλανθάνουσαι, παρορώμεναι (referring to the prosecutions).

² δ' οὖν Fuhr and Blass, with F^{as}S : οὖν.

³ ἀνθρωπίνων Fuhr and Blass, with F^{as}S : ἀνθρωπίνως.

PERICLES

Many years before this,¹ when Pericles was at the height of his political career and had sons born in wedlock, as I have said, he proposed a law that only those should be reckoned Athenians whose parents on both sides were Athenians. And so when the king of Egypt sent a present to the people of forty thousand measures of grain, and this had to be divided up among the citizens, there was a great crop of prosecutions against citizens of illegal birth by the law of Pericles, who had up to that time escaped notice and been overlooked, and many of them also suffered at the hands of informers. As a result, a little less than five thousand were convicted and sold into slavery, and those who retained their citizenship and were adjudged to be Athenians were found, as a result of this scrutiny, to be fourteen thousand and forty in number. It was, accordingly, a grave matter, that the law which had been rigorously enforced against so many should now be suspended by the very man who had introduced it, and yet the calamities which Pericles was then suffering in his family life, regarded as a kind of penalty which he had paid for his arrogance and haughtiness of old, broke down the objections of the Athenians. They thought that what he suffered was by way of retribution, and that what he asked became a man to ask and men to grant, and so they suffered him to enroll his illegitimate son in the phratry-lists and to give him his own name. This was the son who afterwards conquered the Peloponnesians in a naval battle at the Arginusae islands,² and was put to death by the people along with his fellow-generals.

¹ 451-450 B.C.

² 406 B.C.

- XXXVIII. Τότε δὲ τοῦ Περικλέους ἔοικεν ὁ
 λοιμὸς λαβέσθαι λαβὴν οὐκ ὀξεῖαν, ὥσπερ ἄλλων,
 οὐδὲ σύντονον, ἀλλὰ βληχρῶ τιμὴ νόσῳ καὶ μῆκος
 ἐν ποικίλαις ἐχούσῃ μεταβολαῖς διαχρωμένην
 τὸ σῶμα σχολαίως καὶ ὑπερείπουσαν τὸ φρόνημα
 2 τῆς ψυχῆς. ὁ γοῦν Θεόφραστος ἐν τοῖς Ἑθικοῖς
 διαπορήσας εἰ πρὸς τὰς τύχας τρέπεται τὰ ἤθη
 καὶ κινούμενα τοῖς τῶν σωμάτων πάθεσιν ἐξίσταται τῆς ἀρετῆς, ἰστόρηκεν ὅτι νοσῶν ὁ Πε-ρικλῆς ἐπισκοπούμενῳ τινὶ τῶν φίλων δείξειε
 περίαπτον ὑπὸ τῶν γυναικῶν τῷ τραχήλῳ περιηρημένον, ὡς σφόδρα κακῶς ἔχων ὁπότε καὶ
 ταύτην ὑπομένοι τὴν ἀβελτερίαν.
- 3 Ἦδη δὲ πρὸς τῷ τελευτῶν ὄντος αὐτοῦ, περικαθήμενοι τῶν πολιτῶν οἱ βέλτιστοι καὶ τῶν
 φίλων οἱ περιόντες λόγον ἐποιούντο τῆς ἀρετῆς
 καὶ τῆς δυνάμεως, ὅση γένοιτο, καὶ τὰς πράξεις
 ἀνεμετροῦντο καὶ τῶν τροπαίων τὸ πλήθος· ἐννέα
 γὰρ ἦν ἂ στρατηγῶν καὶ νικῶν ἔστησεν ὑπὲρ
 4 τῆς πόλεως. ταῦτα, ὡς οὐκέτι συνιέντος, ἀλλὰ
 καθηρημένου τὴν αἴσθησιν αὐτοῦ, διελέγοντο
 πρὸς ἀλλήλους· ὁ δὲ πᾶσιν ἐτύγχανε τὸν νοῦν
 προσεσχηκῶς, καὶ φθεγξάμενος εἰς μέσον ἔφη
 θαυμάζειν ὅτι ταῦτα μὲν ἐπαινοῦσιν αὐτοῦ καὶ
 μνημονεύουσιν, ἂ καὶ πρὸς τύχην ἐστὶ κοινὰ καὶ
 γέγονεν ἤδη πολλοῖς στρατηγοῖς, τὸ δὲ κάλλιστον
 καὶ μέγιστον οὐ λέγουσιν. “Οὐδεὶς γάρ,” ἔφη, ‘δὲ ἐμὲ τῶν ὄντων Ἀθηναίων μέλαν ἰμάτιον τεριεβάλετο.”

PERICLES

XXXVIII. At this time, it would seem, the plague laid hold of Pericles, not with a violent attack, as in the case of others, nor acute, but one which, with a kind of sluggish distemper that prolonged itself through varying changes, used up his body slowly and undermined the loftiness of his spirit. Certain it is that Theophrastus, in his "Ethics," querying whether one's character follows the bent of one's fortunes and is forced by bodily sufferings to abandon its high excellence, records this fact, that Pericles, as he lay sick, showed one of his friends who was come to see him an amulet that the women had hung round his neck, as much as to say that he was very badly off to put up with such folly as that.

Being now near his end,¹ the best of the citizens and those of his friends who survived were sitting around him holding discourse of his excellence and power, how great they had been, and estimating all his achievements and the number of his trophies,—there were nine of these which he had set up as the city's victorious general. This discourse they were holding with one another, supposing that he no longer understood them but had lost consciousness. He had been attending to it all, however, and speaking out among them said he was amazed at their praising and commemorating that in him which was due as much to fortune as to himself, and which had fallen to the lot of many generals besides, instead of mentioning his fairest and greatest title to their admiration; "for," said he, "no living Athenian ever put on mourning because of me."

¹ He died in the autumn of 429 B.C.

PLUTARCH'S LIVES

XXXIX. Θαυμαστός οὖν ὁ ἀνὴρ οὐ μόνον τῆς ἐπιεικείας καὶ πραότητος, ἦν ἐν πράγμασι πολλοῖς καὶ μεγάλας ἀπέχθειαις διειρήσεν, ἀλλὰ καὶ τοῦ φρονήματος, εἰ τῶν αὐτοῦ καλῶν ἡγεῖτο βέλτιστον εἶναι τὸ μήτε φθόνῳ μήτε θυμῷ χαρίσασθαι μηδὲν ὑπὸ τηλικαύτης δυνάμεως, μηδὲ

2 χρήσασθαι τινι τῶν ἐχθρῶν ὡς ἀνηκέστῳ. καὶ μοι δοκεῖ τὴν μεираκιώδη καὶ σοβαρὰν ἐκείνην προσωυμίαν ἐν τούτῳ ποιεῖν ἀνεπίφθονον καὶ πρέπουσαν, οὕτως εὐμενὲς ἦθος καὶ βίον ἐν ἐξουσία καθαρὸν καὶ ἀμίαντον Ὀλύμπιον προσαγορεύεσθαι, καθάπερ τὸ τῶν θεῶν γένος ἀξιούμεν αἴτιον μὲν ἀγαθῶν, ἀναίτιον δὲ κακῶν πεφυκὸς ἄρχειν καὶ βασιλεύειν τῶν ὄντων, οὐχ ὥσπερ οἱ ποιηταὶ συνταράττοντες ἡμᾶς ἀμαθεστάταις

3 δόξαις ἀλίσκονται τοῖς αὐτῶν μυθεύμασι,¹ τὸν μὲν τόπον, ἐν ᾧ τοὺς θεοὺς κατοικεῖν λέγουσιν, ἀσφαλὲς ἔδος καὶ ἀσάλευτον καλοῦντες, οὐ πνεύμασιν, οὐ νέφεσι χρώμενον, ἀλλ' αἴθρα² μαλακῇ καὶ φωτὶ καθαρωτάτῳ³ τὸν ἅπαντα χρόνον ὁμαλῶς περιλαμπόμενον, ὡς τοιαύτης τινὸς⁴ τῷ μακαρίῳ καὶ ἀθανάτῳ διαγωγῆς μάλιστα πρεπούσης, αὐτοὺς δὲ τοὺς θεοὺς παραχῆς καὶ δυσμενείας καὶ ὀργῆς ἄλλων τε μεστοὺς παθῶν ἀποφαίνοντες οὐδ' ἀνθρώποις νοῦν ἔχουσι προσηκόντων. ἀλλὰ ταῦτα μὲν ἴσως ἐτέρας δόξει πραγματείας εἶναι.

4 Τοῦ δὲ Περικλέους ταχεῖαν αἴσθησιν καὶ σαφῆ

¹ μυθεύμασι Fuhr and Blass with S (μυθεύμασι F^a): ποιήμασι.

² αἴθρα Fuhr and Blass with F^aS: αἴθρα.

³ καθαρωτάτῳ Fuhr and Blass with F^aS: καθαρό.

⁴ τοιαύτης τινὸς Fuhr and Blass with F^aS: τοιαύτης.

PERICLES

XXXIX. So, then, the man is to be admired not only for his reasonableness and the gentleness which he maintained in the midst of many responsibilities and great enmities, but also for his loftiness of spirit, seeing that he regarded it as the noblest of all his titles to honour that he had never gratified his envy or his passion in the exercise of his vast power, nor treated any one of his foes as a foe incurable. And it seems to me that his otherwise puerile and pompous surname is rendered unobjectionable and becoming by this one circumstance, that it was so gracious a nature and a life so pure and undefiled in the exercise of sovereign power which were called Olympian, inasmuch as we do firmly hold that the divine rulers and kings of the universe are capable only of good, and incapable of evil. In this we are not like the poets, who confuse us with their ignorant fancies, and are convicted of inconsistency by their own stories, since they declare that the place where they say the gods dwell is a secure abode and tranquil, without experience of winds and clouds, but gleaming through all the unbroken time with the soft radiance of purest light,¹—implying that some such a manner of existence is most becoming to the blessed immortal; and yet they represent the gods themselves as full of malice and hatred and wrath and other passions which ill become even men of any sense. But this, perhaps, will be thought matter for discussion elsewhere.

The progress of events wrought in the Athenians

¹ Cf. Odyssey, vi. 42 ff.

PLUTARCH'S LIVES

πόθον Ἀθηναίοις ἐνεργάζετο τὰ πράγματα. καὶ γὰρ οἱ ζῶντος βαρυνόμενοι τὴν δύναμιν ὡς ἀμαυροῦσαν αὐτούς, εὐθύς ἐκ ποδῶν γενομένου πειρώμενοι ῥητόρων καὶ δημαγωγῶν ἐτέρων ἀνωμολογοῦντο μετριώτερον ἐν ὄγκῳ καὶ σεμνότερον εἰ
 ὁ πραότητι μὴ φῦναι τρόπον· ἢ δ' ἐπίφθονος ἰσχύς ἐκείνη, μοναρχία λεγομένη καὶ τυραννὶς πρότερον, ἐφάνη τότε σωτήριον ἔρυμα τῆς πολιτείας γενομένη· τοσαύτη φθορὰ καὶ πλῆθος ἐπέκειτο κακίας τοῖς πράγμασιν, ἣν ἐκείνος ἀσθενῆ καὶ ταπεινὴν ποιῶν ἀπέκρυπτε καὶ κατεκώλυεν ἀνήκεστον ἐν ἐξουσίᾳ¹ γενέσθαι.

¹ ἐν ἐξουσίᾳ Fuhr and Blass with F^aSC: ἐξουσίᾳ.

PERICLES

a swift appreciation of Pericles and a keen sense of his loss. For those who, while he lived, were oppressed by a sense of his power and felt that it kept them in obscurity, straightway on his removal made trial of other orators and popular leaders, only to be led to the confession that a character more moderate than his in its solemn dignity, and more august in its gentleness, had not been created. (That objectionable power of his, which they had used to call monarchy and tyranny, seemed to them now to have been a saving bulwark of the constitution, so greatly was the state afflicted by the corruption and manifold baseness which he had kept weak and grovelling, thereby covering it out of sight and preventing it from becoming incurably powerful.

FABIUS MAXIMUS

ΦΑΒΙΟΣ ΜΑΞΙΜΟΣ

- I. Τοιούτου δὲ τοῦ Περικλέους ἐν τοῖς ἀξίοις 174
 μνήμης γεγονότος, ὡς παρειλήφαμεν, ἐπὶ τὸν Φάβιον τὴν ἱστορίαν μεταγάγωμεν. νυμφῶν μιᾶς
 λέγουσιν, οἱ δὲ γυναικὸς ἐπιχωρίας, Ἡρακλεῖ
 μυγείσης περὶ τὸν Θύμβριν ποταμὸν γενέσθαι
 Φάβιον, ἄνδρα πολὺ καὶ δόκιμον ἐν Ῥώμῃ τὸ
 2 Φαβίων γένος ἀφ' αὐτοῦ παρασχόντα. τινὲς δὲ
 τοὺς ἀπὸ τοῦ γένους τούτου πρώτους τῇ δι' ὀρυγμάτων χρησαμένους ἄγρα Φοδίους ἱστοροῦσιν
 ὀνομάζεσθαι τὸ παλαιόν· οὕτω γὰρ ἄχρι νῦν αἱ
 διώρυχες φόσσαι καὶ φήδερε τὸ σκάψαι καλεῖται·
 χρόνῳ δὲ τῶν δυεῖν φθόγγων μεταπεσόντων Φάβιοι προσηγορεύθησαν. πολλοὺς δὲ καὶ μεγάλους τῆς οἰκίας ἐξενεγκαμένης ἄνδρας, ἀπὸ Ῥούλ-
 λου τοῦ μεγίστου καὶ διὰ τοῦτο Μαξίμου παρὰ
 Ῥωμαίοις ἐπονομασθέντος τέταρτος ἦν Φάβιος Μάξιμος, περὶ οὗ τάδε γράφομεν.
- 3 Ἦν δ' αὐτῷ σωματικὸν μὲν παρωνύμιον ὁ Βερούκωσος· εἶχε γὰρ ἀκροχορδόνα μικρὰν
 ἐπάνω τοῦ χείλους ἐπιπεφυκυῖαν· ὁ δὲ Ὀουικούλας σημαίνει μὲν τὸ προβάτιον, ἐτέθη δὲ πρὸς
 τὴν πραότητα καὶ βαρύτητα¹ τοῦ ἤθους ἔτι παιδὸς
 ὄντος. τὸ γὰρ ἡσύχιον αὐτοῦ καὶ σιωπηλὸν καὶ

¹ βαρύτητα MSS., Sint.¹, Coraës, and Bekker: βραδυτήτα slowness.

FABIUS MAXIMUS

I. SUCH were the memorable things in the career of Pericles, as we have received them, and now let us change the course of our narrative and tell of Fabius. It was a nymph, they say, or a woman native to the country, according to others, who consorted with Hercules by the river Tiber, and became by him the mother of Fabius, the founder of the family of the Fabii, which was a large one, and of high repute in Rome. But some writers state that the first members of the family were called Fodii in ancient times, from their practice of taking wild beasts in pitfalls. For down to the present time "fossae" is the Latin for ditches, and "fodere" for to dig. In course of time, by a change of two letters, they were called Fabii. This family produced many great men, and from Rullus, the greatest of them, and on this account called Maximus by the Romans, the Fabius Maximus of whom we now write was fourth in descent.

He had the surname of Verrucosus from a physical peculiarity, namely, a small wart growing above his lip; and that of Ovicula, which signifies Lambkin, was given him because of the gentleness and gravity of his nature when he was yet a child. Indeed, the calmness and silence of his demeanour, μετὰ πολλῆς εὐλαβείας τῶν παιδικῶν ἀπτόμενον ἡδονῶν, βραδέως δὲ καὶ διαπόνως δεχόμενον τὰς μαθήσεις, εὐκόλον δὲ πρὸς τοὺς συνήθεις καὶ κατήκοον ἀβελτερίας τινὸς καὶ νωθρότητος ὑπόνοιαν εἶχε παρὰ τοῖς ἑκτός· ὀλίγοι δ' ἦσαν οἱ τὸ δυσκίνητον ὑπὸ βάθους καὶ τὸ μεγαλόψυχον καὶ

 4 λεοντῶδες ἐν τῇ φύσει καθορῶντες αὐτοῦ. ταχὺ δὲ τοῦ χρόνου προϊόντος ὑπὸ τῶν πραγμάτων ἐγειρόμενος διεσήμαινε καὶ τοῖς πολλοῖς ἀπάθειαν μὲν οὖσαν τὴν δοκοῦσαν ἀπραγίαν, εὐβουλίαν δὲ τὴν εὐλάβειαν, τὸ δὲ πρὸς μηδὲν ὄξυ μηδ' εὐκίνητον ἐν πᾶσι μόνιμον καὶ βέβαιον. ὀρῶν δὲ καὶ τῆς πολιτείας τὸ μέγεθος καὶ τῶν πολέμων τὸ πλῆθος, ἤσκει τὸ μὲν σῶμα πρὸς τοὺς πολέμους, ὥσπερ ὄπλον σύμφυτον, τὸν δὲ λόγον ὄργανον πειθοῦς πρὸς τὸν δῆμον, εὖ μάλα πρε-
 5 πόντως τῷ βίῳ κατακεκοσμημένον. οὐ γὰρ ἐπὶ ἡν ὠραισμός οὐδὲ κενὴ καὶ ἀγοραῖος χάρις, ἀλλὰ νοῦς ἴδιον καὶ περιττὸν ἐν γνωμολογίαις σχῆμα καὶ βάθος ἔχων, ἃς μάλιστα ταῖς Θουκυδίδου προσεικέναι λέγουσι. διασώζεται γὰρ αὐτοῦ λόγος, ὃν εἶπεν ἐν τῷ δήμῳ, τοῦ παιδὸς αὐτοῦ μεθ' ὑπατείας ἀποθανόντος ἐγκώμιον.

II. Πέντε δ' ὑπατειῶν ἃς ὑπάτευσεν, ἡ πρώτη τὸν ἀπὸ Λιγύων θρίαμβον ἔσχεν. ἡττηθέντες γὰρ ὑπ' αὐτοῦ μάχῃ καὶ πολλοὺς ἀποβαλόντες εἰς τὰς Ἄλπεις ἀνεστάλησαν, καὶ τὴν πρόσοικον ἐπαύσαντο τῆς Ἰταλίας ληιζόμενοι καὶ κακῶς
 2 ποιοῦντες. ἐπεὶ δ' Ἀννίβας ἐμβαλὼν εἰς Ἰταλίαν

FABIUS MAXIMUS

the great caution with which he indulged in childish pleasures, the slowness and difficulty with which he learned his lessons, and his contented submissiveness in dealing with his comrades, led those who knew him superficially to suspect him of something like foolishness and stupidity. Only a few discerned the inexorable firmness in the depth of his soul, and the magnanimous and leonine qualities of his nature. But soon, as time went on and he was roused by the demands of active life, he made it clear even to the multitude that his seeming lack of energy was only lack of passion, that his caution was prudence, and that his never being quick nor even easy to move made him always steadfast and sure. He saw that the conduct of the state was a great task, and that wars must be many; he therefore trained his body for the wars (nature's own armour, as it were), and his speech as an instrument of persuasion with the people, giving it a form right well befitting his manner of life. For it had no affectation, nor any empty, forensic grace, but an import of peculiar dignity, rendered weighty by an abundance of maxims. These, they say, most resembled those which Thucydides employs. And a speech of his is actually preserved, which was pronounced by him before the people in eulogy of his son,¹ who died consul.

II. The first² of the five consulships in which he served brought him the honour of a triumph over the Ligurians. These were defeated by him in battle, with heavy loss, and retired into the Alps, where they ceased plundering and harrying the parts of Italy next to them. But Hannibal now

¹ Cf. Cicero, Cato Maior, 4.

² 233 B.C.

καὶ μαχη πρώτου περὶ τὸν Τρεβίαν ποταμὸν ἐπικρατήσας αὐτὸς μὲν ἤλαυνε διὰ Τυρρηνίας πορθῶν τὴν χώραν, ἔκπληξιν δὲ δεινὴν καὶ φόβον εἰς τὴν Ῥώμην ἐνέβαλε, σημεῖα δὲ τὰ μὲν συνήθη Ῥωμαίοις ἀπὸ κεραυνῶν, τὰ δ' ὅλως ἐξηλλαγμένα
 3 καὶ πολλὴν ἀτοπίαν ἔχοντα προσέπιπτε (θυρεοὺς τε γὰρ ἀφ' αὐτῶν αἵματι γενέσθαι διαβρόχους ἐλέχθη, καὶ θέρη σταχύων περὶ Ἄντιον ἔναιμα κείρεσθαι, καὶ λίθους μὲν ἐκ τοῦ ἀέρος διαπύρους καὶ φλεγομένους φέρεσθαι, τοῦ δ' ὑπὲρ Φαλερίου οὐρανοῦ ραγῆναι δόξαντος ἐκπίπτειν καὶ διασπείρεσθαι πολλὰ γραμματεῖα, καὶ τούτων ἐν ἐνὶ γεγραμμένον φανῆναι κατὰ λέξιν "Ἄρης τὰ 175
 4 ἑαυτοῦ ὄπλα σαλεύει"), τὸν μὲν ὕπατον Γάϊον Φλαμίνιον οὐδὲν ἠμβλυνε τούτων, ἄνδρα πρὸς τῷ φύσει θυμοειδεῖ καὶ φιλοτίμῳ μεγάλας ἐπαιρόμενον εὐτυχίαις, ὡς πρόσθεν εὐτύχησε παραλόγως, τῆς τε βουλῆς ἀπαδούσης¹ καὶ τοῦ συνάρχοντος ἐνισταμένου βία συμβαλὼν τοῖς Γαλάταις καὶ κρατήσας, Φάβιον δὲ τὰ μὲν σημεῖα, καίπερ ἀπτόμενα πολλῶν, ἤττον ὑπέθραττε διὰ
 5 τὴν ἀλογίαν· τὴν δ' ὀλιγότητα τῶν πολεμίων καὶ τὴν ἀχρηματίαν πυνθανόμενος καρτερεῖν παρεκάλει τοὺς Ῥωμαίους καὶ μὴ μάχεσθαι πρὸς ἄνθρωπον ἐπ' αὐτῷ τούτῳ διὰ πολλῶν ἀγώνων ἡσκημένη στρατιᾷ χρώμενον, ἀλλὰ τοῖς συμμάχοις ἐπιπέμποντας βοηθείας καὶ τὰς πόλεις διὰ χειρὸς ἔχοντας αὐτὴν εἶναι περὶ αὐτῇ μαραίνεσθαι τὴν ἀκμὴν τοῦ Ἄννιβου, καθάπερ φλόγα λάμψασαν ἀπὸ μικρᾶς καὶ κούφης δυνάμεως.

¹ ἀπαδούσης with CS: ἀποκαλούσης.

FABIUS MAXIMUS

burst into Italy,¹ and was at first victorious in battle at the river Trebia. Then he marched through Tuscany, ravaging the country, and smote Rome with dire consternation and fear. Signs and portents occurred, some familiar to the Romans, like peals of thunder, others wholly strange and quite extraordinary. For instance, it was said that shields sweated blood, that ears of corn were cut at Antium with blood upon them, that blazing, fiery stones fell from on high, and that the people of Falerii saw the heavens open and many tablets fall down and scatter themselves abroad, and that on one of these was written in letters plain to see, "Mars now brandisheth his weapons."² The consul, Gaius Flaminius, was daunted by none of these things, for he was a man of a fiery and ambitious nature, and besides, he was elated by great successes which he had won before this, in a manner contrary to all expectation. He had, namely, although the senate dissented from his plan, and his colleague violently opposed it, joined battle with the Gauls and defeated them. Fabius also was less disturbed by the signs and portents, because he thought it would be absurd, although they had great effect upon many. But when he learned how few in number the enemy were, and how great was their lack of resources, he exhorted the Romans to bide their time, and not to give battle to a man who wielded an army trained by many contests for this very issue, but to send aid to their allies, to keep their subject cities well in hand, and to suffer the culminating vigour of Hannibal to sink and expire of itself, like a flame that flares up from scant and slight material.

¹ 218 B.C. ² Mauors telum suum concutit (Livy, xxii. 1).

III. Οὐ μὴν ἔπεισε τὸν Φλαμίνιον, ἀλλὰ φήσας οὐκ ἀνέξεσθαι προσιόντα τῇ Ῥώμῃ τὸν πόλεμον οὐδ', ὥσπερ ὁ παλαιὸς Κάμιλλος, ἐν τῇ πόλει διαμαχεῖσθαι περὶ αὐτῆς, τὸν μὲν στρατὸν ἐξάγειν ἐκέλευσε τοὺς χιλιάρχους, αὐτὸς δ' ἐπὶ τὸν ἵππον ἀλλόμενος ἐξ οὐδενὸς αἰτίου προδήλου παραλόγως εἰτρόμου τοῦ ἵππου γενομένου καὶ πτυρέντος ἐξέπεσε καὶ κατενεχθεὶς ἐπὶ κεφαλὴν ὅμως οὐδὲν ἔτρεψε τῆς γνώμης, ἀλλ' ὡς ὄρμησεν ἐξ ἀρχῆς ἀπαντῆσαι τῷ Ἄννιβα, περὶ τὴν καλουμένην Θρασυμένην¹ λίμνην τῆς Τυρρηνίας παρετάξατο.

2 Τῶν δὲ στρατιωτῶν συμβαλόντων εἰς χεῖρας ἅμα τῷ καιρῷ τῆς μάχης συνέπεσε σεισμός, ὑφ' οὗ καὶ πόλεις ἀνετράπησαν καὶ ρεύματα ποταμῶν ἐξ ἔδρας μετέστη καὶ κρημνῶν ὑπώρειαι περιερράγησαν.² ἀλλά, καίπερ οὕτω γενομένου βιαίου τοῦ πάθους,³ οὐδεὶς τὸ παράπαν ἦσθετο

3 τῶν μαχομένων. αὐτὸς μὲν οὖν ὁ Φλαμίνιος πολλὰ καὶ τόλμης ἔργα καὶ ῥώμης ἐπιδεικνύμενος ἔπεσε, καὶ περὶ αὐτὸν οἱ κρίτιστοι τῶν δ' ἄλλων τραπέντων πολὺς ἦν φόνος, καὶ πεντακισχίλιοι πρὸς μυρίοις κατεκόπησαν, καὶ ἐάλωσαν ἕτεροι τοσοῦτοι. τὸ δὲ Φλαμινίου σῶμα φιλοτιμούμενος θάψαι καὶ κοσμησαι δι' ἀρετὴν ὁ Ἄννιβας οὐχ εὖρεν ἐν τοῖς νεκροῖς, ἀλλ' ἠγνοεῖτο τὸ παράπαν ὅπως ἠφανίσθη.

4 Τὴν μὲν οὖν ἐπὶ τοῦ Τρεβίου γενομένην ἤτταν

¹ Θρασυμένην an early anonymous correction, adopted by Coraës and Bekker : Θρασυνίαν.

² περιερράγησαν Bekker's παρερράγησαν is now found in S.

³ τοῦ πάθους Coraës and Bekker after Reiske : πάθους.

FABIUS MAXIMUS

III. Flaminius, however, was not persuaded, but declared that he would not suffer the war to be brought near Rome, and that he would not, like Camillus of old, fight in the city for the city's defence. Accordingly, he ordered the tribunes to lead the army forth. But as Flaminius himself sprang upon his horse, for no apparent reason, and unaccountably, the animal was seized with quivering fright, and he was thrown and fell head foremost to the ground. Nevertheless, he in no wise desisted from his purpose, but since he had set out at the beginning to face Hannibal, drew up his forces near the lake called Thrasymenté,¹ in Tuscany.

When the soldiers of both armies had engaged, at the very crisis of the battle, an earthquake occurred, by which cities were overthrown, rivers diverted from their channels, and fragments of cliffs torn away. And yet, although the disaster was so violent, no one of the combatants noticed it at all. Flaminius himself, then, while displaying many deeds of daring and prowess, fell, and round about him the flower of his army. The rest were routed with much slaughter. Fifteen thousand were cut to pieces, and as many more taken prisoners. The body of Flaminius, to which Hannibal was eager to give honourable burial because of his valour, could not be found among the dead, but disappeared, no one ever knowing how.

Now of the defeat sustained at the Trebia,² neither

¹ Tarsimene, Polybius, iii. 82; Trasimenus, Livy, xxii. 4.

² Cf. chapter ii. 2.

οὐθ' ὁ γράψας στρατηγὸς οὐθ' ὁ πεμφθεὶς ἄγγελος ἀπ' εὐθείας ἔφρασεν, ἀλλ' ἐψεύσατο τὴν νίκη ἐπίδικον αὐτοῖς καὶ ἀμφίδοξον γενέσθαι· περὶ δὲ ταύτης ὡς πρῶτον ἤκουσεν ὁ στρατηγὸς Πομπῶνιος, συναγαγὼν εἰς ἐκκλησίαν τὸν δῆμον οὐ περιπλοκᾶς οὐδὲ παραγωγᾶς ἀλλ' ἄντικρυς ἔφη προσελθὼν· “ Νενικήμεθα, ὦ ἄνδρες Ῥωμαῖοι, μεγάλη μάχη, καὶ διέφθαρται τὸ στρατόπεδον, καὶ Φλαμίνιος ὑπάτος ἀπόλωλεν. ἀλλὰ βουλευέσθε
 5 περὶ σωτηρίας αὐτῶν καὶ ἀσφαλείας.” οὗτος μὲν οὖν ὥσπερ πνεῦμα τὸν λόγον ἐμβαλὼν εἰς πέλαγος τοσοῦτου δήμου συνετάραξε τὴν πόλιν, οὐδ' ἐστάναι πρὸς τοσαύτην ἔκπληξιν οἱ λογισμοὶ καὶ διαμένειν ἐδύναντο. πάντες δ' εἰς μίαν
 6 γνώμην συνήχθησαν ἀνυπευθύνου δεῖσθαι τὰ πράγματα μοναρχίας, ἣν δικτατορίαν καλοῦσι, καὶ τοῦ μεταχειριουμένου ταύτην ἀθρύπτως καὶ ἀδεῶς ἀνδρός· εἶναι δὲ τοῦτον ἓνα Φάβιον Μάξιμον, ἰσόρροπον ἔχοντα τῷ μεγέθει τῆς ἀρχῆς τὸ φρόνημα καὶ τὸ ἀξίωμα τοῦ ἥθους, ἡλικίας τε κατὰ τοῦτο γεγενημένον ἐν ᾧ συνέστηκεν ἔτι πρὸς τὰ τῆς ψυχῆς βουλευόμενα τὸ σῶμα τῇ ῥώμῃ καὶ συγκέκρται τῷ φρονίμῳ τὸ θαρραλέον.

IV. Ὡς οὖν ταῦτ' ἔδοξεν, ἀποδειχθεὶς δικτάτωρ Φάβιος, καὶ ἀποδείξας αὐτὸς ἵππαρχον Μάρκον Μινούκιον, πρῶτον μὲν ἠτήσατο τὴν σύγκλητον ἵππῳ χρῆσθαι παρὰ τὰς στρατείας. οὐ γὰρ ἐξῆν, ἀλλ' ἀπηγόρευτο κατὰ δὴ τινα νόμον παλαιόν, εἴτε τῆς ἀλκῆς τὸ πλεῖστον ἐν τῷ

FABIUS MAXIMUS

the general who wrote nor the messenger who was sent with the tidings gave a straightforward account, the victory being falsely declared uncertain and doubtful; but as soon as Pomponius the praetor heard of this second defeat, he called an assembly of the people, faced it, and without roundabout or deceptive phrases, but in downright fashion, said: "Men of Rome, we have been beaten in a great battle; our army has been cut to pieces; our consul, Flaminius, is dead. Take ye therefore counsel for your own salvation and safety." This speech of his fell like a tempest upon the great sea of people before him, and threw the city into commotion, nor could deliberate reasoning hold its own and stay the general consternation. But all were brought at last to be of one mind, namely, that the situation demanded a sole and absolute authority, which they call a dictatorship, and a man who would wield this authority with energy and without fear; that Fabius Maximus, and he alone, was such a man, having a spirit and a dignity of character that fully matched the greatness of the office, and being moreover at the time of life when bodily vigour still suffices to carry out the counsels of the mind, and courage is tempered with prudence.

IV. Accordingly, this course was adopted, and Fabius was appointed dictator.¹ He himself appointed Marcus Minucius to be his Master of Horse, and then at once asked permission of the senate to use a horse himself when in the field. For this was not his right, but was forbidden by an ancient law, either because the Romans placed their greatest

¹ In the absence of a consul, who alone could appoint a dictator, the people made Fabius pro-dictator (Livy, xxii. 8).

- πεζῶ τιθεμένων καὶ διὰ τοῦτο τὸν στρατηγὸν οἰομένων δεῖν παραμένειν τῇ φάλαγγι καὶ μὴ προλείπειν, εἴθ' ὅτι τυραννικὸν εἰς ἅπαντα τὰλλα 176 καὶ μέγα τὸ τῆς ἀρχῆς κράτος ἐστίν, ἔν γε τούτῳ βουλομένων τὸν δικτάτορα τοῦ δήμου φαίνεσθαι
- 2 δεόμενον. οὐ μὴν ἀλλὰ καὶ αὐτὸς ὁ Φάβιος εὐθύς ἐνδείξασθαι θέλων τῆς ἀρχῆς τὸ μέγεθος καὶ τὸν ὄγκον, ὡς μᾶλλον ὑπηκόοις χρῆτο καὶ πειθηνίοις τοῖς πολίταις, προῆλθε συνενεγκάμενος εἰς ταῦτὸ ῥαβδουχίας εἰκοσιτέσσαρας· καὶ τοῦ ἐτέρου τῶν ὑπάτων ἀπαντῶντος αὐτῷ τὸν ὑπὲρ-την πέμψας ἐκέλευσε τοὺς ῥαβδούχους ἀπαλλάξαι καὶ τὰ παράσημα τῆς ἀρχῆς ἀποθέμενον ἰδιώτην ἀπαντᾶν.
- 3 Μετὰ δὲ ταῦτα καλλίστην ἀρχόμενος ἐκ θεῶν ἀρχήν, καὶ διδάσκων τὸν δῆμον ὡς ὀλιγωρία καὶ περιφρονήσει τοῦ στρατηγοῦ πρὸς τὸ δαιμόνιον, οὐ μοχθηρία τῶν ἀγωνισαμένων σφαλέντα, προὔ-τρεπε μὴ δεδιέναι τοὺς ἐχθρούς, ἀλλὰ τοὺς θεοὺς ἐξευμενίζεσθαι καὶ τιμᾶν, οὐ δεισιδαιμονίαν ἐνεργαζόμενος,¹ ἀλλὰ θαρρύνων εὐσεβείᾳ τὴν ἀρετὴν καὶ ταῖς παρὰ τῶν θεῶν ἐλπίσι τὸν ἀπὸ τῶν πολεμίων φόβον ἀφαιρῶν καὶ παραμυθούμενος.
- 4 ἐκινήθησαν δὲ τότε πολλαὶ καὶ τῶν ἀπορρήτων καὶ χρησίμων αὐτοῖς βίβλων, ἃς Σιβυλλείου καλοῦσι· καὶ λέγεται συνδραμεῖν ἔνια τῶν ἀποκειμένων ἐν αὐταῖς λογίων πρὸς τὰς τύχας καὶ τὰς πράξεις ἐκείνας. καὶ τὸ μὲν γνωσθὲν οὐκ ἦν ἐτέρῳ πυθέσθαι· προελθὼν δὲ ὁ δικτάτωρ εἰς τὸν strength in their infantry, and for this reason thought that their commander ought to be with the phalanx and not leave it; or because they wished, since the power of the office in all other respects is as great as that of a tyrant, that in this point at least the dictator should be plainly dependent on the people. However, Fabius himself was minded to show forth at once the magnitude and grandeur of his office, that the citizens might be more submissive and obedient to his commands. He therefore appeared in public attended by a united band of twenty-four lictors with their fasces,¹ and when the remaining consul was coming to meet him, sent his adjutant to him with orders to dismiss his lictors, lay aside the insignia of his office, and meet him as a private person.

¹ ἐνεργαζόμενος Coraës and Bekker after Bryan, now with S: ἐργαζόμενος.

FABIUS MAXIMUS

After this, he began with the gods, which is the fairest of all beginnings, and showed the people that the recent disaster was due to the neglect and scorn with which their general had treated religious rites, and not to the cowardice of those who fought under him. He thus induced them, instead of fearing their enemies, to propitiate and honour the gods. It was not that he filled them with superstition, but rather that he emboldened their valour with piety, allaying and removing the fear which their enemies inspired, with hopes of aid from the gods. At this time, moreover, many of the so-called Sibylline books, containing secrets of service to the state, were consulted, and it is said that some of the oracular sayings therein preserved corresponded with the fortunes and events of the time. What was thus ascertained, however, could not be made public, but

¹ Each consul was allowed twelve.

ὄχλων εὗξατο τοῖς θεοῖς ἐνιαυτοῦ μὲν αἰγῶν καὶ
 συῶν καὶ προβάτων καὶ βοῶν ἐπιγονήν, ὅσῃν Ἰταλίας ὄρη καὶ πεδία καὶ ποταμοὶ καὶ λειμῶνες
 εἰς ὄραν ἐσομένην θρέψουσι, καταθύσειν ἅπαντα,
 θέας δὲ μουσικὰς καὶ θυμελικὰς ἄξειν ἀπὸ
 σηστερτίων τριακοσίων τριάκοντα τριῶν καὶ
 5 δηναρίων τριακοσίων τριάκοντα τριῶν ἔτι τριτηὀκτῶ μυριάδες δραχμῶν καὶ δραχμαὶ τρισχίλια
 πεντακόσiai ὀγδοῖκοντα τρεῖς καὶ δύο ὀβολοί.
 λόγον δὲ τῆς εἰς τοῦτο τοῦ πλήθους ἀκριβείας
 καὶ διανομῆς χαλεπὸν ἐστὶν εἰπεῖν, εἰ μὴ τις ἄρα
 βούλοιο τῆς τριάδος ὑμνεῖν τὴν δύναμιν, ὅτι καὶ
 φύσει τέλειος καὶ πρῶτος τῶν περιττῶν ἀρχή
 τε πλήθους ἐν αὐτῷ τὰς τε πρώτας διαφορὰς καὶ
 τὰ παντὸς ἀριθμοῦ στοιχεῖα μίξας καὶ συναρμόσας εἰς ταῦτὸν ἀνείληφεν.

V. Τῶν μὲν οὖν πολλῶν ὁ Φάβιος τὴν γνώμην
 ἀπαρτήσας εἰς τὸ θεῖον ἠδῖω πρὸς τὸ μέλλον
 ἐποίησεν· αὐτὸς δὲ πάσας θέμενος ἐν αὐτῷ τὰς
 τῆς νίκης ἐλπίδας, ὡς καὶ τοῦ θεοῦ τὰς εὐπραξίας
 δι' ἀρετῆς καὶ φρονήσεως παραδιδόντος, τρέπεται
 πρὸς Ἀννίβαν, οὐχ ὡς διαμαχούμενος, ἀλλὰ
 χρόνῳ τὴν ἀκμὴν αὐτοῦ καὶ χρήμασι τὴν ἀπορίαν
 καὶ πολυανθρωπία τὴν ὀλιγότητα τρίβειν καὶ
 2 ὑπαναλίσκειν βεβουλευμένος. ὅθεν αἰεὶ μετέωρος
 ἀπὸ τῆς ἵππου τῶν πολεμίων ἐν τόποις ὀρεινοῖς στρατοπεδεύων ἐπηρεῖτο, καθημένου μὲν ἡσυχάζων, κινουμένου δὲ κατὰ τῶν ἄκρων κύκλω περιῶν

FABIUS MAXIMUS

the dictator, in the presence of all the people, vowed to sacrifice to the gods an entire year's increase in goats, swine, sheep, and cattle, that is, all that Italy's mountains, plains, rivers, and meadows should breed in the coming spring.¹ He likewise vowed to celebrate a musical and dramatic festival in honour of the gods, which should cost three hundred and thirty-three sestertia, plus three hundred and thirty-three denarii, plus one third of a denarius. This sum, in Greek money, amounts to eighty-three thousand five hundred and eighty-three drachmas, plus two obols. Now the reason for the exact prescription of this particular number is hard to give, unless it was thereby desired to laud the power of the number three, as being a perfect number by nature, the first of odd numbers, the beginning of quantity, and as containing in itself the first differences and the elements of every number mingled and blended together.

V. By thus fixing the thoughts of the people upon their relations with Heaven, Fabius made them more cheerful regarding the future. But he himself put all his hopes of victory in himself, believing that Heaven bestowed success by reason of wisdom and valour, and turned his attentions to Hannibal. He did not purpose to fight out the issue with him, but wished, having plenty of time, money, and men, to wear out and consume gradually his culminating vigour, his scanty resources, and his small army. Therefore, always pitching his camp in hilly regions so as to be out of reach of the enemy's cavalry, he hung threateningly over them. If they sat still, he too kept quiet; but if they moved, he would fetch a

¹ Ver sacrum (Livy xxii. 10).

καὶ περιφαινόμενος ἐκ διαστήματος ὅσον ἀκοντὶ μὴ βιασθῆναι μάχεσθαι καὶ φόβον ὡς μαχησόμενος τοῖς πολεμίοις ἀπὸ τῆς μελλήσεως αὐτῆς παρέχειν. οὕτω δὲ παράγων τὸν χρόνον ὑπὸ πάντων κατεφρονεῖτο, καὶ κακῶς μὲν ἤκουεν ἐν τῷ στρατοπέδῳ, κομιδῇ δὲ τοῖς πολεμίοις ἄτολμος ἐδόκει καὶ τὸ μηδὲν εἶναι πλὴν ἐνὸς ἀνδρὸς

3 Ἀννίβου. μόνος δ' ἐκεῖνος αὐτοῦ τὴν δεινότητα, καὶ τὸν τρόπον ᾧ πολεμεῖν ἐγνώκει, συνιδὼν, καὶ διανοηθεὶς ὡς πάσῃ τέχνῃ καὶ βίᾳ κινητέος ἐστὶν εἰς μάχην ὁ ἀνὴρ ἢ διαπέπρακται τὰ Καρχηδονίων, οἷς μὲν εἰσι κρείττους ὅπλοις χρήσασθαι μὴ δυναμένων, οἷς δὲ λείπονται σώμασι καὶ χρήμασιν ἐλαττουμένων καὶ δαπανωμένων· εἰς τὸ μηδὲν, ἐπὶ πᾶσαν ἰδέαν στρατηγικῶν σφισμάτων καὶ παλαισμάτων τρεπόμενος, καὶ πειρώμενος ὥσπερ δεινὸς ἀθλητῆς λαβὴν ζητῶν, προσέβαλλε καὶ διετάραττε καὶ μετῆγε πολλαχόσε τὸν Φάβιον, ἐκστήσαι τῶν ὑπὲρ τῆς ἀσφαλείας λογισμῶν βου- 177
λόμενος.

4 Τῷ δ' ἢ μὲν γνώμη¹ πίστιν ἔχουσα τοῦ συμφέροντος ἐν ἑαυτῇ βέβαιος εἰστήκει καὶ ἀμετάπτωτος· ἠνώχλει δ' αὐτὸν ὁ ἵππαρχος Μινούκιος φιλομαχῶν ἀκαίρως καὶ θρασυνόμενος καὶ δημαγωγῶν τὸ στράτευμα μανικῆς φορᾶς καὶ κενῶν ἐλπίδων ὑπ' αὐτοῦ πεπληρωμένον· οἱ τὸν μὲν Φάβιον σκώπτοντες καὶ καταφρονοῦντες Ἀννίβου παιδαγωγοὶ· ἀπεκάλουν, τὸν δὲ Μινού-

¹ Τῷ δ' ἢ μὲν γνώμη with Bekker : Τῷ δὲ ἢ γνώμη.

FABIUS MAXIMUS

circuit down from the heights and show himself just far enough away to avoid being forced to fight against his will, and yet near enough to make his very delays inspire the enemy with the fear that he was going to give battle at last. But for merely consuming time in this way he was generally despised by his countrymen, and roundly abused even in his own camp. Much more did his enemies think him a man of no courage and a mere nobody,—all except Hannibal. He, and he alone, comprehended the cleverness of his antagonist, and the style of warfare which he had adopted. He therefore made up his mind that by every possible device and constraint his foe must be induced to fight, or else the Carthaginians were undone, since they were unable to use their weapons, in which they were superior, but were slowly losing and expending to no purpose their men and moneys, in which they were inferior. He therefore resorted to every species of strategic trick and artifice, and tried them all, seeking, like a clever athlete, to get a hold upon his adversary. Now he would attack Fabius directly, now he would seek to throw his forces into confusion, and now he would try to lead him off every whither, in his desire to divorce him from his safe, defensive plans.

But the purpose of Fabius, confident of a favourable issue, remained consistent and unchangeable. He was annoyed, however, by his Master of Horse, Minucius, who was eager to fight all out of season, and over bold, and who sought to win a following in the army, which he filled with mad impetuosity and empty hopes. The soldiers railed at Fabius and scornfully called him Hannibal's pedagogue; but

κιοι μέγαν ἄνδρα καὶ τῆς Ῥώμης ἄξιον ἡγοῦντο
 5 στρατηγόν· ὁ δὲ μᾶλλον εἰς φρόνημα καὶ θράσος ἀνειμένος ἐχλεύαζε μὲν τὰς ἐπὶ τῶν ἄκρων στρατοπεδείας, ὡς κατὰ θέατρα τοῦ δικτάτορος αἰεὶ
 παρασκευαζομένου θεωρήσουσι πορθομένην καὶ
 φλεγομένην τὴν Ἰταλίαν, ἡρώτα δὲ τοὺς φίλους
 τοῦ Φαβίου πότερον εἰς τὸν οὐρανὸν ἄρας ἀναφέρει τὸν στρατὸν ὡς τῆς γῆς ἀπεγνωκῶς, ἢ νέφη
 καὶ ὀμίχλας προβαλλόμενος ἀποδιδράσκει τοὺς
 6 πολεμίους. ταῦτα τῶν φίλων πρὸς τὸν Φάβιον
 ἀπαγγελλόντων καὶ τὴν ἀδοξίαν τῷ κινδύνῳ
 λῦσαι παραινούντων, “Οὕτω μέντ’ ἄν,” ἔφη, “δει-λότερος ἢ νῦν εἶναι δοκῶ γενοίμην, εἰ σκώμματα
 καὶ λοιδορίας φοβηθεῖς ἐκπέσειμι τῶν ἔμαντοῦ
 λογισμῶν. καίτοι τὸ μὲν ὑπὲρ πατρίδος οὐκ
 αἰσχροὺν δέος, ἢ δὲ πρὸς δόξαν ἀνθρώπων καὶ διαβολὰς καὶ ψόγους ἔκπληξις οὐκ ἄξιον τηλικαύτης ἀρχῆς ἀνδρός, ἀλλὰ δουλεύοντος ὧν κρα-τεῖν αὐτὸν καὶ δεσπόζειν κακῶς φρονούντων προσ-ἴκει.”

VI. Μετὰ ταῦτα γίνεται διαμαρτία τοῦ Ἀντί-
 βου. βουλόμενος γὰρ ἀπασπᾶσαι τοῦ Φαβίου
 πορρωτέρῳ τὸ στράτευμα καὶ πεδίων ἐπιλαβέσθαι προνομὰς ἔχόντων, ἐκέλευσε τοὺς ὀδηγούς
 μετὰ δεῖπνον εὐθύς ἡγεῖσθαι πρὸς τὸ Κασινάτον.
 οἱ δὲ τῆς φωνῆς διὰ βαρβαρισμὸν οὐκ ἔξακού-σαντες ἀκριβῶς, ἐμβάλλουσιν αὐτοῦ τὴν δύναμιν
 φέροντες εἰς τὰ καταλήγοντα τῆς Καμπανίας εἰς
 πόλιν Κασιλῖνον, ἣν τέμνει ῥέων διὰ μέσης ποτα-μός, ὃν Οὐουλτοῦρνον οἱ Ῥωμαῖοι καλοῦσιν.
 2 ἔστι δ’ ἡ χώρα τὰ μὲν ἄλλα περιστεφῆς ὄρεσιν·

FABIUS MAXIMUS

Minucius they considered a great man, and a general worthy of Rome. All the more therefore did he indulge his arrogance and boldness, and scoffed at their encampments on the heights, where, as he said, the dictator was always arranging beautiful theatres for their spectacle of Italy laid waste with fire and sword. And he would ask the friends of Fabius whether he was taking his army up into heaven, having lost all hope of earth, or whether he wrapped himself in clouds and mists merely to run away from the enemy. When his friends reported this to Fabius, and advised him to do away with the opprobrium by risking battle, "In that case, surely," said he, "I should be a greater coward than I am now held to be, if through fear of abusive jests I should abandon my fixed plans. And verily the fear which one exercises in behalf of his country is not shameful; but to be frightened from one's course by the opinions of men, and by their slanderous censures, that marks a man unworthy of so high an office as this, who makes himself the slave of the fools over whom he is in duty bound to be lord and master."

VI. After this, Hannibal fell into a grievous error. He wished to draw his army off some distance beyond Fabius, and occupy plains affording pasturage. He therefore ordered his native guides to conduct him, immediately after supper, into the district of Casinum. But they did not hear the name correctly, owing to his foreign way of pronouncing it, and promptly hurried his forces to the edge of Campania, into the city and district of Casilinum, through the midst of which flows a dividing river, called Vulturnus by the Romans. The region is otherwise encompassed by mountains, but a narrow defile opens

αὐλῶν δ' ἀναπέπταται πρὸς τὴν θάλατταν, ἔνθα
 τὰ ἔλη καταδίδωσι τοῦ ποταμοῦ περιχεομένου,
 καὶ θίνας ἄμμου βαθείας ἔχει, καὶ τελευτᾷ πρὸς
 αἰγιαλὸν κυματώδη καὶ δύσορμον. ἐνταῦθα καταβαίνοντος τοῦ Ἀννίβου περιελθὼν ἐμπειρία τῶν
 ὁδῶν ὁ Φάβιος τὴν μὲν διέξοδον ὀπλίτας τετρακισχιλίους ἐπιστήσας ἐνέφραξε, τὸν δ' ἄλλον
 στρατὸν ὑπὲρ τῶν ἄλλων ἄκρων ἐν καλῷ καθίσας
 διὰ τῶν ἐλαφροτάτων καὶ προχειροτάτων ἐνέβαλε
 τοῖς ἐσχάτοις τῶν πολεμίων, καὶ συνετάραξεν
 ἅπαν τὸ στράτευμα, διέφθειρε δὲ περὶ ὀκτακο-3 σίους. ἐκ τούτου βουλόμενος Ἀννίβας ἀπαγαγεῖν
 τὸ στράτευμα, καὶ τὴν διαμαρτίαν τοῦ τόπου
 νοήσας καὶ τὸν κίνδυνον, ἀνεσταύρωσε μὲν τοὺς
 ὀδηγούς, ἐκβιάζεσθαι δὲ τοὺς πολεμίους καὶ προσ-μάχεσθαι τῶν ὑπερβολῶν ἐγκρατεῖς ὄντας ἀπεγίνωσκε. δυσθύμως δὲ καὶ περιφύβως διακειμένων
 ἀπάντων, καὶ περιστάται σφᾶς πανταχόθεν
 ἀφύκτους ἡγουμένων ἀπορίας, ἔγνω δολοῦν ἀπάτη
 τοὺς πολεμίους. ἦν δὲ τοιόνδε.
 4 Βούς ὅσον δισχιλίας ἐκ τῶν αἰχμαλώτων ἐκέ-λευσε συλλαβόντας ἀναδῆσαι δᾶδα πρὸς ἕαστον
 κέρας ἢ λύγων ἢ φρυγάνων αὐτῶν φάκελον· εἶτα
 νυκτός, ὅταν ἀρθῇ σημεῖον, ἀνάψαντας ἐλαύνειν
 ἐπὶ τὰς ὑπερβολὰς παρὰ τὰ στενὰ καὶ τὰς φυλα-κὰς τῶν πολεμίων. ἅμα δὲ ταῦτα παρεσκευάζον
 οἷς προσετέτακτο, καὶ τὸν ἄλλον αὐτὸς ἀναστήσας στρατὸν ἤδη σκύτους ὄντος ἠγε σχολαίως.
 5 αἱ δὲ βύες, ἄχρι μὲν τὸ πῦρ ὀλίγον ἦν καὶ περιέ-

FABIUS MAXIMUS

out towards the sea, in the vicinity of which it becomes marshy, from the overflow of the river, has high sand-heaps, and terminates in a beach where there is no anchorage because of the dashing waves. While Hannibal was descending into this valley, Fabius, taking advantage of his acquaintance with the ways, marched round him, and blocked up the narrow outlet with a detachment of four thousand heavy infantry. The rest of his army he posted to advantage on the remaining heights, while with the lightest and readiest of his troops he fell upon the enemy's rear-guard, threw their whole army into confusion, and slew about eight hundred of them. Hannibal now perceived the mistake in his position, and its peril, and crucified the native guides who were responsible for it. He wished to effect a retreat, but despaired of dislodging his enemies by direct attack from the passes of which they were masters. All his men, moreover, were disheartened and fearful, thinking that they were surrounded on all sides by difficulties from which there was no escape. He therefore determined to cheat his enemies by a trick, the nature of which was as follows.

He gave orders to take about two thousand of the cattle which they had captured, fasten to each of their horns a torch consisting of a bundle of withes or faggots, and then, in the night, at a given signal, to light the torches and drive the cattle towards the passes, along the defiles guarded by the enemy. As soon as his orders had been obeyed, he decamped with the rest of his army, in the darkness which had now come, and led it slowly along. The cattle, as long as the fire was slight, and consumed only the καίε τὴν ὕλην, ἀτρέμα προεχώρουν ἐλαυνόμεναι

 πρὸς τὴν ὑπώρειαν, καὶ θαῦμα τοῖς καθορώσι
 νομεῦσιν ἀπὸ τῶν ἄκρων καὶ βουκόλοις ἦσαν αἱ
 φλόγες ἄκροισ ἐπιλάμπουσαι τοῖς κέρασιν, ὡς
 στρατοπέδου καθ' ἓνα κόσμον ὑπὸ λαμπάδων
 6 πολλῶν βαδίζοντος. ἐπεὶ δὲ πυρούμενον τὸ κέρας 178
 ἄχρι ρίζης διέδωκε τῇ σαρκὶ τὴν αἴσθησιν, καὶ
 πρὸς τὸν πόνον διαφέρουσαι καὶ τινάσσουσαι τὰς κεφαλὰς ἀνεπίμπλαντο πολλῆς ἀπ' ἀλλήλων φλο-γός, οὐκ ἐνέμειναν τῇ τάξει τῆς πορείας, ἀλλ'
 ἔκφοβοι καὶ περιαλγεῖς οὔσαι δρόμῳ κατὰ τῶν
 ὁρῶν ἐφέροντο, λαμπόμεναι μὲν οὐρὰς ἄκρας καὶ
 μέτωπα, πολλὴν δὲ τῆς ὕλης, δι' ἧς ἔφευγον, 7 ἀνάπτουσαι. δεινὸν οὖν ἦν θέαμα τοῖς παραφυλάτ-τουσι τὰς ὑπερβολὰς Ῥωμαίοις· καὶ γὰρ αἱ φλό-γες ἐώκεσαν ὑπ' ἀνθρώπων θεόντων διαφερομέναις λαμπάσι, καὶ θόρυβος ἦν ἐν αὐτοῖς πολὺς καὶ
 φόβος, ἀλλαχόθεν ἄλλους ἐπιφέρεισθαι τῶν πολε-μίων σφίσι καὶ κυκλοῦσθαι πανταχόθεν ἡγουμένων. διὸ μένειν οὐκ ἐτόλμων, ἀλλὰ πρὸς τὸ
 μείζον ἀνεχώρουν στρατόπεδον προέμενοι τὰ στενί.
 καὶ¹ κατὰ τοῦτο δὲ καιροῦ προσμίξαντες οἱ ψιλοὶ
 τοῦ Ἀννίβου τὰς ὑπερβολὰς κατέσχον, ἡ δ' ἄλλη
 δύναμις ἤδη προσέβαινε ἀδεῶς πολλὴν καὶ
 βαρεῖαν ἐφελκομένη λείαν.

VII. Τῷ δὲ Φαβίῳ συνέβη μὲν ἔτι νυκτὸς αἰσθῆσθαι τὸν δόλον (φεύγουσαι γὰρ ἔνιαι τῶν βοῶν σποράδες ἦκον αὐτῶν εἰς χεῖρας), ἐνέδρας δὲ
 δεδιῶς σκοταίους ἀτρέμα τὴν δύναμιν ἐν τοῖς
 ὅπλοις εἶχεν. ὡς δ' ἦν ἡμέρα, διώκων ἐξήπτετο

¹ καὶ bracketed by Coraës and Bekker.

FABIUS MAXIMUS

wood, went on quietly, as they were driven, towards the slopes of the mountains, and the shepherds and herdsmen who looked down from the heights were amazed at the flames gleaming on the tips of their horns. They thought an army was marching in close array by the light of many torches. But when the horns had been burned down to the roots, and the live flesh felt the flames, and the cattle, at the pain, shook and tossed their heads, and so covered one another with quantities of fire, then they kept no order in their going, but, in terror and anguish, went dashing down the mountains, their foreheads and tails ablaze, and setting fire also to much of the forest through which they fled. It was, of course, a fearful spectacle to the Romans guarding the passes. For the flames seemed to come from torches in the hands of men who were running hither and thither with them. They were therefore in great commotion and fear, believing that the enemy were advancing upon them from all quarters and surrounding them on every side. Therefore they had not the courage to hold their posts, but withdrew to the main body of their army on the heights, and abandoned the defiles. Instantly the light-armed troops of Hannibal came up and took possession of the passes, and the rest of his forces presently joined them without any fear, although heavily encumbered with much spoil.

VII. It was still night when Fabius became aware of the ruse, for some of the cattle, in their random flight, were captured by his men ; but he was afraid of ambushes in the darkness, and so kept still, with his forces under arms. When it was day, however, he pursued the enemy, and hung upon their rear-guard, τῶν ἐσχάτων, καὶ συμπλοκαὶ περὶ τὰς δυσχωρίας ἐγίνοντο καὶ θόρυβος ἦν πολὺς, ἕως παρ' Ἀννίβου τῶν ὀρειβατεῖν δεινῶν Ἰβήρων ἄνδρες ἑλαφροὶ καὶ ποδώκεῖς πεμφθέντες ὑπὸ τοῦ στόματος εἰς βαρεῖς ὀπλίτας τοὺς Ῥωμαίους ἐνέβαλον, καὶ διαφθείραντες οὐκ ὀλίγους ἀπέστρεψαν τὸν Φάβιον. τότε δὴ μάλιστα κακῶς ἀκοῦσαι καὶ καταφρονηθῆναι συνέβη τὸν Φάβιον. τῆς γὰρ ἐν τοῖς ὅπλοις τόλμης ὑφιέμενος, ὡς γνώμη καὶ προνοία καταπολεμήσων τὸν Ἀννίβαν, αὐτὸς ἡττημένος τούτοις καὶ κατεστρατηγημένος ἐφαίνετο.

Βουλόμενος δὲ μᾶλλον ἐκκαῦσαι τὴν πρὸς αὐτὸν ὀργὴν τῶν Ῥωμαίων ὁ Ἀννίβας, ὡς ἦλθεν ἐπὶ τοὺς ἀγροὺς αὐτοῦ, τὰ μὲν ἄλλα πάντα καίειν καὶ διαφθεῖρειν ἐκέλευσεν, ἐκείνων δ' ἀπέπειπεν ἄπτεσθαι μόνων, καὶ παρακατέστησε φυλακὴν οὐδὲν ἐῴσαν ἀδικεῖν οὐδὲ λαμβάνειν ἐκεῖθεν. ταῦτα προσδιέβαλε τὸν Φάβιον εἰς Ῥώμην ἀγγελθέντα· καὶ πολλὰ μὲν αὐτοῦ πρὸς τὸν ὄχλον οἱ δήμαρχοι κατεβόων, ἐπάγοντος μάλιστα Μετιλίου καὶ παροξύνοντος, οὐ κατὰ τὴν πρὸς Φάβιον ἔχθραν, ἀλλ' οἰκείως ὣν Μινουκίου τοῦ ἱππάρχου τιμὴν ᾤετο καὶ δόξαν ἐκείνῳ φέρειν τὰς τούτου διαβολάς· ἐγεγόνει δὲ καὶ τῇ βουλῇ δι' ὀργῆς οὐχ ἥκιστα μεμφομένη τὰς περὶ τῶν αἰχμαλώτων πρὸς Ἀννίβαν ὁμολογίας. ὠμολογήκεισαν γὰρ αὐτοῖς ἄνδρα μὲν ἰνδρὶ λύεσθαι τῶν ἰλισκομένων, εἰ δὲ πλείους οἱ ἕτεροι γένοιτο, διδόναι δραχμῆς ὑπὲρ ἐκάστου τὸν κομιζόμενον·

FABIUS MAXIMUS

and there was hand-to-hand fighting over difficult ground, and much tumult and confusion. At last Hannibal sent back from his van a body of Spaniards, —nimble, light-footed men, and good mountaineers, who fell upon the heavy-armed Roman infantry, cut many of them to pieces,¹ and forced Fabius to turn back. And now more than ever was Fabius the mark for scorn and abuse. He had renounced all bold and open fighting, with the idea of conquering Hannibal by the exercise of superior judgment and foresight, and now he was clearly vanquished himself by these very qualities in his foe, and out-generalled.

Hannibal, moreover, wishing to inflame still more the wrath of the Romans against Fabius, on coming to his fields, gave orders to burn and destroy everything else, but had these spared, and these alone.² He also set a guard over them, which suffered no harm to be done them, and nothing to be taken from them. When this was reported at Rome, it brought more odium upon Fabius. The tribunes of the people also kept up a constant denunciation of him, chiefly at the instigation and behest of Metilius; not that Metilius hated Fabius, but he was a kinsman of Minucius, the Master of Horse, and thought that slander of the one meant honour and fame for the other. The senate also was in an angry mood, and found particular fault with Fabius for the terms he had made with Hannibal concerning the prisoners of war. They had agreed between them to exchange the captives man for man, and if either party had more than the other, the one who recovered these

¹ One thousand, according to Polybius, iii. 94.

² Cf. Pericles, xxxiii. 2.

πεντήκοντα καὶ διακοσίας. ὡς οὖν γενομένης τῆς
κατ' ἄνδρα διαμείψεως εὐρέθησαν ὑπόλοιποι Ῥωμαίων παρ' Ἀννίβα τεσσαράκοντα καὶ διακό-σιοι, τούτων ἢ σύγκλητος ἔγνω τὰ λύτρα μὴ
πέμπειν, καὶ προσητιάτο τὸν Φάβιον ὡς οὐ πρεπόντως οὐδὲ λυσιτελῶς ἄνδρας ὑπὸ δειλίας πολε-5 μίων ἄγρην γενομένους ἀνακομιζόμενον. ταῦτ' ἀκούσας ὁ Φάβιος τὴν μὲν ὀργὴν ἔφερε πρῶως
τῶν πολιτῶν, χρήματα δ' οὐκ ἔχων, διαψεύσασθαι δὲ τὸν Ἀννίβαν καὶ προέσθαι τοὺς πολίτας
οὐχ ὑπομένων, ἔπεμψε τὸν υἱὸν εἰς Ῥώμην κελεύσας ἀποδόσθαι τοὺς ἀγροὺς καὶ τὸ ἀργύριον εὐθὺς
ὡς αὐτὸν ἐπὶ τὸ στρατόπεδον κομίζειν. ἀποδομένου δὲ τοῦ νεανίσκου τὰ χωρία καὶ ταχέως
ἐπανελθόντος ἀπέπεμψε τὰ λύτρα τῷ Ἀννίβᾳ
καὶ τοὺς αἰχμαλώτους ἀπέλαβε· καὶ πολλῶν ἀποδιδόντων ὕστερον παρ' οὐδενὸς ἔλαβεν, ἀλλ'
ἀφῆκε πᾶσι.

VIII. Μετὰ δὲ ταῦτα τῶν ἱερέων καλούντων
αὐτὸν εἰς Ῥώμην ἐπὶ τινὰς θυσίας παρέδωκε τῷ Μινουκίῳ τὴν δύναμιν, ὑπὲρ τοῦ μὴ μάχεσθαι 179
μηδὲ συμπλέκεσθαι τοῖς πολεμίοις οὐ μόνον ὡς
αὐτοκράτωρ διαγορεύσας, ἀλλὰ καὶ παραινέσεις
καὶ δεήσεις πολλὰς αὐτοῦ ποιησάμενος· ὧν
ἐκεῖνος ἐλάχιστα φροντίσας εὐθὺς ἐνέκειτο τοῖς
2 πολεμίοις. καὶ ποτε παραφυλάξας τὸν Ἀννίβαν τὸ πολὺ τῆς στρατιᾶς ἐπὶ σιτολογίαν
ἀφεικότα, καὶ προσβαλὼν τῷ ὑπολειπομένῳ,
κατήραξεν εἰς τὸν χάρακα καὶ διέφθειρεν
οὐκ ὀλίγους καὶ φόβον περιέστησε πᾶσιν ὡς
πολιορκησομένοις ὑπ' αὐτοῦ. καὶ συλλεγομένης

FABIUS MAXIMUS

was to pay two hundred and fifty drachmas per man. Accordingly, after the exchange of man for man was made, it was found that Hannibal still had two hundred and forty Romans left. The senate decided not to send the ransom money for these, and found fault with Fabius for trying, in a manner unbecoming and unprofitable to the state, to recover men whose cowardice had made them a prey to the enemy. When Fabius heard of this, he bore the resentment of his fellow-citizens with equanimity, but since he had no money, and could not harbour the thought of cheating Hannibal and abandoning his countrymen to their fate, he sent his son to Rome with orders to sell his fields¹ and bring the money to him at once, at camp. The young man sold the estates and quickly made his return, whereupon Fabius sent the ransom money to Hannibal and got back the prisoners of war. Many of these afterwards offered to pay him the price of their ransom, but in no case did he take it, remitting it rather for all.

VIII. After this he was summoned to Rome by the priests to assist in sundry sacrifices, and put his forces in charge of Minucius, who was not to give battle, nor engage the enemy in any way. Such were not only the commands of Fabius as dictator, but also his reiterated counsels and requests. To all these Minucius gave little heed, and straightway began to threaten the enemy. One day he noticed that Hannibal had sent the larger part of his army off to forage, whereupon he attacked the residue, drove them headlong inside their trenches, slew many of them, and inspired them all with the fear of being held in siege by him. When Hannibal's

¹ Cf. chapter vii. 2.

αὐθις εἰς τὸ στρατόπεδον τῷ Ἀννίβα τῆς δυνάμεως ἀσφαλῶς ἀνεχώρησεν, αὐτὸν τε μεγαλαυ-
 χίας ἀμέτρου καὶ θράσους τὸ στρατιωτικὸν
 3 ἐμπεπληκῶς. ταχὺ δὲ τοῦ ἔργου λόγος μείζων διεφοίτησεν εἰς Ῥώμην. καὶ Φάβιος μὲν ἀκούσας
 ἔφη μᾶλλον τοῦ Μινουκίου φοβεῖσθαι τὴν εὐτυ-χίαν ἢ τὴν ἀτυχίαν,¹ ὁ δὲ δῆμος ἦρτο καὶ μετὰ
 χάραξ εἰς ἀγορὰν συνέτρεχε, καὶ Μειτίλιος ὁ δήμαρχος ἐπὶ τοῦ βήματος καταστάς ἐδημηγόρει
 μεγαλύνων τὸν Μινούκιον, τοῦ δὲ Φαβίου κατη-γορῶν οὐ μαλακίαν οὐδ' ἀνανδρίαν, ἀλλ' ἤδη
 4 προδοσίαν, συναιτιώμενος ἅμα καὶ τῶν ἄλλων ἀνδρῶν τοὺς δυνατωτάτους καὶ πρώτους ἐπαγαγέ-σθαι τὸν πόλεμον ἐξ ἀρχῆς ἐπὶ καταλύσει τοῦ
 δήμου, τὴν τε πόλιν ἐμβαλεῖν εὐθύς εἰς μοναρχίαν
 ἀνυπεύθυνον, ἢ διατρίβουσα τὰς πράξεις ἴδρυσιν Ἀννίβα παρέξει καὶ χρόνον αὐθις ἐκ Λιβύης
 ἑτέραν δύναμιν προσγενέσθαι ὡς κρατοῦντι τῆς Ἰταλίας.

IX. Ἐπεὶ δ' ὁ Φάβιος προσελθὼν ἀπολογεῖσθαι μὲν οὐδ' ἐμέλλησε πρὸς τὸν δήμαρχον, ἔφη
 δὲ τάχιστα τὰς θυσίας καὶ τὰς ἱερουργίας γενέσθαι, ὥστ' ἐπὶ τὸ στράτευμα βαδιεῖσθαι τῷ Μινουκίῳ δίκην ἐπιθήσω, ὅτι κωλύσαντος αὐτοῦ
 τοῖς πολεμίοις συνέβαλε, θόρυβος διῆξε τοῦ δήμου
 πολὺς, ὡς κινδυνεύσαντος τοῦ Μινουκίου. καὶ γὰρ
 εἶρξαι τῷ δικτάτορι καὶ θανατῶσαι πρὸ δίκης
 ἔξεστι· καὶ τοῦ Φαβίου τὸν θυμὸν ἐκ πολλῆς
 πραότητος κεκινημένον ᾤοντο βαρὺν εἶναι καὶ

¹ ἢ τὴν ἀτυχίαν supplied by Sintenis, followed by Bekker.
 Cf. Morals, p. 195 d. Secunda se magis quam adversa
timere, Livy, xxii. 25.

FABIUS MAXIMUS

forces were reunited in their camp, Minucius effected a safe retreat, thereby filling himself with measureless boastfulness and his soldiery with boldness. An exaggerated version of the affair speedily made its way to Rome, and Fabius, when he heard it, said he was more afraid of the success of Minucius than he would be of his failure. But the people were exalted in spirit and joyfully ran to a meeting in the forum. There Metilius their tribune mounted the rostra and harangued them, extolling Minucius, but denouncing Fabius, not as a weakling merely, nor yet as a coward, but actually as a traitor. He also included in his accusations the ablest and foremost men of the state besides. They had brought on the war at the outset, he said, in order to crush the people, and had at once flung the city into the hands of a man with sole and absolute authority, that he might, by his dilatory work, give Hannibal an assured position and time to reinforce himself with another army from Libya, on the plea that he had Italy in his power.

IX. Then Fabius came forward to speak, but wasted no time on a defence of himself against the tribune. He simply said that the sacrifices and sacred rites must be performed as quickly as possible, so that he might proceed to the army and punish Minucius for engaging the enemy contrary to his orders. Thereupon a great commotion spread swiftly through the people; they realized the peril that threatened Minucius. For the dictator has the power to imprison and put to death without trial, and they thought that the wrath of Fabius, provoked in a man of his great gentleness, would be severe

- 2 δυσπαφαίτητον. ὄθεν οἱ μὲν ἄλλοι καταδείσαντες ἡσυχίαν ἤγον· ὁ δὲ Μετίλιος ἔχων τὴν ἀπὸ τῆς δημαρχίας ἄδειαν (μόνη γὰρ αὕτη δικτάτορος αἰρεθέντος ἢ ἀρχὴ τὸ κράτος οὐκ ἀπόλλυσιν, ἀλλὰ μένει τῶν ἄλλων καταλυθεισῶν), ἐνέκειτο τῷ δήμῳ πολὺς, μὴ προέσθαι δεόμενος τὸν Μινούκιον μηδ' εἶσαι παθεῖν ἅ Μάλλιος Τουρκουᾶτος ἔδρασε τὸν υἱόν, ἀριστεύσαντος καὶ στεφανωθέντος ἀποκόψας πελέκει τὸν τράχηλον, ἀφελέσθαι δὲ τοῦ Φαβίου τὴν τυραννίδα καὶ τῷ δυναμένῳ καὶ βουλομένῳ σώζειν ἐπιτρέψαι τὰ πράγματα.
- 3 Τοιοῦτοις λόγοις κινηθέντες οἱ ἄνθρωποι τὸν μὲν Φάβιον οὐκ ἐτόλμησαν ἀναγκάσαι καταθέσθαι τὴν μοναρχίαν, καίπερ ἄδοξοῦντα, τὸν δὲ Μινούκιον ἐψηφίσαντο τῆς στρατηγίας ὁμότιμον ὄντα διέπειν τὸν πόλεμον ἀπὸ τῆς αὐτῆς ἐξουσίας τῷ δικτάτορι, πρᾶγμα μὴ πρότερον ἐν Ῥώμῃ γεγονός, ὀλίγῳ δ' ὕστερον αὐθις γενόμενον μετὰ
- 4 τὴν ἐν Κάνναις ἀτυχίαν. καὶ γὰρ τότε ἐπὶ τῶν στρατοπέδων Μάρκος ἦν Ἰούνιος δικτάτωρ, καὶ κατὰ πόλιν τὸ βουλευτικὸν ἀναπληρῶσαι δεῆσαν, ἅτε δὴ πολλῶν ἐν τῇ μάχῃ συγκλητικῶν ἀπολωλότων, ἕτερον εἴλοντο δικτάτορα Φάβιον Βουτεῶνα. πλὴν οὗτος μὲν, ἐπεὶ προῆλθε καὶ κατέλεξε τοὺς ἄνδρας καὶ συνεπλήρωσε τὴν βουλήν, αὐθημερὸν ἀφείς τοὺς ῥαβδούχους καὶ διαφυγῶν τοὺς προάγοντας, εἰς τὸν ὄχλον ἐμβαλὼν καὶ καταμίξας ἑαυτὸν ἤδη τι τῶν ἑαυτοῦ διοικῶν καὶ πραγματευόμενος ὥσπερ ἰδιώτης ἐπὶ τῆς ἀγορᾶς ἀνεστρέφετο.

FABIUS MAXIMUS

and implacable. Wherefore they were all terrified and held their peace, excepting only Metilius. He enjoyed immunity of person as tribune of the people (for this is the only magistracy which is not robbed of its power by the election of a dictator; it abides when the rest are abolished¹), and vehemently charged and prayed the people not to abandon Minucius, nor permit him to suffer the fate which Manlius Torquatus inflicted upon his son, whom he beheaded although crowned with laurel for the greatest prowess,² but to strip Fabius of his tyrant's power and entrust the state to one who was able and willing to save it.

The rabble were moved by such utterances. They did not dare to force Fabius to resign his sovereignty, unpopular as he was, but they voted that Minucius should have an equal share in the command, and should conduct the war with the same powers as the dictator,—a thing which had not happened before in Rome. A little while afterwards, it is true, it happened again, namely, after the disaster at Cannae.³ At that time Marcus Junius the dictator was in the field, and at home it became necessary that the senate should be filled up, since many senators had perished in the battle. They therefore elected Fabius Buteo a second dictator. But he, after acting in that capacity and choosing the men to fill up the senate, at once dismissed his lictors, eluded his escort, plunged into the crowd, and straightway went up and down the forum arranging some business matter of his own and engaging in affairs like a private citizen.

¹ See Polybius, iii. 87.

² The son had disobeyed consular orders and engaged in single combat with a Latin, in the great battle at the foot of Vesuvius, 340 B.C.

³ Cf. chapter xvi.

X. Τὸν δὲ Μινούκιον ἐπὶ τὰς αὐτὰς τῷ δικτάτορι πράξεις ἀποδείξαντες ᾤοντο κεκολοῦσθαι καὶ γεγονέναι ταπεινὸν παντάπασιν ἐκείνον, οὐκ ὀρθῶς στόχαζόμενοι τοῦ ἀνδρός. οὐ γὰρ αὐτοῦ συμφορὰν ἠγείτο τὴν ἐκείνων ἄγνοιαν, ἀλλ' ὥσπερ Διογένης ὁ σοφός, εἰπόντος τινὸς πρὸς αὐτόν· “Οὗτοι σοῦ καταγελῶσιν,” “Ἄλλ' ἐγώ,” εἶπεν, “οὐ καταγελῶμαι,” μόνους ἠγούμενος καταγελᾶσθαι τοὺς ἐνδιδόντας καὶ πρὸς τὰ τοιαῦτα δια-
 2 ταραττομένους, οὕτω Φάβιος ἔφερεν ἀπαθῶς καὶ ῥαδίως ὅσον ἐπ' αὐτῷ τὰ γινόμενα, συμβαλλόμενος ἀπόδειξιν τῶν φιλοσόφων τοῖς ἀξιούσι μῆτε ὑβρίζεσθαι μῆτε ἀτιμοῦσθαι τὸν ἀγαθὸν ἄνδρα καὶ σπουδαῖον. ἠνία δ' αὐτὸν ἢ τῶν πολλῶν ἀβουλία διὰ τὰ κοινά, δεδωκότων ἀφορμὰς ἀνδρὸς οὐχ ὑγαινούση φιλοτιμία πρὸς τὸν πόλε-
 3 μον. καὶ δεδοικῶς μὴ παντάπασιν ἐκμανεῖς ὑπὸ κενῆς δόξης καὶ ὄγκου φθάσῃ τι κακὸν ἀπεργασάμενος, λαθὼν ἅπαντας ἐξῆλθε· καὶ παραγενόμενος εἰς τὸ στρατόπεδον καὶ καταλαβὼν τὸν Μινούκιον οὐκέτι καθεκτόν, ἀλλὰ βαρὺν καὶ τετυφωμένον καὶ παρὰ μέρος ἄρχειν ἀξιοῦντα, τοῦτο μὲν οὐ συνεχώρησε, τὴν δὲ δύναμιν διενείματο πρὸς αὐτόν, ὡς μέρους μόνος ἄρξων βέλτιον
 4 ἢ πάντων παρὰ μέρος. καὶ τὸ μὲν πρῶτον τῶν ταγμάτων καὶ τέταρτον αὐτὸς ἔλαβε, τὸ δὲ δεύτερον καὶ τρίτον ἐκείνῳ παρέδωκεν, ἐπίσης καὶ τῶν συμμαχικῶν διανεμηθέντων. σεμνυνομένου δὲ τοῦ Μινουκίου καὶ χαίροντος ἐπὶ τῷ τὸ πρόσχημα τῆς ἀκροτάτης καὶ μεγίστης ἀρχῆς ὑφεῖσθαι καὶ προπεπηλακίσθαι δι' αὐτόν, ὑπεμίμησκεν ὁ Φάβιος ὡς οὐκ ὄντος μὲν αὐτῷ πρὸς Φάβιον, ἀλλ',

FABIUS MAXIMUS

X. Now that they had invested Minucius with the same powers as the dictator, the people supposed that the latter would feel shorn of strength and altogether humble, but they did not estimate the man aright. For he did not regard their mistake as his own calamity, but was like Diogenes the wise man, who, when some one said to him, "These folk are ridiculing you," said, "But I am not ridiculed." He held that only those are ridiculed who are confounded by such treatment and yield their ground. So Fabius endured the situation calmly and easily, so far as it affected himself, thereby confirming the axiom of philosophy that a sincerely good man can neither be insulted nor dishonoured. But because it affected the state, he was distressed by the folly of the multitude. They had given opportunities to a man with a diseased military ambition, and fearful lest this man, utterly crazed by his empty glory and prestige, should bring about some great disaster before he could be checked, he set out in all secrecy from the city. When he reached the camp, he found that Minucius was no longer to be endured. He was harsh in his manner, puffed up with conceit, and demanded the sole command in his due turn. This Fabius would not grant, feeling that the sole command of a part of the army was better than the command of the whole in his turn. The first and fourth legions he therefore took himself, and gave the second and third to Minucius, the allied forces also being equally divided between them. When Minucius put on lofty airs and exulted because the majesty of the highest and greatest office in the state had been lowered and insulted on his account, Fabius reminded him that his contention was not

5 εἰ σωφρονεῖ, πρὸς Ἀννίβαν τοῦ ἀγῶνος· εἰ δὲ καὶ πρὸς τὸν συνάρχοντα φιλονεικεῖ, σκοπεῖν ὅπως τοῦ νενικημένου καὶ καθυβρισμένου παρὰ τοῖς πολίταις ὁ τετιμημένος καὶ νενικηκῶς οὐ φανεῖται μᾶλλον ὀλιγωρῶν τῆς σωτηρίας αὐτῶν καὶ ἀσφαλείας.

XI. Ὁ δὲ ταῦτα μὲν εἰρωνεῖαν ἠγεῖτο γερωντικὴν· παραλαβὼν δὲ τὴν ἀποκληρωθεῖσαν δύναμιν ἰδίᾳ καὶ χωρὶς ἐστρατοπέδευσεν, οὐδὲν ἀγνοοῦντος τοῦ Ἀννίβου τῶν γινομένων, ἀλλὰ πᾶσιν ἐφεδρεύοντος. ἦν δὲ λόφος κατὰ μέσον καταληφθῆναι μὲν οὐ χαλεπός, ὄχυρός δὲ καταληφθεὶς στρατοπέδῳ καὶ διαρκῆς εἰς ἅπαντα. τὸ δὲ πέριξ πεδίου ὀφθῆναι μὲν ἄπωθεν ὀμαλὸν διὰ ψιλότητα καὶ λείον, ἔχον δὲ τινὰς οὐ μεγάλας
2 τάφρους ἐν αὐτῷ καὶ κοιλότητας ἄλλας. διὸ καὶ τὸν λόφον ἐκ τοῦ ῥάστου κρύφα κατασχεῖν παρὸν οὐκ ἠθέλησεν ὁ Ἀννίβας, ἀλλ' ἀπέλιπε μάχης ἐν μέσῳ πρόφασιν. ὡς δ' εἶδε κεχωρισμένον τοῦ Φαβίου τὸν Μινούκιον, νυκτὸς μὲν εἰς τὰς τάφρους καὶ τὰς κοιλότητας κατέσπειρε τῶν στρατιωτῶν τινὰς, ἅμα δὲ τῇ ἡμέρᾳ φανερώς ἔπεμψεν οὐ πολλοὺς καταληψομένους τὸν λόφον, ὡς ἐπαγάγοιτο συμπεσεῖν περὶ τοῦ τόπου τὸν Μινούκιον.

3 Ὁ δὲ καὶ συνέβη. πρῶτον μὲν γὰρ ἀπέστειλε τὴν κούφην στρατιάν, ἔπειτα τοὺς ἵππεῖς, τέλος

FABIUS MAXIMUS

with Fabius, but rather, were he wise, with Hannibal. If, however, he was bent on rivalry with his colleague in office, he must see to it that the man who had been triumphantly honoured by his fellow-citizens should not be proved more careless of their salvation and safety than the man who had been ingloriously outraged by them.

XI. But Minucius regarded all this as an old man's dissimulation, and taking the forces allotted to him, went into camp apart by himself,¹ while Hannibal, not unaware of what was going on, kept a watchful eye on everything. Now there was a hill between him and the Romans which could be occupied with no difficulty, and which, if occupied, would be a strong site for a camp and in every way sufficient. The plain round about, when viewed from a distance, was perfectly smooth and level, but really had sundry small ditches and other hollow places in it. For this reason, though it would have been very easy for him to get possession of the hill by stealth, Hannibal had not cared to do so, but had left it standing between the two armies in the hope that it might bring on a battle. But when he saw Minucius separated from Fabius, in the night he scattered bodies of his soldiers among the ditches and hollows,² and at break of day, with no attempt at concealment, sent a few to occupy the hill, that he might seduce Minucius into an engagement for it.

And this actually came to pass. First Minucius sent out his light-armed troops, then his horsemen, ¹ A mile and a half from Fabius, according to Polybius, iii. 103.

² Five thousand horsemen and footmen, according to Livy, xxii. 28; five thousand light-armed and other infantry, and five hundred cavalry, according to Polybius, iii. 104.

δ' ὄρων τὸν Ἀννίβαν παραβοηθοῦντα τοῖς ἐπὶ τοῦ
 λόφου πάσῃ κατέβαινε τῇ δυνάμει συντεταγμένους.
 καὶ μάχην καρτερὰν θέμιος ἡμύνητο τοὺς ἀπὸ
 τοῦ λόφου βάλλοντας, συμπλεκόμενος καὶ ἴσα
 φερόμενος, ἄχρι οὗ καλῶς ἠπατημένον ὄρων ὁ
 Ἀννίβας καὶ γυμνὰ παρέχοντα τοῖς ἐνεδρεύουσι
 4 τὰ νῶτα τὸ σημεῖον αἶρει. πρὸς δὲ τοῦτο πολ-λαχόθεν ἐξανισταμένων ἅμα καὶ μετὰ κραυγῆς
 προσφερομένων καὶ τοὺς ἐσχάτους ἀποκτινύν-
 των ἀδιήγητος κατεῖχε ταραχὴ καὶ πτοία τοὺς Ῥωμαίους, αὐτοῦ τε τοῦ Μινουκίου τὸ θράσος κατακέκλαστο, καὶ πρὸς ἄλλον ἄλλοτε τῶν ἡγε-μόνων διεπάπταιεν, οὐδενὸς ἐν χώρᾳ μένειν τολ-μῶντος, ἀλλὰ πρὸς φυγὴν ὠθυομένων οὐ σωτήριον.
 οἱ γὰρ Νομάδες ἤδη κρατοῦντες κύκλῳ περιήλουν
 τὸ πεδίον καὶ τοὺς ἀποσκιδναμένους ἔκτεινον.

XII. Ἐν τοσούτῳ δὲ κακῷ τῶν Ῥωμαίων
 ὄντων οὐκ ἔλαθεν ὁ κίνδυνος τὸν Φάβιον, ἀλλὰ
 καὶ τὸ μέλλον, ὡς ἔοικεν, ἤδη προειληφῶς τήν τε δύναμιν συντεταγμένην εἶχεν ἐπὶ τῶν ὄπλων καὶ
 τὰ πραττόμενα γινώσκειν ἐφρόντιζεν οὐ δι' ἀγ- 181
 γέλων, ἀλλ' αὐτὸς ἔχων κατασκοπὴν πρὸ τοῦ
 χάρακος. ὡς οὖν κατεῖδε κυκλοῦμενον καὶ ταρατ-τόμενον τὸ στράτευμα, καὶ κραυγὴν προσέπιπτεν
 οὐ μενόντων, ἀλλ' ἤδη πεφοβημένων καὶ τρεπο-2 μένων, μηρόν τε πληξάμενος καὶ στενάξας μέγα
 πρὸς μὲν τοὺς παρόντας εἶπεν. “ὦ Ἡράκλεις, ὡς τάχιον μὲν ἢ ἐγὼ προσεδόκων, βράδιον δ' ἢ
 αὐτὸς ἔσπευδε Μινούκιος ἑαυτὸν ἀπολώλεκε,” τὰς

FABIUS MAXIMUS

